"Maybe we shouldn't force things into racial disputes when they are something else. Maybe we shouldn't allow people to take over the agenda so they are permitted to do that," the mayor said. "Maybe this can be a lesson in how not to allow that to happen, including the aftermath of it."

Seven employees died of smoke inhalation in Friday's attack. The gunman shot and wounded four people who managed to escape the store before setting the place on fire and turning his gun on himself. The attack followed weeks of demonstrations and threats to "loot and burn" the store. Police said the gunman had taken part in at least one demonstration but it was not he who threatened to "loot and burn." Boycott leaders denied knowing him.

The attacker carried an ID card bearing the name Ahuhunde Mulocko, 35, and a photo of a man with a moustache and a goatee wearing a skullcap, but police said the name didn't check out. The picketers outside Freddy's Fashion Mart, on Harlem's main commercial strip, were protesting an expansion that meant the eviction of The Record Shack, a black–owned store next door. The demonstrators also urged a boycott because it was believed its Jewish owner did not employ blacks. Police said Freddy's owner, Fred Harari, did employ non–whites, mostly Hispanics and Guyanese. Freddy's had sublet part of its space to The Record Shack but was trying to end the sublease along with the landlord, the United Church of Prayer, police said.

Sikulu Shange, who runs The Record Shack, said the church had found new space for his business nearby, but he didn't like the lease and felt the location made him vulnerable to crime. Local officials wouldn't help, he said, so he turned to Sharpton, a well–known activist.

"It was a simple matter," said Shange, whose business was damaged in the fire. "We are not hate–mongers. I had nothing against Freddie or the church. I just wanted to stay in business." The protester marched into Freddy's on Friday with a gun in one hand and a container of paint thinner in the other. With the words "It's on now!" he screamed for people get out and began shooting customers and workers, splashed the thinner over racks of clothes and set it all afire.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous

Monday, Dec. 11

Panel Discussion — "Can a White Person Be Anti-Racist," at 7:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 168C is sponsored by the STPEC office, and will discuss the ideology of whiteness, white privilege and how white people can and must betray their whiteness in the fight against racism. For more information, call the STPEC office at 545-0043.

Mini–Mall — UMass Hillel is sponsoring the 9th Annual Mini–Mall of vendors selling a variety of gift items from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Monday–Thursday 4 – 8 p.m.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Anime showing — The UMass Anime and Manga Society is holding its weekly meeting in the Campus Center 911– 915. A brief business meeting will begin at 6 p.m. with various Japanese animation films shown from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. All are welcome. For more info, 6–5777

Tuesday, Dec. 12

Amherst Special Town Election — Absentee ballots for the Dec. 12 Amherst Special Town Election are available in the Amherst Town Clerk's office on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday 8 a.m. to noon. For more information call 256–4035.

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Mon.–Thurs. 4 – 8 p.m.

Meeting — The Golden Key Honor Society will hold a general meeting and Holiday Ornament Making Party at 4 p.m. in H–2 North Village, at the Community Center. Ornaments will be donated to the Giving Tree.

Mini–Mall — UMass Hillel is sponsoring the 9th Annual Mini–Mall of vendors selling a variety of gift items from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Benefit Coffeehouse — People's Market, Earthfoods and Campus Design & Copy are sponsoring a free coffeehouse with local performers, poets and artists to benefit Necessities/Necesidades from 7 p.m. – 11 p.m. in Earthfoods. No admission, but donations are accepted.

Speaker — Ali Akbar will speak about "Practicing Islam in America," Campus Center 805, 7:30 p.m., sponsored by the Muslim Student Association

Wednesday, Dec. 13

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Monday–Thursday 4 – 8 p.m.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Mini–Mall — UMass Hillel is sponsoring the 9th Annual Mini–Mall of vendors selling a variety of gift items from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Thursday, Dec. 14

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Monday–Thursday 4 – 8 p.m.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Study Break — The Stonewall Center is sponsoring a study break for five college GLBT students at 7 p.m. in the Stonewall Center. For more information call 545–4824.

Friday, Dec. 15

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 12 p.m., Campus Center. For more information call Usama at 256–8482.

Religious — Shabbat Services will be held at Hillel House at 6 p.m.

Saturday, Dec. 16

Religious — An Eastern Orthodox Divine Liturgy will be celebrated on Saturday, Dec. 16 at 10 a.m. in the Helen Hills Chapel at Smith College. The pan–Orthodox service will be conducted in English and followed by a light meal. For more information contact Irene at 545–5470.

Astronomy — The Amherst Astronomy Association is conducting a free public planetarium show at 4 p.m. in the Amherst College Bassett Planetarium and a free public observatory observing at 9 p.m. at the Amherst College Wilder Observatory. For more information call 256–6234.

Notices

Absentee Ballots — Absentee ballots for the Dec. 12 Amherst Special Town Election are available in the Amherst Town Clerk's office on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday 8 a.m. to noon. For more information call 256–4035.

Scholarships — The National Council of Alpha Lambda Delta Academic Honor Society for Freshman will award several $3,000 scholarships for graduate study. Alpha Lambda Delta members graduating with a certain cumulative average are eligible. Application forms and information may be obtained from Eileen Stewart, Assistant Dean of Students, 227 Whitmore. Applications are due by Dec. 29.

Ski instructors wanted — Anyone interested in becoming an instructor-guide with the B.L.I.N.D. Ski Program beginning Jan. 8, 1996 at Mt. Tom Ski Area in Holyoke, may contact Betty Hollingsworth at 665–4614 ASAP. Applicants must be at least 16 years old, have good skiing ability, an interest in teaching others, and preferably, prior instructor experience.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5–6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545–4824.

Writing — mOtherTongue, a multi–lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587–9884.

Writing — Nommo News and Drum Supplement holds general body meetings on Thursdays at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2363 or 546–5562.

Exhibit — International Programs presents "You Had To Be There..." a selection of photographs submitted by students who have travelled and studied abroad, in the Admissions Center, weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Overeaters Anonymous — Does eating control your life? Overeaters Anonymous meetings are held on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 10:30 a.m. in the Campus Center. Monday and Friday meetings are cancelled for the rest of the semester. For more information call 548–9040.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995–96 issue. Any Five-College students is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 306E Student Union, or call 545–2240.

Semi–Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi–formal on February 10, 1996 in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 5-0960.

Writing — The National Library of Poetry is currently accepting entries for the North American Open Poetry Contest. Deadline for entries is Dec. 31. Poets should submit one original poem of no more than 20 lines to Program beginning Jan. 8, 1996 at Mt. Tom Ski Area in Holyoke, may contact Betty Hollingsworth at 665–4614 ASAP. Applicants must be at least 16 years old, have good skiing ability, an interest in teaching others, and preferably, prior instructor experience.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253–9622.

Theater — The University of Massachusetts Theater Department has designed Dramatic Discoveries to showcase quality works by student playwrights in the Five-College area. Dramatic Discoveries is also searching for directors, stage mangers and dramaturgs who are interested in working on these new plays. Course credit may be available for students working on this production. The submission deadline for scripts is Dec. 14, 1995. Submission should be sent to: Dramatic Discoveries, 112 Fine Arts Center, Theater Department, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01002. For more information about the festival, please call Kelli S. Clark 545–3490 or 545–6818.

Grateful Dead buried after 30 years of music

By Karyn Hunt
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The Grateful Dead — R.I.P.

After 30 years of making music, the Grateful Dead, once the house band of the 1960s counterculture, is breaking up.

The move came four months after the death of its founder and guiding spirit, Jerry Garcia.

"After four months of heartfelt consideration, the remaining members of the band met yesterday and came to the conclusion that the 'long strange trip' of the uniquely wonderful beast known as the Grateful Dead is over," the group said in a statement Friday. The Grateful Dead, which Garcia and other members formed in 1965 in San Francisco, was one of rock 'n' roll's top-drawing acts for three decades.

The band combined rock, bluegrass and folk influences in its songs, which included "Truckin'," "Casey Jones," "Sugar Magnolia" and "Friend of the Devil." Its only top 10 hit was 1987's "Touch of Grey."

The group rarely recorded in recent years, and the last Grateful Dead studio album, "Built to Last," was released in 1989. Other groups had more hits, but the Dead attracted a doggedly devoted cult following that brought together Haight-Ashbury dropouts, weekend hippies and establishment stalwarts. Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Massachusetts Gov. William Weld were among those who identified themselves as fans.

"In losing Jerry Garcia a great band clearly had its heart broken," Weld said. "I wish Bob Weir and the other members of the band success and happiness in the future and thank them for all the pleasure they've given this fan."

Legions of Deadheads followed the group around the country and overseas to attend the long, free-form concerts that became the Grateful Dead's trademark.

"The Grateful Dead created a community of people that had a common interest in their music, but it went way beyond the music," said Michael Maggard, cofounder of United Deadheads of Portland and Everywhere in Portland, Ore. "That sense of community and family is something that's going to transcend the band."

The Dead's last concert was July 9 at Chicago's Soldier Field. Garcia, 53, died Aug. 9 of a heart attack at a drug rehab center. The Grateful Dead grew out of an acoustic jug band that Garcia, Bob Weir and others formed in 1965.

When Garcia, Weir, Bill Kreutzman, Ron "Pigpen" McKernan and Phil Lesh switched to electric instruments months later, they called themselves the Warlocks.

Because another group already had the name, they turned to a dictionary at Lesh's house to find another. The first words they saw were "grateful dead," defined as a traditional British folk ballad in which a human helps the ghost of someone who has recently find peace.

The band first played as the Grateful Dead in December 1965 at the Fillmore in San Francisco.

Although many had predicted a breakup since Garcia's death, Weir told The Associated Press as recently as last month that he thought the band would return to touring sometime next year.

"I more or less expect that everybody's going to want to get together and play again," he said then. "I'd be really surprised if we didn't come up with something by next summer."

He declined to say who might replace Garcia, who was the band's lead guitarist, one of its lead singers and one-half of its two principal songwriting teams.

None of the band members was available for comment Friday, the group's representatives said.

The band's statement indicated that its surviving members would continue to work together, but not as the Grateful Dead.

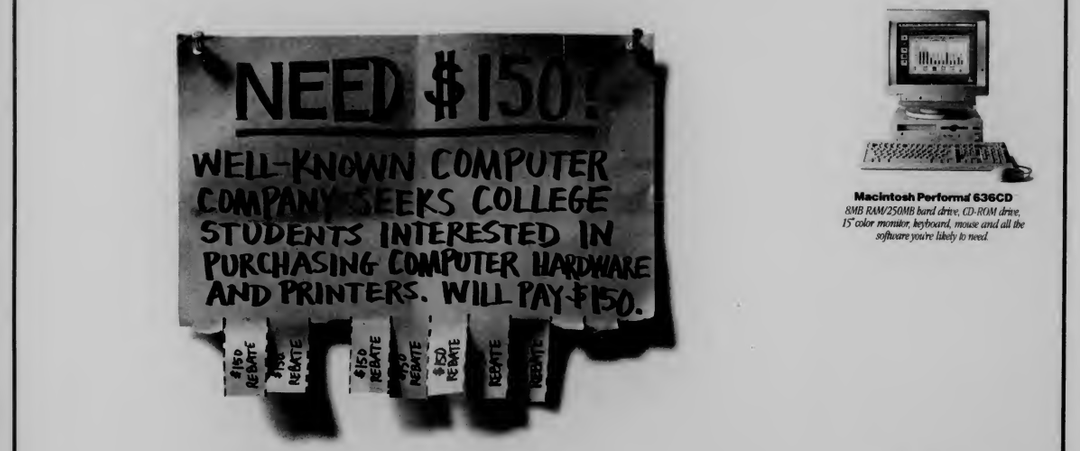
"Although individually and in various combinations they will undoubtedly continue to make music, whatever the future holds will be something different in name and structure," the statement said.

Her new project, called "Different Voices: How Diversity Decisions Affect the Bottom Line," uses an unusual format to teach the value of diversity.

Her monologues are based on about 50 interviews and reflect the experiences of employees and employers of different backgrounds.

Anike has previously portrayed Sojourner Truth, a freed slave who becomes an abolitionist, in a one-woman production presented to schools in the region.

The actress also "becomes" an Asian business woman, a Latino nonprofit executive, and a young black man who is burning with ambition in a world that seems not to notice him.



NEED $150!
WELL-KNOWN COMPUTER COMPANY SEEKS COLLEGE STUDENTS INTERESTED IN PURCHASING COMPUTER HARDWARE AND PRINTERS. WILL PAY $150.
$150 REBATE

Macintosh Performa 636CD
8MB RAM/250MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.

Looking for a great deal on a computer and a printer can be a whole lot easier than finding a roommate. Because right now, when you purchase a Macintosh Performa* from the 630 series and an Apple* printer, you'll get $150 back. Just think about it. You can get your work done faster, it will look great and you can receive an extra $150 at the same time. So take a moment to look into the power that can keep you ahead. The power of Macintosh. The power to be your best.* Apple

Personal LaserWriter 300
Toner cartridge and cables included

Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information

UNIVERSITY STORE ☆ Campus Center 545-2619 Mon. - Fri. 9-5 Sat 11- 3

Purchase any Apple Macintosh Performa 630 series or 640CD DOS compatible computer along with any Apple printer and receive a $150 mail in rebate. Offer valid through January 15, 1996, while supplies last and subject to availability. If you have any questions about the "Performa + Printer = Payback" offer, please call 800-950-6354 or see stores for a complete list of details. ©1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the apple logo, Macintosh, Performa, StyleWriter and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. PowerPC is a trademark of International Business Machines Corporation, used under license therefrom. CardShop Plus is a registered trademark of Hindscope. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601

WOMEN making WAVES

Special delivery

Katie–Sue Morway of Worcester gave birth to Holly–Beth a 14–pound–2–ounce, 23–inch baby on Dec. 7.

Morway admitted that she was "still shocked" yesterday as she fielded media questions, with her husband Timothy by her side.

Holly–Beth is the largest baby ever delivered at Saint Vincent Hospital, and may be the largest ever born in Worcester, according to hospital officials.

State officials said yesterday they don't keep records that would show where she ranks overall in Massachusetts, but it is safe to say Holly–Beth will be one of the largest of the 83,000 babies born in the state this year.

The heaviest single birth, according to the Guinness Book of World Records, was a boy weighing 22 pounds 8 ounces, born in Italy in 1955.

Dr. Michael Greene, director of maternal fetal medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital, was shocked. "Wow! That's remarkable," Greene said. "We've never had one that big at Mass. General."

Diversity actress

Anike, a 25–year old actress and Boston native, is able to portray about 11 characters in a new diversity training program launched by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Oldest US woman

HAMDEN, Conn. The Guinness Book of World Records has recognized a Hamden, Conn. woman as the oldest person in the United States.

Mary Electa Bidwell, the 114–year–old woman, will have to wait a while longer to read about it in the book because the 1996 edition already has gone to press.

Bidwell was born on May 9, 1881, two months before President Garfield was shot. She isn't sure why she has lived so long, but she is proud of her achievement.

"I feel I must be very good indeed. I want to set an example,' said Bidwell, who now lives in a nursing home.

Fund drive surpasses goal as listeners support WFCR

By Karen Cavanaugh
Collegian Correspondent

With federal cuts to National Public Radio looming, University of Massachusetts–licensed WFCR 88.5 FM appealed to the community for support, and listeners responded. The pledges exceeded the station's $150,000 goal by nearly $11,000.

"The success of any fund drive is due to a combination of factors, including the individuals and businesses who offered challenges or provided premiums, the volunteer support and the voices from community leaders who encouraged listeners to pledge support," said WFCR General Manager Martin Miller.

During the November campaign, 929 people became new members.

"We're thrilled, surprised and flattered," said WFCR Public Relations spokesperson Mark Auerbach.

Until services were threatened by federal cuts, listeners felt that "someone else would pick up the tab," Auerbach said, explaining the success of the 12–day fund drive.

The amount of money that NPR will receive in government funds for the next fiscal year is, to date, undecided due to the lack of a new federal budget.

"Our listeners are a loyal group," said WFCR Director of Development Laurie Alexander Neely. "People are more aware of their role."

She described the station, whose call letters stand for Five College Radio, as having 126,000 listeners each week. The signal carries to Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont and New Hampshire.

WFCR is located on the UMass campus in Hampshire House. It broadcasts National Public Radio's "Morning Edition", "All Things Considered" and "Jewish Stories."

The station also devotes a large proportion of its time to locally–produced programming such as, "Evening Classics," a Spanish program, "Tertulia," and "Jazz A La Mode." Other locally produced programs include, "Valley Folk" and "Safari," which features in rhythms of Pan–Africa.

In addition, the station tapes local jazz and classical music concerts, such as the Springfield Symphony Orchestra and String Jazz Festival, for rebroadcast.

With 28 full and part–time employees, including a local news department, WFCR depends on listener contributions to provide for most of its operational expenses.

"UMass provides us with space, utilities, accounting services, employee benefits and other in–kind services," Neely said. But WFCR still needs to meet a $1.1 million budget.

"Our 12,000 listener membership provides $725,000 of that budget," she said.

Public Radio stations have had to come to grips with cuts in federal funding. To date, those cuts have had "minimal effect" on WFCR's operation, Neely said.

"But federal funding is eroding, and will zero out in 3 to 5 years," she said. "Members will have to make up the bulk of our funding."

In addition to membership drives, WFCR has witnessed an increase in corporate sponsorship, according to Neely.

"Businesses recognize the importance of our audience," she said. A business may choose to underwrite a local program or receive acknowledgement during a national spot.

In addition to salaries and functional items which the station needs in order to operate, local stations must pay annual dues to NPR which allows them to purchase available programs. Each national broadcast carries a price tag.

"A lot of federal money is used to support the national system," Neely said.

Early in 1996, WFCR will begin a major fund raising effort to accomplish an ambitious capital improvement project. The station's transmitter, located in Pelham, is 30 years old.

According to Neely, the average life for a transmitter is 25 years. The station is lucky that their current one has functioned so effectively, but needs to be replaced.

"It's like driving an antique car," Auerbach said. "It's hard to keep it going."

Storms have knocked the station off the air in the past, he said.

The station is also in need of a new tower.

"We need to triple its size," said Neely, explaining the tower's low–height contributes to interference from local mountains. While the signal is picked up in some Vermont communities, it's lost on closer cities and towns.

The estimated cost of the capital improvement project is $200,000 to $300,000, some of it which will be provided through a federal grant.

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

All fired up!

Daniel Forlano, a Hampshire College student, shows off his talents on Dec. 1 at Hampdan Theater.in the "Orgy of Talents" sponsored by Student Valley Productions.

■ house

continued from page 1

The Five College Habitat for Humanity was organized in 1993. Students have also spent time building houses over spring break last year in W. Virginia.

Many University of Massachusetts students said they often feel isolated from the Amherst community and that this project gave them the opportunity to give back to the community.

Father Chris Carlisle, a minister at the Ark Episcopal Chaplaincy, who had been instrumental in boosting student involvement, commented on the importance of strengthening community ties with students at the University.

"It gives a broader vision of what an education could be and what the University could be to the community," he said. "The problem [of poverty] is pervasive in our country, largely because of the way the system works. Not only do we begin to solve the problem by actually creating housing, but every person swinging a hammer is made more and more aware that this is a problem that may not ever go away.

"If we don't begin to expend our energy throughout our lives to combat justice for people, then things will be a lot worse."

Over 100 volunteers participated in this project, as well as local carpenters, plumbers, and electricians who lent student volunteers their time and expertise.

"This here has been more than anything I have ever imagined," Humphries said, smiling at her daughters. "I don't know what I expected but I didn't expect this. People have come out and their kindness has been beautiful."

Collegian Elections
Spring 1995

Candidates Night, Monday, Dec. 11 • 7 p.m. All Collegian Staff is encouraged to attend.

Elections, Tuesday, Dec.12 • 9 a.m. – 3:30 p.m. All Collegian staff is encouraged to vote!

All questions should be directed to Matt Vautour, Editor in Chief.

Tournament Schedule

Game	Team	Venue	Location	Time
December 26 '95	Czech v. Russia	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Finland v. Switz	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10 pm
	Sweden v. Slovaki	Centrum	Worcester	1:10pm
	Opening Ceremonies	Centrum	Worcester	6:00pm
	USA v. Canada	Centrum	Worcester	7:40pm
Dec. 27	Slovakia v. Russia	Matthews Arena	Boston	1:10pm
	USA v. Ukraine	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:10pm
	Czech v. Germany	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Switz v. Canada	Mullins Center	Amherst	7:10pm
Dec. 28	Germany v. Slovakia	Matthews Arena	Boston	2:10pm
	Ukraine v. Finland	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:10pm
Dec. 29	Slovakia v. Czech	Matthews Arena	Boston	1:10pm
	Canada v. Finland	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:40pm
	Russia v. Sweden	Civic Center	Springfield	2:10pm
	USA v. Switz	Civic Center	Springfield	7:10pm
Dec. 30	Germany v. Slovakia	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	12:10pm
	Ukraine v. Switz	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	5:10pm
Dec. 31	Sweden v. Czech	Matthews Arena	Boston	12:10pm
	Canada v. Ukraine	Matthews Arena	Boston	5:40pm
	Finland v. USA	Mullins Center	Amherst	12:10pm
	Russia v. Germany	Mullins Center	Amherst	5:10pm
January 1 '96	Qualifying Rd	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Qualifying Rd	Mullins Center	Amherst	5:10pm
Jan 2	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10pm
	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	7:10pm
Jan 3	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10pm
	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	7:10pm
	SEMIFINAL	Conte Forum	Boston	3:40pm
	SEMIFINAL	Conte Forum	Boston	7:40pm

Game	Team	Venue	Location	Time
Jan 4	5th/6th Place Game	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	12:10pm
	Bronze Medal Game	Conte Forum	Boston	3:40 pm
	Gold Medal Game	Conte Forum	Boston	7:40pm

THE COLLEGIAN "CATCH THE EXCITEMENT" TICKET GIVEAWAY! 50 UMASS STUDENTS AND THEIR CLOSEST FRIEND AND/OR ANY LOCAL COMMUNITY MEMBERS MAY SEE THE NEXT WAYNE GRETZKY PLAY IN THE WORLD JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIPS! ENTRY FORM BELOW...

Tickets also available at TICKETMASTER
(617) 931-2000

Ticketmaster phone orders, outlet stores and venues will begin sales November 3, 1995

1996 WORLD JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP
MASSACHUSETTS, USA

Mobil

MASSACHUSETTS SPORTS PARTNERSHIP

BLOOM'S BUSINESS SYSTEMS

Gretzky, Lemieux, Lindros, Leetch, Roenick, Fedorov, Bure, Jagr, Kariya, Tkachuk, Forsberg, Carey, Who's Next?

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967
113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • (413) 545-1592

- Catch the excitement... Liven up your holidays with GREAT Hockey Action.
- Win tickets to see World Junior Hockey Action at any of the MA locations.
- Enter today! The Collegian has 50 pairs of tickets to draw and give away.
- Drop off or mail entry forms to the Collegian office in the Campus Center today.
- Drawings will be held @ 3:30 p.m. Thursday, December 14, 1995

Collegian staff or family members not eligible

CONTEST ENTRY FORM

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____

Location of Game Preferred _____

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara Mk Connelly Arts & Living Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor AJ Stewart Financial Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Jacob W. Michaeli Jewish Affairs Editor Rosario Navarro Classifieds Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Damion Smith Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

What is living?

Evan Young

I'm a little depressed right now. I've come to a few realizations about my life in these past couple of days. As sad as it may be, the following are all true about my life.

I've never been skydiving. I've never been bungee-jumping. I've never jumped off of a tall bridge and into a river. I've never been on TV. I've never been snowboarding. I've never tried surfing. I've never run around campus naked, or eaten 'shrooms or acid. I've never been hangliding, or flown in a glider, and I've only been in an airplane once. I've never hiked up a mountain or built a decent treehouse.

I've never been west of Indianapolis, south of Walt Disney World, or north of Nova Scotia. I've never been east of Nova Scotia, either. I've never ridden a motorcycle. I've never seen the pyramids, the Great Wall of China, or the Statue of Liberty except in pictures and on TV. I've never been to the moon, or been in a zero gravity chamber, or worn anti-gravity boots.

I've never had sex standing up, or with a girl up against a wall, or experienced sexual pleasures with more than one girl at a time. I've never been scuba diving or snorkeling. I've never gambled in a casino. I've never been to public beaches other than ones in southern New Jersey and one in Florida. I've never pierced my nose or my belly button. I've never fallen in love with a girl or been truly loved by a girl.

I've never done a keg stand while my drunken friends cheer me on and spit beer all over everything. I've never seen more than half of the bands that I listen to, or played my bass in a band on stage in front of a screaming audience. I've never kept a diary or a journal, or written a long autobiography, or a play, or a one-act, or a sonnet, or a love poem. I've acted on stage once for a total of about 10 minutes and four or five lines.

I've never grown a really long beard. I've never met the girl of my dreams. I've never worn my pants inside out. I've never gotten enough candy on Halloween. I've never hit a home run. I've never hailed a taxi, or been to a club or a bar in New York City. I've never taken a hand-off and turned the corner for an 8-yard gain, or run the 400 in less than 54 seconds, or dunked on a 10 foot rim. I've never crowd-surfed or stage-dove.

I've never been roller blading or ice skating. I've never gotten into a car and just driven, or crashed a toll booth, or gotten a speeding ticket, or driven a car faster than 110 miles an hour. I've never dined n' dashed. I've never ringed n' run. I've never caught a fish and fried it up for dinner that night. I've never been arrested, cursed at a cop, or thrown eggs at a cop car. I've never walked up to a really attractive girl that I didn't know and just said "hi." I've never walked around all day without shoes.

I've never sat my family down and told them how much I really appreciate everything they've done for me. I will never see the Grateful Dead. I've never been camping for a weekend. I've never been to Europe, or even seen a major body of water other than the Atlantic. I've never made a cool sand castle. It's been years since I've played a game of tag, kick-the-can, build-the-army, or capture-the-flag.

I've never robbed a liquor store or broken into a really nice house, stolen everything and given it all back the next day. I've never watched Star Wars, the Empire Strikes Back, and the Return of the Jedi back-to-back-to-back all in one night. I've never prepped the french fries. I've never ordered a pizza to someone else's house. I've never yelled at the PVTA drivers when they are late, and I've never been golfing. I've never eaten at the Hatch, or been to a topless-only party.

I've never gotten up early for a sunrise, or seen the stars on a clear night from a boat in the middle of the sea. I've never drank water straight from a mountain stream, or started a fire by rubbing two sticks together. I've never hitch-hiked, or looked directly at an eclipse for a little while, or seen the White House, or bumped into a complete stranger just for the hell of it, or gotten into a drunken bar room brawl, or stripped off all of my clothes in a movie theater and run up the aisle yelling "fire!", or helped an old lady across the street, or eaten a Big Mac, or cooked up a butternut squash.

I've never sat on an island in the Caribbean with half a coconut full of rum (and a little umbrella sticking out the top) in one hand and a pile of sand in the other while a gentle breeze blows warm air on one side of my face as I watched the sunset sky turn from orange to red to purple.

You see, I'm depressed right now because this list can go on and on. What have I been doing all my life? For the past three years here? Am I who I want to be, doing what I want to do? If not, then who the hell am I and why am I wasting so much time when there are so many things that I am missing in my life? What am I getting out of my life? Isn't there more to life than studying, going to parties, and getting drunk? What have I experienced that is really worthwhile?

I believe in having fun, dropping everything and just doing it — but am I the world's biggest hypocrite? I haven't done a damn thing. I restrict myself from the breadth of experience because I have to do this, or due to a lack of time and money.

Will I ever do these things? Will you?

Evan Young is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Silence contributes to ignorance

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to Tara Ruelle's editorial on protests and the Murray-Poussaint debate. Ms. Ruelle seems to think that if we do not listen to Professor Murray's racist ideology, he and his supporters will get the point and never show their faces at the University again. I admit that a silent protest, illustrated in a lack of audience members at the debate, would have been ideal in many ways.

But, in advocating this, Ms. Ruelle also advocated ignorance of Murray's ideas, which I do not agree with. She says that protesting is negative in that it draws free press for the enemy, and even states, "thes (the protestors) inadvertently encouraged students to see what this debate was all about. I don't see this as a good thing at all." Why isn't this a good thing?

If you are about to criticize something, shouldn't you know the facts about it? Professor Murray has many "facts" backing his theories. We must know about them and be able to counteract them before we are able to argue against them effectively. People like Professor Murray gain power by playing to the ignorant issues, and they will gain more if we simply sit here in silence, not knowing enough to get off our butts and question their authority.

Johanna Wilkie
Orchard Hill

U.S. military is vital to country

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to Lisa Chiu and Shyamala Ivatury's "The Privileges of Global Domination" which appeared in the Dec. 6 edition of the Collegian. In their article the two authors not only discussed the brutal rape of an Okinawan youth, but subsequently asserted that rape, murder, and torture are indicative of the conduct of U.S. military forces.

The rape that occurred in Okinawa was appalling. Rape is a repulsive crime committed by degenerates claiming to be human beings. The actions of these three Marines was horrific, and I was disgusted to discover that U.S. soldiers performed such heinous acts. However, the two authors inappropriately characterize the work of the many by the actions of a few. The article implies that U.S. soldiers are skilled rapists who constantly engage in profane and decadent acts. These assertions are not only invalid and unfounded, but were highly offensive and inappropriate.

The U.S. military is about sacrifice and dedication. Our Armed Forces are comprised of honorable men and women who are devoted to defending the principles by which this country stands. These individuals fight for freedom, the welfare of family and friends, the privileges intrinsic within democratic government, the love of their country, and the rights of Collegian columnists to freely express their views and ideas.

Today, as we see the forces of fragmentation and integration facilitate the development of a more diverse global community, the role of the U.S. military is becoming increasingly dynamic.

This decade has seen U.S. military personnel open food lines to starving people in Somalia, restore democracy in Haiti, and drive the tyrannical forces of Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait. In these three operations, approximately 400 U.S. men and women sacrificed their lives for the sake of others. Now, in an attempt to bring stability and peace to a country that has been ravished by war, we venture into the former "Yugoslavia." Out of duty, we enter into a conflict that neither involves us, nor pertains to our own national security. We are driven by the desire to help others, and as an ROTC cadet, and aspiring Army officer, I am proud to seen be a part of a military engaging in such humanitartian acts.

So, as our authors hide behind the empty rhetoric of U.S. imperialism, the husbands and wives of U.S. soldiers deployed to the Balkans attempt to tell their little five-year- olds why "mommy" or "daddy" will not be home for Christmas this year.

Bill Ramsey
Central

Graffiti is unacceptable

To the Editor:

Abraham Lincoln once said, "Those who deny freedom to theirs, deserve it not for themselves." We live in a society which preaches democratic principles. A society which defends democratic principles abroad. Yet, at home, society is ignorant to very principles on which we base this great nations, the freedom of an individual to choose his or her own path in life.

Racism pollutes the American principle of democracy. Doesn't history teach us anything? Robert Penn Warren once said, "The lack of sense of history is the damnations of the modern world." Haven't we learned from past experiences that racism halts our progression as a nation? How can we continue to act as a nation when society is full of bigotry?

Why do we have to determine a person's worth based on skin color, sexual preference, gender, or religious belief? Why can't we accept an individual as a person instead of what he or she represents? Aren't the inner qualities of a human being more important than the physical or social characteristics of that individual?

You may now ask what is the point of this, you may be sick of this statement already, too politically correct? Well, the point is focused around an incident which occurred in Van Meter Residence Hall over the past weekend where various groups of people were depicted as inferior, immortals, and even plain disgusting. We in Van Meter Residence Hall know that this statement isn't going to change the world, but it will explain how sick and tired we are of hearing and seeing the word "hate" across campus, especially in our dorm.

How many people on this campus have walked through a dormitory after a weekend and seen the condition of it? My guess would be almost all. How many of these same people go and add racial slurs because of this condition? My guess, not many. The condition of Van Meter Residence Hall did not contribute to the racist graffiti found all over the building. Hatred did.

There is no cause except ignorance and hatred. As a resident of Van Meter Residence Hall, I feel as if my home is no longer a place where I can feel happy. It is no longer a place I can live in without knowing I am likely to find a racist comment or symbol somewhere. Van Meter Residence Hall is no exception on this campus — a lot of racist graffiti on campus does not get reported to the campus police. Therefore, many hideous references are left untouched throughout this campus, continuing to depict and discriminate against certain people.

Van Meter Residence Hall is our home away from home, and we do not it plagued with continuous hate messages. This whole incident may seem to many as a petty ordeal, but to us it is a major behavioral problem that needs to be addressed. We are tired of waking up in the morning and seeing various graffiti throughout the dorm depicting a certain group. Many of us many belong to an attacked group.

To excuse the continuous hate speech, saying that it happens because Van Meter Residence Hall is one of the last dorms to be renovated, is profoundly inaccurate. Hate speech does not generate from a lack of material needs, it comes from a general lack of understanding of one's culture and others.

As one Van Meter resident said, "Who raises their children to be so closed minded, who preaches about what is right and wrong, without really knowing what really is right and wrong?"

186 residents from Van Meter signed this letter

Opinion/Editorial

NO MORE CUFF LINKS, NO MORE NECKTIES, NO MORE TEE SHIRTS...
I'LL JUST HAVE TO CONSOLE MYSELF WITH THESE $10,000 CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS.
CONGRESSMAN FEEZWENNEL
The Week's Big News in Lobbying Reform
TOLES
©1995 FOR UFS VIEWS & WORD, INC.
AND I'M ALSO INSISTING THAT THE PEOPLE WHO WRITE THESE CHECKS TELL ME THEIR NAMES

Yes, Bill Weld for President!

Martin F. Jones

If you didn't get to read the Ed/Op page in Friday's Collegian, I'll bring you up to speed on what could may turn out to be the biggest political story of the 1996 presidential campaign.

As I wrote in part one of this article (you're reading part two, due to space constraints), Governor Weld will enter the race for president next February due to a serious turn of political events. He will also win the Republican nomination for president. Incredible, isn't it? I know this is because I've already attended the 1996 Republican Nation with the help of a mysterious time travel device.

Upon arriving at the convention, I went to a nearby newsstand to read up on what had transpired to deliver Weld to the nominating podium in San Diego. A Time Magazine cover story on Weld outlined his "journey to the White House." Here is some of the "background" information revealed in the story.

In late November of 1995, as Gov. Weld of Massachusetts announced his entry into the U.S. Senate race, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole broke ranks with his Republican peers in the presidential race by supporting President Clinton (strike one) on the Bosnia "peace" mission. Three weeks later, another budget impasse causes a second government shutdown (strike two) with the Speaker of the House being labeled, "the Gingrich who stole Christmas." Ongoing ethics investigations of the Speaker threaten to tarnish the Republican Revolution upon which Dole's political future hanged — literally.

With public opinion running against Newt and the Republican agenda, Dole commits an act of political treason on a grand scale as he cuts a budget deal with Clinton (strike three) that significantly scales back Gingrich's "Newt Agenda." With a healthy grin on his face (and a livid scowl on Newt's mug) the Commander-in-Chief signs his approval of the 1996 federal budget with most of his priorities kept intact.

Of course, the political repercussions are tremendous as the Newtmeister breaks his pledge not to endorse a candidate and encourages his political protege Bill Weld (formally William F. Weld) to challenge Bill Clinton (still Bubba to some) for the presidency, assuring him that "Benedict Bob" was finished in the race as far as he was concerned, and that the nomination was his for the taking.

Weld agrees to enter the race only if Dole drops out, citing a conflict in that his old buddy Pete Wilson was still playing a key role in the Dole campaign. However, citing Dole's compromise on the federal budget and sinking poll ratings, Wilson eventually jumps ship from the Dole banana boat and pledges his fundraising support for Weld, along with an endorsement in the California primary should he enter the race.

Wilson's departure from the Dole camp is a huge blow to his bid the presidency. Now, with two GOP heavyweights — Newt and Wilson — added to the other dogs in the pack on his trail, Dole self-destructs and cries uncle. He dropped out of the race following a humiliating defeat in New Hampshire by Pat Buchanan (and finishing far behind Sen. Phil Gramm).

Weld, having acknowledged he would only enter the race if Dole were to drop out, and citing the extreme right-wing agendas of the remaining candidates, withdraws from his Massachusetts Senate race to "salvage the GOP's chance of winning back the White House." He also reminds voters that as president he will address the same national issues which he had been campaigning on during his Senate campaign, while adding that with "the powers of the Oval Office" at his disposal, he would have much greater authority "to deal with those issues."

With regards to the implications of leaving one race to join another is concerned, Weld points out that before the republican primary for Senate is held in September of 1996, he planned to have already accepted his party's nomination for president by August of the same year.

In early March 1995, Weld enters into and sweeps a regional "Super Tuesday" primary in which five New England States hold their primaries the same day. Other wins across the country soon establish Weld as the front runner as heads turn towards the all-important California Primary where his new fundraiser, Wilson (yes, he did remember a friend in need), was waiting to deliver the California delegate delicacies to "His Excellency" of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Weld's support for the death penalty earns him wide support among suburban voters, his support for affirmative action earns him support among women and minority voters, his support for gay rights earns him a huge win in the Bay Area, and his Pro-Choice stance earns him broad support across the Golden State. At the victory celebration in Sacramento, Weld thanks Wilson for his role in helping him win the biggest primary contest of the race and clinch the republican nomination for the presidency. Wilson's reply: "That's what friends are for."

The magazine article ended on that note as I checked my watch and returned back to the convention floor. As I arrived, Gov. Christine Todd Whitman was preparing to address the convention as she was selected as Weld's running mate and made history by becoming the first female GOP nominee for vice-president. In January, 1995 she was asked to deliver the Republican response to President Clinton's State of the Union address and during her speech she was kind enough to mention "Bill Weld" first among GOP Governors who were leading the way in the "Republican Revolution." Of course, Weld saw fit to return the favor.

It turned out that during her speech she expressed excitement at having another crack at New Jersey Senator Bill Bradley (whom Clinton had picked as his running mate after Al Gore said he had enough of Washington politics and was going to retire at the end of his term as vice-president Whitman had run an unsuccessful but commendable Senate campaign against the incumbent Bradley in 1990). Whitman took credit for Bradley getting a shot at the vice-presidency by acknowledging Clinton's need to win big in the Northeast, and that Gore was "dead weight" on the Clinton re-election bid (implying that he had been quietly dumped by the president in favor of Bradley).

Finally, the moment of truth arrived as Weld, the Governor of Massachusetts and 1996 Republican nominee for President, arrived at the podium to a thunderous roar of applause. It continued for five long, agonizing minutes before there was suddenly another brilliant flash of light. The applause continued, but the volume was much lower.

Looking around, I realized that I was no longer in San Diego, but at a press conference in a Boston hotel ballroom sitting among a pack of journalists. A copy of the Boston Herald was in my hand, dated Nov. 29, 1995. I looked up from the headline, which read "Weld Expected to Enter Senate Race Today," to see Weld himself announcing his plans to run for U.S. Senate against Democratic incumbent John Kerry.

What happened next completely blew my mind. I woke up and the whole thing turned to be an amazing, fantastic dream. While I was disappointed that I never actually traveled through time (I could have made millions on a book deal), I was actually quite relieved because I had no means of transportation home from the Boston press conference.

Why did the dream take place? I really don't know. This is one mystery that will probably never be answered, but I can honestly say that despite defying all available political logic and analysis, there is a strong feeling deep in my gut that this scenario will eventually come true. Of course, if it does come true, and in complete detail, I will be taking my own "personal and political reality check."

"Bill Weld for President." Pretty ridiculous, don't you think?

Martin F. Jones is a freelance journalist and political analyst living in Springfield.

Arts & Living

Good picks for literature lovers this holiday season

By Ron Berthel
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Volumes of memoirs by three of recent literature's foremost writers — Elie Wiesel, May Sarton and Truman Capote — are among the highlights of December's hardcover books.

In Memoirs: All Rivers Run to the Sea, Wiesel, winner of a Nobel Peace Prize, tells of his childhood in Nazi concentration camps, of his struggle with his faith, and of the historic events of his life, including the establishment of Israel, the conflicts in the Mideast, and the birth of the United Nations.

Sarton — who died earlier this year — offers At Eighty-Two: A Journal, a chronicle of her 82nd year (1993-94) in which she writes about her relationships with friends, her cat, and the dilemma of coping with the physical problems of aging.

Capote shares a childhood memory of the Christmas when he was taken from his warm, loving home in small-town Alabama to New Orleans to live with his father, whom he had never met, in One Christmas, a 1983 story available for the first time in a hardcover volume.

It's also the first time in hard covers for a tale of under the covers: Sandra Brown's 1983 novel Breakfast in Bed, the story of Sloan Fairchild, owner of an elegant San Francisco bed-and-breakfast, who gets more than she expected after she agrees to temporarily house her best friend's fiance.

Pat Barker won the 1995 Booker Prize for The Ghost Road, the third novel of her World War I trilogy. It centers upon two men — a lieutenant treated for shell shock and eager to get back into the fighting, and his doctor, who faces the dilemma of restoring men's health only to enable them to return to battle and face certain death.

In Angel Light, Andrew M. Greeley tells about a young computer hacker who must travel to Ireland — which he does with the help of a computer angel — and marry his distant cousin in order to claim an inheritance.

And for science fiction fans, there's Endymion, by Dan Simmons, set 200 years after the fall of the Hyperion universe, when the world is in chaos as Raul Endymion, convicted murderer, is chosen to guard the next messiah, an 11-year-old girl.

Fiction and nonfiction share the pages of The Tiger in the Grass, novelist Harriet Doerr's collection of 15 pieces — stories, memoirs and "inventions" — many based on her life in Mexico and featuring characters from her earlier fiction, Sister to Sister, edited by Patricia Foster, an anthology about the relationship among sisters, with contributions from Foster, Mona Simpson, Pam Houston, Maria Flook and others; and "The Seasons of Women", edited by Gloria Norris, with stories by Amy Tan, Annie Dillard, Joan Didion, Terry McMillan and others that celebrate women in all the phases of life.

COLLEGIAN GRAPHICS
DOING THE JOB NO ONE ELSE WANTS TO DO
(and loving it!)

Rev's progressive sound crashes into Noho

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

Northampton, take cover. Mercury Rev is in town and that may spell trouble. This is the same band who was kicked off Lollapolloza's second stage because locals complained the band sounded like a train running into a mountain over and over again. Mercury Rev is one band to not be taken lightly as they may well be one of America's leading progressive/cutting edge bands out there.

Since forming in upstate NewYork in 1989, Mercury Rev have been creating waves all over the music scene. Their debut Yeself Is Steam gained rave reviews from both sides of the Atlantic, leading the band to tour with such notables as My Bloody Valentine, Ride and even a gig with Bob Dylan.

Their sophomore release, Boces, continued the band's overwhelming success at creating for out symphonies which Alternative Press once described as "... the closest thing to audio LSD."

Since the release that album, lead vocalist David Barker left to form his own band. Remarkably this did not hinder the Mercury Rev at all. After spending all of 1994 in the studio, the band emerged with the release of See You On the Other Side, hailed as their first true magnum opus. Featuring all five remaining members, Jimmy Chambers, Jonathan Donahue, Grasshopper, Suzanne Thorpe and Dave Friedman, the band has released an album, "too brilliant for sober analysis" according to Alternative Press.

Tonight's show at Pearl Street will certainly be a mind-blowing event for all. This is hardly your average rock 'n' roll band. Many bands claim to be on the cutting edge, but few are even close in comparison to Mercury Rev.

Don't worry, the band will be allowed to play even if they do sound like a crashing train — because somehow this band could make a train crash sound magnificent and beautiful.

Mercury Rev and Handsome perform at Pearl Street Tuesday night for an 18+ show. Doors open at 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 in advance and are available from the Northampton Box Office. Call the club at 584-7771 for more details.

COURTESY JOHN FALLS

Mercury Rev appears at Pearl Street tonight in support of their new album See You On the Other Side.

Doctors link seasonal depression with lack of sunlight

By Dr. David Ginsberg
Associated Press

People who become depressed at a change of season may suffer from seasonal affective disorder.

For those affected by the condition, depression usually arises at the end of fall or the beginning of winter. It often resolves itself a few months later.

Symptoms of seasonal affective disorder are similar to those of "atypical depression" and include fatigue, lethargy and overeating. Carbohydrate craving is also common. However, a significant minority of patients report the more typical depressive vegetative symptoms — eating less, sleeping less and loss of weight.

Seasonal affective disorder may be part of a major depressive disorder or a bipolar disorder.

Causes of seasonal affective disorder are not yet clear. It may be linked to decreased production of the brain chemical serotonin, to problems with circadian rhythms, or to hormonal influences.

What is known is that like other forms of depression, seasonal affective disorder is more common in women.

The highest incidence of the condition occurs after the onset of menstruation and before menopause.

Phototherapy is the main form of treatment for seasonal affective disorder.

Patients sit in front of a lightbox that has very intense fluorescent lights for about a half-hour a day.

Rather than stare into the lightbox, patients are usually advised to engage in activity — for example, reading a book — and to glance up at the lightbox periodically.

It is not yet clear why light therapy is helpful. Some believe it may have an effect on the brain center that sets the biological clock.

In most cases, those suffering from the disorder will feel better after a few days of treatment. But for some people, improvement may take several weeks.

If patients are not having a good result after several weeks, doctors may suggest they change the time of day and length of time the lightbox is used.

Those who continue to have poor results using the lightbox alone may need additional treatment.

For example, people who have problems waking up may need to have a bright bedside lamp go on two hours before they are due to arise.

In these instances, setting a light to turn on simulates the light outdoors at dawn.

If light therapy is unsuccessful in alleviating depressive symptoms, medications may be used. These include antidepressants such as serotonin specific reuptake inhibitors like fluoxetine (Prozac), sertraline (Zoloft), or paroxetine (Paxil). Other medications that may sometimes be used are bupropion (Wellbutrin), an antidepressant, and propranolol (Inderal), a beta blocker. Using medications in combination with light therapy frequently gives the best results.

Some people do not have all the symptoms of the disorder. Instead they may feel a little down during the winter months. These people often do not seek medical attention because their symptoms are not as severe. In these instances, benefits may be derived from relaxation techniques and an increase in exercise and time spent outdoors.

Dr. David Ginsberg is Clinical Instructor of Psychiatry at New York University School of Medicine.

Student Affairs Special Services

UNDERGRADUATE COMMENCEMENT
BACHELOR'S DEGREE CANDIDATES
- Preliminary Information -

Undergraduate Commencement will be Sunday, May 26, 1996 10:30 - 11:45 a.m., at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium (rain or shine).

ELIGIBILITY: Seniors whose degree requirements will be completed in February, May, or September, 1996, are eligible to participate. Immediately contact a member of the "Senior Staff", Undergraduate Registrar's Office, 207 Whitmore (5-0555), if you are unsure of your academic status or have questions in this regard! Only Seniors of record as of April 7, 1996, will be listed in the Commencement Program.

INFORMATION BROCHURE: A brochure with general Commencement information will be mailed to seniors and their parents by late February. An update with further details about the ceremony will be made available to seniors in May as well as in one of the last issues of the "Collegian" in the spring. There is no Commencement rehearsal, so it is very important that the brochure be reviewed, and retained for further reference in May.

The brochure will include information about Accommodations (on-campus); Announcements; Caps; Gowns, and Tassels; Disability Services; Food Services; Parking and Shuttle Services; Seating; Travel Assistance, including suggested alternative routing; Videotape orders; When and Where to Assemble; and Yearbook orders; as well as the Seating plan for graduates.

INVITATIONS, TICKETS, GUEST SEATING: Neither invitations nor tickets are required. There is no limit on the number of guests you may invite. Guest seating is unreserved.

HOUSING (on-campus): Guest housing will be available in residence halls the night before commencement. Details will be noted in the information brochure mailed in February.

STUDENT SPEAKER: Those interested in being considered for Student Speaker are advised to watch for ads in the "Collegian" concerning this competition. The deadline for proposals will be February 14. Contact 5-3464 for additional information.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: Please call the Visitors Center, 545-0306.

Congratulations to all concerned, and good luck with Finals.

SORORITY RUSH REGISTRATION

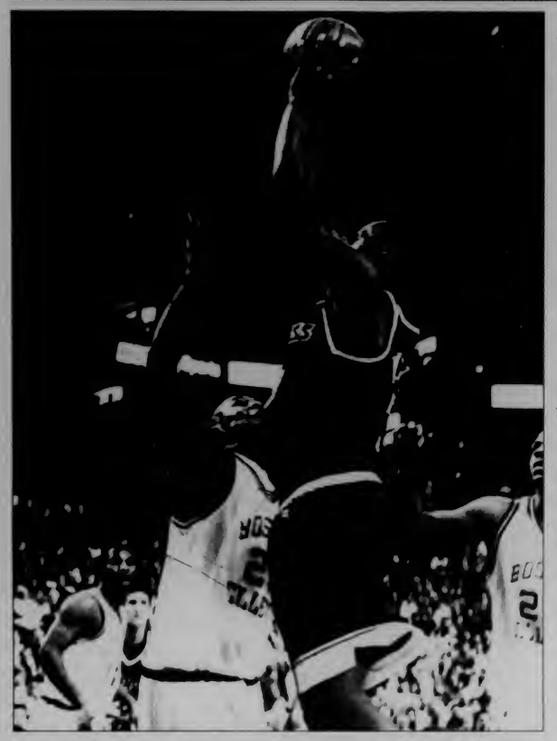
•Campus Center Concourse
Monday 11th, Tuesday 12th, Wednesday 13th
9-4pm

•Coolidge Dormitory Lobby
Monday 11th, Tuesday 12th, Wednesday 13th
5-7pm

•James Dormitory
Monday 11th, Tuesday 12th
5-6:45pm

•Greek Affairs Office- 227 Whitmore
Now- December 22nd

Rush Orientation
December 13th, 7pm
Campus Center Auditorium



DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Dana Dingle was all over the place, pulling down a game- high 11 boards to go with 10 points, finishing with the double-double.

Collegian Graphics:
We boldly go where no one has gone before...

Collegian Graphics:
We boldly go where no one has gone before...

■ hoops

continued from page 10

After a Camby jumper with 6:59 left put the Minutemen up by six, 51-45, BC staged a comeback. A combined 10 points from Abrams and Keenan Jourdon, sandwiched in between four points from Bright, allowed the Eagles to tie it up at 55 with 3:11 to go.

But from there, the Minutemen received clutch performances mainly from Dana Dingle, Padilla and of course, Camby. Dingle, who was his usual aggressive self grabbing a game-high 11 boards, was left open and responded by sinking the jump shot to give UMass a two- point lead.

After Penn temporarily tied it up with a basket in the paint, Padilla hit perhaps the biggest shot of the game — his second three-pointer from NBA range with 1:23 left which set up the Camby-Abrams duel.

"Danya was carrying us on his back for a good portion of the game," O'Brien said, "but to their credit, when they needed to step up, Padilla makes a big three. Dingle makes an open jump shot. Those shots are real big."

From then on all the Minutemen had to do was hit their free throws, which is what they did. Padilla sank two with 43.9 left, Camby hit one of two with 26.8 left and Dingle nailed two with one second left on the clock.

"BC played a great basketball game," Calipari said. "It wasn't like they played that poorly down the stretch, we just started playing a little bit better down the stretch."

Camby finished with 19 points, including one basket in the second half when he pump-faked a shot on the baseline, drove into the paint, and then double-pumped a shot off the glass. The junior also finished with seven boards, all defensive, four assists and three blocks. With his first block on the day, Camby broke Harper Williams' career blocks record of 222, and now stands at 225 for his career.

Dingle, along with his 11 boards, scored 10 points to record the double-double. Padilla played nearly the entire 40 minutes and was very steady, looking more and more confident out on the floor as the season goes on. He finished with eight points, five assists and five steals with just two turnovers. The Minutemen got just two points from their bench, a Tyrone Weeks basket in the paint with 15:16 left in the game.

Penn, who was recruited by UMass but opted to go to BC, played an outstanding game. The 5-foot-10-inch guard from Salem, Mass scored 14 points and pulled down a team-high 10 rebounds. He even blocked a Dingle shot early on in the game.

"Scoonie played very well," O'Brien said. "Every game he's getting better and better. He made some good shots. He's been playing very well all season."

The Minutemen, now 5-0, host North Carolina-Wilmington tomorrow at 9:30 p.m. at the William D. Mullins Center. BC falls to 4-2.

■ Minutemen

continued from page 10

said. "That is a great atmosphere out there. You had to leave saying that was great, whoever won, that was great. No one gave up, no one quit. They didn't wait for us to get fans going, if you noticed the fans got the team's going, that's college athletics. That's how it's supposed to be."

Though the Minutemen never trailed after they took the lead, the game was tied with less than two minutes remaining. Then with time running down on the shot clock, Edgar Padilla drained a trey from NBA range which caused a BC timeout and the UMass fans blowing the roof off the three-month old building as the Minutemen pulled away from there.

The games within the game kept all interested, and could very well have made the passive observer's pulse race and crave for more. In an area where local winter college sports is thought of as the Beanpot, these teams might just start another tradition.

"We would love to play this game again, not just for us, this is great for college basketball," Calipari said. "It's great for New England college basketball and it should be played. This is special because what it stands for. it's about New England basketball."

Massachusetts 65, Boston College 57

At the Fleet Center, Boston

Massachusetts (5-0)
Dingle 4-11 2-2 10, Bright 9-12 6-7 24, Camby 7-19 5-8 19, E.Padilla 2-7 2-2 8, Travieso 1-8 0-0 2, G.Padilla 0-0 0-0 0, Weeks 1-2 0-0 2, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0, Norville 0-1 0-0 0. Total 24-60 15-19 65.

Boston College (4-2)
Granger 4-8 0-1 10, Jourdon 3-5 0-0 6, Abrams 7-15 9-10 23, Penn 6-10 0-1 14, Woodward 1-5 1-4 4, Curley 0-0 0-0 0, Pedard 0-1 0-0 0, Christianson 0-0 0-0 0, Fox 0-1 0-0 0. Total 21-45 10-16 57.

Halftime- BC 33, UM 28. Three-Point goals- UM 2-14 (E.Padilla 2-6, Camby 0-1, Travieso 0-7), BC 5-14 (Penn 2-2, Granger 2-5, Woodward 1-4, Abrams 0-1). Fouled out- Woodward, Jourdon. Rebounds- UM 33 (Dingle 11), BC 33 (Penn 10). Assists- UM 16 (E.Padilla 5), BC 5 (Woodward 2). Total fouls- UM 17, BC 21. Technicals- UM bench. Attendance- 18,974.

Player of the Game

Edgar Padilla – 8 points, 5 steals, 5 assists

Highlights...

Padilla was clutch down the stretch and nailed two NBA-range treys on the day... Marcus Camby stuffed three BC shots, including Danya Abrams' with time running out, finishing with 19 points... Donta Bright was the game's high scorer with 24 points while Dana Dingle recorded a double-double (10 points, game-high 11 boards)... Abrams was solid posting 23 points and eight rebounds, all defensive... Scoonie Penn displayed his outside shooting touch, knocking down a couple of treys and finished with 14 points and a team-high 10 boards.

Collegian Graphics, our job is done when your day is just begining

The Daily Collegian, making the world a better place, one day at a time.

HANDEL'S
MESSIAH
THE SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
&
THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS CHAMBER CHOIR
E. WAYNE AMBERCROMBIE, CONDUCTOR
Wednesday, December 13 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Tickets: $12 general public, $8 students, seniors & children $5 UMass students
Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office (413)545-2511
Thursday, December 14 8 PM
Symphony Hall, Court Street, Springfield
Tickets: $15 general public, $10 seniors, $5 children 17 & under
Available at Symphony Box Office (413)733-2291
Sponsored by Coopers & Lybrand, Provost Patricia Crosson, The Fine Arts Center & The UMass Alumni Association

Any Two Calzones only $7.95 price includes tax
Fall Specials Save in Twos 256-6100
Two Large Cheese Pizzas only $12.00 price includes tax
Regular, Whole Wheat & Corn Bread Crusts Available on Pizza & Calzones
CANTONE'S PIZZA CO. 256-6100 45 RPM 481 West Street Amherst, MA
FREE DELIVERY 256-6100 Open 4pm - 2am 7 Days $7.00 Min. on M/C & Visa
Any Two Large Subs only $8.00 price includes tax
No Coupons Needed With These Specials 256-6100
Any Two Large 1-Item Pizzas only $14.00 price includes tax

NCAA®
1995 DIVISION I WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL CHAMPIONSHIP
December 14 & 16
Mullins Center
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, Massachusetts
For tickets, call
413/545-0810

Alpha Lambda Delta Honor Society
Presents

JOHN BELUSHI DAN AYKROYD
THE BLUES BROTHERS
December 17, 7:30pm
Campus Center Auditorium - Free to Everyone!
Sponsored by The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

■ hockey

continued from page 10

was to haul the Minuteman forward to the ice, because the officials weren't calling it.

Massachusetts 4, Yale 0

It had been a long time since the Minutemen had blanked an opponent, and it had never happened against a Division I opponent. But just under two years since David Kilduff shutout New England College 12-0, he posted another goose egg, as he made 25 saves en route to the victory.

Kilduff, who suffered a tough loss in his last performance (a loss to Providence), said that the shutout yesterday was a step toward redemption.

"It's been a struggle of late, which makes tonight a little sweeter," he said. "But the seven wins puts us ahead of last year. That's the big thing."

There were a variety of positives for the Minutemen, who got scoring from players other than their leading scorers.

Blair Wager opened up the scoring with a breakaway goal. Dan Juden's first collegiate goal followed that, as well as goals from Dean Campanale and Dennis Wright. The Minutemen will need scoring from these players if they want to be successful down the stretch.

The game was also the first performance from freshman Joe Trosky, who played solid defense and dished out some big hits.

Mallen was pleased with the Enfield native's play.

"He didn't get a lot of ice, but he did a good job," Mallen said.

The Minutemen will take their show on the road this week for a rare midweek battle with Rensselaer in Troy, NY on Tuesday night.

■ Bulldogs

continued from page 10

giate game at Yale, dressing for Brad Norton, who had to miss the game after receiving a game disqualification for punching Boston University pest Brendan Walsh last Saturday.

Trosky was solid and posted a strong plus-two rating in his UMass debut, as he played his defensive role well in helping pitch the shutout. Trosky carried the puck well and held his ground in the defensive zone in his first collegiate action.

"He did a great job," said UMass coach Joe Mallen. "It's great to have a freshman get his feet wet and do well, which he did. I'm really happy for him. He's been working hard every day in practice and he got his chance."

• Saturday's game saw a more important team related first that helped to show just how far this team has come. UMass nearly defeated a top 10 team in its first attempt.

UMass knocked off No. 1 Maine last year on a Saturday night after using Friday's game (a 7-2 loss) to help feel out the opposition. The Minutemen lost 7-0 in their first game with BU and 6-3 in their first game against New Hampshire.

The Catamounts rolled into the Mullins Center ranked sixth in the nation with arguably the country's top goaltender and forward line. But, after Vermont took a 3-1 lead midway through the game, UMass made the necessary adjustments to reverse the trend.

The Minutemen killed three UVM power plays early in the third, and outshot Vermont 9-2 after the eight minute mark. The Minutemen tallied shorthanded and on a power play in the third to tie the game at three.

A tie would just elude the Minutemen, but their efforts on the night were otherwise stellar. The final 10 seconds left much to be desired, but the team took many strides in the other 124:45 to counter-balance the troubling finish as this team continues its growing process.

Kansas drills San Diego; Villanova drubs Purdue

Compiled by the Associated Press

At San Diego, Kansas freshman Paul Pierce keyed Kansas scoring runs at the start of each half and finished with a season-high 24 points as the Jayhawks routed San Diego, 101-71. Pierce was nearly perfect on 8-of-9 field goals, including 2-of-3 from three-point range, and 6-of-7 free throws.

• At Anaheim, Calif., No. 2 Villanova got 19 points and six rebounds from Kerry Kittles to rock Purdue, 67-50 in the opener of the second annual John Wooden Classic. Kittles made three straight shots including a breakaway dunk in a span of 50 seconds to give the Wildcats a quick 12-6 lead, and they stayed on top the rest of the way.

• At Tucson, Miles Simon scored 25 points and Joseph Blair added 22 points and 10 rebounds as No. 4 Arizona struggled to shake Towson State in the final minutes. Arizona went 11 of 14 from the free-throw line in the final three minutes to secure the win, 90-84.

• At Lexington, Antoine Walker and Wayne Turner scored four points apiece in a 12-0 spurt that sparked No. 5 Kentucky past No. 16 Georgia Tech, 83-60. The Wildcats forced 22 turnovers and limited the Yellow Jackets to 35 percent shooting (19-of-54).

• At Gainesville, Tim Duncan rebounded from a subpar game against Massachusetts, to lead No. 10 Wake Forest past Florida, 77-53. Duncan fought off double- and triple-teams to score 14 points, grab 14 rebounds, pick up nine assists and block seven shots.

In other top 25 games, Arkansas Little Rock 70 edged No. 8 Mississippi St. 68; No. 11 Missouri drubbed Jackson St. 86-63; No. 12 Iowa got by Iowa St. 56-50; No. 14 Utah defeated Utah St. 59-43; No. 15 Virginia beat Richmond 67-52; No. 17 Cincinnati smashed Arkansas, 82-67; No. 22 Michigan upset No. 18 Duke 88-84; No. 19 Virginia Tech drilled VMI 99-67; UCLA upset No. 20 Maryland 73-63; No. 21 Illinois pounded Ball St. 97-53; No. 23 Louisville hammered Texas 101-78 and No. 25 Santa Clara humiliated Southern 98-59.

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Edgar Padilla was clutch for the Minutemen down the stretch, scoring eight second half points, including a huge three-pointer from NBA range to give UMass a lead late in the game.

COLLEGIAN GRAPHICS... DOING THE JOB NO ONE ELSE WANTS TO DO

Ever Think of writing for Sports?
Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

$42,000
BEFORE YOU GRADUATE

Start your engineering career now, while you're still in school and earn as much as $1,600 monthly, plus bonuses, in the Navy nuclear program. Earn up to $42,000 and never wear a uniform until after you graduate. Today, the Navy operates more than half the nuclear reactors in the U.S. and is a recognized leader in their development and operation.

REQUIREMENTS
• United States citizen.
• Have completed sophomore year, majoring in engineering, math, physics or chemistry.
• Minimum 3.0 GPA.
• Have completed one year of calculus and calculus-based physics.
• No more than 26 1/2 years old at times of commis sioning.
• Meet Navy's physical standards.

Call 1-800-835-2613 at no obligation
NAVY OFFICER You and the Navy. Full Speed Ahead

Interested In The Classifieds Manager Position?
Contact either Earl, Marty or Rosario at The Collegian!

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS, THEY WORK!

PUBLISH YOUR BOOK!
Join our clientele of distinguished authors, including professors and professionals, in a full-service publishing program. Gain the recognition you deserve. Carlton Press, a leading contract publisher spanning 5 decades, is seeking manuscripts for book publication. If you have an idea, or manuscript in progress, send for the booklet, How To Publish Your Book. If you have a completed manuscript, send it to us. We will provide you with a free, professional evaluation of your work...with no obligation. We'll also send you a sample of Carlton's quality work. Contact us today.
CARLTON PRESS, CORP., dept. CVS
11 W. 32ND ST., New York, NY 10001

OOPS!
• Free Estimates
• 5 Year Nationwide Warranty
• Auto Glass Replacement
• Car & Truck Rental
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR
78 Sunderland Road, North Amherst, MA 549-2880
(One Mile from UMass bus route)

JOSEPH CURRAN ASSOCIATES
IMMIGRATION LAW SERVICES
H-1B Specialty Occupations
Labor Certification/Sponsor Handling
212(e) J-1 Waivers
Outstanding Professor/Researcher
National Interest/Extraordinary Ability
Relative Petitions
All Immigrant/Nonimmigrant Matters
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty
1242 Main Street 2nd Floor Springfield, MA 01103 413-781-6779
15 Old North Street Northampton, MA 01060 413-584-3332

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS $10.
25 n. pleasant st. amherst 256-0733
145 main st. northampton 586-0155

Ski snowboard
Only $219
Winterbreak & Springbreak
INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS
Sponsors Include: Molson & Labatts
MT. OXFORD, CANADA (JUST ACROSS THE VERMONT BORDER!)
5 DAY SKI & SNOWBOARD LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, CONTESTS & HOOPLA
NOTE: THE LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18
GROUP LEADER & REP DISCOUNTS
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION.
party in the snow
SKI TRAVEL
www.skitravel.com
1-800-999-Ski-9

It's Here
MINI-MALL
A one-stop shopping EXTRAVAGANZA
DECEMBER 11-13, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Student Union Ballroom UMASS
JEWELRY.....USED & NEW CDs & TAPES.....FINE ART PRINTS & PORTRAITS..... IMPRINTED T-SHIRTS ..... VINTAGE CLOTHING..... SWEATERS... HATS... GLOVES... POLAR FLEECE BLANKETS...TEDDY BEARS .....NEW VIDEOS... HAIR ACCESSORIES..FLAGS (INTERNATIONAL) .....

Open Forum
The Campus Center/Student Union Commission invites you to an open forum. Come and share your ideas and suggestions that you may have to improve the current bulletin board system within the campus center/student union complex. All members of the campus community are invited to attend and participate.
DATE: TUESDAY DECEMBER 12, 1995
PLACE: CAMPUS CENTER Rm. 165-69
TIME: 7:00 PM

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CHINESE FOOD

[illegible] Kitchen and [illegible] 549-[illegible]74

I need one [illegible] ticket for Dec 2. Will [illegible] $80.

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau are [illegible] Tau Dec[illegible] 10pm Tue December [illegible] 8pm Wed December 13 6:30 [illegible] Can't wait to see you! Tara at 549-[illegible]

To the sisters of Delta Zeta: Get excited for an amazing [illegible] Love ~DZ

APARTMENT FOR RENT

2 bedr apartment available [illegible] Rte 9 [illegible] minute drive from [illegible] $600/month [illegible]

Beautiful [illegible] apartment [illegible] for grad student [illegible] Available [illegible] Must see before [illegible] and sublease [illegible] $625/month 253-[illegible]

2 bedroom apartment [illegible] available [illegible] Must see before [illegible] Call Nazir 548-8418

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 Ford Pinto [illegible] Low [illegible] $500 [illegible]

1986 Chevy [illegible] Runs [illegible] $900 [illegible]

1986 Toyota Pickup [illegible] Runs [illegible] new clutch [illegible] $2995 549-8240

EMPLOYMENT

BABSON COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

Help Wanted at Babson College Bookstore from mid December until late January. $5.00 per hour. Call 617-239-4375.

Activity coordinators & front desk assistants. Attn college grads! It sunny and warm at some of Orlando's finest resort hotels. National recreation company is now accepting applications for their spring training class beginning January 22nd. Broaden your education in the hospitality industry or just use it as a resume builder! Fully furnished apts & $150 monthly stipend. Call 800-864-6762 for more information and application.

C/C++ programmer for part-time to full-time position. Macintosh programming experience preferred. Apply to ACI, 131 Triangle St. Amherst, Ma 01002 Phone 549-0701

Drivers, wait staff & exp cooks needed. Kate 549-8765.

Environmental Jobs over winter break, earn $275-$375/week working to save the environment with Massprig Casual, fun atmosphere. Call Terri at 256-5434.

Full/Part Time Tupperware, the most fun you'll have making serious money!!! Call Danielle Engle at 256-8883.

Hay DJ's! National spring break tour operator seeks experienced, outgoing personalities to host spring break parties and activities in Cancun's Mazatlan and Nassau's hottest clubs for the 1996 season. Room, trans. and salary pro. Please fax resume to (617) 292-9235 or mail to Take A Break Student Travel, 76 Summer St. Boston MA 02110. Attn Product Dev.

Travel Abroad and Work Make up to $25-$45/hr teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan or S Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For information call (206) 632-1146 ext J50072.

We want you (Boston-based retailer) [illegible] Retail) for $3000 inventory required. $7500. Follow on training and 1 only 2 dates per day in each location your gain! $31,400 first year! 941-766-9031

Wintersession Jobs Teaching is hiring 5-50 per hour, paid training! Flexible evening hours. Come to the basement of memorial hall & apply today.

Flexible hours. Monday-Friday 5pm-10pm Saturday 11am-5pm and Sunday 3pm-9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hrs per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hr. We're in the Mt Farms Mall, which is a 5 min on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm Mon-Fri (413) 586-8835. ABT Associates telephone research center, Mt Farm Mall, Rte 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An equal opportunity employer.

January Job for 5 weeks [illegible] can fly [illegible] to your city! 5-10pm M-F $450.00 Amherst Center. Reliable. References required. 253-2424.

Need Cash? Earn weekly paychecks from home. Easy work, easy money! For free details send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: American Media Associates, Dept C1, 6 University Dr. PO# 8000 #181, Amherst, MA 01002.

Spring Break On Sea Naps National spring beach tour operator seeks responsible people to work in Cancun, Mazatlan, Nassau and Florida during the 1996 season. Room, trans, salary and training provided. Positions filling fast! Call 1-800-SEA-NAPS

INSTRUCTION

Shaolin five animal kung fu forms and fighting. Classes begin in Jan. Contact Sifu Jim 665-4145 or 549-7515.

PERSONALS

Congratulations to the new sisters of ΔΧΩ: Amy, Heather, Kelly, Corrinne, Stacey and Shannon

Congratulations to the new sisters of ΔΧΩ: Amy, Amanda, Elizabeth, Jody, Jamie, Lauren, Amanda and Amy. We love you! The sisters of Chi Omega

FOR RENT

Two 900 #s: Be creative, have an big money. Call [illegible]-5782

FOR SALE

SKIS FOR SALE

Rossignol Vc3 178's. Brand new, unopened, plastic. Call Eric 549-8264.

Asics gel running shoes, unworn, mens 9B, may also fit 8 1/2. Must sell, cheap 546-7238.

Furniture, 2 futons, bed mattress all just three months old. Call Tobi 256-6606.

IBM 8088 computer, monitor and key board, incl $80. Andy 253-2132.

Kegerator $200 / 2 year old iguana 4 x 2 tanks all supplies incl. $700 special used hardrock 18 mountain bike $175 or bo 549-8166 Larry or Denise.

Mens Lange Ski Ski- boots size 11. Asking $95. Call 549-5215.

Woman s K2 salmon skis 110 s Bindings & poles included. Asking $200 or bo. Call 546-7444.

286/386 Computer System $195 $295. Keyboard, CPU, monitor. Call Steve (413) 566-3324.

ROOM WANTED

Female seeking room, beginning of [illegible] Needed immediately for spring semester. 549-9295.

ROOM FOR RENT

Looking for upbeat female to share 1 bedroom apt. Available Jan 1. Aug. 250/mo negotiable. Call 549-4935.

One bedroom in a five bedroom house. Smoking OK. $170 per month. 256-4295.

One room in South Amherst with three man three minutes from U Mass. $730 rent. Call Mike 253-1594.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted for spring semester. 3 girls bedroom in 3 bedroom apt. 2 full baths located on bus route. Heat and hot water included. Call 256-0804.

Roommate wanted to share a conveniently located 2 1/2 mile from UMass and center of Amherst) beautiful 3 bedroom 2 1/2 bathroom at Amity Place laundry fireplace central air, patio, full kitchen and great sunset views. Must be responsible, call loving, non-smoker $425.00/month plus utilities. Available January 1, 1996. Contact Gary at 549-3866.

Roommate wanted must smoke to share room for Spring semester $185 per month. On bus route. Start Jan 1st. Call Anne 253-1805 heat & hot water included.

Roommates wanted for older townhouse in Brandywine, near 9 hot water included. Starts Jan 1. Call Andy 549-[illegible]

TRANSPORTATION

Need a ride to Florida? I have the perfect solution. Deliver my car to Ft Lauderdale. Call Anne 413 625 3979.

Need a ride to Florida? I'm driving to Fort Lauderdale Dec. 24 & 1-need someone to help share exp. Call Susan 548-9128.

Ride needed to Western NY (Rech, Buffalo) Dec 20th/21st. Chrissy 256-0998.

TRAVEL

JAMAICA

Go with whom you know Spring break in Negril. $549 U Mass Ski Club 545-3437. Thrill ou experience.

Catch a jet! Caribb/Mexico $189 r/t Europe $169. Call 1-7-9. Call AirHitch for more info! 800 326-2009.

Going home for the holidays? Need a ride to the airport? Call Valley Transporter Airport shuttle. Hourly service to Bradley. Affordable, door to door. Advance reservations. 549-7350.

Ski & Snowboard Winter break & spring break '96. Intercollegiate ski weeks only $219. Includes: 5 day lift tickets, 5 nights lodging, luxury condos, 5 days, instructional gate-act vities (drinking age 18). Sponsors include Morgan & Labatts. Mt. Oxford, Canada (just across the Vermont border) group leader free discounts. Call Ski Travel Unlimited 1-800-999-SKI.

Spring Break Bahamas or Florida Keys. Spend it on your own private yacht. One week only $385.00 per person including food and much more. Organized to go free! Easy Sailing Yacht Charters 1-800 733-4001. See us on the net http://www.shadow.net/~estain

Winter Break Special Killington week $299. Interested? Call the U Mass Ski Club 545-3437.

WANTED TO RENT

Studio bedroom or room wanted winter and/or spring 546-7238. Reliable 25 year old.

SERVICES

Free financial aid! Over $ Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships is now available. All students are eligible regardless of grades, income or parent's income. Let us help. Call Student Financial Services, 1-800 263-6495 ext 1500.

Foreign Students (JV Greencard program available) 1-800-880-7167.

NEED HELP MOVING?

Quick movers & storage Move over. Rover let us take over. 256-1300.

Need help moving? Buying a new bed? Trash to dispose of? I have a pickup truck and am available year round. Please borrow for end of semester moves. Hourly rates. Page anytime 292-0085.

RESUME

Inexpensive professional resume services. Packages $15-$30. Only at Campus Designs and Copy. The affordable alternative. Upstairs in the Student Union. 545-2277.

Jewelry repairs watch batteries, eyeglass frame repairs and ear piercing. Silverscape Designs 264 N. Pleasant St. Amherst. 253-3324.

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906.

TO SUBLET

Looking for Apt/bedroom to sublet. Jan. mature responsible male needs place to stay over intersession. Call Bill at 548-2077.

One Room Available in three bedroom apt for spring semester in Amherst. Cir 253-4985.

Trm for Jan Male in Nono $190 mo. Info Call 582-8874.

Help us fill all this blank space

Work for Collegian Graphics

Visit 113 Campus Center or call 545-1864 and ask to speak to Jim or Tony

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Large amounts
6 Neither fem. nor neut.
10 City on the Kama
14 Seething
15 Eskers
16 Medley
17 "The Magic —": Mozart
18 Mr. — Marquand's detective
19 CEO's vehicle
20 Author of "Show Boat"
22 Shakespeare play with 41 Across 24 Brier
25 Author Seton
26 Self-centered one
29 Built an aerie
34 — Alamos
35 Nerve: Comb. form
38 "The Merry Widow" composer
39 Kitchen add-on
41 Memorable actress Jessica
43 Theme, in music
44 Colette work
46 Consumer advocate Ralph
48 Ending for penta or hexa
49 Tax on imports
51 Not level
53 Natl Weather Serv. is part of it
56 Desolate
57 1963 film with 41 Across
61 Cheap cigar
64 Part
65 First name of 20 Across
67 Separated
68 Priest's vestments
69 Large amount
70 Early English public assembly
71 Type of moss
72 Seabird
73 Actress Verdugo

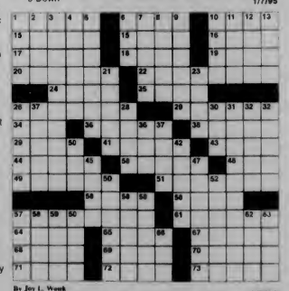
DOWN

1 Riff follower
2 Competent
3 Play with 41 Across, with "The"
4 Morisel
5 Like some household help
6 Fam. member
7 King of India: 269-232 B.C.
8 Shiny fabric
9 Husband of 41 Across
10 Voting place
11 Weasel
12 "Green Mansions" girl
13 Dock
21 Applause button
23 Erse speaker
26 Chosen
27 Almanach de—: royalty record
28 Malay title
30 Harden
31 Play with 41 Across and 9 Down
32 De Valera of Ireland
33 Sturm und —
36 Cell component: Abbr
37 Bookmaker's concern
40 Assam silkworm
42 Stadium sounds
45 Part of Morocco
47 Underground plant parts
50 "The Light in the —" film with 41 Across
52 Drive ahead
54 Befuddle
55 Actor Ed
57 Snare
58 Golfer's goal
59 Exile island
60 Defeat
62 Press
63 Kett or James
66 Barley beard

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	A	H	I	B		E	L	A	M	G	A	L	A
C	L	O	N	E		T	E	R	I		E	R	I	C
H	O	R	S	E	S	H	O	E	S		M	C	V	I
	U	S	U	R	P	S		S	L	A	S	H	E	S
		E	L	S	A				A	C	T
H	E	P	T		C	R	A	Z	Y	H	O	R	S	E
U	N	O			E	A	S	E		E	N	A	T	E
N	E	W	T	S		M	S	L		D	E	C	A	L
C	R	E	A	M		B	A	D	E			E	V	E
H	O	R	S	E	W	O	M	A	N		S	H	E	D
		T	A	I					O	E	N	O
S	E	B	E	R	G	S		A	C	C	O	R	D
O	L	A	F		W	O	R	K	H	O	R	S	E	S
L	I	E	U		A	M	O	I		L	E	E	K	S
E	A	R	L		M	E	I	N		E	S	S	E	S

1/7/95

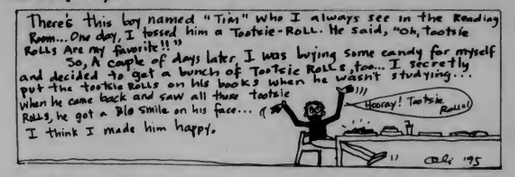


By Jay L. Wenk
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

1/7/95

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Ali People By Ali



There's this boy named "Tim" who I always see in the Reading Room... One day, I tossed him a Tootsie-ROLL. He said, "Oh, tootsie Rolls are my favorite!!"
So, A couple of days later I was buying some candy for myself and decided to get a bunch of Tootsie Rolls, too... I secretly put the tootsie Rolls on his books when he wasn't studying... When he came back and saw all those tootsie Rolls, he got a BIG smile on his face... I think I made him happy.
Hooray! Tootsie Rolls!
Ali '95

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

OUR HERO GRAPHICALLY EXPLAINS WHY IT ISN'T SMART TO MESS WITH SPIDER-MAN...
SORRY, GUYS! WITH ROGART OUT OF ACTION, YOUR SERVICES ARE NO LONGER REQUIRED!
NOW I'LL JUST--WHA--?!!
FREEZE, WALL-CRAWLER! ONE MOVE AND YOU'RE DEAD!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I was feeling pretty good. My family was invited to a wedding.

At the reception my father came up to me and said, "Come with me, son."

He took me to the men's room.

As we stood there side by side facing straight into the wall he said solemnly,.....

"I brought you here for a reason. All that your eyes can see before you will someday be yours or your ex-wife's. I love you, son."

I came out of there feeling pretty darn good. My dad is a prince.

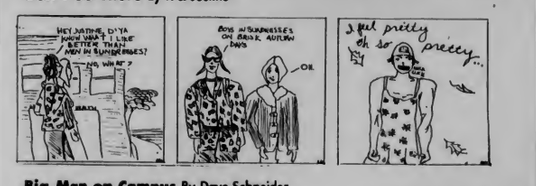
Close to Home By John McPherson

SKIS
SPORTING GOODS
"I'm sorry, sir, but there's a five-day waiting period on all in-line skate purchases so we can verify that you're not a spaz."

Bruno By C. Baldwin

WHAT DO YOU MEAN, AMERICA IS A LOSER COUNTRY?!!
READ MY LIPS BABE...WE'RE AN EXCEEDINGLY DEPTH, CHILDISH COUNTRY.
AS WELL IT'S CONTEMPTS IN EVERY OTHER COUNTRY THAT AMERICANS CAN'T HOLD THEIR LIQUOR, CATCH MY DRIFT AS WELL, I KNOW THE BOMBER HERE PERSONALLY.
WELL, I'M...YOU'RE THE FEMALE...I'M RYAN.
WE'RE ALSO KNOWN FOR OUR SELF-RIGHTEOUS UNEQUATED ETHNOCENTRICITY, HMMM, I WONDER WHY?

Don't Go There By K & Justine



HEY JUSTINE, D'YA WANT WHAT I LIKE BETTER THAN MEN IN SUNGLASSES?
BOYS IN SUNGLASSES OR BRAD K. AUTUMN
I feel pretty oh so pretty...

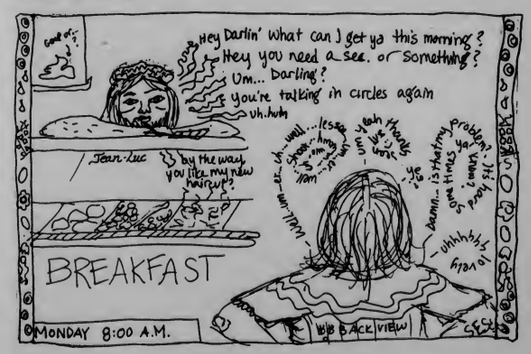
Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

Clue Man By Galen

Here I am outside the Mullins Center. I wonder why this line is here.
Excuse me, but what are you waiting in line for?
Who cares? If it's cool enough for 50,000 others it's cool enough for me!

Small Potatos By John Art

Buttah By Darling



Hey Darlin' what can I get ya this morning?
Hey you need a see. or Something?
Um... Darling?
you're talking in circles again
Uh huh
Jean-Luc
by the way you like my new haircut?
BREAKFAST
MONDAY 8:00 A.M.
WEB BACK VIEW

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Marni E. Helfner
Copy Editor ..... Amy Paradysz
Photo Technician ..... Elizabeth Brown
Production Supervisor ..... Tony Morse
Production ..... Dan Bergeron
Jeff Hodge

Dining Commons Menu

Today

LUNCH
Meatball Grinder
Grilled Sneeze
BASICS LUNCH
Lentil Chili
Grilled Sneeze

DINNER
Meatloaf
Chicken Fajitas
BASICS DINNER
Chicken Fajitas
Garbanzo Beans

Tomorrow

LUNCH
Fish in Batter
Tri County Fair Sand.
BASICS LUNCH
Fish in Batter
Lemon Grill Burger

DINNER
Breaded Veal Pattie
Roast Turkey
BASICS DINNER
Colache
Roast Turkey

Wednesday

LUNCH
Hot Hero Sandwich
Chicken Pucks
BASICS LUNCH
Bean, Corn, Tomato Casserole / Chicken Puck

DINNER
Roast Pork
Chick'n Tenders
BASICS DINNER
Potato Mushroom D-lite
Chicken Lips

Ever find yourself sitting in the DC thinking "You know, this food isn't all that tasty..."?

Maybe you should try writing for Arts and Living.

(It won't make the food any better, but at least you'll get to see your name in the paper)

Come down to the Collegian at 113 Campus Center if interested

Quote of the Day

"America Online for Dummies." Isn't that like saying, "Air for breathing?"

–Overheard

SportsWeekend

Inside this issue:

- The men's swimming & diving team beat Brown, 145–91 on Saturday to improve its record to 4–0 on the year. Sean Anderson, Justin Murphy, Keith McLarty and Scott Herbert all swam well for the Minutemen. For the complete story, check out tomorrow's Collegian.
- In college basketball games over the weekend, the top eight teams all won, except for No. 8 Mississippi St., which was upset by Arkansas–Little Rock. No. 10 Wake Forest rebounded from its loss to UMass last Wednesday with a drubbing of Florida, 77–53, while No. 18 Duke and No. 20 Maryland both suffered losses. For a complete round–up of Top 25 action, see page 7.

Collegian Sports • Monday, December 11, 1995

Minutemen defeat BC in Commonwealth Classic

■ UMass outlasts Eagles with strong second half

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — Less than a minute to go, Boston College's Damia Abrams gets the ball with his team down by three and the game on the line. He posts up, pump fakes twice, and goes up for the shot in the paint.

Massachusetts	65
Boston College	57

One problem.

There was a 6–foot 11–inch Minuteman waiting in the paint for him — Marcus Camby. Camby stayed poised, didn't fall for either of Abrams' pump fakes, and swatted Abrams shot, along with BC's hopes, helping to give Massachusetts a 65–57 win in the Commonwealth Classic before 18,974 at the FleetCenter Saturday.

"I just backed him in and gave him an up–fake, but to his credit he had great timing on the second jump," said Abrams, who scored 23 points and grabbed eight rebounds. "I thought I had him on my back. I went up with my left hand and he just came out of nowhere and blocked it."

I was watching him through the whole game and I saw that he was pump–faking a lot," Camby said. "I had three fouls and I knew he was going to try to up–fake, to get the foul and get to the line, but I just waited until he released it and I just went after it."

After a James "Scoonie" Penn jumper tied it up at 57 with 1:56 to go, UMass guard Edgar Padilla drilled a trey from NBA range to give the Minutemen their three–point lead, and to set the stage for the Abrams–Camby matchup — a matchup everyone in the building knew would occur.

"We got to go to him, he's our best player," said Boston College coach Jim O'Brien. "He delivered all night long. I thought he had a terrific game. I think you got to give Camby some credit for making a good block."

Massachusetts coach John Calipari said, "They got the ball to Damya Abrams one foot from the basket, then the 7–footer, who's going to be a great pro, blocked it."

The Eagles owned the first half of play, jumping to an early nine–point lead. An 11–2 run, helped by five points, including an NBA–range trey from Penn, and a three–pointer by Antonio Granger with 4:35 minutes left in the half, gave BC a lead of 13.

BC came out with great intensity," said UMass forward Donta Bright, who had a game–high 24 points.

But the Minutemen matched that intensity for the rest of the half going on a 8–0 run to bring them within five at the intermission.

"It seems like we play best when we're down. We were down at Maryland [this year]. Last year, we were down 18 at West Virginia with like two minutes to go and we won in overtime," Bright said. "I don't know what it is about this team but we have a bunch of great guys who have a lot of courage. We don't quit."

UMass continued its run into the second half, and tied it up on a Padilla trey, from well–beyond the arc, 1:07 in. Two free throws by Bright gave the Minutemen their first lead of the game and from then on, BC would never lead again.

During the stretch where the Minutemen erased a 13 point lead, and then took their first lead, the Eagles were held scoreless for 7:02 minutes, until an Abrams layup with 16:50 left broke the ice.

Turn to HOOPS, page 6

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Marcus Camby, who scored 19 points and notched a game–high three blocks, celebrates UMass' 65–57 victory over Boston College Saturday in the Commonwealth Classic.

■ Game creates great college hoop atmosphere

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — This is what starts a rivalry.

You can call it what you like: East vs. West, upper class vs. middle class, maroon and white vs. maroon and gold, which ever, these schools don't like each other and wanted nothing more than to beat the other.

It was billed the Commonwealth Classic, which pitted the unranked Boston College Eagles against the No. 3 Massachusetts Minutemen. Records and rankings would mean very little in regard to this matchup. Because if one team didn't play with all of its intensity and heart, there was no way they could come out a winner.

The Eagles played with unbridled enthusiasm, but unfortunately for BC, that is the philosophy John Calipari's troops live by, and UMass escaped with a 65–57 win.

What made this game even more electrifying was the support given to them on a day that would make the faint–hearted stay home and watch it on television.

The 18,974 fans who crowded the FleetCenter Saturday created an atmosphere that might remind one of Duke–North Carolina or Kentucky–Louisville games that bring intrastate rivals and all their fans together.

"It was a very tough game. The crowd was into it, both schools," Donta Bright said. "It was a NCAA tourney–type atmosphere. It'll get both teams ready for NCAA tourney, if we get there. It was a great experience playing in front of thousands of people. Everybody in the state of Massachusetts was watching the game closely. Two great teams went to war."

The war was all over the court. Aside from the national anthem, the school bands attempted to drown each other out, perhaps because they couldn't hear over the crowd noise.

After a layup by Bright cut the BC lead to three at 17–14, the Minutemen fans, who had traveled two hours in horrible weather conditions backed their defense with deafening noise. The Eagle backers did their part by getting to their feet and screaming for another basket.

All the fans in the stadium, regardless of which side they were rooting for, were standing and yelling at that juncture of the game, with 30 minutes still remaining.

It was those fans which brought so much life to the game itself. The underdog Eagles, who were red hot in the first 16 minutes, brought the BC crowd to its feet with every made basket.

With James "Scoonie" Penn nailing two three–pointers, the second of which drew a foul on Carmelo Travieso and a technical foul on Calipari, to the turnaround jumper by Keenan Jourdan with 3:52 left in the first half, the Eagles reached their biggest lead at 33–20.

The BC fans were in a feeding frenzy.

"This may have been the single best atmosphere for a game that I've been involved in," said BC coach Jim O'Brien. "That atmosphere was second–to–none, it was terrific. I think this certainly was good for the basketball in this city. We're happy to be contributing to that."

Down 13, the Minutemen went on a 17–1 run that bridged the first and second halves and gave UMass their first lead. The rabid wave of maroon and white behind the UMass basket was in delirium during the entire stretch as Uncle Mo (momentum) switched sides of the family.

"This was a great college basketball game," Calipari

Turn to MINUTEMEN, page 6

Hockey beats Yale, falls to UVM

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

In the midst of a weekend split, the Massachusetts hockey team achieved another milestone. The 4–0 win over Yale gave the Minutemen their seventh win of the season.

Massachusetts	4
Yale	0

Last year in 36 games, they only mustered six wins. It took only 12 game to achieve seven with this season.

Massachusetts came close to upsetting No. 6 Vermont this weekend as well, but in the end, the Catamounts escaped with a victory, leaving the William D. Mullins Center with a 4–3 overtime win.

It looked as if the game would finish in a tie, but with less than a minute remaining in sudden death overtime, the Catamounts attacked the UMass net furiously and with five seconds left J.C. Ruid beat Brian Regan to give UVM the 4–3 win.

Massachusetts coach Joe Mullen was frustrated after the defeat.

"We're really disappointed," Mullen said. "We go into every game feeling that we can win."

After UMass took an early 1–0 lead in the first period, Vermont came to life. The Catamounts tallied the next three goals and appeared to be in full control of the game after two periods.

But the visitors seemed to think they had already wrapped up the victory, as they slipped into a defensive shell. The Minutemen came to life however and made the Catamounts pay for their third period lapse.

Vermont	4
Massachusetts	3

Down two goals, Massachusetts began forechecking aggressively even when they were short–handed. It paid off for them. With Brad Norton in the penalty box for interference, Tom O'Connor sent a centering pass to Chris Fawcette, who beat goalie Tim Thomas to cut the lead to one.

Tasting opportunity, the Massachusetts team and crowd came to life. The previously dormant Massachusetts offense began attacking furiously. And with less than five minutes remaining, Dean Campanale redirected a Brad Norton blast past Thomas to tie the game at three, as it would remain in regulation.

The Minutemen would get opportunities in the extra session, but Vermont took advantage of the fact that the referees put their whistles away in overtime. The Catamounts' answer to a potential UMass threat

Turn to HOCKEY, page 7

Even with heart–wrenching loss to UVM, Minutemen make progress

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

With exactly five seconds remaining in overtime Saturday night, there was a puck in the Massachusetts net. No. 6 Vermont was celebrating behind the goal and the UMass bench looked as if its collective heart had been torn out.

The Minutemen saluted the 2,224 who braved the elements to attend the game, and left the ice glum and dejected.

While the Minutemen had to swallow the bitter pill of an upset that quite literally slipped away, the loss should not overshadow a weekend otherwise laden with positives.

Many firsts came for the growing program this weekend, which will be remembered long after the unfortunate details of exactly how that puck ended up in the UMass net.

• Friday night, on the road at Yale, UMass registered its first shutout against a Division I opponent, winning 4–0 and holding the Bulldogs to 25 shots. It was only the third time Yale had been shutout at the Whale (Ingalls Rink) since 1988.

More importantly, the Minuteman defense limited Yale to only a handful of quality scoring opportunities, as goalie Dave Kilduff was hardly tested on the evening.

"[The defense] did a good job keeping the shots off me," Kilduff said. "Even the forwards played really strong team defense. There's a lot more to a shutout than just the goalie."

The team clamped down, holding the Bulldogs to less than nine shots in each period, and killing all six Yale power plays. This was only the second time this year that UMass has killed every penalty, the other coming in a win over Air Force.

• Sophomore Dan Juden, who played sparingly in just three games last year, skated on the first line Friday night, centering Tom Perry and Sal Munganaro, and notched his first collegiate goal.

The Governor Dummer product redirected a centering pass from Perry at the top of the crease exactly six minutes into the second period, in what will become an enduring moment for him. The moment was made still sweeter as it came in the face of Yale defenseman Sani Silventonen, a former teammate from their days with the Governors.

• Freshman Joe Trosky played in his first colle-

Turn to BULLDOGS, page 7

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Blair Wagar (left) scored a pretty one–on–one goal Friday night as the UMass men's hockey team defeated Yale 4–0 in New Haven.

UMass to battle Engineers

Dean Campanale and the UMass hockey team looks to improve on their 7–6 record as they travel to Rochester, NY to face RPI (See sports, page 14).

The jury is in...

Richard North Patterson's latest novel blends together psychology and mystery into a legal thriller (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Holiday Shoppers Guide

The Annual Holiday Collegian Shoppers guide provides readers with dos and don't of gift giving (See Shoppper's Guide, page 7).

Extended Forecast

The sun will begin to peak through again today. The mercury will rise a little bit, but it will still be a bitter biting cold day and wilremain that way through the middle of the week.

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 25 LOW: 5	HIGH: 20 LOW: 0	HIGH: 25 LOW: 5

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 66 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, December 12, 1995

White anti-rascism discussed

By Gregory Casimir
Collegian Staff

A very important, and provocative discussion was held to address the topic of anti–racism on the part of white people last night at the Campus Center.

Noel Ignatiev, co–editor of Race Traitor, a journal of the New Abolition, led a discussion on the ideology of whiteness, white privilege, and how white people can and must betray their whiteness in the fight against racism.

Ignatiev's panel included a number of powerful and well known speakers on campus: Helan Page (Anthology Department), John Bracey (Afro–Am Department), Arlene Avakian (Women's Studies), and Kaolin (undergraduate student, WOST).

Ignatiev spoke about the way for white people to combat whiteness was to become "reverse Oreos".

"That way," Ignatiev explained, "color would no longer be the factor by which one was judged in society." He pointed out that class may be the standard by which individuals would soon be judged.

Ignatiev also pointed out that although 90 percent of whites say they are against racism, few of them make an effort to do anything about it if it means interrupting their daily lives.

He pointed out the example of the Civil War; the North only ended slavery as a means to prevent Southern political policy from spreading.

"Freeing the slaves was the only way to do it," said Ignatiev.

Ignatiev expressed the need for whites to find an effective way to break up the "white club".

"The white race will crumble," said Ignatiev, "when whites rebel against the white system, and people become judged on another criteria."

John Bracey spoke how whites had to refuse to accept their white privileges. Those who did, he explained, were nearly written out of the history books or hung, like John Brown, an abolitionist who helped blacks before the Civil War.

He gave another example of John Sinclair, of the White Panthers, who tried to break down all white dorms. Bracey said Sinclair organized open marijuana smoking, and even public fornication on highways, with the intention of "stopping the industrial flow," he joked.

Arlene Avakian addressed the fact that whites needed to discover what made them white in order to defeat whiteness. "This is difficult because being white is acceptable," explained Avakian. She described whiteness as a space, and whites have to fill that space in order to define whiteness, and deal with it.

Kaolin changed up the discussion by reading a poem she wrote about her life as a "race traitor." She read aloud some of the reasons why she was a race traitor, two which included, "Questioning the racial norm, and fostering an interracial relationship."

Kaolin's poem expressed the grief her parents put her through as a result of her interracial marriage with George, her black husband.

"Being a race traitor has nothing to do with being white," Avakian said. "It has to do with other races."

Helan Page was the last of the panel to speak, addressing the fact that the reproduction of complicity was a reason that generated white privilege.

"Racism is not just discrimination. It is the distribution of resources to make sure that blacks don't have enough."

Page commented that becoming a race traitor involved dismantling white privilege. "It's the redistribution of resources to all people."

EMILY BEELY/COLLEGIAN

Professor John Bracey, left, and Mr. Noel Ignatiev, spoke last night in the Campus Center at the panel discussion entitled "Can a White Person Be Anti–Racist?"

Congresswoman fights scandal; determined to continue in government

By Kimberley Murphy
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — For more than 4 1/2 hours, tears running down her face, Rep. Enid Greene Waldholtz bared her emotions and her finances in an extraordinary bid to save her career Monday, blaming the financial mess surrounding her campaign on the "teddy bear" husband she says proved to be a con artist.

Publicly addressing the scandal for the first time, the freshman Republican said her estranged husband, Joe Waldholtz, had falsified documents, stolen money from the campaign and lied to her at nearly every turn.

"When you go home tonight, and you're with the person you love most in the world, and they're holding you as you go to sleep and they tell you that they love you and that you're the love of their life, ask yourself if they're capable of what I've just told you," she said through tears.

Mrs. Waldholtz, 37, said she won't resign from Congress because she didn't do anything wrong or attempt to cover up her husband's alleged misdeeds. She said she hasn't decided whether to seek re–election.

"I believe I was tricked. I don't believe I was negligent," she said. "I found everything I thought I knew about Joe Waldholtz, that I knew and trusted, was a lie."

The former corporate lawyer was flanked by her political consultant, her lawyer and her accountant at a televised news conference as she sought to deliver on her promise to explain fully her tangled affairs.

When it was finally over, Mrs. Waldholtz embraced her mother, Gerda Greene, and asked, "So, do I pass?"

"A plus," her mother replied.

The spectacle of a tearful, rising Republican star apologizing to the camera, even mentioning a dog, evoked Richard Nixon's "Checkers" speech.

Its length, and its extraordinary public airing of financial problems, dwarfed even Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferarro's 1984 news conference, when she took questions on her family's finances for an hour and 40 minutes.

Even Mrs. Waldholtz's most ardent supporters had threatened to abandon her if she did not adequately address concerns about her personal and campaign finances, a mess she had been blaming on her estranged husband, and former campaign treasurer, for weeks, but only in press releases.

Joe Waldholtz, 32, is the subject of a federal investigation into a $1.7 million check–kiting scheme involving two of the couple's bank accounts. The congresswoman's lawyers also claim he may have embezzled tens of thousands of dollars from her 1994 and 1996 campaigns.

Waldholtz, who fled when the allegations first surfaced, later surrendered and was released to the custody of an acquaintance in Pennsylvania. No charges have been filed. He has declined to comment.

After Waldholtz vanished, his wife filed for divorce and demanded that he be tracked down and prosecuted.

Mrs. Waldholtz said that she will testify before the federal grand jury in Washington that is investigating her husband. She said she is not a target of the investigation.

She also said she will file amended financial disclosure forms and Federal Election Commission reports by Jan. 8.

Asked why she had tried to keep the child–custody portion of her divorce filing sealed — the couple have a 3–month–old daughter, Elizabeth — she said, "Over the last four weeks, besides financial misdoings, I have found evidence of other questionable lifestyle choices. ... I will not discuss them today."

Los Amigos' activities lift spirits

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Correspondent

Rochelle Trombly entered the Bangs Community Center meeting room and walked directly to Doug Wisner, a sophomore Sport Management major. She gave Wisner a hug as the final meeting of Los Amigos, a volunteer group that deals with special population groups — mentally and physically disadvantaged — began.

"She's never done that before," Wisner said of Trombly, one of the group participants. "This past couple of weeks she has been comfortable around me."

Los Amigos is a sub group of the larger Boltwood Project headed by Kara Roche, a senior Anthropology major and Barrianni Fitzgibbons, a junior Spanish major. The program was started 24 years ago to utilize student volunteers to increase the services provided to the special population groups.

The Boltwood Project provides activities for the development for the disabled, emotionally and physically ill and homeless children. Also, it gives students from the Five Colleges experience with this population.

"Boltwood portrays students in a positive manner to the town of Amherst," Roche said. "Volunteers are involved in Meals on Wheels and coffee socials twice a semester at the Amherst Nursing Center."

The Boltwood Project — instructed and directed by Merle Willmann of the Department of Landscape & Regional Planning — offers two credits to students. However, student volunteers remark they entered the program for the experience, not the credits earned.

"It gives me pleasure working with the participants," said Keisha Turner, a senior Educational Studies major.

Boltwood puts participants in one of the 23 groups that best suits their needs. Groups meet once a week for two hours, led by a student supervisor. Over 230 supervisors and volunteers work together to plan activities for the 230 participants. Trips to the bowling alley, roller skating and dances are a few of the activities done this semester.

"The hayride was really fun," said Vicki Taft, an Amherst resident who has been a participant in the Boltwood Project for four years.

Turn to LOS AMIGOS, page 2

TV smashed in Campus Center

Damage estimated at $400; replacement unlikely until January

By Keren Golani
Collegian Correspondent

The television set located in the basement of the Campus Center was smashed by an unknown vandal at approximately 2:05 a.m. last Thursday morning.

The television screen and internal electrical parts were damaged when the unidentified individual threw a soft drink bottle through the picture tube.

The TV was located outside of the Collegian offices. Staff members working in the graphics department ran out to see what happened.

"It sounded like a ton of glass breaking," said Amy Paradysz, a Collegian staff member. "It sounded a lot closer than it really was. I thought someone had broken the window by WMUA, which is right next door."

Paradysz and Collegian managing editor Marni E. Helfner checked the neighboring office windows and went out to the lobby where the TV had been. However, no one was anywhere in the area. They immediately reported the incident to the University Police Department. They were not able to find a suspect.

> "A television has not been broken in that manner in the last decade. We expect it to be the last time."
> -Campus Center Director William M. Harris

"A television has not been broken in that manner in the last decade," said Campus Center Director William M. Harris. "We expect it to be the last time."

Harris reasoned that since many students enjoyed the use of the television, it most likely will not happen again.

"People generally do not vandalize things that are user– friendly," said Harris. "There is security in the building, but if someone wants to vandalize something there's nothing we can do about it."

The 25–inch set was the last in the Student Union inventory, according to Harris. It will be replaced by a new television set from the operating funds included in the facility's budget.

"It's just a random act of vandalism," Harris said.

The replacement of the television set is going to cost the University about $400, including the installation fee. Harris estimated the TV will not be replaced until at least January or the beginning of next semester.

Voters not buying into Weld – Gingrich comparison

By Melissa B. Robinson
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Whether or not he really resembles Newt Gingrich, Gov. William Weld is the latest Republican to become caught in the Democratic Party's strategy of using the House speaker as a weapon from coast–to–coast.

But will it work in Massachusetts?

On one hand, voters don't seem to buy it, at least not yet. In a recent Boston Herald poll of 437 likely state voters, only 27 percent found Weld to be a "Gingrich–style" Republican. Another 57 percent said the description didn't fit.

"If that's John Kerry's entire strategy, he's going to be a certain loser," said Gordon Hensley of the National Republican Senatorial Committee.

Others say the tag could hurt Weld, even if he's not a mirror–image of the pugnacious Georgia Republican. Gingrich is the leading force behind the GOP's federal policy initiatives and mastermind of his party's 1994 congressional election victories. "Why do Republicans need more help in D.C. right now in a state that's traditionally Democratic?" asked Lou DiNatale, a University of Massachusetts analyst. "While Democrats may have found him (Weld) a perfect balance in Massachusetts, it doesn't look that way in D.C."

This year, Democrats have unabashedly targeted Gingrich, whose negative ratings have ranged from 50 percent to 60 percent all fall. And there's probably more to come, given the fact that 1996 is a blockbuster election year with the presidency, 435 House seats and over 30 Senate seats up for grabs.

"People have finally awakened and understand that Newt Gingrich is really the Republican Party," said Rep. Pat Schroeder, D–Colo. "That everybody is either a femiNewtie or a Newtoid, and if they vote Republican, they are getting Newt."

That, at least, is what Democrats are counting on. Consider that:

- Organized labor has targeted 55 Republicans with a $1 million advertising campaign, including commercials. The message? That lawmakers "voted WITH Newt Gingrich and AGAINST working families.

Drunk driving fugitive caught after spending a year abroad

Associated Press

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. — A fugitive returned from abroad was charged Monday with killing two people while driving drunk more than a year ago.

Wearing handcuffs and a sweater with colored hearts, Julia Gierkie–Goldberg, 36, pleaded innocent to two counts of vehicular homicide and drunken driving. She was held without bail to await a hearing Dec. 21 back in Hampshire Superior Court.

She was arrested Friday while sitting in a car in the driveway of her parents' home in Springfield, said David Ross, an assistant Northwestern District Attorney. She formerly lived in Belchertown. Authorities said little of what she did abroad and why she came back.

They say her Porsche crashed

Turn to FUGITIVE, page 2

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Tuesday, Dec. 12

Amherst Special Town Election — Absentee ballots for the Dec. 12 Amherst Special Town Election are available in the Amherst Town Clerk's office on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday 8 a.m. to noon. For more information call 256-4035.

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Mon. – Thurs. 4 – 8 p.m.

Meeting — The Golden Key Honor Society will hold a general meeting and Holiday Ornament Making Party at 4 p.m. in H–2 North Village, at the Community Center. Ornaments will be donated to the Giving Tree.

Mini–Mall — UMass Hillel is sponsoring the 9th Annual Mini–Mall of vendors selling a variety of gift items from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Benefit Coffeehouse — People's Market, Earthfoods and Campus Design & Copy are sponsoring a free coffeehouse with local performers, poets and artists to benefit Necessities/Necesidades from 7 p.m. – 11 p.m. in Earthfoods. No admission, but donations are accepted.

Speaker — Ali Akbar will speak about "Practicing Islam in America," Campus Center 805, 7:30 p.m., sponsored by the Muslim Student Association

Wednesday, Dec. 13

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Monday – Thursday 4 – 8 p.m.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Mini–Mall — UMass Hillel is sponsoring the 9th Annual Mini–Mall of vendors selling a variety of gift items from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Thursday, Dec. 14

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Monday – Thursday 4 – 8 p.m.

Dance & Music — Grupo Sofrito, Latin Jazz and dance music will present in the Bluewall at 7:30 p.m. with free admission. Grupo Sofrito is part of the UMass Drum and Dance Collective.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14

Study Break — The Stonewall Center is sponsoring a study break for five college GLBT students at 7 p.m. in the Stonewall Center. For more information call 545-4824.

Friday, Dec. 15

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 12 p.m., Campus Center. For more information call Utama at 256-8482.

Religious — Shabbat Services will be held at Hillel House at 6 p.m.

Saturday, Dec. 16

Religious — An Eastern Orthodox Divine Liturgy will be celebrated on Saturday, Dec. 16 at 10 a.m. in the Helen Hills Chapel at Smith College. The pan–Orthodox service will be conducted in English and followed by a light meal. For more information contact Irene at 545-5470.

Astronomy — The Amherst Astronomy Association is conduction a free public planetarium show at 4 p.m. in the Amherst College Bassett Planetarium and a free public observatory observing at 9 p.m. at the Amherst College Wilder Observatory. For more information call 256-6234.

Notices

Absentee Ballots — Absentee ballots for the Dec. 12 Amherst Special Town Election are available in the Amherst Town Clerk's office on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday 8 a.m. to noon. For more information call 256–4035.

Scholarships — The National Council of Alpha Lambda Delta Academic Honor Society for Freshman will award several $3,000 scholarships for graduate study. Alpha Lambda Delta members graduating with a certain cumulative average are eligible. Application forms and information may be obtained from Eileen Stewart, Assistant Dean of Students, 227 Whitmore. Applications are due by Dec. 29.

Ski instructors wanted — Anyone interested in becoming an instructor–guide with the B.L.I.N.D. Ski Program beginning Jan. 8, 1996 at Mt. Tom Ski Area in Holyoke, may contact Betty Hollingsworth at 665–4614 ASAP. Applicants must be at least 16–years–old, have good skiing ability, an interest in teaching others, and preferably, prior instructor experience.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 585-0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5 – 6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545-4824.

Writing — mOthertongue, a multi–lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587–9884.

Meeting — The African Student Association holds a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the SWAG office. Meeting is open to everyone.

Writing — Nommo News and Drum Supplement holds general body meetings on Thursdays at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2365 or 546– 5562.

Exhibit — International Programs presents "You Had To Be There..." a selection of photographs submitted by students who have travelled and studied abroad, in the Admissions Center, weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Overeaters Anonymous — Does eating control your life? Overeaters Anonymous meetings are held on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 10:30 a.m. in the Campus Center. Monday and Friday meetings are cancelled for the rest of the semester. For more information call 548–9040.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995–96 issue. Any Five–College students is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 406E Student Union, or call 545–2240.

Semi–Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi–formal on February 10, 1996 in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 5-0960.

Writing — The National Library of Poetry is currently accepting entries for the North American Open Poetry Contest. Deadline for entries is Dec. 31. Poets should submit one original poem of no more than 20 lines to The National Library of Poetry, 11419 Cronridge Dr. P.O. Box 704–1986, Owings Mills, MD 21117.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253–9622.

Theater — The University of Massachusetts Theater Department has designed Dramatic Discoveries to showcase quality works by student playwrights in the Five–College area. Dramatic Discoveries is also searching for directors, stage mangers and dramaturge who are interested in working on these new plays. Course credit may be available for students working on this production. The submission deadline for scripts is Dec. 14, 1995. Submission should be sent to: Dramatic Discoveries, 112 Fine Arts Center, Theater Department, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01002. For more information about the festival, please call Kelli S. Clark 545–3490 or 545–6818.

Religious — Rides to Chapel: Christ Community Chapel of Amherst sponsors "Pick Me Up." Worship time 10 – 11:30 a.m. every Sunday. Bus stop points 9:45 a.m. at the GRC, Fine Arts, North Village, Southpoint, Prince House, Southwest parking lot and Amherst College at Converse Hall.

Dancing — There is International Folkdancing at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst every Friday, 8 – 10 p.m. Greek, Bulgarian, Turkish, American, former Yugoslavian, Armenian, Israeli, Hungarian, French ... teaching at all levels, beginners welcome. For more information, call Eva and Gene, 549–6748 or Cindy and Dennis, 323-6330.

Health — Worried about HIV/AIDS? Call 1–800–750–2016. The Family Planning Council's HIV Hotline counselors can tell you whether or not you are at risk for contacting HIV, how you can protect yourself from contracting the virus, where, when and how to get a free, anonymous HIV antibodies test at over 70 sites throughout the state.

Health — The Family Planning Council Tobacco Cessation Project offers free, confidential individual & group counseling/support to smokers trying to quit. Variety of methods including "the patch." Call Lynne at 1–800–698– 7752.

Domestic Exchange — The Domestic Exchange Office will be holding information sessions on Tuesdays and Wednesdays throughout November and December in Campus Center Room 811, from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. For more information, contact the Domestic Exchange Office, E– 26 Machmer Hall, 545-5351.

fugative

continued from page 1

into a truck driven by Joseph Furtado, of Montague, on Route 9 near the Quabbin Reservoir on Nov. 8, 1994. Furtado's son, Justin, 5, was killed in the fiery crash. Furtado, 30, died after being hospitalized for 17 days.

Ross said investigators believed Gierkie-Goldberg, who had been on probation for a 1993 drunken driving conviction at the time of the fatal crash, fled to the Ukraine shortly before her indictment in February.

He said police staked out her parents' home after receiving a tip that she had returned within the past few days and had been spotted at a shopping mall.

When she failed to return from a February vacation in Russia, her husband, Rubin Goldberg, 76, of Belchertown, said he filed for divorce.

Barbara Griffin, president of the local chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, said the case prompted the organization to press for a state law requiring suspects in drunken driving cases to surrender their passports.

Furtado's sister, Helen Williams of Montague, said the family was relieved by the arrest.

"They think because they have money they're not punishable and that's not true," Williams said. "Last Christmas was awful. At least this will help a little."

Shortly before the crash, Furtado had borrowed the truck to move furniture from the town of Florida home of his mother, who had recently died, she said. His wife, Jean, had been following the truck in a car.

When police arrived on the scene they found the critically burned man on the side of the road holding his dead son in his arms.

Los Amigos

continued from page 1

She collects addresses to keep in touch with volunteers during breaks. Taft will return to Los Amigos next semester since she enjoys the meetings.

"Karoke night was fun for everyone because not many people have done it," said Jennifer Bjornson, a senior Biology major.

Bjornson's interview was interrupted when Amherst resident and group participant Robert Fisher serenaded her. Fisher, the clown of Los Amigos, brought his guitar to liven up the party.

"Bowling night is definitely the best activity," said participant Lee Williams of Amherst. Williams, has been in Boltwood for over 10 years, and, sporting a 98 average, is the group's best bowler.

"At first I was a little intimidated by the participants, but I learned that they are regular people who are fun to be around," Bjornson said.

The University of Massachusetts

Daily Collegian

-Keeping you informed-

Tournament Schedule

Game	Team	Venue	Location	Time
December 26, '95	Czech v. Russia	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Finland v. Switz	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10 pm
	Sweden v. Slovak	Centrum	Worcester	1:10pm
	Opening Ceremonies	Centrum	Worcester	6:00pm
	USA v. Canada	Centrum	Worcester	7:40pm
Dec. 27	Slovakia v. Russia	Matthews Arena	Boston	1:10pm
	USA v. Ukraine	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:10pm
	Czech v. Germany	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Switz. v. Canada	Mullins Center	Amherst	7:10pm
Dec. 28	Germany v. Slovakia	Matthews Arena	Boston	2:10pm
	Ukraine v. Finland	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:10pm
Dec. 29	Slovakia v. Czech	Matthews Arena	Boston	1:10pm
	Canada v. Finland	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:40pm
	Russia v. Sweden	Civic Center	Springfield	2:10pm
	USA v. Switz.	Civic Center	Springfield	7:10pm
Dec. 30	Germany v. Slovakia	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	12:10pm
	Ukraine v. Switz.	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	5:10pm
Dec 31	Sweden v. Czech	Matthews Arena	Boston	12:10pm
	Canada v. Ukraine	Matthews Arena	Boston	5:40pm
	Finland v. USA	Mullins Center	Amherst	12:10pm
	Russia v. Germany	Mullins Center	Amherst	5:10pm
January 1, '96	Qualifying Rd.	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Qualifying Rd.	Mullins Center	Amherst	5:10pm
Jan. 2	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10pm
	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	7:10pm
Jan. 3	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10pm
	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	7:10pm
	SEMIFINAL	Conte Forum	Boston	3:40pm
	SEMIFINAL	Conte Forum	Boston	7:40pm

Game	Team	Venue	Location	Time
Jan 4	5th/6th Place Game	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	12:10pm
	Bronze Medal Game	Conte Forum	Boston	3:40 pm
	Gold Medal Game	Conte Forum	Boston	7:40pm

1996 WORLD JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP

MASSACHUSETTS, USA

THE COLLEGIAN "CATCH THE EXCITEMENT" TICKET GIVEAWAY! 50 UMASS STUDENTS AND THEIR CLOSEST FRIEND AND/OR ANY LOCAL COMMUNITY MEMBERS MAY SEE THE NEXT WAYNE GRETZKY PLAY IN THE WORLD JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIPS! ENTRY FORM BELOW...

Tickets also available at TICKETMASTER (617) 931-2000

Ticketmaster phone orders, outlet stores and venues will begin sales November 3, 1995

Mobil

MASSACHUSETTS SPORTS PARTNERSHIP

BLOOM'S BUSINESS SYSTEMS

Gretzky, Lemieux, Lindros, Leetch, Roenick, Fedorov, Bure, Jagr, Kariya, Tkachuk, Forsberg, Carey, Who's Next?

The Massachusetts DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • (413) 545-1592

- Catch the excitement... Liven up your holidays with GREAT Hockey Action.
- Win tickets to see World Junior Hockey Action at any of the MA locations.
- Enter today! The Collegian has 50 pairs of tickets to draw and give away.
- Drop off or mail entry forms to the Collegian office in the Campus Center today.
- Drawings will be held @ 3:30 p.m. Thursday, December 14, 1995

Collegian staff or family members not eligible

CONTEST ENTRY FORM

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____

Location of Game Preferred _____

Breast pumps offer mothers a convenient, helpful option

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Correspondent

The Childbirth Center at Cooley Dickinson Hospital now offers a device helpful to many mothers with young infants. Portable electric Lactina breast pumps, which allow mothers to pump and refrigerate beneficial breast milk while separated from their babies are available for rental.

Mother's breast milk is beneficial since it is "the food our bodies designed to feed our children," said Childbirth Center nurse manager Carolyn Szafranski, adding that trace elements found in breast milk are not duplicated in formula.

"It is the best nutritional food," she said.

Manufactured by Medela, breast pumps can be rented for $2.50 daily, $17.50 weekly, $50 per month, $130 per three months or $190 per six months. The person must buy the breast pump tubing components and make a small deposit at the time of rental.

The Lactina breast pump is available with either the single pumping system or the double pumping system that elevates the hormone prolactin responsible for increasing mother's milk supply.

The Childbirth Center also sells manual breast pumps for $25, and mini-electric breast pumps using batteries or wall current for $60.

Szafranski said she considers Lactina breast pumps as "most efficient" among available breast pumps at The Childbirth Center and recommends its rental. Besides the low rental cost, the Lactina breast pump is easily transportable with a weight of only three and one-half pounds, she said.

Mother can refrigerate the breast milk in a refrigerator or in a cooler with ice. The breast milk should be frozen within 24 hours or used within 48 hours after refrigeration, Szafranski recommended.

With many women returning to work two to four months after delivery, breast-feeding usually lasts from one week to nine months, Szafranski said. In trying to help mothers returning to work, she said the Childbirth Center is "trying to offer help to people and trying to help to get them set up on pumps."

Szafranski believes that the large response from local residents for breast pump rentals is due to "the majority of women going back to work either part–time or full–time," especially for economic reasons.

Along with renting breast pumps, the Childbirth Center offers breast feeding information through classes with a lactation consultant for $10, by booking individual appointments with a lactation consultant, or receiving information when picking up the breast pump.

For more information on breast pump rentals, call The Childbirth Center at 582–2127 or 582–2062 for class information.

Supreme Court orders charities to return money

By Richard Caralli
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Seven religious charities will be forced to return nearly $500,000 in donations from a convicted stock swindler — virtually all of it already spent — after losing a Supreme Court appeal Monday.

The justices, acting without comment, turned away an appeal in which the charities' lawyers predicted a "devastating impact" on charities nationwide.

Monday's action, while not a ruling on the merits of the charities' appeal, nevertheless was a significant defeat for the seven charities. They had argued they should be shielded from having to return money they received from Michael Douglas, described in court documents as mastermind of a Ponzi investment scheme.

Douglas, a former Chicago salesman, was sentenced to 12 years in federal prison for creating corporations that sold limited partnerships and promised huge profits to investors.

EMILY REILY/COLLEGIAN

It's that time of year again

Undeclared freshman Sean Wallace spends quality time in the library Monday afternoon to conduct research for an upcoming paper.

DISCOVER new worlds

WRAP UP YOUR SEMESTER With Great Holiday Pricing On IBM PC's And ThinkPads®

Get the Right Start Call 1-800-4 IBM LOAN (1-800-442-6562) For Special Financing

Come to The University Store Monday - Friday 9:00AM - 5:00PM Phone: 545-2619

Monday - Friday 9 am - 5 pm Saturday 11 am - 3 pm

UNIVERSITY STORE

IBM.

Attention all current, former and future CARTOONISTS:

The Managing Editor's desk is over run with dozens of student comics that have already run in the Collegian. If you want to keep your cartoons please come by the Collegian and pick them up. There is a file in the Cartoonist's Mailbox for you to go through.

All student comics that have not been claimed will be thrown out one week after the last day of the great scores... get a higher score KAPLAN

LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT

Kaplan helps you focus your test prep studies and your confidence, so you can get a higher score.

Voted BEST in the Valley

FAMOUS FOR 2 BURGS 2 BUCKS

PETE'S

ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA YEAR 'ROUND

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor
Daymion Smith Photography Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor

Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Rosario Navarro Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Vigor Hic became the College Signal in 1903, the Weekly Collegian in 1914, and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

My day to remember

Tara MK Connelly

"Are you crying? I never want to see you cry."

These were the last words my father said to me before he died. I think they are the ones that stick out most in my mind. To complete the cliche, I wasn't there when my father died either — I was here, moving up my final exams. I was a freshman, I was lonely, I hated UMass, the list is endless.

Three days beforehand I was called at 10 p.m. by my brother saying he was coming to get me, and it didn't look good. I got home at three in the morning. I remember standing in the hospital room illuminated by a single light over his bed. He looked awful. He looked like he was going to die.

But he made it. And he was able to see for a few minutes past his drug induced haze long enough to say "hi" and tell me not to cry. I left that afternoon hoping to move up my finals and get home early. The day before my first exam I came home to a voice mail message from my brother.

"Tara, Dad died. I'm coming to get you." click

My father was diagnosed with cancer in April of 1992. By the time they tried to operate, it had spread throughout most of his body. He wasn't expected to live past Thanksgiving — but he did and Christmas too, in fact it was an entire year later before he died. I watched him go from 6-foot-3, 200 lbs to 6-foot-0, nothing. My sister could have picked him up.

I knew he was going to die. He knew he was going to die. I watched him write out the directions for his funeral. I saw his struggle through with fear of dying and for the first time in my life I saw him cry when the doctor confirmed his worse fears.

Today is his birthday. He would have been 63. As always it's someone who has been yanked from your life suddenly — our mind somehow manages to convince you that they aren't really gone, merely someplace else.

My father loved to hunt. In fact after a week in Bermuda my dad decided to continue his honeymoon with my mother in Maine — hunting. So, when I begin having trouble remembering he wasn't coming back I'd merely think he was hunting. But then came the day last summer when I actually went to Maine to visit our cabin and yes, he wasn't there. So that kind of blew apart my whole disillusionment.

My father was a staunch Irish-Catholic, middle-class working man. His creed was that anything good in life is earned and that education was the most important thing to possess. He was brilliant, having earned more degrees and awards than I can count. I can't help but wonder if I wasn't adopted would I have inherited any of his genetic brilliance. But I think what I missed through biology I gained through love and admiration. I have his abrupt way of speaking, his sarcastic humor, his love of books and ability to remember an endless array of trivia.

I did not cry at my father's wake or at his funeral. I do remember walking behind his casket with my brother after the services and hearing my mother and sister cry, and seeing my brother try really hard not to. I remember the pain in my right hand as my brother squeezed the living daylights out of it. Maybe I didn't cry because he was hurting my hand, or maybe I didn't because he told me not to.

People got freaked out when I didn't cry. My friend begged me to. But grief, as I learned, has many forms and I was just experiencing one of them. Stoic, silent, whatever — but I felt it was more important to be there for my mother and siblings than wailing away in misery.

Every year on his birthday we would pick up a Christmas tree and decorate it. My brother, sister and I would jump into his truck and go from lot to lot holding out trees for him to pick. Then we'd strap it onto the roof, go home and listen to him swear as he'd struggle to get it into the house. Then another 15 minutes would be spent putting it in the stand, and another 30 devoted to the dreaded lights.

Today my family is probably home right now getting a tree and decorating it. They will put it in its stand, string up the lights, and the conversation will consist of, "Remember the year when dad ..."

I won't be there. I haven't been for the last two years and, I find myself drifting further and further away from them. Not by choice, but by time and circumstances and the adjustments people make after suffering a significant loss. This is my last year here at UMass. My father got to see me graduate form high school, but he won't be able to see the fruits of his hard work — he won't get to see me graduate from college, or get married or even have a family.

But like he always said, "Life is made of good and bad and it is up to us not to let the bad get to us." So, even though I am getting a little misty eyed, I won't cry and I won't let it get to me. I'm writing this because I think he needs to be remembered today, not because I want pity or for people to feel bad for me. (Although an extra credit point from my professors would be nice) I'm kidding — there's that humor again.

"Happy Birthday, Dad. Thanks for everything."

Tara MK Connelly is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Staff needs to start cooperating

To the Editor:

Not long ago I submitted a letter pointing out that classified staff were being offered a significantly lower percentage increase in pay than the faculty and professional staff. Since then, many others have written protesting the obvious unfairness of offering a lower percent increase to lower paid employees. Econ 101: Merely flat percentage taxes or pay increases for all incomes are often labeled "regressive" because the tax is a greater real burden as you go down the income scale and the pay increase a greater real increase as you go up. This isn't bleeding heart liberal stuff. Both Dick Armey's and Malcom Forbes' flat tax plans exempt about the first $30,000 of income. Everybody on Social Security gets the same cost of living increase. Some socialists like Paul Tsongas and Newt Gingrich would actually like to see this entitlement means-tested, that is, the percent return actually go down as you go up the income scale. Just plain flat seems minimally fair.

However, since this initial outburst of dismay, it has become clear that the comparison of the increases being offered the washed and the unwashed is not a simple 10-14 percent versus 5 percent in base pay. It is complicated by the fact that the faculty and professional contracts are for the period of fiscal year 96 through FY 98 while the classified contracts are for the period FY 95 through FY 97.

So, for FY 95, classified staff get this one time bonus of about $500 before taxes when faculty and professional staff get nothing. For FY 96 and FY 97 combined, classified staff get a 5.5 percent increase in base pay, while faculty and professional staff get an average base increase of 7.25 and 6.75 percent respectively. For FY 98, classified staff will have no agreement until the next contract is negotiated while faculty and professional staff are both guaranteed an average base increase of 6.25 percent.

In other words, classified staff gets 500 bucks in exchange for no certainty about a FY 98 in which faculty and professional staff are flush. There is an additional uncertainty about the effect of having to bargain the next contract without the leadership and greater visibility of faculty and professional staff. These are major concessions. The least we should expect are percentage increases that are flat.

This University is going to be turned upside down in the next few years. The only way we're going to survive this period with the least pain is by getting it right. Getting it right requires the cooperation of all staff. This is not a good start.

Michael Hart
University Health Services

Poem is a filter for complaints

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to Hugh Collins' poem "They Say Everything But Do Nothing." I would like to know what you have personally done for this country that makes you think it owes you a damn thing. My guess is probably nothing. Please don't even mention slavery. That debt was paid in blood long ago in places like Gettysburg, Shiloh and Andersonville. This is a free country with the opportunity for success. What you make of that chance depends on how hard you want to work for it.

An education is a very important step in becoming successful but I don't want to hear you crying about financial aid being cut. Did it occur to you that you could earn your way through college? There are plenty of people who do that, or am I violating your rights by asking this. When I graduated high school, I couldn't afford to go to college. I gave up five years of my life to the U. S. Army so I could pay for my education. I couldn't start college 'til I was 23, but at least I know that everything I have in this world I earned through honest hard work.

You wrote you couldn't go to Harvard or Princeton because you were black. Look at how you write, ex: "Cause him have no power." I think the reason you can't go to Harvard is a case of illiteracy more than racism. That could also explain why you can only get a job as a clerk.

As for prisons, if you can't obey the laws of society you forfeit the right of citizenship. This is a free country, but freedom isn't free. Each citizen has duties and responsibilities to the nation. These include following the laws, being a productive member of society, voting and defending national interests in a time of need. For performing these duties and responsibilities you receive the freedoms of an American citizen. I've read the Constitution many times, I have never seen the amendment that gives you the right to a free ride.

If you want to go somewhere in this world you have to work hard at it. For example if you are in a race and you are not in the lead, you either run faster or you lose. If you wait for the lead runner to slow down to your speed, you will be waiting for a long time. When I was younger, my parents would tell me "If you want to be treated like an adult, act like an adult." If you want to be treated equal, stand up and act equal. Acting equal does not include handouts and quotas. If you want to be successful, go out and earn the success you desire. If you are not up to the challenge, at least do your crying and complaining at home so I don't have to listen to it.

One last point. You wrote, "This country is bad news." If you don't like it, you are free to leave. There are no walls, fences or barbed wire holding you back. Maybe you can find a country more to your liking.

Kirk James Macolini
Sylvan

Education is not American dream

To the Editor:

I'm writing in regard to a column which I came across in the Daily Collegian on Dec. 4, which was titled, "Republicans are stealing the American dream." Being a Republican myself, I decided that if someone was going to take a shot at my party that I should do something about it. Matthew Wurtzel, the writer of this nonsense, needs to reconsider his harsh words, and remember exactly what the "American dream" is all about.

I'm only the second member of my family to attend college (my brother was the first). Neither one of my parents has a college degree, but they have something which is much more important. They are hard workers. In Wurtzel's column he points out that to obtain the "American dream" today you need not only a bachelor's degree, but you also need both parents working. This assumption holds about as much weight as my four-year-old sister can bench press. The "American dream" isn't about a degree from college, it's about a lot of effort and a little bit of luck.

Wurtzel and the rest of his Democrats are blaming the Republicans for balancing the budget in a way which is unfair to society. However, if the budget doesn't get balanced this country has no future. Democrats want to take money from people who earn it and give it to those who don't. I'm glad that Republicans are finally putting a stop to needless spending of our country's tax dollars.

We have been far too generous for far too long. It's about time somebody put their foot down before it's too late. America can't continue to spend money it doesn't have. Let's start making people earn a living again and stop giving out free rides.

Jim Cooley
Southwest

Opinion/Editorial

I SUPPOSE THE PAUSE BUTTON SOLVES THIS FOR ONLY SO LONG.
The Great Train Wreck Dec. 19
I WONDER IF THE 'EJECT' BUTTON IS CONNECTED TO MY SEAT
TOLES
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND
©1995 THE BUFFALO NEWS

If only I were Santa Claus

I know this is a stretch, but if by chance I was given the opportunity to play Santa Claus for the upcoming holiday season, there are many different gifts I would bestow on deserving people around the world.

If I was Santa Claus, the first thing I would do would be to give each and every American soldier keeping the peace in Bosnia a safe passage home. While there are many different opinions as to whether or not we belong there, the fact remains these young men are stationed in a place they know little about and probably care less about. With some bad luck, Bosnia could develop into a situation resembling Vietnam. What we need least right now is another war and a number of American casualties. Hopefully, no shots will be fired, and we'll never realize the true danger our presence there could be.

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give the people of the United States universal health coverage. With the best doctors and facilities in the world, it really is a shame we're one of the last Western countries without such a plan.

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give every surviving member of the Beatles enough money so they'll never again have to degrade themselves like they did last month. Trying to raise John Lennon from the dead and releasing material that should never have seen the light of day is not the answer. They were, and still are, one of the greatest rock bands of all time, and each time they pull a stunt like last month's three ring circus, they lose some of the prestige that made them the best.

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give every child born a set of loving parents, a healthy diet and a chance to make it in this world. I'd also give every student a chance to continue his or her education in a decent college or university — for free.

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give William Bulger overwhelming success in his first few months as the President of the UMass System. The poor guy hasn't even taken office and there is already tons of criticism about his being appointed. He gets things done and has already shown a commitment to education. That, in my book, is enough for him to at least have a shot at making things better for us out here. In time, he could be the best thing that ever happened to this University.

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give Marcus Camby the National Player of the Year award early. I'd also make him one of the first picks in the draft, giving him a lucrative NBA contract. This guy just loves to play basketball. You can see it on his face as he runs the court. He's given us some of the best basketball we've seen in these parts, and it's time we stop hogging him. With his talent, he'll have no problem making us proud on a bigger and brighter stage.

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give every child born a set of loving parents, a healthy diet and a chance to make it in this world. I'd also give every student a chance to continue his or her education in a decent college or university — for free.

Mark McGrath

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give Colin Powell second thoughts about his decision not to run for President in 1996. Powell gave us, if only for a short while, the hope of a President who wouldn't play slave to party politics, and who could be a strong leader to carry us into the 21st century. How often do you see that?

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give Toy Story at least a nomination for best picture. It's a movie that's pleasing to both kids and adults, and I haven't yet bumped into anyone who didn't love it.

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give Newt Gingrich and Bob Dole each a swift kick in the behind. God knows they could use it.

If I was Santa Claus, I'd give myself a 4.0.

Unfortunately, I don't look good in red, and I probably couldn't identify a real, live reindeer if you stuck it in my face. My "ho-ho-ho" is greeted with a chorus of "ha-ha-ha." So, if you know who the real guy is, could you give him this list? Maybe some of the requests will actually come through. That would be the day.

Mark McGrath is a Collegian columnist.

Paying big bucks to get the boot

The end of the semester is nearly upon us and with that end come the endless hours of sleep-deprived, stress-packed, caffeine-loading, joyous times of studying. It's a time of the semester when this wonderful school of ours should be willing to do anything and everything to make our last days go by without any outside stress interfering. I'm sure I'll get no dissension on that statement. Regardless, for some there is a small matter that has been unnecessarily piled on top of their already nerve-wracking schedule. These are the people who live in the dorms and have a final exam on the last day at 4 p.m.

What, you ask, could be such a problem for these people? Well, how about the time the dorms are closing on Friday — 6 p.m.? Let me see if I've got this straight. There are exams scheduled on Friday at 4 p.m. with a two hour allotment to take the test, and at 6 p.m. the dorms will be closed?

Knock knock ... excuse me, but I believe all of my stuff is still in there and I'd kind of like to get at it ... warden sir.

Now I now you're thinking if there is a problem one can simply contact their residence director and get a little more time to move out. Well, such is not the case, at least not in my dorm it's not. Upon contacting the RD with such a proposition a friend of mine received the response of, and I quote, "the dorms will absolutely close at six."

Hmm ... sounds fair to me ... dictator, that's very communist of you. I mean kind, very kind of you.

No, it doesn't sound the least bit fair. What the hell are we supposed to do, move out ahead of time? Well golly, isn't that just a trifle bit inconvenient when one's time and energy are already rather focused on studying for tests. Which happens to be something that this University ought to view as quite a bit more important than making sure we move out before the gates of hell close.

Let's be reasonable here. Would another hour or two really do such unimaginable damage to the intricate innerworkings of this school's blueprints for success? Somebody must have spilled coffee on those plans to think that getting us out of here virtually before we even have a chance to finish our tests was a good idea. I have a tough time believing somebody somewhere is in such a rush to get somewhere that it can't wait a little longer. Frankly, there's only one person worth seeing so much that it becomes necessary to inconvenience many other people and that's God himself. To be honest with you, I'm in no rush to see him. God can wait, so I'm quite sure someone else can as well.

Let's be reasonable here. Would another hour or two really do such unimaginable damage to the intricate innerworkings of this school's blueprints for success?

Andrew Trodden

I'd like to know when the University policy became more important than the students grades and their well-being. Whoever made up this policy seemed to overlook just how important those are that are affected by it. After all, we're paying their salary. What kind of message does this send to students? Maybe the University doesn't really give a hoot about us, we're all just numbers to them. But send your check to them a little too late and damn skippy they'll know your name.

They don't realize when they come up with something like this absurd closing time they're screwing over real people, not just numbers. Not just real people, but students. Students whom the University could not survive without.

I suppose maybe I have taken for granted somebody in charge has a good grasp on this whole concept we call time. How soon we forget this is the very same school that left many people without a room at the beginning of the semester. Why was that? Check hadn't been cashed? Not their fault, but they suffered the consequences anyway.

I'll put it plainly — money talks and BS walks. I figure that's what this whole time conflict comes down to. Somehow the University is saving money by shutting down the dorms as soon as possible.

I offer it up to those in charge of such further decisions that affect the students in this type of manner to think a little more about what they are doing. Because some day someone with a little more power than them may close the doors on them a little sooner than they would like.

Andrew Trodden is a Collegian columnist.

EMILY REILY/ COLLEGIAN

Santa's little elves

In preparation for Christmas, Kerry Malloy, a freshman History major, creates a stained glass mirror to put under someone's Christmas tree.

~ INTERNATIONAL ~

Clinton, Peres stress peace

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The assassination of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin may spur Syria to make peace, an optimistic President Clinton said Monday. "The atmosphere is better than it was before," he said.

But Shimon Peres, Rabin's successor, refused after a 2 1/2-hour meeting with Clinton to give Syrian President Hafez Assad what he is seeking: a public statement that Israel will relinquish all of the Golan Heights.

"You cannot pin on a single issue," Peres said at a joint news conference with Clinton after their Oval Office session. "We were talking about the Syrian-Israeli peace process in its totality." Clinton talked with the Syrian leader by telephone, and encouraged by a report from U.S. envoy Dennis Ross, who shuttled between Damascus and Jerusalem last week, announced he was sending Secretary of State Warren Christopher to the region.

"Peace is our mission," Clinton declared. "President Assad told me he was committed to do his best to move the peace process forward."

Their conversation lasted 20 minutes, and delayed Clinton's lunch with Peres.

Christopher's main task will be to try to reopen the talks Syria and Israel broke off in Washington in June in a dispute over how to maintain border security after an Israeli withdrawal on the Golan Heights.

Christopher begins his four-day trip Friday in Damascus, Syria, with stops planned in Egypt and Jordan. He also will confer in Jericho with Yasser Arafat, the chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, on the way Israel is surrendering to him control over most of the West Bank.

Peres, like Rabin, is committed to the U.S.-blessed principle that Israel should pull back on all fronts in order to gain the confidence of the Arabs and secure recognition from them. Syria and Lebanon, where a Israeli-backed Arab force guards the border, are the last fronts where Israel has not yielded yet.

Although Peres declined at Monday's news conference to commit himself publicly to giving up all of the Golan, Israeli officials have said privately that Syria could recover all of the strategic enclave if the diplomatic and strategic terms were right.

In Jerusalem, chief Israeli negotiator Itamar Rabinovich said Israel was ready to make significant concessions to the Syrians in exchange for a peace treaty. But he said the Peres government "won't be ready to give the details before it understands in a very exact manner what Syria is ready to give in a possible deal or agreement."

Representatives tour war-torn Sarajevo

By Mark J. Porubcansky
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — He was skeptical at first. But one look at Sarajevo's ruins convinced a California congressman that American soldiers are needed to keep Bosnia's peace.

Republican Rep. Ron Packard, leading a congressional delegation to the former Yugoslavia, wanted to see if it was safe for U.S. troops. He had opposed President Clinton's decision to send 20,000 Americans with the NATO peace-enforcing mission.

After meeting with Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic and touring the war-ravaged capital Monday, Packard changed his mind. "Only once before in my life have I seen devastation like I have seen here. That was in Berlin not too long after the last big war," the 64-year-old politician said. "We want peace to work. If the American troops will help to bring that about, then we will be very supportive of the American troops being here."

In other developments Monday:

Officials worked behind the scenes to obtain the release of two French pilots, after Bosnian Serbs missed France's deadline to disclose the missing men's whereabouts. "There are very serious negotiations taking place as we speak," Packard said.

Serb supporters of the peace agreement took to the streets of Sarajevo to urge fellow Serbs there to end opposition that threatens to wreck the accord.

The congressional delegation followed its meeting with the Bosnian president with a 1 1/2-hour discussion late Monday in Belgrade with Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic. Packard emerged saying he was worried about peace, given Milosevic's vision of postwar Bosnia.

"From other presidents ... it was the sense that there would be an equal balance of power of all factions and therefore no interest in creating a warlike situation, because no one could win it," he said. "We did not hear that tonight" with Milosevic.

As the 15-member delegation gathered information on the safety — and wisdom — of sending U.S. troops, the Senate prepared for a debate Wednesday on whether to back Clinton's plan. The Senate will vote first, and then the House of Representatives.

Regardless of whether Congress approves, American soldiers will be part of the 60,000-strong NATO force to be deployed after Thursday, when Balkan leaders sign an accord in Paris to end 3 1/2 years of war.

A few U.S. Marines have gone to Sarajevo, but most American troops will be based around Tuzla in northwestern Bosnia. Brig. Gen. Sead Delic, commander of Bosnian troops around Tuzla, said his army will do its utmost to ensure the Americans' safety.

Collegian Elections Spring 1996

Voting for all Newsroom editor positions will take place today in the Business Office from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

All Collegian Staff Members are encouraged to come down to 113 Campus Center and vote.

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer

Arts & Living

Patterson's newest novel subtle

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

RICHARD NORTH PATTERSON
The Final Judgement
Alfred A. Knopf Books

The subtlety of Richard North Patterson's writing comes to the forefront in his latest novel, The Final Judgement. Patterson, whose previous novels, Eyes of a Child and Degree of Guilt were best-sellers, returns to the legal arena, blending the elements of law and psychology as only Patterson can do.

Caroline Masters, the efficient and brilliant defense lawyer from Eyes of a Child, is called home suddenly by the family she hasn't seen or heard from in over 20 years. Her niece, Brett, has been accused of murdering her boyfriend and the family wants Caroline to help Brett.

As Caroline heads home to New Hampshire, she is aware that the new controversy in her family could undermine the federal judgeship the president has just nominated her for. She is also afraid of the demons that await her.

First, there's the father, Channing Masters is a powerful man, whose forceful and controlling personality has scarred Caroline's life. Then there is Betty, Caroline's half-sister, who has always resented Caroline. Jackson Watts is Caroline's former fiance and now in prosecuting Brett. And then there is Brett herself.

Brett is 22-years-old, the same age as when Caroline left home, vowing never to return. The girl was intoxicated and stoned when her boyfriend was found dead and isn't quite clear herself on what really happened that night. All evidence points to Brett as the murderer and Caroline finds it hard to believe in the possibility that Brett just might be innocent. While better sense tells Caroline to leave and let her family handle Brett's situation, there is something that compels Caroline to stay and defend Brett, at the risk of losing her nomination.

As Caroline fights to reconcile the past with the present, she is still aware of the frigid currents that run through her family. There comes a point when Caroline doesn't know who she is anymore because what she is learning is so far from what she had assumed about her life and her family.

Once again, Patterson has woven together a tight novel. While the dialogue is a little stilted and formal, the book is overall gripping and intriguing.

The Final Judgement lacks the suspenseful courtroom drama present in the previous novels, but the psychological aspect of the story is much more amplified. The secrets that have destroyed the Masters family are perhaps not as shocking as they are made out to be, but nonetheless explains the why the characters behave as they do.

The Final Judgement is worth reading, if for nothing else, the elegance of Patterson's writing. While the plot has been done before, it doesn't sound as recycled as it could. B

Orchestra delights audience at the FAC

Concert showcased lost works composed by local woman

By Matt Sindair
Collegian Staff

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS ORCHESTRA
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Dec. 10

The Fine Arts Center Concert Hall was host to the University of Massachusetts Orchestra Sunday night. The event was especially significant as a previously lost piece of work by female composer Marion Bauer from South Hadley was performed.

The program made use of a large orchestra that included everything from Chinese wood blocks and the xylophone. Internationally recognized vocal soloist Professor Jon Humphrey also lent his talent to the concert.

The concert performed works from the Baroque to the 20th century, including such hallowed composers as Beethoven and Buxtehude to the more contemporary composers such as Benjamin Britten and Marion Bauer.

The concert, conducted by Fredric T. Cohen, opened with "Four Chorale Preludes" by Dietrich Buxtehude (1637- 1707). Gelobet seist du, Jesu Christ (Praise Be to Thee, O Jesus Christ) and Wie schon leuchtet der Morgenstern (How Brightly Beams the Morning Star), were large, illustrious fantasias; the other two – Puer natus in Bethlehem (Infant Born in Bethlehem) and Nun komm, der Heiden Heiland (Come Thou Redeemer of the Nations), were slower, more intimate works.

The second section, composed by Benjamin Britten (1913– 1976), was "Nocturne, Op. 60" and was an exploration of the dreaming process. The composer himself once stated that the piece, "won't be madly popular because it is the strangest and remotest thing — but then dreams are strange and remote." The author also recognized how dreams can release powerful emotions and thoughts, hence the reasoning behind his decision to include excerpts from Shakespeare, Tennyson, Shelley, Wordsworth, Keats, Coleridge and Middleton. These text excerpts were sung by tenor Jon Humphrey.

After the intermission, the previously lost work, titled "Sun Splendor," by Marion Bauer (1887–1955) was performed. This piece calls for a large orchestra and was originally written for piano in 1926 when Bauer was commissioned to write it for a recital in New York City's Town Hall. The theme of this piece is nature and it would have originally been grouped with the likes of Debussy's "Garden in the Rain," Faru's "Clair de Lute", Ravel's "Jeux d'eau" and Griffes' "Clouds."

Who was Bauer? She was professor of music at New York University, author of a number of books on music and active member on the Board of Director for the League of Composers and also the Board of Governors of the American Composers' Alliance. She was born in Walla Walla, Washington in 1887, attended school in Portland, Oregon and studied music in New York City, France and Germany. Her mentors include the likes of Nadia Boulanger and Paul Ertel and her work reflects this influence.

Conductor Fredric Cohen uncovered this piece after playing some chamber music by Bauer last year. He was instantly drawn to this composer and, knowing that Bauer had lived in South Hadley with Mount Holyoke College history professor Harrison Potter, he explored the rare book collection at the college and finally uncovered the lost piece — "Sun Splendor."

The concert climaxed with a piece from by far the most famous composer — Ludwig van Beethoven (1770–1827). It was "Symphony No. 2 in D major, Op. 36" and was powerfully and intensely performed. The concert had been enjoyed by the supportive audience and the UMass Orchestra will be performing again this week with Handel's "Messiah" tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

Auster discusses latest film and books

By Robin Eisner
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Novelist-turned-screenwriter Paul Auster discovered some similarities between writing and acting when his career took a serendipitous sidetrip into filmmaking.

"When you are writing a novel, you are projecting yourself into imaginary people," he says. "You are impersonating them, trying to understand them. That's just what an actor does."

Making the films Smoke and Blue in the Face got Auster out of his writing studio and working with other people, something he hadn't done before.

Auster, 48, who has written eight novels considers himself primarily a novelist, one who writes about "what it feels like to live inside your head.

"These characters start bobbing up to the surface inside of me," he said. "They start to intrigue me, haunt me. I keep thinking about them and follow them in my mind before I start writing a book.

"Then finishing the book is a mournful experience. It's not joyous the way people think. You come to the end of a long journey and you have taken it with all these characters. You put so much of yourself into it ... and suddenly it's gone."

Auster acknowledges that his novels are intellectual and sometimes "dark," inspired by college English classes and by reading his "friends" — Montaigne, Cervantes, Thoreau, Whitman and Melville.

Filmmaking brought out a lighter side of him, he said. Laurel and Hardy, W.C. Fields, The Marx Brothers and Buster Keaton also qualify as "friends."

Wearing a black T-shirt, black jeans and a denim shirt, Auster was revising the printed version of the screenplay Blue in the Face. The book, published by Hyperion, came out before the final edits in the movie were made.

Both his movies were made with Wayne Wang, the director of The Joy Luck Club. The first, Smoke, grew out of an Ed-Op piece Auster wrote for The New York Times on Christmas 1990 called "Auggie Wren's Christmas Story."

Written in the first person, it describes how a friend, Auggie Wren, a cigar store clerk and amateur photographer, got his first camera: He stole it from a blind woman he visited one Christmas Eve in order to return the wallet of her grandson, who had lost it stealing something from Wren's shop. The woman mistakes Wren for her grandson and invites him to share Christmas dinner with her. Afterward she falls asleep. Wren sees a bunch of cameras in the bathroom, believes they are stolen and takes one for himself.

Wang liked the ethical ambiguity of the tale and its hint of verisimilitude. He asked Auster to adapt the story for a film. In the movie, each of the characters confronts feelings of loss — the writer for his dead wife, a boy for his father who abandoned him, a woman for her drug-addicted daughter, and Wren for money – and how their lives intersect at the cigar store. Harvey Keitel plays Auggie Wren.

Blue in the Face is set in the same cigar store but was shot in just six days and essentially was improvised. Wang and Auster provided scenarios to Roseanne, Lily Tomlin, Michael J. Fox, Jim Jarmusch and Keitel. While the camera was rolling, the characters they played talked until they were "blue in the face."

"Blue in the Face is not the typical thing people are used to seeing," Auster admitted. "It was made with a sense of anarchy and fun and letting things happen.

"What interests me about the movie, is that in virtually every scene there is conflict. Everyone is angry at everyone else. Black against white. Woman against man. And yet for all this tension and arguing going on, there is a warmth, a vitality. ... It's refreshing, a kind of modern-day vaudeville."

Auster started out wanting to be a poet, worked as a translator and published some poetry books. He admits he once wrote a detective novel to try and make money but it didn't. He won't reveal its name.

During his late 20s and early 30s, he wanted to write fiction but every time he tried, Auster said, he felt as if he was "imitating his elders, going over ground other people had gone over." He eventually stopped caring about that.

"I understood that whatever I had to contribute I was going to do it my own way. And if I pushed myself as hard as I could into the truth, it would come out my own."

The book reflecting this transition is The Invention of Solitude (1982). One half of the book is a memoir about closing up the home of his father who had died in 1979. Auster describes his father's isolation and detached personality and the boyhood trauma which shaped his life: the killing of Auster's grandfather by his grandmother.

Auster and his father never discussed that murder and he is reticent to discuss his father now. He realizes male-to-male relationships are important themes in his books, but said, "if I really understood why I am doing the things I do, I probably wouldn't have to do them."

"I tend not to think of my life in psychoanalytic terms," Auster said. "My wife is always amazed at how dense I am. She makes fun of me. Every once in a while, though, retroactively, I will understand why I wrote something but I rarely understand it at the time that I write it."

In Leviathan, (1992) the book's presumed author writes the story of a friend who recently died in a bomb explosion; ultimately the author takes up terrorism. The book hints at the impotence of the writer.

"You sit alone in a room all day and you are absolutely useless," said Auster. "The world is charging past you and you are having no affect on it.

"Maybe the book (Leviathan) emerged from those feelings. I am not sitting here smugly saying that I am doing the right thing. There are other ways to live. I am just doing what I have to do for me."

Bluegrass band's varied music and humor featured in concert

By Bryan C. Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

CHESAPEAKE
Bowker Auditorium
Dec. 8

Last Thursday evening, Chesapeake brought their bluegrass rhythms and sounds to Bowker Auditorium. The band's acoustical tradition and unusual instrumentation delighted the audience.

An hour before the start of the show, Chesapeake played for about 30 students in the Lively Arts class. The band played three songs and answered questions about the instrumentation and musical influences. Many of the students in the class stayed for the performance.

The band consists of: Dobro and steel guitar legend Mike Auldridge, Jimmy Gaudreau on mandolin, vocals, T. Michael Coleman on bass and vocals with Moondi Klein on lead vocals, guitar and piano.

Klein said, "We love doing this kind of thing."

The band played for over two hours combining bluegrass, folk, funk and even opera. At several points during the show the audience would spontaneously erupt in clapping during an intricate pattern of notes.

The band played old western swing songs like "My Window Faces The South" and "Black Jack Davy."

Coleman remarked that "we love to take old songs and rearrange

turn to BAND, page 10

WINTER INTERSESSION 1996

Make Your Winter Break Really Count!

Credit Courses (3 credits) available in:
- Liberal Arts
- Sciences
- Mathematics
- Computers
- Social Sciences
- Management
- Music

*Cost: $1110/undergraduate credit

December 27 - January 12

Don't put your education on ice this Winter Break - enroll in UMass Lowell's Winter Intersession. This highly concentrated session is perfect if you want to earn college credit to get ahead in your educational program. If you're enrolled in another university, it's a great way to earn transfer credits!

Day Classes: Mon - Sat 9:00am - 12 noon
Evening Classes: Mon - Fri, 6:00pm - 9:00pm; Sat 1:00pm-4:00pm

For a Winter Intersession Course Bulletin, call the Division of Continuing Education/Office of Enrollment Services at (508) 934-2480. Or just fill out the coupon below and mail it to: University of Massachusetts Lowell, Office of Enrollment Services/DCE, One University Avenue, Lowell, MA 01854-2881.

Name
Address
City
Phone ( )
State
Zip
Institution Currently Attending

UMASS LOWELL
Continuing Education

UMass Lowell is an Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Title IX, H/V, ADA 1990 University

Open Forum

The Campus Center/Student Union Commission invites you to an open forum. Come and share your ideas and suggestions that you may have to improve the current bulletin board system within the campus center/student union complex. All members of the campus community are invited to attend and participate.

DATE: TUESDAY DECEMBER 12, 1995

PLACE: CAMPUS CENTER Rm. 165-69

TIME: 7:00 PM

Alpha Lambda Delta Honor Society
Presents

JOHN BELUSHI DAN AYKROYD
THE BLUES BROTHERS

December 17, 7:30pm
Campus Center Auditorium - Free to Everyone!
Sponsored by The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967

Giving tips for the perfect gifts for your loved one

The fine art of gift giving is lost to most around the holiday season. In fact most people end up giving a receiving gifts that are last minutes "oh I need something" type deal.

The most important thing to remember about gift giving is care. Care, and the time to truly consider why you are giving what you are giving to that special someone.

Are you giving it because every year you get something for each other? Are you giving it because they gave you something last year and you didn't? Or are you giving it because you truly want that person to receive a gift reflective of you feelings for them?

Women are hard to shop for. But to be truthful, for them it's the thought that counts. Men often subscribe to the fact that more is better. More beer, more sports channel, more — well you know. But women are big on sentimentality. Why else would they keep the corsage from their junior prom or their very first doll? These are cherished memories that they like to dust off every so often to reflect their lives and remember the good and bad times.

That is not to say that some men don't want sentimentality, but for all intent and purposes — when was the last time a guy purchased a hope chest to store away his junior prom boutonniere? Women want something that says, "I care" and more importantly "I listen." That means that if they mention they're suddenly are interested in cooking you don't buy them a set of pots, you enroll them in a cooking school or get them a cook book autographed by Julia Childs.

If you must get lingerie, get something they'd like. Sexy is also feeling comfortable, not having a thong and tassels impending your every move.

Tara MK Connelly

If you must get lingerie, get something they'd like. Sexy is also feeling comfortable, not having a thong and tassels impending your every move. Lace and straps are nice for about five seconds, but don't expect them to be wearing them to class. Need a him? Look at what she already has and take it from there. To be honest, sometimes plain cotton underwear is a girl's best friend. It covers, it's comfortable and it doesn't slide. Think about your favorite boxers and you'll relate.

Clothes follows the same principal. Look at what she has and what she likes. If you need a size, but don't want to spoil the surprise read the tags inside the clothes. A sales person can only help if they know what size the she is. And no, holding you hands apart at different distances does not qualify as sizing. If you're still stuck ask one of her friends to go or get her a gift certificate to her favorite store and offer to help her use it.

Perfume is another big guy thing. They'll walk into a department store, get mobbed by five different sales people, leave smelling like twelve different perfumes and end up buying something called, "Rooster" because it was the last thing someone showed at him.

First does she even wear perfume? Second what type of person is she? What does she like to do? What type of scents does she like? You do not get someone who likes the outdoors tea roses and you do not get someone that likes books and Laura Ashley pine trees.

Also, sometimes the body lotion or the eau de toilette is cheaper than the perfume, but lighter in scent because there is less oils involved. Confused? Ask questions. Think before you leap and don't let some over zealous sales person harass you into getting something just because it's easy.

The same principals apply to jewelry. Does she wear it? What does she like? If you are going to hand over the bucks be sure it's something she'll enjoy, not something you like. Don't get silver if she likes gold and don't get a lot if she only wears a ring or earrings once in a while. Like clothes, look at what she's got already and take it from there.

Pick out something unusual, something maybe that they have been dying to try, but never had the time. If they are interested in painting by them art supplies, if they always wanted to learn to ride a horse, get them a horse back riding lesson. Yes, these things can be expensive. So what about little things that won't stretch your budget?

By them a photo album filled with picture of the two of you doing fun things. Make a tape with all your favorite songs, or make a memory tape consisting of songs reminding you of things you did together. That long road trip in the fall, the first song you heard on the radio etc.

You could always take them out to dinner but how about a picnic in their room with all the romantic trimmings. Maybe you could compile a list of all the things you do that annoy her and pledge to try to improve. That not only shows that you are aware that you are doing annoying things, but also shows you listen to her when she points

turn to GIFTS, page 10

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN Mon-Sat 8a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692

Wind Down With These Super Specials At SCOTT'S
Thank You For Your Patronage
Open Sunday 12-6

Jim Beam $12.99 1.75 liter
Natural Light $8.29 +dep 24 - 12oz. Cans
Jack Daniels Cocktails $3.49 4 Pack
Hornsbys Draft Cider $4.99 6 Pack
JW Dundee Honey Brown $3.99 +dep 6 Pack Btls
Lowenbreau $6.99 +dep 12 Pack Btls
Captain Morgan Spiced Rum $15.99 1.75 Liter

BUD & BUD LIGHT BEER BALLS $19.99 +DEP

Tele-Check for your personal check

Check Out Our Other Great In Store Specials
6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst
Now open Sundays 12-5 until 1996

Refers Alumni Stadium University Drive SCOTTS Victory Market

Great Gifts
Bags Stocking Stuffers Hats
Jewelry Natural Fiber Scarves
Blouses Skirts Dresses

Sale
20 to 50% off selected Clothing

The Mercantile
Weeknights 9PM Dec. 7-22
Sun 12-5
Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St.
Amherst-Carriage Shops

Standard equipment for the ends of the earth.

Expedition System® Mountain Jacket

SALE ON ALL NORTH FACE PARKAS!

WILDWATER OUTFITTERS
451 Russell St. (Route 9) Across from Stop & Shop • Hadley, MA
(413) 253-5500

Holiday Greetings from
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Learning to appreciate the dog

Wendy Darling

Taffy was beautiful,
Taffy was sweet,
Taffy came to my house,
Taffy was my brother's.

She arrived on Christmas Eve the year I started second grade, a present for my older brother Tom, who'd always wanted a dog.

I remember the very first moment she stepped into the house, popping through the front door and heading immediately for the people, the food, the fuzzy carpet. She ran around like a puppy in those days, only a year old and with a nose as black as the day she was born.

She was a golden retriever and her fur was long and thick, with long white hair than ran between her legs and all around her tail like a big, silk mop. Her eyes were dark and pretty with fine, brown eyelashes. She smiled at me.

Finally, we had to leave and go to church. Taffy was terrified. My parents decided to put her in the bathroom, just so she wouldn't roam around the house. I don't think Taffy liked small spaces. I think the people who raised her used to lock her up in the closet. They also must have beat her when she was bad. Even when she knew I loved her, she would flinch if I held my hand over her head. She spent the next few hours in the bathroom.

I don't think she was ever so happy as she was the moment we came back. The people! The people! They came back! She had to go outside. She ran into the woods and took the first of many, many trips to the natural toilet. Then she slept, probably upstairs in my parents bedroom on the worn-out, wall-to-wall blue carpeting.

Taffy used to dream at night. She'd be lying on her side in the hall, when all of a sudden she'd start running and whining and barking. Maybe in her dreams she actually caught the squirrels and rabbits she chased in real life. I never understood the way she slept. I used to try and sneak up on her so I could see her with her eyes closed. She always caught me.

I kept wondering what she did during the daytime when everyone was away. Did she sleep or just lay there thinking or was her mind just totally blank? When we left her outside without a leash, did she wander around the neighborhood? Did strangers come over and play with her? I know she used to go over next door and have the little kids feed her boxes of Cheerios, but perhaps that was an isolated incident.

Taffy was a mystery, but I loved her just the same. She had these strange diseases the first few years we had her. All the hair on her chest fell off and her skin turned bluish purple. It would get all sweaty and smell. I used to brush he chest gently and try to keep off her sores.

Maybe she was allergic to the pine trees. Or the peanut butter we fed her to hide the heart worm pills she had to take. Who knows. But her chest was all purple and she got infections on her tail and in her ears. There was scar tissue all over her front legs. She would never be a showdog.

She was beautiful, though, running along the bottom of the sand pit or down the forest path. Swimming out into the lake to get the tennis ball I'd thrown as far as I could. Rolling around on the back lawn trying to make her back stop itching. Lying alert on the carpet waiting for ut to throw her our pizza crusts. Chasing after the waves at Hampton Beach. Catching the snow as it came flying off the driveway through my father's snowblower.

I'm in love with a person now, but I think I can actually say that the love I had for that dog was just as real, just as strong. She was always there for me, every hour, every day, every week, every year. When the other kids would pick on me all day and I'd come home to an empty house, it wouldn't be an empty house because she'd be there.

She let me hug her and talk to her and take her on long walks in the woods so I could run away from my troubles. We go out in the back yard at one in the morning and I'd hit tennis balls deep into the back yard.

In the winter she'd help make snowmen with me. I used to hide things under the snow and make her dig for them. Then I'd have to pick all the snowballs out from under her furry belly, where they'd hang so thick she couldn't even walk. In the summertime it was burrs I had to pick out. Sometimes I had to use scissors to get the tangles out of her tail. I loved that dog.

The first Christmas I spent home after starting college, Taffy was gone. She had died sometime around Thanksgiving. I don't remember anymore. I don't even know exactly how she died. I wasn't home, and even if I had been, I would have wiped the memory away. My Taffy, no more.

So I think of that first day, the faraway Christmas Eve when she smiled at me and headed for the leftovers.

Wendy Darling is a Collegian columnist.

Associated Press

Here are some facts and figures about the Christmas tree industry:
- Top Christmas tree producers are Oregon, Michigan, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, California and North Carolina.
- Most popular tree is the Scotch pine. By region, Balsam fir is popular in the Northeast, Douglas fir in the Rockies, Fraser fir in the Appalachians and Virginia pine in the Southeast.
- Trees take up to 15 years to reach proper height. Average growing time is from seven to 10 years.
- There are slightly fewer than 10,000 Christmas tree growers, down from 15,000 five years ago, says Bob Scott, president of the National Christmas Tree Association.
- About 75 percent of U.S. households will have a tree. Of those, about 46 percent will choose live trees, and 54 percent will choose artificial trees, Scott said.
- An estimated 33.5 million trees will be sold this year at an average price of $18 to $35 for a six-footer.

Cold weather doesn't slow down NE

By Jeff Donn
Associated Press

The deep freeze will keep Massachusetts in its grip through the week, forecasters predict.

In the third day of the cold snap, Monday afternoon temperatures struggled into the 20s and high teens around most of the state. No records were set for cold, but winds whipping up to 40 mph yielded achingly low chill factors even at mid-afternoon. The chill factor was 11 below zero in Worcester and 15 below in North Adams. Sunny, less windy weather was forecast for Tuesday, with highs mostly in the 20s. But there was a 60 percent chance of snow showers in the Berkshire Mountains of western Massachusetts. Forecasters said it will likely take until Friday until temperatures rise above freezing around most of the state. "This is stuff from Canada," said Eleanor Vallier-Talbot, a forecaster for the National Weather Service in Taunton. "They had this in Canada and Alaska a few days ago, when It was down to 40 or 50 below. We've got it easy compared to them."

Don't tell that to Massachusetts drivers. More than 290 of them turned to the Automobile Club of the Pioneer Valley for help in western Massachusetts on Monday. Most needed jump starts to overcome dead batteries or frozen gasoline lines.

Joe DeSorbo, assistant road service manager, said 50 contractors were out covering the emergency calls, which were heaviest in the more populated areas.

"Everyone is stressed out," he said.

He said it helps to keep gasoline tanks full, use a gas treatment, and make sure old batteries are replaced.

Christmas tree sales are on the rise

By David Sharp
Associated Press

PORTLAND, Maine — The nation's Christmas tree growers are looking forward to brighter holiday seasons after a five-year shakedown in which thousands of growers dropped out of the industry.

The remaining growers are in a better position to compete after a glut of trees that sent prices plummeting in past years, said Bob Scott of Kansas, president of the National Christmas Tree Association.

"That's not all bad," he said. "It's the way of survival. Those who are left are going to be in a good position to make money."

This is the make-or-break weekend for the nation's Christmas tree growers because most of the 33.5 million families that buy live trees will be shopping around at lots and at farms across the country.

The National Christmas Tree Association estimates 75 percent of U.S. households will have a tree. Of those, about 46 percent will choose live trees, and 54 percent will choose artificial trees. Artificial trees remain Public Enemy No. 1 for Christmas tree growers, but growers also proved to be their own enemy by planting too many trees in the early 1980s, saturating the market a decade later.

The glut peaked a couple of years ago when some wholesalers unloaded their trees for less than it cost to grow them. Trees appeared in some New England markets at the ultra-low price of five bucks.

The ensuing shakedown saw the number of growers drop from about 15,000 in 1990 to today's level, estimated by Scott to be fewer than 10,000.

David Barden, president of the Maine Christmas Tree Association, said the nation's Christmas tree growers are at the tail end of the cycle of overproduction, and things should improve soon.

"I would like to think things are going to get better," said Barden, who grows trees on 12 acres in St. Albans.

Growing and marketing Christmas trees is harder work than novices realized when they decided to plant trees, often hoping for a quick buck, said Barden. The romance faded when they tried to sell them.

"They say, 'I'll just grow and I don't have to worry about customers for eight or ten years,'" Barden said. "That's how we got into our problem of overabundance of trees."

In Maine, which is 90 percent woods, the number of members of the Maine Christmas Tree Association peaked at more than 200 and its membership now stands at 180, Barden said.

The association representing growers in Mississippi and Louisiana saw its numbers plummet from 600 to 100, Scott said. In Kansas, the numbers have dropped from 150 to 80, he said.

"All of us were disillusioned 20 years ago when everyone, me included, thought you could put a tree in the ground, and then cut it and make a lot of money," Scott said.

Farmers like Scott have tried to make buying a live tree part of the holiday experience.

At Scott's farm in Wichita, Kan., he offers kids rides on a horse-drawn wagon and has high school students selling hot chocolate and cider. A train on his property carries Santa Claus. In the past, Scott has hired skydivers to mark the arrival of the holiday season.

In Kennebunk, Diane Holmes has plastic sleds on hand for parents to pull their kids around, now permitting, on her choose-and-cut farm. After picking the perfect tree, customers can warm up inside with hot cider and browse for Christmas ornaments.

Jim Corliss, who has 42 acres of trees in Newburgh, offers Maine-made jellies, maple syrup, candles and wreaths along with the trees, which he ships mail-order anywhere in the nation. He has diversified with a pre-cut and choose-and-cut operation in Hampden. Corliss said the key to making a comeback for the industry, which still sells the same number of live trees as it did 30 years ago, is to promote public awareness that trees are good for the environment.

Live trees are grown on farms — not cut from the woods — and trees can be recycled, Corliss said.

"A Christmas tree farm is like a garden," he said. "No one has any objection to harvesting a garden. And the beauty you get from a tree is sustenance of a different sort than from a carrot or a cabbage."

Homeless get Christmas dinner, gifts

BOSTON (AP) — More than 700 poor and homeless children were treated to a hot turkey dinner and holiday gifts by a non-profit group based in the suburbs.

Sunday's sixth annual Christmas in the City party for homeless families was co-sponsored by restaurants, stores and local corporations.

Children got hats, mittens, toothpaste, toothbrushes, books, stuffed animals and toy trucks from such businesses as Colgate, Jordan Marsh and Dunkin' Donuts. Fasano's cooked the meals — served by hundreds of volunteers — and Ben & Jerry's provided dessert. A Newbury Street salon, SalonPini, even offered hair cuts.

The families live in 22 area shelters. They were bused for the party to Boston College High School.

Christmas in the City was founded by a Scituate couple, John and Sparky Kennedy. It provides other services to homeless families during the rest of the year.

The city estimates that there are 4,809 homeless people in Boston, 1,018 of them children.

Mumia Abu-Jamal says:
"WRITE FOR MULTI-CULTURAL AFFAIRS"
Contact Hernán
113 Campus Center
545-1851

COLLEGIAN NEWS
Because it happens everyday.

Show Your UMass SPIRIT!!
Call today for your appointment
PATRICK & Company
104 Russell St.
(Rte. 9) Hadley
586-7477

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS?
COLLEGE DAYTON

INTERSESSION
FLEX FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA
!!!$30!!!

Fentons SINCE 1924
15% Off With Ad
Any One Item
One Per Customer - Some Exceptions
Open 9am - 5:30pm • Sunday Noon - 5:00pm

Come Enjoy our all new delicious
BUFFET
Over 20 Different Items To Choose
Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner
Lunch Buffet • $5.95
Dinner Buffet • $8.95
"Bringing The Tradition To You"
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Delivery thru Delivery Express 549-0077 • Route 9 & University Drive in Amherst 256-8800
10% off
TAKE OUT ORDERS ONLY
Cannot Combine With Other Offers • 1 coupon per person
OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM • FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM • SUN 12-10 PM

The best and worst Christmas gifts ever

Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

This year, the Collegian staff decided to give our readers a list of all the best and worst holiday gifts, as a list of gift- giving dos and don'ts.

Matt Vautour, Editor In Chief

Best Holiday Gift: Without question the Lego Castle. I spent all of Dec. 26 that year building that thing and creating my very own Arthurian Civilization. For the next three years or so no toy brought more hours of fun.

Worst Holiday Gift: The same ugly sweater two years in a row.

Marni E. Helfner, Managing Editor

B: My dad and I had gone shopping at the local electronic store, Barry's, because I had announced that we needed a new stereo. My dad's stereo was a four-track, with a record player and only an AM dial. Needless to say, I was getting sick of listening to the FAME soundtrack and an old CCR album. We went into Barry's and I fell in love with a great stereo — it was a whole rack system, with those brand–new carousel CD players. It had a double tape deck, 24 AM and FM presets, the carousel held five CDs and a record player. Alas, it had no eight track player, much less a four track. My dad shook his head and told me that we just couldn't afford it this year, and maybe next year. Heartbroken, but understanding, I left Barry's with my head hanging. Three days later, I came home to find a truck from Barry's in the driveway, and a new stereo in the living room.

W: The first year after I moved out of the shelter, I was on the list for Jewish Family Services, and I got a whole 15 pound turkey, and all the trimmings for a holiday dinner. Needless to say, I didn't have an oven, so it got stuck in my fridge. I didn't find it until I moved, three years later. It made for an excellent doorstop.

Casey Kane, Sports Associate

B: I am a displaced Cameron Crazy. I have loved Duke basketball for as long as I remember. This year, even though he gave me the present early, my boyfriend got me the greatest gift. Tickets to a Duke basketball game!!!

W: I once got a jug of Hawaiian Punch and a canister of Cheese Balls.

Chris Byrd, Black Affairs Editor

B: A high performance AUDI 5000 sports car... remote control, that is.

W: A hand full of "all purpose" Hallmark cards.

Earl T. Martin, Business Manager

B: The Millennium Falcon, this made the second grade a banner year. I was hit in show and tell.

W: My aunt was on a clothes buying binge for several years. Unfortunately, they were really ugly clothes. For instance, polyester was her favorite fabric. (She said they would go great with jeans — she was wrong.) They stockpiled in mine and my siblings' rooms until one year, my friend and I made a bet and the loser had to sport "selected" handpicked Aunt Linda clothing items on a big night out on the town. Needless to say, my friend backed out — maybe because such a fate was too harsh.

Craig Brody, Advertising Representative

W: Looking back on the '80s, all my gifts from that decade were the worst — no one had any taste back then. Could it be my imitation red and black vinyl Thriller jacket? Or how about that pseudo-Transformer that I had to convince all my friends was way cooler than the real ones? It didn't transform into anything, it was just a robot.

B: My best gift was also the Thriller jacket, it went perfectly with my spiked hair.

Pete Servais, Assistant Advertising Manager

B: I was 12 and it was a normal Christmas morning, when I noticed that my brother and sister got infinitely more than I did — I didn't even get the skis I wanted. After everything was open, my dad said "Hey, what's this?" I flew downstairs and found a pair of Atomic Red Sleds.

W: When my mom gave me a sock for, well, uh, an unmentionable part of my private parts. A good gag gift, but not from my mother.

Amy H. Puradysz, News Associate

B: I came home from the Collegian and my fiancee had decorated the Christmas tree and hung a wreath on my closet.

W: Last year, my parents said they would pay for me to take French 230 as my Christmas gift, and they never did. So I paid for it with a credit card.

Emily Reily, Photo Tech

B: A 70–210 lens for my camera from my parents. It's a very good lens.

W: The year I got pajamas from my Aunt Gloria because I have never worn them. They were a really ugly animal print and very uncomfortable.

Candice Flemming, Sports Editor

B: I got the cutest golden retriever puppy in 1989, his name was Valentino because he was born on Valentine's Day. He was the best gift because we had a dog about a year before and he had died.

W: I always like what I get for Christmas. I've never had a bad Christmas present.

Marc Donne, Production Supervisor

B: A story that was as long as it was supposed to be.

EMILY REILY/ COLLEGIAN

Shopping for the holidays

Freshman Nursing major Thao Vo searches for the perfect jacket in the Mini-Mall held in the Student Union Monday afternoon. The Mini–Mall, run by UMass Hillel, will extend through Wednesday.

■ gifts

continued from page 7

out things. Self– improvements get big bonus points.

Re-enact your very first date together. Often times relationships get boring and you need a little reminder as to why you're still together. The her one real date; you know the kind where you pick her up at her house and then just kiss good night at the door. Old fashioned, but sweet and greatly appreciated.

Rent movies together that she likes, you know — the ones that you hate being dragged to. Cuddle up on the couch and just relax. Sometimes the holiday season hat you going at such a frantic rate, relax might was well be some far off unobtainable planet.

The most important thing is that you're doing and giving what you want to because you really want to. After all, if you can't give during the most giving of seasons what is the point of going through the motions?

Tara MK Connelly is a Collegian Columnist.

The University of Massachusetts Daily Collegian
We keep you updated trick or treat

Interested in the writing for the Collegian during the Spring semester?
Get a head start now. Come on down to 113 Campus Center Basement.

WE ARE SPRING BREAK!
Our Trips Are Better Than Mom's Apple Pie!
• South Padre Island
• Cancun
• Jamaica
• Bahamas
• All Other Destinations
Why risk your travel plans with some shady organization? Every year hundreds of students are left stranded. It costs no more to book your Spring Break trip with your local travel experts with a proven track record of successful trips.
Can that flyer or acquaintance from the dorms offer you that?
256-8228
TRAVEL MAKERS, INC
321 Main Street, Amherst (Cor. Dickinson St.)

KAZBUH LOUD MUFFLER?
MIDAS GET HOME SPECIAL
10% OFF ANY SERVICE OVER $50*
Alignments and oil changes excluded
Rte. 9 HADLEY 586-9991
FREE SHUTTLE SERVICE TO CAMPUS
*offer requires presentation of this ad. Ad must be presented at time of purchase. Not valid with any other discounts. Offer expires 12/24/95

NOISY BRAKES?
The SCREECH

We Buy & Sell Used Men's Levi's
BASIC BLUES
365 Main Street
Greenfield, MA 01301
413-774-4465
Mon-Thurs 10-5, Fri 10-7, Sat 10-5

Judies
Munchie Madness
Monday - Friday 3-6
½ Price Munchie Menu
Basket of Sweet Potato Fries $4.99 $2.50
Vegetarian Potato Skins $6.99 $3.50
Nachos $5.75 $2.88
Shrimp Cocktail $5.75 $2.88
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

Peking Garden
NEWLY REMODELED BUFFET
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
LUNCH & DINNER
20 MORE DISHES!
INCLUDING ALL-YOU-CAN-EAT ICE CREAM, SALAD BAR AND SODA
ALL YOU CAN EAT
LUNCH
MON. - FRI. 11-3 $4.55
SAT. & SUN. 11-5 EXPANDED BUFFET $5.99
DINNER
SUN. - THURS. 5-9 $6.25
FRI. & SAT. 5-9 $6.99
REGULAR MENU ALWAYS AVAILABLE
LATIN NIGHTS
COMEDY EVERY SATURDAY
20% OFF DINNER FOR ALL COMEDY PATRONS

A BRANCH BEYOND
Unique Imports
Scarf and Sweater Sale
15% off
TWO STORES: ONE LOCATION GREAT WAY TO SHOP
BEADS August the First
Charms 15% off
63 N. Pleasant st. Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-0276 OPEN 7 DAYS

■ hoops

continued from page 14

fact that suspicion still follows the Shark.

Now here's the thing that I have trouble with. Jerry Tarkanian may soon have a spot in the Naismith Memorial. Yeah, he's got a proven ability to win. He has a National Championship ring, the highest winning percentage, the stats to back up his nomination, but...

Pete Rose was a great baseball player. But he gambled his way out of a spot in Cooperstown.

In the nine months prior to UNLV's National Championship run, the school, and the basketball office in particular, was visited 11 times by officials from the NCAA. Investigating possible academic and recruiting violations, the officials incensed the Rebel players so much, they became inspiration for March Madness. Larry Johnson, one of the stars of the 1990 team, said that the he wanted to win the title so badly, so that the next time the NCAA visited, the investigators would be forced to look at the trophy.

Tarkanian was under investigation for the recruiting of Lloyd Daniels. Daniels had been enrolled in four different high schools and was barely able to read. He became a ward of a UNLV assistant coach, and was soon after videotaped in a Vegas crackhouse.

Tarkanian was under suspicion for what he did with the 223 season tickets he was given every year. Eyebrows were raised when certain people were associated with the Rebels' program. Gamblers, casino owners and shady Vegas businessmen were all frequent guests of Tark at the school by the Strip.

All in all, Tarkanian had one team win a national championship. He had three teams at two schools sanctioned by the NCAA.

The fact remains, Tarkanian is not a positive influence on the sport of college basketball. Yes, he wins. But he wins dirty. He is corrupt, and he has corrupted those around him. That fact alone should keep him out of the Hall of Fame.

Jerry Tarkanian should not have a seat in Springfield.

• Seventeen.

That's how many underclassmen jumped ship from the college ranks, and declared themselves eligible for last June's NBA draft. Of the 17 who were drafted, nine went lottery, among the first 13 selections. And that doesn't include high school phenom Kevin Garnett, who was chosen fifth overall.

From 1976–1993, 186 players have decided that they would rather look at a contract than a syllabus, cutting their days on campus short. And the trend seems likely to continue, considering the fact that college players can declare themselves eligible for the NBA draft, without jeopardizing collegiate eligibility. The NCAA provision, passed in 1994, states that if players aren't happy with their draft selection, they can return to the college ranks as long as they haven't used an agent or accepted any money.

Players, and the coaches around them, list at home financial situations as one of the major contributing factors for underclassmen jumping onto the professional bandwagon.

"The biggest problem you have is, how do you tell someone not to become a millionaire?" Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins asked.

But some coaches want to avoid the early jumps, which leave teams with depleted talent pools. Purdue coach Gene Keady wants to form an advisory panel of NBA scouts or general managers in order to inform potential early-draft entries where they would stand in the NBA pool.

Whatever happens, the fact remains that underclassmen will leave college early for the NBA. And with four (and in most cases, two or three) years of college seeming more like a speed bump on the road to the pros, major efforts will have to be undertaken in order for the "stay-in-school" edict to be heard.

• What's in a name? This year there are several eye–catching names on team rosters. How about God Shammgod, a 6–foot guard from — where else? — Providence. Or, Duany Duany? I'm serious, that's no typo. Duany is a 6– foot–4–inch guard/small forward at Wisconsin.

Calling all Beverly Hills, 90210 fans, there is a 6–foot–2– inch guard at Pitt named Kellii Taylor. And for all the figure skaters out there, check out Alabama center Scott Hamilton.

Perhaps the most interesting name–game match–up will happen when George Washington plays UNC Charlotte. The game will pit GW's Alexander Koul, a 7–foot–1 center, against UNC–C's Alexander Keuhl, a 7–foot–2 pivotman.

Casey Kane is a Collegian staff member.

■ band

continued from page 6

them."

Coleman played a song he wrote that resembled a Russian folk tune; he called it "Grassnost."

"Morning Blues," a song which appears on a Linda Ronstat album, showcased Auldridge's amazing prowess on the dobro. "The House of the Rising Sun" featured an incredible mandolin solo.

The band has released two albums and is in the midst of recording a third.

Klein said that "Everybody familiar with budgets and how they should not exist? Our third album is way over budget, we 6–04 were going to call it Waterworld."

The music was only half of the entertainment provided by the band. Between songs, the band's spontaneous jokes left the audience no choice but to laugh uncontrollably. Coleman said, "It's all spontaneous. Sometimes the jokes work and sometimes we just play music. The word concert means that a performance is 50 percent performer and 50 percent audience."

At the end of the concert, Coleman said, "We had an absolutely marvelous time."

Ever Think of writing for Sports?

Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

MONTCLAIR STATE UNIVERSITY
'96 Summer Sessions

3-weeks May 28-June 13 & August 5-22
6-weeks June 24-August 1
8-weeks June 10-August 1
Saturdays June 8-August 10

More than 300 undergraduate and 45 graduate course sections
Daytime and evening courses in business, arts, humanities, social sciences, mathematics, computer science, natural sciences, education, human services. Plus: undergraduate and graduate credit institutes, studios, workshops; environmental education at the NJ School of Conservation, Stokes State Forest; NJ Marine Sciences Consortium courses at Sandy Hook and Seaville; study abroad—Israel, Italy, Spain.

First Opportunity For Visiting Students To REGISTER BY TELEPHONE APRIL 17-MAY 6. Additional opportunities to register by telephone begin MAY 20.

Tuition and Fees*
(From Summer 1995 for your guidance; 1996 Summer Sessions tuition and fees will be established by the University Board of Trustees late in the spring semester) $93.50 per credit undergraduate NJ resident; $134.50 per credit undergraduate non-resident of NJ. $172.50 per credit graduate NJ resident; $214.50 per credit graduate non-resident of NJ.
*Tuition and fees are subject to change at any time by action of the MSU Board of Trustees

Call, e-mail or U.S. mail coupon today for the '96 Summer Sessions preliminary schedule of courses available late January

Phone: 201-655-4352 e-mail: summer@saturn.montclair.edu

Montclair State University, Summer Sessions, Upper Montclair, NJ 07043

Please forward the '96 Summer Sessions preliminary schedule of courses (available late January).
Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____ (UMA)

Angry Lowery takes out frustrations on ballboy

By Barry Wilner
Associated Press

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — For Nick Lowery, an incident Sunday with a ballboy was completely out of character.

Lowery, a 15-year veteran placekicker who probably will make the Hall of Fame and is known for his community work, was accused of slapping 20-year-old David Foscaldo during the third quarter of the New York Jets' 31-28 loss at New England. While Lowery never confirmed he actually struck the ballboy — "Let's just say that I reacted in an improper way" — he said Monday he was provoked by Foscaldo's disrespectful demeanor.

"Nobody looks good in this incident. I regret it," Lowery said. "I kind of pride myself as a professional athlete as able to focus and keep cool in games. In the heat of the moment — in this case the cold of the moment — I lost my cool. If I had to do it over, I would hope I would not do it."

The incident occurred moments after Don Silvestri kicked off, then complained the ball was "hard as a rock." As a courtesy, home teams usually place a bunch of footballs next to the heated seat on which players can sit, thus keeping the balls a bit warmer and softer.

"I came over to guy expecting to say, 'Are you guys keeping the balls warm?' He took an attitude and I said I think that is your job."

Lowery said Foscaldo then cursed at him.

"I lost my cool, he started to come toward me and that is when I guess security took him off."

Actually, the Patriots said they moved Foscaldo to the other sideline for the rest of the game.

"We'd asked for a blower by the kicking net, and they said, 'You should have brought your own.' It's whatever, looking for that competitive edge."

Lowery talked to Foscaldo by the Patriots' locker room after the game.

"Afterward, I looked for him," he said. "I ran up to the Patriots locker room, passed about half the Patriots players and wanted to make sure it was OK with him. He said, 'I'm just mad because they almost arrested me.'

"As far as I am concerned, that should be the end of the story. If others want to make more of it, that is their business." That apparently was the business of several New England players after the team filed a report with the league on Monday.

"It's an unusual incident," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said, "a report of a player hitting somebody on the sidelines, discussion of balls being heated up, which is against the rules. It is against the rules to heat balls individually, but it is common practice around the league" to take a bag of balls and put them on the heated bench."

"It's inappropriate. You don't lay hands on anyone," Patriots kicker Matt Bahr said. "It's a shame. It really is.

"No matter, really, what was said, that's when you have to turn away, walk away if it was that offensive. I've never run into an incident like this and I feel bad that it ever had to occur." Added Patriots snapper Steve DeOssie, whom Lowery claimed is a friend of the ballboy:

"Everybody has to play with the same football. You didn't hear Matt Bahr or (Patriots punter) Bryan Wagner complaining about kicking cold footballs. That's life in the NFL. After as many years as Mr. Lowery has been in the league, he should understand that." "I just told him (Lowery) that he was a coward and some other words that you can't use on TV, and offered him the opportunity to hit somebody closer to his own size, instead of a small guy like the ballboy that he hit. And that's when he started groveling and started trying to find a way to apologize to the kid. If nobody had said anything, he wouldn't have done anything. He'd still feel justified in his behavior."

Aguilera turns down Sox deal to return to Twins

By Ron Lesko
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — How badly did Rick Aguilera want to come back to Minnesota?

He turned down an extra $1.5 million and his place as one of baseball's best closers to rejoin the worst pitching staff in the majors.

The Twins re-signed Aguilera, their career saves leader, to bolster their woeful starting rotation five months after trading him to the Boston Red Sox. He got a $9 million, three-year deal: $3.5 million next season, $3 million in 1997 and $2.5 million in 1998.

"My wife and I were talking, and she wasn't sure if it was kind of like a 'Twilight Zone' thing," Aguilera said Monday. "Did all of that really transpire in the last five months?"

It really did.

Aguilera's odyssey began on a tearful July night when the Twins traded him for two prospects during a game against the Red Sox. Few who were at the Metrodome that night will forget him walking from the bullpen to the clubhouse in the seventh inning, or the emotional response from his teammates after the game.

"It's a sick feeling, just a sick feeling," Dave Stevens, who inherited the closer's role, said at the time.

Aguilera had 20 of his 32 saves in Boston as the Red Sox won the AL East before losing to Cleveland in the playoffs.

Agent Tom Selakovich said his client turned down a three-year, $10.5 million offer from an unspecified team.

"When the Twins showed serious interest, it wasn't really that important who the other teams were," Aguilera said.

He also was pursued by Baltimore, Toronto and the Red Sox, who passed up the best chance to keep him by declining to offer salary arbitration.

All three teams would have employed Aguilera as their closer. But the Twins, who traded Aguilera last summer mostly because of his $4 million salary, couldn't afford a high-priced stopper and desperately needed help in the starting rotation.

"Throughout the negotiations I realized that was my only chance to come back to Minnesota," said Aguilera, 33.

The Twins' 5.76 ERA was the worst in the majors last season for the second straight year, and the rotation at the end of the season included 22-year-old rookies Brad Radke, Frank Rodriguez, LaTroy Hawkins and Jose Parra.

Rodriguez and outfield prospect Jermaine Jackson were acquired from Boston for Aguilera.

Minnesota manager Tom Kelly said the Twins, who converted Aguilera from a starter to closer in 1990, had considered returning him to the rotation for the past two years.

"We just couldn't develop anybody into a solid closer that we could depend on," Kelly said.

The Twins turned that role, for the most part, over to Stevens last summer. He earned his first career save less than an hour after Aguilera walked off the Metrodome field in a Twins uniform for what seemed like the last time, and finished with 10 saves and a 5.07 ERA.

"If we can improve our starting pitching, and I think we have, it's going to make (Stevens) better and give him more opportunities to pitch in a situation that means something," Kelly said. Aguilera set a Twins record with 184 saves after coming over from the New York Mets with Kevin Tapani and three other players in the July 1989 Frank Viola trade.

■ NHL

continued from page 14

There's a first time for everything, so couldn't the 1996 playoffs have been Fivel's coming out party?

Remember, Roy first made waves as a rookie, guiding Montreal to the 1986 championship after a stable but unspectacular regular season.

I'm betting Roy will do what he always has — play better in the playoffs than the regular season. I'm picking the Avalanche to hoist the trophy in McNichols Arena one Denver night in May — at least the city has a climate like the Great White North's.

It's worth examining the others exchanged in the 1990s biggest lockbuster. I don't keep it a secret I'm a big Thibault supporter. It was a captivating scene on Draft Day '93 in Montreal, when his name was called by Quebec to the roars of the hometown faithful. At the tender age of 18, when he was one of the league's youngest players, he showed great promise as a backup. Last year, still a baby even in NHL years, he glittered in almost every start. Realistically, he could sit on the shelf for a few years and still be a few more years from his prime.

But Thibault isn't going to be doing much sitting. The 20–year–old is, essentially, Montreal's top–rated goalie, and he sure looked like it in his debut, stopping 35 shots in a 2–2 tie with the Rangers at the Forum. The Canadiens never hoped to make this deal, but they got their man — the next Roy, perhaps — who should be a mainstay between the pipes for years to come.

Martin Rucinsky will be nothing but a milk carton special for coach Mario Tremblay, but Andrei Kovalenko is an attractive acquisition who extends the rapid expansion of Montreal's forward depth. Between Pierre Turgeon, Mark Recchi, Vincent Damphousse, Brian Savage, Saku Koivu and Kovalenko, Montreal has a core that is more than solid.

Colorado gets Mike Keane, a Bruin–killer with an impeccable work ethic and veteran savvy. Sounds like a linemate for Claude Lemieux.

• Trivia: What are the former names of the two NHL conferences and the two divisions in each?

• There was a time not long ago when a two–game mini– road trip to Tampa Bay and Florida had a team licking its chops. But the Bruins' latest tour of those vacation sites only has them licking their wounds. Boston dropped a pair of 3–1 decisions, but in a startling turn of events, the best aspect of its play was goaltending. Of course, in all other areas Boston took a big step back, most glaringly on defense. Today's sorry indicator of the Bruins' blueline garbarge: Rick Zombo is a minus–14. So what's next? The next player to don the Black and Gold is Dean Chynoweth, ostracized by the Islanders. Yeah,

Tagliabue hopes to have NFL in Cleveland and Baltimore

By Rich Harris
Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Simple support from NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue won't put a team in Cleveland Stadium next season, Mayor Michael R. White warned Monday.

Tagliabue said in a televised interview Sunday that Cleveland needs a team, whether or not Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell follows through on his plans to move the team to Baltimore next year.

"I think our challenge as a league is to keep a team in Cleveland and get a team to Baltimore," Tagliabue said. "Let's face it, those are two storied groups of fans, two storied franchises. ... The NFL his to be in those cities. That's got to be our goal."

Nice words, White told a news conference Monday. But far from a guarantee.

"The real decision is not going to be voted upon by Commissioner Tagliabue — It's going to be voted on by the 30 owners of the NFL franchises," White said. "While his report is going to be critical and crucial to how we are looked upon by the owners, the bottom line is ... he will not vote."

The mayor's news conference came as Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Kenneth Callahan considered a trial date for the city's lawsuit against the team.

Cleveland wants an order forcing the Browns to play in Cleveland Stadium until their lease expires in 1998. Callahan has issued a temporary order blocking the Browns from moving to Baltimore until the trial can be held.

The team's lawyers want the trial to begin as soon as possible. City lawyers say they need until March to prepare their case. Callahan has not yet set a date; he met in chambers with both sides Monday and scheduled another meeting for Wednesday, a clerk said.

Auto Glass Center
American & Foreign
• Same Day Service
• Billed Directly To Insurance Company
• Windshields Replaced
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR
A CARSTAR Collision Repair Center
78 Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA
549-2880
(One Mile from Uhlein but route)

PUBLISH YOUR BOOK!
Join our clientele of distinguished authors, including professors and professionals, in a full-service publishing program. Gain the recognition you deserve. Carlton Press, a leading contract publisher spanning 5 decades, is seeking manuscripts for book publication. If you have an idea, or manuscript in progress, send for the booklet, How To Publish Your Book. If you have a completed manuscript, send it to us. We will provide you with a free, professional evaluation of your work...with no obligation. We'll also send you a sample of Carlton's quality work. Contact us today.
CARLTON PRESS, CORP. , dept. CVS
11 W. 32ND ST., New York, NY 10001

Steve Madden Sale.
One week only.
Downtown Amherst

It's Here
MINI-MALL
A one-stop shopping EXTRAVAGANZA
DECEMBER 11-13, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Student Union Ballroom UMASS
JEWELRY.....USED & NEW CDs & TAPES.....FINE ART PRINTS & PORTRAITS..... IMPRINTED T-SHIRTS ..... VINTAGE CLOTHING..... SWEATERS... HATS... GLOVES... POLAR FLEECE BLANKETS...TEDDY BEARS .....NEW VIDEOS... HAIR ACCESSORIES...FLAGS (INTERNATIONAL) .....

Ski Snowboard
Only $219
Winterbreak & Springbreak
INTERCOLLEGIATE 5ND WEEKS
Sponsors Include: Molson & Labatts
MT. OXFORD, CANADA
LOCATED ACROSS THE VERMONT BORDER!
5 DAY SKI & SNOWBOARD LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, CONTESTS & HOOPLA
NOTE: THE LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18
GROUP LEADER & REP DISCOUNTS
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
SKI TRAVEL
www.skitravel.com
1-800-999-Ski-9

Men's swimming downs Brown

By Jay Warner
Collegian Staff

After winning its first three dual meets and finishing second place at the New England Championships, the entire Massachusetts men's swim team finally got the chance to compete as a squad this past Saturday, as they dismantled Brown University, 145–91.

In what UMass coach Russ Yarworth pointed out as an opportunity for "revenge," referring to last year's defeat at the hands of the Bears, the Minutemen dominated the meet from the outset sweeping the first relay. Coming off of a grueling championship last weekend, Yarworth got more than he expected from his team.

"I expected a little bit of a let down, considering they swam a three–day meet the week before at New Englands, one of the peaks of the season," Yarworth said. "Considering the tough training and the let down from New Englands we did real well. I was pleased to see them get in there and swim fast."

One of the most pleasing performances of the day came from sophomore Sean Anderson, who posted individual wins in the 50 and 100–yard freestyle events, with times of :20.95 and :47.39 respectively. His 50–yard freestyle win broke the Joseph Rogers Pool record, sending the message to the rest of his team that they weren't going to be denied this win.

Besides his individual victories, Anderson led the 400–yard freestyle relay team to a first place finish. Along with his impressive finishes last weekend at the championship, Anderson is quickly becoming a reliable assest to the Minutemen squad.

"That was a nice surprise from Sean," Yarworth said. "That was a real good swim for him at this time of year, considering we did some hard work during the week. I was psyched to see it."

Along with Anderson, senior Justin Murphy provided a spark for the Minutemen as they came down the homestretch. Murphy, a proven diving veteran, won the three–meter dive with a score of 324.15 points, and in the process, qualified for the NCAA Zone Diving competition. If successful in placing in the top three at the Zone Diving competition, Murphy would go on to compete on the national level. Yarworth was excited by Murphy's accomplishment, but because of the confidence in his senior diver, these type of performances have come to be expected.

"He dove really well," Yarworth said. "He had a nice day, especially in the three–meter."

Senior tri–captain Keith McLarty maintained his winning ways as he took first place in the 200–yard individual medley with a time of 1:59.20. His leadership has played a large role in the season thus far, and Yarworth hopes to see McLarty continue to be a team leader.

"Keith did a nice job," Yarworth said. "He's doing what we want him to do now and I think he is going to really pull away by the end of the year."

Another pleasant surprise for the Minutemen came from sophomore Scott Herbert, as he posted an individual win in the 200–yard breaststroke with a time of 2:16.98. Coming off of a lackluster performance at New Englands, due to a virus, Herbert showed his potential now that he is healthy. Herbert also was a member of the second place 400–yard medley relay time.

"We let him shave down and he swam pretty well," Yarworth said."He was sick last weekend and is still not healthy enough, but it was good to see him get in there and swim a good race."

Those swimmers who returned to the swim team after concluding their water polo season last weekend, provided the extra man–power that allowed the Minutemen to cruise through this dual meet. Despite the fact that this was their first meet back, several of the returning swimmers played a vital role in both relay races.

"[Geoff] Gear, [John] Luviano, and [Greg] Menton did a nice job," Yarworth said, "They were not quite sharp yet but I didn't expect them to be, so to see them do well was good."

With the win over Brown, the Minutemen concluded the first half of their season with a 4–0 record, and look to come off of the winter break with the same intensity, effort, and desire that has become their trademark.

"I have a positive outlook on the season right now because I have got a great group of kids who'll do anything we ask them to do," said Yarworth. "They're training really hard and will keep it up through finals, and after break we will be back at it. I've got a great group and good senior leadership."

The Minutemen return to action on January 2, 1996 when they travel to Florida to compete in the Lake Worth Invitational. Yarworth hopes to get in some good training time and begin to prepare for the Atlantic–10 Championships.

"We've got a few big meets before the A–10 Championship but really our focus is to prepare to win the championship."

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

The undefeated Massachusetts men's swimming and diving squad destroyed Brown University last week 145–91.

Switzer decision has Dallas enraged

By Kevin O'Hanlon
Associated Press

DALLAS — All Dallas Cowboys fans wanted a month ago was a Super Bowl championship. Now, after the Cowboys dropped their second straight game and fourth of the season, they want coach Barry Switzer dropped.

"I think he'd make a great high school coach — but not in Texas," quipped Joe DeLaurier, who works for a Dallas movie distributor.

What has Cowboys fans foaming at the mouth?

First came a loss to the hated Washington Redskins, who entered the game favored to lose by about two touchdowns.

Then came the loss to the hated San Francisco 49ers, when Dallas watched all-universe receiver Jerry Rice line up in the slot position, race 81 yards for a first-quarter touchdown and still didn't make a defensive adjustment until the third quarter. Next came another loss to the Redskins, this one before a packed house at Texas Stadium.

Then came Sunday.

Switzer ordered his offense to try for a first down on a fourth-and-short play with just over two minutes left, even though the game was tied at 17 and Dallas was on its 29-yard line. Emmitt Smith tried and failed on a run up the middle, but officials ruled the play didn't count because the two-minute warning had been whistled.

Switzer decided to stick with his decision during the two-minute timeout, but Smith again failed on what almost looked like an instant replay of the first attempt. Philadelphia's Gary Anderson kicked a game-winning 42-yard field goal 30 seconds later. "What a smart move that was!" DeLaurier said. "If at first you don't succeed, and don't succeed again ... my God!"

Steve Hamilton, a computer programmer from Garland, was equally steamed.

"What was he thinking? Twice?" Hamilton said. "That was a gradeschool play! You don't go for that in Pop Warner (football)."

Out at The Main Street Liquid Co. in Richardson, one man sat at the bar stirring his drink and said he was too angry with Switzer to talk about it.

Monnique Pangilinan, a Dallas receptionist, was not at a similar loss for words.

"We got a chance after that two-minute warning call and then he did it again," she said. "That made it twice as bad."

The play calling sent the local media into a frenzy.

A banner headline in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram screamed "Dumb and Dumber."

Columnist Gil LeBreton, who called the play choices

"Switzercide," said: "There may have been worse decisions made in the annals of time. The Edsel. The leisure suit. Adam biting on the apple."

The headline on a Dallas Morning News column by Randy Galloway cried: "Get Barry Out of Here Immediately."

The host of a home finance show that aired after the game on radio station KRLD-AM was forced to implore callers not to comment on Switzer, no matter how angry they were.

Despite the avalanche of howls, Switzer stubbornly stood by his decision.

"I knew we weren't going to win the ballgame if we didn't make the plays," he said. "If we would have had the wind, we would have kicked the football. The wind was a factor."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, who gave Switzer a vote of confidence earlier this season after the loss to San Francisco, stood behind his coach and the call.

"We usually make those kind of plays," Jones said.

Should Switzer be sent packing?

"Well, if he keeps it up, he definitely should go," Pangilinan said. "I don't see him bringing the team together. They seem to be falling apart."

Interested In The Classifieds Manager Position?

Contact either Earl, Marty or Rosario at The Collegian!

Steve Madden Sale.
One week only.

ZANNA
Downtown Amherst

Bledsoe's troubles have him confused

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

FOXBORO — Another game, another poor performance for Drew Bledsoe, the top pick in the 1993 draft whose career has been as wobbly as some of his passes.

Last season, he became the youngest player in NFL history to play in the Pro Bowl. This season, he's the lowest-rated quarterback in the AFC. On Sunday, the 6-foot-5 Bledsoe had six passes deflected at the line of scrimmage and completed only 11-of-36 throws in his worst game of the year.

The Patriots won, 31-28, but it was against the hapless Jets. Not counting the two wins against New York or a loss to Atlanta in which he was sidelined, New England is 4-7 with Bledsoe at quarterback.

"I'm concerned, sure," coach Bill Parcells said Monday. "I really don't know the answer. I know we've got a lot of work to do with him."

Bledsoe also was at a loss to explain his decline.

"I don't know what the answer to it is but I'm not doing anything different in my throwing motion," said Bledsoe, who became the highest paid NFL player when he signed a $42 million, seven-year deal this season.

In his 13 games so far, he has completed just 49.5 percent of his passes. In the 13 games he played as a rookie, it was 49.9 percent. And in his first 13 games last year, it was 57.2 percent. Although his interceptions are down this season from a league-high 27 last year to 12, he has thrown only nine touchdowns, the fewest of any regular AFC quarterback. He's thrown for touchdowns in only five games, four of them victories, and completed more than half his passes in just six.

"I think he's done some things better than he did last year and I think there's some things he hasn't done as well," Parcells said.

In a 35-25 upset at Buffalo two weeks ago, Bledsoe brought the Patriots back from a 25-13 deficit with two scoring passes in the fourth quarter.

But in a 31-17 loss to New Orleans the next Sunday, he floated a pass into the end zone on a first-and-goal situation with the Saints ahead by 14 but the Patriots still in contention. It was intercepted with 6:11 to go and New England never got the ball back.

Against the Jets, Parcells said, Bledsoe was throwing with a three-quarters motion, rather than straight overhand, on some of the baited balls. On others, linemen simply jumped and stretched their arms up. And six of his accurate passes were dropped. Despite a poor running game, Bledsoe was outstanding last season with 25 touchdown passes, an NFL record 691 attempts and a league-high 400 completions.

Now rookie Curtis Martin leads the AFC in rushing, but the passing game has struggled.

"One of these years, maybe we can get it all right," Parcells said.

Come to Barnes & Noble at Boston University's JOB FAIR!
and get off to a great start this winter . . .

If you want a fast-paced job that will get your Winter off to a great start, it's here at Barnes & Noble at Boston University. Boston's best source for books... and the best choice for retail jobs. Find out more at our JOB FAIR on December 13th.

• Part-time jobs
• Immediate hires
• Flexible scheduling
•Store Discount up to 35%
• Friendly work environment

You could be a sales associate or a cash office associate – just long enough to get us through the Winter rush and get your bank account in shape. Get here early enough, and you could be hired on the spot!

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 13TH 9AM-3PM CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE

If you want to get a closer look at us, but can't come to our JOB FAIR, call (617) 236-7402 for more information
We are an equal opportunity employer
Barnes & Noble AT BOSTON UNIVERSITY

HANDEL'S
MESSIAH
THE SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
&
THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS CHAMBER CHOIR
E. WAYNE AMBERCROMBIE, CONDUCTOR
Wednesday, December 13 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Tickets: $12 general public, $8 students, seniors & children $5 UMass students
Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office (413)545-2511
Thursday, December 14 8 PM
Symphony Hall, Court Street, Springfield
Tickets: $15 general public, $10 seniors, $5 children 17 & under
Available at Symphony Box Office (413)733-2291
Sponsored by Coopers & Lybrand, Provost Patricke Cronnie, The Fine Arts Center & The UMass Alumni Association

The Top Ten Reasons to Use the UHS Eye Care Program and Contact Lens Service

1 We have a comprehensive contact lens program
2 Emergency eye care delivered at UHS, is a covered benefit if you are a student plan member
3 Savings on eyeglasses from participating opticians are available if you are a student and have a complete optometric examination at UHS
4 We can obtain almost any contact lens in the U.S.A.
5 On-site contact lens specialist.
6 Free sample start-up contact lens solutions.
7 Contact lenses can be mailed directly to you, free postage for normal delivery
8 Same day replacement of contact lenses, in many cases, due to our large in-house inventory
9 We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
10 Convenient hours and location.

University Health Services
549-2671 X244

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals, this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the ad filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities	Miscellaneous
Announcements	Personals
Apartment For Rent	Room For Rent
Auto For Sale	Room Wanted
Employment	Roommate Wanted
Entertainment	Services
For Sale	Summer Sublet
Found (2 days Free)	To Sublet
Happy Birthday	Travel
Houses For Rent	Transportation
Instruction	Wanted to Rent
Lost	Wanted
Musicians

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CHINESE FOOD
Sunday through ... and Friday and ... 545-2714

APARTMENT FOR RENT

2-bedr apartment well kept, fully furnished, ... on bus route Jan 1st. 256-6808

Beautiful ... ideal for grad student ... Amherst. Large bedroom with ... $625/month 253-7...

2 bedroom apartment, for rent starting ... bedrooms on bus line near ... Contact Roger 549-8415

2 bedroom ... townhouse. Colonial Village ... on bus. Call Cindy 549-1802

2 bedroom Deluxe apts Newly remodeled ... shower. Hardwood floors ... Minutes from UMass on bus ... Not luxury available call now for ... spring or summer. 665-3906

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 Ford Probe Excellent condition ... under warranty. Only 51,000 miles. New ... Must sell before ... $7400 obo. Call 549-3046

1986 Toyota Pickup 95000 mi. Runs good $600. 323-5969

1988 Mercury Tracer Manitou SW. Low ... miles, auto. Asking $1,500 Call 253-...

90 Isuzu Trooper 4wd. Sport. Fully Loaded ... Runs great. $7995 549-8240

EMPLOYMENT

BABSON COLLEGE BOOKSTORE

Help Wanted at Babson College Bookstore from mid December until late January. $5.00 per hour. Call 617-239-4376

Activity coordinators & limo drivers/attendants. Ath college grads. Energetic and warm at some of Vermont's finest resort hosts! National recreation company. Know escorting applications for their spring training class beginning January 22nd. Broaden your education in the hospitality industry at just vacation a resume builder!! Fully furnished apts & $150 monthly stipend! Call 800-864-8782 for more information and application

C/C++ programmer for part time to full time position. Macintosh programming experience preferred. Apply to ACI, 131 Triangle St Amherst, Ma 01002. Phone 549-0101

Christmas/January break help wanted starting rate $10.25. Local branches of international firm has several openings. Earn $800-$1600 during 2-6 week work program. Perfect time. Flexible schedule. Ideal for resume. Secure summer position with. Advancement opportunities. Internship possible. Apply now! Begin after finals. For openings call greater Boston/Framingham Woburn/North shore 617-338-0401 617-449-5255 Worcester/Leominster 508-757-7000

Drivers, work study & responsible ... Apply 545-0555

Environmental Jobs ... career hour ... earn $275-$375/week working to save the environment with Mainpirg. Great for ... atmosphere. Call (800) 724-6434

Full/Part Time ... opportunity in ... sales making ... Call Danielle A (508) 266-8983

January Job for 5 weeks. Child care for 10 year old. 5-11pm M-F $400.00 + room. Amherst Center. Reliable. References required. 253-2424

Travel Abroad and Work. Make up to $25-$45/hr teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan or S Korea. No ... work with jobs sent to the top. Use your superb skills as a communicator or salesperson. Romance guaranteed. Contract openings and fun meetings are best postponed until after the holidays.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put your best foot forward today. Be sensible in your job expectations. Short trips or meetings with VIPs could produce mixed results. Postpone making a final decision about an income producing venture.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): All systems go! Where career or financial initiatives are concerned, listen to your mate's excellent suggestions. Go for the gold in both business and the arts.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An artistic project could lead to a new hobby or profession. Get together with someone who has played a large role in your financial affairs. Romance will heat up when you display greater independence.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You and your mate are on the same wavelength today. Discuss any financial decisions that must be made. Writing long overdue letters will bring someone special back into your life.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The momentum continues following yesterday's exciting developments. You can make tremendous advances now if you have faith. Avoid both mental burnout and emotional clashes. Run those errands that are absolutely necessary before going home.

PERSONALS

Congratulations to the new sisters of AXO Anne, Heather, Jodie, Cortney, Stacey and Shannon

My dearest Jacob Milk is too old for me. I prefer someone younger, someone like you. Your Pierced Goddess

ROOM WANTED

Female seeking ... own bedroom in apt/house. Needed immediately for spring semester. 549-8285

ROOM FOR RENT

Looking for upbeat female to share 2 bedroom apt. Available Jan 1 - Aug. 275/mo negotiable Call 549-4835

One bedroom in a five bedroom house. Smoking OK. $270 per month. 256-4295

1 room available in 5 bedroom house. January-August. Next to Amethyst Brook conservation area. $275+ Call 253-9081

One room in South Amherst with three men. three minutes from U Mass. $230 rent. Call Mike 253-1984

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted for spring semester, single bedroom in 3 bedroom apt. 2 full baths located on bus route. Heat and hot water included. Call 256-0947

Female roommate wanted to share a big room in a house with three upbeat girls close to campus. Please call 549-6542

Roommate wanted to share a conveniently located (1/2 mile to UMass and center of Amherst), beautiful 3 bedroom, 2-1/2 bath condo at Amity Place. Laundry, fireplace, central air, patio, full kitchen, and great sunset views! Must be responsible, ... cat-loving ... non-smoker. $425-00/month plus ... Available January 1, 1996. Contact Gary at 549-3886

Roommate wanted non-smoker to share room for Spring semester $185 per month. On bus route. Start Jan 1st. Call Anne 253-1605 heat & hot water included

Roommate wanted for open bedroom on Brandywine. Heat & hot water included. Starts Jan 1. Call Andy 549-5747

Two singles available in a four bedroom for spring semester. All utilities included. On bus route. Call 253-1861

SERVICES

Free financial aid! Over 6 billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships is now available. All students are eligible regardless of grades, income, or parent's income. Let us help. Call Student Financial Services 1-800-263-6495 ext. F50012

NEED HELP MOVING?
Quick movers & storage Move over Rover let Jims take over! 256-1300

Need help moving? Buying a new bed? Trash to dispose of? I have a pickup truck and am available year round. Please book early for end of semester moves. Hourly rates. Page anytime 292-0065

RESUME
Inexpensive professional resume services. Packages $15-$30. Only at Colleges Design and Copy - The affordable alternative. Upstairs in the Student Union. 545-2271

Jewelry repairs watch batteries, eyeglass frame repair, and ear piercing. Silverscape Designs 264 N. Pleasant St Amherst 253-3324

Pregnant? Need help? Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906

FOR RENT

Typ 300 sy Be creative to earn big money. Call 253-5762

FOR SALE

SKIS FOR SALE
Rossignol Vc3 1796 Brand new, still encased in plastic. Call Eric 549-8354

Akeia girl honoring skiers wrestlers mens 28 (may also fit 8 1/2) Must sell cheap 549-1736

Kogarashi $200. 2 year old iguana 4' x 2' tank all supplies incl. $200 specialized heaters for mountain bike $175 or bo 549-9166 (Larry or Denise)

Mens Lange Ski Ski boots size 11 Skiing $55 Call 546-5215

Women s 4Z ... salomon skis 170 s Bindings & poles included. Asking $200 or ... Call 546-7444

Mac Jas Computer System $1095/$205 Keyboard CPU monitor Call Steve (413) 466-3324

LOST

Lost Brief shaped turquoise earrings of sentimental value. Contact Dave at 545-1980

TO SUBLET

LOTS OF FREE BEER
Well not really I'm looking for a place to stay over winter/season. If you can help me call Billy @ 546-0409

2W + 1M (RA's) Want winter session housing in Amherst. Call Andy 6-4706

Four bedroom apt for winter break. Rent one room or whole place! Cheap! Call 253-1861

International Students looking for 2 bedrooms for winter break. Please call Sabeena @ 545-3110

Looking for Apt/bedroom to sublet. Jan-mature responsible male needs place to stay over intersession. Call Bill at 546-2077

Tire for Joe Main st Noho $180 more info Call 582-9874

TRANSPORTATION

Need a ride to Florida? I have the perfect style/car. Deliver my car to Ft Lauderdale. Call Anne 413-626-3878

Need a ride to Florida? I'm driving to Florida Dec 24 & I need someone to accompany me. Call Susan 549-6139

Ride needed to Western NY (Rich, Buff, Syr) Dec 20 or 21st - Christy 256-0898

TRAVEL

JAMAICA
Go with whom you know Spring break in Negril- $549! U Mass Ski Club 545-3437 Trust our experience

Catch a jet! Cancun/Mexico $189 r/t, Europe $189. Call $129. Call Airtech for more info! 800-326-2009

Going home for the holidays? Need a ride to the airport? Call Valley Transporter Airport shuttle. Hourly service to Bradley. Affordable: door to door. Advance reservations 549-1350

Ski & Snowboard Winter break & spring break '96. Intercollegiate ski weeks, only $219. Includes 5 day lift tickets, 5 nights lodging (luxury condo), 5 days intercollegiate activities (drinking age-18). Sponsors include: Molson & Labatts, Mt. Oxford, Canada (just across the Vermont border) group leader/rep discounts. Call Ski Travel Unlimited 1-800-999-SKI

Spring Break Bahamas or Florida Keys. Spend it on your own private yacht. One week only $385.00 per person including food and much more. Organizers go for free! Easy Sailing Yacht Charters 1-800-783-4001. See us on the net: http://www.shadow.net/ersael

Winter Break Special Killington week $288! Interested? Call the U Mass Ski Club 545-3437

Collegian Graphics
We just work here (and only on weekdays)

The Daily Collegian
Bringing you the latest in up-to-date recent current fresh news and information.
Regardless of redundancy

HOROSCOPE
BY JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Health ... special attention ... and dental check ups ... activities give you credit for ... Tangible rewards are forthcoming.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Creative ... career prospects a ... Someone influential is ... role/status situation. ... open. Follow up and you will ... long on the ladder of success.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): ... be key to new business ... A phone call or letter is a ... Play a waiting game if a ... erratically. Try your ... writing.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): A weekend ... advance your professional aims ... and social aspirations ... interrelated. Use gentle ... month over a rocky relationship.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You have a ... about what to initiate right ... can not agree. A discussion ... friendship helps you see ... getting in a new light. Make a ... decision.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A loved ... risk-watching questions about a ... matter or special possession. ... you've got can serve a useful ... Avoid acting ...

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Hard ...

Monday Ticker

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Market closes as of 4 p.m. December 11

Index	Close	Change
Dow Jones Industrial Average	5,184.32	+27.36
Standard & Poor's 500	619.52	+2.04
Nasdaq Composite Index	1061.49	-0.92
AMSE Index	535.65	+0.10

I checked in to the Rusty Nail Motel and asked the owner if he knew of any swinging sushi bar deli joints where I could hook up with a fix of Taka Maki and Knockwurst on Rye. "The eternal question," he said, "is how to get the mouse out of the bottle." I thanked the wise old man and checked into room six sixty six. I opened up my suit case cum brown paper bag and pulled out the Collegian. "We put the mouse in the bottle."

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: ____ Date: ____ Taken By: ____

Date(s) to run: ____ Headline: ____

Total Days: ____ X ____ Words: = ____ X rate ____ = ____ Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): ____ Authorized signature: ____

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Daily Crossword
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Most recent
7 Editor's keep 11 Dawdle
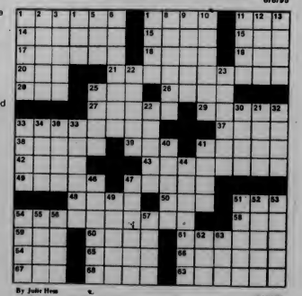
14 To-do
15 Shape for a diamond
16 The whole 9 yards
17 Daisy
18 Followed by freeze or climax
19 One-third of a comic trio
20 Tiny Dickens character
21 Badinage
24 Six ft. = 2
25 Likely
26 Merely
27 "Merry Widow" composer
29 Brilliant success
33 Eyelash enhancers
37 Place to find the Blarney Stone
38 Pop singer Billy
39 Zero
41 Hominid
42 Sound from a broken egg?
43 Lease, for one
45 — Van Halen
47 Concrete strengthener
48 Legend
50 Red or army
51 Sci. place or dog
54 Good-humored comment
58 Annex
59 Crimson
60 Corner
61 Soporific
64 Keats opus
65 Custard ingredients
66 Sciatic and optic
67 Barrie's Peter
68 Hinds
69 Navigates

DOWN
1 Robust
2 Plant pest
3 Streetcars
4 Goddess of dawn
5 Occupied a chair
6 — John of "M*A*S*H"
7 Rigging for a sloop
8 Desk lamp, sometimes
9 Send for pizza
10 Toy with
11 Tibetan holy man
12 A bump on —
13 Triumphant emotion
22 Green Mountain boy Allen
23 Lecture hall
25 Actor Alda
28 Stage whisper
30 Citrus tree
31 Islands near Galway
32 Camper's shelter
33 Suffer the blues
34 Did well on a test
35 "Fertilize" a rain cloud
36 Companion to per
40 Kind of pneumonia
41 John, Mary Beth or William
44 Rivers run through these
46 Spring holiday
47 Go back on a promise
49 Key —, Florida
51 Part of AWOL
52 Change
53 Bestow divine favor
54 Shore up
55 Mother of Castor and Pollux
56 Original garden
57 Hardy heroine
62 Sandy or Garfield
63 Pique

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

V	A	M	P		P	A	R	E	D		A	H	A	B
A	R	A	L		O	B	E	S	E		B	A	R	A
T	A	K	E	I	T	E	A	S	Y		A	R	E	S
M	E	A	N	T	L	E	S	S			S	O	A	K
			F	E	L	I	X		L	E	B
H	A	H	A		D	A	S		L	E	D	O	F	F
A	L	A	R	M		S	T	A	A	T		I	R	E
T	O	R	M	E	N	T		D	O	U	B	L	E	R
E	N	D		T	O	S	C	A		P	R	E	E	N
S	E	W	A	R	D		H	I	P		A	D	D	S
		O	S	S		C	A	R	A	T
B	A	R	S		R	L	S		D	O	N	U	T
L	I	K	E		E	A	S	Y		D	O	E	S	I T
O	D	E	R		A	R	I	E	L		A	M	M	O
W	A	R	T		P	O	S	S	E		R	A	S	P

6/6/95



By Jude Hess
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate
6/6/95

Don't Go There By K & Justine

HEY BRIAN, WHAT'S THIS DATING CLUB CARD IN YOUR WALLET? ISN'T THAT INFRINGING ON SOMEONE'S RIGHTS?
HUH?
I MEAN, WHAT IF YOU WERE GAY AND SOMEONE OUTED YOU IN A PLACE THAT WAS DANGEROUS, AND YOU DON'T EVEN KNOW THEM?
WHAT IF THAT PERSON IS NOT FRIENDLY? DO YOU SPY ON THEM?
WHY DO THESE THINGS MATTER SO MUCH? WHY DO YOU INSIST ON RELATING TO A CLUB LIKE THIS?
...NOTHING MORE THAN YOU TALKING ABOUT IT'S AN OUTDOOR CLUB! WE GO FISHING AND HIKING - THERE ARE NO POLITICS IN NATURE!
OH, SORRY. HERE'S YOUR WALLET.

Small Potato By Jon Art

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

WHAT HAPPENED? WHAT AM I DOING HERE?
I HAD TO KIDNAP YOU BECAUSE I WAS SHORT A REINDEER
BUT I'M A MOOSE... NOT A REINDEER!
I DON'T CARE...I'M DESPERATE... I'LL TAKE ANYTHING WITH ANTLERS!
DO YOU SEE... ANYTHING WITH ANTLERS?
THAT'S WHAT I SAID
SO WHERE IS THIS COSTUME PARTY?
RIGHT THIS WAY, DUDE
SCHNEIDER 1995

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

Leold
by Roger & Salem Salloom

Leold was especially struck by his first lesson in his psychology 101 class as taught by Mr. Smokey Robinson on the subject of obsessive-compulsive disorder as it might manifest itself in a powerful love addiction.

I don't like you, but I love you seems like I'm always thinking of you.
Oh, oh, oh, you treat me badly,
I love you madly.
You really got a hold on me.

I don't want you, but I need you don't want to kiss you, but I need to Oh, oh, oh, you do me wrong now my love is strong now.

I don't want to leave you, don't want to stay here
don't want to spend another day here
Oh, oh, oh, I want to split now
I can't quit now.

You really got a hold on me,
You really got a hold on me.... Baby!
I love you and all I want you to do is Hold me, Hold me, Hold me.

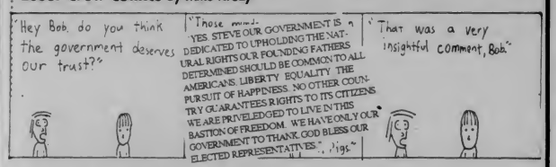
Close to Home By John McPherson

"To discourage anybody from shaking the gifts, one of those boxes has been filled with hornets. Yep, I hate to think what those hornets might do if anybody shook their box."

Ali People By Ali

One day, My friend Jeff and I went to the Smith Vocational farm to see the animals...
There was a sheep dog there that let me dance with it...
La La La!
Jeff brought his camera and asked me to take a picture of him next to a huge pigs bum! This is what the picture looked like! Gross!

Loser Crew Comics By Mike Krozy



Hey Bob, do you think the government deserves our trust??
"Those men... YES, STEVE OUR GOVERNMENT IS DEDICATED TO UPHOLDING THE NATURAL RIGHTS OUR FOUNDING FATHERS DETERMINED SHOULD BE COMMON TO ALL AMERICANS. LIBERTY. EQUALITY. THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS. NO OTHER COUNTRY GUARANTEES RIGHTS TO ITS CITIZENS WE ARE PRIVILEDGED TO LIVE IN THIS BASTION OF FREEDOM. WE HAVE ONLY OUR GOVERNMENT TO THANK. GOD BLESS OUR ELECTED REPRESENTATIVES", "Pigs"
That was a very insightful comment, Bob.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Matt Vautaur
Copy Editor	Mike MacLean
Photo Technician	Emily Reily
Production Supervisor	Marc Dionne
	Kathryn Gracia
Production	Dmitry Abramson

Bruno By C. Baldwin

OH, HEY BRUNO, COME ON IN.
YES, THAT WOULD BE...NICE, BUT FIRST...YOU GOTTA CONFESS, YOU THINK I'M AN IDIOT, DON'T YOU
OH...YOU'RE NOT A BEER? DRUNK TONIGHT, ARE YOU?
YOU'RE DODGING MY QUESTION!
YOU'RE NOT AN IDIOT, NANCY, COME ON...WAIT...HI JEREMY WELL, FIRST...IS JEREMY HOME? OH, YOU'RE...WAIT...HI JEREMY HI BRUNO. HAVE WE BEEN DRINKING?
WHO'S THIS "WE", SOBER-BOY?

Dining Commons Menu

Today

LUNCH	DINNER
Fish & Tarter Sauce	Veal Pattie
Tri County Fair Sand.	Turkey Dinner
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Fish & Tarter Sauce	Colache
Lemon Grill Burger	Turkey Dinner

Wednesday

LUNCH	DINNER
Hot Hero Sand	Roast Pork
Chicken Cutl. Sand.	Chicken Tenders
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Bean Casserole	Potato Mushroom Cass.
Chicken Cutl. Sand.	Chicken Tenders

Thursday

LUNCH	DINNER
Mac & Cheese	Glazed Chicken
Hamburger	Fettuccini & Sausage
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
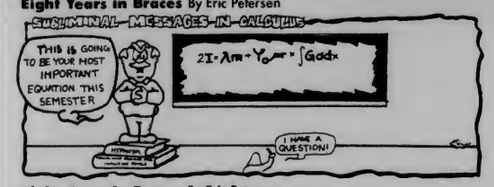
Mac & Cheese	Glazed Chicken
Black Eyed Peas	Fettuccini & Tofu

Eight Years in Braces By Eric Petersen



SUBLIMINAL MESSAGES IN CALCULUS
THIS IS GOING TO BE YOUR MOST IMPORTANT EQUATION THIS SEMESTER
2I=Am+Yo=∫Godx
I HAVE A QUESTION!

Eight Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

Buttah By Darling

MEANWHILE.....
"Hi Boy Bathing
Oh! Hi Dale! How are you? Thats nice. I have a problem! We did a TATOR BOY show last night and there was NO ONE there! Why do you think??
Oh. No. It must be our lack of advertising
"Cause you suck?"
SES

Not eVeryone is Straight - and neither is the Collegian!

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Needs Writers...Gay Straight, and In... Learn For News ...

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Questions you'll never hear Barbara Walters say during an interview

10. Do you wear boxers or briefs?
9. How do they get Teflon to stick to the pan?
8. Have you had your break today?
7. Paper or plastic?
6. Should I fake my orgasms?
5. What do you think is going to happen to Ross and Rachel?
4. Why is the title of your new book "Justice Shmustice", O.J.?
3. Will you give me oral pleasure?
2. Give me one more response like that and I'll kick your ambiguous answerin' ass out the window!
1. Ohhh... Urkel!

Quote of the Day

"There is no such thing as a nice guy, only a guy you don't know very well."

–David Agin

Sports

Associated Press Top 25 – Men's Basketball

1 Kansas	6 Memphis	11 Wake Forest	16 Illinois	21 Duke
2 Villanova	7 Georgetown	12 Cincinnati	17 VA Tech	22 Santa Clara
3 UMass	8 Connecticut	13 Utah	18 Michigan	23 Virginia
4 Arizona	9 Iowat	14 Missouri	19 GA Tech	24 UCLA
5 Kentucky	10 N Carolina	15 Mississippi	20 Louisville	25 Syracuse

Minutemen host UNC–Wilmington, look to go 6–0

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

After opening the season with four out of five games that were contested until the final minutes, the 5–0 Massachusetts men's basketball team will take on what should be its easiest opponent of the season so far. North Carolina–Wilmington arrives at the William D. Mullins Center tonight for a 9:30 p.m. tip–off.

The Seahawks (2–4) out of the Colonial Athletic Association, are not as talented on paper as the Kentucky and Wake Forest opposition that the Minutemen have already faced early in the 1995–96 campaign.

UNC–Wilmington is lead by 6–foot–4 sophomore guard Mark Byington who averages 12 points a game along with 2.5 assists. His backcourt mate Lamont Franklin has dished out 3.5 assists per game.

The Seahawks also boast a 6–foot–11 250 pound center to match up against Marcus Camby, in the form of Preston McGriff. The senior big man averages 8.5 rebounds per contest to go along with nearly 12 points while hitting more than 50 percent of his shots from the floor.

The Minutemen are holding their opposition to a 39.5 shooting percentage, while knocking down baskets from the floor at a 42.8 percent clip.

UMass is also doing the little things on the court to help win ball games. Coach John Calipari's squad is shooting better than 80 percent from the charity stripe, including Donta Bright who is shooting a remarkable 91.4 percent from the free–throw line. The co–captain has also hit 54.4 of his attempts from the field.

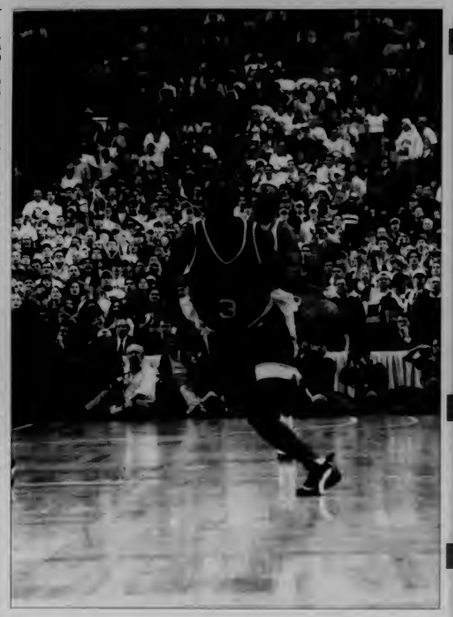
The Minutemen are also outrebounding the competition by nearly 10 boards a game. When outrebounding its opponent over the last four years UMass is 66–4.

Dana Dingle is the leading the team pulling down nine boards a contest. Taking care of the ball is also a strong suit for UMass, as it has turned the ball over just 12 times a game.

Although there are many other positives to go along with the ones stated above, answers to lingering questions are still being sought out by the Minuteman coaching staff.

Through five games, the five UMass starters have scored 93 percent of the teams points. Only junior forward Tyrone Weeks has contributed points off the bench in more than one game. Also with Rigoberto Nunez filling in when Carmelo Travieso takes a breather, the offense seems to stagger a bit. With the Seahawks in Amherst, the Minutemen will attempt to iron those wrinkles out.

This will be the first ever meeting between the two universities men's basketball teams however, they do share something in common. Current UMass coach John Calipari was a scholarship player for the Seahawks in his freshman and suphomore years of college before moving on to finish his collegiate career at Clarion State (Pa).



DAYMON SMITH/ COLLEGIAN

Dana Dingle will look to pull down some boards and boost the team's win streak to six as they host UNC– Wilmington tonight at the Mullins Center.

Game Preview

No 3 UMASS MINUTEMEN vs UNC Wilmington SEAHAWKS

AT THE MULLINS CENTER

Marcus Camby

Preston McGriff

Probable Starters

Dana Dingle	F	Billy Donlan
Donta Bright	F	Darren Moore
Marcus Camby	C	Preston McGriff
Edgar Padilla	G	Mark Byington
Carmelo Travieso	C	Lamont Franklin

On The Air

TV: ESPN2
Radio: 91.1 WMUA Mike Brown and Brad Davidson
99.3 WHMP Mark Vandemeer, Jack Leaman and Tony Barbee

A Stanley Cup trade?

It won't be long before Winnipeg jets off to Phoenix, so before you can say Charles Barkley, Martin Luther King or Diamondbacks, there will be all of five NHL franchises left in the league's place of origin, that country called Canada.

The total was reduced to six shortly after the end of the shortened 1994–95 season, when a wealthy corporation called COMSAT spent the GNP of Djibouti to move the Quebec Nordiques to Denver.

Now they're called the Avalanche.

Kottler on the NHL

and come May they may well be called Stanley Cup Champions. This is no expansion team, the Avalanche, it's got everything known to be necessary for taking hockey's highest honor now that Patrick Roy has traded in the bleu, blanc et rouge of Les Habitants for the same three shades (slightly modified) of the Colorado sweater.

Ah, but wait, isn't there another team that thought it inked itself a championship with a big signing of its own? No, he isn't a goalie, but Kevin Stevens was supposed to make the Boston Bruins a lot better. Granted, he wasn't joining as complete a team as Colorado's, but the parallel can still be drawn: Roy hasn't done anything yet but lose his debut.

Perhaps in no other sport besides hockey does the regular season provide such a sharp contrast to the playoffs. Last season, Quebec made mince meat of the Eastern Conference en route to the second–best record in the league, only to be bounced by the Rangers in the first post–season round.

All through the year Stephane Fiset and Jocelyn Thibault played great in goal, posting incredible numbers. But neither had any playoff experience, and it showed, especially in Fiset.

Colorado's inaugural campaign has mirrored Quebec's last in almost every way. Thibault, traded with two others for Roy, was struggling, but Fiset was terrifically consistent. Now he's a backup; does that make sense? No one has raised his game on the road to the Cup higher than Roy, but is that a guarantee he'll do it again?

Turn to NHL, page10

Hockey to play rare midweek game tonight

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

College hockey is usually a sport for the weekend warriors, as the majority of the contests take place on Friday and Saturday nights. But tonight, the Massachusetts Minutemen will play a rare midweek game as they head to Troy, NY. for a battle with The Engineers of Rensselaer.

This will be the third consecutive ECAC opponent for the Minutemen. UMass downed Yale 4–0 on Friday, before dropping a Saturday night heartbreaker to the No. 6 Vermont Catamounts, 4–3. UMass will face–off against two other ECAC opponents, (Princeton and Cornell) as well as an international opponent (either Finland or Slovakia), before returning to the Hockey East schedule Jan. 9 against the Maine Black Bears.

"We want to build momentum between RPI, Princeton and Cornell." said Massachusetts coach Joe Mallen. "We want to try to gets some wins in there."

RPI enters the game with a record of 4–8–1, somewhat of a disappointment after high expectations entering the season. But the Engineers are coming off of a 5–3 win over a talented Cornell squad at home, and also came with in one goal of nationally ranked Vermont.

Rensselaer is 0–1 against Hockey East opponents going into the game, with a 5–3 loss to UMass–Lowell and a 2–2 tie with Merrimack.

Much like the Vermont squad that UMass played last weekend, RPI relies heavily on one line for offensive output. The first line of seniors Bryan Richardson (6–17–23) and Tim Regan (7–12–19) and sophomore Eric Healey (12–7–19) have combined for almost half of the Engineers' goals on the season.

"It takes it's toll," Mallen said. "You play games back–to– back and there are a lot of guys walking around with ice bags on Sunday and Monday morning."

As of yesterday evening, Mallen has yet to decide on the netminder for the contest, a decision made more difficult by the fact that both David Kilduff and Brian Regan turned in impressive performances in their respective games this weekend.

In goal, after an solid junior season a year ago, senior goaltender Mike Tamburro has struggled this season with a 2–7–1 record to go along with a 3.69 goals against average. Sophomore goalie Bryan Masotta has been better in the win– loss department, but also has a lofty 4.71 goals against average.

With his team in the middle of three games in five days, Mallen's troops are a little banged up. Dean Campanale, who scored three goals last weekend, and senior alternate captain Mike Evans are both hurting and could be potential scratches.

"It takes it's toll," Mallen said. "You play games back–to– back and there are a lot of guys walking around with ice bags on Sunday and Monday morning."

As of yesterday evening, Mallen has yet to decide on the netminder for the contest, a decision made more difficult by the fact that both David Kilduff and Brian Regan turned in impressive performances in their respective games this weekend.

COURTESY OF MEDIA RELATIONS

Jaynen Rissling and the men's hockey team travel to Rochester, NY this evening to face the Engineers of RPI looking to improve on their 7–6 record.

Tarkanian still hurts the game

He's back.

Jerry Tarkanian. Tark the Shark. The former coach of the famously flashy UNLV Runnin' Rebels is back.

Yeah, he coached at Long Beach State. He also had a brief stint with the San Antonio Spurs. And of course, there was his part in Honeymoon in Vegas.

And now Jerry Tarkanian is back

Casey Kane on College Basketball

on the hoop scene. He's taken over the head coaching responsibilities at his alma mater, Fresno State. And, this is the part I find unbelievable, he's on the ballot for induction into the Basketball Hall of Fame.

What?!

Am I missing something here?

Play word association games with Tarkanian's name and the first answers you're likely to hear are corrupt and crooked. The man is synonymous with NCAA investigations and violations.

And now he's coaching again.

The people of Fresno lobbied hard for Tarkanian's hiring. Thousands of bumper stickers were printed, and the local newspaper carried any developments as the top story for weeks.

I guess it makes sense. Tarkanian carries with him the highest winning percentage in college hoop history. People know about the success UNLV had in the early nineties. And although Tarkanian had an abysmal showing in the NBA, people still believe that Tark and winning go hand in hand.

As Darnell McCulloch, a forward on the Bulldog team, said, Fresno State is "big–time now."

But can he ever escape controversy? Before the season even began at Fresno St., Tarkanian had been scrutinized by the NCAA.

He was questioned for allegedly watching his players prior to the Oct. 15 start date for practices. Apparently, Tark was getting a manicure at the very same health club his players were working out in. Hmmm...

Nothing ever came of the situation, other than the solidification of the

Turn to HOOPS, page 10

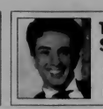
The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 67 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday, December 13, 1995

On the road again
Sabriya Mitchell and the Minutewomen basketball team will try to win their first road game as they travel to St. Peter's tonight (See Sports, Page 12.)

Who said, "brothers can't chill on ice?"
Take a look at the impact that blacks have made in the world of pro and college ice hockey (See Black Affairs, page 5).



The Long and Short of Things
Martin Short talks to our own Laura Stock about his career and new film Father of the Bride II (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Extended Forecast
Keep those winter hats out because the cold weather is predicted to continue with temperatures barely reaching into the upper 20s. There will be a chance of snow on Thursday and later on in the week.

Wed.	Thurs.	Fri.
HIGH: 25 LOW: 10	HIGH: 25 LOW: 5	HIGH: 30 LOW: 10

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Jingle bells...
The Amherst Regional High School Choral performed some of their favorite hymns to people walking through the Campus Concourse yesterday afternoon.

Asian students, police dispute facts in assault

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Members of the Asian community say the victim in an assault that happened early last Wednesday morning was Asian, and that the beating was racially motivated. However, according to Associate Director of the Police Department Phil Cavanaugh, the victim was a white male.

What the police categorized as the "assault with a dangerous weapon" took place after another encounter. The original victim became the assailant, and the assailant became the victim, assuming the Asian victim–turned– assailant is correct.

The University police and the Asian American Student Association are looking at different parts of the total episode: the Asian community is emphasizing their belief that this started as a racial attack and the police are emphasizing the more physically serious injuries in the second assault.

There was an Asian and a white victim. The white victim, however, received a "serious laceration at the back of his head and a possible concussion," according to Cavanaugh.

The original victim–turned–assailant, Soden Tek, has complained of bumps and bruises, body aches and "severe breathing problems due to punches and kicking... pains in [his] left ear from students kicking me with their boots."

The snowball fight

It was the night of the second Phish concert at the William D. Mullins Center, and one of the first big snowfalls of the year. The University Police Department had been responding to numerous medical emergencies and "disorderly persons" at the concert.

Then, with the snow, a campus–wide snowball fight started near Sylvan Residential Area and moved toward Southwest, growing as it went along, according to student witnesses. The crowd grew more violent as it reached Southwest, where windows were broken in several buildings, according to Cavanaugh.

Almost an hour after the worst of the snowball fights in Southwest Residential Area, student Kan Thach was giving his friend, Tek, a ride home from a late tutoring session. As they turned the corner by the Newman Center, the vehicle was "bombarded by snowballs," according to Tek.

Thach allegedly stopped the vehicle because he was "startled," and said he opened the trunk to frighten the snowball throwers.

According to the two Asian males in the vehicle, there were 200–300 students near the car.

"I got out [of] the car at this point because I felt that they wouldn't return, but as the crowd turned back towards Thach and they saw that he only had an ice scraper in his hand, they returned," Tek wrote in a statement about the incidents.

A white student allegedly hit Tek in the ear with a snowball, according to Tek, who said he believes the laughter he heard at that point came from the same student.

"He continually laughed at me while I touched the area that had been struck... " Tek wrote. "I was only able to grasp hold of his jacket,

Turn to ATTACK, page 3

UMass grad recounts years in Chinese labor camp

By Matthew Pottinger
Collegian Staff

If Xiao Xiaoda hadn't mistaken Chairman Mao's portrait for a paper towel, he may never have arrived at a career in writing.

Xiao, who just received a Master's Degree from the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts program, spent five years in a prison labor camp during China's Cultural Revolution for wiping up a spilled drink with a portrait of Mao Tse–tung.

From his home in Amherst, he now draws upon his own experience to write fiction depicting the monotony, hunger and hardship of life at hard labor during one of China's most turbulent periods in recent history.

Xiao Xiaoda (pronounced Sha–ou Sha–ou–DA) was 19 years old in 1970 when he and several friends held a gathering in his room in Shanghai. Tipsy from wine, he knocked over his drink. In a sudden gesture Xiao insists was devoid of any political meaning, he grabbed the portrait of Chinese leader Mao Tse–tung from the wall and wiped up the mess.

"Everyone in the room agreed, 'This is only between us,'" Xiao said. He and his friends resolved to burn the poster and dispose of the ashes.

Branded a "Counterrevolutionary"

It was not until months later when one of the friends was led to admit the incident in a "study session" where students were pressured into confessing their ideological sins. Xiao was soon brought to a study session himself.

"I tried my best to explain that it had nothing to do with politics. I was an artist—— a musician— and it was only by accident that I did that," Xiao said.

The person in charge of the session was a reasonable man, according to Xiao, and set him free on account of how young Xiao was. But, as Xiao explained, "there were a lot of political sub–campaigns within the Cultural Revolution.

"In the autumn of 1971 they were talking about United States President Nixon coming to visit China," he said, laughing at the irony of the circumstances which changed his life. A political campaign was begun to purge the society of "class enemies" in order to avoid any risk of demonstrations that might embarrass the Communist Party during Nixon's visit.

The campaign established quotas for arresting "counterrevolutionaries and reactionaries," and Shanghai, traditionally distrusted by the authorities in Beijing as being a bastion for bourgeois conduct, was hit especially hard. The district in which Xiao lived saw 5 percent of its total population detained by authorities. He was among those arrested.

A Chinese 1984

"I recognized people in prison," Xiao said. Laughing, he remarked on how he encountered his middle school music teacher soon after his imprisonment.

After waiting in a cell for over a month, he was handed down a five–year sentence for "attacking the bright image of our Great Leader." He served the term of his sentence in a labor camp quarrying rocks.

"The first day I was there, I remember the chief looked at me and said 'you're so young, what are you doing here?'" When Xiao replied that he had been convicted as a "counter–revolutionary," the chief informed him that he had ordered two counter–revolutionaries shot earlier that day.

"The labor camp had the authority to kill prisoners," he said.

"I think if you've read the novel 1984 by George Orwell, there are some similarities, " Xiao said, "but the Cultural Revolution was much worse."

At the time of his internment, he said that he had to contend with a sense of guilt over what he had done, and that he felt fortunate to have been dealt with so "leniently" in contrast to others who had committed similar political crimes. He said his mother, ostracized by neighbors wanting to avoid any association with the relative of a counterrevolutionary, also suffered from feelings of guilt over having given birth to him.

After his release in 1978, Xiao was dismayed by accounts, both fictional an autobiographical, of people's experiences in labor reform camps. The stories, in order to pass the scrutiny of government censors, glossed–over the daily reality of hunger, back–breaking labor, and suspicion between fellow inmates, he said.

Such unrealistic accounts was one of the factors contributing to his eventual decision to begin writing about his own experiences.

Xiao recalls comparing his experiences with those of his friends— a process which he says helped him keep a sense of humor.

"Discussing the Cultural Revolution was no longer a serious problem," he said. "In Shanghai, a friend of mine said, 'You were so stupid, you got five years just for [ruining one portrait].'" Xiao's friend then went on to joke about how he had used an entire book of Mao's sayings as toilet paper without getting caught.

After training as an architect and working for several years in China, Xiao came to the United States in 1988 to join the graduate writing program at UMass. His stories, which he describes as "simple and straightforward," have appeared in The Atlantic Monthly and other literary journals. He is currently seeking to publish a collection of stories based on his experiences during the Cultural Revolution called The Visiting Suit and Other Stories.

Xiao spoke of how difficult it was to get his stories published when he still lived in China— editors of prominent literary magazines, though impressed with his talent, were loathe to risk angering the authorities. Although he says he would still like to expand his readership within China, the government is not the only obstacle preventing him from reaching a wider audience.

"It's different today. Now the most

Turn to CHINA, page 8

Honors program offers a chance to meet professors

By Andy Ahn
Collegian Correspondent

Pizza and Prof Nights, sponsored by the Honors Program, have given many students on campus the luxury of listening to some University of Massachusetts professors talk about different topics in our society.

Journalism Professor Howard Ziff, Biology Professor Peter Alpert and Marketing Professor Charles Schewe were some of the few professors who spoke to students at seminars this semester.

The main purpose of the program is to bring students together by serving Pizza Hut pizzas while having a friendly discussion with guest speakers, said Dana Dorman, the organizer and student coordinator of Pizza and Prof Nights.

"We want students to have fun and to learn at the same time," she said.

Dorman, a senior anthropology major, has been organizing the program now for three semesters.

"It's informal and it is very relaxing. We provide pizzas and drinks to those who come," she said.

Dorman said the program is not just for honor students but for anyone who is interested and wants to learn different things.

"The only problem is that we only allow about 30 students in each seminar," said Dorman. "So space is limited to those who are interested."

The last program was held last Thursday when History Professor Joyce Berkman brought her history 142H class in to perform a French Revolution play, called "Danton's Death."

"It was a different type of seminar compared to the others we've had so far. We usually have one speaker talking instead of an entire class talking," Dorman said.

The program was mandatory for fall first–year honor students this semester, including the one credit course called "Meet UMass," designed for those first–year students who wanted to be in the honors program.

"This mandatory program is fairly new to the honors program. We hope this program encourages many students to join the honors program," Dorman said.

The program this semester was held in 504 Goodell, outside of the honors lounge on Tuesdays or Thursdays, depending on the schedules of the professors who spoke.

"Spring semester dates have not been set yet but it will be less days than the fall semesters dates. For those who are interested contact Goodell because space is limited," Dorman said.

Hillel sponsors mini–mall in the Student Union

Like an exotic bazaar from a mythological Middle Eastern story, the goods stretch throughout the Student Union Building ballroom.

The vendors are there, selling the jewelry, clothes, music, posters and magazines as part of Hillel's annual fundraiser, the mini–mall.

The event is in the final of its three days and will be open until 5 p.m. tonight.

The fundraiser was organized by Hillel Secretary Andrea Mourad, who took over for long–time organizer Jessica Lopatin this year.

Hillel President Jaime Resnick said there were not many problems with the new organization except for the days on which the mall is running.

Resnick said Hillel had wanted to do the event at the end of the week because people tend to spend more money then, but had been unable to book the room.

He went on to describe the turnout as moderate.

"There are a few less [people]

Turn to MALL, page 3

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Walk–a–holics...
Students enjoy their last walking class in the Curry Hicks Cage yesterday afternoon.

New parents get support

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Correspondent

Parents of newborns up to three months old can get information about child rearing and postpartum issues at a free drop–in Good Start Parent Support Group.

"The first three months is a time for finding out how to care for a newborn baby," said program leader Maria Curtin– McKenna.

The program uses a proactive approach that brings up issues for parents before they experience depression from isolation and having no one to discuss parenting issues.

The program helps "families to be healthy by having a place to talk about issues," McKenna said.

"Postpartum is prime time for depression," she said.

Some postpartum issues include parental adjustment, sick child emergencies, different reasons for crying/colic, sleeping positions for newborns, sleeping patterns of parents and baby and considering a family bed versus a bassinet.

Healthy families are promoted by the program by having families exchange experiences about what families feel is normal newborn behavior. Parents help each other to eliminate extraordinary expectations of either themselves or child by understanding what the child can and cannot do.

"Whenever you have a parent who is healthy and their expectations of the child are healthy, then there is a better chance for the child to achieve its potential," McKenna said. "Healthy parents equal healthy children."

The program also covers the issues of newborn development stages, interacting with baby, changes in partner's relationships with each other, in–laws, and friends, father–child bonding, post–partum care of the mother, returning to work and childcare worries.

Group discussion, led by facilitators, revolves around a daily topic and comments drawn from the group. Most facilitators have a counseling background while others are volunteers.

McKenna noticed participant's attitude change with "more acceptance of themselves, of being good enough parents and knowing they are not alone."

Cooley Dickinson Hospital offers the program to parents every Thursday starting January 11, from 9:30 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. Transportation and childcare for older children is provided.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, Dec. 13

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Monday-Thursday 4 – 8 p.m.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Mini-Mall — UMass Hillel is sponsoring the 9th Annual Mini-Mall of vendors selling a variety of gift items from 9 a.m. – 5 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Thursday, Dec. 14

Gallery Exhibition — "Visual AIDS" is an exhibition of international posters that promote public awareness of the AIDS crisis and deepens compassion for people living with AIDS. Located in the Wheeler Gallery until Dec. 14. Gallery hours are Monday-Thursday 4 – 8 p.m.

Dance & Music — Grupo Sofrito. Latin jazz and dance music will perform in the Bluewall at 7:30 p.m. with free admission. Grupo Sofrito is brought by the UMass Drum and Dance Collective.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Study Break — The Stonewall Center is sponsoring a study break for five college GLBT students at 7 p.m. in the Stonewall Center. For more information call 545-4824.

Friday, Dec. 15

Community — Iumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Iumaa prayer service every Friday, at 12 p.m. Campus Center. For more information call Uzma at 256-6482.

Religious — Shabbat Services will be held at Hillel House at 6 p.m.

Saturday, Dec. 16

Religious — An Eastern Orthodox Divine Liturgy will be celebrated on Saturday, Dec. 16 at 10 a.m. in the Helen Hills Chapel at Smith College. The pan-Orthodox service will be conducted in English and followed by a light meal. For more information contact Irene at 545-5470.

Astronomy — The Amherst Astronomy Association is conduction a free public planetarium show at 4 p.m. in the Amherst College Bassett Planetarium and a free public observatory observing at 9 p.m. at the Amherst College Wilder Observatory. For more information call 256-6234.

Notices

Absentee Ballots — Absentee ballots for the Dec. 12 Amherst Special Town Election are available in the Amherst Town Clerk's office on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday 8 a.m. to noon. For more information call 256-4035.

Scholarships — The National Council of Alpha Lambda Delta Academic Honor Society for Freshman will award several $3,000 scholarships for graduate study. Alpha Lambda Delta members graduating with a certain cumulative average are eligible. Application forms and information may be obtained from Eileen Stewart, Assistant Dean of Students, 227 Whitmore. Applications are due by Dec. 29.

Ski instructors wanted — Anyone interested in becoming an instructor-guide with the B.L.I.N.D. Ski Program beginning Jan. 8, 1996 at Mt. Tom Ski Area in Holyoke, may contact Betty Hollingsworth at 665-4614 ASAP. Applicants must be at least 16 years old, have good skiing ability, an interest in teaching others, and preferably, prior instructor experience.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 585-0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5–6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545-4824.

Writing — mOthertongue, a multi-lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587-9884.

Meeting — The African Student Association holds a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the SWAG office. Meeting is open to everyone.

Writing — Nommo News and Drum Supplement holds general body meetings on Thursdays at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2363 or 546–5562.

Exhibit — International Programs presents "You Had To Be There..." a selection of photographs submitted by students who have travelled and studied abroad, in the Admissions Center, weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Overeaters Anonymous — Does eating control your life? Overeaters Anonymous meetings are held on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 10:30 a.m. in the Campus Center. Monday and Friday meetings are cancelled for the rest of the semester. For more information call 548-9040.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995-96 issue. Any Five-College students is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 406E Student Union, or call 545-2240.

Semi-Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi-formal on February 10, 1996 in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 5-0960.

Writing — The National Library of Poetry is currently accepting entries for the North American Open Poetry Contest. Deadline for entries is Dec. 31. Poets should submit one original poem of no more than 20 lines to The National Library of Poetry, 11419 Cronridge Dr. P.O. Box 704–1986, Owings Mills, MD 21117.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253-9622.

Theater — The University of Massachusetts Theater Department has designed Dramatic Discoveries to showcase quality works by student playwrights in the Five-College area. Dramatic Discoveries is also searching for directors, stage mangers and dramaturgs who are interested in working on these new plays. Course credit may be available for students working on this production. The submission deadline for scripts is Dec. 14, 1995. Submission should be sent to: Dramatic Discoveries, 112 Fine Arts Center, Theater Department, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01002. For more information about the festival, please call Kelli S. Clark 545-3490 or 545-6818.

Religious — Rides to Chapel: Christ Community Chapel of Amherst sponsors "Pick Me Up." Worship time 10–11:30 a.m. every Sunday. Bus stop points 9:45 a.m. at the GRC, Fine Arts, North Village, Southpoint, Prince House, Southwest parking lot and Amherst College at Converse Hall.

Campus Police Log

Robbery

Dec. 10

An individual reported that a male subject approached her on the PVTA bus and demanded her money. The subject had a small handgun. The victim was able to depart from the bus. The offender also departed and headed in the direction of Southwest. The Amherst Police Department is investigating.

Disturbance

Dec. 6

Police responded to a group banging on the doors at University Health Services and discovered they were trying to get care for an individual with a head injury. The victim was assaulted with dangerous weapons by three individuals on Thatcher Way at approximately 1:45 a.m. The victim was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital by ambulance.

Cassia A. Ponusky, 19, of 270 Riverbend St., Athol, was arrested at the William D. Mullins Center for assault & battery with a dangerous weapon.

Assault & Battery

Dec. 6

Jesse M. Shapiro, 18, of 64–85 Wetherpole St., Rego Park, N.Y., was arrested at Gorman Residence Hall for domestic assault & battery.

Lori S. Pragano, 19, of 128 Elm St., North Haven, Conn., was arrested at William D. Mullins Center for assault and battery and disorderly conduct.

Dec. 7

An individual in McNamara Residence Hall reported he was assaulted by another individual and will seek a court ordered restraining order.

Dec. 8

At least four individuals were involved in a fight. One individual was hit on the head with a bottle. He was treated and released from University Health Services. Police were continuing the investigation.

Dec. 9

An individual reported being assaulted on the pathway on Observatory Rd. The incident is under investigation.

Dec. 10

An "unfounded" assault & battery was reported at Dwight Residence Hall.

An assault reported from Crabtree Residence Hall is still under investigation. A report was to be filed.

Warrant arrest

Dec. 8

An individual was arrested on warrant in conjunction with the alleged assault on Thatcher Way on Dec. 6. Kan Thach, 19, of 171E The Boulders, Amherst, was arrested for assault & battery with a dangerous weapon.

Vandalism

Dec. 6

Individuals who were throwing snowballs broke a window at Cashin Residence Hall.

There was damage to a vending machine in Patterson Residence Hall.

An individual reported that a rock was thrown through her window in Cance Residence Hall.

Dec. 8

An individual reported damage to a television in the Campus Center Basement lobby.

Dec. 9

The 20th floor lounge in Kennedy Residence Hall was "trashed" and several windows were broken.

Dec. 10

There was homophobic graffiti in a bathroom in Brown Residence Hall.

Suspicious person

Dec. 6

Individuals were throwing snowballs at MacKimmie Residence Hall.

An individual reported that a BB gun was fired at vehicles from the north end of Van Meter Residence Hall. The weapon was confiscated, and the investigation was to continue.

A 20-year-old individual at the William D. Mullins Center was put into protective custody. Later, a 19-year-old was also put into protective custody.

Gerald L. McVeigh, 23, of 5864 Auvers Bvld., Orlando, Fla., was arrested at the William D. Mullins Center on warrants from Framingham and Worcester.

Dec. 10

While investigating a report that an individual had been hit in the head with a snowball, police made three arrests. Lawrence R. Duane, 19, of 26A Country Club Rd., Milford, was arrested for possession and cultivation of a Class D substance. John D. Fragopoulos, 18, of Hyde Park Ave., Boston, and Stephen Edward Domowski, 18, of 102 Varnum St., Arlington, were arrested for possession of a Class D substance.

Motor vehicle theft

Dec. 8

An individual reported his vehicle stolen from Mather Career Center.

Larceny

Dec. 6

There was a generator reported stolen from William D. Mullins Center.

Unauthorized long distance telephone charges were billed to an individual's account.

An individual reported that a number of personal items were stolen from her room in Washington Residence Hall.

Dec. 10

An individual in Coolidge Residence Hall reported his wallet stolen.

Fire alarm

Dec. 6

An alarm was set off by a motor in a mechanical room in Washington Residence Hall.

UMass officers and Physical Plant personnel responded to a structure fire at the University's Belchertown Orchard. There was significant damage to the building. The cause is unknown, but under investigation.

Annoying behavior

Dec. 6

An individual reported possible damage to his vehicle from the snowball fights the night before.

Dec. 7

There was a report of bottles being thrown from the 17th floor of John Quincy Adams Residence Hall.

Dec. 8

An individual, who was climbing a water tower on Windmill Lane, was issued a warning regarding this type of behavior.

There was sexual graffiti written on a desk at the Physical Plant.

A large group on the third floor of Johnson Residence Hall caused a disturbance.

Dec. 9

Unwanted persons were asked to leave James Residence Hall.

Medical emergencies

Dec. 7

Individuals with breathing difficulties were transported from North Village Apartments to University Health Services on Dec. 7 and 8.

An individual with lacerations on their arms and legs, which were believed to have been caused by running through a wooded area, was transported from Coolidge Residence Hall to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual with a possible broken arm was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Tournament Schedule

Game	Team	Venue	Location	Time
December 26 '95	Czech v. Russia	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Finland v. Switz	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10 pm
	Sweden v. Slovaki	Centrum	Worcester	1:10pm
	Opening Ceremonies	Centrum	Worcester	6:00pm
	USA v. Canada	Centrum	Worcester	7:40pm
Dec. 27	Slovakia v. Russia	Matthews Arena	Boston	1:10pm
	USA v. Ukraine	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:10pm
	Czech v. Germany	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Switz. v. Canada	Mullins Center	Amherst	7:10pm
Dec. 28	Germany v. Slovakia	Matthews Arena	Boston	2:10pm
	Ukraine v. Finland	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:10pm
Dec. 29	Slovakia v. Czech	Matthews Arena	Boston	1:10pm
	Canada v. Finland	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:40pm
	Russia v. Sweden	Civic Center	Springfield	2:10pm
	USA v. Switz	Civic Center	Springfield	7:10pm
Dec. 30	Germany v. Slovakia	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	12:10pm
	Ukraine v. Switz	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	5:10pm
Dec 31	Sweden v. Czech	Matthews Arena	Boston	12:10pm
	Canada v. Ukraine	Matthews Arena	Boston	5:40pm
	Finland v. USA	Mullins Center	Amherst	12:10pm
	Russia v. Germany	Mullins Center	Amherst	5:10pm
January 1 '96	Qualifying Rd.	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Qualifying Rd.	Mullins Center	Amherst	5:10pm
Jan 2	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10pm
	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	7:10pm
Jan 3	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10pm
	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	7:10pm
	SEMIFINAL	Conte Forum	Boston	3:40pm
	SEMIFINAL	Conte Forum	Boston	7:40pm
Jan 4	5th/6th Place Game	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	12:10pm
	Bronze Medal Game	Conte Forum	Boston	3:40 pm
	Gold Medal Game	Conte Forum	Boston	7:40pm

1996 WORLD JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP

MASSACHUSETTS, USA

THE COLLEGIAN "CATCH THE EXCITEMENT" TICKET GIVEAWAY! 50 UMASS STUDENTS AND THEIR CLOSEST FRIEND AND/OR ANY LOCAL COMMUNITY MEMBERS MAY SEE THE NEXT WAYNE GRETZKY PLAY IN THE WORLD JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIPS! ENTRY FORM BELOW...

Tickets also available at TICKETMASTER (617) 931-2000

Ticketmaster phone orders, outlet stores and venues will begin sales November 3, 1995

Mobil

MASSACHUSETTS SPORTS PARTNERSHIP

BLOOM'S BUSINESS SYSTEMS

Gretzky, Lemieux, Lindros, Leetch, Roenick, Fedorov, Bure, Jagr, Kariya, Tkachuk, Forsberg, Carey, Who's Next?

The Massachusetts DAILY COLLEGIAN

New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967

113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • (413) 545-1592

- Catch the excitement... Liven up your holidays with GREAT Hockey Action.
- Win tickets to see World Junior Hockey Action at any of the MA locations.
- Enter today! The Collegian has 50 pairs of tickets to draw and give away.
- Drop off or mail entry forms to the Collegian office in the Campus Center today.
- Drawings will be held @ 3:30 p.m. Thursday, December 14, 1995

Collegian staff or family members not eligible

CONTEST ENTRY FORM

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____

Location of Game Preferred _____

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Chris Conner • Photos by Romy Ribitzky

What is your best experience during the holidays?

"When I was about ten years old, my mother was actually home. She works in health care, so she's usually not home on Christmas."

Monica Patel
first-year, political science Bridgewater

"Being with my best friends and family, going to Midnight Mass. We share in Christmas cheer before we go to Mass."

Josh Jacobs
junior, communication
North Attleboro

"My best experience was last year when I danced and sang for my performing arts school on top of the Customs Tower in downtown Boston. It was cool because we got to watch the fireworks from on top of the roof. It was a great holiday experience."

Allana Todman
first-year, undeclared
Boston

"Probably the birth of my cousin. It was two years ago on the day before Christmas. They had been trying for a long time and couldn't, and then it happened at the right time of year."

Dan Kewley
first-year, pre-medical studies
Shrewsbury

Prosecutor rules that activists are not protected by the law

By William Kates
Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y.— The trial of two anti-abortion activists accused of plotting acid dumping attacks on two health clinics does not have anything to do with freedom of expression, a federal prosecutor said Tuesday.

"This case has nothing whatsoever to do with the First Amendment or an individual's right to protest. This is far more serious," Assistant U.S. Attorney John Duncan told a U.S. District Court jury.

"This is a case about people using intimidation and fear to shut down two lawfully operating businesses — because the defendants didn't want them to continue in the business of performing abortions," Duncan said.

Federal authorities have charged John Arena and Michelle Wentworth with extortion and conspiracy under a federal law that prohibits the use or threat of force to obstruct interstate commerce.

Duncan told jurors he would show that the clinics run by the Syracuse Planned Parenthood and Dr. Jack Yoffa of DeWitt were engaged in interstate commerce because they used products manufactured in other states and provided medical services to out-of-state patients.

"They are not being tried because they are committed to that cause and have feelings strongly against abortion," Duncan said during a 35-minute opening statement to jurors. "This is a case about anarchy, about taking the law into your own hands and violating other people's rights."

The attacks on the two medical facilities, both of which perform abortions, were carried out in April and May 1994.

Arena, co-chairman of the Central New York Right To Life Federation, and Wentworth, head of the group's Auburn chapter, are accused of plotting to pay Wentworth's teen-age daughter, Michelle Campbell, to dump butyric acid at the two clinics.

About 40 people at the two clinics became ill after breathing the "horrific, horrendous" fumes produced by the acid, Duncan said. Both facilities had to close temporarily and spent more than $40,000 to rid their buildings of the vomit-like odors produced by the acid.

Lawyers for the two defendants questioned why they were in federal court for crimes previously addressed in state court. Campbell received five years probation after admitting her involvement. Wentworth was convicted of criminal mischief in state court and also received five years' probation.

Arena, 74, of Rome, pleaded guilty in November 1994. He also received five years' probation but was later jailed for sending graphic anti-abortion postcards to Campbell's attorney.

"How long do you flog a dead horse? You have Mr. Arena who has already pleaded guilty, been sentenced and sued," said attorney Frank Policelli, noting that both Yoffa and Planned Parenthood have filed $2.4 million lawsuits against Arena.

■ attack

continued from page 1

when suddenly I was jumped from my right side by a few students. I was knocked to the ground."

It was at this point that Tek was allegedly kicked repeatedly by students who were wearing cold weather boots.

According to Tek, one student suddenly said, "That's good enough," and then picked Tek up by his jacket.

Thach allegedly asked the crowd, "Who hit him?"

Then, as both of the Asian students tried to get back into Thach's vehicle, they allegedly heard individuals in the crowd yell, "Let's take the car," and "Don't let them go!"

The alleged assault

When they finally drove away, the two Asian students saw the crowd heading towards the northeastern part of campus. The Asian students say they went out of their way to the follow the group.

"Our intention was to find out who jumped me so I [could] report their name to the police," Tek said. But they brought a car antennae.

On their way towards the crowd, the two Asian students said they happened to run into another friend, who joined them.

"There were three of us, hundreds of them, we'd be stupid to fight," said that third friend.

"We proceeded up to Thatcher Way and we heard a crowd of students say, 'We fucked up their car'... and 'that kid got fucked up,'" Tek wrote.

Tek and the third Asian student said they approached three Caucasian students who were veering away from the larger group. Tek's friend asked, "Who hit my boy?"

According to Tek, a student grabbed him by his jacket, pulled him down, put him in a headlock and beat him. As Tek freed himself and ran, he allegedly heard someone say "Get the hell out of here you gooks!"

That, according to the three Asian students, is the story. However, at some point one of the white students was assaulted with "a metal rod, windshield scrapers and an automobile antennae," according to University police.

Tek denied that the single windshield scraper was involved. He described the "metal rod" as "something to fix a car."

The white victim received stitches at Cooley Dickinson Hospital and was released by Thursday.

The days following

"The police were saying that they weren't looking at it as a racial incident per se," said University Spokesperson Karen Sherbin.

After being repeatedly asked whether this was a racial incident, Cavanaugh said the assailants were Asian and the assault did not appear to be racially motivated.

The Asian assailants and several other Asian students disagree.

Tek and Trach estimate a considerably larger number of instigating snowball throwers. They also say the police were mistaken when they reported there were three Asian students in the vehicle from the beginning.

Last night, six students in the Asian American Student Association office spoke with Marianne Sooboo of Safety Net, a hate crimes advocate in Boston, in a conference call. Tek spoke of his fear of expulsion from the University, and said the incident has interrupted his study habits. Trach, who is fearful of deportation, said he hasn't been able to sleep.

When they hung up, Tek said, "It's our words against theirs," referring to the University and Amherst Police Departments.

Two days after the assault, Tek's 19-year-old friend Thach, of Amherst, was arrested for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon in connection with the incident.

Trach had heard from a friend that, according to the Collegian, the University Police Department was looking for three suspects in connection with the assault.

Trach called the UMass police from Dunkin' Donuts to say he was involved in the assault. They allegedly asked that he go straight to the police station, which he said he did.

When he arrived, there were at least eight officers pointing their guns at Trach and his uninvolved friend, Trach said.

According to Trach, a police officer allegedly said, "If you make a move, I'm going to put a bullet through your head."

Trach says he was held at the Amherst Police Department for 11 hours, until he paid $1,000 in bail.

Tek discovered that police were looking for suspects a day earlier than Trach. When he went to lunch at a Dining Commons the morning after the assault, students showed him the Collegian article. After that, Tek wrote a statement, which he kept in his pocket until he was questioned by the University police.

■ mall

continued from page 1

because of the days," Resnick said.

Joan Watt, a graduate student in the psychology department at the University of Massachusetts, had a booth to sell jewelry yesterday.

She said she participated in the fundraiser two years ago, and that there were no problems with the new organizers. She said she came to the mini-mall for two reasons: to sell her wares and to support Hillel.

The mini-mall is "an opportunity for students to get gifts for every type of person," Resnick joked. "Whether crunchy, preppy, picky, tall, short, and anything else they felt like being that day."

Hillel is looking to make several thousand dollars from the event to be used for "educational and cultural programs."

Resnick said the event was more than a fundraiser. "It is also a good opportunity [for students] to see things Hillel is doing... It gives a pro-active image."

— Jacob W. Michaels

Don't miss the boat!
Write for the Collegian

IT'S TIME TO TAKE A BREAK!

THE CAMPUS ACTIVITIES ADVISORY CENTER PRESENTS IT'S ANNUAL:

"STUDY BREAK"

WHEN:
DECEMBER 18TH - 19TH
10:00 AM - 2:00 PM
WHERE:
CAPE COD LOUNGE

REFRESHMENTS SERVED

Alpha Lambda Delta Honor Society
Presents
A Study break Featuring . . .

DAN AYKROYD JOHN BELUSHI
THE BLUES BROTHERS
December 17, 8:00pm
Campus Center Auditorium - Free to Everyone!
Free Pizza to First 150 People
Sponsored by The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

As you prepare for finals, and get ready for your holiday season, please...

REMEMBER TO RECYCLE

Happy Holidays from the Office of Waste Management
P.S. Good luck on Finals

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief
Marni E. Heffner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager
James P. Gurley Production Manager
Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager
Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor
Daymion Smith Photography Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor

Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Rosario Navarro Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1907, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Here comes Santa Claus

Christmas to me always meant the big fat guy in the red suit hustling presents to all the little kids of the world. I used to love the idea of Santa Claus and reindeer. Now he's just some dirty old man that makes a buck by letting kids pea on his lap all day in a food court. That's the difference between the "believers" and the "non-believers." When you believe, Santa can do no wrong. When you stop believing Santa is just as human as the rest of us. Those mall Santa's are giving Christmas a bad name. Call me a grinch, but I wouldn't spend my money taking a picture with any old Santa.

I think working in a mall takes all the joy out the holiday season for any average person. Not only do you get to enjoy all the festive music for three months before the actual holiday, but you get to walk by the fake Santa every day for two months amidst screaming children clinging to their mothers for dear life. It's hard to exude Chrismas cheer when you want to deck the fat guy and his pseudo elves.

I have been dissing mall Santa for the two months he's taken space in the food court. Every time I walk by him and he yells, "Ho, ho-Merry Christmas young lady," I feel the undeniable urge to shoot him the death stare. It came to my attention via my co-workers who thought maybe I was giving Santa a bad rap. I decided to give the guy a break, maybe he was just doing his part for the spread of yuletide happiness.

All this fake Santa business is crazy anyway. Whose idea was it to hire 200 guys to dress in red suits and beards to rile the children of the world up two months before the night he's suppose to sneak in your house?

Tara Ruelle

I was on my best behavior when he entered the Ground Round one day to hand out "Christmas Cereal?" to all the good little boys and girls. He walked into the restaurant accompanied by his little helpers and visited every table that was inhabited by wide-eyed believers. I barely looked at him, I was a little more interested in my buffalo wings. Much to my surprise he stopped by my table near the door before he departed and handed me a box of Coco Puffs. Since there were no little kids at the table, just me and my two, male cohorts, I was little surprised but said, "Thanks Santa." (For the benefit of the believers, you see.)

I was about to rethink my negative attitude about the fake Santa at that point. My steadfastly nice friend Brian commented, "that was nice Tara, I'll take the Coco Puffs if you don't want them."

I assured him I could handle it. Then that Santa pulled a fast one on me. As he left the restaurant he knocked on the window in front of the booth where I was sitting. I unknowingly glanced over and he waved and winked at me. Santa Claus was hitting on me. All the little kids in the Ground Round thought this was very cool, I was Santa Claus's special friend, I guess.

I thought to myself, come on Santa. What would Mrs. Mall Santa think? Hey. If you're going to talk the talk, you better walk the walk, right? If you're going to put on the suit and the beard, act the part will ya? Isn't there a "how to" guide for the paid Santa's? That's not at all what I'd expect from the man I left cookies and milk out for when I was a kid. I don't care what anyone says, Santa's are suppose to be asexual.

All this fake Santa business is crazy anyway. Whose idea was it to hire 200 guys to dress in red suits and beards to rile the children of the world up two months before the night he's suppose to sneak in your house? Who made up that tale anyway — in the modern world that would be considered breaking and entering?

I'm just a little disappointed, I guess. Santa Claus was the most purely innocent thing I knew as a kid. He was a fun, fat guy that loved children and lived in toy workshop. How cool is that when you're six? When Santa puts you on his lap, it shouldn't be because he wants to get to know you better.

I want to be a believer again, life was a lot simpler. Oh well, I guess Santa gets lonely just like everybody else. And people wonder why I'm cynical!

Tara Ruelle is a Collegian columnist.

Winter thoughts warm my soul

The steam rising from the mug of hot chocolate between my palms curls upward in gentle circles, warming my face and neck. There, the moisture condenses, so that when there is no steam, my skin is slightly chilled by the combined wetness and cooler air of the room.

The smell of warmth and chocolate and water vapor mingles with the kitchen's bread-baking aroma: cranberry, zucchini, banana... A sip of cocoa and a nibble of cornbread content me as I watch the snow falling gently but steadily past the window.

All sound seems muffled somehow. Whether it's the carpet of snow on the ground outside or the warm, moist, indoor air, dense with pleasant oven odors, that absorbs the harshness of everyday noises, I don't know. But my ears feel almost like they need to pop, it is so toned-down and relaxed in here.

I know that later, when I step outside, the chill air will jolt my senses into a higher state of awareness, invigorating me, opening my ears and eyes and lungs as I wade through the snow into the woods, but for now, I am content to relax in this cozy, lazy, beside-the-woodstove atmosphere.

My time is not usurped by schoolwork or other worries, so my thoughts are free to ponder the sights, smells, tastes, sounds and other sensations of winter and the holiday season.

This is my true vacation. No school. No summer work on the farm. I'm free to wander the woods and play in the snow or curl up under a blanket with a hot chocolate in one hand and a book in the other — as I please. I can be active or lazy, hyper or calm, adventurous or content whenever and however often I feel like it.

The important thing is to make every minute count because I may never get a chance to be as free from worry and obligation as I am during most of my month-long winter break.

This is, indeed, my favorite time of year. When I hear people complain about the cold or the inconvenience created by snow, I can only wonder why we Americans think of everything in terms of our own comfort and desires. Our society has set itself up to stand independent from nature and struggles for control over it. Instead, we should consider ourselves a part of nature and work in harmony with it.

Why do we look at snow, for example, as an annoyance that disrupts our routines instead of as a beautiful part of the earth's seasonal cycle? Don't we belong to the earth? Shouldn't we be a part of this cycle instead of cursing it?

Our high-paced society doesn't give us time to look around and enjoy. So what if something you were going to do today doesn't get done? So what if your car doesn't start and you can't get to work? Why do we resist the cycle and constantly paddle upstream?

Forget your ambition and arrogance. Swim with the current. It will take you farther.

Our high-paced society doesn't give us time to look around and enjoy. So what if something you were going to do today doesn't get done?

Nicole Cournoyer

I used to think I was named after Santa Claus (St. Nick), and I was special because I was born in the same month Jesus was. I used to imagine the table we hung our stockings from was a fireplace because that's how they showed it in books. I used to fight with my sisters over how to decorate the tree, and who got to turn the bulbs in the electric candles in the windows, and who got to open the next flap in the advent calendar.

"I get to do it on my birthday!"

I used to wrap the presents very messily, using way too much tape and forgetting to take the price tags off of the gifts. I used to put the prettiest, classiest bow on my mother's present because she deserved it the most and she was a lady.

I used to go to bed early on Christmas Eve so Santa could come; I'd lie awake listening for hoof beats on the roof. I used to wake up in the morning and run to the tree and stare in awe at the pile underneath and squeeze my packed-full stocking, my heart dancing at the thought of all the candy I would eat.

I used to sit anxiously through mass, trying to concentrate on baby Jesus and not the presents under the tree and the stockinged chocolate I could almost taste. I used to open my presents slowly and carefully, savoring the happiness of this wonderful holiday that came only once a year.

I used to. So why did I stop?

I've lost the selfishness of a child's focus on gifts at Christmas, but I also feel like I've lost some of the magic of the holiday season. Logically, I tell myself I'm being silly. Magic? What am I, an escapee from Disney World?

But in my heart, I still want to believe in the spirit and wonder of Christmas that I have found so fascinating and romantic since I was little. So now I tell myself, just because I know Santa doesn't exist doesn't mean I can't believe in him.

Happy Holidays.

Nicole Cournoyer is a Collegian columnist.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR AND COLUMNS

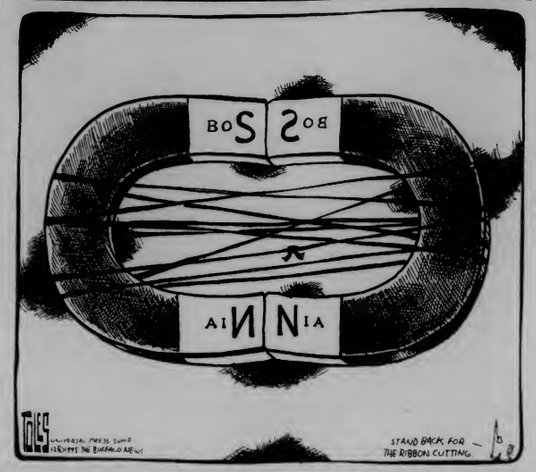
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, for next semester, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Geri Sahn.

Opinion/Editorial



Letters to the Editor

Columnist's views should be condemned

To the Editor:

Two articles were recently published in the Collegian following the assassination of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin (Nov. 10 and 15, 1995).

While I believe strongly in the right of free speech at the University, and the right of the Collegian to publish opinions on a wide range of viewpoints, the University as a whole also values community civility, and I strongly condemn the articles that spread hatred and hold us back from creating a humane and civil society. While it is the Collegian's right to print what it chooses, it is also my right to state my abhorrence of any speech that conveys hatred and intolerance. I condemn all article which offend the dignity of the individual and the civility of the community. Yitzhak Rabin died tragically in the course of trying to bring about peace. Some of his bitterest enemies came forward after his death to praise him for those efforts.

We have worked diligently on this campus to combat all forms of racial and other forms of intolerance. Anti-Semitism is the world's oldest hatred and is on the rise nationally and worldwide. Because I consider it to be so egregious, I recently appointed a campus coordinator of Jewish Affairs to promote education about Jewish history and culture and to encourage campus-wide discussion on issues of concern to the Jewish community.

As Chancellor, I have both the right and the obligation to state unequivocally that this campus does not approve of messages of hate. Hurtful messages, such as those recently published in the Collegian, inflict pain and sorrow and fear. They ultimately set us back in our efforts to overcome injustice and inequality for all groups. With freedom of speech comes the responsibility for personal and intellectual integrity and for upholding the sense of community which we seek.

We should use this time in the campus's history to help each other rediscover our common bonds of humanity and to promote social justice.

David K. Scott
Chancellor

Enough blood and tears

To the Editor:

Along with many others in the Jewish community, I was shocked to read Hussein Ibish's massive, one-sided article attacking Yitzhak Rabin, less than a week after the Israeli prime minister's assassination ("The life and crimes of General Yitzhak Rabin," 11/10/95). I was even more disturbed when a second article by the same author appeared a few days later, under the provocative title "Zionism and assassination." While it might be possible to dismiss the first article as an unfortunate aberration, it is more difficult, after the second salvo, to ignore either the hateful views of the writer or the editorial policy which gives such prominence to one individual's vendetta against Jews.

This is not the first time that articles such as these have appeared in the Collegian (particularly the Developing Nations page) or in the graduate student Voice, which Ibish edited until its demise last spring. As editor of the Voice, Ibish regularly published articles attacking Israel, Jewish organizations such as the Anti-Defamation League, and Jewish groups here on campus. One especially onerous issue of the Voice (March, 1994) contained eight separate articles with anti-Jewish content. By contrast, there were no articles, in that issue or any other, concerning the historic events then taking place in Bosnia, Rwanda, or the Chechen Republic (in the former Soviet Union). Similarly, in previous years there have been repeated attacks on Israel in the Developing Nations section of the Collegian, under the pseudonym "Coalition for the Defense of Palestine."

These repeated and one-sided attacks on Israel and Zionism, which single out the Jews for special condemnation while overlooking the "crimes" of other nations, are evidence of a double standard which is classically anti-Semitic.

Last spring, the Collegian published a letter to the editor from a retired professor, Helen Cullen, a letter full of half-truths and aspersions defaming the Jewish people. In response, scores of people, Jews and non-Jews alike, wrote letters repudiating her anti-Semitic views. (The outpouring of public condemnation, no less than Cullen's letter itself, exemplifies the principle of free speech.)

Unlike Helen Cullen's blatant bigotry, which explicitly defames Jews, Ibish's anti-Jewish views are more subtle and roundabout. He doesn't speak of "Jews" (not in these articles anyway), but of Israel and "Zionism." These political entities — the State of Israel and the Zionist movement — may seem like fair targets; and bolstered by Ibish's arsenal of historical half-truths, it may seem reasonable to condemn them for the "crimes" chronicled in his articles.

But it is not reasonable, for the author has given us only one side of a complex history, selectively choosing his questionable "facts" to paint a picture of unmitigated Israeli evil. He writes at length about the "crimes" of the Israeli government, while ignoring those crimes committed by Arabs against Jews and against other Arabs, such as Jordan's 1971 offensive against Palestinian guerrillas or Iraq's continuing repression of the Kurds, to say nothing of the hundreds of Palestinian attacks against Israeli civilians.

Israel, after all, has been in a perpetual state of war with its Arab neighbors throughout its existence, a state of war which was interrupted only by the Camp David accord with Egypt in 1979. The fragile peace agreement with the PLO in Sept. 1993, and a peace treaty with Jordan last year, have finally brought a semblance of peace to the region, although Israel technically remains in a state of war with Syria, Lebanon, and Iraq, as well as those militant Palestinian factions such as Islamic Jihad and Hamas, who still yearn for the total destruction of Israel. There are violent passions and deep hatred on all sides, and blood has flowed in all directions. But there are those like Ibish who see only one side of this war.

Let's explore this double standard further. While almost an entire page of the Collegian was devoted to a scathing chronicle of "the life and crimes of General Yitzhak Rabin," a short adjoining article, entitled "Rwanda: a result of colonialism," offered what can only be described as a rationalization of the massacres in Rwanda — massacres which have decimated the Tutsi population and forced nearly two million Hutus to flee their country. Yet these historic events warranted nothing more than a short "news analysis" tucked away in a corner of the page.

Such reporting is, to say the least, inconsistent. It suggests that the life of a Palestinian is worth more than the life of a (black) Tutsi. Is the death of a Palestinian Muslim more newsworthy than the death of a Bosnian Muslim? Are wartime atrocities more significant if committed by Jews than if committed by Serbs, Hutus, Russians or Iraqis? The only morally acceptable answer is "No!"

Why do Ibish and the Developing Nations editor say nothing about atrocities in Bosnia or Rwanda? It is certainly not because these events aren't newsworthy. Indeed, a U.N. war crimes tribunal recently indicted two Serb leaders, Radovan Karadzic and Gen. Ratko Mladic, for "unimaginable savagery" against Bosnian Muslims, citing "a truly terrible massacre of the Muslim population... thousands of men executed and buried in mass graves, hundreds of them buried alive...." One of the judges concludes: "These are truly scenes from hell; written on the darkest pages of human history." (Associated Press, 11/17/95).

Likewise, the U.N. Commission on Human Rights characterized the massacres then taking place in Rwanda as "genocide" (Christian Science Monitor, 8/1/94). But hardly a word in the Developing Nations section about these events. Why not?

It wouldn't have surprised anyone if Slobodan Milosevic (the president of Serbia) or Radovan Karadzic (the leader of the Bosnian Serbs) had been characterized as "a monster, a war criminal, ethnic cleanser, mass murderer, and terrorist." But these harsh words have been reserved solely for Yitzhak Rabin — the Israeli leader who, incidentally, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his courageous efforts on behalf of peace in the Middle East.

Was Yitzhak Rabin a saint? Certainly not. He was a military leader in a country which has been in a state of war with its Arab neighbors for more than 50 years. There have been atrocities on all sides, and undoubtedly Rabin committed his share. No doubt the atrocities Rabin witnessed during his military career — both against Arabs and against Jews — propelled him finally to take that fateful step, when he risked his political career (and his life) by shaking hands with Yassir Arafat at the White House two years ago. A handshake which held out the possibility for an end to the bloodshed.

It was precisely that step toward reconciliation — so poignantly symbolized by the tears of Jordan's King Hussein at Rabin's graveside and by Yassir Arafat's solemn condolences to the prime minister's widow — which cost Rabin his life.

It was not, after all, an embittered Palestinian who slew Rabin, but a right-wing Israeli Jew. Rabin was not assassinated on account of his "war crimes," but for precisely the opposite reason: he was killed because he was attempting to make peace. Rabin's crime — in the eyes of his assassin, Yigal Amir — was his willingness to relinquish the lands of "Judea and Samaria" (the West Bank) in order to make peace with the Palestinians.

Yitzhak Rabin's extraordinary transformation, from military "hawk" to peacemaker, might well serve as an example for Mr. Ibish and the editors of the Developing Nations section. It is time to put the hatred behind us.

As Rabin put it so eloquently in what would be his final speech, at the massive peace rally in Tel Aviv just moments before he was assassinated: "Enough of blood and tears, enough!"

Larry Goldbaum
Director of the Office of Jewish Affairs

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Black Affairs

Wednesday, December 13, 1995

Merry Christmas and Happy Kwanzaa

Who said, 'brothers can not chill on ice?'

A look at how blacks are making a name in professional and college ice hockey

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

Some say hockey is the final frontier, the last of the major professional sports that is still a predominantly white game.

There have been blacks that have played in the NHL before, but with the exception of goaltender Grant Fuhr, who fell in the shadow of other stars on Edmonton Oilers, no player has made a significant impact.

But hockey as a sport is changing. What once was a regional game played only in the Northeast and Canada is spreading throughout the U.S.

The faces in the game are starting to change too. While hockey broke the color barrier in the mid-60's when Willie O'Ree joined the Boston Bruins, black players are still a rarity in the National Hockey League.

But two black collegians with imminent NHL careers have a chance to change hockey forever.

There are only nine black players in college hockey, but two of them, Michigan State's Anson Carter and Boston University's Mike Grier, are finalists to win the Hobey Baker Award, college hockey's equivalent of the Heisman Trophy.

The two have had different paths to where they are today.

Grier, the son of New England Patriots personnel director Bobby Grier, grew up in Holliston playing in the youth leagues of hockey-rich Massachusetts.

Despite being one of the best players at his age level when he was younger, Grier was often jeered by parents of opposing teams.

"Go play basketball where you belong," they'd yell. But Grier loved the game and instead of fighting the people off the ice, he remained silent, responding with his tremendous play on the ice instead.

After a tremendous high school career at St. Sebastian's, Grier was given a scholarship to play at Boston University.

"I give Mike Grier a lot of credit, he's a great kid. He made himself into five times the player anyone expected him to be."
– UMass Hockey Coach Joe Mallen

His freshman year was fair. While his 244-pound frame made him one of Hockey East's premier hitters, his offensive game was hindered by his lack of speed.

Not content with mediocrity, Grier spent the summer between his freshman and sophomore seasons working out to gain quickness. It paid off.

"I give Mike Grier a lot of credit, he's a great kid. He made himself into five times the player anyone expected him to be," said Massachusetts coach Joe Mallen, whose team played BU two weeks ago. "I watch him go to the net and he's got a lot of speed. He's got toughness. I have a great deal of respect for the job he's done."

When Grier returned to BU the next fall, he became one of the best players in the nation. His 29 goals and 26 assists were tied for the BU lead in scoring, as he helped lead the Terriers to the 1994-95 National Championship.

The Edmonton Oilers hold Grier's NHL draft rights and are excited about the prospects of him becoming a premier power forward in the NHL.

"If he continues to improve at the same rate, he can play in the NHL," Mallen said.

Grier volunteers his time trying help young black kids get involved in hockey, including coaching and helping to gather used equipment to help defray the expensive cost of new gear.

For Carter, the fact that he is black didn't affect his acceptance as a hockey player much at all. Growing up in Canada, where playing hockey as a kid is equivalent to playing in little league in the US. Everybody plays.

While Grier chose the hockey hotbed of Boston, Carter opted for Michigan State, another spot where the sport has flourished.

Carter has earned the nickname "Dancin' Anson" for his nimble skating ability that enables him to fool defenders repeatedly.

His coach, Ron Mason, considers Carter the nation's top player.

"Anson's the basic premiere player in the country, both offensively and defensively. He's a great leader, both on and off the ice."

Carter was among the nation's leading scorers with 34 goals, 17 assists for 51 points. He led the nation with seven short-handed goals.

This year Carter, a senior, has helped lead Michigan State to a Top 10 national ranking. He too is a leading candidate for the prestigious Hobey Baker Award.

Like Grier, Carter is working to help bring more black kids into playing the game.

These two aren't fighting the battle alone either. USA Hockey, a body that tries to organize hockey throughout the U.S., has combined with Sports Illustrated to try to encourage blacks to start playing hockey at a young age.

"USA Hockey has felt that players in the real urban areas deserve opportunities to play hockey," Mallen said. "They use roller hockey, some equipment donations and coaching."

Excuse me, I believe that puck is mine.

University celebrates Kwanzaa holiday at Malcolm X Center

By Tashamma Smith
Collegian Correspondent

This year's Kwanzaa was a great success, having a combination of students, staff, and administrators in attendance. Hosted by the Malcolm X Cultural Center staff and Tabitha Williams, chief coordinator, the celebration captured the concerns and needs of the Black community as well as cultural interests and events.

Kwanzaa is an African American cultural and political celebration. The purpose of the celebration is to recognize our challenges, struggles and accomplishments as a people.

Wonderful talents were seen and heard as Pascale Martineau sang the Black National Anthem " Lift Ev'ry Voice and Sing." Natasha Springer performed a very powerful skit, bringing tears to the eyes of many. The skit was entitled "For color girls who have committed suicide when the rainbow isn't enough."

A West African Dance group performed and "The Black Rebels," a Reggae band, performed throughout the Kwanzaa celebration.

The speakers of the night were Kujichagulia Gordon from the Pran Cultural Center, Professor Forest Pritchett from Seton Hall University in New Jersey and Ric Townes, Assistant Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

The candle lighting ceremony is of great importance because it highlights the seven principles of Kwanzaa. The first of the principles, UMOSA, means Unity. Following are KUJICHAGULIA (Self-determination), UJIMA (Collective Work and Responsibility), UJAMAA (Cooperative Economics), NIA (Purpose), KUUMBA (Creativity), and IMANI (Faith). These seven principles represent the goals of the Black community.

The Black students and staff of our university have shown its daily commitment to uphold the principles of Kwanzaa through the support of such events as the Million Man March, keeping students of color connected through various activities at the New Africa House, and the support that Black women give each other through the many workshops and lectures given by the Everywoman's Center. These are just a few of the accomplishments and events happening in the Black community.

Although Kwanzaa had a nice turnout, Mary Custard, CCEBMS Tutorial Program Coordinator, feels that the celebration is limited by space. She would rather have KWANZAA at the Campus Center or Student Union to get a more diverse group in attendance.

"These locations give us a hard time because they want to cater and make money, not realizing that they cannot provide the cultural food that our celebrations need. Catering would be alright if we wanted baked chicken and potatoes, but we want food like fried chicken and sweet potatoes. We need to keep Black business people and bring money back to our community," said Custard.

The principles of Kwanzaa are not to be celebrated only during the Christmas season, but throughout the year. As long as Black students and staff continue to apply the principles of Kwanzaa to everyday life, the Black community can be assured to become stronger and an even more positive force than ever before.

DESIRE

BY PIERRE

Driven by a strong desire
A desire to know
To know the unknown
To know what makes us sad...
To know what makes us happy...

But...
It's uncomfortable to open up
Afraid of being misunderstood

It's scary to reveal ourselves
Afraid of being betrayed

It's embarrassing to share our experience
Afraid of being misjudged

It's risky to offer our friendship
Afraid of being rejected

Let's be ourselves

Our face will reflect our happiness
Our pulse will reveal our emotions and feelings
Our gesture will display our love and passion

Knowing one another thoroughly...

Response to the World

PUBLISH IT NOT!
An explosion of panic and anti-intellectual hysteria has characterized the response to the truth about the life of the late Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

These reactions have been characterized by a distinct unwillingness to engage in a serious discussion of the life of Rabin. Indeed, not a single fact presented in this newspaper about Rabin has been challenged, because there is no substantive debate about the historical record. Instead, It is suggested that the facts should not be published or those who expose the truth should be condemned for doing so.

Husein Ibish

The onslaught of blanket denials and condemnations reached its lowest depths as Leonard Zakim, New England regional director of the Anti-Defamation League demanded that Chancellor Scott condemn recent columns in the Collegian which recited the details of Rabin's career.

Zakim, like the Israeli General Consulate and the Chancellor's "Commissar for Zionism," Larry Goldbaum, failed to challenge any specific facts presented, but rather stated that the presentation of the facts was inherently bad.

In a most servile manner, the Chancellor acquiesced to the ADL's demands and told the Boston Globe that "Articles such as the ones referred to spread hatred" and that "They hold us back in creating a humane and civil society."

A series of questions is begged by these statements. Are the facts presented in these articles true? Does the Chancellor care whether or not they are true? Against whom do the articles promote hatred, and how? Is the presentation of inconvenient facts henceforth to be considered "incivility" at UMass? Has the Chancellor read the articles?

In fact, the Chancellor knows nothing of the modern history of the Levant and therefore made his worthless judgements of the articles in question on the basis of cynical political expediency. Apparently, the Chancellor does not sully his elevated mind with anything as sordid as the facts.

Indeed, the Chancellor admits that he knows nothing about the subject, saying "Rabin died tragically in the course of bringing peace to a war torn area. That's what I know about Rabin." It is from this wealth of expertise that the former physicist saw fit to pass judgement, making an anti-intellectual fool of himself at the behest of the ADL.

One suddenly warms to thoughts of William Bulger.

Another series of questions suggest themselves at this stage. Do the Chancellor, Zakim, the Consulate, Goldbaum or anybody else wish to deny that tens of thousands of Palestinians were ethnically cleansed by Rabin in 1948? Will they deny that Rabin authorized dozens of assassinations? Will they deny that he was responsible for the killing of over 1,300 unarmed civilians during the Intifada? Which of the crimes that we have detailed will they, can they, deny?

Furthermore, how many people does one have to expel from their homes before one can be called an ethnic cleanser? How many assassinations does one need to order before one becomes a terrorist? How many unarmed civilians shot before one becomes a murderer?

In the book-burning ceremonies conducted by Joseph Goebbles in the early '30s, no one stopped to ask whether or not what was in the books was in any way true. It wasn't relevant. What mattered was that the books were "bad." Critical examinations of Rabin's life seem destined to meet the same fate at UMass.

It seems almost absurd to have to point out that if people are distressed at reading the facts of Rabin's career, that they should direct their concern to the author of those actions — General Yitzhak Rabin.

Instead, many would prefer to hide the truth and condemn those who would investigate and expose it.

One can do no better than to quote from the Torah. 2nd Samuel 1:19-20. King David laments over the body of Saul:

"The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places: how the mighty are fallen! Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph."

Hussein Ibish is a Collegian columnist.

Writers where are you?

The Black Affairs page is always looking for new views and voices. Just drop by the Collegian located in the Campus Center basement. See you next semester.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian.
113 Campus Center Basement. 545-3500

Arts & Living

E–mail easier; Netscape sets new standard

If you are a net head who hates cluttering your computer with tons of different applications to surf the net, then Netscape Navigator 2.0 is for you.

Netscape has revamped their popular web browser to include a new mail reader and an improved newsgroup reader.

Despite the dramatic changes to the application, the interface has remained relatively unchanged. The tool bar, and menu are identical to Netscape 1.2, but the status bar is slightly different. You may not notice the change when you first use the program.

New features

On the bottom right hand corner of the status bar is a little mail envelop which is not very obvious. When you double click on the envelope, the new mail and news reader loads up. It is easy to set up Netscape to check your e-mail account for mail.

When you are in the mail reader, go to the menu and change the configuration so it recognizes your mail server. After you are done reconfiguring the mail reader, you are ready to read your mail without using a program like Eudora or Pegasus Mail, or logging into your account through a terminal emulator.

To get the mail simply click on the "get mail" icon on the tool bar. After downloading the mail, viewing it is as easy as using the Windows file manager — just click on a mail directory to open it and then on the e-mail you want to read.

The news reader operates in the same way, and has to be configured in a similar manner. You can switch between reading mail and news through the menu option entitled windows.

If someone has typed a web address into their e-mail or news group posting, Navigator 2.0 will recognize it so you can simply click on it to go and visit it. In addition to recognizing web addresses, the news and mail reader will display undecoded images as well.

You can even easily attach files from your hard drive to an e-mail without having to upload the file to your account, if you were using the old method of reading mail through a terminal emulator.

Minor changes

In addition to these excellent new features, Netscape still offers the best web browser. Netscape was the first browser which allowed users to view HTML source code. Now Netscape has taken this feature one step further by color coding the HTML codes when you view the source. Navigator 2.0 is also one of the few browsers which accepts HTML 3.0 codes.

Navigator 2.0 seems faster then earlier versions. Pages which are picture intensive, load faster then before. Another minor improvement is the display of how much longer until the page is loaded based on percent downloaded rather then how many bytes.

The only things this new application lacks is a terminal emulator and an HTML editor; but then again Navigator 2.0 is quickly making a terminal emulator unnecessary.

Netscape Navigator 2.0 is available for Windows 3.1, Windows 95, Mac System 7 or higher, and even Unix. Navigator is free for academic use and can be downloaded from Netscape's web page. The version reviewed was the third and final beta test version before official release early next year. Grade: A+

~ MOVIES ~

Father of the Bride returns to not so perfect ways

Steve Martin, Diane Keaton & Martin Short co–star in tepid comedy sequel set in happy, fantasy world

By Laura Stack
Collegian Staff

FATHER OF THE BRIDE PART II
Directed by Charles Shyer with Steve Martin, Diane Keaton, Martin Short
Playing at Hampshire Six

Steve Martin is back in Father of the Bride II with Martin Short and Diane Keaton.

COURTESY TOUCHSTONE PICTURES

Nancy Myers and Charles Shyer bring their perfectly functional family fantasy world back to the big screen — but this time instead of wedding bells chiming, babies are crying.

Steve Martin returns as the perennial mid–life crisis man, George Banks. In the first Father of the Bride, George worries about his only daughter getting married and leaving the nest. Now, the former father of the bride is a father–to– be (again), and is distraught because the nest is getting too big.

The comedy scores points in the sequel department with the return of the entire cast. The eloquent Diane Keaton is back as the smiling and complacent ("Oh, George") wife, Nina. The former bride, Annie (Kimberly Williams), is all grown up now and ready to procreate with her hubby, Brian (George Newbern).

The concept of daddy's little girl being pregnant does not sit well with George, as one can imagine from his reaction to her getting married. He feels too old to be a grandfather, so he dyes his hair, sells the house and buys his wife some Victoria's Secret lingerie and starts getting a little too frisky.

When this leads to his wife being pregnant, all of a sudden he feels too old to be a father again, and his emotions go from one extreme to the other.

One word describes this film — convenient. How convenient that the mother and daughter get pregnant at the same time, go into labor together…the list is endless.

The Banks family lives in a fantasy world, and that is where the problem with the film lies. It is just impossible to believe. They never have to worry about money, as they decorate their Maple Drive mansion so elaborate, even Martha Stewart would be jealous. All George does is run a sneaker company and his wife works in an antique shop.

They can afford to build, not a nursery, but a suite for the new baby, and have the eccentric Franck (Martin Short) plan an ostentatious double baby shower.

Childbirth doesn't hurt in the Banks' world and hospitals are painted in earthtones, with wood–paneled doorways and peach bedspreads. How nice.

Don't get me wrong — it would be wonderful to live in the Bank's world. Everyone is in love and happy. George's relationship with his daughter is picture perfect (they still shoot basketball in their backyard).

Although the story is not convincing, Martin and Keaton's performances are. Veterans of the screen, this little picture is not a challenge for either one of them. A discerning eye could not trace a bit of difference from the way each perfected sentimentality in the first Bride.

The comedy slack is picked up by Martin Short, as he does aerobics with the pregnant women and drives them to the hospital"in a Jeep Grand Cherokee (à la Nine Months). He still has that bizarre accent and strange pronunciation that George is hard pressed to figure out.

Father of the Bride II is a Hallmark greeting card come to life — perfect for Mother or Father's Day. Too bad for those of you who are looking for a realistic comedy, though. You'd be better off picking up one of those Shoebox greeting cards. C

A critical eye peeks at the best & worst of 1995's movies

By Jon Lupo
Special to the Collegian

This is the first in a two–part series on the year in movies.

Perhaps the best thing one can say about the film season of 1995 is that it's almost over. Really, folks, this has to be one of the most uninspired 12 months of movies; with hype never more feverish (and shameless), Hollywood and its independent counterparts seemed to deliver one sickeningly expensive or pathologically dopey dud after another.

There were the notoriously pricey disasters of Showgirls and Waterworld, but what about the year's drippy slate of art–house pics like the sleazy "exposé" of Kids? There were great movies to be sure, like the lean, jazzy version of The Bridges of Madison County and the thrilling gleam of Toy Story as well as good things about okay movies, like Mary Louise Parker of Boys on the Side or the brutal battle sequences of Braveheart.

But the qualities that made movies like that stand out — a literate script, credible performances — should be the norm, not the exception. Of course, we are talking about an industry that paid Joe Eszterhas millions of dollars to write lines like "I'm a dancer, not a stripper!" with a straight face. If all of this sounds trendilly cynical, you try feeling optimistic about the 20th century's greatest art form when Sylvester Stallone is still getting $20 per picture, all because he packs theaters in Indonesia. Whatever.

Today, I'll focus on the bad and the worst of 1995, skewering those films and filmmakers who should've known better. Tomorrow, I'll take aim at the year's most overrated movies (more bad news) and even crack a smile celebrating the good and yes, even the best films of 1995. Compared to this one, it'll be a short article. Here goes:

Viva Las Vegas! The glitzy city of sin proved to be an irresistible destination for both Hollywood and independents alike, though after sitting through the three features set there, the chamber of commerce has prime grounds for defamation of character. First there was Showgirls, Paul Verhoeven's goudy A Bitch is Born tale of a dancer's initiation into the scuzzy world of Vegas stripping. Rated NC–17 for its nauseating nudity and tasteless sex, Showgirls proved less is more except when it comes to your leading lady's talent. Martin Scorsese's Casino begins brilliantly, but its familiar epic decline was further undermined by been– there, done–that performances by Robert DeNiro and Joe Pesci. Scorsese never connects with the material in any sort of tangibly emotional way; his use of music and cinematography is near–perfect, but his obsessiveness was aimed in the wrong direction (if anything, it's a clinical masterpiece).

The best of the bunch was Leaving Las Vegas, where Nicholas Cage played a suicidal alcoholic living out his last days with the help of a co–dependent hooker (Elizabeth Shue). Most of Leaving is harrowing and claustrophobic (in a good way), but there's no way of getting around the feeling that director Mike Figgis seems to be getting off on all this prorracted misery, as if this apocalyptic chic is a shortcut to dramatic credibility. Though dourly contrived at times, Cage remains a stunner and Shue a revelation, leaving the sweet memory of Adventures in Babysitting far, far behind.

Antonio Banderas Needs to Learn to Say 'No' The Latin sensation has been an underground fave for years in the wild Spanish comedies of Pedro Almodovar. After reasonably affecting turns in The Mambo Kings and Philadelphia, Banderas has been working non–stop, so that no fewer than four of his films were released this year, leaving one to wonder if he just doesn't understand the concept of saying "no" (which would explain the Melanie Griffith thing).

He romanced Mia Farrow and Sarah Jessica Parker in the Woody Allen knockoff Miami Rhapsody, pursued Rebecca DeMornay in the atrocious Never Talk to Strangers and taunted Stallone in the abysmal Assassins.

Turn to MOVIES, page 7

SKI BOUSQUET
$20 DAYS $15 NIGHTS
$5 OFF With College ID
Dan Fox Drive (413) 442-8316 Pittsfield, MA

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS
EVERY WEDNESDAY
SETTIE
9:30 pm - 1:00
ACOUSTIC ROCK
Back From Her National College Tour
With Her New Second CD
"Blackberry" fun·food·spirits
THE PUB
1/2 Price Appetizers and Nachos 9:30 - 10:30
15 east pleasant street · amherst

Magic Lantern
40 YEARS OF THE BEST IN ADULT ENTERTAINMENT
FALL SEASON - ALL NEW SHOW
AMATEUR NIGHT
EVERY WEDS 8:00 PM
featuring . . . TOP FEMALE AMATEURS COMPETING $500 1ST Place
& runner-up prizes
Interested Contestant Call: 283-9275
Free Admission With This Ad
ONLY 30 MINS. FROM CAMPUS!!
Rt. 9 South to Rt. 181 West to Rt. 20 West, 2 Miles On Right
BOSTON RD. · Rte. 20 · PALMER, MA (413) 283-9275
HOURS: MON-SAT 12 NOON to 1:00 AM

~ REVIEWS ~

Book takes apart "Gen–X" myth

Loeb studies ways which contemporary media misrepresents youth

By Matt Sinclair
Collegian Staff

PAUL ROGAT LOEB
Generation at the Crossroads
Rutgers University Press

In Loeb's third book to date, the interesting and highly controversial subject of "Generation–X" is examined. Dubbed as "uninvolved and apathetic" by contemporary media — Loeb highlights the ways in which contemporary students are misrepresented, seeking to halt and counter the ever increasing stereotype that our generation lacks "moral duty and activist obligation."

Loeb has spent seven years crisscrossing the country and has visited over a hundred college campuses in thirty states whilst searching for the truth behind our cliched image.

He states that, "unlike the Vietnam War of a generation ago, the social ills threatening this generation are more insidious and harder to tackle." He also makes the point that our generation—(i.e. 18–24), is twice as likely to be murdered or to commit suicide than the same generation in the '60s.

Many of the most cliched myths about students are discussed and quashed in this book, they are as follows:

Generation X is not actively involved in social issues. This is a commonly stated criticism of our generation but the author makes the point that college environmental groups have increased from 400 in 1989, to over 2,000 today. People may harp back to the years of the Vietnam War but there hasn't been a similar event like that in the last twenty years, especially in terms of its unprecedented ability to generate action and student solidarity.

Another common myth is that: Young people today are greedy and selfish. Loeb notes that when young people are silent, it's out of paralysis, not apathy. Overwhelming social problems in an age of diminishing economic opportunities leave young people feeling that action is futile.

Perhaps one of our greatest criticisms occurs when we are compared with our '60s predecessors, linked to the myth that: Everyone involved in social issues eventually sells out. Loeb notes that the great 1960s counter–culture sell–out hardened people into cynicism. He reports that: "We can't hold Woodstock up as a model of activism. If you take a three–day visit to a concert, which is a passive act, and confuse it with building a new society, you set up an unrealistic ideal."

Other myths are also examined, the aim throughout is to break down negative, preconceived conceptions of our infamous generation. Although the book is interesting — especially in terms of its well researched look at our generation — the author can at times appear to be too closely aligned with our generation, lacking the prerequisite of journalistic objectivity.

Loeb also fails to distinguish accurately between the students and non–students of our generation. Not all 18–24 year olds are at college, and those that aren't are given little or no voice in this book; its wrong to ostracize people from our generation simply because they're not at college. This is especially true in present times when the costs of college spiral so uncontrollably that college–education can be too expensive for a lot of people.

Any college–student should have no problem relating to this book, however. The book brings our problems home and it assures us that we haven't all forgotten our responsibilities to society and each other; it offers hope and optimism and strongly counters the public view that we have become idle and faded—we still have a special role to perform in society and Loeb reassures us of this.

Paul Loeb is also the author of Nuclear Culture and Hope in Hard Times, and has written numerous articles for the Washington Post, Los Angeles Times, International Herald Tribune, Village Voice and others.

■ movies

continued from page 6

However, he was electric in Desperado, so much so that one critic remarked that he, um, filled his scuffy jeans so well he seemed to be having sex with them. The movie, however, was derivative slop (oh wow, another pseudo–Peckinpah slo–mo action sequence), proving Robert Rodriguez is the most redundant director of the year, even if he indeed meant it all as a joke. He also said "sí" to Rodriguez for his installment of the yet unreleased Four Rooms. I won't hold it against him…yet.

To Wong Foo…Thanks for Nothing Hollywood and the indie circuit is certainly getting better at presenting more positive and well–rounded gay and lesbian characters, but unfortunately not any one of these movies were any good. 1995 was the first year when moviegoers were given three different lesbian movies to choose from, none of them any threat at dethroning last year's funky and funny Go Fish.

There was the hideously acted and lamely titled The Incredibly True Adventures of Two Girls in Love, a coming out tale that crumbled under its goody–good intentions (and could you turn up the volume please?) Bad Girls followed a similar trajectory of Go Fish in featuring a roundelay of women's relationships, but girls had a cameo by real–life lesbian Chastity Bono, Cher's amazingly untalented daughter. 'Nuff said. And as for the Ingmar Bergman– inspired (!) When Night is Falling, no amount of fluid camerawork can rescue this silly story of a woman who falls for a circus mime (!!) in a Laundromat.

Wake me up after the zillionth soft–focus fantasy sequence. All in all, I suppose it's a step of some sort when lesbian films and filmmakers can be as mediocre as their straight counterparts.

The men were saddled with the eunuchs of To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything! Julie Newmar (the three gay drag queens might as well have been aliens from outer space as far as the story was concerned), the stale jokes of Jeffery (but what a performance by Patrick Stewart!) and the screeching neuroses of Rimbaud and Verlaine in Total Eclipse.

Even though I was thankful Greg Arraki's The Doom Generation was willing to get down and dirty as a screwball/sex/road killer comedy, you have to wonder how long Arakki is going to coast on that smirk he wears on his sleeve. A productive, but ultimately disappointing year.

Operation Dumbo Drop Summer is usually a time to lower the critical defenses, detach brain and relax. Not this sunny season, where every Friday theaters were overrun with one "Explosive Thrill Ride!" after another (and each of them took up like seven screens each; are there really that many people who need to see Judge Dredd — is Rob Schneider really that much of a draw?).

The biggest moneymakers of the year, Batman Forever and Apollo 13, were released then, but that didn't stop Hollywood from remaining for the most part creatively retarded from May 'til September. Because of the glut, I've only focused on the biggies, the ones that made the most impact and left the deepest battle scars.

Director Joel Schumacher shrewdly remade the Batman movie myth by draining all of Tim Burton's quirky and subversive elements out of the threateningly titled Batman Forever, delivering a lite–brite comic book movie straight at the mall crowd. It worked; Batman lightened up Gotham City with a zillion supporting characters, including a buff Chris O'Donnell as his, um, boy wonder.

I'm sure the studio was happy; finally a Batman movie fast food tie–in that won't scare little kids (I guess the Penguin Fish Fillet didn't go over too well last time). Too bad Batman's double–edged id got lost in the translation.

Millions of people went to see Ron Howard's Apollo 13, a movie that got so caught up in recreating the Event, it forgot to invest its characters with anything more than fuzzy nobility. The film got all excited over its scenes where we ingenious Americans solved a tricky problem (an "epic" of tinkering one critic called it); but I never felt I knew any of these people we were supposed to be lauding — it was like watching in on television all over again (I wasn't alive then, but well, you get the point).

There's Tom Hanks, polishing his halo, and Kevin Bacon and Bill Paxton (the guy with the urinary infection is all I can recall about him) fighting over whose fault the mishap was. Tom Terrific tells them to cool it; they do, and that's it. Meanwhile, we've got to sit through painfully superfluous scenes of Hanks' family at home (we get it — they are really worried). Snooze.

The amazingly inept Congo was a moderate hit as Waterworld. Both movies were obnoxiously expensive, and you've got to wonder if it actually cost millions to make the sea of flowing lava in Congo look exactly like Prego Italian Style (what a tie–in!). And what about those el–cheapo process and matte shots that made Kelvin Costner's sea extravaganza look like Cheeseworld?

Disney countered with their annual summer animated juggernaut, this one called Pocahontas. Too concerned with being politically correct (and a direct replay of West Side Story too, it seems) Pocahontas nevertheless provided weary moviegoers like myself with an 80–minute respite from movies like Dangerous Minds.

Okay, let's see if anyone anywhere hasn't seen this movie before: a principled teacher fights advertity (disinterested parents and defeated higher–ups) to impart the gift of learning to a bunch of ragtag (and racially mixed) kids, who despite their tough exterior, really want to reach their potential. No other movie this year was on such auto–pilot; if for some reason the film broke, the audience could finish it for them, line for line (it didn't matter much that this was based on a rather interesting true story). Hollywood pap like this could make any strident mainstream movie fan run to their nearest art house. Except, of course that…

…Even the art house can turn out junk It used to be that your local art house theater would be showing only the crème de la crème of indie flicks and foreign films. Now that the line between art house and Hollywood has blurred and Indie movies have proven themselves viable box office contenders, there's more "arty" fare out there, or at least what somebody thinks of as arty.

The most acclaimed has been the double–threat of writer Paul Aster and director Wayne Wang's Smoke and its improvised sequel, Blue in the Face, both set in and around a Brooklyn smoke shop owned by Harvey Keitel. Now maybe I'm just hard to please, but whenever a hip writer gets together with a hip director and they hire all hip (but not quite A–list) actors (William Hurt, Ashley Judd, Forrest Whitaker, Mira Sorvino, Stockard Channing, Giancarlo Esposito), it all seems like some kind of hip actor show–off — the "intellectual" version of those 1970 all–star disaster movies, where decrepitly old actors come together, each getting their "big scene," to show off.

Carrington has a superb performance by Jonathan Pryce as a writer Lytton Strachey, though for some reason he's not the title character. Instead we've got a miscast Emma Thompson (In a bad haircut, no less) as Dora Carrington, the mousy painter who everyone inexplicably falls in love with, except gay Strachey. Writer/director Christopher Hampton hit a grand slam with his script for 1988's Dangerous Liasons. Here, he hardly manages a feeble bunt.

Thumbs down also go to the repellant Muriel's Wedding, the pretentious The Crossing Guard (Jack Nicholson, your career is in really big trouble), the laughably lame Merchant–Ivory debacle, Jefferson in Paris and the ill– conceived version of the stage hit Reckless (Memo to its star, Mia Farrow: maybe you should call Woody back before you start guest–starring on "Diagnosis: Murder"). And I'm not even going near 1995's worst movie, Destiny Turns on the Radio. Let's just say for those who haven't come across it: it stars Quentin Tarantino, who at one point emerges from a pool, naked and glowing. If that's not enough to deter, it also co–stars Jim Belushi. You have been warned.

Jon Lupo is the former Collegian film editor.

Short's antics spice up comedy

Flamboyant Frank plans baby shower in Father of the Bride II

By Laura Stack
Collegian Staff

COURTESY MELINDA SUE GORDON

Martin tells the long and short of new flick.

Words like wild, crazy, obnoxious and insane come to mind whenever Martin Short appears before the camera. From his bizarre TV trademark character, Ed Grimley, to the various supporting roles he has done in film, Short has proved that even if he's not always comical, at least he is consistent.

Consistency is key in his latest film, Father of the Bride Part II, where the original cast is reassembled in its entirety. Short returns as the flamboyant wedding coordinator, Franck Eggleheffer. This time around, Franck is called upon to plan a double baby shower for the expecting bride, Annie (Kimberly Williams) and her mother Nina (Diane Keaton).

In keeping with the elaborate tradition of Annie's wedding celebration from the original Father of the Bride, Franck goes equally overboard with the baby shower — which includes piles of presents and live storks.

On top of his party planning, Franck takes it upon himself to decorate the baby's nursery (or suite as he calls it). He also does aerobics with the pregnant women and winds up bonding with father–to–be of the bride, George (Steve Martin).

Although their characters are designed to hate each other, Short and Martin do have good chemistry onscreen, which derives from a history of working together and a longtime friendship.

"Working with him [Martin] is always great. He is a close friend. We have a mutual respect for each other," Short said.

While Martin carries the majority of the film's comedy element in the dialogue, Short chimes in with Franck's peculiar accent, and tell–tale annoying pronunciation. Always the physical comedian, Short also offers up a series of slapstick scenes, where he contorts his face, dances around, or drags a comatose Martin on his back.

While Short seems to inject some of his own screen personality into Franck's character, he says it's hard to tell where the scripted character ends and his improvisation begins.

"It's a lot of improv, and a lot of me. You always shoot the scripted version, and in the end the two combine."

Short stated.

Franck's antics take some of the sentimental edge off of this sometimes sappy comedy. His appeal, according to Short, is simply that he's funny.

"People just want to laugh. There is a sincerity to him, but he is also a bit of a horse's ass," Short said of Franck.

Though Short says Franck is never said to be a gay man, his mannerisms and comic portrayal did stir controversy in the homosexual community.

"That's like saying everyone who's effeminate is gay. [Franck] is just a flamboyant Eastern European," Short said.

Whatever Franck is, his character works — and he is as wild and crazy as the actor who portrays him.

There are times when you wish you could do more than watch the world pass by in a haze of wonder and a cloud of what if's
COLLEGIAN NEWS
"Make it happen"

50,000 eyes will look at your ad if placed in the COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS.
Now for your convenience at the Campus Center Concourse on Thursdays.
Ask for our specials.

Auditions For Not Ready For Bedtime Players
NOT READY FOR BEDTIME PLAYERS
WOMEN ONLY
Monday - Dec.18 at 7:00PM
Campus Center Rm. 165-69
For more information call the Health Education Division of the University Health Services and ask for Sally 549-2671 Ext. 181.

Steve Madden Sale.
One week only
ZITI
Downtown Amherst

Come to Barnes & Noble at Boston University's JOB FAIR!
and get off to a great start this winter . . .
If you want a fast-paced job that will get your Winter off to a great start, it's here at Barnes & Noble at Boston University. Boston's best source for books.. and the best choice for retail jobs. Find out more at our JOB FAIR on December 13th
· Part-time jobs
· Immediate hires
· Flexible scheduling
· Store Discount up to 35%
· Friendly work environment
You could be a sales associate or a cash office associate – just long enough to get us through the Winter rush and get your bank account in shape. Get here early enough, and you could be hired on the spot!
WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 13TH 9AM-3PM CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE
If you want to get a closer look at us, but can't come to our JOB FAIR, call (617) 236-7402 for more information.
We are an equal opportunity employer
Barnes & Noble AT BOSTON UNIVERSITY

China

continued from page 1

important thing on people's minds is money. They want to read something, but mainly for entertainment," he said of people in China.

Xiao, too, has been touched by the entrepreneurial spirit which has gripped China since Deng Xiaoping's Open Door policy took hold in the '80s. He returned to China for several weeks in 1994 to begin a business exporting violins and cellos.

"People have changed even more than I imagined because China is no longer a Communist country," he said.

Even so, Xiao remains wary when travelling to China, concerned that his name might one day turn up on a government list.

"You never know [if the police are watching]," he said, adding, "Nothing would happen until they think it's necessary to stop you, like Harry Wu. Harry Wu went back to China several times. Nothing happened until the last time."

"Another Harry Wu?"

Although there are similarities between Wu's and Xiao's labor camp experiences, Xiao says the parallel between the two men's lives ends there.

Since moving to the U.S., Wu has dedicated his career to exposing China's systematic exploitation of prison labor and government coerced organ transplants. Wu was sentenced to 15 years of prison last summer, when Chinese authorities arrested him for revealing state secrets. Wu's sentence was commuted and he was allowed to return to the U.S.

Xiao insists that if his writing carries any political significance, it is by coincidence.

"I have no interest in politics. I didn't care about the political stuff then, and I don't now," he claimed. He says his goal is to transcend politics and write for the sake of art.

Xiao scolded Shijie Ribao (The World Daily), a Chinese language newspaper in New York, for printing an article which portrayed him as being bent on revenge for the time he spent in prison—— a representation he found inaccurate.

"You can ask, 'Well did you suffer a lot?' Well, yes, I did. 'Don't you want to say something against the government?' Well of course I did, but it's mainly for the art— for the writing," he said.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is pleased to announce the new newsroom staff for the Spring 1996 semester:

Arts & Living: Tara MK Connelly
Black Affairs: Position Vacant
Business: Position Vacant
Developing Nations: Syed Mohammed Ali Raza
Editorial/Opinion: Bob Dunn
Editor In Chief: Matt Vautour
GLB Issues: Position Vacant
Jewish Affairs: Position Vacant
Managing Editor: Marni E. Helfner
Multicultural Affairs: Lisa Chiu
News: Amy Paradysz
Photo: Emily Reily
Sports: Candice Flemming
Women's Issues: Position Vacant

Any questions regarding the election should be directed to Matt Vautour, Editor In Chief.

ATTENTION NEWSROOM STAFF

There is a mandatory Board of Editors meeting on Friday at 11 a.m.

There will be a meeting on Friday at noon for all those interested in a Night or Copy editor position for the Spring 1996 semester.

Questions regarding either meeting should be directed to Marni E. Helfner, Managing Editor.

Celtics destroy Raptors

Rockets give no respect to Sacramento Kings

TORONTO (AP) — Dee Brown and Boston coach M.L. Carr talked before the game. Brown's request was simple.

"I asked him if I could handle the ball to get us in the game from the beginning," he said.

Brown was true to his word, finishing with 20 points Tuesday night to lead the Celtics to their third straight road win, a 116-96 victory over the Toronto Raptors.

Brown brought up the ball in place of Dana Barros and hit all four of his shots from the floor in the first half.

"It really helped me see the flow of the game and that allowed me to get my rhythm early," Brown said. "And we know that a good start for us usually leads to good things."

It was Brown's early accuracy from 3-point range that created room for the Celtics and, in particular, Dino Radja.

"That's what opened it up for me," said Radja, who scored 18 points, including nine in the third quarter, and grabbed 14 rebounds. "Early, they were just collapsing around me and I couldn't get off my shots. But when Dee started hitting the shots, they gave me more room."

The Celtics led by 24 points in the third quarter, but the Raptors drew to 95-86, courtesy of seven straight fourth-quarter points from Carlos Rogers. But after Radja forced a jump ball, Brown fed Barros for an easy layup and an 11-point Boston lead with just under four minutes to play.

"I thought our defense was the key tonight," Radja said. "Everybody did a job for three quarters. We let down a bit in the fourth. But when you're up by 24 points in the third quarter, it's hard for any team to come back."

Barros finished with 18 points. He had two 3-pointers and now has at least one 3-pointer in 75 consecutive games, four short of Michael Adams' NBA record set from 1988-89.

Damon Stoudamire scored 18 points and had nine assists for the Raptors, who lost for the fifth time in their last six games. Ed Pinckney had 15 points and eight rebounds.

"In the first quarter they just shot the lights out," Pinckney said. "We dug such a hole for ourselves, we couldn't get out." Rogers figured the recent four-game road trip may have been the reason for the Raptors' lackadaisical start.

"The West Coast trip is a killer," he said. "I'm not making any excuses for my teammates, but we were dead tired."

Rockets 133, Kings 93

SACRAMENTO, Calif.(AP) — Hakeem Olajuwon had 31 points and 15 rebounds, and the Houston Rockets scored the final 14 points of the first half en route to a 133-93 victory Tuesday night over the Sacramento Kings.

The Rockets had a 45-37 advantage before their 14-0 run in the final 5:23 of the second quarter made it 59-37 at halftime. Robert Horry then scored 17 of his 20 points in the third quarter as Houston outscored the Kings 42-28 for a 101-65 advantage.

Sam Cassell came off the bench to score 26 points for the Rockets, including 20 in the first half. Clyde Drexler finished with 17.

The Kings suffered their worst home loss since arriving in Sacramento in 1985. The Kings shot 31.8 percent in the first half and were held to a season-low 10 points in the second period. Rookie Tyus Edney led the Kings with 17 points.

After taking a one-point lead following a tight first quarter, Houston took over the game in the second period on the way to beating Sacramento for the 12th time in 13 meetings.

No. 8 UConn cruises to victory

By Brent Kallestad
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — After a couple of losing seasons, Florida State coach Pat Kennedy thought his Florida State Seminoles were ready to play with the big boys again.

Eighth-ranked Connecticut had different ideas.

The Huskies (7-1) opened a 29-point lead early in the second half Tuesday night and easily beat the Seminoles 79-61.

"They faced us on all cylinders," Huskies coach Jim Calhoun said. "We're pretty good right now."

Ray Allen scored 22 points for Connecticut, which scored the game's first 11 points on the way to a 40-25 halftime lead. Meanwhile, James Collins, Florida State's leading scorer, struggled one day after being arrested by local police for stalking a former girlfriend. He finished with 12 points on 3-of-16 shooting.

"Our defense was our No. 1 key tonight," Calhoun said. "We did a great job of taking away their offensive guy."

Only two Florida State starters managed field goals in the first half as the Seminoles went 6-for-33 from the field. Florida State's starters accounted for only eight field goals in the game and were just 2-for-24 in the first half.

Collins said it would be a night to forget as the team must get ready for archrival Florida on Saturday.

"We came out and couldn't do anything," said Collins, who said his arrest on Monday didn't affect him. "We played so poorly, what can you look at?"

"They beat us every which way you can get beat," Kennedy said. "I just can't remember us playing that horribly. We had a bunch of individuals show up and the team went somewhere else."

Connecticut led 24-6 as Florida State managed just one field goal in the opening 12 minutes.

But senior reserve point guard Scott Shepherd hit three straight 3-pointers to key a 19-8 Florida State run that lifted the Seminoles within 32-25 with 4:35 left in the half.

Rashamel Jones added 16 points for Connecticut, while Rudy Johnson had 11 and Travis Knight notched 10 points and 10 rebounds. Freshman Randell Jackson led Florida State with 13 points and Shepherd finished with 11 for the Seminoles, who shot only 27.1 percent for the game.

Connecticut shot 49.3 percent and held a 44-39 rebound advantage.

No. 22 Santa Clara 66, Fresno St. 58

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Marlen Garnett scored 17 points and Brendan Graves had 14 as No. 22 Santa Clara weathered an off-shooting night by star guard Steve Nash to beat Fresno State 66-58 Tuesday night.

Nash, who was averaging better than 18 points as Santa Clara's leading scorer, was held to six points on 2-for-13 shooting. Still, he helped make up for it by keeping the offense going for Santa Clara (6-1) with 11 assists.

Kendric Brooks' 20 points led Fresno State (3-4), which has lost three of the past four under first-year coach Jerry Tarkanian. Rahsaan Smith added 17 points.

Down 39-32, Fresno State ran off 14 straight points to take a 46-39 lead with 12:03 left. Dominick Young made three all of his 3-point attempts during the run and Brooks converted a three-point play.

But Santa Clara answered with a 9-2 run, capped by a layup by Drew Zurek that tied it at 48 with 7:32 left.

Graves converted a baseline jumper with 4:05 remaining to make it 56-54 and put Santa Clara in front to stay.

Smith made two free throws to pull the Bulldogs within 61-58 with 57 seconds left but Graves then rebounded a missed free throw by Nash and laid it in with 32 seconds left to secure Santa Clara's fifth straight victory.

A layup by Smith with 35 seconds remaining pulled Fresno State into a 28-all tie which stood for the halftime score after Nash missed his seventh straight shot. Santa Clara shot just 30 percent in the opening half.

St. Bonaventure 74, Buffalo 64

OLEAN, N.Y. (AP) — St. Bonaventure, which scored just 4 points in the game's first 9:34, overcame the slow start and rode James Singleton's career-high 26 points to a 74-64 victory over Buffalo Tuesday night.

St. Bonaventure (3-2) made a 40-9 run over a 15:35 stretch, which began midway through the first half and lasted into the second half. The Bonnies trailed 13-4 with 10:26 to play in the first half before outscoring Buffalo 24-4 to take a 28-16 lead at the half.

The Bonnies went on a 16-6 run to open the second half and took a 44-22 lead with 14:42 to play.

Buffalo (1-3) battled back and closed the gap to 72-64 on a 3-pointer by Mike Martinho with 15 seconds remaining.

Martinho led the Bulls with 26 points. Jamie Anderson added 13. For the Bonnies, Shandue McNeill had 16 points and 10 assists and Rashaan Palmer added 12 points.

Dartmouth 70, Harvard 61

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Seamus Lonergan scored a game-high 30 points to lead Dartmouth to a 70-61 victory over Harvard Tuesday night in the Ivy League opener for both teams.

Lonergan, who leads the Ivy in scoring, was a perfect 11-11 from the free-throw line.

Dartmouth led 33-29 at the half and held off several Crimson rallies. Harvard's Mike Gilmore set a school record with his 132nd career 3-pointer to cut the Big Green's lead to 50-47, but Dartmouth pulled away on a 14-4 run mid-way through the second period to make it 64-51.

Tim Hill scored two consecutive baskets and a pair of free throws to bring Harvard to within 66-61 in the final minutes but the Green's hot free-throw shooting secured the win.

Interested In The Classifieds Manager Position?

Contact either Earl, Marty or Rosario at The Collegian!

The Daily Collegian

Bringing you the latest in up-to-date recent current fresh news and information.

Regardless of redundancy

UMASS, AMHERST

Earn 9 credits in Spanish!!
Complete your Language Requirement!
Earn credits towards a minor or a major in Spanish!

1996 Summer Program
Salamanca, Spain
July 3- July 30
Information and Application:
Director, Salamanca Program
Spanish and Portuguese 418 Herter
Tel. (413) 545-4790/2887
Salamanca@Spanport.umass.edu

It's Here
MINI-MALL

A one-stop shopping EXTRAVAGANZA
DECEMBER 11-13, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Student Union Ballroom UMASS

JEWELRY.....USED & NEW CDs & TAPES.....FINE ART PRINTS & PORTRAITS..... IMPRINTED T-SHIRTS ..... VINTAGE CLOTHING..... SWEATERS... HATS... GLOVES... POLAR FLEECE BLANKETS...TEDDY BEARS .....NEW VIDEOS... HAIR ACCESSORIES...FLAGS (INTERNATIONAL) .....

Massachusetts 77, U.N.C. Wilmington 51

U.N.C. Wilmington (2-5)
Byington 4-10 0-0 9, Moore 1-4 1-2 3, McGriff 5-10 0-0 10, Donlon 4-8 1-2 9, Franklin 1-2 0-1 2, Simmons 2-5 5-6 11, Wainwright 0-0 0-0 0, Puckett 0-0 1-2 1, Hackworth 0-1 0-0 0, Tonmer 0-1 0-0 0, Mayew 2-6 2-2 6, Avent 0-0 0-0 0, Gibbs 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 19-48 10-15 51.

Massachusetts (8-0)
Dingle 3-9 1-2 7, Bright 7-10 1-3 16, Camby 3-6 0-0 6, E. Padilla 5-8 6-8 17, Travieso 5-8 0-0 14, Burns 0-0 0-0, G. Padilla 0-0 0-0 0, McClay 0-0 0-0 0, Weeks 2-6 5-9 9, Cottrell 1-2 0-0 2, Nunez 0-1 0-0 0, Norville 0-2 6-7 6. Totals 26-52 19-29 77.

Edgar Padilla – (17 points, five rebounds, six assists two steals and no turnovers.)

Total fouls-N.C. Wilmington 24, Massachusetts 15.
A-9,493.

Halftime-Massachusetts 43, N.C. Wilmington 23.
Three-Point goals-N.C. Wilmington 3-11 (Simmons 2-3, Byington 1-5, Donlon 0-3), Massachusetts 6-13 (Travieso 4-7, Bright 1-1, E.Padilla 1-4, Dingle 0-1). Fouled out-Moore. Rebounds-N.C. Wilmington 29 (Moore 5). Massachusetts 33 (Travieso, Weeks 6). Assists-N.C. Wilmington 9 (Donlon, Franklin 3), Massachusetts 16 (E.Padilla 6).

Highlights – The UMass backcourt of Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso combined for 31 of the 77 Minutemen points while knocking down six three-pointers. UMass used 17-0 and 10-0 runs in the first half to erase a early six point deficit and go to the lockerroom at halftime up by 20. Senior Ted Cotrell ended the game with a put back dunk to finish the scoring.

guards

continued from page 12

coach John Calipari said.

Travieso finished with 14 points and six rebounds in 33 minutes of action as well.

"Everybody's been counting [Carmelo and Edgar] out, [but] they've played real good," Bright said. "They're one of the top backcourts [in the country] right now."

With the blowout in effect, Calipari was able to get Travieso time at the point, which in turn gave Padilla, who has been averaging 39 minutes per game, a much-needed break.

Travieso's been working overtime as well in the backcourt, averaging 36.8 minutes a game.

"I was amazed at Carmelo Travieso and Edgar [Padilla's] ability to dog and defend our kids for 37-plus minutes a game," Wainwright said. "It's a tribute to the conditioning program and a tribute to the character of those two men."

The two will now welcome 10 days of rest, before they head to the Meadowlands on Dec. 22 to face Georgia Tech and freshman sensation Stephon Marbury.

hoop

continued from page 12

"If the game had gotten close, I may have gotten down on my knees and begged him," Calipari said.

In the second half without Camby playing, Weeks and Inus Norville saw extended playing time. Weeks scored the most points for a Minuteman coming off the bench in the game contributing nine with six boards. Norville dropped in six points and grabbed two rebounds along with two blocks.

Senior Ted Cotrell also got on the scoreboard with a resounding followup slam on a Weeks miss in the final minute which brought the UMass bench, as well as the sellout crowd, to their feet.

Padilla was the leading scorer on the night for UMass with 17 points on five-of-eight shooting from the floor, and six- for-eight from the free-throw line. Along with his six assists and five rebounds, the Minuteman point guard did not make a single turnover. As a team, the UMass assist-to-turnover ratio was 2-to-1.

"I thought Edgar had an unbelievable line," Calipari said. "Points, assists, turnovers, steals and rebounding. He was like our leading rebounder."

Overall, the team shot a red-hot 16-for-28 from the field in the first half (57 percent) including six-of-nine from downtown.

UNC-Wilmington was led by reserve guard Stan Simmons with 11 points while Preston McGriff hit for 11 points and three boards.

The Minutemen will take more than a week off before they return to action on Dec. 22 when UMass will take on Stephon Marbury and the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets at the Meadowlands.

Memorable moments from the first term

As college hockey heads for its mid-season break with a profusion of Christmas tournaments, it's time to recognize some superlatives from the first half of the season.

Best player you've never heard of: Providence College's Russ Guzior has hardly made himself a household name, but is invaluable to the Friars, playing Claude Lemieux's role in their New Jersey Devils-style system. The pesty Guzior has proven to be an excellent penalty killer and forechecker, while quietly netting 12 goals. It is no surprise that the Devils have declined in Lemieux's absence and the upstart Friars would do likewise without Guzior.

Best freshman; Best goaltender: Marc Magliarditi of Western Michigan is having the best freshman season since Paul Kariya's Hobey Baker winning effort in 1992-93. Magliarditi has thrice been named the CCHA's defensive player of the week, as he leads the conference with 11 conference wins, 383 saves, a 1.98 goals-against-average and a .934 save percentage.

Also selected to the U.S. Junior National Team, he has already set a school record with three shutouts this season, one coming in a 35 save shutout of Michigan on Saturday, the first time the Wolverines have been shutout since losing at eventual national champion Lake Superior State in 1992.

"Marc is the type of goaltender who thrives under pressure and in competitive situations," WMU coach Bill Wilkinson said of his netminder who has won his share of big games.

The freshman broke Bowling Green's 15-game home– winning streak and has won games at Michigan and at Lake State and is head and shoulders above the rest of the nation's freshmen.

Best night: Bowling Green's Mike Hall had a fair game for himself on November 23 when the Falcons visited Alaska-Fairbanks. The senior registered a school-record eight points as BGSU won 8-6.

Hall was a one man show scoring three goals and adding five assists, personally outscoring the Nanooks.

Best coach: Paul Pooley's Friars started a roll with a solid Hockey East playoff run at the end of last year and have ridden that momentum to the pinnacle of Hockey East this year. Pooley assessed the personnel on his team and instituted the perfect system for the team's chemistry. Pooley learned the defensive style of Jeff Jackson while serving as an assistant at Lake Superior State, combined that with the philosophies of former PC coach Lou Lamoriello, and turned heads throughout the league.

Best Call by a Hockey East referee

Worst Call by a Hockey East referee : Sorry, there are only 12 pages in today's paper.

Best call by a Hockey East linesman Mike Wason made an excellent call in whistling Vermont for an intentional offsides with 1:26 to play in a 3-3 game Saturday night. UVM was deliberate in its attempt to get a whistle and faceoff at the UMass end. They got the former, but with a good call by Watson, not the latter.

The Fab Four: Boston University, Colorado College, Michigan and Minnesota should be making late March travel plans for the NCAA Championships at Cincinnati's and Riverfront Coliseum. BU and Minnesota on virtue of multiple Hobey Baker candidates and exceptional depth, Michigan based on coach Red Berenson's playoff experience and solid forwards and goaltending, and at long last, this is CC's year to break on through the regionals.

Living on the air (bubble) in Cinelnnati: Teams with a shot of reaching Cincy, but lack that extra something include Clarkson, Denver, Lake State, Providence, Vermont and Western Michigan. These teams will make waves in the tourney, but will fall just short in the end.

Biggest surprises (Best): After being tabbed for seventh in the Hockey East preseason poll, Providence has led the league much of the season, and currently stands just one points behind defending champion BU. Western Michigan has hardly disappointed with its incredible early showings. The Broncos sit second in the CCHA at 14-4 as nearly the entire team has picked up its play from last year's 17-18-5 squad. Eight Broncos average better than a goal a game, while four did last year, one of which graduated.

Biggest surprises (Worst): Wisconsin, an NCAA tourney team last year, is currently 3-12-1 after being picked third in the preseason poll; meanwhile, in what not to be its coming-out season, Merrimack sits dead last in Hockey East.

Hat–trick (Best): BU's Jay Pandolfo's three shorthanded goals against Northeastern was a rare and memorable feat.

Hat–trick (Worst): Three players have left the Maine Black Bears and coach Shawn Walsh this year. In addition to earlier losses Barry Clukey and Wayne Conlan, Jason Dekker left the team last week and is headed to the WHL.

Best Quotes: UMass forward Sal Manganaro after Army maintained a full 60 minutes of pressure in a 6-5 loss. "Army does not quit and I'm glad for that because they defend our country. I don't want them to quit."

On a more serious note, paralyzed BU freshman Travis Roy was removed from his ventilator and moved his right forearm under his own power on Friday, prompting his father Lee Roy to comment that it was "very, very minor in a sense and very, very major in another."

While much has happened on the ice, the overwhelming outshowing of support for Travis has clearly been the single biggest story in the college hockey world, and is constantly there to remind us that there are bigger and more important things in this world than simply what happens on the ice.

Leigh Torbin is a Collegian columnist.

hockey

continued from page 12

lot of pride and that our guys want to win."

The game was scoreless for the first 14:45, when Warren Norris scored the first of his two on the night. Until then, RPI held a slight territorial advantage, compliments of two power plays set up by too–many–men–on–the–ice calls against the Minutemen.

On a four-on-four, Norris maneuvered his way around RPI defenseman John Pirrong at the blue line, and worked a give-and-go with Tom O'Connor along the right boards. Norris collected O'Connor's pass and slipped it past goalie Mike Tamburro, on the ice just inside the right post.

On the same four–on–four, Manganaro scored his first of the evening as he one–timed a Mike Gaffney pass over Tamburro's right leg.

RPI began to unravel during the second period as stone– handed Engineer forwards couldn't create many scoring opportunities. Meanwhile, RPI was dumbfounded in its defensive zone, and handed UMass two goals in the span of 2:02.

At 7:27 in the second, Mike Evans sent a soft wrist shot on Tamburro from the top of the left face-off circle. Tamburro sprung up from his crouched position, trying to stare the high shot, but saw it slip between his arm and chest, and into the net.

With each team playing a man down, Bonneau picked the pocket of RPI captain Patrick Rochon as he carried the puck out of his own zone. Bonneau rushed in from the blue line and slid the puck across the crease to a streaking Tom Perry, who knocked it home to put UMass up 4-0.

The Engineers thought they had broken through the UMass defense as they found the back of the net on a mad scramble in front of Brian Regan. Mark Murphy put home a third shot, but it was disallowed because Murphy kicked the puck into the net.

Things got ugly as RPI found itself two men down with 30 seconds to go in the second, after penalties on Rochon and alternate captain Tim Regan.

Just seven seconds in, Perry controlled the puck in a corner and fed Manganaro along the boards, who sent a booming 50–foot slapper past Tamburro.

RPI did get on the board with 14 seconds to play in the period, as Dan Riva slipped the puck under a sliding Regan, while shorthanded. That would be RPI's only goal on Regan, who made 35 saves in a solid performance.

"In the first period he stopped a lot of key shots," Mallen said. "To bounce back after a tough loss [to Vermont] and play strongly, holding us together early when we needed him to, was great.

"We're trying to work on our team defense, and to give up one goal tonight and none at Yale is great."

The goal was the first that UMass had allowed to a shorthanded squad in 14 games this year. The special team units were otherwise stellar for the Minutemen on the night, killing all 11 RPI power plays, while scoring on eight power play chances of their own.

Manganaro completed his hat–trick on a power play 45 seconds into the third, off a feed from Bonneau to close the scoring.

"[This hat–trick] is something I've wanted to get," Manganaro said. "I've come close a couple of times, and it's nice to finally get it."

The Minutemen will return to action on Sunday, when they travel to Princeton to take on their fourth ECAC team in a row, at 2 p.m.

"It's nice to get a win and some momentum going into the Princeton game," Manganaro said. "We owe Princeton for some losses the past couple of years, so hopefully we'll do the same thing on Sunday."

As season draws to close, Favre proves to be MVP

This will be the last installment of the NFL column, as when the Collegian prints again, San Francisco will have repeated as Super Bowl Champions. So with that in mind I will give out the end of season awards a little early.

Most Valuable Player: Without the services of Sterling Sharpe, there was a question about the ability of Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre. He always knew that Sharpe would be there for him in the clutch, but because of a neck injury the pro–bowl receiver wasn't invited back to the Pack.

This season Favre has thrown more touchdown passes than anyone else in the NFL and has led his team to the head of the most congested division, the NFC Central. Without Favre under center, Green Bay would not be playing on the frozen tundra of Lambeau field (said as only ESPN's Chris Berman can) in January.

Honorable mention — Jim Harbaugh, Colts.

Coach of the Year: When building an expansion team it usually takes a while to win some games. The record for wins in an inaugural season entering the 1995 campaign was three by Miami. Dom Capers, of the Carolina Panthers, has doubled that number with six wins including knocking off the reigning Super Bowl Champs. Up until three weeks ago, they were seriously in the middle of the playoff race. Capers deserves a lot of credit for getting a bunch of outcasts to come together and believe in his system.

Honorable mention — Mart Schottenheimer, Chiefs.

Offensive Player of the Year: Detroit's Hermann Moore has made more catches than any other receiver in the league (108) and has been the driving force behind the Lions playoff drive. Moore and QB Scott Mitchell have benefited from having Barry Sanders as a huge threat when calling play–action passing plays. The catches will continue to accumulate through the first round of the playoffs.

Honorable mention — Issac Bruce, Rams.

Defensive Player of the Year: On a team that is most noted for its offense, San Francisco's Ken Norton Jr. has been the anchor of the League's best defense. They have surrendered only 200 points in 14 games, (that's 14 points a game if you do the math) and he leads the team in tackles.

The 49ers have the most defensive touchdowns as well and there was nothing like when Norton runs an interception back and knocks the cement out of the goal post.

Honorable mention — Bryce Paup, Bills.

Rookie of the Year: There are many first year players that have made a significant impact on the game in 1995. Joey Galloway, Mike Mamula and Terrell Davis have all had impressive rookie campaigns but the vote here goes to the Patriots' Curtis Martin. Martin now has accumulated 1,264 yards on the ground for Bill Parcells. The Big Tuna was looking for a solid running back out of the Ottis Anderson mold to complement his potent passing attack. It's too bad that the rest of the offense has sputtered.

Surprise of the Year: The Kansas City Chiefs don't have one superstar on their roster yet they have the best record in the NFL. Coach Marty Schottenheimer who has helped his team get into a contender. They even held up against the Cowboys in their Turkey day meeting. They don't turn the ball over and are well coached on special teams and Marcus Allen leads a veteran team that is well experienced and can keep the younger guys focused. Those are all intangibles that equal winning in the playoffs.

Honorable mention — Tampa Bay, Carolina.

Flop of the year: This could just as well be the Patriots, Browns or Dolphins, but I firmly believe there is no reason the Arizona Cardinals should be 4–10 at this point in the season. They had an easy schedule and defensive talent that should have flourished under Buddy Ryan. Instead "Buddy Ball" has given up the most points in the League and the offense has looked like it has been trying to move the ball through quicksand.

Fan of the Year: This is no contest. How can anyone forget the Chicago Bear fan who jumped out of his end zone seat to catch Kevin Butler's extra point in mid air during a Monday Night game against Green Bay. He was 35–feet off the concrete that makes up the Soldier Field runway. That is a true football fan.

Justin C. Smith has been the Collegian NFL columnist.

I checked in to the Rusty Nail Motel and asked the owner if he knew of any swinging cuthl bar dell joints where I could hook up with a fix of Teka Maki and Knockwurst on Rye. "The eternal question," he said, "is how to get the mouse out of the bottle." I thanked the wise old man and checked into room six sixty six. I opened up my tuli case cum brown paper bag and pulled out the Collegian. "We put the mouse in the bottle."

Ski Snowboard Party in the Snow

Only $ 219
Winterbreak & Springbreak
INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS
Excursions Include:
Mellow & Lobetts
MT. ORFORD, CANADA
JUST ACROSS THE VERMONT BORDER!
5 DAY SKI & SNOWBOARD LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, CONTESTS & HOOPLA
NOTE: THE LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18
GROUP LEADER & REP DISCOUNTS
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
SKI TRAVEL
www.skitravel.com
1-800-999-Ski-9

Steve Madden Sale.
One week only

Downtown Amherst

PUBLISH YOUR BOOK!
Join our clientele of distinguished authors, including professors and professionals, in a full-service publishing program. Gain the recognition you deserve. Carlton Press, a leading contract publisher spanning 5 decades, is seeking manuscripts for book publication. If you have an idea, or manuscript in progress, send for the booklet, How to Publish Your Book. If you have a completed manuscript, send it to us. We will provide you with a free, professional evaluation of your work with no obligation. We'll also send you a sample of Carlton's quality work. Contact us today.
CARLTON PRESS, CORP., dept. CVS
11 W. 32ND ST., New York, NY 10001

Heller Travel
Student Travel Specialists. LOWEST student and faculty discount airfares. Call for great Spring Break packages.
HELLER TRAVEL
146 Massachusetts Avenue at Berkley
Boston MA 02215 ✈ 1-800-443-1544 - Toll Free

There are times when you wish you could do more than watch the world pass by in a haze of wonder and a cloud of what if's
COLLEGIAN NEWS
"Make it happen"

U-SAVE AUTO & TRUCK RENTAL
North Amherst Motors
CARSTAR
78 Sunderland Rd.
North Amherst, MA
549-RENT

Rental Weekend Special
Noon Friday to Monday AM - Starting at $49.95
• Cars • Mini Vans • Trucks • Cargo Vans • 15 Passenger Vans • Low Daily/Weekly/Weekend Rates
• We Rent to Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older • Direct Billing To Insurance Co.
(One Mile from UMass bus route)

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals, ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals, this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as tilled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CHINESE FOOD
Fall Clu distributing Sunday through Thursday, 12-1:15pm and Friday and Saturday at 3pm. 546-2174

APARTMENT FOR RENT

2 bedr apartment well kept, fully furnished, inexpensive, on bus route. Jan 1-Sept 1. 256-8666

Beautiful uptown apt ideal for grad students. Full kitchen. full bath. large bedroom and washer/dryer. $825/month 253-7644

2 bedroom on bustine $850.00 heat and hot water included. Available January 1. Call 549-7556

2 bedroom apartment for rent starting Jan 1st. 2 bedrooms on bus line, near school. Contact Nagy 549-6415

2 bedroom on bus line. Colonial Village starting Jan 1st. Contact Ash 545-1802

2 bedroom Deluxe apts Newly remodeled quiet atmosphere. Heat/hot water included. minutes from UMass on bus route. Not many available call now for spring/ summer 665-3696

AUTO FOR SALE

'90 Isuzu Trooper 4wd. Sspd. 79k. Runs and looks brand new. $7995 549-5240.

EMPLOYMENT

BABSON COLLEGE BOOKSTORE
Help Wanted at Babson College Bookstore from mid December until late January. $5.00 per hour. Call 617-239-4215

Activity coordinators & front desk assistants- Attn college grads! If sunny and warm at some of Orlando's finest resort hotels. National recreation company is now accepting applications for their spring training class beginning January 22nd! Broaden your education in the hospitality industry or just use it as a resume builder! Fully furnished apts & $150 monthly stipend. Call 800-864-8782 for more information and application

C/C++ programmer for part time to full-time position. Macintosh programming experience preferred. Apply to ACI, 131 Triangle St. Amherst, Ma 01002 Phone 549-0701

Christmas/January break help wanted starting rate $10.25. Local branches of international firm has several openings. Earn $800-$1600 during 2-6 week work program. Part/Full time. Flexible schedule ideal for resume. Secure summer position with. Advancement opportunities. Internship possible. Apply now! Begin after finals. For openings call greater Boston/Framingham 617 449 5255 Wobum/North shore 617-938-0401. Worcester/Leominster 508-757-7900

Drivers, wait staff & exp cook needed Kings pizza 585-4255

Environmental Jobs over winter break earn $275-$375/week working to save the environment with Mastpirg. Casual fun atmosphere. Call Tom at 256-8434

Full/Part Time Tupperware; the most fun you'll ever make any serious money!! Call Danielle A Engle at 256-8863

January Job for 5 weeks. Child care for 1 year old. 5-11pm M-F $450.00 a week Amherst Center. Reliable References required 253-2424

Travel Abroad and Work Make up to $25-$45/hr. teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan or S Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For information call (206) 632-1146 ext. J50012

We want you Unique liquor related product. Results for $200 lowcostp required $2500. Follow our plan and it only 2 sales per day in each location - your profit $3(400 first year! 941-766-9001

Waiter/waitress Jobs Telefund is hiring 5 50 per hour plus bonuses. Flexible evening hours Come to the basement of memorial hall & apply today.

Two 900 #s Ba creative to earn big money. Call 253-5762

FOR SALE

SKIS FOR SALE
Rossignol Vc3 178's Brand new, still wrapped in plastic. Call Eric 549-8354

Asics girl running shoes, unworn mens 9B (may also fit 8 1/2) Must sell cheap 546-7238

Kegerator $200 2 year old iguana 4' x 2' tanks all supplies incl $200 specialized handrack 18" mountain bike $175 or bo 549-9166 Larry or Denise

Mass Lodge TXI Ski boots size 11 Asking $95 Call 546-521

STEREO EQUIPMENT
Used/reconditioned rack systems and seperate components. Large selection, honest advice, warranty and great prices. We buy audio, video, DJ/musical equipment. Stereo & video exchange at Jackson's Free Market, Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley. Open Sundays only 9-4 Other days call Amherst 256-0941

Wanna a KI salmon size 170 s Bindings & poles included. Asking $200 or bo Call 546-7444

286/386 Computer System $105/$205. Keyboard, CPU, monitor Call Steve (413) 566-3324

FOUND

Found a watch in the Thompson Building call to claim. John 253-1718.

LOST

Black Daily planner lost contains calendar planning, addresses and contacts. Lost 12/4/95. Sentimental to be left on bus from Amherst Center to UMass Please call me 413-253-7404 no questions asked I need it, it contains my life!!!

Lost Bear shaped turquoise earrings of sentimental value. Contact Dave at 545-1890

Lost 8 1/2 blackyred Adidas shoes from 82/E Castle Sunday night. (shin/ankle inserts) very substantial reward if returned (to door or closer office) no questions 546-7238

PERSONALS

To the six girls that brighten up my semester. Thank you! Messages for everyone:

Yeah, I am very interested in getting to know you better because you are very interesting.

Dave D

JWM wat. I told you you were just being paranoid!

To K-Dog, B-Monkey-Don Juan-Brady-Nelp Vennmeyer-Zach. I'll miss u guys next semester. Remember the good times the benders and the daggers (And the expired keg fish tank) 531 Main St. rs the U.P.H.! Love always, Alli-dat

Re:sorrie. Though soon you'll be there and I'll still be here, always remember that I'll miss you very much and always have you on my mind. I love you

Brian

ROOM WANTED

Male seeks apt for rent for spring 96. Getting late starting to panic. Erik 546-0048

ROOM FOR RENT

Looking for upbeat female to share 2 bedroom apt Available Jan 1 - Aug 215/mo negotiable Call 549-4835

One bedroom in a five bedroom house. Smoking OK. $270 per month. 256-4295.

1 room available in 5 bedroom house Jan/ary-August. Next to Amethyst Brook conservation area. $275a Call 253-9081

One room in South Amherst with three men three minutes from U Mass $230 mo. Call Mike 253-1564

One or two women for room at Sugarloaf Est $250 per mo./ Negotiable Call Jen 665-0138 Directly on bus route.

Room in Amherst Apt for roommate $250 Available Feb 1st. Molly 256-6439

Room for rent two bedroom house. $278 month 253-2717. Close to campus

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share a big room in a house with three upbeat girls close to campus. Please call 549-8942.

Roommate wanted to share a conservatively furnished (1/2 mile to UMass and center of Amherst) beautiful 3 bedroom, 2-1/2 bath condo in Amity Place. Laundry, fireplace, central air, patio, full kitchen, and great sunset views. Must be responsible, cat-loving, non-smoker. $425.00/month plus utilities. Available January 1, 1996. Contact Garry at 549-3666

Roommate wanted non-smoker to share room for Spring semester $185 per month. On bus route. Start Jan 1st. Call Anne 253-1605 heat & hot water included.

TO SUBLET

Two singles available in a four bedroom for spring semester/ All utilities included. On bus route. Call 253-1861

SERVICES

Free financial aid! Over $ billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships is now available. All students are eligible regardless of grades, income or parent's income. Let us help. Call Student Financial Services 1-800-263-6495 ext F50012

NEED HELP MOVING?

Quick movers & storage Move over Rover let Jim take over! 256-1300

Need help moving? Buying a new bed? Trash to dispose of? I have a pickup truck and am available year round. Please book early for end of semester moves. Hourly rates. Page anytime 292-6065.

RESUME

Inexpensive professional resume services. Packages $15-$30. Only at Campus Design and Copy - The affordable alternative. Upstairs in the Student Union. 545-2771

Jewelry repairs watch batteries, eyeglass frame repair and ear piercing. Silversmith Designs 264 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-3324

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance 549-1906

TRANSPORTATION

LOTS OF FREE BEER

Wont not really, I'm looking for a place to stay over winter/season. If you can help me call Billy @ 546-0409

2W + 1M (RA o) Want winter session housing in Amherst. Call Andy 8-4786

Four bedroom apt for winter break. Room and room or whole place Cheap! Call 253-1861

Looking for Apt/bedroom to sublet January-more responsible male needs place to stay over intersession. Call Bill at 546-2077

Trim for Jeep Make in Noho. $190 more info Call 562-9974

Need a ride to Florida? I'm driving to Florida Dec 24 & I need someone to accompany me. Call Susan 548-6138

TRAVEL

JAMAICA
Go with whom you know Spring break in Negril $560 U Mass Ski Club 545-3437 Train our experience

Catch a jet! Cancun/Mexico $189 r/t Europe $389 Call $129 Call Airtech for more info! 800-326-2009

Going home for the holidays? Need a ride to the airport? Call Valley Transportation Airport shuttle. Hourly service to Bradley. Affordable, door to door. Advance reservations 549-1350

Ski & Snowboard Winter break & spring break '96. Intercollegiate ski weeks, only $219. Includes 5 day lift tickets, 5 nights lodging (luxury condo) 5 days intercollegiate activities (drinking age-18) Sponsors include Molson & Lebatts, Mt Oxford, Canada (just across the Vermont border) group leader/rep discounts. Call Ski Travel Unlimited 1-800-999-SKI

Spring Break Bahamas or Florida Keys Spend it on your own private yacht. One week only $365.00 per person including food and much more. Organizers go for free! Easy Sailing Yacht Charters 1-800-783-4001 See us on the net http://www.shadow.net/~ersel

Winter Break Special Killington week $269 Interested? Call the U Mass Ski Club 545-3437

Ever find yourself sitting in the D thinking "You know, this food isn't all that tasty..."?
Maybe you should try writing for Arts and Living.
It won't make the food any better, but at least you'll get to see your name in the paper)
Come down to the Collegian at 113 Campus Center if interested

HOROSCOPE

Aries (March 21-April 19): Tension could arise over political or financial issues. Keep your distance until turbulence within a group subsides. You and romantic partner should talk more.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): An extended trip could yield valuable information. Even slight differences of opinion between friends can put a dent in productivity today. Focus on areas of agreement.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your energy and enthusiasm are contagious now! Productivity rises. Be more practical when you remain shopping. Investigate stock tips thoroughly before acquiring. A psychological study stirs thoughts regarding a treasured relationship.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Socializing with the wrong people could be your undoing. Guard your reputation. Professional advice will provide a valuable new perspective. Stay in sync with your spouse to harmonize partners.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Involvement in community affairs moves especially rewarding for you now. However, a family or relationship problem has you on edge. Paying Santa Claus to underprivileged youngsters gives you a feeling of contentment. Share the joy.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be careful not to push too hard when negotiating a new contract. Share your creative ideas with mate or partner. A younger person offers a terrific suggestion. The two of you make a great team.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romance takes a temporary back seat to career. New alliances are formed. Be careful not to make your mate jealous of a special relationship. Group activities are favored over one-on-one encounters tonight.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You find yourself appointed mediator or negotiator today. Your associates admire your ability to reason things out. An enterprising attitude will help you win financial backing for a special venture.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A sister or brother asks a question that reshapes your thinking on an important matter. Postpone signing legal papers and contracts. Business and sentiment mix mix well.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An excellent day to ask for personal favors or apply for a loan. Jot down creative ideas before they are forgotten. Take parents—your own or someone else's—out to dinner. Share family news.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Business travel is favored. Valuable contacts can be made at a conference or a convention. Introduce yourself to influential people. Productivity will rise when you learn to delegate more authority.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): You can talk to a friend without fear of being misunderstood. Tend to minor health problems before they become complicated. Children's expenses are rotted out. A budget revision may be necessary. Seek family members' cooperation.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Tuesday Ticker

Market closes as of 4 p.m. December 12

Index	Close	Change
Dow Jones Industrial Average	5,174.92	-9.4
Standard & Poor's 500	618.78	-0.74
Nasdaq Composite Index	1052.07	-9.43
AMSE Index	535.54	-0.11

Market Reports

Compiled by Andrew Ferguson

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study by opponents of a Republican-sponsored bank overhaul bill said it could cost consumers more than $300 million in reduced interest earnings on their savings accounts next year.

The Consumers Union said Monday it is concerned Congress will repeal requirements that banks use a uniform formula to disclose their interest rates for savings accounts and interest bearing checking accounts. The American Bankers Association and GOP staff called the Consumers Union analysis a misleading scare tactic.

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

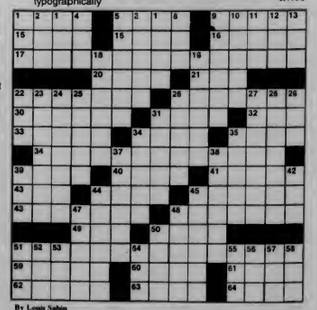
ACROSS
1 Holler's partner
5 Coffeehouse
9 State of anxiety
14 Off-Broadway award
15 Applications
16 "Have — day."
17 Backpacker's route
20 Kane's "Rosebud"
21 Confucianism's "way of life"
22 Sprinkle around
26 Scold harshly
30 Sound of laughter
31 Wimbledon "zip"
32 Luau fare
33 Court decree
34 "You bet!"
35 Slav
36 Environmental agents
39 Las Vegas roller
40 Part of M.I.T.
41 Type size
43 Soul, in Soissons
44 "What — God wrought?"
45 Set in a box
46 Teacher's plan material
48 Cannery machines
49 Football's flight
50 Bell sound
51 Environmental sanctuaries
59 Stradivari's — teacher
60 Diner order
61 Auditorium
62 Readied fish for frying
63 Copycat
64 No more than

DOWN
1 Reporter's query
2 Kyoto cummerbund
3 Cooking liquid
4 A Kennedy
5 Migratory bird
6 "The Bronx Zoo" star
7 Chicken — 8 "Sabrina" opens with it
9 Femme follower
10 Sign up
11 By way of
12 Type of irradiation: Abbr.
13 Electrical unit
18 Matter of probate
19 Director Spielberg
22 "— Na Na"
23 Bouquet
24 Oxygen-needing bacteria
25 Soothing word
26 Bas mitzvah reading
27 Exert power
28 "Howards End" author
29 Avoid the truth
31 "The Addams Family" butler
34 Restores, typographically
35 George of "King Rat"
37 Batter's position
38 House attachment
39 — Tech
42 Koch and Marinaro
44 Really repulsive
45 TV monitor
47 Fry in a little fat
48 Heavy bombardment
50 Kind of kick
51 Collar
52 Latin form of 31 Across
53 "The Joy Luck Club" author Amy
54 Harper Valley org.
55 Pi follower
56 Moving day "wheels"
57 Pipe bend
58 Stallone, familiarly

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

L	A	T	E	S	T		S	T	E	T		L	A	G
U	P	R	O	A	R		P	E	A	R		A	L	L
S	H	A	S	T	A		A	N	T	I		M	O	E
T	I	M		P	E	R	S	I	F	L	A	G	E
Y	D	S		A	P	T		O	N	L	Y
			L	E	H	A	R		E	C	L	A	T
M	A	S	C	A	R	A	S		E	I	R	E
O	C	E	A	N		N	I	L		H	U	M	A	N
P	E	E	P			D	O	C	U	M	E	N	T
E	D	D	I	E		R	E	B	A	R
			T	A	L	E		A	N	T		L	A	B
P	L	E	A	S	A	N	T	R	Y		E	L	L
R	E	D		T	R	E	E		O	P	I	A	T	E
O	D	E		E	G	G	S		N	E	R	V	E	S
P	A	N		R	O	E	S		S	T	E	E	R	S

6/7/95



By Louis Sabin
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: _____ X Words: = _____ X rate _____ = _____ Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

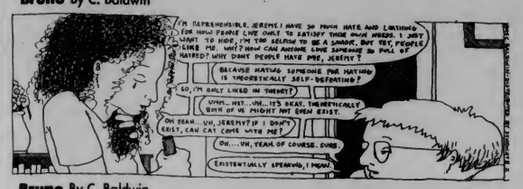
Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Loser Crew Comics By Mike Krozy

"Hey Bob, Look! It's Matt Grennon, and he's drunk."
"You know, Bob, it would be cool if Matt Grennon had an original 'catch phrase about drinking to say."
SEND SUGGESTIONS TO:
MATT GRENNON'S DRUNKEN SLOGAN CONTEST
78 GREEN ST
NEEDHAM, MA 02192
(A response will be picked and reported)

Bruno By C. Baldwin



I'M DISPREHENSIBLE, JEREMY! I HAVE SO MUCH HATE AND LOATHING FOR MYSELF INSIDE ME, IT'S AMAZING I'M NOT DEAD! I JUST WANT TO HIDE, I'M TOO SELFISH TO BE A LOVER, BUT YET, PEOPLE LIKE ME WHY? HOW CAN ANYONE LOVE SOMEONE SO FULL OF HATRED? WHY DON'T PEOPLE HATE ME, JEREMY?
BECAUSE HATING SOMEONE FOR HATING IS THEORETICALLY SELF-DEFEATING?
SO, I'M ONLY LIKED IN THEORY?
UHHH...WELL...YEAH, THEORETICALLY SOME OF US MIGHT NOT EVEN EXIST.
OH YEAH... UH, JEREMY? IF I DON'T EXIST, CAN CAT COME WITH ME?
OH.... UH, YEAH, OF COURSE. EVEN EXISTENTIALLY SPEAKING, I MEAN!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I had an English teacher who thought he was the smartest guy in the world. He was always telling us how lowly and stupid we all were.

At first I thought maybe I liked him but I think I was just afraid of him. He didn't care about our feelings.

Personally, I think he had something missing.

I wrote a paper so good that he accused me of stealing ideas.

He didn't think my little poems were any good either.

He showed our class one of his own poems and boasted,.... "This one will be read and enjoyed for a thousand years to come."

I said, "Well, you could be right, but we're going to have a hard time keeping an eye on that."

Fish face.

P.C By Mike McCormic

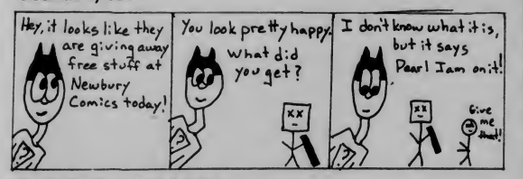
Bruno By C. Baldwin

I HATE OUR COUNTRY, JEREMY! OUR GOVERNMENT IS A BUNCH OF RICH, IDIOT SCHOOLCHILDREN QUARRELING. IT'S TOO RIDICULOUS TO EVEN BOTHER READING THE NEWS ANYMORE. I JUST WANT A MOVIE IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WOODS WITH A LOVER, AND CHILDREN WHO WE CAN BRING UP BEYOND THE CAPITALIST CLAW OF COMMERCIALISM AND ADVERTISING. I JUST HATE IT. IT'S POISONING ME AND I JUST CAN'T LIVE IN IT VERY MUCH LONGER....
SHEESH, WHAT WAS UP THAT WAVE?
BEAVER.
NOT QUITE WHAT I MEANT, AND FERMENTING AGENTS)
MM... OH THANK YOU, ANGEL OF CLARITY

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen

GeoFrey By Ebryo

Clueman By Galen

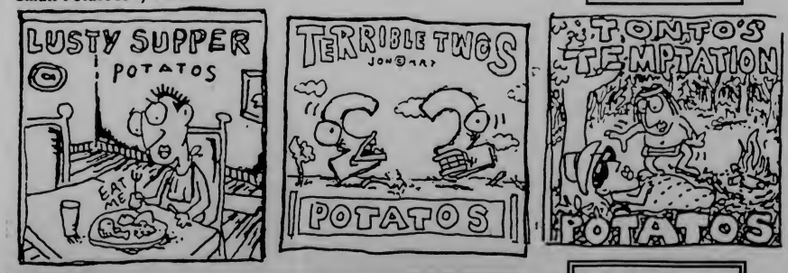


Hey, it looks like they are giving away free stuff at Newbury Comics today!
You look pretty happy. What did you get?
I don't know what it is, but it says Pearl Jam on it!
Give me that!

Don't Go There By K & Justine

I'M KINDA WALKING CLOSE BEHIND THAT GUY. MAYBE I SHOULD ASK IF HE NEEDS SOME HELP WITH HIS BAGS.
WAIT, WHY AM I PROTECTING MY FEARS ONTO HIM? HE'S PROBABLY NEVER BEEN AFRAID ON THIS CHURCH BECAUSE I'VE BEEN SITTIN' LOOKIN' AT HIS ITS FOLLOW HIM HOME, CALL AND MAKE DIRTY PHONE MESSAGES! AND THEN I'LL TELL HIM HE MUST SHAVE HIS LEGS NOW, MAKE YOU CUTEY & OH AND WHEN I'LL TELL HIM HE'S CRAZY BEFORE HE PAYS... COME THERE I GO AGAIN. SIGH.

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



Collegian News
...laterie, high fiber news source wou... th...
Happy Holiday Season!

Collegian Graphics,* our job is done when your day is just begining

The Daily Collegian

Bringing you the latest in up-to-date recent current fresh news and information.

Regardless of redundancy

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Audette
Copy Editor ..... Allison Connolly
Photo Technician ..... Daymon Smith
Production Supervisor ..... James Ganly
Production ..... Brian D. Inocencio
Dave Voldan

HAPPY HOLIDAYS FROM THE TUESDAY CREW

Dining Commons Menu

Today

LUNCH
Hot Hero Sandwich
ChickenCutlet Sandwich
BASICS LUNCH
Bean,Corn Casserole
ChickenCutlet Sandwich

DINNER
Roast Pork/Gravy
Chicken Tenders
BASICS DINNER
Potato/MushroomDel.
Chicken Tenders

Tomorrow

LUNCH
Macaroni and Cheese
Hamburgers
BASICS LUNCH
Macaroni and Cheese
Black-Eyed Peas

DINNER
Rotisserie Chicken
Fettuccini/Sausage
BASICS DINNER
Rotisserie Chicken
Fettuccini/Tofu/Sauce

Friday

LUNCH
Meat Pie/Gravy
Turkey Burger
BASICS LUNCH
Hummus Veg Pocket
Turkey Burger

DINNER
Cheese/Spinach Strudel
Roast Beef/Gravy
BASICS DINNER
Cheese/Spinach Strudel
Roman Rice and Beans

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Signs the "Top 10 guy" is running out of ideas

10. I write a list like this.
9. It's the end of the semester.
8. You often see me roaming campus naked with a high powered rifle repeating over and over to myself "Top 10 Reasons to kill, Top 10 Reasons to kill."
7. My lists start to become "potentially libelous."
6. I answer the phone, "Listen you ungrateful freak let's see you write a list every day for fifty days!"
5. Suddenly the "Top 10" becomes "Top 5."
4. The managing editor of the Collegian mysteriously disappears.
3. I call up Chancellor Scott for some good ideas.
2. Ummm... Hmmm ...
1. I start plagiarizing like it's no tomorrow.

Quote of the Day

The Universe is like a fruitcake – you take some flour, a bunch of raisins, and add yeast. When it rises, the raisins all move apart from each other.

–Astronomy Prof. Bill Irvine

Sports

Minutemen shoot down Seahawks

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

The fear of a letdown always surrounds a team that has played so well against tough competition and then has to play what Massachusetts coach John Calipari would call "Popcorn State."

Five minutes and three seconds into the contest, North Carolina–Wilmington center Preston McGriff hit a layup to boost the Seahawk lead to six, an 8–2 lead. Then the Minutemen got down to business on the defensive end and ran off 17 straight points, and they would never look back with a 77–51 win last night at the William D. Mullins Center.

Massachusetts 77
UNC-Wilmington 51

"This is not what you would call a letdown," Calipari said. "They came out and played the way they needed to against us."

UMass was lead by the guard play of juniors Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso. In the 17–0 run that broke the game open, they combined for three three-pointers as well as grabbing three rebounds and a steal.

"The whole reason for our success has been the play of our guards," Bright said. "If it weren't for our guards, we wouldn't be 6-0. They've been great."

"They work really hard," UNC Wilmington coach Jerry Wainwright said. "I am just absolutely amazed at Carmelo's and Edgar's ability to dog and defend kids for 37-plus minutes a game is a true tribute to the character of those young men."

Dana Dingle and Marcus Camby started the run with a beautiful give and go play which Dingle finished with 14:20 left in the first half. Travieso then knocked down his first three of the night to cut the lead to one, before a Camby drive through the lane for an easy bunny gave the Minutemen a lead it would never relinquish.

When Tyrone Weeks put home a lefty hook off the glass with 8:32 remaining in the first half, UMass had finished its run and was up 19–8.

UMass closed out the final two minutes of the first half with a 10-0 run that was highlighted by Donta Bright. First the senior co-captain blocked Lamont Franklin's attempted three-pointer and headed down the court as Rigoberto Nunez grabbed the loose ball. Nunez found Bright in the corner with a football like pass, who then drilled a trey as the buzzer sounded.

Calipari's squad went to the locker room with a 43–23 lead, but when they returned they would be without their superstar.

Minuteman center Marcus Camby played all of his 18 minutes in the first half, accumulating six points, four assists, three blocks and two rebounds before having to sit out with a groin injury.

"He said it was a groin and I said 'Fine.' He said he didn't want to test it," Calipari said. "Obviously, we didn't feel like we needed him."

Asked if Camby could have returned if the game had gotten close once again, the UMass coach would have tried to persuade his big man to return to the court.

Turn to HOOP, page 9

DAYMION SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Edgar Padilla puts home two off his 17 points on the night as the UMass romped over the UNC Wilmington Seahawks last night, 77–51.

Padilla and Travieso guard UMass to victory

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

In the first five games of the season, they've pretty much been overlooked — mainly because of the three big names on the Massachusetts roster: Marcus Camby, Dana Dingle and Donta Bright — although the two shouldn't be overshadowed.

But in last night's game against North Carolina– Wilmington, UMass guards Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso finally got the recognition that they deserved.

The two guards were the story of the game, combining for 32 points and 11 rebounds, and leading the Minutemen to a 77–51 win.

"The whole reason for our success has been the play of our guards," Bright said. "If it weren't for our guards, we wouldn't be 6-0. They've been great."

Travieso's shooting was the story of the first half. He had been struggling in the previous two games, scoring just seven against Wake Forest (Dec. 6) and two against Boston College last Saturday. Against Maryland on Dec. 2, he finished with zero points but did grab six boards.

But Travieso lit up the William D. Mullins Center last night for 12 first half points, on the strength of 4–for–5 shooting from the field, all three-point attempts.

"I don't really worry about making shots," Travieso said. "I worry about my defense and rebounding, the rest of the game comes from that. When I get open looks, I shoot them and if they go in, they go in. If they don't, I just keep on playing. Eventually, they're going to fall, and tonight they did."

Padilla had a lot of success finding an open Travieso behind the arc, and he finished the half with five assists.

After the Minutemen's slow start that saw them down 8–2 after a little over five minutes of play, Travieso caught fire. He followed baskets by Bright and Dingle with his first trey of the night to pull UMass to within one, 8–7. UMass took the lead shortly after and never trailed again.

Travieso sank his second three of the night immediately following the first television time out, and then Padilla added a trey on the very next possession after the stingy UMass defense caused one of UNC–Wilmington's 18 turnovers.

The treys by Travieso and Padilla helped spark the Minutemen to a 17–0 run that effectively put the game out of reach.

"Carmelo and Edgar made the open shots," UNC– Wilmington coach Jerry Wainwright said. "They are very confident in shooting the ball."

After Travieso dropped two more three–pointers in the half, it was Padilla's turn to shine. The 6–foot–2–inch sparkplug scored four of the Minutemen's last 10 points of the half, all from the charity stripe.

Padilla continued things in the second half, starting it off with a jumper to give the Minutemen a 45–23 lead, and then sinking a layup with 14:15 remaining to give UMass a 48–27 edge.

Padilla finished the game scoring a game–high 17 points with five rebounds, six assists, two steals and no turnovers in 33 minutes of action.

"I thought Edgar had an unbelievable line," Massachusetts

Turn to GUARDS, page 9

Mangaranro nets hat trick as Minutemen pound RPI

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

TROY, N.Y. — If the Massachusetts Hockey team secedes from Hockey East to join the ECAC, it might not come as such a surprise.

After shutting out Yale Friday night, and taking the conference's top team, Vermont, to overtime on Saturday, UMass pounded defending ECAC champ Rensselaer 6–1 last night before 2,954 at the historic Houston Field House.

For us to come in here with a brand new team and beat them 6–1, is a real great accomplishment.

-UMass Coach Joe Mallen

Sal Manganaro netted his first career hat–trick and Rob Bonneau added four assists as the Minutemen (5–2 on the road this year) breezed to victory. Bonneau and Manganaro matched their point totals for all of last year during last night's game.

"I'm proud of this team," coach Joe Mallen said. "This is a building with a lot of tradition, and this is a program with a lot of tradition. For us to come in here with a brand new team and beat them 6–1, is a real great accomplishment. Bouncing back after losing to Vermont, shows a

Turn to HOCKEY, page 9

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Forwards Sal Manganaro (front) and Warren Norris skated for six combined points last night as the Minutemen rolled over RPI, 6–1.

Erin Lynch named All–American

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

The accolades just keep piling up for Massachusetts women's soccer player Erin Lynch, as the junior defender was named a first–team NSCAA/UMBRO All–America selection yesterday.

UMass senior forward Rachel LeDuc was named to the second team for her record–breaking (18 goals, 10 assists) season in which she broke or tied five all–time UMass records. She finished with 35 career goals and 95 career points.

"I was very excited because it's the first time in sometime that we've had two [All–Americans]," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said. "I'm very pleased for them and our team in particular. They've continued the tradition that we've always had. We've always had All–Americans at UMass."

LeDuc also earned an invitation to participate in the Umbro Select College All–Star Classic, which takes place March 1–2 in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

"That's a great opportunity. It's great to have your seniors go out and get a last game," Rudy said. "It's a national event, it's definitely big–time."

Lynch was the leader on the formidable UMass defense that allowed just 15 goals in 20 matches this season. She finished with four goals and eight assists, and was named the Atlantic 10 Player of the Year for the second consecutive season.

During the season, Lynch made two appearances on the Soccer America National Team, one of only three defenders in the nation to be named to the team more than once. She was also named the Atlantic 10 Player of the Week once and was voted the Defensive MVP of the UMass Classic, held at UMass on Sept. 22 and 24. For her career, she has 10 goals and 15 assists.

Lynch was honored to be recognized.

"It's a compliment," she said. "I was pretty surprised that I made the first team."

"I'm glad that finally some of these people who haven't recognized [Lynch's] brilliance, finally have," Rudy said. "She plays at a different intellectual level than many other players and you need to watch her to see it."

The NSCAA/UMBRO All–America team is one of the most prestigious awards in collegiate soccer as it is voted on by coaches from throughout the country.

"This is the [award] that's been around from the beginning. All the coaches vote for it," Rudy said.

"[The award] is a compliment to my teammates," Lynch said. "All of the coaches are seeing our team doing well."

The future for Lynch looks very bright as the Austin, Texas native should be a leading candidate for National Player of the Year honors next season.

"I'm going to try to raise [my play] up another level next year," said Lynch, who helped lead the Minutemen to a 14–4–2 record this season.

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Junior defender Erin Lynch of the Massachusetts women's soccer team was selected to the All– American first team yesterday.

UMass travels to St. Peter's looking for first road win

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

This evening, the Massachusetts women's basketball team travels to New Jersey to face St. Peter's looking to earn its first road victory.

Thus far, UMass has dropped road games to Maine and No. 1 Louisiana Tech. With a record of 4–2 thus far into the season, a win tonight would tie the best opening season run (5–2) in Minutewomen history.

UMass is coming off last week's 66–51 win over Brown University in the Mullins Center. Massachusetts led 37–26 at the half, then jumped out in the second with an impressive 15–5 run, opening up the lead to 21.

Coming up big for the Minutewomen was senior co– captain Octavia Thomas (14.4 ppg), who tallied a team high 15 points to lead the team.

At this early point in the season, the Peahens host UMass with a 5–1 overall record. With a 65–47 win over Rider College on Dec. 10, St. Peter's will be looking to avenge last year's 63–40 drubbing by the Minutewomen, the first time the two schools met. If history has a tendency to repeat itself, St. Peter's has its work cut out.

To say Massachusetts dominated last year's meeting is an understatement. With 14:12 remaining in the first half, the Minutewomen went on a 18 point, unanswered tear entering halftime with a 20 point lead.

Beth Kuzmeski

Leading the way for the Peahens is senior Tonia Collier who notched an impressive 25 points in last weeks match–up against Rider. This is no surprise as Collier leads the team in scoring, averaging 15.4 ppg. Also posing a threat to the Minutewomen is Tonya Gertrude who is second on the St. Peter's scoring list tallying 15.3 ppg.

Last year, UMass had no trouble putting the ball in the hoop. A quick look at the stats shows that shooting is something UMass has done quite well lately. As a whole, the team is outscoring their opponents 66.8 to 63.2.

With powerful co–captain tandem of Thomas and center Melissa Gurile posting double figures in all but one game, the Minutewomen lead their opponents in virtually every category posting a .461–.354 field goal percentage, .350–.308 three point percentage, while .770–.748 from the line.

UMass can shoot, and when they do it well, they win games. It sounds basic, but one of the basic reason's of the team's success stems from getting the "easy points." Just look at how well they're doing from the charity stripe.

Averaging 77 percent from the foul line as a team, the Minutewomen are led by senior Tricia Hopson. She has not missed a single foul attempt 5–for–5, while Gurile has shot 25–26 (92 percent) and junior Beth Kuzmeski 7–8 (87.5 percent). In fact, Gurile is 12 away from breaking the career free throw record of 344.

Strong shooting and dependability coming from a strong bench in the form of Hopson, forward Tez Kraft (10ppg) and freshman standout Jaywana Bradley, UMass should fare well this evening.

Following tonight's game, the squad enjoys a 15 day break from competition when they compete in the Lady Gator Classic Dec. 29–30.

Thomas leads UMass to win
Octavia Thomas scored 21 points and grabbed eight boards to help carry the Minutewomen to a 57–48 victory over St. Peter's last night (See Sports, page 20).

Confiding in Cooley
Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton is providing campus residents with psychological counseling (See story, page 3).

Taking a long hard look
1995 is almost at a close. Take a look at the year's Best & Worst Movies, music picks, TV shows and timeline (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Weekend Forecast
Today snow mixing with sleet or freezing rain late in the day. Tonight mixed rain with snow ending by midnight, expect 3–5 inches. Friday mostly cloudy, snow in the afternoon.

HIGH: 28 LOW: 20 | HIGH: 40 LOW: 32 | HIGH: 35 LOW: 25

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 68 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, December 14, 199

RYAN TRZCINSKI/COLLEGIAN

Step on it!
Junior Organic Plant Science majors Adam Verrastro and Dan Marnen, give their all to battle what this weeks cold weather has done to the roads.

Two students claim police harassed them after game

By Chris Conner
Collegian Staff

For two University of Massachusetts students, the trip home from last night's men's basketball victory at the Mullins Center turned into what they see as an incidence of racially motivated police harassment.

According to junior Ron Dottin, he and first–year student Tarringo Vaughn, both black, were walking home from the game with fellow Gorman Residence Hall residents Jeff Poulin, a sophomore, and Rick Negian. Both Poulin and Negian are white.

Dottin said that at approximately 11:48 p.m., a UMass police cruiser approached the group near the Hills Building, which neighbors Gorman in the Central Residential Area. According to Dottin, the officer then exited the vehicle, and asked that he and Vaughn step forward.

When Dottin requested the purpose of the stop, in addition to the officer's badge number and name, the officer allegedly refused to divulge the information until after the line of questioning was complete.

"At that point, he never told me anything," Dottin said.

In an official complaint filed with the University Police Department after the incident, Dottin said the officer later identified himself as Peter Murray, badge number "51."

According to Dottin, Murray proceeded to ask he and Vaughn if they were University students. Both students answered "yes," and were then asked by Murray if they had been in the area around the Van Meter Residential Area earlier in the evening. The students answered "no."

Dottin said he would later discover there allegedly was an assault near the upper Central dormitory after which the victim described the assailants as two black males.

Murray then asked to see the two students' University identification cards, which they produced, according to Dottin. They were also asked their whereabouts, Dottin said.

After telling Murray they had been in attendance at the game, Dottin said Murray then asked the pair the score of the game, as well as requesting they show their ticket stubs. Both he and Vaughn complied, but Dottin said he was shocked by what happened next.

"After showing [Murray] our ticket stubs," he said, "He asked the white students to verify where we had been."

Jeff Poulin said the verification request was the first time either he or Rick Negian were addressed during the entire stop, which Dottin estimated lasted approximately 15

Turn to HARASSED, page 3

Provost's proposal calls for academic overhaul

■ Unveiled report threatens Humanities ■ Provost review proposes dept. restructuring

By Hernán Rozemberg
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts may be undergoing through serious academic reforms in the near future. Such changes could be crucial in the lives of UMass faculty and students, as proposals range from the restructuring of programs to their very termination.

Provost Patricia Crosson's proposal Academic Program Review (APR) — an official mandate coming from the Board of Trustees — is originally scheduled to be released later today. The proposal reviewed all 64 academic departments at UMass.

Due to the relevance and importance of the proposal, the level of anxiety and concern on campus has greatly escalated, especially in the case of some faculty members of the College of Humanities and Fine Arts — traditionally one of the areas worst hit by administrative reforms, according to several department heads within the College.

If the ideas of the APR proposal go as planned, the College by itself will constitute about 25 percent of the overall University–wide reforms, according to Chair of the Department of Spanish and Portuguese, Cristina Gonzalez.

The proposed changes affect all the language programs in one way or another. According to a document issued from the Office of the Provost entitled "College of Humanities and Fine Arts," all language instruction at the elementary and intermediate level (usually 100– and 200– level courses) will form part of the Center for the Study of Language Acquisition (CSLA), rather than part of the specific program.

As argued in the document, the reason for this move is that "savings [can be] realized through this arrangement. Savings will be possible through stopping admissions in some low–level undergraduate majors and graduate programs."

Many faculty seem to be worried that such an important reform could damage the language programs and prove as detrimental to diverse and multicultural learning possibilities provided to students.

Frank R. Hugus, Head of the Department of Germanic Languages and Literatures, said this would be "extremely ill– considered" of administrators to do, since "we are perceived as being expandable and rather weak."

Dennis D. Porter, who chairs the Department of French and Italian, said that a language center "will seriously weaken the liberal arts core of the University ... it will be very expensive to set up this center — classes will have to be retrofitted."

Arguing against the Provost's money–saving formula, Porter said "the savings that will be made ... will be minimal" and will ultimately produce a "decreasing choice" in language programs for students.

Donald Gjertson, Professor of Asian Languages and Literatures, also said the impact caused by such a center on the language departments would ultimately be negative.

"My worry," said Gjertson, "would be that it would separate out the language component from the cultural and literature components."

As of yesterday, most professors could only draw conclusions from oral communications between department heads, Provost Crosson and College of Humanities and Fine Arts Dean Lee R. Edwards. No written documentation had yet been provided by the Provost until today's APR presentation, according to all interviewed.

Beyond mere structural changes, concerns were also expressed regarding the APR lack of cultural sensibility and disregard of teaching quality resulting from such bold changes in language departments.

"The languages are at the heart of

Turn to PROPOSAL, page 3

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Several campus departments are slated for restructuring. New admissions to some majors will be suspended and faculty size will be reduced through attrition.

These changes are the prominent pieces of Provost Patricia Crosson's Academic Program Review. The Review is Crosson's response to a mandate set in March 1995 by the Board of Trustees. The Review serves as a proposal which looks at restructuring administrative services and reviewing fall academic departments in order to best manage the University's resources.

"I have created this proposal in the best interest of the students and faculty," said Crosson. "My overall goal is to improve and ensure that the University maintains a high level of quality."

However, Speaker of the Student Government Association Senate, Dan Castellano feels that the provost's proposal may not be in the best interest of the students. "I am pessimistic to the Provost's Review because no students can benefit from any program being cut."

Within the plan, several departments will be restructured, meaning that some departments will be merged together. The Provost researched the curriculum, the student's abilities to take courses, their ability to take majors and the structure and organization of the Academic Departments in order to make an informed decision. Whereas size is a function of demand, Crosson states that she created these proposed mergers in order to balance the size of course offerings to the number of the students' demands.

Also within Crosson's Review, she proposes that new admissions into some majors should be suspended. This decision is also due to changes within the desires of the students to take certain majors. The Provost stresses that the changes in admissions to majors will not jeopardize students who are currently involved in major programs.

Furthermore, the proposal will reduce the size of faculty through attrition. This reduction is not a comment on the work of faculty. And her decisions will have no bearing on present tenure or the tenure system.

The proposal is not a comment by the Provost on the value of individual scholarly areas — instead it is due to research of four major criteria which were set fourth by the Trustees. Cost, quality, demand and centrality of the departments to the mission of the campus as a public land– grant University were prominent research areas.

"The review will result in a new redistribution of resources which will add to the comprehensive quality of the University," said Crosson, "We are looking to do things with the highest quality in the most efficient way."

Chancellor David K. Scott agrees with the Provost.

"We must make all our programs as effective as possible, responsive to the resources and demand, while continuing to pursue aggressively the case for renewed investments in this Land–Grant Flagship University," Scott said.

The Academic Program Review will be released to the University this afternoon. Faculty will receive letters explaining the report and copies will be available at the reserve desk at the DuBois library. Until this time, the public has not been informed as to the specifics of the Review.

Student Trustee Dan Rivera feels that the students need to be informed of the proposal to ensure that they are able to put in their two cents before any final decisions are made.

The report will be sent to the Rules Committee of the Faculty Senate and to the Academic Priorities Council for Review and recommendations. No action will be taken on the proposal until the Faculty Senate completes its review which has been requested by the provost for March 1, 1996.

Students dispute facts; other side of story told

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

In response to yesterday's article, "Students, police dispute facts in assault," four of the white students present during both attacks told their story to the Collegian.

Early Wednesday morning, two separate incidents occurred involving a few Asian students and a group of white students. A series of events beginning with the campus–wide snowball fight that took place that night led to the beating of at least two male students.

Both the Asian group and the white group agree that a group of about 300 students threw snowballs at a blue Honda Civic hatchback.

They "didn't know who they were, just a blue Honda," said Sean Mason, who did not throw any snowballs.

The two Asian males in the vehicle said the car was "bombarded by snowballs." They said they got out of the car and went to the trunk to get something to scare the crowd.

Mason said one of the Asian students (who has been identified as Kan Trach) took out a windshield scraper. Someone in the crowd, however, said that he had a gun and many of the students ran, Mason said.

Another white student present, Chris Lynch, said four white students "took down" one of the two Asian students (Soden Tek) after he exited the vehicle.

Lynch and Mason said the second incident took place at least half an hour later. They were part of a group of eight students who fell behind a larger group of 50.

The Asian students allegedly

Turn to ASSAULT, page 3

Police procedure questioned after snowball fight turned into assault

By Lisa Chiu
and Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Students involved in a violent incident which occurred simultaneously with last Thursday night's snowball fight bring to light alleged racist actions by campus police officers.

News Analysis

When brought in for questioning about an incident, Soden Tek said that a white UMass police officer allegedly questioned him in the following manner:

"Where are you from?" asked the officer.

Tek replied, "West Hartford."

Tek also stated that this was the first time he had ever got in trouble with the law.

The officer then stated, "You've been in jail before." To which Tek replied, "No, no, no." The officer responded, "I know you've been in jail before, you're from West Hartford." The officer also asked Tek whether or not he was in a gang, to which Tek again replied "No."

The officer then allegedly continued by asking Tek of his ethnicity,

Turn to PROCEDURE, page 2

Ways and Means proposes '97 budget

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association's senate Ways and Means Committee presented its preliminary budget appropriations for fiscal year 1997. However amidst the increases, the Distinguished Visitor's Program's funding was eliminated for the academic year.

Committee chairman Jeffrey Coker said the decision to decrease the Distinguished Visitor's Program's funding was due to the diminishing output the agency has recorded over the past years. The committee's primary intent was to balance the budget, without dipping into reserves or increasing fees. With a deficit of $16,000, the committee wanted to pick one agency with the lowest output, rather than cutting budgets across the board. Therefore, the visitor's program was targeted for the cuts.

"The DVP is an asset to the campus community," Coker said. "However, its operations and effectiveness were two aspects that were considered by the committee as not up to par compared to the output and effectiveness of other agencies and campus–wide organizations."

Every agency was level funded last year except the visitor's program, Coker said. In order for all of the agencies to expand, one must suffer financially.

Coker also pointed out that many other registered student organizations and agencies also bring distinguished visitors to the University, such as former Surgeon General Dr. M. Joycelyn Elders, brought by the Commuter Area Government, and Chinese dissident Chai Ling, who was brought by the ALANA lecture series. The Chancellor's office is also looking into bringing visitors to the University as well.

Since the program was first cut two years ago, the program has only brought two visitors a semester, down from four. The committee also noted the program did not respond to those initial cuts, except for increasing the ticket prices for community members. They did not seek other means such as fund raising or business endorsements.

The decision came down to a vote of 6–3 in favor of the decrease.

Sen. Pete Luongo voted against the funding cut, saying the DVP has been a valuable institution.

"I felt the DVP has been a successful program since its start in 1963," Luongo said. "To say that one organization is better than the other is wrong. The DVP has had sell–out crowds for the past few years."

However, a committee member

Turn to BUDGET, page 3

UMass to host earth conference

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Correspondent

State–wide high school students and teachers will come to the University of Massachusetts to attend a two day conference about environmental issues on March 8 and 9.

The Earth Connection will inform teams of students and teachers about successful local community service projects and explore environmental resources at the University. Workshops will focus on school waste recycling, teaching elementary students about nature, and effective citizen participation in pollution and watershed prevention. Internet resources will also be taught at the conference.

"It is important to teach the Internet because it is fun for students, gives connections to new resources, and allows students to stay in contact with each other," said Will Snyder, University Extension staff member and coordinator of the event.

Teachers and students will be offered accounts to use the UMass K12 network for access to the internet. A $50 membership fee includes a student and teacher account. Schools need a computer and a modem to be eligible for accounts.

University departments, programs and students are asked to help with the event, according to Snyder. Leaders to initiate group games, video record the workshop and peer leaders to show students the campus are needed, Snyder said.

"We often underestimate the contribution that young people can make to environmental problem–solving," Snyder said in a press release. "When young people and adults work together, the result is increased awareness, concern, knowledge, skill, and vision, and the commitment needed for environmental solutions."

"Teachers who are looking for ways to provide active learning experiences for their students will find The Earth Connection to be a great source of ideas and strategies," Tom Waskiewicz said in a press release.

Waskiewicz, program director of Extension (the University outreach program based in the College of Food and Natural Resources), works with youth–serv–

Turn to EARTH, page 3

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Thursday, Dec. 14

Election — The Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) will have an election for coordinating committee until Friday, 12 noon until 5 p.m., outside the Grad Lounge and at the General Membership Meeting on Friday.

Dance & Music — Grupo Sofrito, Latin Jazz and dance music will perform in the Bluewall at 7:30 p.m. with free admission. Grupo Sofrito is brought by the UMass Drum and Dance Collective.

Exhibition — UMass panels of the Five College Beyond the Names AIDS Quilt will be displayed in the Graduate Lounge until Dec. 14.

Study Break — The Stonewall Center is sponsoring a study break for five college GLBT students at 7 p.m. in the Stonewall Center. For more information call 545-4824.

Music — People of Goodwill "Music of African Diaspora," art displays for graduate students and faculty, 4 p.m. – 1 a.m., Graduate Lounge, Campus Center, cash bars and hors d'oeuvres, sponsored in part by Office of Minority Graduate Student Recruitment.

Friday, Dec. 15

General Membership Meeting — The Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) will have a General Membership Meeting, 5 – 7 p.m., 917 Campus Center. There will also be an election for Coordinating Committee, ending Friday, 12 noon until 5 p.m. The votes will be counted at 6:30 p.m. during the membership meeting.

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 12 p.m., Campus Center. For more information call Utama at 256-8482.

Religious — Shabbat Services will be held at Hillel House at 6 p.m.

Christian — Paul Ferrini, author of Love Without Conditions, will be doing a booksigning and giving a talk called "Speaking From the Christ Mind." Booksigning at Beyond Words Bookshop, 189 Main St., Northampton, 6:30 – 7:30 p.m., free. Talk will be at First Churches, 129 Main St., Northampton, 7:30–9:30 p.m, in the sanctuary. $10 love offering.

Saturday, Dec. 16

Religious — An Eastern Orthodox Divine Liturgy will be celebrated on Saturday, Dec. 16 at 10 a.m. in the Helen Hills Chapel at Smith College. The pan-Orthodox service will be conducted in English and followed by a light meal. For more information contact Irene at 545-5470.

Astronomy — The Amherst Astronomy Association is conduction a free public planetarium show at 4 p.m. in the Amherst College Bassett Planetarium and a free public observatory observing at 9 p.m. at the Amherst College Wilder Observatory. For more information call 256-6234.

Bosnia Intervention Protest — The National People's Campaign is holding a protest against U.S./NATO intervention in Bosnia, noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Federal Building, 1550 Main St., Springfield, regardless of the weather. Come and learn what is really behind the intervention. For more information, 413-538-8537.

Workshop — Workshop on "Ending the Betrayal of Self" at Lyman Hall, The First Churches, 129 Main St., 10 – 4:30 p.m., $75 suggested love offering.

Notices

Scholarships — The National Council of Alpha Lambda Delta Academic Honor Society for Freshman will award several $3,000 scholarships for graduate study. Alpha Lambda Delta members graduating with a certain cumulative average are eligible. Application forms and information may be obtained from Eileen Stewart, Assistant Dean of Students, 227 Whitmore. Applications are due by Dec. 29.

Ski instructors wanted — Anyone interested in becoming an instructor-guide with the B.L.I.N.D. Ski Program beginning Jan. 8, 1996 at Mt. Tom Ski Area in Holyoke, may contact Betty Hollingsworth at 665-4614 ASAP. Applicants must be at least 16 years old, have good skiing ability, an interest in teaching others and preferably, prior instructor experience.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 585-0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5-6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545-4824.

■ budget

continued from page 1

said the visitor's program does receive $5,000 a year as part of an approximately $36,000 endowment. By increasing ticket prices and corporate sponsorship, the program does have a potential future.

The committee appropriated money to such organizations as the PVTA, UVC, WMUA, UPC, SCERA and the Craft Center.

The draft is only a preliminary budget recommendation and "by no means final," Coker said. It will be presented to the senate for approval and presentation on May 1, 1996.

Other orders of business

The senate also passed a motion to support a petition to establish an Asian American Studies program at the University. Currently, there is a student motivated two-credit course offered by volunteer faculty. The course should be offered again next semester. Forty students and two faculty sponsors have participated this semester.

"For an institution which purports diversity and cultural sensitivity, [the academia] is inadequate," Sen. Anh Ly, one of the presenters of the motion, said.

A motion to establish a committee to recommend procedures for the recognition of a caucus among the senate was passed unanimously. This motion comes in response to the discrepancies concerning the failure of the women's caucus proposal earlier in the semester.

The senate also passed a motion to have a transfer student's transfer GPA be printed on their transcript as well as their UMass GPA. The motion was presented by Sen. Bill Boberg and a friendly amendment was added by Chair Lawrence Plano and Sen. Bill Ramsey.

■ procedure

continued from page 1

whereupon Tek answered that he was Cambodian.

Kan Thach, another Cambodian individual involved in the same incident, decided to call the UMass police when he discovered in the Collegian that the police were looking for him.

Thach called the police from Dunkin' Donuts on the night of Dec. 8, stating that was involved with the incident. The police allegedly asked that he go straight to the police station, which he did.

Upon arrival at the police station he and a friend who was not involved with the incident were told to use the outside phone to call someone to let him into the station. Thach claims that suddenly, they were allegedly surrounded by approximately eight policemen some pointing guns at them. Kan's friend was a witness to this incident.

According to Thach, a police officer pointing a gun to his head, allegedly said, "If you make a move, I'm going to put a bullet through your head."

When Thach was finally questioned that night, he was also allegedly asked questions concerning whether or not he was affiliated with the gang Cambodian gang TRG (Tiny Rascal Gang).

Thach was also asked whether or not his tattoo was related to any gang. Thach replied that it did not and that he just had it for fun.

A third Cambodian student involved with the incident was also allegedly questioned in the same fashion.

Thach, who was later arrested that night, said, "The jail it was so freezing, it was so cold. I asked for a blanket and then I asked them to turn on the heat and they didn't do anything. I just took off my shirt and covered myself with it, and I stayed up all night, because it was too freezing in there."

UMass police have refused comment on these incidents.

The three individuals feel that the UMass police unfairly assumed and accused them of being gang members due to the fact that they are Cambodian and that they were all friends allegedly victimized in the same incident.

The individuals question that had they been white, would they have been given the same treatment and accusations?

In an unrelated incident last night, two black students and two white students were walking home from a basketball game, whereupon they were allegedly stopped by a police officer who was looking for two black individuals who were allegedly involved in an alleged assault in the Central residential area. The officer allegedly stopped and questioned the black students whereabouts earlier that night. Throughout this line of questioning, the officer allegedly did not at all question the white students, until it came to corroborating the black students' story.

These incidents have both occurred within a week of each other. They serious questions for both the Asian American, Latin American, African American and Native American community and the entire campus, about the treatment of students of color by the UMass police.

■ assault

continued from page 1

approached the group of eight white students. Lynch and Mason said there were five of them, at least three of whom had weapons, including a windshield scraper and an unidentified "metal rod."

The University Police Department and the involved Asian students who were interviewed said there were only three of them. The Asian students did not deny bringing a car antennae.

Mason claims to have said, "Those are the kids who got beat up."

According to Lynch, the white victim ran to the right and three of the Asian students ran after him.

At some point in this incident, the white victim received a "severe laceration at the back of his head and a possible concussion," according to police reports.

According to Lynch, one Asian male wearing a Green Bay Packers jacket hit the white victim on the side. Then an Asian male wearing a white jacket hit the victim over the head and an Asian male wearing a dark blue sweatshirt hit the victim on the other side. These acts were done with the metal "weapons," according to Lynch.

"We were frozen and all we did was watch them," Mason said.

While this happened, another Asian male allegedly chased another white student, according to Lynch.

A fifth Asian male allegedly stood watching a white female student witness. She says she asked the male, "Who are you, why are you doing this to us?" and he replied, "Fuck you."

According to four white student witnesses who were interviewed, the white victim was still in the Southwest Residential Area when the initial incident occurred. They also say the white victim and their small group made no racial comments.

Mason said the victim "still can't really eat" because of the stitches on his head, and he has a full arm cast. The victim does not know if the arm injury was sustained from the actual attack or from a fall, according to Mason.

The white victim was unavailable for comment.

At the emergency room, all eight white witnesses were asked to complete individual reports explaining what happened, while a police officer allegedly stood by. The four witnesses who were interviewed are under the impression that their accounts match.

Ever Think of writing for Sports?

Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

Need A Break?
Buy a Large Pizza & get 4 medium sodas FREE!
Half Price
Java Jolt & House Coffee
Sunday - Friday 9 pm to close
...only at the Bluewall!

Treatment center encourages self-help

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

Mental health and substance abuse services offer an ear to patients at the Amherst Outpatient Center of Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

"They want someone to talk to," said Director of Behavioral Health Services Marilyn Richards.

The therapeutic treatment program focuses on a self-help model similar to ones used by Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous. The one-on-one contact with a counselor allows patients to understand and cope with the specific psychological components of unhealthy behaviors such as psychological problems, alcohol and drug abuse, violence, eating disorders, smoking, compulsive gambling and stress.

Group sessions and optional family sessions are also offered in conjunction.

"The biggest thing we can do for people is helping them take care of themselves in the longterm," Richards said. Crucial parts of the process are education and therapy.

Patients are "feeling more confident and liking themselves a little better" because they have seen progress made upon finishing an average of eight to ten sessions for "an episode of treatment," Richards said.

"It takes a long time to make a change and cement it," she said. "Through behavioral health services, we can improve the health of people in contact with physicians." The program seeks to eventually help patients reach optimal health.

Richards pointed out that many doctors did not diagnose the program's patients with a problem. She added that by "dealing with the psychological, emotional and social issues," the behavioral health service program can improve a patient's medical outcome. The cost effective program also lowers the patient's overall medical costs since it does not utilize fancy machinery and technology, nor a battery of medical tests, Richards stated.

"We get a wide variety of people," Richards said. "We sometimes get people with a lot of mental pain or who have gotten themselves in a jam whether in relationships, school, with the law, or at home."

The majority of patients are from Hampshire County and between the ages of 18 to 30, including "a lot of students," Richards said.

The Amherst Outpatient Center is located at 29 Cottage Street, Northampton. For more information, call 549-5755 for questions and appointment requests.

Myers discusses 'Optimal Psychology'

By Humphrey brown III
Collegian Staff

Last night, in room 174 of the Campus Center, Dr. Linda James Myers spoke on the concept of world view and the definition of reality that has been socialized in the minds of people, particularly African–Americans, in contemporary America.

Myers introduced a concept of defining self worth which she called sub–optimal theory. According to Myers, the majority of African–Americans in this country have adopted the notion that their self worth is solely dependent on the material world (i.e. money, status, class, etc.)

This is a notion, said Myers, that has been accepted and embraced by this country and is one of the primary reasons for America's on going struggle with depression, suicide, domestic violence and racism.

Myers' solution for overcoming this frame of thinking is the idea of optimal conceptualization. By challenging the perceived notions of self worth, Myers said she believes that positivity and peace can be achieved in the recognition that people are incentrically worthy human beings and only the individual can define his or her own self worth.

"If we in a contemporary society today are to survive, we have to go beyond our five senses," Myers said.

By allowing what we see, hear, taste, touch and smell (our reality) to define who we are, Myers said we are indirectly giving up the power of ourselves to those who control what we define as our own individual reality.

"The roots of oppression are found in the externalization of power," Myers said.

Due to limited time, Myers was only able to convey the surface of what her whole theory entailed. Her latest book, "Understanding an Afrocentric World View: Introduction to an Optimal Psychology," gives a look into the whole conception of sub–optimal theory and optimal conceptualization.

Myers also touches on the issues of the family, faith, race and morality in the U.S. as it relates to the sub–optimal belief system and the idea of optimal psychology being the solution to those problems.

■ earth

continued from page 1

ing professionals and volunteers in schools throughout the state.

The two day event is funded through a $30,000 donation by International Paper to the Extension's 4–H Environment Stewardship Program. The event is co-sponsored by International Paper and Extension.

People interested in presenting a workshop, volunteering or attending the conference can contact Snyder at (413) 545– 3876 or by email at wsnyder@umext.umass.edu.

■ harassed

continued from page 1

minutes. Poulin added that he was surprised that neither he nor Negian were questioned previously, nor were they asked to produce identification or stubs.

"I would think naturally [Murray] would have everyone to pull out IDs," Poulin said. "If we were in a group, and there were four in the group, then they shouldn't have been questioned unfairly."

Dottin and Vaughn were dismissed after their whereabouts had been verified. Murray said he plans to release a statement this morning, but had no further comment.

Last semester, Dottin was the victim of another alleged racially motivated incident. A dining commons worker used a racial epithet, "nigger" while Dottin was being served food.

JLC betters living environment at Hillel

By Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

When he started his job as the resident assistant of the Jewish Living Community (JLC) last semester, Kim Richman said he chose to be a Residential Assistant so he could "institute more change and make the JLC more communal."

At the time he "was confident we had all the different ingredients to make a good community [but] wasn't sure if it would cook up in the way which I anticipated."

Over half a year later, he summed up his reply to whether the changes have been successful in one word: "Yes."

Richman made several changes in the way the community runs over the semester. He added a Friday dinner and Sunday brunch, community meetings every other week, and regular community events.

The changes have made the JLC more open and friendly, Richman said.

"Doors are open, people hang out in the hallways, socialize in the kitchen," he explained. "At the same time, it's an environment that's very conducive for academic study."

Richman described the people living there as a "generally non-pretentious, friendly group of people who are naturally inclined to interact with one another. With all these different ingredients, it makes for a strong and enthusiastic community."

He said he believes "the structural changes that have been made have really ensured the success of the community.

"People regularly show up to meals ... [which] provide the opportunity for us to gather as a community and observe Shabbat in a kind of relaxed way. Community meetings have been successful in providing a context in which everyone's voice is heard and ideas are implemented."

Another sign of improvement, Richman said, is the low rate of turnover, not just for next semester, but for intersession.

"It's a testament to success of the whole deal."

However, it is possible there will be a few spots open for students who are interested. Richman also suggested students who may be interested in being the RA next year, when he leaves, should try to get a spot in the residence now so they can get a feel for how the community operates.

Richman said he was most proud of something JLC members ask each other on campus. "Are you going home?" he said they ask each other in reference to the Hillel house, something that wasn't said before his changes.

■ proposal

continued from page 1

the humanities," said González. "The realization of the importance of the study of other cultures has not yet arrived," Hugus said. Porter added that the change would usher in "a way of moving UMass toward a technological institute ... this campus is ceasing to be a comprehensive university."

Languages are not the only programs to be directly affected by the Provost's proposal. Also affected is the Department of Judaic and Near Eastern Studies. According to the Provost's document, this "is a very small department with faculty size already below critical mass, very small numbers of majors in its programs ... and below average contributions to centrality (except for diversity courses) and scholarly output."

Accordingly, the plan calls for a dismantling of the program — the linguistic aspect would fall under the language center, while "the cultural, historical and comparative aspects of the program should move to the History Department," in this way making it a "specialization" in History.

Shmuel Bolozky, currently Head of Judaic and Near Eastern Studies, said "there is no academic justification for doing this to us." He also said this type of move would take control away from current professors and future faculty and would lessen the quality of the subject material.

Bolozky denied the possibility of any anti–Semitic motivation involved in this decision.

Following a similar line of argument, the document from the Provost indicates the total elimination of the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures. "It is time to suspend admissions to the major programs and eliminate the Department," stated the document.

Laszlo Dienes, Chair of this program, said "we are obviously extremely upset and disappointed ... we have a history of being under the gun." Also, said Dienes, this act is politically motivated — since the collapse of the Soviet Union, "there [has been] no specific interest in this field," and in turn the current low student enrollment has prompted the administration to decide on the program's termination.

The rest of the programs in the College fall under the category of "conditional investment," which indicates no major changes. Still, the Art History Department is to be "consolidate[d] back into the Art Department." The French Department is to lose its doctoral program, while Journalism has a sub–label of "still pending further review." Possibilities include future departmental merger with the English and/or Communications Departments.

"Departments tend to get bigger or smaller depending on level of academic make–up over time, if you want to have a balance, the size is really a function of demand ... you're really trying to understand the relationship between cost and demand," said Provost Patricia Cronson, explaining the reasoning behind the structural reforms.

Collegian Classifieds...
... They Work!
545-3500 • 113 Campus Center

NEED $150?
WELL-KNOWN COMPUTER COMPANY SEEKS COLLEGE STUDENTS INTERESTED IN PURCHASING COMPUTER HARDWARE AND PRINTERS. WILL PAY $150.
$150 REBATE
Macintosh Performa 636CD
8MB RAM/250MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.
Looking for a great deal on a computer and a printer can be a whole lot easier than finding a roommate. Because right now, when you purchase a Macintosh Performa from the 630 series and an Apple printer, you'll get $150 back. Just think about it. You can get your work done faster, it will look great and you can receive an extra $150 at the same time. So take a moment to look into the power that can keep you ahead. The power of Macintosh. The power to be your best.
Apple
Color StyleWriter 2400 w/ CardShop Plus
Ink cartridge and cable included.
Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center 545-2619
Mon. - Fri. 9-5
Sat 11- 3

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor
Daymion Smith Photography Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Rosario Navarro Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

A policy violated

This is a statement made in the hopes of improving a situation that has come about from the printing of yesterday's column entitled "A response to all," which appeared on yesterday's Black Affairs page.

First and foremost, the article had nothing to do with Black Affairs. It was first presented to be published on the editorial/opinion page. When the author, Hussein Ibish, realized there was no space in either of the two remaining issues for it to run there, he explored the possibility of it running on the Black Affairs page.

The Collegian has a policy stating it does not print columns written that are in response to "Letters to the Editor." The column clearly violated that policy. Printing it was a mistake on our part. It directly responded to two letters written by Larry Goldbaum and Chancellor David K. Scott, which is also ran in yesterday's paper on the Opinion/Editorial page.

The situation is being reviewed, with the possibility of action being taken. One definite measure to be taken is that current and future staff will be better informed of all Collegian policies in the hopes of avoiding similar mistakes in the future.

Notes from Andrew's basement

You have to love this time of year. How wonderful it is in the one degree weather — I can't even pick which is my favorite part. My lips getting crusty from licking them in the wind is fabulous, as is the drool which drips from my nose while the water streams from eyes and onto my beet red face as I walk in the ice cold wind. That's almost as nice as getting inside, only to get caught up in a coughing fit, complete with hacks of flem as I battle the flu I got from walking off the bus and into the Campus Center.

* * *

Has anyone ever had a teacher who had no problem in working the VCR? Our brains are spoon-fed with knowledge by these professors, yet they have a hard time finding the "play" button on a VCR.

* * *

You know what's hard to find? A toilet with a good water pressure. I found one. And I'm not telling where it is.

* * *

Andrew Bryce

I was at the UMass–Boston College game at the FleetCenter last weekend. Once tipoff came, I jumped to my feet like I normally do, not planning on sitting down for the remainder of the game. I hear a man yell behind me. "Sit down!"

"Are you a UMass fan." I said to the older gentleman.

"Yes I am," he answered.

"Well, buddy, you know we don't sit down at the Mullins Center," I said, enjoying my balsey self for that one particular moment.

"Yeah, well we don't pay $35 for a seat at the Mullins Center either."

I took a sip out of my $4.25 eight–ounce cup of beer.

"Good point," I said as I sat down nodding my head.

* * *

That's five, six, seven, eight, nine and 10, and 10 is 20. Thank you.

* * *

I don't know what's worse — not having any groceries in my cupboards to cook a damn thing or having a housemate who religiously and obnoxiously watches the Food Channel, moaning as if he's watching a Baywatch episode.

While I'm at it, I don't know what's worse between waking up with bed head or morning breath. Seeing my hair in the morning makes me wonder what it is I do while sleeping. Tasting my breath makes me wonder if my housemate had played a joke on me and stuffed crap into my mouth overnight.

Don't even tell me your breath doesn't stink when you wake up in the morning. I can still smell it on you.

* * *

Endangered species? I've got a business to run.

* * *

I can't help but think back to Chrismas a couple of years ago. There we were, my mother, my sister and I walking out of church. I saw a high school friend of mine, so we went over to talk to her and her family. My friend's father, just so you know, is a robust man with a very large waist line. Anyway, we're talking about the holidays and this and that. We were getting ready to go to our car.

"Merry Chrismas," I said to them as I shook their hands.

"Happy Holidays," my sister said with a chipper voice.

"Have a good dinner," my mother said.

Have a good dinner. My mother accidently told the fattest man in my town to have a good dinner. She will never hear the end of it. Ever.

* * *

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

Cutting aid hurts Chinese women

By voting to cut off U.S. aid to overseas clinics and hospitals that provide abortions, the House of Representatives has revealed once again how applying domestic politics to foreign problems hurts the very people it claims it wants to help. Nowhere has this policy backfired more than in China, where Congress has cut off aid to the United Nations Population Fund unless it can certify that women in China are not coerced into abortion.

The evidence that forced abortions exist in China is compelling. But to try to correct this horrendous practice at the expense of women seeking to avoid unplanned pregnancies is not only unethical but unworkable. It is those women who present the bulk of the problem.

In 1990, Social Science and Medicine published a poll of 1200 women taken in urban and rural abortion clinics in China. The findings showed nearly half of the women had received at least one prior abortion. Moreover, approximately 72 percent of the respondents claimed to have been using some form of contraception at the time they became pregnant. A second poll taken last year by U.S. News and World Report showed that 46 percent of married women in Shanghai have had at least one prior abortion, and of those 37 percent have undergone at least two.

According to the reports, poor education and training in the use of contraceptives account for a majority of unplanned pregnancies. In many cases, for example, after the expulsion of an intrauterine device (IUD), abortions are frequently delayed until a more complicated and dangerous third–trimester procedure is carried out, often leading to injury and death. (According to the U.S. Senate, the dangers faced by women in other countries targeted for aid cuts appears equally grim: women in the former Soviet Union have an average of seven abortions in a lifetime because of a lack of available birth control methods).

> The evidence that forced abortions exist in China is compelling. But to try to correct this horrendous practice at the expense of women seeking to avoid unplanned pregnancies is not only unethical but unworkable.
>
> Matthew Pottinger

Given China's unwavering commitment to controlling its population, the United States' "feel–good" gesture of withholding funds will do virtually nothing to halt coerced abortions in China. Abortions are certain to continue; they will simply be dirtier and more dangerous.

By continuing to fund cash–starved family planning organizations that also provide abortions, at least Congress has an opportunity to prevent these wholesale tragedies, while at the same time defending the fundamental principles of women's rights the world agreed to last September in Beijing.

Matthew Pottinger is a Collegian staff member.

Opinion/Editorial

I SENT FOR LYNDON JOHNSON'S FOUNTAIN PEN TO VETO THIS BUDGET.
AND I'M VETOING IT IN BRIGHT...
DARN.
Scratch Scratch Scratch...
WE GOT ANY MORE RED INK?
JUST A LITTLE MORE?

Letters to the Editor

Supporting freedom of speech

To the Editor:

Recently, there has been an explosion of criticism and rage directed against an article, written by Hussein Ibish and titled, "The life and crimes of General Yitzhak Rabin," which appeared in the Nov. 10 issue of The Daily Collegian.

Expressed, among others, by Leonard Zakim, New England Regional Head of the Anti Defamation League (ADL), Larry Goldbaum, UMass Jewish Affairs Director, UMass Hillel, and the Consular General of Israel, these criticisms had only one goal in mind — to ruthlessly suppress any dissenting view on the life of one of the principal architects of Zionism and the state of Israel, Yitzhak Rabin.

To those familiar with the ADL's history of spying on black leaders, left–wing groups and individuals who have criticized the apartheid politics of the State of Israel and who have strongly supported the struggles of the Palestinian peoples, their response to Ibish's articles should come as no surprise.

However, the ADL and its local apologists would do well to consider the following points, viz.,

1. There are many of us, on this campus and beyond, who fully agree with the historical record and perspectives expressed in Ibish's articles. These articles represented a breath of fresh air from the suffocating propaganda of the mainstream media that sought to posthumously convert Rabin from killer to saint.

2. We believe the reason there have been no attempts to refute the substance of these articles is because Ibish's antagonists know that even they will be unable to counter the truth put forth in the pieces.

3. We strongly condemn all attempts to suppress debate on these issues and the scurrilous attacks which have followed the expression of any such dissenting views.

Raza A Mir, UMass
This letter was also signed by 34 other members of the UMass community

Too many tickets, so few seats

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in reference to the Wake Forest basketball game on Dec. 6. I am completely infuriated by the way the Athletic Department handled the ticketing situation. I, along with numerous other students, had no seats and was left with absolutely no place to go inside the Mullins Center. Granted, we students stand during the game, but there wasn't even a place to stand. We were told not to stand in the aisle, and we got kicked out of every seat we tried to sit in. Not only does it seem that they reduced the normal amount of student seating, but from talking to one of the ushers, they also gave out too many student tickets.

Their logic? That not everyone who had tickets would show up and it would turn out OK. Let me just ask the people in charge of selling tickets — are you insane? The Wake Forest game was arguably the biggest game at the Mullins Center this season and you took the chance people were just not going to show up?

Well, let me tell you what I think. It seems obvious to me they didn't think about or care about where students would sit. I don't think it was even a consideration. They sold some of the student seats to make some extra dough (as if the basketball program isn't bringing its share of money to this school already). Then to top it off, they gave out too many student tickets. Why? Maybe they were sick of complaints from students in the past about not being able to get tickets? I don't know.

Well, guess what? There are plenty of complaints about what happened last Wednesday night. I pay good money to go to this school, including an athletic fee, so I can go to sporting events. Not only that, but I happen to be a Minutemaniac, so I pay an extra $25 dollars so I can go to hockey and basketball games.

This guarantees I have tickets to all the games. Shouldn't having a ticket mean having a seat? What good is it for me to be guaranteed a ticket if I might not have a place to sit? What good is it for anyone to have a ticket and no seat? I think this is ridiculous and appalling. It seems that students are considered last, if at all, at this school more often than not. As always, it is all about money.

What's the matter, Coach Cal isn't bringing enough cash into this program? I think Coach Cal would agree that the students are the ones who give this team the most support in the Mullins Center. So don't we deserve to at least have a seat when we have tickets to go see them play?

Lauren Quattrocchi
Sunderland

A new political party

To the Editor:

In American, there are two major political parties. On the far right, we have the Republican party, which is opposed to welfare, the EPA, public education, and just about everything else. So those of us who do not agree with the Republican agenda turn to the only other major alternative, but little solace is found in the Democratic party, a party that has too often attempted to imitate the Right wing in an effort to keep as many votes as possible.

The result has been a country where politics have shifted to the Right, with the Democrats a few short steps behind the Republicans. Elections pit a right–wing Republican against a Democrat who is only slightly less conservative. Those who do not support the Republicans naturally turn to the Democrats. But why should the democrats truly care about our concerns if they know we have nowhere else to go?

Neither party has expressed interest in America's youth. We have been forgotten, except occasionally around election time. This past month, students saw the government take a huge chunk out of our financial aid. How could they be concerned with students and cut financial aid? Very simply, they ignored our interests. They ignored our concerns. There are things that are important to us, yet neither party seems to be listening. We are being ignored.

Students are but one group whose voice has fallen on deaf ears. Women, people of color, the working class and the gay and lesbian community have been pushed aside as well. Who is listening to our/their concerns? Right now, nobody is.

So how can we affect a shift away from the right, away from ideas that seek to destroy financial aid, public education and the environment, along with numerous other things? Where can people go to voice their concerns, no matter who they are?

The answer lies in the Rainbow Coalition. The Rainbow started with Jesse Jackson's Presidential campaign in 1984, seeks to unite people together into a strong power base. Individually, or as small groups, we can do very little. The existing system can easily ignore us. By coming together, we can create a strong majority that will have to be taken seriously. Our voice will be heard.

We are currently seeking to make the Rainbow Coalition an official party in Massachusetts, a party committed to racial, economic, political and gender justice. This is a party that is still growing and you can be a part of it. By organizing this party, we will create a strong political vehicle that can push for our concerns. The Rainbow Coalition is committed to taking the power out of the hands of a few and returning it to the hands of many.

Scott Heines
Amherst

U.S. military not full of saints

To the Editor:

I am responding to Bill Ramsey's letter to the editor that was printed on Dec. 11. I am unfamiliar with the Chiu- Ivantury piece entitled, "The Privileges of Global Domination" to which he was replying, other than it was written in outrage to the rape of a Japanese girl at the hands of three Marines. Therefore I am not in a place to comment. However, since ROTC Cadet Ramsey speaks so highly of his military affiliation and his pride in witnessing his military affiliation and in witnessing his military's humanitarian acts, I felt compelled to inform him of other military atrocities.

I wonder if cadet Ramsey can remember the Tailhook incident where military women were harassed and raped by their male officer counterparts and the Navy's wish to hush the crimes. Or how about the beating and killing of a Navy sailor by his shipmates whose ship had docked in Japan, because they believed him to be gay. Or, several years ago, the marines who gay–bashed a civilian outside of a gay bar in the North Carolina town where their Camp was located. Or even the recent episode of the groups of U.S. military men who wanted to "kill some niggers," and succeeded.

Now there's some Chrismas holiday cheer for cadet Ramsey to have pride in; not only are military people killing, maiming and raping the "enemy," but they are also doing it to those cadet Ramsey's military is trying to protect: Americans.

Cadet Ramsey is correct on one particular stance when he wrote, "the U.S. military is about sacrifice and dedication." The U.S. military is dedicatedly hell–bent on sacrificing millions of taxpayers dollars by discharging hundreds of "honorable men and women," from the armed forces, simply because of sexual orientation.

I am one of those who is currently being discharged. I told my commanding officer I am gay because I could no longer tolerate the sexist, racist and homophobic institute that cadet Ramsey holds do dear.

I believe that cadet Ramsey and others affiliated with the U.S. military need to take a hard, long look at themselves and the beliefs they "defend."

Don't get me wrong. I do believe in the need for defense, however I cannot condone the blatant hate the military has for its citizens.

Bill Hickman
The Stonewall Center
Crampton House

Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ARTS & LIVING

Thursday December 14, 1995
Weekend Edition • Volume CV Issue 68

Year In Review Contributors

EDITOR
Tara MK Connelly

ASSOCIATES
Mike Burke
Seema Gangatirkar
Laura Stock

WRITERS
Matt Audette
Adam Dlugacz
Jason Flax
Lisa Oliveri
Wayken Shaw
Josh Wardrop

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR
Jon Lupo

ART WORK
Ron Alpert

GRAPHICS
Jim Ganley
Marni E. Helfner

the best and worst of this year's music, movies, television and fashion

Looking back at a year of ups and downs

When looking back at the whirlwind 1995 you'll be amazed at all that has happened. From the Oklahoma bombing to the stunning conclusion of the Simpson Trial, this year has been jam packed with events.

Today, the Arts staff takes a look at the good and bad times, the headline makers, the page turners and those that define today's society. We'll see things that make us smile and things that make us wonder what the hell happened.

Take a look at the many movies of the year by reviewer Laura Stock and special contributor Jon Lupo. Glance at what this year's music staff thought were the best albums of the season from PJ Harvey to Versus. Also see what TV critic Seema Gangatirkar has picked as the Best and Worst TV–land had to offer. And finally check–out what everyone was wearing from thigh high boots to blood red nails.

1995 was definitely a year to remember

— Tara MK Connelly

Bleak '95 film season leaves strong acting roles

By Jon Lupo
Special to the Collegian

Editor's note: This is the last in a two–part series on the year in movies.

Yesterday I wrote that the best thing one can say about the film season of 1995 is that it's almost over. I take it back — slightly. Despite the obvious glut of screen mediocrity, there were good, ever occasionally great reasons to go to the movies this year. You just had to look hard enough to find them (and have the money and time to see them all as well). So, before unveiling my choices for the 10 best pictures of the year, I want to give due to the performers beyond both their competition and my expectations. Plus, I want to offer my final word on a critically acclaimed film you may just find on other "best of" lists, and why it doesn't deserve it.

Serendipity in a Kilt Who would've though that both of the year's Scottish period pieces would be this good? Rob Roy marked three robust performances from Tim Roth, Liam Neeson and Jessica Lange and some nifty swordplay. Mel Gibson is now 2–0 for his directorial efforts with his terrific work in Braveheart, keeping his three–hour pace from thatwuck! resonating thunderously. Although Outbreak softened up at its smiley–faced conclusion, it did deliver some of the year's creepiest and affecting moments (like the scene where the germs are spread in a movie theater) and contained Dustin Hoffman's most tie–free performance in years.

Up until the lame heist at the end (surprise — it was botched!) and its predictable aftermath, Albert and Allan Hughes' Dead Presidents surprised both with its intriguing characterizations and great turns by its newcomer lead Mekhi Phifer and co–star Regina Taylor. Too bad the movie under–used the considerable talents of Harvey Keitel, Delroy Lindo and John Turturro. Mira Sorvino is getting all the ink for her fine work in a mediocre movie. Woody Allen's overrated Mighty Aphrodite. But it was Michael Rapaport as a deliriously dumb boxer/potato farmer who made her laugh the hardest.

Alicia Silverstone should get a Best Actress nod for her sweetly comic work in the fitfully funny Clueless. The role is harder than it looks and Silverstone makes it her own. The former Aerosmith babe was so smart, she parlayed her success with the movie into a $10 million producing deal. Good for her. And who would've thought The Brady Bunch Movie would be as funny and inventive as it was ... for what it was? It was also the dirtiest kid movie around, with double entendres and innuendo as prevalent as the neon polyester bell bottoms. Meanwhile, Babe delighted audiences with its cute talking pig, but it was the film's surprisingly genial and warm–hearted tone that won me over.

Kathy Bates and Jennifer Jason Leigh could've coasted in Dolores Claiborne. I'm glad they didn't, and their refusal to be boxed in made the movie all the more engrossing. The little–seen Mute Witness was the best funhouse thriller of the year, delivering scares that giddily stretched turn to LUPO, page 13

TIME LINE Looking at the year's shaping events

'95 YEAR IN REVIEW COMPILED BY TARA MK CONNELLY & SEEMA GANGATIRKAR

JANUARY
- Newt Gringrich becomes Speaker of the House
- John C. Salvi III kills two people in Brookline, Mass. abortion clinic
- NAFTA takes center stage
- First time in 40 years Republicans control both chambers of Congress
- Susan "Stop the Insanity" Powter declares bankruptcy
- Whitewater rears its ugly head
- California floods kill 11
- Earthquake hits Kobe, Japan. 7.5 on the Richter scale first in 70 years.

FEBRUARY
- Sen. Bob Dole begins talking about running for president in 1996
- Clinton bypasses Congress for the first time and grants Mexico $40 billion in loan guarantees
- Prosecution tries to show Simpson is a wife abuser
- Paleolithic cave near Avignon, France reveals 20,000 year old paintings
- Princess of Wales comes to New York City to present Liz Tiberis, editor of Harper's Bazaar with award

MARCH
- Congress slashes $17.5 billion for next years $305 billion budget
- Jimmy Cater returns from Cuba
- Kelsey Grammer, star of "Fraiser" is accused of having sex with his daughter's 15-year-old babysitter
- Courtney Love signed to act with Keanu Reeves in Feeling Minnesota
- Winnie Mandela charged with fraud and corruption
- Mark Fuhrman takes the stand in Simpson trial and accused for planting evidence and racism
- Steven Spielberg, David Geffen and Jeffrey Katzenburg form Dreamworks
- Michael Jordan returns to basketball

APRIL
- Nerve gas bombing in Toyko subway kills 10
- Sen. Bob Packwood is put on trial
- Kato Kaelin takes the stand in the Simpson trial
- Mike Tyson is released from prison
- Nancy Sinatra announces she will pose nude in Playboy
- Former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara regrets the way he handled Vietnam 20 years later

MAY
- Christian Slater is sued by ex-finacee Nina Huang
- The Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City is bombed. 850 people were in the building at the time. Timothy McVeigh is charged. Search goes out for accomplices
- Croates and Serbs break "permanent cease-fire agreement" made last year
- Ebola virus breaks out in Zaire. No cure and no vaccination
- Don Johnson and Melanie Griffith call it quits — again. Antonio Banderas steps in to take Johnson's place
- Excavators uncover 50 tombs of Ramesses II sons. The pharaoh is considered one of the most powerful in ancient Egypt and the one that let Moses go free

JUNE
- Connie Chung is fired from CBS
- Retired Col. Powell is pushed toward running for president
- Susan Smith is put on trail for the murder of her two sons last year. Five days later she is sentenced to life in jail
- Rodney King is arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon and domestic violence
- Sinead O'Connor leaves Lollapalooza due to her pregnancy
- Joanne Whalley Kilmer files for a divorce from husband Val

AUGUST
- Bomb explodes in Paris, seven die, 80 injured
- Bus bombed in Tel Aviv, six die
- Christie Brinkley splits from third husband Rick Taubman after two month of marriage
- ABC merges with Walt Disney Company
- Unibomber's 35,000 word treatise published in Times and Post
- President Clinton cracks down tobacco industry and initiates new laws that will make cigarettes harder to obtain
- Norma McCorvey, the plaintiff in Roe v. Wade joins the pro-life movement
- Mumia Abu Jamal obtains indefinite stay of execution
- Shannon Faulkner wins fight to enter Citadel. She drops out five days later from exhaustion
- Mike Tyson returns to boxing in highly touted match again Peter McNeely which lasts 1 minute and 29 seconds
- Japanese Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama offers an official apology for Japanese "aggression" in World War II

SEPTEMBER
- Marilyn Kane nabs deadbeat husband Jeffrey Nichols who owes nearly $580,000 in child support
- Monica Seles returns to women's tennis tour after being stabbed in the back two and a half years ago and wins the Canadian Open
- Henry Wu is released from prison in China after begin in jailed for speaking out on human rights' abuses in that country

OCTOBER
- Pope makes five day visit to United States
- O.J. Simpson found not guilty of murdering Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman
- Million Man March takes place in Washington D.C.
- McCauley Culkin's parents separate and fight over their seven kids

NOVEMBER
- Israeli Prime Minister Yitzahk Rabin assassinated by 25- year-old Jew. Funeral attended by world leaders
- Newt Gingrich is miffed when Clinton does not speak to him on airplane
- Quebec remains with Canada by narrow margin
- Colin Powell bows out of presidential race
- Three American servicemen admit to raping a 12-year-old girl in Okinawa
- Beatles release two newly recorded songs as a part of the double length album Beatles Anthology I
- House members vote to impose a nearly complete ban on accepting gifts from lobbyists
- One million year old jaw bone found in China supports theory that human ancestors migrated out of Africa much earlier than previously believed
- CBS bought by Westinghouse Electric Corporation for $5.4 billion
- Princess Diana admits to adultery and belief that she will never be Queen in BBC interview

DECEMBER
- Michael Jackson collapses on stage during rehearral for special HBO concert
- Clinton deploys troops to Bosnia
- Dole renews attack on entertainment industry
- Leland Modjeski, armed with an unloaded revolver jumps White House fence. This marks the fifth attack since Sept. 1994
- Christopher Reeves breaks neck and spinal chord in riding accident
- Dole begins tirade on entertainment industry
- Studies show kids who watch PBS shows do better in pre-school
- Captain Scott O'Grady is rescued after his F-16 crashed. he spent six days hiding from Serbian snipers in Bosnia
- Senate adopts anti-terrorism plan
- Monica Seles, 21 returns to tennis two years after she is stabbed by a fan of Steffi Graff
- Courtney Love is hospitalized after overdosing on prescription drugs

JULY
- U.S. Supreme Court rules that privately sponsored parades have the First Amendment right to keep out groups they don't want to march
- Hugh Grant is arrested for soliciting a prostitute in Hollywood
- Princess Stephani Grimaldi, 30 of Monaco marries ex- body guard Daniel Ducruet, 31

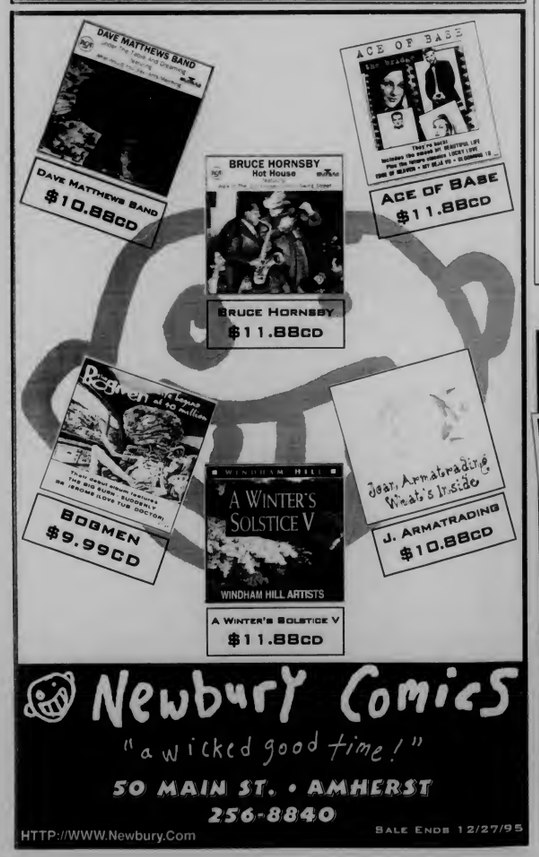
ATTENTION COLLEGIAN STAFF:

There is a MANDATORY Board of Editors meeting on Friday at 11 a.m.

There is a meeting on Friday at noon for anyone interested in a night or copy editor position for the Spring 1996. This includes current night & copy editors.

For questions regarding either of the above meetings, see Marni E. Helfner, Managing Editor.

Applications for News Associate positions must be in the Managing Editor's mailbox by 3 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 15. Applicants will be contacted for interviews, which will be held Monday, Dec. 18. Questions should be addressed to Amy Paradysz, News Editor.



SATURDAY, JANUARY 27, 1996

Come meet

SENATOR JOHN KERRY

and

CONGRESSMAN JOHN OLVER

at Bertucci's
East Pleasant Street, Amherst
11:30 am - 1:00 pm

EXCITEMENT FOOD POLITICS

For ticket information [low, low price for students], call 253-0300

Paid for by Citizens for John Olver for Congress

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center

Pete's Wicked	$4.99 six	Oregon Ales	$5.99/six
Sam Adams Ale, Lager, Light, Porter, Stout, Scotch	$4.99 six	Early Times Bourbon 1.75 liter	$12.99
Bud Light 30 pack cans	$14.99	Bailey's Irish Cream	$16.49
Molson Golden & Ice 12 pack bottles	$7.99	Tanqueray Vodka	$12.99
Ice House & Red Dog 12 pack bottles	$6.99	Captain Morgan	$8.99
Red Feather Pale Ale	$4.99/six	Keg Special: Sam Adams Scotch Ale	1/2 keg $75.00

Micro-Brewed Beer Kegs in Stock
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted

Let Us . . .

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst

Bluewall

Fine Arts Center

Student Alumni Relations Society

Intramurals

Campus Center Hotel

Body Shop

Dean Of Students

University Health Services

UNIVERSITY STORE

. . . Wish You A Safe and Happy Holiday!

Newbury Comics

50 Main St. • Amherst
256-8840

WE HAVE POSTERS!
NIRVANA
PULP FICTION
BEATLES
X-FILES
BEASTIE BOYS

TOP 50 CD'S
ALWAYS ON SALE

- BEATLES ANTHOLOGY $22.99 CD
- RANCID "And Out Come the Wolves" $10.88 CD
- SMASHING PUMPKINS "Mellon Collie & The Infinite Sadness" $15.99 CD
- OASIS "(What's the Story) Morning Glory $10.88 CD
- JOAN OSBORNE "Relish" $10.88 CD
- TRACY CHAPMAN "New Beginning" $11.88 CD

DON'T BE A GRINCH!
SPEND LOT'S OF MONEY ON YOUR FRIENDS!

T-SHIRT SALE!
Regularly Priced $16.99 or Less Are Now $9.99 or Less!
STAR WARS
JERRY GARCIA
NIRVANA
BEAVIS & BUTTHEAD
MARILYN MANSON

PLUS WE HAVE...
•Lava Lamps
•Doc Martens
•Funky Jewelry
•Black Lights
•Cool Hats
AND MUCH, MUCH MORE!

Newbury Comics
"a wicked good time!"
Limit 3 Discs Per Coupon
$3.00 Off
Any Compact Disc*
regularly priced $11.99 or more•sales items excluded•no double discounts expires 12/26/95
778893

Newbury Comics
"a wicked good time!"
Limit 3 Discs Per Coupon
$3.00 Off
Any Compact Disc*
regularly priced $11.99 or more•sales items excluded•no double discounts expires 12/26/95
778893

IN MEMORY OF...

Here is a look at the many who passed on throughout the year.

Jeremy Brett, 59 — Also known as Freddy Eynfeld Hill and for the role of Sherlock Holmes.

Margret Gorman Cahill, 90 — Died of a heart attack and pneumonia. Was the very first woman to be crowned Miss America in 1921.

Rosalind Cash, 56 — Major black screen and stage actress of the 1970s.

Howard Cosell, 77 — Television and radio sports caster for ABC's "Wide World Of Sports."

Tarita Zumi Cheyenne, 24 — Daughter of actor Marlon Brando hung herself in her father's house in Punsauia, Tahiti.

Gary Crosby, 62 — Nicknamed "Hunter" and son of actor Bing Crosby died of lung cancer.

Alfred Eisenstaedt, 96 — Photojournalist for Life known for photos of WWII.

Jack Finney, 84 — Screenwriter of The Body Snatchers and Time and Again.

Mark Foo, 36, — Professional surfer drowned at Half Moon Bay, Calif. after a 15 ft. wave broke his board in half.

Melvin Franklin, 52 — Singer of the Temptations who hit No. 1 in 1964 with "The Way You Do the Thing You Do."

Ed Flanders, 60 — Died of self-inflicted gun wound. Best known for role of Dr. Donald Westphall on "St. Elsewhere."

Eva Gabor, 74 — Actress best known for her role in the TV sitcom "Green Acres" and the movie Gigi.

Jerry Garcia, 53 — Leader of the band The Grateful Dead who amassed a huge following and revolutionized the concept of jam bands.

James Grant, 72 — Director of UNICEF since 1980. Won the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1994.

Sergei Grinkov, 27 — One–half of Olympic gold medal Russian pairs skating champions Gordeeva & Grinkov.

Albert Hacket, 95 — Stage and screenwriter who co– wrote 1956 Pulitzer Prize winning play The Diary of Anne Frank.

Alison Hargreaves, 33 — First woman to scale Mt. Everest without an oxygen mask. Died on K2 in Pakistan.

Burl Ives, 85 — Children's singer who narrated "Rudolf The Red Nosed Reindeer" and "Frosty the Snowman."

Howard Kock, 93 — Co–writer of Casablanca and War of Worlds. Died of pneumonia.

J. Howard Marshall, 90 — Husband of Anna Nicole Smith, the ex–model. Worth $725 million.

Elizabeth Montgomery, 57 — Actress who starred as Samantha Stephens in "Bewitched" died of cancer.

Hugh Edward O'Conner, 33 — Son of actor Carroll O'Connor ("All In The Family") dies of a self–inflicted gun shot wound.

Orville Redenbacher, 88 — Popcorn king dies of a heart attack. He starred in over 100 commercials.

Ginger Rogers, 83 — Movie star best known for dancing with Fred Astaire. Starred in over 20 films.

Bob Ross, 52 — Host of the PBS show "The Joy of Painting" who amused many with his "happy little trees."

Author Taylor, 65 — Jazz drummer and band leader. Recorded with Coltrane, Davis and Monk.

Krissy Taylor, 17 — Sister of Supermodel Nikki Taylor and up an coming model herself was found dead in parent's livingroom from unknown causes linked with an asthma inhalant.

Lana Turner, 75 — Movie star nicknamed the "sweater girl." Starred in The Postman Always Rings Twice and Johnny Eager.

Ronnie Wood, 56 — Founder of the Miricals, co–wrote 1965 No. 1 hit for the Temptations

Eric Wright, 31 — Best known as rapper Eazy–E from the group N.W.A. dies of AIDS.

COMPILED BY TARA MK CONNELLY & SEEMA GANGATIRKAR

OPEN SUNDAYS! NOW THRU DEC. 31
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive

BEERS

COORS & COORS LIGHT CASE OF 30-12 OZ CANS $13.99 + DEP
HEINEKEN & AMSTEL LIGHT CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES $18.99 + DEP
MILLER HIGH LIFE CASE OF 30-12 OZ CANS SALE $11.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $9.49
CATAMOUNT ALL FLAVORS INCLUDING CHRISTMAS ALE CASE OF 24-12 OZ BOTTLES $16.99 + DEP
MICHELOB & MICHELOB LIGHT CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES $12.99 + DEP
SAMUEL ADAMS ALL FLAVORS 6 PACK BOTTLES $3.99 + DEP
PETES WICKED WINTER BREW 6-PACK BOTTLES $4.99 + DEP
SAM ADAMS ALL FLAVORS 6-PACK BOTTLES $4.99 + DEP
MOLSON GOLDEN, LT, ICE CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES $15.49 + DEP
GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ CANS $7.29 + DEP
O'DOUL'S NON-ALCOHOLIC CASE OF 24-12 OZ CANS $12.49 + DEP
BERKSHIRE BREWING SOUTH DEERFIELD, MASS. STEEL RAIL PALE ALE, TRADITIONAL PALE ALE 22 OZ. BOTTLE $1.99 + DEP
BASS ALE 12 PACK BOTTLES $10.49 + DEP
COKE, DIET COKE, SPRITE 2.0L 99¢ + DEP
1/2 KEGS BUD, LT, ICE, RED DOG, ICEHOUSE, MICHELOB, LT, DK, LITE $39.99 + DEP

WINES

FREIXENET CORDON NEGRO BRUT 750 ML SALE $4.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$1.50 FINAL COST $3.49
ROBERT MONDAVI NAPA CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750 ML $15.99
HARVEYS BRISTOL CREAM 750 ML SALE $9.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $6.49

WINE OF THE MONTH
FETZER VINEYARD SUNDIAL CHARDONNAY, VALLEY OAKS CABERNET SAUVIGNON, EAGLE PEAK MERLOT 750 ML $5.99
WINE OF THE MONTH
JEKEL VINEYARD CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750 ML $7.99
CHARDONNAY 750 ML $6.99
CHATEAU STE MICHELLE GEWURZTRAMINER 750 ML $4.49
BALLATORE SPUMANTE 750 ML SALE $4.29 MAIL IN REBATE -$1.00 FINAL COST $3.29
MARTINI & ROSSI ASTI SPUMANTE 750 ML SALE $7.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $5.99
KORBEL CHAMPAGNE BRUT & EXTRA DRY 750 ML $7.99
COOKS EXTRA DRY, BRUT, SPUMANTE 750 ML $3.49
KENDALL JACKSON CHARDONNAY 750 ML $8.99
SEBASTIANI PROPRIETORS ALL FLAVORS 1.5L SALE $5.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$1.00 FINAL COST $4.49
FRANZIA BURGUNDY, CHABLIS, RHINE, FRENCH COLUMBARD, BLUSH CHABLIS, CHENIN BLANC, WHITE GRENACHE 5.0L BAG-IN-BOX $6.99
BERINGER WHITE ZINFANDEL 750 ML $3.99
MOET CHANDON WHITE STAR CHAMPAGNE 750 ML $19.99
CITRA MONTEPULCIANO, TREBBIANO 1.5L $3.99

LIQUORS

FRANGELICO LIQUEUR 750 ML $12.99
SAMBUCA ROMANO & BLACK 750 ML $13.99
COURVOISIER VS 750 ML $15.99
E&J BRANDY 750 ML SALE $6.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $4.99
JOSE CUERVO GOLD TEQUILA 750 ML $10.49
SMIRNOFF VODKA 1.75L $13.49
BACARDI LIGHT & DARK 1.75L SALE $13.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $10.99
CANADIAN CLUB 1.75L SALE $15.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$5.00 FINAL COST $10.99
ABSOLUT VODKA 750 ML $10.99
SEAGRAM 7 WHISKEY 1.75L SALE $11.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$4.00 FINAL COST $7.99
DEWARS SCOTCH 1.75L $24.99
GLENLIVET 12 YEAR OLD SINGLE MALT SCOTCH 750 ML $18.99
CROWN ROYAL 750 ML $11.99
SEAGRAMS V.O. CANADIAN WHISKEY 1.75L SALE $15.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$5.00 FINAL COST $10.99
KAHLUA 750 ML SALE $11.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $8.99
BAILEYS IRISH CREAM & LIGHT 750 ML $13.99
DRAMBUIE 750 ML SALE $16.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$5.00 FINAL COST $11.99
AMARETTO DI SARONNO 750 ML $13.49
CAPTAIN MORGAN SPICED RUM 1.75L SALE $15.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $12.49
CANADIAN MIST 1.75L SALE $11.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $8.49
BLACK VELVET 1.75L $12.49
CHIVAS REGAL 750 ML $17.49
TANQUERAY GIN 1.75L $20.99
JIM BEAM 1.75L SALE $12.29 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $9.29

We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 12/14/95 THRU WEDS. 12/20/95
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

ATTENTION COLLEGIAN STAFF:

There is a MANDATORY Board of Editors meeting on Friday at 11 a.m.

There is a meeting on Friday at noon for anyone interested in a night or copy editor position for the Spring 1996. This includes current night & copy editors.

For questions regarding either of the above meetings, see Marni E. Helfner, Managing Editor.

Applications for News Associate positions must be in the Managing Editor's mailbox by 3 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 15. Applicants will be contacted for interviews, which will be held Monday, Dec. 18. Questions should be addressed to Amy Paradysz, News Editor.

Intellectual intercourse Tour

Alanis Morissette
with special guest
THE RENTALS
FEBRUARY 4 • 7:30 PM
MULLINS CENTER
TICKETS ON SALE NOW
at the MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE
OUTLETS:
TOWER RECORDS • FILENE'S • ANN & MORE
PHONE CHARGE
(413) 733-2500 • (203) 525-4500
EVENT DATE & TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE
PRODUCED BY METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT GROUP

MUSIC Collegian Music staff picks favorite albums and singles of 1995

Tara MK Connelly

1. BJORK — Post (Elektra): Since her self-titled debut the tiny Icelander knows what it takes to hold her own amongst the big players.
2. PAPAS FRITAS — Papas Fritas (Minty Fresh): This band is what pop music is all about. Tight playing, cool harmonies, great vocals minus all that oh-so-popular feed back, static and muted lyrics.
3. LIQUORICE — Listening Cap (4AD) Combining members of three top notch bands can only produce another top notch band. This trio definitely gives you an earful, and they sound great live too.
4. FOO FIGHTERS — Foo Fighters (Capitol) Despite the onslaught of Nirvana comparisons, David Grohl proved he has the talent to make it on his own — without the Nirvana hype.
5. ELASTICA —Elastica (DGC): "Connection" was the first we heard of the band then "Car Song" and "Stutter" all had that rock 'n' roll edge, driving bass and catchy riff; the recipe for success.
6. MERCURY REV — See You On the Other Side

Turn to CONNELLY, page 13

COURTESY VALERIE PHILLIPS

P.J. Harvey's album To Bring You My Love proved to be one of the most popular of 1995.

Mike Burke

1. HELIUM — Dirt of Luck (Matador): Mary Timony is one of the most powerful artists around. This may be her magnus opus an all encompassing album that just oozes with excellence.
2. PAPAS FRITAS — Papas Fritas (Minty Fresh): This album has remained on my stereo since the day I got it and everyday I listen to it I feel like singing and jumping around my room (and that is not like me usually).
3. TEAM DRESCH — Personal Best (Chainsaw/Candy Ass): Last year they blew me away with their live show and this long awaited debut album is even more impressive. Although only 28 minutes long this album contains more wonderful tunes than most bands record in a lifetime.
4. PAVEMENT — Wowee Zowee (Matador): How talented is this lackadaisical four piece. It may not rival Perfect Sound Forever or Slanted And Enchanted but this album is another masterpiece that should firmly place Pavement near the head of the music world.
5. SPIRITUALIZED — Pure Phase (Dedicated): J. Spaceman has done it once more on this fantastic double

Turn to BURKE, page 13

COURTESY MICHAEL LAVINE

Boss Hog featuring Jon Spencer was another popular favorite among the Collegian music staff.

Matt Audette

1. PAPAS FRITAS — Papas Fritas (Minty Fresh): Pure pop heaven. Pretty much a flawless debut. Music made by dorks, for dorks. I love it.
2. THE VELVET UNDERGROUND — Peel Slowly And See: The Beatles make me sing. The Stones make me groove. The Velvets make me feel downright dirty. Rock n' roll in the truest sense.
3. BJORK — Post: Nobody was cuter than Bjork this year. No album was more beautiful than Post. Long live the Icelandic queen.
4. PAVEMENT— Wowee Zowee (Matador): In a hundred years scholars will use this album as a model for a genre called anti-rock. A beautiful mess. Those who hate it are just not smart enough to figure out what's going on.
5. THE APPLES IN STEREO — Fun Trick Noisemaker (spinART): Brian Wilson goes punk ... no, wait punk takes a tab of acid ... well, maybe just psychedelic pop transmitted from Venus. Either way, it doesn't really matter.
6. BOSS HOG — Boss Hog (DGC): I'm in the middle

Turn to AUDETTE, page 13

Adam Dlugacz

1. LIFETIME — Hello Bastards (Jade Tree): Lifetime combine emo style post–hardcore with fast–paced punk. You'll cry, you'll laugh, you'll do the windmill and have a circle pit at the same time. If you don't like this you don't know what hardcore is.
2. CIV — Set Your Goals (Atlantic): Would have been my album of the year except that there are two or three songs that were made for MTV land. This is straight up old school, fingerpointing, positive, sing–a–long hardcore at it's best.
3. QUICKSAND — Manic Compression (Atlantic): A couple of years ago they changed the face of hardcore. Then when everyone thought they had run out of ideas they release another stunning album.
4. MIND OVER MATTER — Automanipulation (Wreck–age): Haunting, emotional, brutal and brilliant.
5. GARDEN VARIETY — Knocking The Skill Level (Headhunter/Cargo): Jawbreaker wishes they could write songs half as good as these guys can. Anthony Roman sounds so emotional and raw you want to hug him.

Turn to DLUGACZ, page 13

'95's best songs

By Josh Wardrop
Collegian Staff

(in alphabetical order)

1. BLUES TRAVELER — "Runaround": Oh sure, you hate it now — but when you first heard this catchy, sure–fire hit, you were enchanted. John Popper is a harmonica god; so what if he packs heat?
2. THE BOO RADLEYS — "Wake Up Boo!": The song that should be played by every morning DJ in America every day. Without a doubt, the most infectious energetic burst of audio sunshine released this year.
3. COOLIO FEATURING L.V. —"Gangsta's Paradise": The best part of Dangerous Minds. The spooky violins alone made me plunk down $7 to see the film. Coolio has an undeniable appeal, even when playing the vicious gangsta, and that L.V. dude can sing.
4. DAVE MATTHEWS BAND — "Ants Marching": Bands who can actually play instruments were big this year, and DMB were one of the best. Matthews' voice can be seriously annoying, but the combination of fiddle and sax on this tune is a jazzy eclectic delight.
5. EDWYN COLLINS — "A Girl Like You": How great is this song? Big, echoing drums, some mad genius playing vibes and Collins, himself, doing a mean David Bowie. Plus he uses "allegorically" in the song, and that doesn't happen often enough.
6. PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA — "Lump": Doesn't mean a damn thing, but it's the sing–along–in–the–car song of the year, and Man was made to play air guitar.
7. PULP — "Common People": Few in America have heard it, but it was huge in England. A song about rich kids who think looking grubby and poor is cool.
8. TAKE THAT — "Back For Good": Simply put, a perfect pop song. Gary, Howard, Jason and Mark redefine romantic longing, and Robbie Williams joins the Pet Bent Hall Of Fame for quitting the band, weeks before they plant themselves in the American Top Ten.
9. TERENCE TRENT D'ARBY — "Holding On To You": Largely unheard single from his TTD's Vibrator. I am a TTD fan from way back and this may well be his best work. He sings his bollocks off, and the lyrics are surreal and passionate. Must be heard.
10. U2 — "Hold Me, Kiss Me, Thrill Me, Kill Me": Portrait of the biggest band in the world, still evolving. Great rhythm from Adam Clayton and Larry Mullins, charged production from Nellee Hopper and more unfortunate brilliance from Bono (his head's big enough as it is).

Jason Flax

1. FOO FIGHTERS — Foo Fighters (Roswell): Not only did Dave Grohl pick up and get to work after Nirvana was through, he recorded amazing power pop songs which showed he was more than just a drummer.
2. JAWBREAKER —— Dear You (Geffen): A good follow–up to 1994's 24 Hour Revenge Therapy. Filled with intelligent lyrics and Nirvana–esque guitar hooks, this major label debut brought Jawbreaker out from semi–obscurity.
3. VERSUS — Dead Leaves (Teenbeat): This collection of old songs as well as some previously unreleased tunes had Richard Baluyet and Fontaine Toups singing their emotional harmonies over dissonant tunes.
4. RANCID — And Out Come The Wolves (Epitaph): Every song on this album is catchy, powerful, honest and Clash influenced. Singer, songwriter Tim Armstrong seemed to bring back some of the ska–influenced music he did so well in his former band Operation Ivy.
5. BEN HARPER —— Fight For Your Mind (Virgin): He will be remembered as the artist who brought back some of Bob Marley's vibe this year. Whether it's his bottle neck slide guitar playing or his soulful voice, Harper puts every ounce of energy into his folk songs.
6. OASIS — What's The Story Morning Glory (Epic): Oasis can pull off The Beatles better than any band around today. The album is strong and the production is slick.
7. VARIOUS ARTISTS — Kids: Original Soundtrack (London): Just when you thought Lou Barlow was only good for some depressing guitar heavy songs, he turns around and makes a diverse musical score for the film Kids.
8. RIVERDALES — Riverdales (Lookout): This is Ben Weasel's new band who sound more

Turn to FLAX, page 13

Wayken Shaw

1. PJ HARVEY—To Bring You My Love (Island): Great songs in yet another different delivery signals what may possibly be the advent of rock music's next great chameleon.
2. PRIMUS—Tales From The Punchbowl (Interscope): Another onslaught of weirdness that continues to push the limits of conventionalism.
3. MR. BUNGLE—Disco Volante (Warner Bros.): Bay Area eccentricity at its finest.
4. RED HOT CHILI PEPPERS—One Hot Minute (Warner Bros.): A redefinition of sound finds a whole new terrain for the Peppers to run free.
5. MERCURY REV—See You On The Other Side (Sony): These space rock experimentalists continue to find beauty within dissonant noise.
6. MEDICINE—Her Highness (American): Ethereal soundscapes make for a more mellow trip than before.
7. FAITH NO MORE—King For a Day ... (Slash/Reprise): FNM still seem to be searching for their true identity and the uncertainty has never sounded better.
8. LIZARD MUSIC—Fashionably Lame (World Domination): Perfect pop songs and intelligent lyrical humor recall XTC in all their greatness.
9. CLAWHAMMER—Thank The Holder Uppers (Interscope): A chunk of blues–punk so indulgent and annoying that it somehow appeals.
10. APHEX TWIN— ... I Care Because You Do (Sire): A musical downer imbued with hypnotics and ambient dance music.

Lisa Oliveri

1. MARILYN MANSON — Smells like Children (Nothing/Interscope): I went to a show and Mr. Manson threw a microphone stand at my head. But the CD still gets my vote for number one.
2. LISA LOEB & NINE STORIES — Tails (Geffen): "Stay" was just too catchy for me not to like Loeb. I eagerly awaited her debut and it is everything I hoped it would be.
3. BATTERY — nv (COP International): One of the premier electronic bands on the scene. So much better than their previous work.
4. GARTH BROOKS — Fresh Horses (Liberty): O.K., I admit it, I am a closet country music fan. But Garth is the best — what more can I say? Don't laugh at the hat!
5. NATALIE MERCHANT — Tigerlily (Elektra): Merchant stands alone well without the 10,000 Maniacs. All of the songs are lyrical and moving and I am impressed that she was able to go solo as well as she did.
6. BJORK — Post (Elektra): Quinmeister made me listen to this CD and it was well worth the effort. I think it is much better than her first solo release. However, I still wish that the Sugarcubes were together.
7. CELINE DION — D'eux

Turn to OLIVERI, page 13

50,000 eyes will look at your ad if placed in the COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS. Now for your convenience at the Campus Center Concourse on Thursdays. Ask for our specials.

We Said, "50% Off With a Valid, KALIFORNIA STATE COLLEGE STUDENT I.D. Current, CONNECTICUT COLLEGE 1953 SALLY JO MODERN 42 HAPPY ST. PEACHY, CN College, I.D." NEW YORK 95003214 95003214 BOBO COUNTY JAIL BOBO, PT 12345

With Half-Price midweek skiing and riding for all students with a valid, current, college I.D., it's no wonder so many people are trying to get in on the deal. And when you consider our 85 trails, 92% snowmaking, 12 lifts (7 quads, incl. 2 high speed detachables), and The Pipe & The Park, you don't have to see Statistics to know that Okemo is the best ski deal in the East.

Valid Mon.-Fri. (non-holidays) with the purchase of a single all-day lift ticket. Discount based on regular price. Holiday periods are 12/25-31/95, 1/15-19/96, 2/17-23/96.

OKEMO CHARGING FOR SKIERS SINCE 1956

Okemo InfoLine: (802)228-4041
Snow Report: (802)228-5222
http://www.okemo.com/okemo

Ask for your free "Super Seven" Card and earn free midweek skiing and riding

Ski snowboard Party in the Snow Only $219 Winterbreak & Springbreak INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS Sponsors include: Molson & Liberty MT. OREFORD, CANADA JUST ACROSS THE VERMONT BORDER! 5 DAY SKI & SNOWBOARD LIFT TICKET 5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO 5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, CONTESTS & HOOPLA NOTE: THE LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18 GROUP LEADER & REP DISCOUNTS CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION. SKI TRAVEL UNLIMITED www.skitravel.com 1-800-999-Ski-9

Steve Madden Sale. One week only ZANNA Downtown Amherst

• Weekly Specials on Regular Beers • Fine Wines R&P Liquors • Largest Selection of Micro-Brews in S. Amherst • Fridge Rentals 253-9742 Minutes from Mill Valley, The Brook, & The Boulders 505 West St. • South Amherst

BIG GUY LIQUORS BIG ON FRIENDLY SERVICE •FULL LINE OF BEER, LIQUORS, & WINE• Now Open Sundays Nov. 26 - Dec. 31 Rt. 63 North Amherst 549-3555 BEER BALLS KEGS

FILM

The Best Films of 1995...

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

1. Braveheart
Mel Gibson's summer epic (which he both directed and starred in) encapsuled chivalry, romance and bloody battle scenes in an authentic 13th century Scotland setting. Both Gibson's dramatic plight to save his country (and his wife) and the powerful slashes of swords were so real, it was enough to make people cry and cringe. Braveheart was the best marriage of romance and action this year.

2. The Usual Suspects
While most of the Tarantino–esque gangster films extol the virtues of criminals, lauding them for their bloodbaths, we actually feel sorry for these suspect Gabriel Byrne, who is trapped in a sticky crime web. Kevin Spacey has his role of the year as Verbal Kent, who especially after an intense final scene, leaves the question, "Who is Keyser Söze?" on everyone's lips.

3. The Bridges of Madison County
The norm is able to be changed as a cult book is actually better after made into a movie. Meryl Streep deserves a Best Actress bid simply for making Clint Eastwood a flower– picking, romantic lover. A perfect summer romance.

4. Casino
Martin Scorsese brings some not–so goodfellas to Las Vegas to roll some dice and some heads. Robert DeNiro is at his ulcerous best as the casino boss, and his pal, Joe Pesci, plays the gangster norm. Sharon Stone has the best performance, as she trades in that glamour girl role for one like a Shakespearian downfall.

5. Toy Story
Disney breaks some boundaries as it joined Pixar to develop this computer animated soon–to–be classic. The sweet story, however, proves better than the glossy animation, and both children and adults wound up caring for the little plastic toys with big hearts — Woody and Buzz Lightyear.

6. Before Sunrise
Richard Linklater provides us with a secret gaze into the most romantic night of two strangers' lives. Ethan Hawke and Julie Delphy. Yes, it was that romance on the train, but the young lovers' conversation was so enthralling, the beautiful backdrop of Vienna was barely noticed.

7. The Brothers McMullen
Hollywood had a taste for everything Scottish this year, with Rob Roy and Braveheart — but the Irish fared well, too. Edward Burns made his mark in the indie film world by begging, borrowing and stealing to make the movie. What he wound up with was a hilarious piece about three Irish Catholic brothers with problems in life and love. The humorous dialogue is set in a Gen–X, New York City vernacular, and Burns scores points for his acting job, too.

8. Get Shorty
While John Travolta's pulpy comeback year was 1994, with Get Shorty he proved that his acclaim was due to more than just starring in a pop gangster flick. He plays a loan shark who gets bitten by the Hollywood bug, and takes his business and "Stayin' Alive" strutting self, out to tinseltown. Comedy is key in Shorty, along with a twist ending.

9. Seven
The dark and the dreary seemed to prevail this year in the movies, but Seven went way beyond scary. The deeply disturbing and graphic suspense film starred a grisly Morgan Freeman, an optimistic Brad Pitt, and yes, the secret is out — a chilling Kevin Spacey. On a par with the serial killer movie which set the standard, Silence of the Lambs, Seven elicited the desired response from audience it wanted -- guttural fear.

10. The American President
Rob Reiner brings us to a place many filmmakers go — the White House. Reiner doesn't try to create a scandal or dispel a myth, but rather show that President Michael Douglas has a major crush on political lobbyist Annette Bening, and that love can work even at election time.

Honorable Mentions: Clueless, The Brady Bunch Movie, Goldeneye, Home for the Holidays.

... and the Worst

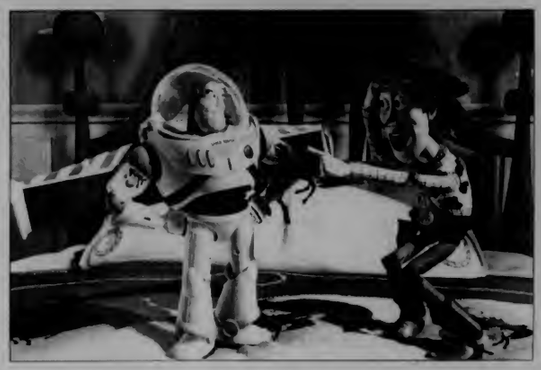
1. Showgirls
Whoever is responsible for letting Paul Verhoeven get his slimy and misogynistic hands on the money to make this Las Vegas soft porn flick should be forced to sit through this movie. Pick any scene, they are all awful. How about a disgusting lap dance scene, or the one where an innocent girl gets raped? Better yet, how about hearing Nomi's voice screech, "I'm not a stripper — I'm a dancer!" over and over again?

2. The Scarlet Letter
It is to be expected that when a work of literature becomes adapted to a screen version some changes may occur. It seems that Demi Moore did everything within her power to mangle Nathaniel Hawthorne's classic novel until it is unrecognizable — and then she bragged about it. This film deserves more shame than a red letter A can bring.

3. Dangerous Minds
Michelle Pfeiffer is utterly unconvincing in the trite story of a teacher inspiring her underprivileged students to love poetry. The film is a rap–filled whitewash of the serious novel, "My Posse Don't Do Homework." Pfeiffer's posse shouldn't do movies.

4. Never Talk To Strangers
Antonio Banderas is the Spanish sensation in the movies this year (he had a whopping four released in '95). However, he does absolutely nothing to save this horribly written, directed and acted suspense (?) film. Rebecca DeMornay is supposed to be some sort of murderous vixen with a split personality, but all she does with her bad self is give away the film's ending in the first 10 minutes.

5. Billy Madison/ Tommy Boy/ Stuart Saves His Family If the television show is in the nadir of the Nielsen ratings, doesn't it also follow that when cast members from "Saturday Night Live" embark on movie projects, they, too, will fail miserably? If Chris Farley and Adam Sandler think leaving "SNL" saved their careers, then they are truly as ignorant and annoying as the characters they portray in film.



COURTESY WALT DISNEY

Toy Story's adorable plastic characters, including Woody and Buzz Lightyear, entertained audiences of all ages.

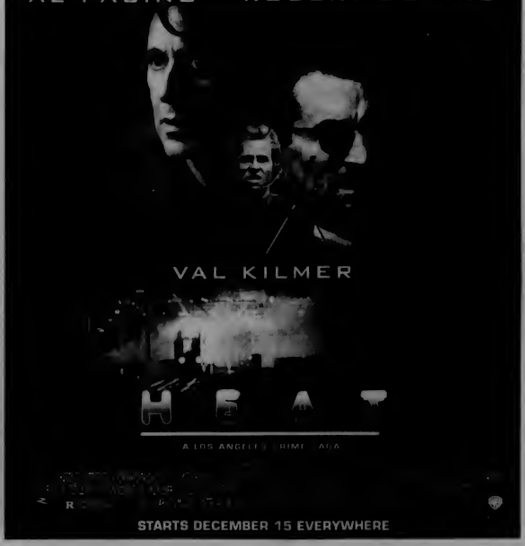
Applications for News Associate positions must be in the Managing Editor's mailbox by 3 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 15. Applicants will be contacted for interviews, which will be held Monday, Dec. 18. Questions should be addressed to Amy Paradysz, News Editor.

The chemical brothers

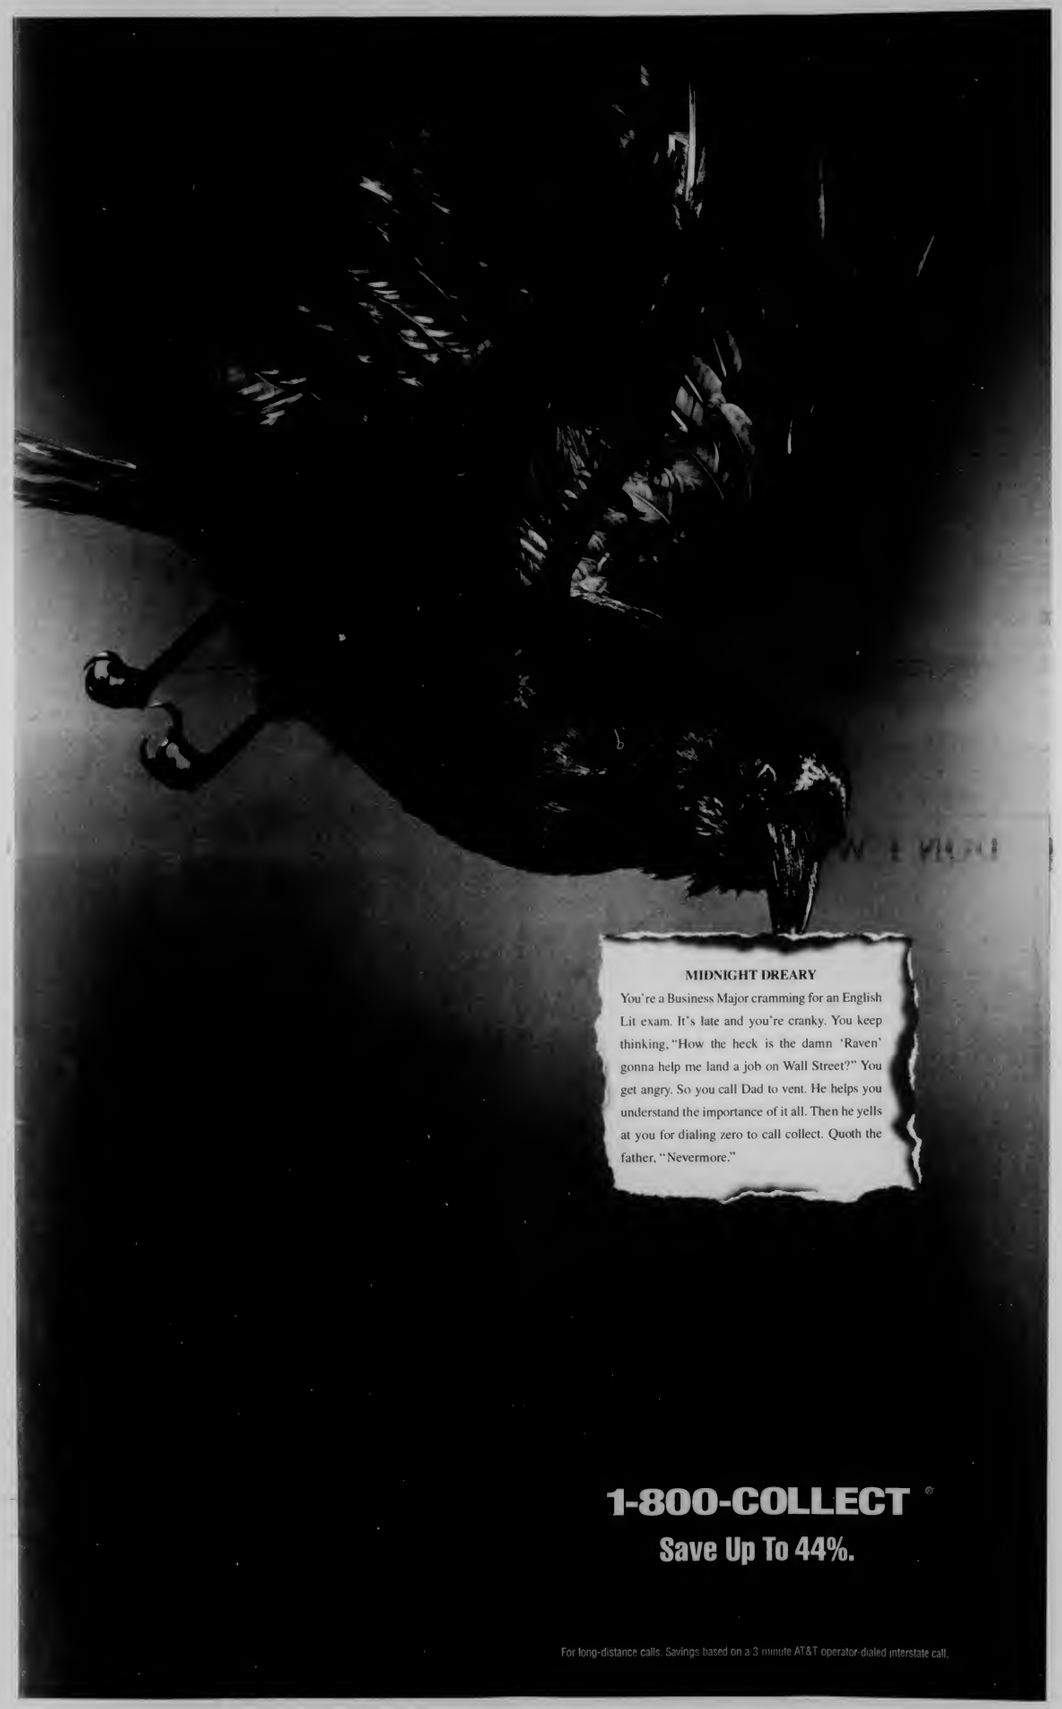
Newbury Comics "a wicked good time!" 50 MAIN ST. • AMHERST 256-8840 HTTP://WWW.Newbury.Com SALE ENDS 12/27/95

Amherst Cinema
Starts ~~Friday~~ 12/15/95
SABRINA
Starring Harrison Ford
Showtimes Friday and Saturday
7pm and 9:15pm
Sunday thru Thursday 7:30pm
"Lowest Concession Prices in the Valley"
Student Ticket Price Just $4.00
Amherst Cinema
30 Amity Street
Downtown Amherst
253-5426

AL PACINO ROBERT DENIRO



STARTS DECEMBER 15 EVERYWHERE



MIDNIGHT DREARY

You're a Business Major cramming for an English Lit exam. It's late and you're cranky. You keep thinking, "How the heck is the damn 'Raven' gonna help me land a job on Wall Street?" You get angry. So you call Dad to vent. He helps you understand the importance of it all. Then he yells at you for dialing zero to call collect. Quoth the father, "Nevermore."

1-800-COLLECT®

Save Up To 44%.

For long-distance calls. Savings based on a 3 minute AT&T operator-dialed interstate call.

■ Connelly

continued from page 10

(Work): With it's mix of orchestral instruments and blissful lyrics, this album keeps throwing out surprises every listen.

7. PJ HARVEY — To Bring You My Love (Island): From the Stark reality of Rid Of Me to the now polished and made up face. PJ Harvey has been able to change her image but retain the sound that first made our heads turn in her direction.

8. TLC — CrazySexyCool (Capitol): A guilty pleasure but a great album showing that girls can grow up into mature women without sacrificing their imaginations.

9. MOBY— Everything is Wrong (Elektra): This summer the artist toured with Lollapolloza playing on the second stage and blowing people's minds apart with his mix of techno, effects and lyrics. He knows how to make people move.

10. THE AMPS — Pacer (4AD/Elektra) What do you do if you're bored and have nothing to do? Well, if you're Kim Deal you'll put together a band that sounds phenomenal and original enough to carry it's own weight.

■ Audette

continued from page 10

of a throng of sweaty moshers. The punk-vixen above me is belting out teen-age profanities. I climb on the stage and dive into the crowd. ...I wake up and realize I'm just listening to the Boss Hog album. It's that good.

7. ELASTICA— Elastica (DGC): Wire? The Fall? Blondie? Not exactly, but when Justine Friechmann belts out "1,2,3,4!" before launching into a punk onslaught, it's 1979 all over again and I get weak in the knees.

8. LOVE — Love Story 1966 – 1970 (Rhino): God bless Rhino Records. In a just world this reissue of the un- legendary band's greatest moments would make just as much splash as that lame Beatles Anthology. Forget Syd Barrett. Arthur Lee is the '60s most ingenious acid casualty.

9. THE MITCHELLS — "Five Minutes/Underwater" (self released): I don't know why, but when I hear this I feel like curling up in the fetal position with the blankets over my head — that's the greatest compliment I can think of.

10. SONIC YOUTH — Washing Machine (DGC); THE AMPS — Pacer (4AD/Elektra); MORRISSEY — Southpaw Grammar. None of these albums were outstanding. But the fact that this year was pretty weak and all of these artists are still making half-way credible music after such a long period of time is good enough for me.

■ Flax

continued from page 10

like the Ramones than the Ramones do themselves these days.

9. 311 — 311 (Capricorn): 311, who has cranked out three albums which have all consisted of their rap/hard-core formula, have finally made an album which stands out. On this album, 311 managed to record their raw live sound.

10. FUGAZI — Red Medicine (Dischord): Although this album isn't as good as In On The Kill Taker, it still is a fine example of Fugazi's ability to break new musical ground for the genre of hardcore.

■ Burke

continued from page 10

album that will take you more places than a Grateful Dead jam. Stunning and overwhelming.

6. YO LA TENGO — Electr-O-Pura (Matador): After years of obscurity YLT release a near perfect album so where does it leave them ... still as unknown as ever. Hopefully someday the masses will catch on and realize the talent of this Hoboken trio.

7. BOSS HOG — Boss Hog (DGC): Breakdance. Jon Spencer is the man and this proves it once again.

8. SCUD MOUNTAIN BOYS — Dance The Night Away (Chunk): These local lads deserve all the hype that has surrounded them. Sit back, relax and enjoy the country music.

9. VARIOUS ARTISTS — The Long Secret (Harriet): No compilation has summed up the indie pop world as well as this. Containing tunes from Magnetic Fields, Tully Craft, Pest 5000, Mountain Goats and many more this album is packed with superb tunes by up and coming pop bands.

10. THE BEATLES — Anthology I (Capitol): If you haven't heard this yet you owe it to yourself — it is about 100 times better than that awful documentary.

■ Dlugaze

continued from page 10

6. VOODOO GLOW SKULLS — Firme (Epitaph): Horns blazing, guitars racing, feet skanking music. Epitaph's best release of the year.

7. SNAPCASE — Steps (Victory): Angry straight edge hardcore, that doesn't dole out the normal preaching. Music for when you've had a bad day and there's nothing you can do about it.

8. IGNITE — Call On My Brothers (Conversion): Just like CIV these guys are a throwback to the days when hardcore didn't involve metal. Upbeat, straight edge lyrics with awesome tempo shifts leave us with a great album.

9. QUEERS — Move Back Home (Lookout): Any band that sings "All I wanna do is cry, but I'd rather see you die!" on one song and then "And I ruth and I run, I know how to have fun. And I'm gonna do it my way. Everything's going my way" on another is alright by me.

10. EARTH CRISIS — Destroy The Machines (Victory): Personally I hate this album. If you take Pantera and combine them with lyrics that sound like a term paper you have E.C. Almost every straight edge kid in the world swears by these guys, so this is for kids like my friend Jim.

■ Oliveri

continued from page 10

(Sony Canada): I picked this up when I was in Montreal, and I only wish that I knew French better. But the songs are really beautiful nevertheless.

8. ELASTICA — Elastica (DGC): This is such a fun album, it gives me this burst of energy just listening to it.

9. ALANIS MORISETTE — Jagged Little Pill (Maverick/Reprise): She's come a long way since "You can't do that on television." Yeah, I've been dumped too but I'm not getting paid to scream about it.

10. PJ HARVEY — To Bring You My Love (Island): This one is for you Sylvia.

■ Lupo

continued from p 5

the boundaries of "boo." Mary Louise Parker was reason enough to see Boys On The Side. Her marvelous performance deepened a sentimental melodrama that seemed beyond her — she reigned it in. And thanks to the wonderful "with memories" at the end of Home for the Holidays; it's a notion that spun around in my head for days, long after the slapstick one- liners evaporated.

Who is Kevin Spacey? A special mention must be made for Kevin Spacey's integral, essential work in both the moody, unsettling thriller Seven and the twisty puzzle pic The Usual Suspects. A lot of people got excited over both these movies, and they're both good — but at their pitch- black hearts are gimmicks that no matter how much people ramble on about it on the Internet, are still conceits that neither film truly transcends. Spacey's work is essential to the pop success of both movies; if it wasn't for the actor setting such a perfectly eerie tone and devilish pitch, both Seven and Suspects would've lost their thrilling punchlines.

The Emperor's New Movies It's easy especially this year, to understand how critics can overrate films. There is simply less to get excited about, so it's perilously easy to get all hot and bothered over a simply because its "freshness" or perceived integrity makes it so obviously not The Jerky Boys. But I don't think I'll ever fathom the seemingly unending praise — from people who should know better — for a movie that is so clearly not good.

The 50-ish photographer director Larry Clark filmed a 19- year-old's script of Kids, and some critics tagged it a wake- up call to our hellish future generations. I call it sleazy, pornographic amid artless filled with bloated pretensions and enough kiddie-porn to inhabit a dozen Calvin Klein ads. It's such a narrow view, that even its larger themes collapse into a collage of meaningless adolescent sex and graphic violence.

It seemed to me from his shapeless scenes and dime-store irony that all Clark was really interested in was getting these kids naked so his camera could ogle their adolescent bodies and in a completely reprehensible fashion, celebrate their negligent nihilism. There's no doubt the images are raw and powerful, but only in a shamelessly voyeuristic way and there's a weird, nauseating feeling that Clark is getting off on this — big time — and his excuse is calling it art.

The Best Films of 1995

1. The Bridges of Madison County — Screenwriter Richard LaGravenese and director Clint Eastwood did the greatest sleight-of-hand trick of the decade: they took a poorly written, schmaltzy book and tranformed it into one of the screen's greatest romances. Great because of its sympathetic simplicity and fueled by truly sublime performances by Meryl Streep and Eastwood himself, who did even one better by composing the film's hauntingly elegiac love theme.

2. Toy Story — Breakthrough technology can overshadow a movie (Iron) or redeem it (Who Framed Roger Rabbit?), but the dazzling image-making here is singular — and secondary — to its marvelous story of the hidden life of toys. There's sheer joy and wonder in every computer- animated frame you really do just want to reach out and touch it.

3. Safe — Julianne Moore is a suburbanite who crumbles, emotionally and physically, because she increasingly becomes allergic to everything man-made around her in Todd Haynes' wrenching environmental horror story. But is it all just in her head? As Safe lingers on, as if in a dreamy trance, the questions prove to be more troubling than the answers.

4. Before Sunrise — Richard Linklater's astute and endlessly amorous road trip follows Ethan Hawke and Julie Delphy around Vienna for a day as they meet, make small talk and fall in love. Linklater stages on perfectly realized scene after another, all by capturing the irresistible romanticism of the idea without once condescending to it.

5. (tie) Persuasion and Sense of Sensibility — Two sterling Jane Austen adaptations filled with such love and respect for their source, it's positively infectious. Persuasion has Amanda Root pining away for the man she let away; the film merges Austen's famed ironic tone with a surprisingly suspenseful romantic cross-current. Sense boasts Emma Thompson, both as its nimble screenwriter and star, delivering a quietly daring performance as one of two sisters caught in a sometimes comic tangle of longing and propriety.

7. To Die For — Nicole Kidman is Media Whore Barbie in Gus Van Sant's take-no-prisoners black comedy, a dark satire where the lead character, even at her best moments, is so screwy nothing she does ever connects with her lofty ambitions of fame. Gleefully ironic with a delicious mean streak, it's a sharp-witted valentine for the cynic in everyone.

8. Wild Reeds — There are four major teen characters in French filmmaker Andre Techine's delicate and often lyrical coming of age tale, and each has a longing they can't yet articulate, a desire they fear to speak of. Set in 1962, right after the Algerian War, Wild Reeds intimately explores what happens when the ambivalent trappings of youth — sexual, social and political — are forced to merge into a figure of adulthood.

9. Les Miserables — Not the film version of the popular stage musical, but an intriguing and thoughtful rumination on Victor Hugo's classic. Director Claude Lelouche transports the story to World War II Europe and features Jean-Paul Belmondo as an illiterate criminal who finds parallels between his life and that of the novel's hero, Jean Valjean. An epic that's involving on both a grand scale and a personal level.

10. Kicking and Screaming — Noah Baumbach may just have found that elusive "voice of a generation" it in this exceedingly smart comedy (with desperate undertones) about four guys who ponder their questionable future the year after graduating college. Their girlfriends are ready to move on, but the guys are stifled by fear, self-conscious expectations and just plain laziness. A film (painfully) close to my heart.

Jon Lupo is the former Collegian film editor

DON'T WAIT TOO LATE

THE BOULDERS

- Large 2 Bedroom Apartments
- *New Appliances
- *New Counters/Cabinets
- *New Carpets/Tile
- State of the Art Exercise Facility
- Stairmaster • Lifecycle • Nautilus

* Selected Units

- Free Heat & Hot Water
- 24 Hour Maintenance
- Central Mailbox Facility
- Limited Access Entry System
- 5 College Bus Stop on Property
- Rent Starting At $695

$100 OFF 1st. Look Special Dec. Only

From Amherst center take Rt. 116 south to East Hadley Rd. The Boulders is located 1/4 of mile down on the left.

256-8534

CLIFF SIDE APARTMENTS

- RENTS STARTING AT $490
- 1,2 & 3 Bedroom Garden Style Apts.
- Convenient to Amherst & Points North
- Hiking Trails on 28 Wooded Acres
- Large Pool and Sunning Area
- Tennis, Volleyball and Basketball
- Free Public Transportation
- Free Heat, Hot Water & Electricity

248 Amherst Rd, Route 116, Sunderland, MA

665-3958

Newbury Comics

"a wicked good time!"

50 MAIN ST. • AMHERST

256-8840

HTTP://WWW.Newbury.Com

SALE ENDS 12/27/95

FASHION ...from faux furs to hot colors

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

The year is fashion is hard to pin down simply because there is just so much to cover. Trends change and so do colors. Designers are constantly pumping out something new and innovative.

In the spring we saw the return of the dress. A-line and almost shapeless, it flouted and swirled around its wearers in a barrage of pastel colors which heralded the end of winter. Sandals were also big along with stack heel and purses.

The Summer we go hotter colors and less covering. Crop cut t-shirts made it big. Stores were raided for their boy-sized shirts with picture of dump truck and Spider man plastered on front. Bathing suits mostly came in two pieces and the colors and material range from neon green to terry cloth.

Short shorts once again were paired with these tiny t's along with head bands, more sandals and hats. Colors that were hot included fire engine red and everyone seemed to be going vamp crazy making Chanel and very happy company.

The Fall drifted in with it's autumn colors and crisp air. Little tartan vest and skirts became all the rage along with thigh high stockings and penny loafers. Bulky sweaters and squared heeled boots completed a fall ensemble. Colors reverted back to classic black, and navy and white proved it wasn't just for balmy weather.

Hair turned golden as blondes took the runway from Niki Taylor to Naomi Campbell, do they have more fun? Not according to Linda Evangelista, who went back to her own dark tresses.

Winter winds came crashing in with unexpected snowfall and the need for warmer wear. Down bomber jackets in silver and gold shimmered amongst the pristine whites. Thigh high boots, scarves and hats also caught a wearers eye. Faux leopard and lynx coats also made it big as tacky became chic and everyone seemed to be sporting something fake to wrap around themselves.

This year's fashion went back to the basics in everything from cut to style. Trying to capture the simple versus the glamorous, designers strove to emulate the likes of Jackie O and Audrey Hepburn making it a lot easier for this year's wearer to look good and stay contemporary without having to sell their souls.

The Best & Worst TV Shows

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

1. "ER"— The top-rated show two wars running now, the NBC drama just about steamrolls the competition. The acting on this show just gets better and better with each episode, as the drama and tension build. It's almost like real life, only better.

2. "Friends"— Ignore the critics who say this is a Gen X nightmare. Ignore the fact that everyone on the show is beautiful and lives well beyond their Manhattan means. Even ignore the departure of the cool (but reportedly prima donna-ish) monkey, Marcel. This is a show that manages to do what no other show on television does – it's funny every week.

3. "Party of Five"— Good news for "Party of Five" fans: FOX's highly-acclaimed drama about five children orphaned when their parents were killed in a car accident has been renewed for another nine episodes. Probably the best looking hour on television, the Salingers binge ahead with storylines like Bailey's first kiss and Charlie's wedding jitters.

4. "Law & Order"— In a weird way, this show has survived numerous cast changes and still has emerged solid as ever. The NBC drama looks at both sides of the criminal justice system and makes for tight dialogue and edge-of-the- seat suspense.

5. "Homicide"— The gritty Baltimore police drama stuck in a thankless Friday night time slot is intensely realistic. From the relentless interrogation scenes to the vivid crime scenarios, the show is carried by the charismatic Andre Braugher and the excellent scripting, not to mention the bouncy camera angles.

6. "Cybill" — Cybill Shepard takes another aim at primetime television with her self-named sitcom. Co-starring Alan Rosenberg and Marianne Baranski, the show is witty and is probably one of the few comedies that doesn't try to imitate the successful "Friends" format.

7. "LiveShot"— UPN is best known for its flagship program, "Star Trek: Voyager." But if you tune in Tuesday nights, you'll catch a realistic look at the world of television news. "LiveShot" is cool as ice drama mixed in with a good dose of dead-pan humor and a dash of ethics too.

8. "The Simpsons"— The cartoon creation by Matt Groening pokes fun at just about anything that has been a current event. It's satire on political and entertainment figures such as Ted Kennedy and James Earl Jones has been making kids and adults alike laugh all year long.

9. "Biography"— Arts & Entertainment produces a different biography for every day of the week, including "person of the week" on Saturdays. Each hour show is well-crafted and informative, with relevant reenactments filling in the details. Recent biographies have included Santa Claus, the Romanovs and Princess Diana.

10. "Melrose Place"— OK, so it's not the acting that makes us tune in on Mondays night. It's more for the demented psychology that propels this show, season after season. Sure, you can fall in love and get married in just two months. Trying to blow turn to TELEVISION, page 19

TELEVISION

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

This year saw the sequel to last year's semi-exciting Bronco chase. People versus Orenthal James Simpson occupied the airwaves for a good eight months and pre-empted soap operas and talk shows, which made for some unhappy and cranky viewers. Especially when the lawyers started parading out the endless stream of DNA experts.

Whatever your personal opinion of the verdict, the Simpson trial redefined the way we look at the justice system. Court TV and CNN provided continuous coverage and at crucial moments in the trial. It wasn't uncommon for the major networks to break-away from their regular programming to bring us a nice view of O.J.'s grimacing/grinning face, depending on what how the trial was going at that particular moment.

The media circus which surrounded the trial turned Marcia Clark, Christopher Darden, Johnny Cochran, Robert Shapiro and Judge Lance Ito into pseudo-celebrities. After a while, the grandstanding grew old and the quest for the spotlight fueled many a petty feud. And of course, television viewers were treated to every sleazy, backstabbing moment, courtesy of shows like "Hard Copy," "Inside Edition" and "American Journal." Of course, we all wanted to hear, every single night, about how Clark's custody suit and how F. Lee Bailey and Shapiro don't talk.

If that wasn't enough, everyone and their brother had something to say about the trial. Geraldo Rivera, previously of the violent talk show genre, attained a degree of semi- respectability with his show that aired every night on CNBC. The show featured various talking heads like the Menendez brothers' lawyer Leslie Abrahamson and also gave viewers a chance to have their say.

CNN's contribution to the talk-fest was Greta Van Sustren, the sharp lawyer from Washington D.C., who analyzed every aspect of the trial until she was blue in the face. Van Sustren, by the way, is the lucky person to land a "no-holds barred" interview with O.J. Simpson and this time, the Juice has promised not to back out like he did for the "Dateline" interview.

It was also the year to land those hard-to-get interviews. Weird couple Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley sat down with Diane Sawyer on "Primetime Live" to discuss Jackson's career, their marriage and his new HIStory album. Not to rehash the whole painful episode, suffice it to say that Jackson wore more make-up than his wife and in the middle of the interview, he gave her bunny ears. Very mature, Michael. And in case you're all wondering, the answer to that oft-speculated question is, "Yes."

Last month, Buckingham Palace flipped out when Princess Diana granted relatively unknown BBC reporter Martin Bashir an interview. Diana's interview, while not revealing anything that people haven't suspected before, boosted her ratings over her pipsqueak husband, Prince Charles, and has the Palace running madly, trying to define a role for the Princess. Reportedly, ABC paid $1 million for the U.S. rights to the interview.

Moving on, this was also the year for fading television stars who can't land other jobs to start their own talk shows. New members of the sleaze bandwagon included Gabrielle Carteris from "Beverly Hills 90210." Typical topic? "I'm afraid of my child." Not to be outdone, former "Cosby" kid Tempestt Bledsoe started her own talk show, with mature and in-depth topics like "I'm tired of dating wimps." Other new talk shows that emerged this year belong to Carnie Wilson (one-third of Wilson Phillips) and "The Partridge Family" alum Danny Bonaduce.

Meanwhile, the reigning talk queen, Oprah Winfrey, took a plunge in ratings when she decided to get out of the "trash talk" category and address more relevant topics like parents who kidnap their children and celebrity interviews with the likes of Tom Cruise and the Judds.

Coming dangerously close to the top spot is Ricki Lake. The former actress' guests are hormonally and adrenalinly charged and the show is entertaining to watch, just to see the "bodyguards" leap out of the audience to break up any fights. Another member of the elite talk show club, Jenny Jones, stirred up controversy when her show on secret admirers ended in tragedy as one guest shot and killed another guest. That episode, by the way, has not been aired.

While there seems to be never-ending supply of sleaze on television, there have emerged a few good shows, though nothing strong enough to knock "ER" out of the number one spot. ABC thought it'd take a shot at the heavyweight show with its strongest drama, "Murder One."

"Murder One" is the perfect antidote for those suffering from withdrawal when the O.J. Simpson trial ended. The show follows one trial from beginning to end, intending to last the entire season. It was an idea that producer Steven Bochco had wanted to try with his previous mega-hit, "L.A. Law," but the large ensemble cast of which made it virtually impossible. The idea is good, but for audiences already numbed into comas from the Simpson trial, "ER's" fast-pace seemed the way to go and the medical drama beat the new kid on the block on its first venture in the Thursday night time slow. While "Murder One" is definitely quality television, the show is now limping to Monday nights, opposite CBS's "Chicago Hope."

"Melrose Place" took a nose-dive into insanity. Jack Wagner and Kristin Davis joined the show and Marcia Cross finally gave in and became a full-time cast member. It seems that the motto of this season was, "Leave common sense at the door." Kimberly (Cross) tried to blow the whole place up and the only casualty turned out to be McKenzie Hart (and who remembers who she was?) and then Amanda (Heather Locklear) hooks up with Peter Burns (Wagner) in a twisted sort of way. Didn't he try to kill her barely a year ago? Now, in a cliffhanger, it looks like Sydney (the charmingly devious Laura Leighton) poisoned sister Jane (Josie Bissett) with a heady dose of tranquilizer and wine prescribed by psychotic Kimberly.

Running on momentum from last year's Olympic games, the networks ran to grab every skating event possible. As result there were lots of variations on the same theme. There were "Ice Wars," "Skates of Gold (I-III)," "Disney on Ice" and "The Ice Capades," just to name a few. Katarina Witt, Paul Wylie, Scott Hamilton and Oksana Baiul dazzled their way through intricate programs and along with the fancy footwork, pocketed large appearance fees.

Then there was the "Beatles Anthology." Spread over three nights, this was supposed to be the television event of the year if not the decade. Simply put — it wasn't. Most of the footage had been widely seen before and the interviews with the three remaining Beatles had little to add to the narrative. Maybe the biggest disappointment of the year to everyone but the most diehard Beatles fans.

Well, the only thing to be said about this television season is that things can only get better.

"Hey there cowboy, how would ya like to come over to my ranch tonight. Just you me and your copy at the Daily Collegian."
The Daily Collegian
because you should always be prepared

Auditions For Not Ready For Bedtime Players
NOT READY FOR BEDTIME PLAYERS
WOMEN ONLY
Monday - Dec.18 at 7:00PM
Campus Center Rm. 165-69
For more information call the Health Education Division of the University Health Services and ask for Sally 549-2671 Ext. 181.

HANDEL'S MESSIAH
THE SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
&
THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS CHAMBER CHOIR
E. WAYNE AMBERCROMBIE, CONDUCTOR
Wednesday, December 13 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Tickets: $12 general public, $8 students, seniors & children $5 UMass students
Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office (413)545-2511
Thursday, December 14 8 PM
Symphony Hall, Court Street, Springfield
Tickets: $15 general public, $10 seniors, $5 children 17 & under
Available at Symphony Box Office (413)733-2291
Sponsored by Coopers & Lybrand, Provost Patricia Crosson, The Fine Arts Center & The UMass Alumni Association

Alpha Lambda Delta Honor Society Presents
A Study break Featuring . . .

DAN AYKROYD JOHN BELUSHI
THE BLUES BROTHERS
December 17, 8:00pm
Campus Center Auditorium - Free to Everyone!
Free Pizza to First 150 People
Sponsored by The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

January
Winter Session at UMass Boston
Please send me information about UMass Boston's January Winter Session.
Name
Address
City, State, Zip
Return to:
Division of Continuing Education
UMass Boston
100 Morrissey Blvd.
Boston, MA 02125
Fax: 617 287-7922
Make the most of your January break by taking a course or two at UMass Boston. You can choose day or evening classes in a variety of disciplines. Courses meet January 2 through January 25. The undergraduate course fee is $130 per credit, and you can charge your fees to a MasterCard, VISA, or Discover account. To receive a copy of our Winter Session schedule, send in the coupon, email us at dce@umbsky.cc.umb.edu, or call
617 287-7904
Appears at no cost to the Commonwealth.
UMass Boston

~ SPORTS ~

Misty–eyed memories from the semester gone by

Traditionally, the Collegian sports staff tells their misty- eyed memories of the semester past, so without further adieu, here it goes:

Darren Cohen — When the pre-season college hoop polls came out there were many who felt UMass couldn't survive without All–American Lou Roe. However, not much was written about Lou's journey to the big–time — the NBA. Yes, he has not seen many minutes but one night Lou showed the world what UMass Basketball is all about.

Given the chance to start one night in a game verses the Magic, Lou scored 14 points and grabbed nine rebounds in 33 minutes. That game wasn't just special for Lou, but it was something all associated with UMass athletics should be proud of. The persistence and intensity level he possesses is a true portrayal of the "Refuse to Lose" attitude our athletic teams live by. Hopefully, Lou will be the first of many to show the world what UMass is all about.

Steven Grant — I've got amnesia.

Mike Corey — I have had the pleasure in this my young collegiate career to witness many events, and to meet many people — all with such great attitudes and respect for one another. I'll start off with the events.

I won't forget the time UMass upset BU in soccer in one of the biggest wins in school history. The only matter is that this had to come on the first game I had ever covered, and it only took me four hours to write the game story.

I also never imagined that in my first time up atop the field at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium, I would see the UMass football team set the school rushing record with 515 yards and 0–3 passing. I hear their looking for some talented quarterbacks to fill the spots in the next few years. "No experience necessary, just learn how to hand the ball off."

Being at the Mullins Center for the first time and sitting on press row watching UMass play Wake Forest has got to be one of my favorite misty–eyed memories. Meeting Sean McDonough and Dick Vitale was definitely a more rewarding experience. Awesome Baby.

Finally, going to the FleetCenter for the first time to see UMass take on BC was amazing. We had three cars and six people go down battling the weather and when we finally got situated there and were ready to head in, I analyzed our situation to be that we all had a parking spot — and I was out 35 bucks. I love being a freshman.

However, no freshman could have been more comfortable than I as the way I was welcomed here by everyone. All the people from the Collegian and WMUA radio, you have my thanks for making this an outstanding first semester for me here at UMass.

Ted Kottler — For four years, when November rolled around, a great deal of my time and hopes hinged on the UMass basketball team. Didn't think it would happen again, but who wasn't engrossed by its 92–82 dismantling of Kentucky? Once again, the Minutemen surpassed all expectations. They don't play pretty basketball, but they are a lock every night to do what they do well, and that's what beat the Wildcats. There's no more dependable team in America, and you gotta' like that.

Brian Perillo — There is no doubt at all what my misty– eyed memory is. Sitting in the bleachers in Fenway Park when the Red Sox clinched the American League Eastern Division title was something I will never forget. Not one fan left the park, and we stayed for about 20 minutes watching the team celebrate. Even though my car did almost get towed out of the parking lot where it was blocking in about 800 other cars, we managed to find time to greet the players as they exited the stadium.

Being there that day kind of made up for my worst memory ... the Sox getting swept right out of the playoffs.

Leigh Torbin — I thought for the longest time that the Red Sox playoff run would be the biggest moment of the semester for me, even though I saw our women's basketball team down Stanford, our men's soccer team beat BU and my beloved hockey team pull off a pair of sweeps and a big win at Lowell. Leave it to miracle worker Rachel LeDuc to scrap all of those ideas. The "UConn Killer" became the "Hartford Heartbreaker" when she scored a miraculous goal with 1.4 seconds to play in the second overtime of an NCAA game against the hated Hawks.

The OT was apparently over as Erin Lynch served a ball, almost just for the hell of it, with five seconds to play. A white flash headed the ball into the goal sending the 1,349 at Garber Field into a jubilant mass–hysteria.

Frantically, I ran down to the field to find out who or what had redirected that ball into the net. Neither the referee, linesmen nor coach Jim Rudy knew just who scored it, so I asked Rachel. "I did," she said, as if there was ever any doubt. My hand trembling, I wrote "119:59" as the time of the goal, and then paused, disbelieving both writing that number and what I had just seen. I still don't believe it.

Andrew Bryce — The only reasons I cried this past semester had nothing to do with sports. However, seeing the greatest running back in UMass history finish out his outstanding career was wonderful. More importantly, it was my pleasure to be able to deal with Rene Ingoglia, the person who's been a class act in the three years I have covered the team. So has Mike Hodges, a truly nice guy.

The men's basketball team's huge victories over Kentucky and Boston College would have got me teary-eyed had someone shoved onions in front of my face, as both were exciting and extremely gratifying.

Matt Vautour — When it was over there were actually tears in my eyes. The diamond vision screen with the announcement 1995 American League East Champs hovered over the impromptu celebration that had swept through Fenway. The five of us kept hugging each other.

A year ago there was no baseball at all. I had sworn off the sport, but there is just something about the Red Sox and this region's masochistic obsession with them that sucks you back in every time they start winning.

It didn't matter that they would eventually be swept by Cleveland. For one night, the city of Boston was in love with baseball ... and we were there.

Casey Kane — The list could go on forever. Singing Take Me Out to the Ballgame after the Red Sox clinched the AL East, Boyden Bowl, UMass–Wake Forest, the FleetCenter, driving Matt and Justin everywhere.

I think the experiences I will remember most are those associated with UMass basketball. From sitting on press row with Candice and Justin for the exhibition games to attending my first game as an official fan. I love basketball, and to be a part of such a great group of fans was almost overwhelming. I loved everything about the Wake Forest game — waiting out in the freezing cold, running to grab a seat, high–fiving people I didn't even know.

And of course, the BC game. The day couldn't have been better. OK, the driving conditions could have been, but ..

Needless to say, the rivalry was incredible. The sea of maroon and white pom-poms, the fans with the painted faces, the school spirit that practically shook the FleetCenter. I didn't even mind that Matt, Justin, Bob and Brett all fell asleep on the drive home.

Though this is only my first semester, I know that I will remember these experiences for a long time to come. And oh yeah, Matt and Juice, my rent check is in the mail.

Chris Stamm — They came from places like Wakefield, Framingham and Brattleboro, Vt. They had names like Steve "Crazy Legs" Grant, and Mike "The Rocket" Corey. They were Philosophy majors, English majors, and communications majors. These athletes didn't deal with contracts, and they weren't concerned with salary caps. They played because it is what they loved to do.

Boyden Bowl '95 (games I–V) had all the makings of great athletic match–ups. The winds whipping across Boyden Field as a handful of dedicated young athletes/writers sought to prove themselves on the gridiron. No scholarships, no fans, just lots of old–fashioned heart.

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Rachel LeDuc's game–winning goal with 1.4 seconds left in the second overtime against Hartford in the first round of the NCAAs was one of the many memories from the semester past.

The season's offensive standouts were QB's Juice Smith and Brian Perillo. When the chips were down, they put the ball in the air with the skill and accuracy of sharpshooters (OK, so what if they were the only guys who could throw the ball). The running games were led by Grant and Corey, who defied all the laws of physics and basic football strategy zigging and zagging into the end-zone.

In addition, the league broke the gender barrier with defensive juggernaughts Candice Flemming and Casey Kane taking to the field. With Matty V, Mike Brown and the countless other Boyden Bowl competitors, it was a season to remember. If we learned one thing, it was why we were the ones sitting behind the terminals writing the stories, and not the ones on the field making plays.

But hey, we had fun anyway.

Justin C. Smith — With so much going on during the fall semester, it is incredibly difficult to select just one memory, but there is truly a moment that brought tears to my eyes.

The Fordham–UMass women's soccer game played on a frigid Sunday afternoon that ended in a 7–0 Minutewomen blowout won't be a game remembered by too many historians. But for those close to the team it will be the match when Nikki Ahrenholz scored her only collegiate goal.

The senior's parents were in the crowd for the game and the entire team was a glow when the defender put home her shot. Her smile warmed everyone in the stands on a 35– degree day that ordinarily wouldn't have been anything but another work day. At that moment I wanted to run out on the field with the rest of the team and share in such a moment. The team is very close and emotionally attached to one another and I will miss not covering them next year.

Candice Flemming — The road trip to Maryland was filled with many great memories, seeing the FleetCenter for the first time for the UMass–BC game was awesome and witnessing Rachel LeDuc's game–winning goal with 1.4 seconds left in the second overtime in the first round of the NCAA tourney against Hartford was thrilling ... but putting together the Collegian's basketball preview magazine is my misty memory. When we had originally talked about doing the preview in magazine form, I was skeptical — I never really thought we would be able to do it, but amazingly we were able to pull it off. It was a lot of work and it kept me up many nights, but it was all worth it. I wouldn't change a thing, except maybe use a little more versatility, ha–ha.

I have a lot of people to thank for making this a great semester. To the entire media relations staff — thank you for all of your help this semester, it really is greatly appreciated. To my three associates, thanks for all the hard work. To Daymion, your photos are always rockin' (except for your small exposing problem), keep up the good work. And to the rest of my staff, thanks for writing. I hope to see you all next semester. — Rock on everybody.

KAZBOOM
LOUD MUFFLER?
MIDAS GET HOME SPECIAL
10% OFF ANY SERVICE OVER $50*
Alignments and oil changes excluded
Rte. 9 HADLEY 586-9991
FREE SHUTTLE SERVICE TO CAMPUS
*offer requires presentation of this ad. Ad must be presented at time of purchase. Not valid with any other discounts. Offer expires 12/24/95
NOISY BRAKES?
SCREECH

SKI BOUSQUET
$20 DAYS $5 OFF With College ID $15 NIGHTS
Dan Fox Drive (413) 442-8316 Pittsfield, MA

Great Gifts
Bags Stocking Stuffers Hats
Jewelry Natural Fiber Scarves
Blouses Skirts Dresses
Earrings Rings Bracelets Candles Chains Sweaters Toys India Print Bedspreads
Gloves Mugs Socks Leather Sole Merry X'mas Cards Chinese Shoes Dresses
Sale 20 to 50% off selected Clothing
The Mercantile
Weeknights 9PM Dec. 7-22
Sun 12-5 Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St.
Amherst-Carriage Shops

JOSEPH CURRAN ASSOCIATES
IMMIGRATION LAW OFFICES
#1-19 Specialty Occupations
Labor Certification / Sponsor Handling
212(e)-J-1 Waivers
Outstanding Professor / Researcher
National Interest / Extraordinary Ability
Asylum Petitions
All Immigrant / Nonimmigrant Matters
Free Consultation for Five-College Students and Faculty
1160 Main Street 2nd Floor Springfield, MA 01103 413-733-6070
35 Old Smith Street Northampton, MA 01060 413-584-1032

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

great scores...
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
get a higher score
KAPLAN
Kaplan helps you focus your test prep studies and your confidence, so you can get a higher score.

~ SPORTS ~

Women's gym starts season against Colonials

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's gymnastics team kicks off its season and its super-tough schedule over winter break as the Minutemen take on George Washington on Jan. 13.

Although the Minutewomen have lost to the Colonials the last two seasons, this year UMass feels it has taken the program to the next level and expectations are a bit higher.

"We've been competitive the last two years," UMass coach Dave Kuzara said. "Now we want to take it to the next step. We want to be a top 10 team and eventually a national champion."

To achieve this, beating the Colonials is the first thing that needs to be done. Both teams have improved since last season, with the consensus being that UMass will have the edge this time around. In any case, the meet will be a learning experience for the team, as freshmen and others will be given the chance to see where they fit in on the deep and talented roster.

"This season, both teams are a lot stronger talent-wise," assistant coach Rene Lyst said. "It will be a good test to see how good we are."

The Colonials are solid on the vault, beam and floor, as are the Minutewomen. But it is the bars where UMass has a definite advantage and that could be a major factor in the meet's outcome.

"Our goal of the meet is to be clean and consistent," Lyst said. "We may not put all of our difficulty into our first meet because we want to build some confidence in ourselves. It will be a good time to see our freshmen perform."

So far in the preseason, the team squad looks impressive. Junior all-arounders J.J. Tolhurst, an NCAA regional all- around champion, Tara Sewartz and Lianne Laing, to name a few, are in top form. Kuzara realizes their experience and present condition will be vital to the team's success.

"Tara and Lianne are having the best preseason of their three years here," he said. "Before, we relied on them as freshmen and sophomores. We kind of threw them to the wolves. Their leadership is going to be extremely important."

Clearly, recruiting has made the difference in the current status of the team. The team has 15 athletes this year — eight upper-classmen and seven freshmen.

Kuzara feels that he has the best senior/upper-classmen leadership in the country. They will serve as role models for their younger teammates, allowing for them to adjust to competition at this level.

Minutewomen get verbal commitments

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

The temperature outside may not be suitable for shorts and the grass all over campus may be covered with snow, but that doesn't stop the Massachusetts women's soccer team from thinking about improving for next season.

UMass has received verbal commitments from three high school seniors who all have plans on becoming a Minutewomen in the coming fall.

Forward Emma Kurowski of Sutton, who played with current Minutewoman Karin Johnson, Tarah Tokarchik, a midfielder from the Cherry Creek Lightning Club out of Colorado, and Angie Napoli, a goaltender from Longmeadow, have all given verbal commitments to the University.

• • •

Tokarchik has played with the Cherry Creek Club under coach Shami Behbehani for five years and he spoke of what she has meant to his team.

"She's a very dedicated soccer player. She's a very smart player who does not hesitate on 50-50 balls. She can be a good leader," Behbehani said. "Tarah has always shown herself in all the big games we've had.

"She's certainly been one our most valuable players, playing any position we needed, she was there for us. Two, three positions in the same game, with no problems doing it without any questions."

Coach Behbehani has coached both of Tokarchik's brothers, Tom and Troy, and speaks highly of her family.

"They have a terrific soccer family," he added. "Very, very dedicated."

• • •

Netminder Angie Napoli was selected to the All-Western Mass. team this past season and was a four-year starter at Longmeadow high school.

She is also a member of the National Honor Society.

• • •

Emma Kurowski has played and started varsity for Sutton high school since she was in the eighth grade. Over those five years, she has won four state titles with her high school team and three state club titles with the Sutton Fuller Hamlets.

She is the younger sister of Dartmouth's forward Jenna Kurowski and will get to face off against her sister when the Minutemen face the Big Green next season.

The additions of Kurowski and Tokarchik should help the Minutewomen up front, as UMass loses Rachel LeDuc to graduation. LeDuc finished her career at UMass as the all- time leader in goals and career points.

The addition of Napoli gives the Minutewomen added depth in the net.

• • •

On the medical front, forward Sara Hill, who injured ligaments in her knee earlier this season, is said to be working extremely hard to recover from the injury.

"Sara is rehabilitating like a banshee," UMass coach Jim Rudy said. "She is really working hard, the whole team is impressed with her progress."

The Minutewomen finished this season with a 14-4-2 record, capturing the Atlantic 10 Tournament Championship for the third straight season, and then advancing to the second round of the NCAAs where they fell to Connecticut.

Candice Flemming contributed to this story.

Newcomers helping to lead women's swimming

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

The success of any sports team cannot be given to any one individual. As in all sports, the objective is to play as a team, and no one defines that phase better than the Massachusetts women's swimming and diving team.

Throughout this young but already rewarding season, the Minutewomen have devoured opponents in all three of their duel meets gaining first place over Vermont, Northeastern and Boston University. Then they placed a spectacular 300 points and two places higher than last year in the New England Invitational meet grabbing second place.

However, the Minutewomen could not have done this without the overwhelming response from the newcomers and the leaders on this team.

"Everyone has been contributing, and we all fit right in," said freshman Meghan Matacera, whose strong first and second place finishes in the backstroke have enabled the Minutewomen to gain valuable points.

"I feel like everyone is really unified," said Julie Alexander, who is in her first year with this team as well, and has placed right up there with the best in the freestyle and breaststroke events. "Everyone is really excited at the meets, and everyone wants to back each other up."

According to coach Bob Newcomb, the unity on this team has been the best in all of his 12 years as coach.

"It's been an easy team to coach," Newcomb said. "Everyone has been there for each other and it's just a good atmosphere."

Lisa McNamara, a freshman standout as well, said she didn't know what to expect at first, but feels that this team has great attitudes and abilities.

"Everybody is really positive and they care about everyone else," McNamara said. "Everyone's been doing well."

What UMass has to like and be proud of is the fact that everyone has stepped it up and filled in when they were called upon to produce.

The Minutewomen have accomplished a great deal, this also without the services of sophomore record holder Karen Sonnwald in the 500, 1000 and 1650-yard freestyle events.

Sonnwald was out from the start of the season with a broken foot. She has now returned and is back swimming again, already close to her top form which has provided win after win for this young over-achiever.

Sonnwald said it's excellent to be back and is looking forward to swimming again, as she will compete in the Minutewomen's next meet on Jan. 2.

"It feels good to train again," Sonnwald said. "I'm trying not to set any goals too high right now. I just want to be able to swim faster than I did last year."

The return of Sonnwald is just another dimension that Newcomb feels that will be added, one that should of started at the beginning of the year.

"It's going to give us more flexibility with Barbara Hickey and Kristen Schambach," said Newcomb on two of the long distance swimmers that have swam extremely well, filling in the spots in events for Sonnwald.

"Barbara, Kristen and the freshman have just helped out this team a lot," Sonnwald said.

Newcomb said that the Minutewomen will continue their long vigorous training right up until the end of finals. The pool will be open for the swimmers to get in a workout a day around their exam schedules.

UMass leaves the Dec. 28 for sunny Florida. The Minutewomen will be training in preparation for their contest on Jan. 2 in the Lake Worth Invitational meet.

After UMass comes back from Florida it will take on Dartmouth in a duel meet. Then the Minutewomen will compete in the Rhode Island Schambach," said Newcomb on two Invitational (Jan. 12-13), and come home for a big meet against UConn on Jan. 20.

They will hit the road again at New Hampshire (Jan. 27), and then will battle Boston College on Jan. 30, closing out their meets over winter session.

■ basketball

continued from page 20

Weeks finished with nine points and six rebounds while Norville had six points and two blocks.

"I haven't gotten them enough minutes for them to go in and perform even in a game like [UNC-Wilmington]," Calipari said. "Inus has got to rebound more and Ty's got to score a little bit more. But that's not their fault. If you want to look to one person, that's me. I just got to get them more minutes and they know it, I know it and our team knows it."

Marcus Camby will undoubtedly use the 10 days to rest the groin injury he suffered against UNC-Wilmington.

■ hockey

continued from page 20

and the results are apparent. After going 5-5-1 over the break, UMass immediately went on an extended losing streak after classes resumed.

Before intersession though, UMass must travel to Princeton on Sunday. Princeton has struggled this year, losing twice to Yale, a team UMass beat 4-0 on the road.

After exams, the Minutemen will host Cornell, Finland and Slovakia in the UMass Holiday International Classic, a two- day tournament to be played Dec. 22-23.

The team will have a 17-day layoff before facing Maine Jan. 9 at Mullins on NESN. It is the Black Bears' first trip to Amherst since their stunning upset loss to the Minutemen last year.

Home-and-home series against beatable Beanpot schools Northeastern (Jan. 12-13) and Boston College (Jan. 19-20) will highlight the next two weeks for UMass. The Minutemen beat BC twice last year and played two close games with the Huskies.

The team will play its final non-conference game on Jan. 23 when it travels to Cornell to face the Big Red, and then heads north for Orono, Maine for a pair of games against the Black Bears at Alfond Arena on Jan. 26-27.

■ NBA

continued from page 20

week, I actually read something that said the Magic's team chemistry will be disrupted when Shaq returns. To make room on the roster for O'Neal, Orlando waived the "always dangerous" Gert Hamminik.

• Kenny Anderson update: last week you read that the Nets' disgruntled point guard wanted off the NBA's Titanic. Well, late reports indicate Kenny's term as a Net could be coming to an end sooner than originally stated. After Anderson hires NBA raider-agent David Falk, trade negotiations should pick up speed. As mentioned possible destinations for Kenny include the Knicks, Pacers and the Heat, with the Kings close behind. Besides, new Net President Michael Rowe would like nothing more than to have the new look Nets attitude free by the New Year. Pssst, Mike, if your listening, don't forget to toss GM Willis Reed, too. After all, wasn't he the one who made this mess to begin with?

Spanning the "Globe"

How 'bout them Grizzlies — In suffering a 12-point defeat at the hands of the Raptors, Vancouver set a record for NBA futility by an expansion team with its 18th straight loss. I think it's the uniforms — or maybe they actually miss Benoit Benjamin. You tell me.

• Philadelphia, in the never-ending search for a point guard, found one Tuesday. The '76ers signed veteran point guard Scott Skiles for the remainder of the season. Skiles, who will earn the NBA minimum ($225,000), should start immediately. In another move the Sixers also signed journeyman center Mike Brown. Brown last saw action with the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Well, since this is the last paper of the semester I would like to take this opportunity to wish everyone a happy holiday season. Hope to see you all back in the spring.

Darren Cohen is a Collegian columnist.

Pearl Street
Nightclub
THURSDAY DEC 14
DANCE PARTY
18 & Over Hosted by Rich Ringer of Today's 91.1 The Area's Biggest Dance Party
Western Mass's Search for Low Skate Continues
FREE FOOD COURTESY OF SUBWAY
FRIDAY DEC 15
RETRO NIGHT
MUSIC FROM THE 70'S & 80'S
FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS AD
SATURDAY DEC 16
CLUB NIGHT
Now Available "THE CLUB CARD
Good for Free Admission on Saturday,
Reserved Tables, New Year's Eve, and More
DOWNSTAIRS 9:00 PM
MAX CREEK
WEDNESDAY DEC 20
GAY NIGHT
With DJ Donna
Sam Adams Boston Ale
Only $2.75 All Month
THURSDAY DEC 21
DANCE PARTY
DJ'S, LIVE
FRIDAY DEC 22 7:00 PM
EXHUMED
SATURDAY DEC 23 8:00 PM
RETRO NIGHT
BLUE CHRISTMAS,
MARK NOMAD BAND
HOT HAMMER SOUP
WILDCAT O'HALLORAN
UPSTAIRS
CLUB NIGHT
TUES. DEC 26 7:00 PM
SNAPCASE
Dispair & Grimlock
UPSTAIRS
TEEN NIGHT DANCE PARTY
NEW YEAR'S EVE BASH
Out with the Old
And In With the Groove
WIN A TRIP TO THE BAHAMAS
UPSTAIRS
DOWNSTAIRS
Live Blues
POPA CHUBBY
ALSO
BUFFET FROM 9-11
COMPLIMENTARY CHAMPAGNE
CONTINENTAL BREAKFAST
SUN. DEC. 31/8:00 PM - 2:00 AM
COMING TO PEARL STREET...
12/29 VIC/HOME/PANGLOSS
12/30 THE BLACK REBELS
12/31 POPA CHUBBY
1/5 JOHN CAFFERTY &
The Beaver Brown Band
OCTOBER PROJECT (up)
1/6 ART EYSELE BAND (down)
1/19 MEPHISKAPHILES
1/20 J. GEILS BLUES TIME
Tickets at all Select-a-Seat outlets or charge by phone at Ticketmaster. Box office 586-8686. 1-800-THE-TIC® or Strawberries. For The Record in Amherst. Music in Greenfield. Tix Unlimited at U. Mass.
10 Pearl Street, Northampton 413-584-7751

YOU'LL FEEL GREAT AFTER SOAKING IN A HOT TUB AT EAST HEAVEN HOT TUBS
FOR RESERVATIONS
586-6843
33 WEST STREET

Steve Madden Sale.
One week only
ZANNA
Downtown Amherst

Interested In The Classifieds Manager Position?
Contact either Earl, Marty or Rosario at The Collegian!

DIGITAL PIANOS
YAMAHA • CLAVINOVA • KURZWEIL • SAMICK
PRICED FROM $995.00 on up.
CLAVINOVA
on sale from
20% to 30% OFF
VOTED #1 DIGITAL PIANO IN "KEYBOARD MAGAZINE" FOR 1996
SEVERAL MODELS TO CHOOSE FROM
FROM 76-88 KEYS
WITH & WITHOUT RHYTHMS
KURZWEIL
A GREAT SELECTION OF WOODFINISH CABINETS AVAILABLE IN EBONY, IVORY, MAHOGANY, CHERRY, OAK.
ALL ON SALE DURING THE HOLIDAYSEASON
SAMICK
OAK VERTICAL & GRAND IN EBONY, IVORY & MAHOGANY ON SALE from $2995 on up EASY FINANCING
90 DAYS 0% INTEREST
8,9 APR FINANCING
Falcetti MUSIC MALL
1755 BOSTON ROAD, SPRINGFIELD . MA 413-543-1002
(Next to Eastfield Mall)
HOLYOKE - HOLYOKE MALL 413-538-7970
ENFIELD - BROOKSIDE PLAZA 203-745-3737
PITTSFIELD - 660 MERRILL RD 413-448-2085
OPEN SUNDAY 12-5

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

IN THE SHORT TERM, IT WOULD MAKE ME HAPPY TO GO PLAY OUTSIDE.
IN THE LONG TERM, IT WOULD MAKE ME HAPPIER TO DO WELL AT SCHOOL AND BECOME SUCCESSFUL
BUT IN THE VERY LONG TERM, I KNOW WHICH WILL MAKE BETTER MEMORIES

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

HA! WHAT A ROTTEN SNOWMAN! THAT'S THE WORST SNOWMAN I'VE EVER SEEN!
SO GO BUILD A BETTER ONE!
MAYBE I WILL!
YOU'RE BACK?
MY WORDS SPEAK LOUDER THAN ACTIONS

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

THE CHRISTMAS SEASON IS ALWAYS A TIME FOR PERSONAL REFLECTION
TOO OFTEN WE DON'T EXAMINE OUR LIVES THIS IS A TIME TO TAKE STOCK AND THINK ABOUT WHAT'S IMPORTANT.
IT'S A TIME TO REDEDICATE ONESELF TO FRENZIED ACQUISITION... A TIME TO SPREAD THE JOY OF MATERIAL WEALTH... A TIME TO GLORIFY PERSONAL EXCESS OF EVERY KIND!
EARTHLY REWARDS MAKE CONSUMERISM A POPULAR RELIGION!
...A TIME TO ATONE FOR ONES FRUGALITY!

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

OH BOY. LOOK AT ALL THE SNOW! IT MUST BE SIX INCHES DEEP!
THIS WILL BE PERFECT FOR SLEDDING OR...
DING DONG
DING DONG DING DONG
ALL RIGHT! I'M COMING! I'M COMING!
WHAT THE HECK IS WRONG WITH THIS PLANET? SOLD US ?!

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

GALAXOID AND NEBULAR!
THIS COLD WHITE GLOP COVERS US AND FREEZES OUR INNARDS!
IT'S SNOW. YOU'D BETTER GET USED TO IT. 'CAUSE WE GET IT EVERY WINTER.
YOU DID NOT TELL US THAT THIS PLANET'S AXIS WOULD TILT US AWAY FROM THE SUN.
YOU DIDN'T ASK.
WE PAID SO LEAVES FOR THIS PLANET! YOU GREATLY OVERCHARGED US!
YEAH WELL. "LET THE BUYER BEWARE."
YOU ARE A MOST DISHONORABLE POTENTATE!
WE DEMAND YOU BRING THIS PLANET UP TO CODE!

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

WHO'S AT THE DOOR, CALVIN?
AAAH! UM..UH.. GIRL SCOUTS! DO WE WANT ANY COOKIES?
GIRL SCOUTS? COOKIES?
IT SEEMS EARLY, BUT SURE, LET ME GET MY PURSE.
OH NO! SCRAM, YOU GUYS!
NOT UNTIL YOU FIX THE CLIMATE!
I'LL SEE WHAT I CAN DO.
SLAM
DO NOT TRIFLE WITH US, EARTH LEADER!
WHERE ARE THE GIRL SCOUTS?
THEY SUDDENLY HAD TO GO EARN A MERIT BADGE QUICK. WHERE'S HOBBES?

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

THE ALIENS DIDN'T KNOW ABOUT WINTER?
THEY CLAIM I SOLD THEM A PLANET WITH A FAULTY AXIS! WHAT SHOULD I DO?
OFFER A REFUND. GIVE BACK THEIR LEAF COLLECTION..
ARRGGH! I THROW IT AWAY WHEN IT GOT SUCH A BAD GRADE!
HMM... WELL, WE SHOULD AT LEAST HELP THEM STAY WARM THEN.
BUT WHAT COULD THEY WEAR? THEY DON'T EVEN HAVE ARMS! THEY NEED HUGE SOCKS OR SOMETHING
HEY! NO! BAD IDEA! BAD IDEA!

THE COLLEGIAN BIDS A FOND FAREWELL TO CALVIN, HOBBES, SUSIE, AND THE REST OF THE CHARACTERS IN CALVIN & HOBBES.

A [illegible] lines from drawing the comic, The [illegible] full page of Calvin & Hobbes.

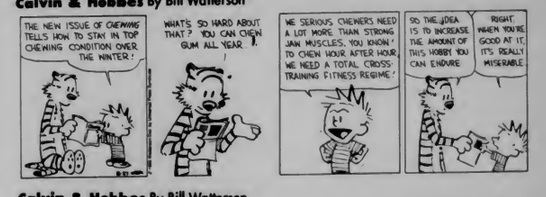
Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

OOH, THIS IS TOASTY!
THANK YOU, EARTH LEADER!
THAT'S MY CHRISTMAS STOCKING!
THEY'RE GOING AWAY WITH OUR STOCKINGS! SANTA CAN'T FILL 'EM WITH LOOT!
I'M SURE SANTA KNOWS WE DID A NICE THING AND WE'LL WORK IT ALL OUT
HEY YEAH! I DID SOMETHING GOOD! WE'RE TALKING JACKPOT! WE'RE TALKING MULTIPLE TRIPS FROM THE POLE TO HAUL IT ALL!
YOUR SELFLESSNESS IS THE HOPE OF THE SEASON

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

YOU SAY MY PRESENT FROM YOU IS OUTSIDE?
IT'S OVER HERE
A PILE OF READY MADE SNOWBALLS!
I WANTED TO GIVE YOU SOMETHING PRACTICAL
YOU'RE THE BEST, HOBBES. OL' BUDDY! THANKS!
MERRY CHRISTMAS
I SUPPOSE IT WOULD BE WRONG TO THROW THESE AT YOU..
I MADE MY OWN PILE, JUST IN CASE

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson



THE NEW ISSUE OF CHEWING TELLS HOW TO STAY IN TOP CHEWING CONDITION OVER THE WINTER!
WHAT'S SO HARD ABOUT THAT? YOU CAN CHEW GUM ALL YEAR.
WE SERIOUS CHEWERS NEED A LOT MORE THAN STRONG JAW MUSCLES, YOU KNOW! TO CHEW HOUR AFTER HOUR, WE NEED A TOTAL CROSS TRAINING FITNESS REGIME!
SO, THE IDEA IS TO INCREASE THE AMOUNT OF THIS HOBBY YOU CAN ENDURE
RIGHT. WHEN YOU'RE GOOD AT IT, IT'S REALLY MISERABLE

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

SOMETIMES AT NIGHT I WORRY ABOUT THINGS AND THEN I CAN'T FALL ASLEEP.
IN THE DARK, IT'S EASIER TO IMAGINE AWFUL POSSIBILITIES THAT YOU'D NEVER BE PREPARED FOR
AND IT'S HARD TO FEEL COURAGEOUS IN LOOSE-FITTING DRAWSY BEAR JAMMIES.
THAT'S WHY TIGERS SLEEP IN THE BUFF!

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

SEE MY SNOWMAN?
HE'S ENJOYING A SNOW CONE! THERES NOTHING HE LIKES BETTER!
AND THE SNOWMAN WITH THE ICE CREAM SCOOP IN HIS BACK?
IT'S A SCROOD STORY!

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

ARE YOU MAKING ANY RESOLUTIONS FOR THE NEW YEAR?
YEAH, I'M RESOLVING TO JUST WING IT AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS
SO YOU'RE STAYING THE COURSE?
I STICK TO MY STRENGTHS

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Good sports

(that is, people I've made fun of that can laugh at themselves and the world around them)

10. The entire cast of Baywatch.
9. The talking dolphin (last one guys, I promise).
8. The Dining Commons staff.
7. Those wacky punk rockers in Project FLATBOY.
6. The people of Whitmore.
5. The University Tour Services (wups!)
4. Dean Hellman & all us engineering geeks.
3. The US Polka Association.
2. Any UMass student I've pissed off who's good natured enough to let it go.
1. Chancellor Scott.

The "Odds 'n Ends" Wednesday Night Crew bids you a happy holidays!

Today's Staff

Night Editor
Tim "Barsie's" White

Copy Editor
Andrew "Fan Club" Bryce

Photo Technician
Ryan "Get me outta here" Tiezzi

Production Supervisor
Marni "It's my last night in Graphics ever!" Helfner

Production
Amy "Giggles" Paradysz
David "Richie Rich" Voldan,
Jeff "Beer" Hodge

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CHINESE FOOD
Kai Zin delivering Sunday through Thursday 12-11pm and Friday and Saturday to 3am 586-2774

Happy holidays and good luck with finals Alpha Chi!

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Beautiful updated apt. ideal for grad student. Fully kitchen, full bath, large bedroom and washer/dryer $825/month 253-2515

2 bedroom on busline $850.00 Heat and hot water included. Available January 1st 549-7598

2 bedroom apartment for rent starting Jan 1st. 2 bedrooms on bus line near school. Contact Nagib 548-8415

2 bedroom on busline. Colonial Village starting Jan 1st. Contact Jack 545-1802

2 bedroom Deluxe apts Newly remodeled quiet atmosphere Heat/hot water included minutes from UMass on bus route. Not many available call now for spring/summer 665-3696

AUTO FOR SALE

1982 Dodge Aries Needs work (transmission, gaskets) for parts or restoration $300. 256-8719

'88 Isuzu Trooper 4wd 5spd 79k Runs and looks brand new $7995 549-8240

EMPLOYMENT

BABSON COLLEGE BOOKSTORE
Help Wanted at Babson College Bookstore from mid December until late January. $5.00 per hour. Call 617-239-4175.

Activity coordinators & front desk assistants- Alm college grads! A sunny and warm at some of Orlando's finest resort hotels. National recreation company is now arranging applications for their spring training class beginning January 22nd! Broaden your education in the hospitality industry or until use it as a resume builder!! Fully furnished apts & $150 monthly stipend. Call 800-486-6762 for more information and application.

Live-in programmer for part time to full time position. Macintosh programming experience preferred. Apply to ACI, 131 Triangle St. Amherst, Ma 01002 Phone 549-0701

Christmas/January break help wanted training rate $10.25. Local branches of international firm has several openings. Earn $800 $1800 during 2-6 week break program. Part-Full time. Flexible schedule. Ideal for resume. Secure summer position with Advancement opportunities. Internship possible. Apply now! Begin after finals. For openings call greater Boston/Framingham 617-449-5255 Woburn/North shore 617-938-0401 Worcester/Leominster 508-757-7900

Drivers, wait staff & prep cooks needed. Experience preferred. Apply in person 549-8250

Environmental Jobs Earn over $10/hr. part-time/$275-$375/week working to save the environment with Mainspring. Casual fun atmosphere. Call Tom at 256-6434

Excellent part-time business. Work at home. Computer support & training. Call now 549-8924

Full/Part Time Tupperware- the most fun you'll have making serious money!!! Call Danielle & Andrea 256-8993

Januory Job For 5 weeks. Child care for 10 year old 5-11pm M-F $150.00 a week Amherst Center. Reliable References required 253-2424

Travel Abroad and Work. Make up to $25-$45/hr. teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan or S Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For information call (206) 632-1146 ext. 250012

Waitstaff, cashier Upscale regional restaurant. Resumes for $200. Inventory required $2500. Follow our plan and if only 2 sales per day in each location your profit $32,400 first year! 941-7867

Wintersession Jobs Telefund is hiring 5.50 per hour plus bonuses. Flexible evening hours. Come to the basement of memorial hall & apply today.

Two 900 #s Be creative to earn big money Call 253-5782

FOR SALE

SKIS FOR SALE
Rossignol Vc3 178's Brand new still wrapped in plastic. Call Eric 549-8354

Awea 3g running shoes, uneven heels $9 (may also fit 8 1/2) Must sell cheap 546-7236

Kegerator $200. 2 year old iguana 4 x 2 tanks all supplies incl. $200 specialized hardrock 18" mountain bike $175 or bo 549-8196 Larry or Dennis

STEREO EQUIPMENT

Used/reconditioned rack systems and seperate components. Large selection, honest advice, warranty and good prices. We buy audio, video, Dj/musical equipment. Stereo & video exchange at Jackson's Flea Market Mountain Farms Mall Hadley Open Sundays only 9-4 Other days call Amherst 256-0941

Trek 7000 for sale a great opportunity for an upgrade. Dx & an rock shox stir bar ends New in April- looks and works like new. Call Sam at 546-3078

Wanna a K2 salmon skis 170 s Bindings & poles included Asking $200 or bo Call 546-7444

INSTRUCTION

Shaolin free animal kung fu Forms and fighting Classes begin in Jan Contact Sifu Jim 665-4185 or 549-7915

LOST

Black Daily planner lost contains calendar, planning, addresses and contacts Lost 12/4/95. Suspected to be left on bus from Amherst Center to UMass Please call me 413-253-7464 no questions asked I need it, it contains my life!!!

Lost 1/2 blackyred Adidas shoes from 80YE Cashew Sunday night (irreplaceable sweets) $40.00 if returned to door or class (in office) no questions. 546-7238

MISCELLANEOUS

O Glorious Apostle St Jude Thaddeus, true relative of Jesus and Mary, I salute you through the most sacred heart I praise and thank God for all the graces he has bestowed upon you To you God has granted the priviledge of aiding, thanking in the most desperate cases Come to my aid that I may praise the mercies of God Thank you M M

PMS, Allergies, Asthma high blood pressure diabetes migraines? Revenol can help you Call today 549-8924

PERSONALS

To the six girls that brighten up my semester! Thank you! Massages for everyone

Mel, Stu, Tip, Ann Jobs W You guys are the greatest! Thanks for everything. Love Me

Rocha We love you & we'll miss you!

To Cindy Congrats on being released. We know you could do it. We are very proud too. Love in DZ

JN Gruyere Between the poker meals, lobing, iced coffees, showers and Jodie-Foster who has time to breathe? Good luck on finals and Happy Holidays!!

We hope that you are ready for Wineglass! But as you know, we are the best. Like you say we aim to dispirit. So on Saturday, puking is a must! We love you guys! Love: The Terrible Two

Unsos Welcomes back Mike

Sweety—afternerty Christmas to Dance Master Pierpont and Coolidge drink and smoke a lot - Hodge-

M (four more months) baby L A

Jena Thanks for everything this semester. You pulled me through a rocky road! Have fun in S.F. 143 Tim

Happy 21st birthday Kiran hang in there. We love and support you. Monica and Dave

My girls I'm going to miss you guys over break but New Year's Eve is going to rock. I can't wait. Love you three. Slickster

Brian and Laura- I'm really happy that you too have found each other. Have a great time in the Big Apple!
Love, the Ice Woman

Slick- great praise be! I've got to motor. I'm going to make it to the funeral on time! Oh and by the way I love you okay? But then again you always look good. But seriously, good luck at Channel 7. Love, Nig

Roomies- Have a great winter session! I know you'll miss me. God knows I'll miss the cockroaches in my coffee! Try not to put any toast particles in my butter okay? Love, Rembert

To my three girls- Let's go Pub dancing, wait in Dellasio's for an hour and sit in Burger's until Schevy gets silly. Love, the Styling Sixkster

Jamaica- Let's buy another pet, get a smaller apartment with more heat and then breed a pig. Love, TT Rodriguez

Jessa- Thank's again for the rockin' Alanis tickets. Love the two Nozes

To my three Slicksters- Thanks for a great semester! Now Year's Eve will rock. Love Rule

Bri- You were right we were lucky to find each other. Love, Laura

To the Slicks- Thanks for all the great times. They'll be more to come. I love you both very much. Love Schevy

Laura- Caroline isn't the only person whose world you rock. You are. D.S.G. Love, Bri

To my Collegian Buds- I QUIT- I'll miss you all! (No hard feelings SGA) Don't forget me! See you at Gradwaters! Love, Alyson C.

To Candy-ass, my sports idol- Women in Power- I'm sorry for being a sports dweeb but I hated being on the wrong side of the paper! Love, A.C.

Happy B-day Patty Mailay from the town at 110 Gray St. Hope to see you stoked on Saturday night

Mark, You might want to consider killing the Women's Issue 1 publish. It's high time you broke the cycle, buddy. Cola?

Chris

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for upbeat female to share 2 bedroom apt. Available Jan 1. Aug 275/mo negotiable Call 549-4935

One bedroom in five bedroom house. Smoking OK. $270 per month. 256-8295

1 room available in 5 bedroom house. January-August. Next to Amethyst Brook conservation area. $275+ Call 253-9081

One room in South Amherst with three men three minutes from U Mass. $230 rent. Call Mike 253-1584

Room for rent- call Angela Rosen at 584-1421

Jamaica- Let's buy another pet, get a smaller apartment with more heat and then breed a pig. Love, TT Rodriguez

Jessa- Thanks again for the rockin' Alanis tickets. Love the two Nozes

To my three Slicksters- Thanks for a great semester! Now Year's Eve will rock. Love Rule

Bri- You were right we were lucky to find each other. Love, Laura

To the Slicks- Thanks for all the great times. They'll be more to come. I love you both very much. Love Schevy

Laura- Caroline isn't the only person whose world you rock. You are. D.S.G. Love, Bri

To my Collegian Buds- I QUIT- I'll miss you all! (No hard feelings SGA) Don't forget me! See you at Gradwaters! Love, Alyson C.

To Candy-ass, my sports idol- Women in Power- I'm sorry for being a sports dweeb but I hated being on the wrong side of the paper! Love, A.C.

Happy B-day Patty Mailay from the town at 110 Gray St. Hope to see you stoked on Saturday night

Mark, You might want to consider killing the Women's Issue 1 publish. It's high time you broke the cycle, buddy. Cola?

Chris

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for upbeat female to share 2 bedroom apt. Available Jan 1. Aug 275/mo negotiable Call 549-4935

One bedroom in five bedroom house. Smoking OK. $270 per month. 256-8295

1 room available in 5 bedroom house. January-August. Next to Amethyst Brook conservation area. $275+ Call 253-9081

One room in South Amherst with three men three minutes from U Mass. $230 rent. Call Mike 253-1584

Room for rent- call Angela Rosen at 584-1421

Room for rent- one bedroom Sunset Ave. walking distance to campus. $250 a month. Please call 549-6138

One or two women for room at Siegerland Est. $250 per mo. Negotiable Call Jen 665-8136. Directly on bus route

Room in Amherst Apt for roommate $250 Available Feb 1st. Molly 256-8438

Room for rent five bedroom house. $275 month 253-2717 Close to campus

Room in a private home in Northampton with kitchen privileges and bathroom. 1 January 96 $200, utilities included, prefer female. Call after 7pm and ask for Angela

Female roommate wanted to share a big room in a house with three upbeat girls close to campus! Please call 549-8942

Roommate wanted to share a convenently located (1/2 mile to UMass and center of Amherst), beautiful 3 bedroom, 2 1/2 bath condo at Amity Place. Laundry, fireplace, central air, patio, full kitchen and great sunset views! Must be responsible, call-loving, non-smoker. $425.00 month plus utilities. Available January 1, 1996. Contact Gary at 549-3498

Male roommate wanted to share a big room. Uptown, close to everything you need. 30 Kellogg Ave. Bus route. LOCATION. Call 253-4469

Roommate wanted non-smoker to share room for Spring semester $185 per month. On bus route. Start Jan 1st. Call Anne 253-1805 heat & hot water included.

Two female roommates wanted to share room in 3 bdrm apt $185 hy heat inc. On bus route. Call 549-4721

MISCELLANEOUS

Foreign students DV-1 Greencard program available 1-800-880-7167

International students Visitors DV-1 Greencard program available 1-800-880-7167

ROOM WANTED

Greencard program by US Immigration. Legal services tel 818-772-7168 20231 Stagg St. Canoga Park, Ca 91306

Free financial aid! Over $ billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships is now available. All students are eligible regardless of grades, income or parent's income. Let us help. Call Student Financial Services 1-800-263-6495 ext. F50012

NEED HELP MOVING?

Quick movers & storage Move over. Rover let Jens take over! 256-1300

Need help moving? Buying a new bed? Trash to dispose of? I have a pickup truck and am available year round. Please book early for end of semester moves. Hourly rates. Page anyone 292-0065

RESUME

Inexpensive professional resume services. Packages $15-$30. Only at Campus Design and Copy. The affordable alternative. Upstairs in the Student Union. 545-2211

Jewelry repairs watch batteries, eyeglass frame repairs and ear piercing. Silver Image Designs 264 N. Pleasant St Amherst 253-3324

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906

TO SUBLET

LOTS OF FREE BEER
Well not really I'm looking for a place to stay over winter session. If you can help me call Billy @ 546-0408

JW + JM (RA s) Want winter session housing in Amherst. Call Andy 6-4108

Looking for Apt/bedroom to sublet January-mature responsible male needs place to stay over winter session. Call Bill at 546-2077

Male seeks apt for rent for spring '96. Getting late- starting to panic. Erik 546-0046

TRAVEL

JAMAICA
Go with whom you know Spring break in Negril- $548 U Mass Ski Club 545-3437 Trust our experience.

Catch a jet! Cancun/Mexico $189 r/t Europe $169. Call $129. Call Airtech for more info! 800-326-7009

Going home for the holidays? Need a ride to the airport? Call Valley Transporter Airport shuttle. Hourly service to Bradley. Affordable door to door. Advance reservations 549-1350

Port Antonio, Jamaica Ocean view cottages great neighborhood, walk to beaches, restaurants, dancehall clubs $150/week 413-367-9760

Ski & Sno wboard Winter break & spring break '96. Intercollegiate ski weeks only $219. Includes 5 day lift package, 5 nights lodging (luxury condo), 5 days intercollegiate activities (drinking age 18). Sponsors include Molson & Labatts. Mt. Orford, Canada (just across the Vermont border) group leader/rep discounts. Call Ski Travel Unlimited 1-800-999-SKI

Spring Break Bahamas or Florida Keys. Spend it on your own private yacht. One week only $365.00 per person including food and much more. Organizers go for free! Easy Sailing Yacht Charters 1-800-783-4001 See us on the net http://www.shadow.net/~ezsail

Winter Break Special Killington rates $285. Interested? Call the U Mass Ski Club 545-3437

WANTED

Studio or 1 bedroom room wanted Winter and or spring. Reliable 25 year old 546-7238

Looking to buy a fairly new & reasonably priced double mattress and possibly a bed frame 256-8864

Research Interviewers
Now hiring for winter break!
Day-time Hours
No Selling Involved
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics.
Computer/typing skills required.
Flexible hours. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're on Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm, Monday-Friday; (413) 586-8535. Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt.9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

HOROSCOPE

Aries (March 21-April 19): It is time to move in a new direction. Exchanging confidences with a wise friend gives you a fresh perspective; remain optimistic about a difficult parent-child situation. You will see your breath today.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Let mate make a family-related decision while you take a leadership role at work. New business or career options come out of nowhere. A loved one cares about you and lets you know it! Make friends with squirrels, they know more than you think.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Follow through with your work program today. Ignore boastful people. Pushing your resources with an ally's will help a joint enterprise succeed. Date a political columnist.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Take the inflated opinions of others with a grain of salt. You are entitled to your own practical viewpoint. Communicate with distant contacts; scheduling a business trip for mid-January. Learn to darn socks.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): High minded pursuits and spiritual growth capture your attentions. Yet you cannot expect the future to turn out exactly the way you would like. Be prudent and practical. If you can read this, you are too close.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It can be expensive trying to please your friends. Go slow on committing your resources. Steer clear of unreasonable people. Forcing a showdown could seriously harm a relationship. Be a Pepper!

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go easy when making changes in the management of sales, purchases and investments. It is vital you discuss things with those who share your financial interests. Find time for a sports break this evening. Advice from syndicated astrologers may be arbitrary and irrelevant- use caution!

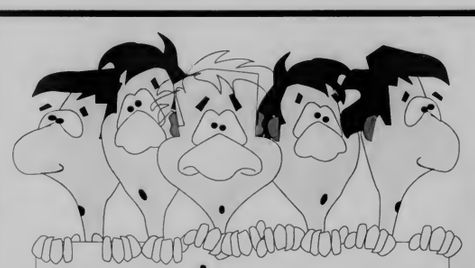
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A good day to bring negotiations to a profitable conclusion. You benefit from your family's connections. Put an outdated approach to inevitable and try something new. The rarity of wooden nickels actually makes them quite valuable. Take them if you can!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An aura of goodwill surrounds you wherever you go today. Morning hours are best for finishing important work. Competitors or higher-ups could make things more difficult later on. Shine on, you crazy diamond!

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are entitled to your privacy. Protect it. You can always find a plausible excuse if you are not in the mood to see others. Generosity will be rewarded. Donate food and money to the needy. Dream in color, dream in red.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let important questions slide until you can get the entire picture. Others may not be much help. Concentrate on projects you can handle alone. A phone conversation with a loved one bolsters your spirits. Onion rings cause bad breath, bring gum.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): This day is made for meditation. Your morale gets a lift when loved ones show their affection. Make the most of circumstances that are working to your advantage. Replace your former hesitancy with decisiveness. Have a great break!



The Bluewall is closed for renovations during Wintersession & will re-open at the end of January

Collegian Graphics
We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!
When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

GOP denies funding for peacekeeping

By Donald M. Rothberg
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate gave grudging endorsement Wednesday to deployment of U.S. troops to keep the tenuous peace in Bosnia. But reflecting the deep divisions on Capitol Hill, the House voted to express "serious concerns and opposition" to President Clinton's Bosnia policy.

As U.S. military air cargo planes were landing in Bosnia amid record snowfall, both houses rejected resolutions earlier Wednesday to deny funds for sending the 20,000 American troops there.

"That was probably the strongest statement of support they could possibly make," said White House spokesman Mike McCurry.

"He [Clinton] can fairly say, certainly, he's got congressional support," Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole told reporters after the Senate voted 69-30 in favor of a resolution that he and Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.) drafted in consultation with the White House.

Dole, the front-runner for the Republican presidential nomination next year, noted that the resolution does not specifically endorse Clinton's policy nor the peace agreement reached in Dayton, Ohio, last month.

"This resolution does support our men and women in uniform," he said.

Shortly before the Senate voted, the House passed, 287-141, a resolution sponsored by Reps. Stephen Buyer, (R-Ind.) and Ike Skelton, (D-Mo.) expressing "serious concern and opposition" to Clinton's policy but supporting the troops.

The House refused to consider the Dole resolution, a move requiring unanimous consent. Objections were shouted out from the Republican side of the chamber.

Then, in the final vote of the night, the House rejected a resolution by Rep. Lee Hamilton (D-Ind.) expressing "unequivocal support" for the peacekeepers but noting that some members of Congress have "questions and concerns" about their deployment. It was defeated 237-190 with one member voting present.

The votes were taken as Clinton flew to Paris, where the agreement reached in Dayton will be signed Thursday. It is under that agreement that a NATO peacekeeping force of 60,000, including 20,000 Americans, will deploy in Bosnia.

Before adopting the Dole resolution, the Senate rejected, 52-47 a proposal similar to the one that passed the House. It declared that "the Congress opposes President Clinton's decision to deploy United States military ground forces into the republic of Bosnia."

A second sentence in the resolution said Congress "strongly supports the United States military personnel."

That resolution, backed by Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, (R-Tex.) and Sen. James Inhofe (R-Okla.) was regarded as so close that Vice President Al Gore presided in case his vote was needed to break a tie.

As part of his resolution, Dole insisted that the administration agree to a plan for arming and training the Bosnian military to allow it to defend the nation after the NATO mission ends in one year.

Opponents to the deployment recalled Vietnam and Somalia and cited the danger to the U.S. troops.

McCain, a prisoner of war in Vietnam, said, "The president will be accountable to the families of any American soldier who dies in service to his country in Bosnia. He will have to answer for their loss. But so will I. So will I. I fully accept that in my support of the deployment and my efforts to influence its conduct and its termination, I incur this obligation."

The House resolution voiced "serious concerns and opposition to the president's policy" to deploy troops. But it expressed support for the soldiers and urged Clinton to provide them with whatever equipment is requested by field commanders.

Skelton has repeatedly said that any U.S. involvement in arming and training the Bosnians would make American troops targets of Serb attacks. The Buyer-Skelton proposal said the United States should remain impartial and evenhanded in its dealings in Bosnia.

Jordan gets best of Hardaway this time

By Mike Nadel
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan avenged a poor performance against Anfernee Hardaway in their last meeting, outscoring the young Orlando star 36-26 Wednesday night as the Chicago Bulls defeated the Magic 112-103.

Orlando probably played its last game without Shaquille O'Neal, who is expected back when the Magic meets Utah on Friday. Even though O'Neal has missed all season with a broken thumb, Orlando is 17-5.

The only NBA team with a better record is Chicago (17-2), which has a seven-game winning streak and is 9-0 at home.

Dennis Scott scored 24 points for Orlando, including a 3-pointer that made it 103-97 with 1:21 to play. But Scottie Pippen responded with a 3-pointer and the Bulls clinched the win with six free throws.

Pippen scored 26 points and Toni Kukoc 21 for Chicago, which got 19 rebounds from Dennis Rodman.

The Magic had won four straight regular-season games against Chicago and eliminated the Bulls in the playoffs last May as Jordan made several bad plays in clutch situations. Then, Orlando won the first meeting this season, 94-88, as Hardaway outscored Jordan 36-25.

Jordan loves a challenge, though. And he couldn't wait to prove that his star still shines brighter than that of Hardaway, who might be the league's next great player.

While Hardaway scored 11 of his points in the final 2:15, when Chicago was comfortably ahead, Jordan already had methodically buried the Magic.

Jordan scored 10 points in the first quarter and 12 in the second as the Bulls took a 61-49 halftime lead. Chicago finished the half with a 22-9 run that Jordan began with two 15-footers and a 3-pointer.

The Bulls then scored the first eight points of the third quarter for their biggest lead, 69-49.

With 8:55 left in the third, Hardaway bumped feet with Jordan and stubbed his left big toe. Hardaway was on the bench when Orlando began a 12-2 run that cut the Bulls' lead to 71-61 midway through the third quarter.

But Chicago maintained a double-digit lead most of the rest of the game as Orlando's four-game winning streak was snapped.

Celtics 111, 76ers 100

BOSTON (AP) — Dino Radja scored 21 points to lead the Boston Celtics past Philadelphia 111-100 Wednesday night as the 76ers suffered another rout in losing for the 15th time in 16 games. The loss was the 12th by at least 11 points for Philadelphia. The Celtics reached .500 for the first time since they were 7-7 after losing to Phoenix on Dec. 2, 1994.

Rookie Eric Williams scored a season-high 20 points and Rick Fox added 15 for Boston. The 76ers were led by Jerry Stackhouse with 26 and Sharone Wright with 22.

The 76ers lost their 11th straight road game, and the ninth this season, since beating New Jersey last April 15. Their 3-17 start is their worst since they went 1-18 in 1972-73.

Philadelphia played its second straight game without Derrick Coleman, who is expected to miss another seven to 10 days after spraining his ankle in a loss to the Celtics last Saturday. Scott Skiles, signed as an free agent Tuesday, scored 10.

television

continued from page 14

up an apartment complex of people won't prevent you from practicing medicine and despite the fact that Andrew Shue has about as much personality as shin soccer ball he so capably dribbled, it's still worth watching, just to see him mumble, "I love you, Brooke."

And moving on to the Five Worst Television Shows:

1. "Saturday Night Live"— This one show that almost everyone agrees- is universally terrible. With the departures of Dana Carvey and Phil Hartman, the show has taken a downward spiral and doesn't look like it's about to come out anytime soon.

2. "JAG"— The first question that should be asked when watching this NBC show is which movie is it ripping off now? If you thought that was footage from Harrison Ford's Clear and Present Danger, you were right. And if you thought the opening sequences resembles Top Gun, there is a reason for that. This show wins rip-off of the year award.

3. "Central Park West"— The formula of beautiful, glamorous people plus Manhattan plus plenty of back- stabbing might have worked for Darren Starr when he created "Melrose Place" with Aaron Spelling, but unfortunately, this time around Starr scores a big zero with this lackluster drama. This show's kind of explains why CBS is trailing the other networks.

4. "Tempesti"— Tempesti Bledsoe is just one of those people who should never have been given the opportunity to host her own talk show. Juvenile, silly and just plain insulting, Tempesti's screechy voice and condescending attitude is enough to get on even the most patient viewer's nerves.

5. "Courthouse"— One major disaster of a show is okay on a programming schedule, but two? And following each other? That's right, "Courthouse" follows "CPW" on CBS' Tuesday night line-up. If you haven't checked out this bomb of a show, don't worry about it. The way things are going, "Courthouse" is going to end up in cable rerun heaven before too long.

Chris Conner and Justin C. Smith contributed to this article.

Come Enjoy our all new delicious
BUFFET
Over 20
Different Items To Choose
Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner
Lunch Buffet • $5.95
Dinner Buffet • $8.95
"Bringing The Tradition To You"
御香園
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Delivery thru Delivery Express 549-0077 • Route 9 & University Drive in Amherst 256-8800
10% off
TAKE OUT ORDERS ONLY
Cannot Combine With Other Offers • 1 coupon per person
OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM • FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM • SUN 12-10 PM

1996 WORLD JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP
MASSACHUSETTS, USA

Tournament Schedule

Game	Team	Venue	Location	Time
December 26 '95	Czech v Russia	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Finland v Switz	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10 pm
	Sweden v Slovaki	Centrum	Worcester	1:10pm
	Opening Ceremonies	Centrum	Worcester	6:00pm
	USA v Canada	Centrum	Worcester	7:40pm
Dec. 27	Slovakia v Russia	Matthews Arena	Boston	1:10pm
	USA v Ukraine	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:10pm
	Czech v Germany	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Switz v Canada	Mullins Center	Amherst	7:10pm
Dec. 28	Germany v Slovakia	Matthews Arena	Boston	2:10pm
	Ukraine v Finland	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:10pm
Dec. 29	Slovakia v Czech	Matthews Arena	Boston	1:10pm
	Canada v Finland	Matthews Arena	Boston	7:40pm
	Russia v Sweden	Civic Center	Springfield	2:10pm
	USA v Switz	Civic Center	Springfield	7:10pm
Dec. 30	Germany v Slovakia	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	12:10pm
	Ukraine v Switz	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	5:10pm
Dec. 31	Sweden v Czech	Matthews Arena	Boston	12:10pm
	Canada v Ukraine	Matthews Arena	Boston	5:40pm
	Finland v USA	Mullins Center	Amherst	12:10pm
	Russia v Germany	Mullins Center	Amherst	5:10pm
January 1, '96	Qualifying Rd	Mullins Center	Amherst	1:10pm
	Qualifying Rd	Mullins Center	Amherst	5:10pm
Jan. 2	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10pm
	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	7:10pm
Jan. 3	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	1:10pm
	Relegation	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	7:10pm
	SEMIFINAL	Conte Forum	Boston	3:40pm
	SEMIFINAL	Conte Forum	Boston	7:40pm

Game	Team	Venue	Location	Time
Jan 4	5th/6th Place Game	NE Sports Center	Marlborough	12:10pm
	Bronze Medal Game	Conte Forum	Boston	3:40 pm
	Gold Medal Game	Conte Forum	Boston	7:40pm

THE COLLEGIAN "CATCH THE EXCITEMENT" TICKET GIVEAWAY!
50 UMASS STUDENTS AND THEIR CLOSEST FRIEND AND/OR ANY LOCAL COMMUNITY MEMBERS MAY SEE THE NEXT WAYNE GRETZKY PLAY IN THE WORLD JUNIOR HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIPS!
ENTRY FORM BELOW...

Tickets also available at TICKETMASTER (617) 931-2000

Ticketmaster phone orders, outlet stores and venues will begin sales November 3, 1995

Mobil
MASSACHUSETTS SPORTS PARTNERSHIP
BLOOM'S BUSINESS SYSTEMS

Gretzky, Lemieux, Lindros, Leetch, Roenick, Fedorov, Bure, Jagr, Kariya, Tkachuk, Forsberg, Carey, Who's Next?

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967
113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • (413) 545-1592

- Catch the excitement... Liven up your holidays with GREAT Hockey Action.
- Win tickets to see World Junior Hockey Action at any of the MA locations.
- Enter today! The Collegian has 50 pairs of tickets to draw and give away.
- Drop off or mail entry forms to the Collegian office in the Campus Center today.
- Drawings will be held @ 3:30 p.m. Thursday, December 14, 1995

Collegian staff or family members not eligible

CONTEST ENTRY FORM

Name _____

Address _____

Phone _____

Location of Game Preferred _____

Sports

Sports notice
Student pick-up for all of the men's basketball and hockey games over winter session is today from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Curry Hicks Cage. No lines will be allowed to form before 6:30 a.m. If there is a line, tickets will be given out by a lottery system.

Massachusetts basketball teams welcome break

■ Minutemen enjoy rest before Ga. Tech ■ Thomas, Minutewomen beat Peahens

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

After starting off the season with a perfect 6–0 record, the Massachusetts men's basketball team will welcome a 10–day break until it starts back on its tough schedule with a non– conference battle against ACC–member Georgia Tech on Dec. 22.

After the game against Tech, UMass heads to the Rainbow Classic (Dec. 27–30) where it will face North Carolina State in the first round. Then, the Minutemen will face Memphis, and Lorenzen Wright in the Conference USA/Atlantic 10 Challenge at Worcester on Jan. 4.

After those key tilts, the Minutemen head into their A–10 schedule, with home games against Dayton (Jan. 6), Rhode Island (Jan. 17), St. Bonaventure (Jan. 27) and Fordham (Jan. 30), and away games against St. Joseph's (Jan. 9), St. Bonaventure (Jan. 14) and Duquesne (Jan. 20). The Minutemen will also battle Pittsburgh on Jan. 23.

Massachusetts coach John Calipari said the team will be using the 10–day stretch of inactivity to concentrate on school.

"We start to de–emphasize basketball now and we get into the academics. Now, we start two–hour block practices around their final schedule. If anybody needs to miss because of finals, they miss," Calipari said. "Basketball takes a back seat for about the next week and then we start preparing for Georgia Tech."

UMass guards Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso will welcome the break most, as both have been working overtime in the Minutemen's first six contests. Padilla has been averaging 39 minutes a game while Travieso has been averaging 36.8.

Bench scoring continues to be a sore spot for the Minutemen and it will need to improve as UMass gets deeper into its schedule.

However, forwards Tyrone Weeks and Inus Norville both played well off the bench for UMass in Tuesday's win against UNC–Wilmington.

Turn to BASKETBALL, page 16

RYAN TIEZZI/COLLEGIAN

Inus Norville, shown trying to block a Tim Duncan shot earlier in the season, and the Minutemen are off until Dec. 22 when they face Georgia Tech at the Meadowlands.

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

Senior forward Octavia Thomas scored 21 points and grabbed eight rebounds to help lead the Massachusetts women's basketball team to its second straight victory, a 57–48 decision over St. Peter's last night in Jersey City, N.J.

The win improves the Minutewomen's record to 5–2. The 5–2 start ties UMass' best start since the 1988–89 season.

Things began slow for the Minutewomen as they fell behind 7–2 and were down by as much as six (12–6) in the early going. They finished with just 18 first half points, led by Thomas and Melissa Gurile who had eight first half points a piece.

But at the same time, St. Peter's was held to just 14 first half points, including seven from Mirja Sipila.

UMass started off the second half with a 20–7 run which brought to score to 38–27. The Peahens got to within eight points on a Isabelle Escano driving layup with 1:10 remaining, but the Minutewomen defense held them off to preserve the victory.

Gurile finished with 16 points (7–for–7 from the field), three blocks and two steals, while sophomore Tez Kraft added 10 points. Junior Crystal Carroll pulled down a team– high nine boards. Sabriya Mitchell dished out a game–high six assists in 35 minutes of action.

Thomas scored her 21 points on 10–for–13 shooting from the field. Beth Kuzmeski was perfect from the line shooting 4–for–4.

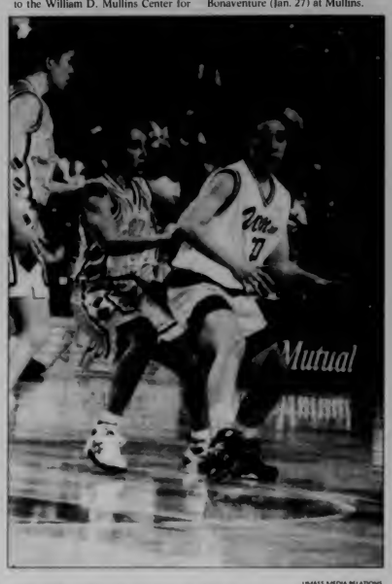
Sipila led St. Peter's with 13 points while Mildred Washington grabbed a team–high six boards. Washington finished with nine points while Tonia Collier added eight points and four assists.

The Minutewomen are off until Dec. 29 (15 full days), when they will face Florida in the first round of the Lady Gator Classic.

After that small tourney, the Minutewomen start Atlantic 10 play where they are a favorite to take home the East Division title.

UMass starts off its A–10 schedule with St. Joseph's (Jan. 4), Temple (Jan. 7) and Rhode Island (Jan. 13), with a game at Dartmouth (Jan. 9) sandwiches in between.

The Minutewomen will head back to the William D. Mullins Center for the first time since Dec. 7 when they host Fairfield (Jan. 16) and new A–10 foe Virginia Tech (Jan. 18). After a road trip to LaSalle (Jan. 20), the Minutewomen will entertain St. Joseph's (Jan. 25) and St. Bonaventure (Jan. 27) at Mullins.



UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Tez Kraft scored 10 points in the Minutewomen's 57–48 victory last night against St. Peter's. Kraft and the Minutewomen will be off until Dec. 29 when they compete in the Lady Gator Classic.

Injuries take a toll on notable players

Darren Cohen on the NBA

Guess who made headlines in the NBA this week? No, not Michael, Penny or Pippen. Give up? Try the team doctors. There is no doubt that injuries affect teams in many ways but when three notable hoopsters go down, division races can shift drastically. With names like Alonzo Mourning, Jamal Mashburn and Antonio McDyess heading for the sidelines, teams look for someone to pick up the slack.

Miami's Mourning suffered a partial tear of a tendon in his left foot against Phoenix over the weekend. Team officials said Alonzo could be out up to three weeks. Mourning's injury officially wipes out the Heat's starting frontcourt. With power forward Kevin Willis (strained left arch) and swingman Billy Owens (shoulder) out the 12–6 Heat have been forced to make some changes. In a recent game, coach Riley actually went to a frontcourt of Ronnie Grandison, Kurt Thomas, and LeRon Ellis. Hmm ... a has–been, a rookie and a never–would–be. As a band–aid Miami signed the "tremendously nasty" Danny Schayes. Looks like the Grinch already stole Christmas from Riley.

• When Dallas started the season 4–0 many thought this could be the Mavs' year to make that playoff push. However, when the 6–12 Mavericks (losers of their last four) hit the skids, questions about team chemistry started to pop up. So, what is one thing a team on the rocks doesn't need? Just ask head coach Dick Motta how he felt Sunday, when team officials announced leading scorer Jamal Mashburn would be out for three weeks. Last week, troubled forward Roy Tarpley was banned from the NBA for yet another violation of the league's substance abuse policy. Guess what Roy, sorry, but this should be your last trip ... back from rehab. Who do you think you are, Steve Howe?

In acquiring McDyess on draft day, the Denver Nuggets thought that he would serve as a supplement to injured LaPhonso Ellis. One thing they didn't count on was McDyess and Ellis being injured at the same time. The promising rookie suffered a severely sprained ankle in Monday's win over the hapless Philadelphia 76ers. Doctors examining McDyess reportedly found bone chips in his ankle, yet it is believed they are from a previous injury. The big fella' is set to be re–evaluated and will be out indefinitely.

• Well, not all the injury news this week is related to guys going out. What about those returning from the land of injured reserve? Like Shaquille O'Neal, remember him? Shaq, out since suffering a broken thumb in the preseason, is set to return sometime this week. Boy, do I feel sorry for Matt Geiger.

The Magic are 16–4 without O'Neal and have been led by all–everything guard Penny Hardaway. Last

Turn to NBA, page 16

Many challenges for UM over break

COLLEGIAN FILE

Keith O'Connell (16) and the Minutemen will play 11 games over the winter break, including three against Maine and two against Boston College.

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

"You have to learn how to lose before you can learn how to win, and we lost our share of the type of games [like these]," Lake Superior State coach Jeff Jackson said last year after winning two close games to take the CCHA championship. "It's just like calluses on the feet. Eventually you get used to it, then all of a sudden you don't pay attention anymore. You get emotionally drained and say, 'Screw it, let's just get the job done'."

After a tumultuous 1994–95 campaign, Massachusetts coach Joe Mallen's team has echoed the sentiments of his 1977 Michigan State classmate. The team has matured exponentially and after finishing all of last season with six wins, the Minutemen have already recorded eight.

The team has equalled its power play output of last year (20 goals), and scored 63 percent of last year's total goal output already this year. The team has posted its first shutout of a Division I team, had its first Hockey East overtime win and has more than doubled its number of road wins of a year ago.

After 14 games last year, UMass was 0–13–1 having been outscored 71–30. After 14 games in 1995, UMass is 8–6 and has outscored its opposition 61–51.

As intersession approaches these numbers should escalate since UMass played unquestionably its best hockey over the winter break last year, which saw five of the team's six victories, including its upset of No. 1 Maine.

This year's intersession docket will bring a few challenges for UMass. The team will play three games against Maine, currently ranked fifth in the nation, two games with Cornell, one of the top teams in the ECAC, two games each against Hockey East foes Boston College and Northeastern and one with either Finland or Slovakia's Junior National team.

With fewer responsibilities, the players can better focus their attention on their playing over the extended break

Turn to HOCKEY, page 16

NCAA volleyball Final Four begins today at Mullins

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

Four of the nation's best women's volleyball teams will converge upon the William D. Mullins Center today and Saturday for the 1995 NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Championship.

Michigan State, Nebraska, Stanford and Texas all advanced to the Final Four by winning its respective regional tournaments.

In the day's first match–up, No. 5 Michigan St. will face off against top–ranked Nebraska at 5:30 p.m. Following at 8:30 p.m., No. 3 Stanford will meet No. 6 Texas in the other semi–final.

The two teams that advance to the Championship will square off at 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Michigan St., with a 34–2 record, is the surprise team of the season, having captured the Mountain Regional title by beating San Diego State and upsetting Hawaii. The Spartans are making their first appearance in the Final Four, after making their first tournament appearance last year losing in the first round.

Dana Cooke, a junior outside hitter/middle blocker who was named Mountain Regional Most Valuable Player and Courtney DeBolt, an All–Mountain Regional team setter, lead Michigan State.

Central Regional Champion Nebraska (30–1) advanced to Amherst having defeated Penn State and UCLA.

The Cornhuskers, who were national runners–up in 1986 and 1989, are making their first Final Four appearance since 1990.

Nebraska is led by a trio of strong players. Senior middle blocker/outside hitter and two–time Big Eight Player of the Year Allison Weston, setter Christy Johnson, a senior member of the All–Central Regional team and All–Central Regional team member Lisa Reitsma, a sophomore outside hitter, will all be called upon to power the favored Cornhuskers.

Stanford (29–2) holds this year's Pacific Regional crown, having triumphed over Southern Cal and Oral Roberts.

The defending National Champion Cardinal will be attempting to capture its third NCAA Championship in four years.

Led by Olympic hopeful Kristin Folkl, a sophomore outside hitter, and senior setter/outside hitter Cary Wendell, the 1995 Pac–10 Player of the Year, the Cardinal will try to extend its current streak of 26 straight matches and 39 consecutive games won.

After upsetting top seed Florida and beating Illinois, Texas (27–6) claimed the East Regional title and advanced to the national semi–finals.

Led by East Regional MVP Demetria Sance, a freshman outside hitter, the Longhorns are making their first Final Four appearance since capturing the school's only national volleyball title in 1988. Also playing strong for the Longhorns are senior outside hitter Angie Birtnefield and senior setter Carrie Busch, both members of the All–East Regional team.

The semi–final matches and the championship final will be broadcast live on ESPN2, and on tape–delay on ESPN. The action will be called by Beth Mowins on play–by–play and Maria Barnes on color.

Returning to the Grind

UMass is back in action for Spring '96 and the Arts & Living staff is here to catch you up on all the things you missed while watching reruns of "Singled Out" (see Arts & Living, Section B).

New look, same Stonewall

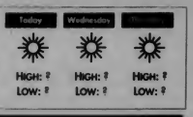
The Stonewall Center has helped increase awareness of GLB issues for over 10 years and continues to do so (See story, page A7).

Wide World of Sports

The Collegian sports staff catches you up on everything that's happened in the last month from the ice rink to the hardwood (see Sports, Section C).

Three Day Forecast

Look here every day for the extended three day forcast. For today's weather however, your best option is to look outside.



The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 69 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, January 30, 1996

UMass swimmer dies of heart ailment at race

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

The first and only swimmer to receive a full scholarship to the University of Massachusetts for swimming died suddenly from cardiac dysrhythmia on Jan. 9 after a competition.

Twenty-year-old Greg Menton had been an All-American selection in the 50-yard and 100-yard freestyles, and a member of this fall's Final Four water polo squad.

The day of his death Menton won the 50-yard freestyle, and competed in the 100-yard freestyle at a Dartmouth College meet. After spending a few minutes in the warm- down pool, Menton was watching the breaststroke event with Massachusetts coach Russ Yarworth.

"He said, 'Oh my God, Russ.' I thought he was talking about the other swimmers, how slow they were," Yarworth said.

Menton was having a seizure. Two female lifeguards performed CPR on Menton, who was then taken to Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center. He did not recover after several attempts to revive him.

UMass team physician Dr. James Ralph said he was unaware of any pre-existing medical condition that may have contributed to the death.

An autopsy showed Menton died of cardiac dysrhythmia, a rare condition usually not diagnosed until after death, according Kaplan, a state medical examiner.

Menton had a congenital heart defect and his arteries were unable to supply his heart with enough blood during vigorous activities, according to Kaplan.

Dr. Daniel Clapp conducted Menton's annual physical exam for the past three years. Menton's last exam was on Aug. 19.

"He had successfully competed in a vigorous water polo season and had several top performances in swimming meets already this year," said Clapp. "There was no reason to believe this incident would occur."

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS
Greg Menton

The day after Menton's death, the swim team joined Yarworth for a press conference at the William D. Mullins Center.

"A day ago I had one of my best friends next to me laughing, talking, and in 24 hours, he's gone, just like that," said Jeff Little, a captain of the swim team. "I wish I could get him back."

Fighting tears, Yarworth said, "Greg was a national caliber athlete."

Menton held University individual records in the 100 back (51.83), and 100 fly (50.14) and swam the anchor leg of the 200 medley relay (1:33.71) which broke the UMass record at the 1995 A-10 Championships.

On the water polo squad, Menton ranked fourth in goals (40) and assists (29), and set the all-time season mark with 63 steals. The squad had its best finish in their history this fall.

Menton was also a Sports Management major named to the 1994-95 UMass Athletic Director's Honor Roll for academic achievement.

"One of his goals," Yarworth said, "was to qualify for NCAAs, to be one of the few athletes in the country to qualify in two sports for NCAAs."

A memorial service for Menton was held at the Newman Center on Jan. 15. The Dundee, Ore. native was buried in his home state on Jan. 18.

When asked about the team's plans, Yarworth said, "We had a goal of winning the Atlantic 10 Championships.

"There's no wrong or right way to grieve," Yarworth said. "Most of [the team members] haven't dealt with the death of a close friend or relative. Some of them want to get right back in the pool," he said. Yet, according to Yarworth, some were not ready.

The team resumed competition Jan. 20 as it hosted Connecticut.

Protesters oppose Shell policies

By Keith Snow
Collegian Correspondent

A group of local citizens campaigned last week against what they called "Shell Oil Company's policy of global exploitation" in an attempt to increase public awareness.

News Analysis

There was a boycott of Shell gas stations and the immediate imposition of strict sanctions of the authoritarian regime in Nigeria.

"People have a responsibility to make themselves aware of the complexity of the situation in Nigeria," said University of Massachusetts student Jeremiah Hayward. Hayward also said he was shocked by the environmental disaster and military oppression wreaked on the Nigerian minority Ogoni people.

"People need to see the BBC [British Broadcasting Corporation] video, The Drilling Fields, to understand the genocide being perpetrated by their so casually pumping oil here at these pumps," he said.

The Drilling Fields documents systematic military oppression which in the last three years has led to the death of at least one thousand Ogoni people and the hopelessness of 30,000. Footage shows widespread oil pollution, the result of over 2,976 spills documented by the Nigerian government and private sources, amounting to one major spill every four days from 1976 to 1991.

Fields are caked with five-foot thick crusts of black sludge, all that remained of a huge spill ignited and burned as a form of environmental remediation. Responding to attempts by the Ogoni to assert their rights of self-determination and healthy and safe environment, on Nov. 10 the Nigerian government executed Nigerian playwright, author, statesman and President of the Movement for the

Turn to SHELL, page A8

KEITH SNOW/ COLLEGIAN
Area residents protested in front of a Shell station on Route 9 in Hadley on Jan. 20 because of oil pollution in Nigeria.

Rosenberg appointed to state senate committee

By Jack Farrell
Collegian Correspondent

In a major political development for Western Massachusetts, state Sen. Stanley Rosenberg (D-Amherst), was named chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee at the statehouse on Beacon Hill.

Rosenberg was appointed Jan. 8 by new Senate President Thomas Birmingham (D-Chelsea), who replaced William M. Bulger, now president of the University of Massachusetts.

While many people in eastern Massachusetts may be surprised by the appointment — The Boston Globe described him as a "relative unknown" — Rosenberg, nonetheless has earned a reputation as an intelligent, hard-working and dedicated legislator.

Birmingham and Rosenberg worked closely together on the Ways and Means committee, which Birmingham chaired before winning the president's seat after Bulger's departure. Birmingham described Rosenberg's qualities and attractiveness as a part of the leadership team to the Daily Hampshire Gazette earlier this month. "He's intelligent, diligent, and a man of unquestioned and unquestionable integrity. And quite candidly, our priorities are shared ones."

For his part, Rosenberg, a UMass graduate, told the Collegian he is "delighted about Birmingham's presidency. I like the way he does business. I like his style of inclusion — but, like me, [he] realizes that you can't talk forever and you need to make hard choices."

He said this sometimes comes at the cost of "losing friends" but saying "no" is something he will inevitably have to do as he takes the reins of the Senate's most powerful committee. The Ways and Means committee is responsible for putting together the state budget — a task that in election years such as this one, must be passed by July 31 — along with more than 600 other bills.

Rosenberg said his staff will be

Turn to ROSENBERG, page A8

UMass Labor students upset over recent study

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Mark Pattison never was a freshman, lived in a residence hall, or got the summer off. Yet, this Newspaper Guild local union officer from Washington, D.C. spent eight hours per day for 10 days this month in class at the University of Massachusetts.

Pattison and 28 other students, whose work deals with unions, "commute" to UMass every December and July to study at the University's Labor Relations and Research Center (LRRC).

Not surprisingly, Pattison considers himself to be a student at the LRRC. However, the 29 non-traditional LRRC students were not counted in Chancellor David K. Scott's study used in developing the "strategic plan" for the University's future.

The students say they were not counted because they are enrolled through the Department of Continuing Education. The study counted only the 38 day-school graduate students in the program.

The result was "a serious inflation of the actual costs of the program," according to a letter the students sent to Scott on Jan. 11.

LRRC students are also upset because their non- departmental program was compared to graduate departments, such as sociology, Pattison said.

The study

"The LRRC combines applied research, active outreach and a professionally-orientated terminal MS program in Labor Studies which has just been selected by the George Meany Center for Labor Studies as the official national program for high-level union leadership and staff," according to the study.

The 22 students here during Winter Session took time off from unions across the nation, such as the United Mine Workers of America, the American Federation of Teachers and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The next two sentences of the report praised the program's multi-campus collaborations and service to the nearly 400,000 union members and their organizations throughout the Commonwealth.

It was the last two sentences in the "Note" section of the report that angered the LRRC students: "Close examination of the academic program, however, reveals that the Labor Studies major has substantially higher than average costs, lower than average student/faculty ratios, and a faculty smaller than that normally associated with a viable academic department.

Since cost and demand considerations argue against increases in faculty size, the department needs to develop greater collaboration with other departments on campus to broaden the base for, and consequently strengthen, the graduate program."

LRRC students have two problems with these findings.

First, according to Pattison, the labor center is "a program which meets in very concentrated sessions. It's a center, not a department."

Rob Witherell, a full-year LRRC student, agreed with Pattison, saying that departments have undergraduate programs, LRRC does not. Witherell said that other programs, such as BDIC (Bachelor's Degree with an Individual Concentration) and STPEC (Social Thought and Political Economy), were not included.

The other problem is the evaluation of the program's cost.

"They are upset because they weren't counted as being students," said Witherell of the "commuting" students.

Not counting those students makes the program appear twice as expensive as it really is, accord-

Turn to LABOR, page A8

EMILY BERYL/ COLLEGIAN

"CEILING UP"

Tony Krawczynski (foreground), and Paul Doheny, both of Building Services, worked to install a new ceiling into the Blue Wall last Monday. The newly renovated hangout will open at the beginning of the semester.

Camby presumed healthy after pre-game collapse

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

Five days after the death of Massachusetts swimmer Greg Menton, Marcus Camby of the UMass men's basketball team collapsed moments before the Minutemen's basketball game against St. Bonaventure.

Camby was immediately taken by ambulance on Jan. 14 to Olean General Hospital with Massachusetts coach John Calipari by his side. Camby had been taking cough medicine to fight an illness and felt light-headed before the collapse, his coach said.

"An incident like this puts things into the perspective they should be in," Calipari said. "Basketball is not life or death."

Camby's heart never stopped beating and he never stopped breathing, but he was unresponsive for approximately 10 minutes, causing great concern to doctors.

Camby underwent numerous tests later that evening and the following morning, when a heart problem was ruled out. According to Calipari, that news "was like winning the Final Four."

Camby was released from the hospital later that afternoon and transported to the UMass Medical Center in Worcester for further testing.

"I think you have to be ultra-cautious, yes," team physician James Ralph said after Camby was admitted to the medical center.

"Any circumstance like this is unsettling to everyone, that's why they are going to do every conceivable test," said Ralph, adding he was particularly troubled that Camby was unresponsive for 10 minutes after fainting.

Upon leaving Olean General Hospital, Camby said he felt "100 percent."

"I'm fine, I feel great," Camby said. "I'm anxious to get back on the court."

At the UMass Medical Center, Camby underwent "an extensive medical evaluation and rigorous testing" according to a written statement by Dr. Gerald Steinberg, chief medical officer at the UMass Medical Center.

"Marcus' evaluation at UMass included a wide range of diagnostic procedures, as well as a review of tests down at [Olean General Hospital]," Steinberg said. "He tolerated the tests well, and as might be expected of a college athlete, his physical condition is excellent."

Camby was released from the hospital on the morning of Jan. 18 and Steinberg said "we are able to rule out at this time a cardiac or cardiovascular cause of the event Marcus suffered with a high degree of confidence."

Camby missed three games because of the collapse and the Minutemen have won all three without him. He traveled to Pittsburgh a day after his team and was going to suit up for the Minutemen's game against Pitt but it was uncertain if he would play at all.

Only two years ago, UMass junior guard Michael Williams collapsed during a game at Cincinnati. Tests revealed no cardiac problems and he was cleared to play two weeks later.

Material from the Associated Press was used in this report.

Campus Police Log

Annoying behavior

Dec. 14
There was someone blowing an airhorn in McNamara Residence Hall.

Dec. 16
There was a report that a vehicle almost hit people on sleds who were sliding down the Service Road.

An individual in Gorman Residence Hall reported being threatened over a parking ticket.

Dec. 17
There was a prank 911 call from Kennedy Residence Hall.

An individual in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall reported a threat from their boyfriend.

Housing was called to resolve a dispute between roommates in Patterson Residence Hall.

Accident

Dec. 13
Jeffery Maniatty, of 76 Meadow St., Greenfield, struck Lisa Lawrence of 130 St., Haverhill with his vehicle on Sylvan Drive. Lawrence was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Dec. 15
There were six minor accidents on campus on this date.

Dec. 17
A parking booth in Lot 65 was struck by a vehicle.

Alarm

Dec. 12
There was a trash can fire on the third floor of Butterfield Residence Hall. Students were evacuated to Van Meter Residence Hall.

Animal complaint

Dec. 15
A dog was taken from North Village Apartments to the town pound.

Dec. 16
There was a report of a dog left in a vehicle on Windmill Lane. The owner was contacted.

Assault & battery

Dec. 12
Police continued to investigate an assault & battery by two male individuals, which took place in a student's room. The victim was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital for treatment of a head injury, then released.

Dec. 17
An individual in Washington Residence Hall was assaulted by two people. The victim was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital. The incident is under investigation.

Assist agency

Dec. 17
Physical Plant was notified of a major water break.

Disturbance

Dec. 13
There was an on-going problem with residents on the third floor of Baker Residence Hall.

Dec. 17
During a snowball fight outside Brown Residence Hall, an individual received a head laceration. The person was taken to University Health Services.

Hazardous materials spills

Dec. 13
There was a report of a burning odor coming from the vent system in Herter Hall. The cause was found on the sixth floor -- a burned coffee pot and melted plastic.

Health/Safety hazard

Dec. 17
Housing was notified of a faulty smoke detector in Brown Residence Hall.

Intoxicated person

Dec. 16
An individual requested a person be removed from her North Village Apartment.

Larceny

Dec. 12
An individual in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall reported her telephone access card had been used.

There was a bicycle stolen from North Village Apartments.

Dec. 13
There was a wallet stolen from Lederle Graduate Research Tower.

A vehicle was reported stolen from Parking Lot 13.

Dec. 15
An individual reported her jacket stolen from Cashin Residence Hall.

There was a wallet stolen from Morrill Science Center.

Dec. 16
There was a wallet stolen from John Adams Residence Hall.

A Walkman was reported stolen from James Residence Hall.

Dec. 17
There was a television stolen from the 19th floor lounge in Kennedy Residence Hall.

Property was stolen from a locked vehicle in Parking Lot 22.

There was an investigation on fraudulent use of a credit card in Brown Residence Hall.

Medical emergency

Dec. 13
An individual having breathing difficulties in Crampton Residence Hall refused treatment.

Dec. 16
An intoxicated person was transported from the Campus Center to their residence hall.

Dec. 17
There was a report of an individual lying on the ground in Gorman Residence Hall. The individual left in a car before police arrived.

There was a report of an individual entering Cance Residence Hall with visible bleeding. Police did not find such a person, but notified University Health Services.

An unconscious person at Wheeler Residence Hall was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual fell and hit his head on the floor. He was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Restraining order service

Dec. 17
Kareem A. Grant, 18, of 4000 Jeffery St., Silver Springs, Md. was arrested at Kennedy Residence Hall on three counts of violating an abuse prevention order.

Suspicious person/activity

Dec. 13
Brian W. Conz, 20, of 22 Hartwick St., Springfield, was arrested at Baker Residence Hall for disorderly conduct and trespassing.

Dec. 16
There was a report that an individual violated a restraining order in Kennedy Residence Hall.

Dec. 17
There was a report of a large snowball fight and bottles being thrown from Kennedy Residence Hall.

Warrant Service

Dec. 12
William D. Rose, 38, of 36 Russell St., Greenfield was arrested on a warrant.

Dec. 13
Ibrham S. Ali, 22, of 698 Alden St., Springfield was arrested on a warrant, as well as for speeding and an inspection sticker violation.

Vandalism

Dec. 16
There was a sink ripped from the wall on the second floor of Moore Residence Hall. The resulting flood activated an alarm.

A large window was broken at the Franklin Dining Hall.

There was homophobic graffiti written on the second floor Crabtree Residence Hall.

A door at Chadbourne Residence Hall was set on fire.

Dec. 17
A vending machine was damaged in Field Residence Hall.

Traffic Violations

Dec. 16
Chastity J. Bonilla, 22, of 113 Bowers St., Holyoke, was arrested for possession of a Class D substance, operating a motor vehicle under the influence of drugs and speeding.

Dec. 17
Kyle T. Staplin, 26, of 79 North Prospect St., Amherst was arrested for operating an unlicensed, unregistered and uninsured motor vehicle with no inspection sticker.

Kolawole Olosunde, 20, of 959 East 34 St., Brooklyn, N.Y., was arrested for unsafe operation of a motor vehicle. On warrants, Olosunde was also arrested on charges of assault, operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license and operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

Richard P. Sprowl, 20, of 84 Four Winds Dr., Pembroke, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license, failure to obey a stop sign and "following too close."

For Your Information

Tuesday, Jan. 30

Music — The Five College Early Music Program is holding its spring semester auditions. Violinists, violists and cellists are encouraged to audition. Baritones, singers and other instrumentalists are welcome. Auditions are 11:15 a.m.–12:05 p.m. Room 152, Fine Arts Center and 4:00 p.m.– 5:30 p.m. Room 315, Sage Hall, Smith College. For further information call 538–2079.

Wednesday, Jan. 31

Music — The World of Rags, a presentation of the Five College Learning in Retirement Program, will take place at 10 a.m. in the Amherst College Campus Center. The featured musician will be Warren Senders, a Hindustani musician.

Music — The Five College Early Music Program is holding its spring semester auditions. Violinists, violists and cellists are encouraged to audition. Baritones, singers and other instrumentalists are welcome. Auditions are 3:45 p.m.–4:45 p.m. Classroom, Music Building, Hampshire College. For further information call 538–2079.

Thursday, Feb. 1

Lecture– — Eric Reyes, a graduate student at Brown University, will speak on the topic: Asian Pacific Queer Space — Questions of Sexual and Racial Geographies. This is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The lecture will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. Call 545–4824 for information.

Saturday, Feb. 3

Community — Hosaga of Springfield College will be sponsoring its 21st Annual PowWow from 1 p.m. – 10 p.m. at Dana Gym on the campus of Springfield College. There will be dancing in the afternoon and evening, and Native American vendors will be selling products and supplies. Admission is free. For more information contact Grant at (203) 655–4685 or Bill at 796–7147.

Thursday, Feb. 8

Lecture — Dr. Beverly Greene, a certified Clinical Psychologist and Professor of Psychology at St. John's University, will speak on the topic: African–American Lesbians: Mental Health and Psychotherapy Issues. The lecture is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The event will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. For information call 545–4824.

Wednesday, Feb. 14

Movie — A Valentine's Day movie, The Incredibly True Story of Two Girls in Love, will be shown in the Stonewall Center. The Center will open at 7:00 p.m. and the movie will begin at 7:30 p.m. For information call 545–4824.

Thursday, Feb. 15

Lecture– — Selena Whang, a graduate student at NYU, will speak on the topic: Baby You Can Drive My Car — Yellow Cabs, Lesbians of Color and Interracial Third World Desire. This is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The lecture will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. Call 545– 4824 for information.

Saturday Feb. 17

Dance — The Northampton Community Music Center is sponsoring a Contra Dance at the Northeast American School of Dance, 4th Floor Ballroom, above Fitzwilly's in Northampton at 8:00 p.m. For information call 247–9210.

Thursday, Feb. 22

Lecture– — Martin Manalansan IV, a doctoral candidate at the University of Rochester, will speak on the topic: Transnationalism and Diaspora: Exploring New Terrains for Gay and Lesbian Studies in the Late 20th Century. This is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The lecture will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. Call 545–4824 for information.

Lecture — Pamela Sneed, an African–American lesbian writer, poet, and solo performer from New York, will be presenting Bamcade Against Wind at 7:30 p.m. in the Hampden Theater. A $3–$5 sliding scale donation is requested. For more information call 545–4824.

Sunday, Feb. 25

Skiing — The Pioneer Valley group of the Sierra Club will be sponsoring a cross-country skiing trip on Notchview in Windsor. The group will meet at 10 a.m. in the Northampton Serv–U parking lot. Call Lori at 369–0314 for confirmation.

All Staff Meeting

Sunday, February 4 at 7:00pm

Collegian Newsroom

Masters and Doctoral Students Mark Your Calendars For

GRADUATE STUDENT PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT DAY

February 27, 1996, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Morning Presentations, Campus Center Auditorium, 9 a.m. - Noon:

- Qualities employers are looking for
- How to prepare a strong credential file
- The value of practical experience in today's job market

Afternoon Presentations on Job Search Skills, 1:30 p.m. - 3:45 p.m.:

- Academic Careers, Campus Center 174
- Cracking the Professional Job Market, Campus Center 168C
- Networking Session, Campus Center 174, 4 - 5 p.m.

Co-sponsored by the Dean of the Graduate School & the University Career Center

For more information, contact the Graduate School, 545-5271

Oil tanker spill leaves Rhode Island with an ecological disaster

By Keith Snow
Collegian Correspondent

On Jan. 21, at 5 a.m., the sound of an approaching tug penetrated the cold and dark on Moonstone Beach. There in the dunes, a man watched the tug approach and depart.

The sun slowly rose over the black hulks of the Scandia and North Cape. The waves continued to pound shore and ships. Shellfish continued to wash ashore. Every so often a bird would emerge from the breakers, struggling against tide and waves, but with feathers drenched in oil, and then disappear into the waves.

The oil continued to flow from the Scandia and North Cape. On Jan. 19, at 2:31 p.m., a fire broke out on the Scandia, a tug, operating in very rough weather, which was hauling the barge North Cape and four million barrels of light petroleum off the coast of Rhode Island. By 6 p.m. that night, the Scandia and the barge North Cape were abandoned and drifting. Both vessels were beached by the storm.

Nine out of 11 major containment compartments of the North Cape were fractured by the rocky seabed in 18 feet of water. The tug Scandia, with 84,000 gallons of fuel, was also leaking oil.

News Analysis

Environmental groups are calling for a complete investigation of this catastrophe. Critical of the process which allows toxic chemical industries to operate on rough seas, questions have also been raised about state and federal emergency response capabilities, and a lack of reporting by the media. But even as the obvious toll to wildlife and the ecology mounts, many of the devastating effects of toxic pollution will go unseen.

At Rhode Island's Matunik beach, at 11:30 pm on Jan. 20, almost 36 hours into the disaster, there were no flashers, no emergency containment operations in progress. Two police cruisers guarded the access road to Moonstone Beach, where the tug Scandia and the barge North Cape were beached by human ignorance and omnipotent nature. On Matunik Beach, half a mile up the coast from Moonstone, the seaboard was dark and --- but for the crash of the surf — silent.

At the local Joyce's pub, the proprietor snarled about the rescue operations.

"It's all political," he said. "Political posturing and corporate maneuvering. Even Hillary Clinton [then in Providence] took the opportunity to fly over for publicity purposes. They could easily have driven trucks down the shore and pumped both those ships out. But nothing happened today, all day. This place was swarming with people. There must have been 2000 people out on the beach."

The evidence of that was on the beach. Immature lobsters lay stilled where the surf left them. The white, stringy flesh of eviscerated clams littered the shore as if dumped. There were dead birds and fish. Starfish by the thousands.

Extending some three miles out to sea, carried by currents and an off-shore breeze, the slick was quickly churned beneath the surface to penetrate all layers of the aquatic water system. Vessels ran aground just 50 yards from a marker designating the nesting grounds of the endangered piping plover. Birds could be seen feeding on contaminated wildlife. Thus, while the oil ostensibly dispersed, evaporated in air and diluted by sea, the contamination will penetrate the food chain deeply.

It is one of New England's worst disasters in maritime history — threatening tourism, poisoning fishing and lobster industries and contaminating sensitive ecological coastlands. The disaster and subsequent response reflects the current social, environmental and regulatory climate in the U.S., raising major questions about emergency preparedness, public health and welfare and environmental protection. The catastrophe also raises questions about energy industry pollution, waste and toxic spillage — historically widespread and well-documented.

"Just one more devastating example of the need to develop alternative and clean energy," said Jonathan Snelling of MassALERT (Massachusetts Alliance to Limit and Eliminate Radioactive Trash). "I saw distressed birds, obviously coated in oil, struggling to survive. Maybe they collected 58 birds and 18 of them died, but there's a lot more going on there that will never be seen. And we're running out of time to save our environment from total destruction."

In Rhode Island, officials initially down-played the potential threat and the media reported accordingly.

Early in the evening on Jan. 20, although immediately preceded by Boston TV–5 reports showing oil-soaked birds and dead lobsters from "a spill of at least 700,000 gallons" of toxins, ABC TV subsequently reported "a situation under control" which "could have been a major environmental disaster."

Rhode Island area news, like The Providence Journal-Bulletin, reported early that "it could have been much worse" and that "[Coast Guard, state and federal officials] were upbeat."

Even after at least 700,000 gallons of highly toxic and volatile home-heating oil had contaminated the sensitive coastal environment, certain officials continued to downplay the incident.

The failure to adequately assess the potential threat and respond accordingly to minimize damage is reflected by the remarks of Federal Transportation Secretary Federico Pena. "Earlier we thought there was no spill," he said, on Saturday. "Then we learned oil was leaking and we realized we had a much more serious incident. But we have been a bit lucky because there hasn't been an extensive leak of the product [oil]."

When the potential for up to four million gallons of toxic releases soon became clear, officials nonetheless pursued a disaster response strategy dependent on decisions of industry and salvage operators, a strategy perhaps determined more by financial or political considerations than public and environmental health and welfare. And officials, like Coast Guard Captain Barney Turlo, continued to voice "hopefully optimistic" sentiments.

While energy industries routinely operate in hostile, unrelenting environments like Siberia, the North Sea and Alaska, Rhode Island operations were "restricted by salvage wind and seas." Even as weather subsided, however, efforts to secure the barge and contain the flow of toxins into the environment had failed.

The Providence Sunday Journal reported that "some bystanders [Saturday] questioned why the tug and barge were operating in Block Island Sound during such a fierce storm, and why they didn't see an aggressive salvage effort [taking place]."

Coast Guard Captain Barney Turlo said a fire caused the grounding, not the weather. "Vessels go in and out in all kinds of nasty weather," he told the Sunday Journal. "It's a judgment call of the [harbor] master."

Attributing the disaster to the tug fire ignores the evidence that bad weather was certainly a major and subsequent factor, limiting Coast Guard and industry response to the fire.

Emergency response operations were hampered, according to salvage and coast guard officials, by high seas and stormy weather. William Howard, a worker for the oil-spill specialists Clean Harbors, claimed there was no way to contain the oil until the storm subsided. According to the Providence Journal-Bulletin, on Jan. 20, particles of oil, "riding gale-force winds," spread quickly through nearby South Kingstown creating "a film of oil covered cars, clothes, cameras and people."

"It's toxic and it will quickly kill anything that it meets," said U.S. Fish & Wildlife Biologist Tom Halavik, who reported blue crabs, Jonah crabs, sand crabs and a sea turtle amongst the carnage. Department of Environmental Management Officials, on the 20th, tried to record some measure of the catastrophe: DEM biologists David Borden, Arthur Gantz and April Valliere recorded some 157 dead lobsters per square meter of beach. They also noted that the toxins did not discriminate: adult, juvenile and baby lobsters were all decimated.

Breeding grounds for shellfish and fish, and Atlantic flyway for millions of migratory wildfowl, including osprey, mergansers, grebes, eiders, loons and rare harlequin ducks, the Narragansett area beaches are part of a delicate necklace of eight saltwater beach ponds which stretch from Narragansett to Westerly, R.I.

Breached to the sea by saltwater channels, the ponds and the sea are dependent on the tides. Thus oil spills can easily contaminate the tidal aquatic systems. Offshore are tidal shoals which support huge populations of fish, crustaceans and mollusks.

"It's horrifying. My heart is just sinking," said Virginia Lee, to the Providence Journal-Sentinel. Lee is a University of Rhode Island oceanographer who has studied, roamed and fought to preserve the ponds for more than 15 years. "An oil spill," she said, "would be too horrifying to contemplate."

As the tides came and went, however, the oil continued to flow through estuaries to the salt pond ecosystem.

With industry claiming that high seas once again prevented salvage operations, even as the sun set on Sunday, the North Cape continued to release oil. Pressures on the hull and containment slowed oil flows at high tide and accelerated them at low. Sunday evening news reports put the spillage at 800,000 gallons. The spill had reached the wildlife preserves on Block Island. By Monday night, the "ABC Evening News" reported one million gallons had spilled.

"It's a shame that people can't see what's really going on, that people can't sufficiently respect the scale of this calamity alone." said John Hardin of the Amherst office of New England Greenpeace.

"I saw extreme damage to the ecosystem, but no one can determine the effects of these toxins on the ocean or the marsh or the wildlife," he said. "And we can not determine how prevalent these disasters really are. They are happening all the time, all over the world."

Too easily forgotten, the tragedies of oil pollution are also too easily dismissed.

"In previous marine oil spills," wrote Bruce Landis, of the Providence Journal-Bulletin, "Rhode Island was lucky."

Since 1958, reports Landis, the Rhode Island area has seen some 11 major maritime petroleum industry incidents, three of which were recorded as "near-miss" no-spillers. Over one million gallons of oil were spilled in 1960; 7.6 million gallons in 1976; 290,000 in 1993. Counting this incident, with the first [Jan. 20th] spill estimate of 750,000 gallons, Landis reports eight incidents responsible for at least 10,168,960 gallons of petroleum products.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A barge off the coast of Rhode Island broke on Jan. 21, causing nine out of 11 compartments to break and 84,000 gallons of fuel oil to leak.

UNIVERSITY STORES Textbook Annex UMASS AMHERST

Textbook Annex hours for the start of the semester:

FIRST WEEK:
Mon., January 29-Sat., February 3

Monday	JAN. 29	9AM - 5PM
Tuesday	JAN. 30	9AM - 8PM
Wednesday	JAN. 31	9AM - 8PM
Thursday	FEB. 1	9AM - 8PM
Friday	FEB. 2	9AM - 6PM
Saturday	FEB. 3	11AM - 5PM

SECOND WEEK:
Mon., February 5-Fri., February 9
Monday-Friday 9AM - 6PM

Textbook Buyback will be conducted outside the University Store:

FIRST WEEK:
Mon., January 29-Fri., February 2
9AM - 5PM

SECOND WEEK:
Mon. & Tues., February 5 & 6
9AM - 5PM

Buyback at the Textbook Annex will resume Monday, February 13.

Students Win Book Scholarships

During the end of the semester buyback in December, 30 students won scholarships in our drawings. The winners of these $100 book scholarships were:

Aliesha Belleville
Pierre Beswick
Barbara Canzano
Tin-Tin Chang
Jeb Cooperrider
Micaela Finnegan
Kristi Fournier
Michael Gauthier
Catherine Gaw
Michael Hollows
Adeleen Jardeleza
Andy Kuhn
Barbara LaFrance
Nancy LeBlanc
Rebecca Lee
Dax Munna
Sara Niles
Gilberto Mendez
Kristen North
Matthew Oteri
Bernie Perrotty
Cedric Rothkegel
Janine Santilli
Rebecca Spalding
Nadege St. Paul
Paula Sullivan
Christine Thurell
Zak Umanoff
Annette Vadnais
Sandy Wong

Did you know:

- the Textbook Annex discounts all "new" books (with a list price of $10.00 or over) by 5%,
- the Textbook Annex carries a large selection of used books,
- has an extensive textbook buyback program that pays you money for you old books?

Ever Think of writing for Sports?

Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

SKIN CARE 101

Today's Quiz:

Harsh chafing winter weather is in full swing. And that means dull,sallow and unhealthy looking. This condition relates to:

A. Beef jerky
B. Looking like a grizzled trail hand
C. Sun dried tomatoes
D. Old hunting boots
E. Your delicate skin

Answer: E

Good answer. Winter in the Pioneer Valley is rough on your skin. It shows wrinkles and dull, dry, flaky skin texture.

Notes:

So while you're studying hard, why not let your skin take it easy? Our AHA formula peel and products are the perfect year round method for refreshing and enhancing your skin and creating a healthy, radiant complexion. Winterize Your Skin.

Tuition for your first consultation and skin analysis for winters session '96 in now free with your $25.00 purchase.

Today's Assignment:

Pick up the hone to benefit your skin care GPA (and avoid detention) by calling 413-586-6076.

The Center for Facial Plastic Surgery
61 Locust Street
Northampton, MA 01060

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Senior Diversity Editor

Tara Mk Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Business Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Lisa Olivetti Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Position Vacant Jewish Affairs Editor
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor
Amy Paradiso News Editor
Emily Reilly Photography Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist

Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Ruan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Mazeroski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Fridays during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Graduating to grad school

January was a stressful month for me because I spent all my time doing one thing, and it was the one of the most hellish experiences of my life.

I applied for graduate school.

Applying for graduate school is not like applying for an undergraduate school. It's about 20 times more difficult and the pressure to do well is like a mouse trying to juggle three elephants.

The deadlines are earlier, and it's not like when you're in high school and could come home everyday after class and just work on your application. Instead, you have class papers to write, homework to do, a job to go to, television to watch and, of course, a busy drinking schedule to attend to. Somewhere in there you have to find time to complete the mountain of application paperwork that vaguely reminds you of the Iliad.

Most applications have a form to fill out with your basic information, a financial aid form and a request for transcripts. Then comes the good part — the Graduate Record Examination, lovingly known as the GREs, and the "written" part of the application.

The GREs are done by the same company that does the SATs, but instead of having people with Master's degrees design the test, they have a rare breed of super-human double and triple doctorates make up the questions for the GREs.

Marni E. Helfner

The GREs are done by the same company that does the SATs, but instead of having people with Master's degrees design the test, they have a rare breed of super-human double and triple doctorates make up the questions for the GREs. Known for their sadistic tendencies, these test-designers live for questions which would probably make Einstein's mind melt. For example:

Five people use five different cars and drive them on five different days. Jo Bob doesn't drive the Porsche, and he doesn't drive on Mondays. Katy always drives the Ford, and doesn't drive on Tuesdays or Thursdays when the moon is full and Jo Bob is in a bad mood...and so on, and so on.

What can I say? It was an experience. When I left after the test I felt as if I made Gomer Pyle look like a genius.

The other part of applying for grad school that is soooooooo enjoyable is the "written" part of the application. Instead of that easy undergraduate essay, which was a cake-walk compared to this, you have to write, and write some more, and then write some more. I'm applying to three schools and one fellowship (the application feels almost the same), and the things these people ask for are ridiculous.

Some applications have a list of questions to answer, some ask for the ominous "personal statement," a letter of intent, several short essay questions, or even better, writing a critical analysis paper. Here are some examples of what I've been asked to do and my fantasy replies:

What one person had the greatest influence on your life?

It's a tie between Wonder-Woman and Erik Estrada. Estrada, when he played Ponch — who knew that someone so hairy could look so cute in a police uniform, riding on a supped-up motorcycle? I had dreams of Estrada saving me from a burning car. I don't how this influenced me other than the fact I always forget to put oil in my car.

Wonder-Woman influenced me because she had the golden lariat of truth and could make men cry. I used to own Wonder-Woman Underoos, and I once tied up my younger brother with a jump-rope and said it was my golden lariat of truth — it didn't work, the lying bastard.

What was the last good book you've read, and why?

"And To Think That I Saw It On Mulberry Street" by Dr. Suess. One of the clearest and most concise books I've ever read. Suess leads you to really ask, "What did I see on Mulberry Street?" The man is truly a misunderstood genius. Can children around the world be wrong? I don't think so.

What was your life-shaping experience?

Well, let's see, the sperm travels up to the egg and fertilizes it. Nine months later, the mother squeezes out something vaguely resembling a watermelon. It screams, it cries, they give it a pacifier About as life-shaping as it gets.

How do other people describe your ability to motivate, educate and lead others?

You know, a long time ago, I stopped using other people's opinions to measure myself. Now I basically just ignore them. Some say I'm loud, obnoxious, rude and self-centered, but then again, they're idiots. Educate, shmeducate. I look out for numero uno. Besides, if I let anyone know what I know, someone else could rule the planet.

Please write a letter of your intentions and your plans regarding the future.

Future? FUTURE? I don't have a future unless I get into your #$%@*ing school! After I finish being a professional student for the next 10 years, I plan on dropping out of society, stop bathing, and live as a hermit under a bridge. I'll finally be able to put that degree to some use.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

Hoop dream

"Hello, Psychic Friends hotline..." said the female voice on the other end of the line.

"Hi. Could I speak to Dionne Warwick please?" I asked.

"She's on another call," said the woman unconvincingly. "My name's Ruby. You can talk to me, I'm a psychic too."

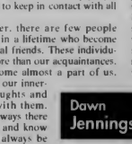
"Prove it," I said. "At six bucks a minute, I need some proof. Tell me something about myself."

"You favorite stooge is Curly," she said.

I was convinced.

"So," she continued, "What do you need to know about? Love? Career? Health?"

"Nah," I began, "I want to ask about basketball. UMass basketball. I was listening to the Memphis game on the radio and the color commentator said UMass could go undefeated, you know, a perfect season. Is that getting carried away?"



"Carried away?" Ruby asked incredulously. "Why it's just the tip of the iceberg."

And so the "psychic" began telling me what lay ahead.

First of all, the Minutemen will cruise to the end of the regular season unscathed. In the tournament they will elevate their play to a level nobody has ever seen before, outscoring their opponents by an average of 48.2 points en route to their first ever National Title.

When draft day arrives, it surprises nobody that Philadelphia selects Marcus Camby with the first pick. But after UMass' tournament success, the second and third players taken are Donta Bright and Dana Dingle, while Rigoberto Nunez is selected shortly after by the Celtics.

"The Celtics take Rigo?" I asked with my head beginning to spin. "Isn't that getting carried away?"

"Nonsense, M.L. Carr says Rigo reminds him of himself," Ruby said. "He goes on to average 20 ppg in 2001, but I'll get to that later."

Ruby continued with her window on the future.

Camby will be a huge success in the NBA. He will lead the league in scoring eight straight times, before a surprise retirement early on.

"He retires early?" I inquired surprised.

"It's short lived," said Ruby. "He tries to live his dream of playing pro baseball and tries out with the White Sox even though he hasn't played since tee-ball. He comes back to hoop and still dominates."

"Phew..."

After the 1995-96 season people wonder if John Calipari can win without the leaving seniors. But he will surprise critics by winning a second straight championship, again without losing a game.

Even more impressive than that, Cal gets housing to bring ESPN into the dorms so the students can actually watch the games.

After that, everyone begins to want the UMass magic to rub off on them.

Dean Smith is fired by UNC, so the Tar Heels can hire James "Bruiser" Flint to work the Chapel Hill sidelines. Similar coaching changes occur elsewhere as well as John Robic (Kansas) and Ed Schilling (Indiana) also land head coaching jobs.

Heck, even former UMass hater, Sports Illustrated, gets into the act, hiring current Collegian sports editor Candice Flemming to be its official UMass correspondent.

The University of Connecticut decides that because it has failed miserably in its quest to become New England's best men's hoop program that it will drop the program entirely. The money it saves will go to beautifying one of the ugliest campuses in the nation.

Winning becomes routine for Massachusetts, but after eight consecutive National Championships, Calipari finally decides to move on to the bigger arena.

Not the NBA, but the political arena.

"Aren't we getting a bit carried away?" I interrupted.

"Carried away? Hogwash..." Ruby said, annoyed, before continuing.

John Calipari and running mate Lou Pinella win the 2004 Presidential Election on the ticket of the newly formed "Refuse to Lose" party.

In his two terms in office Calipari helps bring peace to the Middle East, Bosnia and the Student Union steps.

Back in Amherst the winning tradition continues under new head coach Matt "Cheez" Komer.* * *

After I hung up the phone I thought "Wow," realizing I had been on the phone 23 minutes, the equivalent of $138.

I must have gotten carried away.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor and Columns

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

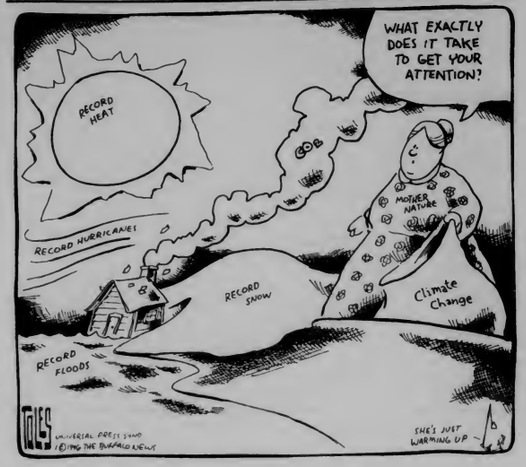
All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e-mail account: letters@olt.umass.edu

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1481, and ask to speak to Bob Dunn.

Opinion/Editorial



Resolution solutions

Okay, New Year's resolutions — everyone has them and everyone pretty much blows them off as well. I read somewhere that it takes the average person five years to actually go through with one resolution.

I stopped doing resolutions about the same time I stopped keeping a daily journal. I just didn't have the time, and I felt undue pressure to scribble something meaningful down every single day. Plus, if your journal falls into the wrong hands, you're screwed. Sisters and brothers have no mercy, and significant others (no matter what they say) hate knowing you're not sharing every little thing.

So here is a list of some of the more common resolutions that students, and even I, have attempted to keep but failed at miserably.

1. "I am going to lose weight."

That is like the prime obsession most Americans have. I once was behind a lady at Stop& Shop who spent $50 on Weight Watchers products — something like two no fat, low fat, wish it tastes like chocolate, but really doesn't shakes. It's outrageous! Plus, it doesn't matter if it has zero fat, it's the calorie count that smacks you silly. Think Oprah.

2. "I am going to eat right."

This is different from losing weight because it usually involves some form of vegetarianism. Like, no more red meat, cut down on the peanut butter — all that fun stuff. So you eat like a rabbit for a week, find out side salads don't cut it and return back to your old ways. Besides, how well can you eat in a dorm — on the meal plan.

3. "I am going to be more organized."

So you buy the filofax, you get the folders, the paper dividers, the bins, the boxes, the latest system and, bam! You are now over organized, you're drowning in a sea of pocket calendars and you can't find a damn thing. However, Staples loves you and hopes you'll come back next year — sucker.

Tara MK Connelly

4. "I will exercise every morning."

You will join a gym. You will realize it isn't fun to walk a treadmill at eight a.m., and you're wasting $80 you could have spent on something cool. You will also realize only Demi Moore has that kind of devotion and she's getting paid millions of dollars for it too. Somehow a pat on the back pales in comparison.

5. "I will go to class more and keep up with my reading assignments."

Two words — yea right. It's impossible, and after making a daily list of the all the books and pages you have to read in about five hours you want to cry. You become overwhelmed, you chuck the side salad and head to Staples.

6. "I will pay off all my credit cards or at least pay off a large sum off every month."

We are students, we have loans up the... well you know. Credit cards give us that false sense of wealth. It allows us to think we have more than we really do. It makes us think that we're really not spending money. It makes us delusional and so does this resolution.

7. "I will do something to better mankind."

This is a noble thing too. But it's really broad, really vague and really easy to blow off.

8. "I will keep in better touch with my family/friends."

Well, what if they don't want to keep in better touch with you? Houston, we have a problem.

9. "I will not spend money on things I have no money for."

You might as well say, "I will graduate from college in four years with no loans, and get a high paying job right after graduation." It's just not going to happen.

10. "I will drink less and study more."

Yeah? And while you're at it how about stopping world hunger and finding a vaccine for the Ebola virus.

See you in five years. The salad will be on me.

Tara MK Connelly is a Collegian columnist.

A friend indeed

There are many people who pass in and out of our lives. This is a natural occurrence, and although it is very sad to lose touch with our friends, it's something which everyone must deal with. We all know too many people to be able to keep in contact with all of them.

However, there are few people you meet in a lifetime who become very special friends. These individuals are more than our acquaintances. They become almost a part of us. We share our innermost thoughts and dreams with them. We are always there for them, and know they will always be there for us.

Dawn Jennings

If you're lucky, you might have a couple such friends in your lifetime.

I met Erica at our summer job when we were in high school. She was from Massachusetts and came up to stay in York Beach, Me. with her grandparents every summer. I stayed with my parents at an inn they ran a couple of minutes away. We started hanging out, and soon our friendship grew so much it was hard to find one of us without the other. We shared our deepest secrets and talked about everything. There was nothing I couldn't share with Erica, and there wasn't anything she wouldn't tell me. She was my best friend in the whole world.

I graduated from high school a year earlier than Erica did, and I started attending the University of Massachusetts. We still continued to stay in touch and I was thrilled when she decided to attend the same school the next year. What could be more perfect than going to college with your best friend?

However, as her first year of school progressed, our friendship started to disintegrate. We had a couple of fights and we said some pretty hurtful things to one another. We had different groups of friends and eventually stopped seeing one another at all, except by chance meetings where we never said more than a forced, "Hi. How are you?"

Every once in a while I would think about our friendship and feel sad. I'd think of a memory we'd had or something I wished I could share with Erica. However, my pride wouldn't let me break down and say how sorry I was that we weren't friends any longer. Although I wasn't pleased with the situation, I accepted we'd just grown apart and there was nothing I could do about it.

Then I happened to read a quote by Stephen Levine in the book, "Chicken Soup for the Soul."

"If you were going to die soon and had only one phone call you could make, who would you call and what would you say? And why are you waiting?"

I can't express how glad I am I picked up that book and read that quote. I wrote to Erica and gave her my phone number. She called me and we talked just like old times. In actuality we are planning to meet for dinner later within the week.

I don't know what our friendship will become now. We've both changed a lot through the years and there is no way to know if we are still as compatible as we once were. However, no matter what happens, I am so grateful to have made the effort to rekindle our friendship. Too often we neglect doing something because our pride gets in the way or our fear of rejection is too strong. Yet, the only way to ever get what we truly want is to combat our anxieties and take a risk. Before time takes this chance away, go and make that phone call.

Dawn Jennings is a UMass student.

Attention All Columnists

There will be a meeting for all new and returning columnists on Thursday, Feb. 1 at 7pm in the Collegian office. Anyone who cannot attend should contact Bob Dunn at 545-3500.

Opinion/Editorial

What the hell is going on here?

With the start of the new semester, we thought we'd add some new features to the ol' Op/Ed page, as well as try and phase some other goodies in as the semester progresses. You can look forward to daily doses of Doonesbury and Toles, regular visits from the cast of Life in Hell, as well as a cross section of opinions and writing from the entire campus community. This means you too. Letters, comments and criticism are always welcome. Let us know what you think. If you've got something to say, we're listening.

Text, lies and videotape

Two weeks ago it was discovered that an English teacher at a Cape Cod high school, Robert Walenski, had a second job. He had appeared in several soft core pornographic movies. After speculation that he had propositioned a former student of his to participate in one of the X-rated films, he was fired from his teaching position.

No person at this point in time has made a statement that he had made such a request. Police are unaware of any such statement, and several of his current students at the high school have nothing but admiration for his work ethics. Even some of the children's parents who felt he was a very good teacher had no problem with Walenski keeping his post.

So the question is: Should Robert Walenski have been able to continue teaching, even though it is now public knowledge he has appeared in pornographic material?

Justin C. Smith

Obviously if he had asked a student of his to appear with him in such a movie, he should banned from teaching. But if all the man did was keep his second job separate from his teaching, should he be fired for it? There is a clause in his contract which states he should keep a "moral upstanding outside the classroom."

I realize the issue here is the influence he, or any teacher in his position for that matter, would have on the students in his class. Different teachers have different views on issues that need to be discussed in and outside the classroom. His happened to involve a legal form of expression.

Whether or not his second job meets the statement in his contract depends on your point of view. Some teachers might portray Communism as a good idea, just improperly executed by the working class. Others might express it as a system that pails in comparison to our capitalist society.

Several parents of students in that school system were interviewed after his second job was announced. Before he was fired they said they would let their child attend his class. Others said they would pull them immediately.

If any parent or student has a problem with the teacher they have for whatever reason, the guidance department and/or administration can accommodate a change in that student's schedule so all parties involved feel the child is getting the best education possible. Many of his students would not have asked out of his class.

When students at the high school were informed of Walenski's release they staged a walk-out in support of the departed teacher. It's rather apparent he had made an impression on his students, a positive one that exhibited respect and admiration for a man that had been a good teacher to them.

Today it seems like there are so many instances where children are being abused. Domestic violence dominates the headlines and abduction happens far too often. What has this man done that is so wrong?

He has committed no crime, and created an environment in his classroom that has made kids want to go to class. With the dropout rate in U.S. schools, shouldn't we be trying to keep the kids in the schools as opposed to on the streets and uneducated?

Sure there are other capable teachers are out there somewhere, but this man had been a part of the school system for 20 years. The students enjoyed his class, and him as a teacher, as well as benefited from his knowledge. Why take that away from them?

If parents are worried about how his teaching influences their children, do they also censor all they see in television and movies and listen to on the radio?

How many movies about drugged out and drunken maniacs come out that children flock to see? Destruction and murder are always box office favorites.

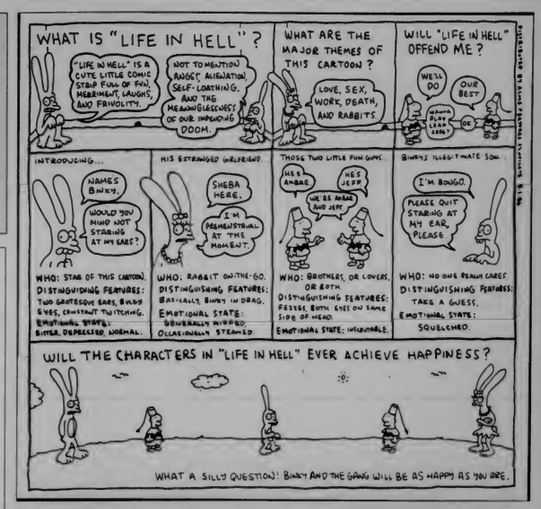
In today's music we have groups such as the Black Crowes and Cypress Hill which promote the movement to have marijuana legalized, while some rap stars still sing about rape and cop beatings. Influence is everywhere, and whether parents like it or not, whatever opinions or beliefs their children's teachers have, will be exposed to them every minute they are in class.

Why don't we get rid of all the opinionated teachers in the school system then? I believe women should have the choice whether to have an abortion or not, but I am not going to take my kid out of a class where the teacher is pro-life. If the teacher is qualified and my son/daughter enjoys and learns in that teacher's class he or she should stay.

While I am not an advocate of X-rated films, they are a part of today's American culture, and there is nothing illegal about them. Anyone who has a pay cable movie station and stays up past midnight can see one on any given night. Just because he stars in one does that make him a bad teacher?

I respect the view if people don't want him as a teacher, pull the child out of the class, but Walenski losing his job over it is something else. After all, his job was for kids to listen to him talk and expand their knowledge, not for them to look at his body and expand their sexuality.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian columnist.



WHAT IS "LIFE IN HELL"?
"LIFE IN HELL" IS A CUTE LITTLE COMIC STRIP FULL OF FUN, MERRIMENT, LAUGHS, AND FRIVOLITY.
NOT TO MENTION ANGST, ALIENATION, SELF-LOATHING, AND THE MEANINGLESSNESS OF OUR IMPENDING DOOM.
WHAT ARE THE MAJOR THEMES OF THIS CARTOON?
LOVE, SEX, WORK, DEATH, AND RABBITS
WILL "LIFE IN HELL" OFFEND ME?
WELL, DO
OUR BEST
INTRODUCING...
NAMES BUNNY.
WOULD YOU MIND NOT STARING AT MY EARS?
HIS EXTENDED GIRLFRIEND.
SHEBA HERE.
I'M PREMENSTRUAL AT THE MARKET.
THOSE TWO LITTLE FUN GUYS.
HE'S AMBAD
HE'S JEFF
WE'RE AMBAD AND JEFF.
BUNNY'S ILLEGITIMATE SON.
I'M BONGO.
PLEASE QUIT STARING AT MY EAR, PLEASE.
WHO: STAR OF THIS CARTOON. DISTINGUISHING FEATURES: TWO GRATEFUL EARS, BUNNY EYES, CONSTANT TWITCHING. EMOTIONAL STATE: BITTER, DEPRESSED, JOURNAL
WHO: RABBIT ON-THE-GO. DISTINGUISHING FEATURES: BASICALLY BUNNY IN DRAG. EMOTIONAL STATE: GENERALLY MIXED; OCCASIONALLY STEAMED
WHO: BROTHERS, OR LOVERS, OR BOTH DISTINGUISHING FEATURES: FESTER, BOTH EYES ON SAME SIDE OF HEAD EMOTIONAL STATE: INCORRIGIBLE
WHO: NO ONE REALLY CARES DISTINGUISHING FEATURES: TAKE A GUESS. EMOTIONAL STATE: SQUELCHED
WILL THE CHARACTERS IN "LIFE IN HELL" EVER ACHIEVE HAPPINESS?
WHAT A SILLY QUESTION! BUNNY AND THE GANG WILL BE AS HAPPY AS YOU ARE.

Letters to the Editor

Chancellor addresses campus safety

To the Editor:

The University is committed to maintaining a safe working, learning and living environment for all members of the University community.

The rise in the level of violence has become increasingly a matter of national concern. It is a concern on this campus as well. The incidence of aggressive behavior in offices, classrooms, residence halls and elsewhere on campus is extremely disturbing since it can lead to threats of violence and even violence itself. In an effort to address this issue pro-actively, I want to advise you of the steps the University is taking to ensure a safe community, as well as to enlist your assistance in this effort. I have established the Task Force on Workplace Violence to examine the causes and incidence of violence on campus. The task force will then recommend to me measures to prevent violence as well as to manage violent situations if they arise. I also wish to remind you of other steps the University has taken to address this issue, notably the workshops offered by Training and Development for staff and supervisors around conflict resolution and dealing with difficult situations in the workplace.

The University will not tolerate violence, threatening statements or threatening behavior directed toward employees, students, visitors or anyone doing business with the University. Each report will be carefully assessed to determine an appropriate institutional response. This may include further investigation, security assistance, and/or contact with law enforcement authorities. Although departmental action may not be made public, subject to applicable state and federal law and University policies, you can be assured that all reports will be taken seriously and investigated promptly.

Any threat or violent act by an employee or student will be considered serious misconduct and may be the basis for disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal.

As a concerned community, it is our collective responsibility to report threatening statements or actions immediately. If you experience a threatening situation or know of any instance involving threats of physical violence toward anyone, whether from inside or outside the University community, I ask that you report it immediately to the Department of Public Safety at 545-2121 and to a supervisor or department head, if appropriate.

Chancellor David K. Scott

An open letter to the Chancellor

To the Editor:

Our department is deeply disturbed by the administration's blatantly Anglo-centric approach to the academic program review currently underway. In the College of Humanities and Fine Arts the targeted departments are not the least underfunded but simply the least powerful in political terms. The Department of Spanish and Portuguese, which is notoriously underfunded and lacking in political clout, is one of the victims. Everyone knows that the proposed language center is but a thinly-veiled scheme to limit the number of our faculty and TAs artificially by taking away our elementary and intermediate language courses and teaching them largely with part-timers.

When the Provost and the Dean set up meetings with the departments negatively affected by the plan, our department was one of those included. Thus, the administration has made no bones about its intentions toward us.

Increasing and institutionalizing the use of part-timers would be harmful to all parties. First, replacing faculty and TAs with part-timers in a department that is largely female and Hispanic, and which can boast of virtual 100 percent employment of its graduate students, will severely worsen the still-precarious status of women and Hispanics on this campus. Such a move also would lower the quality of undergraduate education by allowing people who are neither faculty nor graduate students to teach in significant numbers. It would alienate graduate students by separating their teaching enterprise from that of the faculty. It would break the synergy of our graduate and undergraduate programs and destroy the social fabric of the department. Finally, it would prevent real achievement.

By amputating most of our language program, the administration would prevent our department from becoming the major Hispanic cultural center we are positioned now to become. Indeed, we believe one of the main purposes of the proposed language center is precisely to prevent our fast-growing department from fulfilling this role, a desire we expressed in our strategic plan. This is ethnic warfare.

In a shocking display of racial and cultural arrogance, administrators who know nothing about Hispanic culture have set themselves up as experts in our field. Implying they know more about our area than we do, they propose to place many of our students in a sort of foster care facility, a language center of their own invention. Everyone knows this is a ruse to take away control of our TA budget and to decide how much Spanish and Portuguese gets taught, who gets to teach it and by what means.

This is unacceptable to us. The budget is the policy. We are the experts in Hispanic culture, and language is the most important element of culture. It is our obligation to study and teach Spanish and Portuguese. We are responsible for the quality of the curriculum at all levels, and we would be derelict in our duties if we stopped fulfilling this obligation.

Our commitment to Hispanism and to the Hispanic community requires we unequivocally and forcefully oppose this unsound and chauvinistic initiative.

The proposal to dismantle our department by taking away a large chunk of our language program has no academic rationale whatsoever. Rather, in our view, it has two disingenuous political goals. First, the administration is attempting to avoid making hard funding decisions through a visible and public sacrifice of a few departments. Most of these turn out to involve the study of other languages and cultures. The blood to be spilled on the altar of reduced funding does not include that of traditionally powerful disciplines. Rather, it is foreign, Jewish and Hispanic.

The second regrettable force behind the language center initiative is a chancy attempt to deal with what some administrators euphemistically call "the language problem." That is, the irresistible ascendance of Spanish as the de facto second national language.

The "English only" movement is but a reaction to this reality. While some citizens react with fear, many more have decided Spanish is a language they want to learn. That is why we have rapidly increasing numbers of students at all levels, and we presently teach almost half the total number of students enrolled in languages other than English at the University. These students have a right to study Spanish in preference to other fields, if they think it will be of more value to them.

We have a responsibility to help them achieve this goal, in accordance with our professional training and expertise. Spanish is here to stay. History, geography and time are on our side. Instead of pretending that interest in Spanish will pass and students will revert to other fields of study, the administration should come to terms with reality. Our department is one of the most efficient, dynamic and successful at the University, and our area will continue to grow. We deserve to be supported, not undermined by cynical schemes.

We urge you to put a stop to this unfortunate initiative. If you are truly committed to multiculturalism, to women and to minorities, you will not give your blessing to this destructive proposal.

Christina Gonzalez
Chair, Spanish and Portuguese

Reaction to Bulger's remarks

To the Editor:

I have defended the choice of William Bulger as president of UMass because I believed that while the objections by diversity advocates may or may not have merit, the vast number of people I met who opposed him back in my hometown inside Route 495 were just being snobs.

However, his recent comments about "Spoiled children" using UMass as a "revolutionary sandbox" have made me think again.

I am a UMass graduate '65. Most of my cohorts, suburban teenagers of the 50's, weren't conscious of segregation, or the inner city. Most of us had no understanding of the poverty and unemployment in the city. We had no understanding of the prejudices which forced, or at least made life more bearable for groups, Irish as well as Blacks, to stay in the city. No understanding of how societal prejudices had touched our own lives.

When my own family moved from northern New York State to a Boston suburb, my father had hoped his name and Irish Catholic background would not brand him a "Boston Irish" and thereby leave him open to prejudice. I learned much later from my mother that my father remembered waking as a child to a cross burning on his father's farm in Pawling, New York because his family was Catholic.

So I hate it when people label each other. I despise the "You people" attitude. To whom was Bulger referring? Certainly with the example of Bosnia so obvious, it behooves us all to listen to one another; to resist clever name calling; to show each other respect. Mr. Bulger should know the importance of that. I hoped he did.

Pam Fleming
Lee, Ma.
Class of 1965

Zoomass manners

While being at college for the last few months, I've noticed many different manners among students which have made me... well... gasp. I know I'm no Lady Grace, but there are some things which I thought everyone understood.

Oh, how naive one can be.

Now, the last time I checked the "Manual of Proper Etiquette" I could have sworn it said interrupting wasn't considered too polite. In fact, I believe it was right under the sub-heading "out-right rudeness." There have been times when I've gone through pain-staking attempts to ignore a third party in order to finish a conversation with someone else.

This shouldn't be necessary. I'm thinking of getting one of those ticket machines you use in bakeries when there's a long line... at least then we will all get to finish our conversations. This also includes the phone. There's nothing that annoys me more than when I'm talking to that certain someone, who's on the other side of the earth, and for some reason I have to be interrupted multiple times. This means that my $4/min. phone call includes a kind of three-way conversation where I manage to listen to what's new in another's life and answer what the capital of Portugal is at the same time. What a bargain it is.

Laura Forster

You'd think public bathrooms were pretty safe in the manners department. There's the tendency to form lines for the stalls and go in order, unless of course there's the occasional emergency, which is understood. Yet, the stench of rudeness tends to permeate through here too, right in front of the mirrors. How many times have I stood in front of a mirror only to find my reflection instantly vanish and be replaced by the back of some other woman? Now, maybe my long-lasting mascara isn't smudged and creating major disasters, but I think I am entitled to just as much hair primping time as everyone else.

Whatever happened to being a good neighbor? You know the kind who sees someone in need and lends a hand? Or who helps an old lady cross the street? Maybe we think it's only the elderly that need us, because it seems that 60 is the minimum age necessary to receive help.

Just the other day I was waiting for an elevator, as was another guy and a girl who had at least 10 bags with her. When the elevator finally came, the girl began loading her things on board. I figured I'd help out so maybe we'd both get to our rooms quicker. Meanwhile, the guy just stood and watched. I couldn't figure out exactly what he was thinking, but it definitely didn't involve any heavy lifting.

Needless to say, he was hoping to get on the elevator when we were done loading it, but the doors slammed shut and we were unable to hold them for him. Oh well, he's probably still waiting for an elevator right now.

I know there's not really any time in one's life when their parents say, "O.K. Timmy, today we're going to learn how to be polite," but don't we pick up some of these little life lessons at some time?

Well, I do hate to be pessimistic, so to end on a more optimistic note, I will add that I have noticed there are a lot of great door holders on campus.

Laura Forster is a UMass student.

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

HI, FOLKS! IT'S TIME AGAIN TO VISIT THE OLD MAIL SILO!
WHERE WE READ ALL YOUR LETTERS COME WHAT MAY!
WELL, LET'S GET TO IT, ZONK! PICK ME OUT A LETTER AT RANDOM, OKAY?
YOU GOT IT, BIG GUY!
"DEAR MIKE: I WANT YOUR BABY!"
WHOA—A GOOD ONE! THINK OF THE ODDS!
IT'S FROM J.J.
OOPS... CUSTODY FIGHT?
1-22
©B Trudeau

Project tries to stop housing discrimination

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Three days after Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday, former Massachusetts state Representative and originator of the Rainbow Coalition concept, Mel King, spoke at an annual Housing Discrimination Project meeting in Springfield.

In 1995, the 11 staff members of the Housing Discrimination Project fielded 217 complaints from Western Mass. and Worcester County residents who believed they were denied housing due to discrimination.

This month's meeting was a celebration of their accomplishments. For example, in the Housing Discrimination Project's largest settlement to date, a white couple who were denied housing because they had children — infant twins — received $16,500 from an Easthampton landlord.

But the meeting was also a reminder that the racism present during Martin Luther King's time has never stopped.

Subtle racism

Dore Robinson called on the Discrimination Project for help. She and her husband were trying to buy a home, and they believed their difficulties were caused by discrimination.

The Discrimination Project legally deals with rental property situations, not purchases, but the African-American couple still found support, Robinson said. They became "testers" in order to help prove discrimination in other cases.

"We could not have lived with ourselves if we had not pursued it," Robinson said.

She read from one of Martin Luther King's speeches: "There are two challenges to America — the challenges are racism and poverty."

"I find it very disturbing," Robinson said, "that those words are still appropriate 30 years later."

In a similar case, another black couple was told they could not rent unless their current apartment was inspected. They contacted the Discrimination Project who sent two testers.

When the Project sent another black couple with good qualifications, the landlord said an inspection would be necessary. But when the Project sent a less financially qualified white woman, the landlord offered her a place immediately, with free parking and the first month free.

Discrimination in housing is illegal in this state. According to Discrimination Project flyer, it is against the law to deny anyone housing based on their race, color, sex, national origin, source of income, religion, children or family status, disability, marital status, age (except minors), sexual orientation or veteran status.

The Discrimination Project has three lawyers working for them, including board member Tom Coish, of the University of Massachusetts Legal Services.

"When the Fair Housing Act was passed in 1968, many Americans thought the struggle had been won," Coish said.

Being welcomed

Mel King approached the microphone after Robinson's personal story, but he spent a moment studying the audience before he spoke. "You should be outraged," he said, repeating the word "outraged" several times for emphasis, "that this condition exists."

"I do commend the work [of the Housing Discrimination Project] because it provides a base of hope, and that's absolutely crucial," King said.

At that point, King told a story his cousin had told him about her work with youth in a California church. At first there were only six active, but soon there were 100, and the woman was encouraged, King said.

But then she heard a few of them speaking about suicide. The woman and the pastor asked the youths whether they had ever considered suicide.

"They were astonished at the number of hands that went [up]," King said.

He explained the youths were coming to church to get baptized, because "they understood they wouldn't be welcomed by Jesus" until they confirmed their faith that way.

"It was too painful living here," King said. "They had no hope."

When asked why young people could be so hopeless, King answered, "Shootings. All the negative things about being a black youth that are in the media" including the devaluation of schools.

"[Adults] think [students] don't know about The Bell Curve and things like that," King said. "They know."

Using another Martin Luther King quote, Mel King said that we need "food, clothing, shelter, dignity for the minds..., but the obstacles can be surmounted."

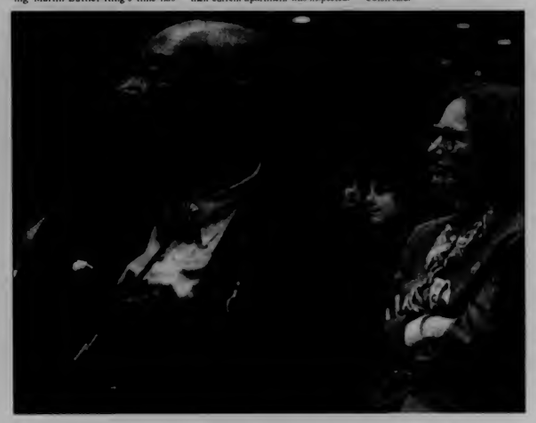
The concept of intellectual inferiority of people is one of those obstacles, said King. He mentioned Charles Murray's The Bell Curve, saying "It got translated into the Contract with America."

The Contract with America "comes out of the belief that you can't do anything to change those folks because they can't hack it intellectually," King said.

King, the founder of the Rainbow Coalition chapter in Boston, said, "We think that a party is needed to deal with these issues [poverty included] and in particular for full employment programs.

"Where the adults don't work, the schools don't work. Where adults work, schools work."

King's explained that when students see adults around them succeed, then they can believe that "a school will lead to something."



KEITH SNOW / COLLEGIAN
Mel King, founder of the Boston chapter of the Rainbow Coalition, spoke at a Housing Discrimination Project meeting on Jan. 18 in Springfield. In the background is Rep. Ellen Story.

Washington debates over funds for winter heating

By Roseann Cohen
Collegian Staff

As winter-weary Massachusetts residents pull out their wool sweaters, socks, gloves and electric blankets to battle the 51 days left of this winter, some may be forced to make more life-threatening sacrifices in order to keep their homes and families warm.

President Clinton, at the urging of U.S. Congressmen including Senators John Kerry, Edward Kennedy, and Rep. John Olver, recently released the emergency funds designated for fuel assistance programs aimed at helping low-income families and the elderly pay winter heating bills. The Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), which has already been threatened by some Republicans in Congress, provides partial aid to 143,000 Massachusetts households to manage the costs of winter heating bills.

The House passed a Fiscal Year '96 appropriations bill to discontinue LIHEAP, although a Senate proposal still allows for some funding of the program. Normal LIHEAP funds for Fiscal Year '95 have already been depleted, but the Fiscal Year '95 appropriations bill had included advance funding for Fiscal Year '96. Since the regular Fiscal Year '96 appropriations bill had not been passed by the deadline, funding hinged on two continuing resolutions, one which ended December 15, after which more freezing temperatures were certain to follow.

Olver, along with 179 other Representatives, sent a letter sponsored by Rep. Joe Moakley (D-Mass) to congressional conferees prompting them for continued funding of LIHEAP in Fiscal Years '96 and '97.

"In the debate over how government spends taxpayer dollars, many are losing sight of real life human needs," he said. "Avoiding freezing to death is a rather fundamental life or death matter... In the name of basic decency, LIHEAP funds should continue to be available."

President Clinton released the funding that had been appropriated in the FY '95 bill. Many Massachusetts residents still face troubles paying their energy bills due to a decrease in LIHEAP funding altogether.

Doris Harker, director of the Franklin Community Action Commission, was pleased with the work of federal and local politicians, but concerned for the people who continue to face heating problems.

"Folks are in a situation where social security is not enough, people are unemployed, elderly clients living on $4,000 a year," Harker said. "These are the people who are truly needy and hopefully it [LIHEAP] can help them."

Virginia Phelan, a supervisor at the Holyoke Community Action Program commented on the implications of sinking benefit levels for energy assistance. "People are going to have to choose to eat or choose to keep warm," she said. "Other agencies similar to us that help out are being bombarded," she said.

Acknowledging the efforts of Mass. politicians, Phelan said, "We're very pleased with the work Senators Kerry and Kennedy have done. Rep. Olver has worked hard to get fuel assistance and has been very receptive to fuel assistance."

AEROBICS
253-3539

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Has Openings for Paid Positions for the Spring 1996 Semester:

• Black Affairs Editor
• Jewish Affairs Editor
• Women's Issues Editor
• Librarian
• Assistant to the Managing Editor

All applicants must be full-time, undergraduate students.

Interested students should complete an application and speak with either the managing editor or editor in chief.

The deadline for applications in 4 p.m. on Wednesday, February 7, 1996.

If you have any further questions, feel free to contact either Marni Helfner, Managing Editor or Matt Vautour, Editor in Chief, at 545-3500.

custom binding for all your needs

• theses • personal volumes
• dissertations • library volumes
• leather binding

tassinari bros., inc.
custom bookbinding
tel: (413) 543-6886
39 oak street - p.o. box 51025 toll free: (800) 891-6886 indian orchard, mass. 01151-5025 fax: (413) 543-6041

THE BLACK SHEEP
Deli & Bakery
THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST.
AMHERST 253-3442
We Are Now On OCMP!
UMASS STUDENTS
10% DISCOUNT ON ALL PURCHASES-
ALL YEAR LONG.
SHOW YOUR UMASS ID.
SANDWICHES, SOUPS, SALADS, COFFEE, CAPPUCCINO, CAKES, COOKIES, BREADS, CHEESE, FRESH JUICES, AND CATERING.

Shelter needs help to provide services

By Roseann Cohen
Collegian Staff

In a small, but brightly decorated office in Northampton, the employees and volunteers of Necessities/Necesidades provide a number of valuable services to empower battered women. But they need more help.

Their services include shelter, a 24-hour hotline, child care, support groups, peer counseling and legal advocacy for battered women.

Battered women come from a variety of different backgrounds and personal histories. According to an informational pamphlet circulated by Necessities/ Necesidades, women may have experienced a wide range of abuse, from physical and emotional abuse to economic control, intimidation, and forced isolation. This abuse occurs within a cycle of violence, shifting in and out of various stages in the battering relationship. Periods of tension may build up, erupting into actual physical violence, followed by a "loving" stage, during which the batterer promises to change or to seek help. The pamphlet stresses the point that "battering relationships do not change by themselves."

The goal of Necessities/ Necesidades, according to Co-Director Vicki Baum-Hommes, "is based on a self-help model, helping women to empower themselves. We help women to do this on their own."

Baum-Hommes spoke about the crucial need for volunteers and the significance of the program to the lives of battered women.

"They're being uprooted from everything and everyone in their lives and coming to the shelter, essentially in hiding. Imagine just packing a bag and leaving your belongings, leaving your friends, and imagine how difficult that would be," she said. "This organization couldn't exist without the volunteers we have — it's really an important service.

"We've answered 3,000 hotline calls, provided 442 women with face to face counseling and gave emergency shelter to 50 battered women," she said. "We open about 500 cases a year from our hotline calls."

Volunteers are actively involved in many of these programs after completing a 40–hour training session. The sessions will be held this spring during two–week periods in the evenings and on weekends. Volunteers are also needed for jobs such as office help and shelter maintenance.

The role of the volunteers and employees is to aid battered women and support them in the choices they make.

"It's up to a woman to decide when to actually leave [the abusive relationship], but we can give her the resources she needs and help her with a plan," she said.

For more information or to volunteer call Necessities/Necesidades at 586–1125.

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

The Only Thing We Haven't Changed Is Our Name.

We've invested over two million dollars to make you feel at home in an elegant, spacious new setting, now with 100 stylish rooms designed for your personal comfort. You'll enjoy modern business and communications services, complimentary continental breakfast, easy access to area campuses, shopping and restaurants, and opening in September, an exclusive Premier™ accommodations section for business travelers. Call 1-800-654-2000 for reservations when planning that next business trip. You're going to find the all-new Howard Johnson at Amherst a very refreshing surprise.

HOWARD JOHNSON.
AMHERST/HADLEY
401 RUSSELL STREET HADLEY, MA 01035 (413)586-0114

Stonewall delivers over ten years of awareness

By Wiebke Schweer
Collegian Correspondent

It began in 1985 with a small bureau, a desk and a telephone. Today, the Stonewall Center, a lesbian, gay and trantgender educational resource center has expanded and developed into an important base for information, education and action for the GLBT community in Pioneer Valley.

According to Sarah Pease, Director of the Stonewall Center, over the years the center has played an important role in creating awareness of GLBT affairs on campus and has offered a variety of activities and information.

During the 1984 spring semester, graduate student Felice Veskel began a systematical research project about heterosexism and homophobia on campus, which was initialized by a series of homophobic incidents and protests on campus. "The Consequence of being Gay: A Report on the Quality of Life for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Students at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst" showed the results of her study.

One of the major concerns of her report was the creation of a program for Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual concerns. It happened in 1985, when Veskel opened an administrative office in the Student Affairs Division together with another graduate student. Ten years later, in 1995, the new name of the program, which had already left the original administrative office, was invented. Veskel remains a part of the idea she initiated, as the director of the bureau.

Along with the name change, the ambience of the Stonewall Center is different as well. A large lending library with books, newspapers, periodicals, videos and articles covers the walls of the office at Crampton House in Southwest Residential Area.

Three full time staff members and four graduate students provide information Mon. through Fri., 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., about different services of the center. These include workshops that deal with topics such as racism in the GLBT community and the Speaker's Bureau which provides speakers trained to discuss GLBT issues in residence halls, high schools and academic classes.

Stonewall Center employees hand out educational flyers and posters, and lend an open ear to students who need help with such issues as telling their family about their coming- out or having to deal with harassment.

"We don't offer counseling, but we help people to find the resources they need," explains Pease.

In addition, the Stonewall Center runs the largest data–base of gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender resources in the Pioneer Valley — a 24–hour telephone information service which gives details about groups, events and services as well as a free monthly newsletter which includes events, articles and announcements.

Students also have the possibility to intern at the Stonewall Center.

"The volunteers can look at the part of our work they are most interested in," Pease said. "Last semester we had a student, who did not take classes and worked full–time for us. She did not get paid, but she got credits."

Throughout the 11 years of its existence, the ideas and goals of the Stonewall Center have remained the same. The center hopes to provide education through advocating the needs of the GLBT community and developing effective educational resource strategies to reduce homophobia. They also hope to create community–wide efforts on behalf of the homosexual community and wish to provide a safe space for reporting incidents of harassment and discrimination.

"People don't get educated on these issues overnight," said Pease. "We have already made an impact in small ways with all of our programs, which have helped to create awareness during the years."

Movement could change ways of teaching calculus

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

There in a nationwide movement to change the structure in which we teach calculus, according to a University of Massachusetts professor who attended the Eighth Annual International Conference on Technology in Collegiate Mathematics in Houston, Texas in November.

Associate Department Head of the Mathematics and Statistics Department Jon L. Sicks said the conference "presented information about how one can use calculators and computers in teaching mathematics."

Speakers included professional software developers, equipment manufacturers, university and college professors and high school teachers.

Based on topics presented at the conference, Sicks pointed out three elements, beginning with the introduction of calculator and computer technology, which he believes are necessary for restructuring the traditional way calculus is taught.

The Texas Instruments TI92 Calculator was presented at the conference. It has a "built–in computer algebra system much closer to the power of the computers of the lab versus calculator," according to Sicks.

For several years, lab computers have been available in the UMASTER LAB at the W.E.B. Du Bois Library. Most students who use the lab are Math 135 and Math 136 students who are required to meet there to complete weekly homework assignments and projects.

Only a small fraction of mathematics students use the lab, Sicks admitted. He said that it is especially important that mathematics professors integrate computers and calculators into calculator mandatory calculus courses.

"Reformed calculus courses" at UMass, including Math 135, Math 136, Math 245 and Math 246, have already incorporated both teaching tools, Sicks said.

His second restructuring element is the re–thinking of topics covered in calculus. Sicks said, "We should shift our focus."

He emphasized that mathematics students should be doing long–term projects in solving mathematical problems. The traditional mathematics lecture only allows students to push buttons according to instruction, Sicks said.

Working with calculators and computers on long–term projects would enable students to obtain information on their own rather than get it form an outside source, Sicks commented. Long problems prove to help students retain part calculus knowledge that they would otherwise quickly forget, he added.

The third element deals with the kinds of activities in which mathematics students are expected to engage. Sicks said that being exposed to the new technology of the TI92 calculator at the conference gave him ideas for problems to present to students.

These three elements of change would aid in the retention of the larger percentage of mathematics students to survive the three–semester sequence of a calculus regimen, Sicks said.

Two other issues surrounding the introduction of the new technology of the Texas Instruments TI92 calculator arose at the conference.

One was the high cost and equity of the $180 Texas Instruments TI92 Calculator to college students. Sicks said that attending the conference has made him better equipped to discuss what the calculator can do with its high cost of $180.

Within the next year, Sicks will be working on making the new technology of the TI92 calculator available to Math 131, Math 132, and Math 233 students who currently are required to use the $90 Texas Instruments TIB5.

How to implement the use of this technology in a small class versus a large class was also discussed. The larger the class size, the greater the difficulty in offering one–on–one instruction.

"It's very difficult to make a radical change to the approach of something with 15 instructors," Sicks said in reference to the numerous sections of Math 131 and Math 132. "It may be a while before we implement [calculator and computer technology] in our multi–section calculus courses." "We see this new technology coming over the horizon," said Sicks who said he hopes the TI92 will be cheap enough for students to use in a few years.

He also attended conferences held by the American Mathematics Society and the Mathematical Association of America in Orlando, Fla. Both revolved around teaching calculus to college and university students.

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS ...$10.

Collegian Graphics, our job is done when your day is just begining

Experience You Need

Looking for a job on campus that will help prepare you for a career when you graduate? Apply for the position of:

Co-op Advertising Manager

Now hiring a well-organized, mature, responsible, self-motivated person to develop our co-op advertising program. The position includes researching possible sources of co-op funds, working with the advertising sales team, working with advertisers, and submitting timely requests for reimbursement.

To apply, stop by our office
DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center Basement, Amherst, MA 01003 413-545-3500

Did You Pay Tuition This Semester?
One Hundred and Forty of your classmates didn't have to!
Because they're members of the Massachusetts Army National Guard
Call Today for more information
ARMY NATIONAL GUARD
Americans At Their Best.

OUR SPRING BREAK TRIPS ARE RED HOT!
Come In And Get A FREE Bottle Of Tabasco Sauce!
• South Padre Island
• Cancun
• Jamaica
• Bahamas
• All Other Destinations
Why risk your travel plans with some shady organization? Every year hundreds of students are left stranded. It costs no more to book your Spring Break trip with your local travel experts with a proven track record of successful trips.
Can that flyer or acquaintance from the dorms offer you that?
256-8228
TRAVEL MAKERS INC.
321 Main Street, Amherst (Cor. Dickinson St.)

labor

continued from page 1

ing to Pattison and Witherell.

This sort of thing occurs, "when you crunch numbers without a whole lot of human or interpersonal interaction," he said.

Another factor both men mentioned was that the LRRC is still in its infancy. "Our enrollment in a couple years is going to be 120," Witherell said.

The program

The letter sent by LRRC students to the Chancellor included a request for a meeting with him before the "commuting" students returned home on Jan. 17. Scott said he would not meet with anyone regarding the study until all comments were received.

As a result, LRRC students held a mini-rally hours before leaving campus. Pattison said the issue was "the unfairly developed evaluation of the Labor Relations and Research Center."

Pattison said, "...There's absolutely no way we're going to let our work and our presence here get devalued — or the work of the Labor Center itself — by a fundamentally flawed strategic plan that tries to force square pegs into round holes.

"The pressure for trying to compile an entire strategic study for a campus the size of the University has the potential for flaws," Pattison said. "And this was obviously one of them."

"If a review is done correctly," said Witherell, "we will come up very well. We do quite a lot with very little."

The program has only three full-time professors, according to Witherell, who said LRRC has a reputation of being the best of its kind in the nation.

The 3.1-member AFL-CIO selected UMass-Amherst and LRRC for its masters degree program offered to top union leadership and staff, according to the letter.

But according to that same letter, "the report's recommendation for LRRC contradicts the vision of the University's future contained in the Provost's Strategic Plan for Academic Affairs, which recognizes that 'many graduate students seek more flexible degree programs that better fit the reality of work, family and other obligations'..."

LRRC students cram two graduate-level courses into two 10-day semesters, with six hours of class time each day, in addition to reading and writing assignments.

Before graduation, the students are required to complete either a thesis or an internship.

Witherell, who is beginning an internship at an affiliation of unions called the State Building and Trades Council, estimated that 90 percent of LRRC students opt for an internship.

"One hundred percent of the students who have graduated and have looked for a job in the labor movement have found them," said Witherell.

LRRC student Patricia Greenfield met with the faculty senate before leaving campus.

No one from the faculty senate could be reached for a comment.

Rosenberg

continued from page 1

increased from six to 30 persons in order to deal with its increased responsibilities.

His experience dates back 15 years to when he served as a legislative aide to then state Sen. John Olver, currently representing western Massachusetts in Congress.

Rosenberg succeeded state representative James Collins of Amherst in 1986, and then was elected to John Olver's seat in 1991.

Since then, he has been a prominent architect and player in fashioning bills on campaign finance reform, welfare reform and the motor-voter bill. He also worked to get Senate proceedings televised, and said he would like to see that extend to the western part of the state.

Rosenberg says his approach has been, and will continue to be, one of progressive-ism, and part of that commitment means having to try new approaches to old problems.

"I am committed to Democratic principles — both small "d" and capital "D," but not all programs and policies adopted by Democrats have worked," Rosenberg said.

He says that the leadership in the Senate has begun meeting to plan this year's agenda. Part of that planning includes the commitment to continue moving the Senate toward being a more open institutional body. Rosenberg says he wants the Senate to be seen as responsive to its citizens.

"We want to help rebuild faith in government," he said.

Rosenberg spoke to the upbeat prospects for UMass now that the campus has valuable friends such as Bulger in the president's office, Birmingham in Bulger's old stronghold, and now Rosenberg with control over the state budget.

"It's a wonderful moment in time," Rosenberg said. "UMass on its own has reached a height of strength and capacity that's quite remarkable, but government hasn't rewarded it."

While the state is out of its fiscal crisis of 1988-92, there is no extra money to go around, Rosenberg said. And while he would like to establish a "new equilibrium" in prioritizing new budgets in a manner that would be of some help to the University, he says, "it's not an easy task. We've cut spending so much that there is only a small discretionary pool with a large demand from programs all close to the core of government. It's like choosing among children, not strangers."

The leadership is working within the "Fair Share" plan designed to stabilize student charges, help make the University operate as efficiently as possible, and, in addition to obtaining greater state aid, work to increase private contributions.

While Rosenberg cautions people against high expectations regarding budgetary windfalls for UMass and the western counties, he pointed out that the chairmanship will provide "more options" for him.

"I've always been at the big table where leadership makes recomm.ndations and now I'll be at the little table where the real decisions get handed down," Rosenberg said. "That's exciting; it strengthens western Massachusetts' hand."

Rosenberg does not predict any changes in his personal style.

"I've had a good relationship with the people in my district," he said. "They know me as direct and frank about things. I won't change my style and I will keep people informed."

Along with Rosenberg, Linda Melconian (D-Springfield) was appointed to a leadership post. She is the new assistant majority leader in the Senate.

"It's understandable that people are excited; it's been so long since there's been people [in the power structure] from this area," Rosenberg said.

Shell

continued from page 1

and President of the Movement for the Survival of the Ogoni People Ken Saro-Wiwa, and eight other dissidents.

Oil exports account for over 80 percent of Nigeria's earnings, 95 percent of export income. Nigeria accounts for some 12 percent of Shell's worldwide oil production, pumping about 256,000 barrels per day.

In a Dec. 12 letter sent to President Clinton, a coalition of 54 prominent African-Americans called "for the United States to take appropriate action now."

"Despite oil revenues totaling $210 billion over the last 25 years," they wrote, "Nigeria's treasury has been siphoned empty by the ruling generals who have diverted billions in public funds to their personal accounts abroad. No function of democratically government survives anywhere... all dissent has been brutally suppressed."

In "Shell-Shocked," a report similar to the BBC Drilling Fields, Greenpeace describes the systematic murder, torture, rape and imprisonment of a non-violent people, and the direct links to the intentional policies and corporate decisions of Shell.

"The way in which Shell conducts its business in Ogoni is an indication of the way in which Big Oil operates abroad without proper policing," they wrote. "The brutality waged upon the Ogoni... is a by-product of society's increasing consumption of natural resources."

Joseph Wnukowski, who lives on Route 9 across from the Hadley Shell station, claims that "proper policing" is a misnomer, since Shell, working with local filling station conglomerate O'Connell Oil, has also exploited the people of Hadley.

"They bulldozed this gas station through," Wnukowski said. "People fought it every step of the way. They sunk the fuel tanks right into a major underground stream which flows from to the Connecticut river. They built this station completely opposite to what they promised and what they were permitted."

Shell could not be reached for comment.

"The Shell culture remains one of never apologize and rarely explain," wrote Carl Mortished, reporting on the executions of Ken Saro-Wiwa and the Ogoni nine, in the London Times. "A standard joke in the oil industry is that there is a right way, a wrong way and a Shell way of doing everything."

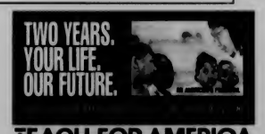
According to Sam Kiley, Africa correspondent for the London Times, the Nigerian army and "mobile police forces" took part in the 1990 massacre at the Ogoni village of Umeuchem, where 80 people were killed, hundreds maimed and 495 houses bombed and burned "at the request of J.P. Odofin, Shell Development Corporation's manager for eastern Nigeria."

The report is substantiated by Human Rights organizations. "The false sense of comfort of white Americans regarding racism needs to be destroyed," said an African-American UMass student at the Hadley Shell. "If people think that blacks in this country and around the world are not being subjugated and slaughtered for the benefits of whites they are extremely deluded. The matter, today, wears a white collar and a tie — this is institutionalized, multi-national slavery."

While the demonstrators stood along Route 9 — they would be arrested if they crossed onto Shell property, according to O'Connell workers on duty — passers by honked or slowed. Others gave demonstrator's the finger. Some patrons, driving in, ignored the protesters to pump their gas, while others stopped, looked and drove out again.

"Sometimes things get a bit ridiculous," said Shell patron Eric Leidberg, a cook from Northampton. "These people protest just about anything. Do they protest something new every week? They should be focusing on things in this country. But do they work? Do they pay their taxes? Do they 'do' anything worthwhile for the community?"

Sparky's Safety Spot
COOL A BURN
If someone gets burned, place the wound in cool water for 10-15 minutes. If the burn blisters or chars, see a doctor immediately. Set the temperature of your hot water heater to 120° F (49° C) or below.
NFPA National Fire Protection Association, Quincy, MA



AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst. 256-0080

New WORLD Theater
Saturday, February 24, 1996. Bowker Auditorium, 8 pm Assimilation Written and performed by Shishir Kurup.
Saturday, March 2, 1996. Bowker Auditorium, 8 pm. The return of last year's hit! La Carpa Aztlan presents "I Don't Speak English Only" by SuTeatro.
Saturday, March 9, 1996. Bowker Auditorium, 8 pm. Night of the Barrio Moon. Written by Anthony J. Garcia Performed by Su Teatro.
Friday & Saturday, March 29 & 30, 1996. Hampden Theater, 8 pm. Pinaytok (Womyntalk) Written by Chris Millado. Performed by Theater Ma-Yi.
Friday & Saturday, April 12 & 13, 1996. Hampden Theater, 8 pm. More Than Feathers and Beads Written and performed by Muriel Borst.
Friday & Saturday, April 19 & 20, 1996. Hampden Theater, 8 pm. FREE. Excerpts from The Heartbeat of America A staged reading. Written by Lane Nishikawa.
Tickets are: Students/Senior Citizens/Children $3.50; General Public $6.00 For tickets, call the FAC Box Office at (413) 545-2511. For more information about season events call NWT at (413) 545-1972.
Spring 1996

The FYI section of the Collegian is open to the community to advertise events in the area. Our deadline is 3 p.m. daily and we do not accept FYIs over the phone. Please mail or hand deliver your submissions as early as possible.
All submissions must be typewritten with a contact name and phone number to clarify any questions.
Massachusetts Daily Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

HOT SIZZLIN SALES TO START THE WINTER THAW
Jan. 31st - Feb. 3rd
Regency Hairstylists
Downtown Amherst • 253-9526

Amherst Area Chamber of Commerce & Amherst Leisure Services presents the Then & Now Auction
A Red & White Mid-Winter Party
Saturday, February 10, 1996
(snow date: March 2, 1996)
Lord Jeffery Inn
Viewing from 1-5:00 p.m.
Buffet & Entertainment: 6:30 p.m.
Auction 7:30 p.m.
Tickets: $10 in advance, $15 at the door, $5 for students
Includes sumptuous buffet & musical entertainment

AESTHETICS
SKIN CARE FOR MEN & WOMEN
Deep pore cleansing and peeling facials, lash and brow tinting, brow shaping, hair waxing, therapeutic massage
34 Main St. Amherst, 253-9879

Judie's
Munchie Madness
Nachos Especial (for 2 or more) $7.25 $3.63
Gargonzola Buffalo Potatoes $6.95 $3.48
Shrimp Tempura $6.25 $3.13
And More!
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

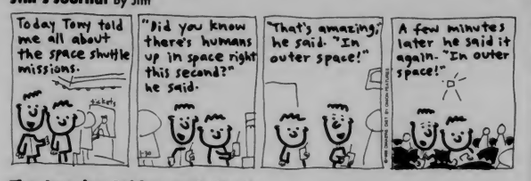
SPRING BREAK '96
FLEX
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
253-3539
GET READY!!!

Hey Comic Fans!
The Words & Pictures Museum is a non-profit organization devoted to giving the graphic form of storytelling the exposure it deserves.
Call 413-586-8545
140 Main Street
Northampton
Ma. 01060
WORDS & PICTURES MUSEUM

Howdy! We're here to pass along some information about the Words & Pictures Museum's volunteer program.
That's right. Do you ever want to get an inside look at the comic industry?
How they're made? Who are the artists?
What kind of pencils they use?
Sure!
Being a volunteer gives you a chance to meet your favorite comic book and fantasy artists and writers.
Rooms familiar with original art from some of the most influential artists in comics work with great people also.
Get discounts on store merchandise we're free movies and it looks also on a resume!
Makes you feel good too!
Hours are flexible and you get to help Judy expose people to an art form you really care about!
So call the museum coordinator before June and ask for Sherri.
She's waiting to hear from YOU!
Now look at that! There's a hole in my boot.

Jim's Journal By Jim

Jim's Journal By Jim



Today Tony told me all about the space shuttle missions.
"Did you know there's humans up in space right this second?" he said.
"That's amazing," he said. "In outer space!"
A few minutes later he said it again. "In outer space!"

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

IT'S LIKE LOOKING FOR A NEEDLE IN A HAYSTACK, BUT I'VE GOT TO FIND THE MAN-MONSTER!
ONE INJECTION OF THIS ANTIDOTE MIGHT TURN HIM BACK TO NORMAL!
WHILE, A FEW BLOCKS AWAY...

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

DAZED, CONFUSED, HIS MIND A CLOUDED VEIL, THE MAN-MONSTER LUMBERS THROUGH THE CITY LIKE A CALAMITY WAITING TO HAPPEN!
PANIC AND FEAR DOG HIS EVERY STEP...
...ON A FATEFUL COLLISION COURSE TO DISASTER!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I'VE GOT TO GET THE SERUM TO HOWARD — BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE
MEANWHILE...
I'M SORRY, DR. NORBERT — YOU CAN'T KEEP USING MY TALK SHOW TO TURN THE CITY AGAINST DR. "LIZARD"!
JUST ONE MORE INTERVIEW! AFTER ALL, LOOK WHAT I'VE DONE FOR YOUR RATINGS!
EXPOSE DATE
ALL RIGHT! WE AIR IN FOUR MINUTES!

Dilbert By Scott Adams

WE WON THE BID TO REBUILD OUR NATION'S AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL SYSTEMS.
YIPPEEE!!!
YES!!
TO THE PHONES!
THEY DON'T USUALLY GET THAT EXCITED.
BUY A THOUSAND SHARES OF "BLUEHOUND BUS LINES."

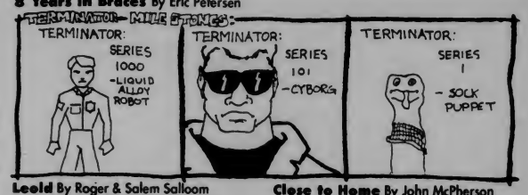
Dilbert By Scott Adams

I HIRED THE "DOGBERT CONSULTING COMPANY" TO LEAD THE PROJECT BECAUSE NONE OF YOU IS BRIGHT ENOUGH.
AND YOU ALL HAVE BAD ATTITUDES FOR NO APPARENT REASON; THAT'S NO WAY TO BE A LEADER.
SHALL WE GO AROUND THE TABLE AND INTRODUCE OURSELVES?
I DON'T GET CHUMMY WITH THE LOCALS.

Ali People By Ali

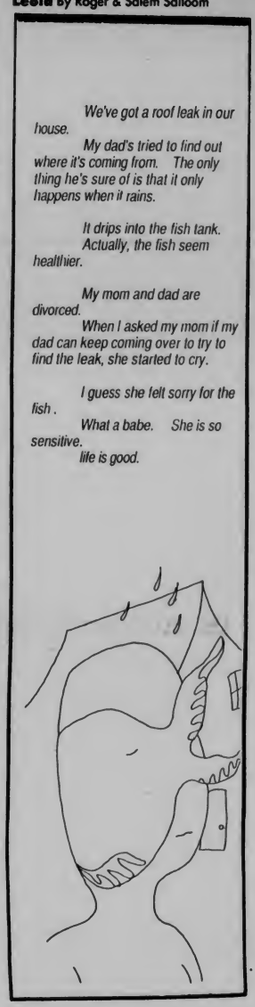
Collegian Graphics
When our job is done,
Yours has just begun

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen



TERMINATOR MILE STONES
TERMINATOR: SERIES 1000 - LIQUID ALLOY ROBOT
TERMINATOR: SERIES 101 - CYBORG
TERMINATOR: SERIES 1 - SOCK PUPPET

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



We've got a roof leak in our house.
My dad's tried to find out where it's coming from. The only thing he's sure of is that it only happens when it rains.
It drips into the fish tank. Actually, the fish seem healthier.
My mom and dad are divorced.
When I asked my mom if my dad can keep coming over to try to find the leak, she started to cry.
I guess she felt sorry for the fish.
What a babe. She is so sensitive. life is good.

Close to Home By John McPherson

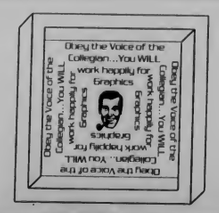
Closing time at Adventure Zone Playland.

Close to Home By John McPherson

Tired of constantly searching for the TV remote, Sven opts for one of the new remote implants.

Today's Staff

Night Editors.....Matt Vautour
.....Matt Audette
.....Jacob W. Michaels
Copy Editors.....Tara MK Connelly
.....Geri Sahn
.....Mike Maclean
.....Amy Paradysz
Photo Technician.....Emily Reilly
Production.....James Ganley
.....Tony Morse
.....Kathryn Gracia
.....Mark Dionne
.....Kevin Farrar



Obey the Voice of the Collegian...You WILL work happily for Graphics
Obey the Voice of the Collegian...You WILL work happily for Graphics

Can You Draw? Interested in Drawing a Cartoon or Comic?

There is a meeting at 2pm on February 4 in the Collegian Newsroom 113 Campus Center.

Please Bring Several Samples with you.

If you have any questions, or cannot attend please contact Marni Hefner Managing Editor at 545-3500

Quote of the Day

"To conquer the world!

–Madonna's response to Dick Clark's question, "Now that you have a gold record, what do you want to do next?" on American Bandstand

SLAB OF CLAY
It's 4 a.m. Gumby's on TV. It reminds you of a simpler time. Saturday cartoons with your big brother. You suddenly miss him. So you call. He says, "You're my pony pal Pokey." There ain't a dry eye in the house.
1-800-COLLECT®
Save The People You Call Up To 44%.
Gumby and Gumby Characters are Registered Trademarks of Prema Toy Co., Inc. All rights reserved. ©1996 Prema Toy Co., Inc.
For long-distance calls. Savings based on a 3-minute AT&T operator-dialed interstate call.

Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ARTS & LIVING

Tuesday January 30, 1996

Back to School • Volume CV Issue 69

cable saves viewers from rerun hell

Tube Notes by Seema Gangatirkar

During the holidays, television took a brief hiatus from its usual plethora of shows to indulge itself with a constant barrage of re-runs — good for the actors, bad for the viewers. However, its during these times that we thank the cable-god for his continuing ability to keep us amused when we can't go outside.

It's certainly been a Jane Austen year. The English authoress saw her witty novels about 19th century society immortalized on the big screen this year. Starting with Alicia Silverstone's hit Clueless (based on Emma), followed in quick succession by Persuasions and Emma Thompson (and Hugh Grant) in Sense and Sensibility. However, the most famous novel of them all, Pride & Prejudice, found a home on the Arts & Entertainment network (A&E).

The network filmed the classic comedy of manners as a six hour mini-series. While faithful to the central themes in the novel, A&E was also conscious of the time period and location. As a result, the all British cast shone as Elizabeth Bennett (played by Jennifer Ehle, who was adequate) and Mr. Darcy danced circles around each other before surrendering to the possibility that they could be in love.

The Family Channel is in the process of airing the epic mini-series "North and South." The all-star cast includes Kirstie Alley, Jonathan Frankes, Genie Francis, Patrick Swayze and Elizabeth Taylor. The series, based on John Jakes' best-selling trilogy of the same

Turn to TV page B8

Velvet Underground makes it into Hall of Fame

• Two weeks ago the Rock N' Roll Hall of Fame held its 11th annual induction ceremonies. Unfortunately, most music fans, except those in attendance at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in Manhattan, didn't have a chance to see the legendary performances.

Among the highlights was a performance by inductees, The Velvet Underground, minus the recently deceased Sterling Morrison. This marked the first time since Morrison's death that surviving members Lou Reed, John Cale and Maureen Tucker performed together.

Alternative rock god Billy Corgan of the Smashing Pumpkins had the honors of inducting legendary space rockers Pink Floyd into the Hall of Fame. Later, a bald-headed Corgan jammed with his idols.

Other rock and roll legends that were inducted included: David Bowie, Gladys Knight and the Pips, the Jefferson Starship, the Shirelles, Pete Seeger, Little Willie John and the progressive rock disc jockey Tom Donahue.

• After a highly successful collaboration with Pearl Jam, Neil Young is taking another run that is turning heads — he is starting his own record label, Vapor. Good news for Young fans, especially those who enjoyed his experimental 35 minute piece Arc, as the debut release on Vapor will be an hour long soundtrack to the Jim Jarmusch film, Dead Man, featuring all "ambient guitar improvisations." Upcoming releases include the debut album by the Customers and a new recording by Boston's own Jonathan Richman.

• Ray Davies, lead singer of the Kinks, brings his acclaimed one man show featuring readings, performances and more to the Wentworth Theater Center in New York from Feb. 12 – 18.

• Tragedy struck the Boston music scene twice during the recent Blizzard of '96 as Billy Conway of Morphine and solo artist Laurie Sargent had a terrible sledding accident leaving both of them hospitalized. Benefit shows to help with the medical bills are currently being organized in Boston.

• Less than a week away is the much hyped Alanis Morrisette show at the William D. Mullins Center in Amherst. So far on the tour Morrisette has been featuring all your favorites off her highly successful album.

Turn to MUSIC page B6

Spring Semester 1996

ringing in a new year

When looking back at the whirlwind 1995 you'll be amazed at all that has happened. From the Oklahoma bombing to the stunning conclusion of the Simpson Trial, this year has been jam packed with events.

Today, the Arts staff takes a look at the good and bad times, the headline makers, the page turners and those that define today's society. We'll see things that make us smile and things that make us wonder what the hell happened.

Take a look at the many movies of the year by reviewer Laura Stock and special contributor Jon Lupo. Glance at what this year's music staff thought were the best albums of the season from PJ Harvey to Versus. Also see what TV critic Seema Gangatirkar has picked as the Best and Worst TV-land had to offer. And finally check-out what everyone was wearing from thigh high boots to blood red nails.

1995 was definitely a year to remember.

— Tara MK Connelly

'95 movies go Austen

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

It was good girls versus bad boys at the box office this past holiday season, as Hollywood delivered its usual array of end-of-the-year films. One thing is certain, however — whether it be Austen-inspired courtships or suicidal drinking binges, 1995's race for the Oscar is certainly a heated one likely to end in a photo finish. Here's a recap of the hits (and some let-downs) that helped end the year with a bang.

SENSE AND SENSIBILITY
Directed by Ang Lee
with Emma Thompson, Hugh Grant

The most popular woman in Hollywood has been dead for nearly 200 years. She is literary great Jane Austen and her novels have been so wonderfully adapted to screen, even the most stuffy of English professors can't grumble about them.

This trend that movie producers are lately calling "jumping on the Austen bandwagon," isn't a new one. The BBC filmed a version of Pride and Prejudice several years ago, followed by another exquisite A&E production on cable television this month. This summer saw an Emma-inspired Clueless, and Persuasion starred a sensation in December.

Sense and Sensibility had all the ingredients for a hit, and director Ang Lee can take most of the credit. It was beautifully filmed amongst fields of wildflowers and rolling green hills, and was expertly cast. Emma Thompson (who faithfully adapted the screenplay) stars as Elinor Dashwood, the sensible older sister of Marianne (Kate Winslet). After their father's money is willed outside of the family the two girls strive to find husbands who can satisfy both their hearts and pocketbooks. Hugh Grant abandons his usual comic quirks and dramatically portrays Elinor's object of desire.

Sense is so appealing to contemporary audiences because it reflects Austen's great wit and how she had her finger on the pulse of British society in the 1800's — and situations that were funny or sad then prove to be equally as emotional now. A

FOUR ROOMS
Directed by Allison Anders, Alexandre Rockwell, Robert Rodriguez, Quentin Tarantino with Antonio Banderas, Madonna, Bruce Willis

When four of the hottest indie directors join forces to make a film complete with their favorite little clique of actors, a pop cultural phenomenon is supposed to occur, right?

Wrong — especially with the New Year's letdown, Four Rooms.

Allison Anders (Gas Food Lodging), Alexandre Rockwell (In The Soup), Robert Rodriguez (Desperado) and Quentin Tarantino each direct their own "room" in this dark comedy set in an old Hollywood hotel. The tie-in is the awkward mite of a bellhop named Ted, who has his misadventures in each room. Played by perennial favorite Tim Roth, Ted is more slimy than innocent, and with all of his

Turn to MOVIES, page B8

Biography looks at tennis pro

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

ANDRIENNE BLUE
The Lives and Time of Martina Navratilova
Birch Lane Press

She is touted as the greatest female tennis player of all time. A lefty with a stinging backhand from Czechoslovakia, Martina Navratilova has led a colorful life.

In this new, unauthorized biography by sports writer Adrienne Blue, the life of the tennis player is chronicled fully, from the high points to the low points of a remarkable career.

Navratilova was born in an Eastern European country, and from the very beginning her tennis was shaped by the rules and regulations of the now defunct communist regime. Fiercely independent and longing for the freedom that rival and close friend Chris Evert had, the pro defected to the United States where she indulged in french fries, hamburgers and other American culinary delights.

Along the way, the tennis star became involved with novelist Rita Mae Brown. Their relationship would have a profound effect on the then rising star and her game. Other notable influences would later include the legendary Billie Jean King, Nancy Leiberman, her coach Mike Estep and Sandra Haynie.

Blue holds nothing back. The biography takes the attitude that nothing is sacred in Navratilova's life. Certainly the reader is treated to a fair share of her ups and downs as well as a great many references and theories about her sexual orientation. Highlighted in the book is the tennis star's well-publicized break-up with long-time companion Judy Brown.

There is also a great deal of focus placed on Navratilova the athlete. Play-by play descriptions of key matches in her career are given, as well as the triumphant winning of her record ninth Wimbledon title.

The author's style is unabashly frank. She peppers the book with passing shots from other tennis players on the woman's circuit, including fellow Czech players like Hana Mandilkova and Jana Novotna, which lends the gossip tone of the book some credibility. While some diehard fans might have a few illusions shattered along the way, Blue has done a fairly decent job at putting together a portrait of a complex sports figure. B

For more book reviews turn to page 5.

Layout & Design by: James P. Gorrie, & Traci Yik-Connelly

SHORT CUTS

Edited by Tara MK Connelly

Quotes of Note

Confrontational topics for up coming "Ricki Lake" shows:

1. "Back off, Boys, I'm a Lesbian — You'll Never Have Me!"
2. "Yeah, I'm only 13, But I'm Going to Have a Baby!"
3. "You Have No Friends and Today I'll Tell You Why!"
4. "You Think It's Okay to Hit Me, But Today the Abuse Stops!"
5. "Today I Nominate You the Worst Boyfriend in America!"

— From Entertainment Weekly

"The audience all wants to say something. In the beginning, they're giving me a standing ovation, and by the end, they're all pissed at me that they didn't get their question asked."

— Ricki Lake on the burdens of a talk show hostess.

People and Pop Culture in the News

The break is finally over and it's back to the whine and grind of campus life. Well, while all of you have been sacking out on the family couch drooling over day time soaps, talk shows and the whatever MTV throws at you, several celebrities have been a bit more active.

Hey, Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley broke up. If you bet money their marriage would out-last the Energizer bunny, than you're even lamer than its commercials.

Breath a sigh of relief! Fans of Keiko, the orca (killer whale is just too harsh) that played Willy in the oh-so- touching movie Free Willy (and its more than memorable sequel Free Willy 2) will be glad to know he has been moved to a bigger tank. It is nearly four (yes, four) times larger than his old tank, and believe me he's a better whale for it and will therefore be more open to further Willy movies.

The small town of Carey, Idaho changed its name for a day in honor of actor Jim Carrey's birthday (34). They based an entire days festivities around it too. The town also declared him an honorary volunteer fireman. However, the actor was not present.

Victoria Seeret's female buyers are pointing a finger at the company accusing it of giving males lower discounts on catalogue purchases. Maybe they should just give discounts to all the guys that use female pseudonyms so they can have the catalogue delivered incognito. It isn't as rare an occurrence as you may think.

Mark Harmon is the celebrity hero of the month. He recently saved a life when he pulled a kid from a burning car. Too bad he can't do the same for his career — remember Summer School? Kevin Costner also played hero when he used a garden hose to fight a fire near his new home in Santa Barbara, Calif. The fire was on New Year's Eve and took one whole hour to extinguish.

Kudos to Rosie O'Donnell, she just adopted a son, Parker Jaren, last month.

Farewell to Bryant Gumbel. The "Today" anchorman announced that 1996 will be the last year he'll join Katie Couric at the news desk. This will end a 15 year career with the show.

Talk show hosts beware — if your show sucks beyond belief (and many of them do) don't think American viewers will watch you just because there's nothing else on. Getting the ax for the studios are "Gabrielle," "Charles Perez," "Stephanie Miller" and "Danny!." Now what about "Carnie," "Richard Bay" and "Tempest?"

This holiday season it was Adam Sandler's "Chanukah Song" that was the hottest holiday tune outplaying Bruce Springsteen's "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town." One radio station received over 20,000 requests for it.

Material for this column has been compiled from various news and wire services by Tara MK Connelly.

Editors' Cuts

Clothes — Chic Simple

Ever wake up in the morning and wonder what to wear? Ever open your closet and find you have absolutely nothing? Nothing, despite the fact you either a) shop so much that you no longer have any room to hold the stuff or b) nothing because you really don't have anything.

Well, whether you're a minimalist or an over-spender, the new book Chic Simple, the latest in an ongoing series of "Simple" books, is designed to help the most frugal and fanciful shoppers find the clothes they need to start or add to a wardrobe.

The "Simple" folks are known for creating a line of books anyone can understand and follow with easy to read print, a minimal of jargon and lots of pictures.

Anyway, this book tells you what the basics are, how to mix and match them, and what to avoid. It's a great book for those who are clueless or those who just want to say, "oh I knew that!" Either way it's a great purchase.

— Tara MK Connelly

Book — Pop Watch

Coming in at over 120 pages, Pop Watch isn't your average magazine. It is less like the Do-It-Yourself 'zines that are photocopied at your local Kinko's, and more like national magazines such as Option and Alternative Press.

Interviews are extensive and interesting. Perhaps most importantly they are with bands and artists who are ignored by most music press: Strapping Fieldhands, Tony Conrad, Ray Monigomery and more.

Want more? How about a Magic Hour tour diary written by Naomi Yang and a full feature on the Undertones.

Like most music press it is also jam packed with album and singles reviews of obscure bands such as Avocado Baby and Mile Wide to MTV stars such as the Folk Implosion.

Put down that issue of SPIN with Trent Reznor on the cover and pick up the new issue of Pop Watch. It is a lot more fun and not a part of a corporate America!

— Mike Burke

Book — True Colors

Doris Mortman scored big with her two previous bestsellers, First Born and Rightfully Mine, using the combination of family secrets, revenge and fame and fortune as the winning formula. Mortman puts that very same formula to work on her newest book, True Colors, and sadly falls short of perfect marks.

The story for the most part is inherently weak. Tangential plot lines and anti-climatic moments obscure an otherwise sound premise. The author also has a nasty habit of getting off the point only to leave the reader lost in space. Sometimes loose ends are a clever way to attract the readers attention, but these loose ends only add to the already weak links the book is overly burdened with.

Mortman strives for subtle wit and heart moving emotions, but unfortunately her true colors need a lot of color guard because it definitely fades from memory.

— Seema Gangatirkar

Ever Think of writing for Sports?

Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

Mandatory All Staff Meeting

Sunday, February 4 at 7:00pm Collegian Newsroom

Come Enjoy our all new delicious BUFFET

Over 20 Different Items To Choose

Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner

Lunch Buffet • $5.95

Dinner Buffet • $8.95

Soups • Entrees • Appetizers

Regular Lunch and Dinner Menus Always Available • Full Liquor License

10% off PICK UP/TAKE OUT ORDERS

Cannot Combine With Other Offers • 1 Coupon Per Person

"Bringing The Tradition To You"

CHINA DYNASTY RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE

Delivery thru Delivery Express 549-0077 • Route 9 & University Drive in Amherst

256-8800

OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM • FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM • SUN 12-10 PM

Remember The Name, 'Cause You'll Never Forget The Taste!

BELL'S Pizza HOUSE 29 Years 1967-1996

DINE - IN OR TAKE OUT

PIZZA • LARGE & MEDIUM GRINDERS • SPAGHETTI SALADS (CHEF, TOSSED & GREEK)

We Deliver Through Delivery Express 549-0077

549-1311

65 University Drive • Amherst

COLLEGIAN ARTS AND LIVING

Calendar of Events

MUSIC

•The Iron Horse

Walter "Wolfman" Washington & The Roadmasters, Jan. 30, 7 p.m., $8.

CD Release Party with Pete Nelson and Cormac McCarthy, Jan 31, 7 p.m., $8.

Rosie Flores, Feb. 1, 7 p.m., $8.

Carol Noonan, Feb. 2, 7 p.m., $8.

Aka Rude Girls, Feb. 3, 7 p.m., $8.

Duo Guardabarranco, Feb. 4, 7 p.m., $10.

•Pearl Street

Chucklehead, Feb. 1. / 99.3 Dance Party, 18+, upstairs, 8 p.m.

John Sheldon & Blue Streak, Feb. 2 / Retro Night, 21+, upstairs, 9 p.m.

Magic Slim & The Teardrops, Feb. 3 / Club Night, 21+, upstairs, 9 p.m.

•The Grotto

Clovis Point & Flying Mike, Jan. 30, 18+

• Hotel Northampton

Art Steele, Feb. 2

Ellen Cogen, Feb. 3

• Mullins Center

Alanis Morrisette, Feb. 4, 7 p.m.

FILMS

Call theaters for shows and showtimes.

Academy of Music (584–8435)

Amherst Cinema (253–5426)

Hampshire Six (584–7550)

Mt. Farms Four Theaters (584–9153)

Pleasant Stree. Theater (584–0935)

EXHIBITS

"Women, War and Work: The prints of Kathe Kollwitz," Smith College (SC) Art Museum, 585–2760.

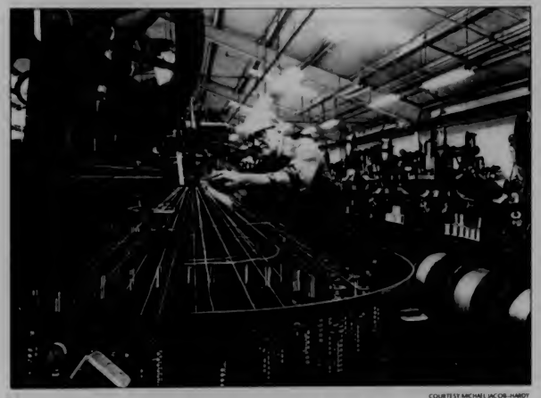
"I Am A Man: The Civil Right Photographs of Earnest Withers 1955 – 1968," Mount Holyoke (MH) College Museum of Art, 538–2245.

"Classic Comics," Words & Pictures Museum, 584–8545.

"The Danee," paintings and drawings by Donald Bourdreaux. Augusta Savage Gallery, Mon. & Tues. 1 p.m. – 7 p.m., Wed. – Fri. 1 p.m. – 5 p.m. 545–5177.

"The Dead Souls: An Interactive Virtual–Reality Installation," Janine Cirincione & Michael Ferraro, University Gallery, UMass.

"An Installation," Olivia Bernard, Smith College Museum of Art, 4:30 p.m. – 6 p.m. 585–2777.



COURTESY MICHAEL JACOB-HARDY

Picture of Edward Welch is part of the "Changing Landscape of Labor: American Workers and Workplaces" exhibit.

COURTESY SUMMIT RECORDS

Chucklehead returns to the Valley this coming Thursday night.

"Locks, Stocks a...: Barrels: The South Hadley Canal at 200 Years," (MH) art museum.

"Interior Lives," photographs by Ellen Finkelstein & "Architectural Abstractions," paintings by Shirley Tiano, Forbes Library, Northampton 586 – 0489.

FINE ARTS

"Rite of Spring," Feb. 1 – 2, Hampden Theater, UMass, 8 p.m., $10 gen.; $5 students/seniors, 545–2511.

The Aulos Ensemble, Feb. 3, SC, Sage Hall, 8 p.m.

A Capella Fest '96, Feb. 3, John M. Greene Hall, SC, 8 p.m., $15.50 adults; $12.50 students at the door: $18.00.

Silver Chord Bowl, Feb. 4, Academy of Music, 2 p.m., $5 adv.; $7/door.

The World of Raga, Jan. 31, Warren Senders, Hindustani musician. Five College Learning in Retirement Program. Free and open to the public. AC, Campus Center, 10 a.m.

LECTURES

"Celebration of South Hadley," Jan. 31, teachers workshop, (MH) Art Museum, 4 p.m. – 6 p.m.

"River Gods and Canal Builders: Colonel Worthington et al.," Feb 1, Gambel Auditorium, (MH), 7:30.

"Views of South Hadley, Where Nature and Art Unite," Feb. 2, (MH) Art Museum.

Zen Shiatzu, Feb. 2, Japanese massage therapy, Oasis, 63 Main St., Amherst, 7 p.m. – 9 p.m., free with limited space, 256–4995.

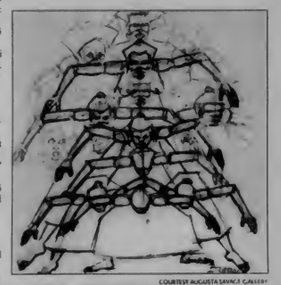
OTHER

Performing Arts Division (PAD), Information and Registration, Feb. 2, Bartlett 73, UMass, 9 a.m. – 4 p.m.

"PAD Goes Pops!," Feb. 4, music, acting and dance faculty featuring commercial, folk, diverse and jazz styles, BRH, 3 p.m., free.

Audition, University of Massachusetts Department of Theater will hold auditions for Vinegar Tom; Wed., Jan. 31 and Thurs., Feb. 1 from 7 p.m. – 11 p.m. at the Curtain Theater at UMass. Callbacks will be held on Fri. Feb. 2 starting at 7 p.m. in the Curtain Theater. Auditions are open to community members as well as 5–College students.

Opening Reception for the Northampton Center of the Arts third annual celebration of Black History month. Leonel Gongora, Columbian painter, will exhibit his work. Call 584–7327 for details.



COURTESY AUGUSTA SAVAGE GALLERY

"The Dance" exhibition opening in the Augusta Savage Gallery.

dairy mart

CORNER OF PLEASANT & TRIANGLE ST., AMHERST, MA (413) 549-5606

Welcome Back Students!

WE FEATURE AN EXTENSIVE TACO BELL® MENU!

TACO BELL Express

- Taco 69¢
- Soft Taco 69¢
- Bean Burrito 69¢
- Pinto Beans & Cheese 69¢
- Nachos 89¢
- Taco Supreme™ 89¢
- Soft Taco Supreme® 89¢
- Double Decker Taco 99¢
- Chicken Soft Taco $1.09
- Double Decker Taco Supreme™ $1.19
- Chicken Burrito $1.29
- Combo Burrito $1.29
- Burrito Supreme® $1.69
- Beef Burrito $1.69
- Nachos Bellgrande® $1.99
- Taco Salad $2.99

TACO BELL® At Dairy Mart Opens At 10 AM - Seven Days A Week!

See In Store For Daily Closing Times

TACO BELL logo, SOFT TACO SUPREME, NACHOS BELLGRANDE & BURRITO SUPREME are registered trademarks of Taco Bell Corp.

Coupon Savings! 3 TACOS & FOUNTAIN DRINK (22 OZ.) $2.29 WITH THIS COUPON

Coupon good thru Feb. 17, 1996. Cannot be combined with any other promotional offer. Limit one per customer. Valid at Dairy Mart, Corner of Pleasant & Triangle St., Amherst, MA only. No cash value.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian Has Openings for Paid Positions for the Spring 1996 Semester:

- Black Affairs Editor
- Jewish Affairs Editor
- Women's Issues Editor
- Librarian
- Assistant to the Managing Editor

All applicants must be full-time, undergraduate students.

Interested students should complete an application and speak with either the managing editor or editor in chief.

The deadline for applications in 4 p.m. on Wednesday, February 7, 1996.

If you have any further questions, feel free to contact either Marni Helfner, Managing Editor or Matt Vautour, Editor in Chief, at 545-3500.

~ ALBUM REVIEWS ~

Halo Benders lets Johnson soar

Roomful of Blues adds another album to their 25-year legacy

THE HALO BENDERS
Don't Tell Me Now
K Records

As a member of Beat Happening and the founder of K Records, Calvin Johnson has had a monumental influence on today's music scene. By simply following his heart he reinvented the true meaning of punk rock in more ways than one. Since the sad end of Beat Happening, Johnson has kept busy with two new bands, Dub Narcotic and the Halo Benders, which also features the Boise's only rock star Doug Martsch of Built To Spill. In 1994 the Halo Benders released God Don't Make No Junk, and made many a music fan head spin as the two proved to be a near flawless songwriting team, something they may have since forgotten.

From the opening moments of "Phantom Power" the song is reminiscent of noisy Beat Happening with the innocent fuzzy guitars and Johnson's trademark baritone vocals.

On "Halo Bender" and "Mercury Blues" the two sing together, a pure blissful combination. But there is simply not enough of this. "Bombshelter Pt 1" shows off the bands' edgier punk side, while "Bombshelter Pt 2" features a semi- lecture by Johnson on the American military and draft dodgers.

Overall, this 35 minute album is recommended, but due to Martsch's back up role in the band the music suffers. God Don't Make No Junk was a fabulous debut because the two musicians collaborated so well, but here Johnson takes center stage, a place where Martsch should be too. B (Mike Burke)

The Halo Benders just released their debut album Don't Tell Me Now.

COURTESY REUBEN LORCH-MILLER

ROOMFUL OF BLUES
Turn It On! Turn It Up!
Bullseye Blues

Over the past 25 years Roomful Of Blues have gone through more line-up changes than Guns 'n' Roses, but they have steadily remained a top notch blues act known for their hot covers and equally raw originals. Lead by drummer John Rossi and saxophonist Rich Lataille, both of whom have been in the band since 1970, Roomful of Blues now features seven more blues masters. On vocals and harmonica is the multi-talented Sugar Ray Nocia who penned three of the originals on Turn It On! Turn It Up! His tune, "If You Know It" is a guaranteed crowd pleaser with its toe tapping melody augmented by some of the liveliest horns around.

Roomful of Blues hits new highs with latest album.

COURTESY DAVID PEBLUCK

The opening track, "Blind Love," a B.B. King original, is a Chicago blues classic with piercing guitar solos courtesy of Chris Vachon and upbeat, bouncy horn riffs. The band slows the pace down on the next song, "I Left My Baby," a popular Count Basie tune from the '40s.

The Vachon tune "Slam Jam" is a rockin' blues instrumental that brings back memories of Steve Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble circa In Step.

The album's self explanatory title are all the directions you need for maximum enjoyment. Turn It On! Turn It Up! features a band that knows how to rock, swing and play the blues with the best of them. A- (M.B.)

FRANK BLACK
The Cult Of Ray
American Recordings

The artist formerly known as Black Francis is back and once again has failed to capture the sheer brilliance of his former band the Pixies. If this was anyone else, The Cult Of Ray may be hailed as an impressive outing with the abundance of catchy tunes, infectious hooks and weird lyrics. Although this is an enjoyable record the artist formerly known as Black Francis must be placed on a higher pedestal than your average MTV wannabe alternative rocker with a mohawk who just moved to California.

He is caught in the same dilemma that Paul McCartney found himself in the '70s. Wings was a good band, but compared to the Beatles they were nothing. McCartney could never rewrite "Yesterday" and the artist formerly known as Black Francis will never rewrite "Monkey Gone To Heaven," but he hasn't stopped trying yet.

The opening two tunes, "The Marsist" and "Men In Black" are mere Pixies rip off tunes. "Punk Rock City" is quite boring and completely unmemorable. "You Ain't Me" sounds like ... well I am sure you can guess, but it is proof there is some hope left. Now only if we could get Kim Deal to play bass and sing backing vocals.

One piece of advice, after listening to this recording, make sure you listen to Doolittle or Surfer Rosa just so you don't forget how talented the artist formerly known as Black Francis' old band was. C (M.B.)

VARIOUS ARTISTS
Punk You: Music For the Discerning Slacker Punk Vol. I
EMI Records

Warning: This album contains 17 bands that will make Green Day, Rancid, Elastica and virtually every other "punk" band look like mere '90s posers. The music featured here is the true, authentic thing — British and American bands of the late '70s who strived on true D.I.Y. ethics performing classic tunes such as "Oh Bondage (Up Yours)" and "One Hundred Punks."

On one hand the ethics behind releasing a 17-song "greatest hits" that attempts to capture the punk days must be questioned. Did Poly Styrene of X-Ray Spex ever intend to sing "Some people think little girls should be seen and not heard, but I think Oh bondage up yours!" on a compilation marketed to slacker punks that also features killing Joke? Hardly.

And where are the Ramones? The Clash? Even the Sex Pistols, who seem to have released more albums than songs, are a no show. How can you release a punk rock compilation album ignoring these legendary figures — they were the dinosaurs of the punk age.

But on a more uplifting note, this compilation could serve as a key introduction to several essential bands from the Buzzcocks to Wire to the Stranglers all of whom have remained in the shadows of obscurity while bands like Elastica borrow their ideas all the way into the Top 40. C- (M.B.)

THE COCTAILS
The Coctails
Carrot Top Records

Turn to TRAX, page B6

Newbury Comics

50 Main Street, Amherst
256-8840

Special: Amherst Store Only!

IT'S A COLOSSAL CD BLOWOUT SALE!

$3.00 off

All Single Length Discs
$12.99 Or More!
Now Thru February 14th!
• No Double Discounts • Sale Items Excluded •

Sale Ends 2/14/96

~ BOOK REVIEWS ~

Grisham makes thrilling return to courtroom

Rainmaker's fresh characters save author from drowning

By Tara MK Connelly & Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

JOHN GRISHAM
The Rainmaker
Island Books

John Grisham has released yet another bestseller in paperback. The Rainmaker is a refreshing foray into the life of law student Rudy Baylor cleverly told in the first person.

Rudy, like most upcoming law school graduates, is eagerly anticipating a hassle-free senior year taking blow-off courses and bartending at a local hang out. He has a place in a small but established firm, is studying for the bar and although bankrupt, sees a bright future ahead.

Enter Professor Smoot and his "geezer law" class, a seemingly easy course that has Rudy soliciting free law advice to senior citizens. It is during one of these session at the Cypress Garden retirement home that Rudy meets his first clients — an eccentric old woman named Miss Birdie Birdsong and a couple named Dot and Buddy Black.

It is the Blacks' case that takes center stage, presenting Rudy with a multi-million dollar law suit against a fraudulent insurance company. Unfortunately, after receiving the case he loses his soon-to-be position at the small law firm, only to later realize that the agency he hopes to sue is represented by the same firm that caused him to lose his position.

Through a bizarre twist of fate Rudy is forced to join the firm of a lone shark lawyer named Bruiser who fills him in on the finer points of ambulance chasing. It is during one of his prerequisite stake outs at the local hospital that the student turned lawyer meets Kelly, an battered young woman with a husband who likes to use a bat.

Grisham has Rudy thrown into a mixture of lost causes and "what ifs" valiantly trying to be the champion of the weak and poor while dreaming of being rich and powerful. It is during this quest for morals and seizing of the high ground where he is confronted with his own greed, wrestles with the dark side, woos the lady and somehow manages to end up on top.

Although some might consider some of the side plots a bit extraneous, Grisham manages to tie them up neat enough to impress, but not so neat that you want to throw the book down in disgust. Weaving in and out of the story is a fine tread of compassion and understanding that grips the readers and pulls them gently along only to punch then in the gut when they least expect it.

Rudy is one of the more interesting characters that the author has managed to whip together. One might even say that after the slow moving Chamber, Grisham is definitely back up to par. The protagonist is clearly an idealistic person with just the right amount of cynicism and wit to make him interesting.

Engaging, thought provoking and littered with a bunch of bitter sweet twists and turns, Grisham humanizes this novel and brings its story and characters into the reader's life, making this book a definite page-turner and one of his finest efforts up to date. A (Tara MK Connelly)

BEVERLY WEST and NANCY PESKE
Frankly Scarlett, I Do Give A Damn!
A Parody, Classic Romances Retold
Harper Collins

This is the book for any reader who ever finished a romance and said, "what if it ended differently" or, "if I were to rewrite the ending..." Well, authors Beverly West and Nancy Peske have granted those readers their wish with this funny parody of classic romances — gone the right way.

Who hasn't read Gone With The Wind and wanted to scream at Rhett Butler for being so blind? Who hasn't watched Legends of the Fall and wondered why Susannah settled for Alfred? And isn't there a small part of you that loves Heathcliff, but thinks his head needed to be examined when he gave up Catherine?

This book ends the frustration of the old and brings in the humor of the new to re-create plot lines that will satisfy any belligerent reader. Nothing is safe from the duo's infectious wrath — from Romeo and Juliet to The Scarlet Letter nothing is left untouched.

Much like the bestselling books of PC fairy tales, this book is sure to turn up a few mouths and satisfy even the most dissatisfied customer. B+ (T.M.K.C)

MARY HIGGINS CLARK
The Lottery Winner
Simon & Schuster

What would you do if you won $40 million? Travel around the world, visit exotic health spas or maybe solve mysteries? In the case of Alvirah Meehan, the answer is clearly all of the above.

The former cleaning lady first appeared in Mary Higgins Clark's Weep Na More, My Lady. After narrowly escaping with her life in that novel, Alvirah and her husband Willy again put their lives at risk in the most unusual of situations in this collection of short stories titled, The Lottery Winner.

Now firmly settled in a spacious Central Park South condo, decorated completely in white, the happy couple plan on living the good life, but the mysteries keep popping up and the ever curious Alvirah cannot just sit back and do nothing.

In "The Body in the Closet," the crime practically knocks on Alvirah's doorstep. After returning home from vacation, the intrepid couple discover the body of an ambitious actress in their closet. The prime suspect is the Meehans' nephew, Brian, and his aunt Is determined to prove his innocence.

Winning the lottery is likely to make you famous and the Meehans are no exception. Invited to be guests on "Donahue," the Meehans' modesty about their new wealth attracts the attention of some kidnappers. After Willy is snatched, Alvirah resorts to some clever detective work that would put Nancy Drew to shame.

Even on vacation, Alvirah manages to find trouble. In "Death on the Cape," she aids a young woman in proving her innocence, tracks down stolen jewelry and a murderer in an exclusive health spa catering to the rich and beautiful in "The Lottery Winner."

As always, Higgins Clark's stories are intriguing. This time the collection of stories border more on the mundane rather than the exotic, which makes it overall more interesting. Alvirah and Willy are thoroughly likeable characters — warm-hearted and humorous.

Sometimes predictable, and occasionally shallow, The Lottery Winner overcomes its faults on the merits of its characters. With the lucky couple, Higgins Clark as hit the jackpot. B+ (Seema Gangatirkar)

ISLAND BOOKS

Lady Diana Davenport's steamy travels back to ancient Rome thrill in Virginia Henley's "Enslaved."

JACK HIGGINS
Confessional
Stein & Day

New release roots for the nice guy

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

Authors Beverly West and Nancy Peske are champions of the underdog and in Frankly Scarlet, I Do Give A Damn, they are all rooting for the good guy.

"We're both English majors and read a lot of classical romances," Beverly West said. "In them we realized that the heroine was always throwing herself on a rail road track, dying of consumption or something equally horrible at the end. We wanted to fix their fate and we realized that if the romantic hero in the books would just act like responsible adults, then there would be a happy ending."

The two co-authors are first cousins who not only share the same genes, but also the same wry sense of humor that makes their third book hilarious and stunningly insightful.

West and Peske have decided to rewrite the classics, and in a way rewrite all the stereotypes surrounding the modern male stereotypes women unconsciously place on men because of their cultural upbringing.

"The joke of the book is about all the self-help advice women take and apply them to romantic heros. We then realize that they're not sexy once they are doing the dishes," West said.

Nancy Peske believes every woman falls for the dark, brooding male in books and overlooks the nice guy simply because society makes the former more attractive. In order to make women see that romantic characters are attractive because they are mere fiction, they turned them into "nice" men.

"You know, if Romeo didn't jump to conclusions than everything would be okay. He just needed to assume the lotus position, chant a mantra and show some emotional vulnerability. That would give Juliet time to wake up," Peske said. "Men do that. They assume and when that happens they make an ass out of you and me."

Both agree modern women put a lot of pressure on men to be romantic figures.

"Why are jerks who brood, sexy and nice guys, boring?, West said. "Brooding men never take out the garbage. There are elements at play that we are raised on, what is sexy, or virile or erotic."

"If we can somehow convince men that picking up their socks is the sexist thing they could do and at the same time convince ourselves of the same thing, then that the emotional jump you have to take," Peske said.

If the two could rewrite a whole movie they threw around the idea of Helen of Troy, Legends of the Fall (only if Brad Pitt is recasted), Casablanca (but who could replace Bogart?), The Great Gatsby (even though it was a terrible movie) or do a Short Cuts type movie incorporating all of the stories.

"In our last two books, How to Satisfy a Woman Every Time on Five Dollars a Day and Mediation for Men Who Do Next to Nothing (and Would Like to Do Even Less), there are a lot of in-jokes about guys. In this book we poke fun at our own gender," Peske said.

The two also find it funny that Jane Austen has become so popular and laugh at the way romance writers try to bring modern sensibility into the past where they simply didn't exist.

"If you've ever seen Demi Moore in The Scarlett Letter, it was unintentionally funny because that's not how people spoke or thought back then," West said.

According to West real romance depends on playfulness, and it will take time to mix reality and romance.

"Buy our book and make something romantic happen for us," joked West. And yes, it will make a great Valentine's gift.

COURTESY HARPER COLLINS

Beverly West and Nancy Peske's "Frankly Scarlett, I do give a damn!" presents another view of the classic "Gone with the Wind."

Turn to BOOKS, page B6

AEROBICS
253-3539

Hunan Garden Restaurant
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
NEW BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 p.m. $5.99
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Lunch Buffet Mon.-Sat. 11-3 $3.99
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 BELCHERTOWN RD. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Hadley Coin-Op Laundromat
206 Russell St./Rt.9
Open 7 Days 6am - 10pm
Top Loaders: $1.00 • Dbl Loaders: $1.50

Any Two Calzones only $7.95 price includes tax
Fall Specials Save in Twos 256-6100
Two Large Cheese Pizzas only $12.00 price includes tax
Regular, Whole Wheat & Corn Bread Crusts Available on Pizza & Calzones
CANTONE'S PIZZA
FREE DELIVERY 256-6100 Open 4pm - 2am 7 Days $7.00 Min. on M/C & Visa
Any Two Large Subs only $8.00
No Coupons Needed With These Specials 256-6100
Any Two Large 1-Item Pizzas only $14.00 price includes tax

Experience You Need
Looking for a job on campus that will help prepare you for a career when you graduate? Apply for the position of:
Classified Advertising Manager
Seeking responsible, organized, creative individual that is outgoing and comfortable doing telephone and outside sales. The position includes marketing classifieds, customer service, creating and managing specials, and overseeing the production of the classifieds page.
To apply, stop by our office
DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center Basement, Amherst, MA 01003 413-545-3500

■ trax

continued from page B4

On Dec. 31, the Coctails performed their farewell show to a sad crowd in Chicago ending their fabled career as lounge act extraordinares. But as this album indicates the band's sound has evolved greatly from their beginnings spotlighted on the album, The Early Hi Ball Years. This new self-titled CD is closer musically to droney, noisy bands such as Codeine than anything the lounge music scene has produced.

The exotic instruments are still here —flugelhorn, pump organ, vibraphone, marimba, melloton and many more — but they are used to invent sonic landscapes on tunes like "Last Organ" that bear more resemblance to Flying Saucer Attack than to Esquivel. The Coctails are one of many Chicago bands such as Tortoise and the Sea and Cake who have added a jazzy twist to their progressive rock sound. Perhaps unrivaled by any American musical scene, the Windy City is now known for more than just Michael Jordan. 1996 may be the year of the Bulls, but sadly there will be no Coctails. B (M.B.)

THE BOBS Plugged
Rounder Records

Hailing from Berkeley, Calif., the Bobs may be one of the most popular, entertaining and ground breaking a cappella acts of today. The title of their seventh album is a sarcastic hit on the newly found popularity in the "unplugged" fad, and believe it or not some of these tunes are actually plugged in.

"Tattoo Me Now," the second song on the album, comes complete with electronically distorted vocals and feedback. A far cry from the traditional a cappella groups such as Take 6. Perhaps even more surprising is the inclusion of toy drums on "Meat On the Moon," a far cry from the days when the Bobs would cover the Beatles' "Helter Skelter" note for note — all with their voices.

Unlike past releases, this album contains 14 original Bobs' tunes. These songs beautifully bring out the band's multi- dimensional talents. The tunes range from full tilt rockers, '60s doo-wop and their new love — experimental tunes with distorted vocals.

The Bobs are at the forefront of the contemporary a capella world, and this album clearly displays their unique ability that has helped them become concert favorites all across the United States.

The Bobs will appear at next week's Northampton A Cappella Festival. B+ (M.B.)

THE MOUNTAIN GOATS
Nine Black Poppies
Trance / Emperor Jones

While the punk scene of California, which has spurned Green Day, Offspring and countless other neo-punk bands, has received more press than the UMass Basketball team, a tiny, obscure scene sarcastically named the Inland Empire has emerged. Led by the Shrimper cassette label, the Inland scene has produced several intellectual lo-fi wonders from Nothing Painted Blue to Refrigerator to the Mountain Goats.

Led by John Darnielle, the Mountain Goats have prolifically released a stream of cheaply recorded, introspective ballads with a folky edge that has attracted a devout loyal following. Unfortunately, this nine song EP fails to live up to past expectations. The highlight, "Cubs In Five" is a funny love song revolving around the chorus, "And the Chicago Cubs will beat every team in the league and the Tampa Bay Bucs will make it all the way to January and I will love you again, I will love you like I used to."

Unlike many past Mountain Goats releases "Cubs In Five" is one of the few stand out tracks on this otherwise mediocre release. The Inland Empire is known for their prolific, introspective songwriters — sometimes a bit too prolific. C (M.B.)

CORNERSHOP
Woman's Gotta Have It
Luaka Bop/Warner Brothers

Several years ago David Byrne, ex-leader of the Talking Heads, formed the Luaka Bop label as a subsidiary of Warner Brothers to spotlight the international music scene of Africa, South America and now Asia.

Hailing from England via Asia, Cornershop puts a new twist on the genre of world music. They are perhaps the first rock band to explore the music of a culture as foreign as that of ancient Asia, but their traditional influences are abundant from the opening seconds of the album.

The biggest problem with this album is Cornershop offers such a hodgepod of ideas that it leaves the listener confused as to who the band's true identity is. This is true world music that Byrne envisioned for Luaka Pop as it mixes the spirit of traditional Asian folk music of yesterday with the popular sounds of European/American underground rock today. B (M.B.)

COURTESY ROUNDER RECORDS

Valley faves, The Bobs yell out with latest album.

■ books

continued from page B5

isn't one of Higgins better attempts. However he succeeds admirably at what he does best: crafting suspense. Culchulain's identity is revealed to the reader almost at the very start, however this in no way detracts from the read as one is stuck trying to see how the good guys are going to put two and two together.

Higgins pumps up the action with witty and terse dialogue, putting in much of that dead pan humor that makes the story enjoyable. Confessional tries very hard and almost succeeds in being a masterful novel, and its faults are easily forgiven in light of intelligent writing. B (S.G.

VIRGINIA HENLEY
Enslaved
Island

Who said that publishing houses should be limited to one type of genre? Virginia Henley writes with a style that can only be described as a light lunch. She gives you enough to subsist off of without making you feel greasy and weighed down.

Her books are like a tossed salad, crisp, fresh and with just enough vinegar in the dressing to make a sharp impression. With Enslaved, Henley catches onto the time traveling fever that seems to have gripped the romance world. Her heroine is Lady Diana Davenport, a young woman waiting to cast aside the confines of polite society and make it on her own. However beneath all her bravado and dreams is a woman very much unsure of herself and her future.

Pressed by a suitor that wants to marry her for her inheritance and two greedy (aren't they always) guardians, Diana escapes to an antique shop where she tries on a Roman helmet and is transported back to Roman England. It is there that she meets Marcus Magnus and begins the process of finding out who she really is.

Henley is a master of historical romances, loading down the reader with as much detail as possible creating a very realistic setting. Of course her book is loaded with sexual innuendo and the inevitable acts, but they serve to highlight the plot rather than dominate. So if you're one of those people who like to flip to the sexy parts, sorry, you'll have to do more than just open up a page and you might even find yourself wanting more. B (T.M.K.C)

JANELLE TAYLOR
Destiny Mine
Zebra

Upon first read of this book one thought came to mind: confusion. As in this author is confused because she can't figure out if she wants to write an anthropological ethology or a romance. Taylor tries to do both, but gets torn between how to salt down a deer and how to attract a mate. The female lead is Kionee, a 20-year-old member of the Hanueva tribe. Because her father had no male child to care for the family, it is tradition that she assume the role of the absent son.

These daughters turned sons were treated and referred to as boys. The daughters, or tivas, were treated as a special class. Part of their distinguishing traits were a face mask and face paint, the pattern which is tattooed onto the owners hand as a guide and symbol of their tribal status.

Tivas were not allowed to marry and were treated just like the other males of the tribe with the exception of smoking pipes and entering the sweat huts. Kionee's story revolves around her questioning the rights of the tivas, their need for secrecy and the fact that because of the tiva class and it's limitations, the tribe was diminishing.

Stalking Wolf is the love interest and takes a definite back seat as Kionee's love interest. A warrior from an allied tribe, he is pared with Kionee as a hunting partner only to discover her true identity. However, he is the catalyst that promotes Kionee to re-think the way of life her tribe has had for hundreds of years.

The author strives to make the romance a plot highlight rather than its main focus, but at times the romance becomes obligatory rather than a neat infusion. However, Kionee's struggle for identity and the feeling of alienation is aptly felt and deftly done.

Taylor is very apt at displaying a woman holding her own, although her embellishments of Kionee's prowess as a hunter and warrior are a little far fetched. She is hooked on promoting a "super woman" persona and sometimes pushes the boundaries of credibility. B– (T.M.K.C.)

New music videos disappoint

Radiohead, Everclear are clearly the best of a bad group

Videos, videos and more videos — that's what this story is all about, so I'll skip the generic "welcome back" cliches and get right to the video cliches.

Radiohead
"High and Dry"

I could save the best videos for last, but even the best of this lot is mediocre when up against my favorites of all time. Radiohead's last video ("Just") was incredible even if in a vague sort of way, but they couldn't top themselves with "High and Dry." This video gets points for its grainy look and the way that the band has placed themselves in the background of an ordinary diner without being obvious. However the imagery of other people singing the song has been done to death (R.E.M., and George Michaeli), and a video that could have been compellingly ordinary just comes out a little plain.

And isn't that Charles Bronson in the end? B–

Everclear
"Santa Monica"

This video uses a couple of really interesting images to help get its message across. Swimming in the box is a fantastic image and the tearing of the screen to change frames has a violent and mesmerizing effect. They could have ditched the woman snarling and screaming at the camera without losing anything. One major question though — they obviously went to the beach to film this, so why bother to superimpose the band on crashing waves? B–

Collective Soul
"The World I Know"

Ok, so you write a preachy song and can't think of what to do for the video. How about make the images follow the song almost (and at times, exactly) line by line? Well that's exactly what happens here and it uses some of the most tired concepts in video history.

The singer (Kevin Costner's night job?) and the rest of the band follow this guy around the city as he cries over the daily news — so how long until "Singled Out" comes on?

We get a message, a "moment of truth" and the entire concept of being fed up with the world's problems shoved down our throat. The people/ants analogy has got to be the most overused cliche in the world. D

Bush
"Glycerine"

No wait, on second thought, this entire video is the biggest cliche in the world, for the simple fact that every camera angle and lighting trick used in this video are the same ones we've been seeing for years. Lots of camera swaying, flashes, strobes and dark settings, and lots of close-ups on the lead singer's face as he snarls and sneers, trying his best to look like Eddie Vedder circa '92. It's so completely worthless that I should be ashamed that it even got space on this page. The grading system goes out the window on this one. F–

Mike MacLean is a Collegian staff member.

■ music

continued from page B1

Jugged Little Pill, as well as three new numbers: "Death of Cinderella," "King of Intimidation" and "No Pressure Over Cappuc." On a sad note, the Rentals, whose "Friends of P" was of the catchiest MTV song of the year, are no longer opening up for Morrisette. The replacement, Loud Lucy, who recently performed with Elastica in Springfield, are not overly impressive.

• Former University of Massachusetts student and member of the Pixies, Frank Black released his third solo album, The Cult Of Ray today on American Records. Expect to see Black perform a local gig in the near future.

• MTV News reported two weeks ago the Sex Pistols are planning to cash in on the recent punk revival by reforming after breaking up almost 20 years ago. Picture this: the Sex Pistols co-headlining Lollapolloza with Metallica!

• ROIR Imports, one of the most fabled new wave/punk/ reggae labels of the '80s, has stepped into the '90s by re-issuing many of their cassette only releases onto CD for the first time. The first CD reissue is Johnny Thunders & The Heartbreakers Live At Max's Kansas City '79. Other ROIR bands included: Bad Brains, MC5, The New York Dolls, The Raincoats and many more.

• After a cancelled show due to a snowstorm, Yo La Tengo are finally set to play the Amherst College Frontroom next Thursday (Feb. 8). Unfortunately the Scottish pop band the Pastels, who were originally to open the show, are back in their home country. As a fine replacement, the Ray Mason Band will entertain the crowd with their skilled pop songs.

• Pollstar recently named the most successful touring acts of 1995. Topping the all star list, the Eagles raked in $63.3 million over the past year on their 46 city tour. Rounding out the top five were Boyz II Men ($43.2), R.E.M. ($38.7), The Grateful Dead ($33.5) and the newly reunited Page/Plant ($33.4). The only newcomer on the top 20 was Live as they pulled in $13.4 million.

• While Kim Deal has been receiving praise for her Breeders off shoot, the Amps, her sister Kelly has cleaned up her act and formed her own band, Solid State. Along with a musician whom she met during her month at a drug clinic, Deal began recording the album, Go To The Sugar Altar, the day after her release from the Minneapolis Hazledoen clinic. The Grifters' Dave Shouse produced the album.

• The music industry has found yet another form of censorship. In order to read the complete title of Eazy-E's new album, Str8 Off tha Streets of Muthaphuckin Compton, you must scratch a protective gold layering off like a lottery ticket.

• Pompous Quote of the Week By An Overrated British Rock Band:

"If it was 1965, and we'd just put out our second album, we'd absolutely be the pop kings of world. It would've been the Beatles, the Rolling Stones, Oasis, and then the Who. I firmly believe that." — Noel Gallagher of Oasis in a SPIN interview.

Material for this column has been compiled from various news and wire services by Mike Burke.

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST — ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080, 460 WEST ST. — ON BUS ROUTE, OPEN 7 DAYS

Live from PANAMA CITY BEACH

Spring Break Party Package
$29* per night
includes all this stuff too.
• Gulf front accommodations
• FREE pass to Spinnaker
• Next door to the Super Clubs
• Wild activities, FREE entertainment
• Poolside giveaways
Call Now! 1.800.224.GULF
The Boardwalk Beach Resort
9450 S. Thomas Drive • Panama City Beach, FL 32408 http://interoz.com/boardwalk
Yeah, the call is free!
*Package price based on per person, quad occup. 7 night minimum stay $156.00 security deposit at check-in time, cash or credit card only. Your still reading this?

FREE WEEK
FEBRUARY 5-10
MUSIC, ACTING, DANCE
Free Introductory Classes
PERFORMING ARTS DIVISION
Bartlett 73 • 545-0519
Funded in-part by a grant from the UMass Arts Council
Ask us about financial assistance for UMass students for Spring study

Lotus scores with word processor

If you are looking for a feature rich and powerful word processor, then Lotus Word Pro 96 might be the solution.

If you got a new computer to replace your archaic IBM XT and feared your old word processing files would not be compatible with a Windows application, then you should look into Lotus Word Pro 96. Word Pro is backward compatible with such old DOS applications as WordStar and of course it's compatible with Microsoft Word 6.0 and WordPerfect 6.0.

Word Pro's best feature is probably the SmartMasters, pre-formatted documents in various styles such as letters and calendars. Although most formats are business orientated, I found the various letter masters useful.

When using a SmartMaster, all a user has to do to create a document is to fill in the information on the page where the computer asks. The masters help make a great looking document.

Word Pro also has an HTML editor, so you can create Web pages. Other word processors such as Word offer an HTML editor as a free upgrade which must be downloaded either off of the Net or an on-line service such as America On-line or Compuserve.

The HTML editor is ideal because it allows you to simply write text as you would for any other document — basically it eliminates the need to know HTML code.

However, I had some difficulty with the HTML editor. If I tried to edit an existing HTML document, Word Pro eliminated the codes to locate graphic images. I also could not add graphic images to HTML documents I created in Word Pro.

I only had two major problems with the application: the interface and the system requirements.

The interface is not as clean and intuitive as Word 6.0 and WordPerfect 6.0. The toolbar is completely graphical, and has no text on the icons explaining what they do. However, when the cursor rests on an icon, a cartoon bubble pops up explaining it.

The system requirements for Word Pro compared to Word 6.0 are a bit extreme because Word Pro needs eight megabytes of memory while Word and WordPerfect will run fine with four.

Despite Word Pro's two flaws, it can still stand up against the likes of Word and WordPerfect.

The version reviewed was for Windows 3.1, and requires a 486 processor and eight megabytes of RAM. A version for Windows '95 is also available. The program currently retails at about $99 as an upgrade for competing word processors, or is available in the Lotus SmartSuite which retails at about $199. B+

Matthew Wurtzel is a Collegian columnist.

Write for Arts
Music • Film
Books • Concerts
Lifestyles • Art
Dance • Theatre
We need your expertise in covering this cornucopia of culture.
Contact
Tara MK Connely • 545-1361

~ PROFILES ~

Berlin Orchestra's first American a UM grad

By Marilyn M. Kushick
Special to the Collegian

Matthew Hunter, M.A. '83, is the first North American to win a permanent position in the string section of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Hunter will leave his current post as assistant principal violinist in the National Arts Centre Orchestra (NAC) in Ottawa, Canada at the end of February for a highly coveted seat in the viola section in the Philharmonic. One of 240 applicants for the seat, Hunter believed that he "owes a very great debt to the musical community in Amherst with whom I grew up and especially to my late teacher Julian Olevsky."

Hunter began his musical education with Springfield Symphony violinist and Amherst resident Elsa Brown and then studied with Olevsky from the ages of seven until 13. A product of the town of Amherst's public schools, Hunter attended Mark's Meadow Elementary and the Amherst Regional Junior and Senior High Schools. Hunter's journey took him to Dartmouth College where he received a Bachelor's degree in Philosophy while commuting from Hanover, N.H. weekly to Boston to study violin with Roman Totenberg at the Longy School of Music.

Hunter returned to Amherst to study for a Master's degree at the UMass Department of Music & Dance with Julian Olevsky. For two years after his Masters work at UMass, Hunter studied at the St. Louis Conservatory with Jamie Laredo and Michael Tree.

It was in St. Louis that Matthew first tried playing the viola seriously. A week after his first encounter with the instrument he purchased a viola; three months later he won first prize at the Geraldine Gee International Viola Auditions at the Aspen Festival. He then spent only six months in prestigious teaching assistantship at the Cincinnati College Conservatory with Masao Kawasaki before being offered as job in the Columbus Symphony. After four years in Columbus, three of them as assistant principal violist, Matthew won the seat he now holds in Ottawa.

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

Matthew Hunter

A remarkable series of events brought him to the chair that he will occupy in Berlin. While touring Germany with the NAC, Hunter contacted an old musician friend. They played music for each other and the friend commented that it would be wonderful if Matthew could play with the Philharmonic sometime in the future, perhaps as a substitute. As it turned out, the Philharmonic needed a substitute for a two week period in June, 1995, the precise two weeks that Hunter had a vacation from the NAC.

The very day he completed his work in Germany, under the baton of James Levine, and returned to Ottawa, he attended the first NAC rehearsal after the vacation break. The people at the Berlin Philharmonic were actively looking for good violists in anticipation of an upcoming opening in the section. Hunter was invited to return to the 113-year-old Berlin orchestra for other performances in early November. This time the conductor was Zubin Mehta.

Hunter's Berlin Philharmonic friend surfaced again to announce the job opening. At the first audition which took place in the Chamber Music Hall of the Philharmonic on Nov. 10, Hunter played two concertos with piano accompaniment for a panel consisting of the entire viola section of the Orchestra.

"I received a unanimous vote of support from the section. This was most important to me, to win the support of colleagues," he said.

The very next day, he played the second and final audition before the entire Philharmonic and Maestro Claudio Abbado, this time standing at the center of the stage of Orchestra Hall, the larger of the two audition sites. About 10 minutes after he had finished playing the Stamitz and Bartok concertos Hunter was told that he had won the audition, receiving a unanimous vote from the assembled musicians.

"It was an incredible moment," says Hunter. "But the audition itself had a crushing impact on me, which I felt only after I had finished playing. At the start of the audition I made the very defensive decision to retreat into the music, to forget everything and become focussed on the music."

Hunter and his wife Karen, an oboist, and their two small daughters, Emily and Julia, plan to live in Zehlendorf, a suburb of Berlin. Despite the fact that Hunter has been away from UMass for many years, he believes that he has a strong connection to the people who influenced him here and that he is "still learning from Julian Olevsky."

Chestnut's friends to perform benefit

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

It is rare that people have the opportunity to aid someone in need who has given so much of themselves to the University of Massachusetts, but on Sunday Feb. 4 at 3 p.m. students, faculty and the general public will have a chance to show their appreciation to Walter Chestnut.

Chestnut has been a contributor to the University of Massachusetts' Music Department and the Pioneer Valley's music scene for many years. He has participated in numerous concerts, recitals and as the trumpeter of fanfares for convocations, graduations and other special events.

He was appointed to the UMass music department in 1967 and for many, has been a constant inspiration not only for his talent, but his teaching as well. Chestnut's experience and talent however has not been limited to the Five College area. He has participated in concerts in Europe and across the United States. Some of his finer accomplishments were two solo performances in the Boston Pops under the famous conductor Arthur Fiedler.

In Feb. 1993 Chestnut woke up with a pain in his chest and numbness in his right hand. After being rushed to Cooley Dickenson Hospital, doctors found out the discs in his neck had ruptured and Chestnut was paralyzed. This diagnosis was made even more tragic with the fact that it was a one-in-a-million type accident.

After three months of rehabilitation, Chestnut returned to teaching in Sept. 1994 and currently teaches 18 lessons, a freshman seminar, studio class and two Baroque classes. He also conducts the Brass Choir and sits on the Music Department's Personal Committee.

Although Chestnut has managed to overcome his situation, his wife, Elaine was recently diagnosed with bone cancer. Because of chemotherapy and radiation treatment she is unable to assist her husband with the things he can no longer do himself.

The Friends of the Chestnuts therefore have scheduled a benefit concert this Sunday to help him. Starting at 3 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium at UMass the concert will include many of Chestnut's friends and colleagues on the Music Faculty along with a mixture of music for brass instruments by other musicians. Proceeds for the concert will go towards the purchase of a van for Chestnut or to cover additional medical expenses for the couple of 36 years.

Tickets for the concert are $8 students/seniors; $15 general and are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office (545-2511) or at the Bowker Auditorium the night of the show. For additional information regarding donations call 545-2227.

COURTESY JOE KUSHICK

Walter Chestnut conducting the UMass Brass Choir.

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst. 256-0080

We Deliver
Kai Chi
To UMass
Chinese-American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm
Fri-Sat 12-3 am
Enjoy HALF PRICE APPETIZERS
9 pm - Close • 7 Days a Week
31 Selections!
Ex. Pu Pu (for 2) Reg. $11.99 Now $5.99
No other promos apply • EAT IN ONLY

Student Alert!!!
Since we can't mention the famous brands we carry, may we tell you a story?
Once upon a time, J.Crew and Liz Claiborne took an Express bus to Affordables, the great new store on Center Street in Northampton. They both had Limited money to spend, but they were able to buy lots of great new clothes without putting a Gap in their wallets.
Show Student ID for an Additional 10% Off
Affordables
28 Center Street, Northampton
582-0204
Tues thru Sat 10-6 • Thurs til 8
Nothing Over $20!!

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-time Evening
• Classes start February 5, 1996
Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

Can you Draw? Interested in Drawing a Cartoon or Comic?
Then Show Up at the
MEETING FOR CARTOONISTS
All current and future cartoonists must attend a meeting at 2 pm on February 4 in the Collegian Newsroom, 113 Campus Center.
Please Bring Several Samples With You.
If you have ?'s or cannot attend, please contact, Marni E. Heffner, Managing Editor, at 545-3500.

APPLY now
IF you're looking for funding for an arts-related project this Spring, the UMASS ARTS COUNCIL is here to help!
WHO is eligible to apply for a grant?
ANY UMass student group/organization may apply for a grant for an arts-related project involving UMass students through program management, participation and/or as an audience.
WHAT kind of project is eligible for funding?
GRANT awards support a wide variety of activities, including music, dance and theater performance, video and film production or presentations, interdisciplinary projects, art and literary publications, exhibitions and arts-related lectures or workshops as well as artistic components of multicultural programs.
HOW do I apply?
SIMPLY complete a Single Project/Event Grant application and submit it by the deadline. The application form provides detailed information on how to prepare your grant, how it is reviewed, and when you will know if your project has been funded.
WHERE do I get an application?
FROM the Arts Council Office, Hasbrouck 101-103. We will be able to provide you with help, information, networking and alternate resources.
UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
101 HASBROUCK
545-0202
WHEN do I apply?
SPRING '96 grant deadlines are:
February 16 for events after March 6
March 15 for events after April 3
April 19 for events after May 8
(Including Summer and Fall projects/events)

■ movies

continued from page B1

nervous tics and histrionics he annoys rather than amuses.

A coven of witches (including Madonna and Ione Skye) seek out Ted for his sperm in Andres' room, which was visually interesting but had dull dialogue. Ted accidentally stumbles into Rockwell's tres bizarre and seemingly pointless room, and entangles himself in the kink S&M rituals of a very confusing couple.

Rodriguez's room (the best one of the lot) stars Antonio Banderas and Tamlyn Tomita as the glamorous gangster parents of two children who are left in Ted's care. The children's misbehavior, coupled with Ted's reckless abandon as a babysitter, make for some hilarious moments of a Home Alone meets The Godfather nature. –

The Penthouse suite is occupied by Tarantino, of course, who plays a motor–mouth Hollywood mogul having a private little party dripping with champagne. Tarantino and his buddies (Bruce Willis and Jennifer Beals) involve Ted in a spiced–up Alfred Hitchcockian bet, in which the loser has his pinkie cut off. This swanky room has potential, but again Tarantino ruined it by failing to stay behind the camera. All said, Four Rooms should have had a "Do Not Disturb" sign hung on it. D

LEAVING LAS VEGAS
Directed by Mike Figgis
with Nicholas Cage, Elisabeth Shue

Suicidal, alcoholic, down–and–out man meets beautiful, classy by day, vampy by night prostitute in Las Vegas and they fall in love. Scary but true, this tragedy makes for a modern day Romeo and Juliet story.

Leaving Las Vegas, based on the novel by John O'Brien, (who came to the same alcoholic demise as the lead character) is a harrowing portrayal of two evils: alcoholism and prostitution. We're not talking When a Man Loves a ... Pretty Woman here.

Nicholas Cage stars as Ben, the man whose alcoholism is more than a disease — it is a way of life, and death. Seeing no hope in his future, Ben sells all of his belongings for four week's worth of booze — enough to kill him.

Even though there is a mutual love and desperation between Ben and the abused hooker, Sera (Shue), nothing will save him from his chosen path downhill. This is evident when he tells Sera, "You can never, ever ask me to stop drinking."

Filmed in Super 16, director Figgis went out on a few artistic limbs and came up with a wonderfully weird, surrealistic scape to match the situation the couple faces. For example, nuns pass out pamphlets on the Vegas strip as Sera encounters the always imbibing Ben.

Both Cage and Shue have been lauded for their daring performances, and though the film is depressing, it pleases audiences with its style and construction. A

NIXON
Directed by Oliver Stone with Sir Anthony Hopkins, James Woods, Joan Allen

I'd like to say that Nixon is more informative than entertaining, but Oliver Stone has yet again forced his own warped version of history. The thing is, Nixon, like JFK, is not a documentary, and although he is criticized for not sticking to fact, maybe he should be praised for creating dramas that move people to react so strongly.

The most controversial American president is sure to make for a controversial movie, but Stone focused more on fabricating Nixon's psychosis rather than tricky doings. Stone wrote Nixon to be both suffering from a troubled childhood (two dead brothers, abusive father, overbearing mother) and an obsession with comparing himself to JFK.

Hopkins hides his accent and delivers a decent performance as Dick, but the hauntingly accurate depiction goes to Joan Allen, who looks, walks and talks like Pat Nixon. Unfortunately, the actors just can't pick up enough steam to propel this film for three and a half hours, and the heat fizzles out before the movie ends. C

TWELVE MONKEYS
Directed by Terry Gilliam with Bruce Willis, Brad Pitt, Madelaine Stowe

Terry Gilliam's latest foray into the surreal, adapted from the 1962 short film La Jetee (and heavily inspired by the Hitchcock classic Vertigo), is a visual mind–blower. The former Monty Python member seems to have taken the best elements of his two finest films, Brazil and The Fisher King, and fused them into a dizzying hallucinatory world. This is the meaning of set design.

Yet whether wandering the post–apocalyptic glacial wild kingdom of Philadelphia or sleepwalking through an eerie cartoon of a mental institution, Willis never lets the production marvels overwhelm his performance. As equally deglamourized as his co–star, a loopy, over–the top Pitt (who takes his place in the Gary Oldman Hall of Fame for his enjoyably hammy contribution), Willis shifts gears from vulnerable to violent and back again with the grace of an actor clearly better than such projects as Hudson Hawk, Color of Night or Striking Distance.

Kudos, however, must be extended to Gilliam, who has elicited solid performances from both his Hollywood pretty boy leads, as well as Stowe, while still staying true to his uniquely warped artistic vision. A (C.T.C.)

WAITING TO EXHALE
Directed by Forest Whitaker with Angela Bassett, Whitney Houston

The wildly popular novel by Terry McMillan about four African–American women combating the evils of the dating scene in search of decent men who will love and respect them has created an equally electric sensation onscreen.

Exhale's cast of divas is headed up by the powerful Angela Basset (What's Love Got To Do With It), who plays a solid wife and mother of two. She endeavors to pick up the pieces of her crumbled life after her no–good husband (whom she put through law school) leaves her penniless to marry his secretary. Whitney Houston plays the cool, almost frigid single exec who is trapped in a relationship with a married man who has promised for years to leave his wife — yeah, right.

Lela Rochon portrays the sweet but ditzy friend who runs the gamut of dates from jealous co–workers to drug addicts. A particularly fresh performance is delivered by Loretta Devine, who plays the single mother beautician without a lot of self–esteem, until she joyfully falls in love with her neighbor, Gregory Hines.

Director Whitaker uses several slow music scenes which often make Exhale resemble MTV more than a feature film, dragging the story down. Bassett and Rochon are the only women we come to care about of the four, as their acting is the most sincere. Many female fans, however, are praising the drama for its "liberating" quality — Bassett, Rochon, Devine and Houston have made male–bashing PC, providing you trash the guys who are genuine losers. You go, girls! B

Collegian staff member Chris Conner contributed to this article.

Tarantino saved by movie

By Justin D. Smith
Collegian Staff

FROM DUSK TILL DAWN
Directed by Robert Rodriguez
With George Clooney, Harvey Kietel, Quentin Tarantino and Juliette Lewis
Playing at Mt. Farms Four

Before the film even began, From Dusk Till Dawn had big cuts against it: it was the zillionth vampire movie in recent memory and was being released after Four Rooms, the more or less complete debacle that dragged the names Tarantino and Rodriguez down with it (to his credit the Rodriguez part was far and way the best part of the movie).

Robert Rodriguez, despite his gaffling of famed film auteur's styles of the likes of John Woo, Sam Raimi and Sergio Leone, has always been able to entertain with his mastery of the camera and his ballistic action scenes. He will always be revered for his $7,000 guerilla outing, El Mariachi. His part sequel/part remake, last summer's Desperado proved that character development and plot intricacies are not essential to make an entertaining film. But Rodriguez's potential had yet to be reached.

Quentin Tarantino, on the other hand, looked as though his days were numbered. The backlash was imminent after he was lionized for Pulp Fiction and Reservoir Dogs. As a writer and a director he was phenomenal, but as an actor... Destiny Turns on the Radio, arguably the worst movie of 1995 answered that.

The story is divided into two parts: first, two bank–robbing brothers in pursuit trying to cross the border and, second, the overcoming of the vampire problem once they reach a seedy Mexican strip club. The Gecko brothers, Seth (George Clooney) and Richie (Tarantino) find some problems along their way through the Texas outback on their way to Mexico.

After some destruction that they left in their path, they kidnap a preacher and his two kids and hijack their Winnebago to get them across the border. The preacher (Harvey Kietel) recently lost his faith when his wife died in a brutal car accident. His daughter Kay (Juliette Lewis) becomes the sexual desire of the less than wholesome Richie.

Despite some minor difficulties the brothers make it to the rendezvous of a truck driver strip club. All of a sudden the head stripper (Salma Hayek) along with the other employees turn into vampires and begin to feed on the blood of the clientele. From there on out the body count rises: heads are lopped off, severed arms fly though the air, blood shoots out in every trajectory and the house band play instruments made of human corpses. It is unsettling to the stomach as Rodriguez pays homage to Peter Jackson and his film Bad Taste, which is often said in the same breath as "the grossest movie of all–time."

"ER" heart–throb Clooney is believable as a high strung action anti–hero. Tarantino is surprisingly not excessively annoying and bad things happen to him when he begins to be a nuisance, which adds a little guilty pleasure. Juliette Lewis plays the naive, maturing school girl that is fascinated by the evil that surrounds her. Basically she rehashes her Oscar award–winning role in Cape Fear.

Rodriguez is single–handedly trying to revive the career of his fallen hero, Cheech Marin. He played a bartender in Desperado and plays, for reasons unknown, three different characters here. Blaxploitation hero of such films such as Black Caesar and Three the Hard Way, Fred Williamson returns as rugged as ever to kill some vampires and tell a pointless Vietnam story.

The last of Tarantino's five original scripts was From Dusk Till Dawn. He saw the other two scripts that he did not direct get butchered. He rightly denounced Oliver Stone's cry–baby media fiasco, Natural Born Killers and True Romance had the right idea, but subpar director Tony Scott (of Top Gun fame) rearranged the film to elapse chronologically and tacked on a happy ending. For From Dusk Till Dawn, he persuaded Rodriguez to direct while they were working on Four Rooms together. Rodriguez agreed to as long as Tarantino revised some of the script.

The Tarantino script keeps the film fresh by staying unpredictable and using clever dialogue. But it is Rodriguez, with his camera tricks and well calculated action sequences that crafts this film. There is nothing brilliant about this film and some of the gore may be a bit overboard, but for the most part From Dusk Till Dawn is simply entertaining. B

■ TV

continued from page B1

name, is about love, honor, family, values and politics. Swayze plays Orry Main from South Carolina. His best friend at West Point is George Cooper from Lehegh, Pa. As the Civil War breaks out, the tension between the families grow as it did with so many that were spilt by the secession. They are forced to deal not only with the rift that is happening between them personally, but also with the ever changing world around them.

"North and South" is remarkable for its scope, acting and costumes. There is an air of authenticity to the drama, making it almost educational for anyone who wants an easy lesson in the politics of the Civil War. However, if you want the real impact of the film, you should read the trilogy, as the show tends to cut the inevitable corners.

It has been a year since the opening statements in the O.J. Simpson trial began. Even though it's doubtful the civil trial will be as publicized as the criminal, there are still people out there that just can't let it go.

The jury foreman, Amanda Cooley, and two of her co– jurors, Carrie Bress and Marsha Rubin–Jackson, sat down to talk to "Dateline's" Stone Phillips with their impressions of the trial and the Simpson verdict. Two of the women said in a stunning revelation that if they had to be on the jury in the civil trial (brought by the Goldman and Brown families), they would vote Simpson guilty.

The women also revealed that while the detective, Mark Furhman, was disturbing, they stressed racism had nothing to do with the way they deliberated and came up with the verdict. Other things that didn't go over well with the jury included the knit cap Johnnie Cochran donned for closing arguments, and the glove that didn't fit Simpson. The defense, which felt it scored big with the glove demonstration, actually lost points with the jury.

"Of course [Simpson] is going to make sure the glove doesn't fit," Rubin–Jackson said.

Overall, the jurors felt okay with their verdict, which took only four hours to reach, but they felt that if Simpson did not commit the murders, he certainly knew something about what happened that night.

Incidentally, Cooley collaborated with Bress and Rubin–Jackson on her book about the trial entitled, Madam Forewoman. The book will hit store shelves at the end of the month. This will make a lovely gift set for all you Simpson Trial junkies suffering from televised trial withdrawal when paired with the O.J.'s new video.

For $29.95 the video finally gives Simpson the chance to speak. One of the jurors mentioned she would buy the video, but Cooley was firm in her refusal when she noted that anything Simpson had to say he should have during the trial.

Other people have given the video the thumbs down, including David Letterman who quickly snapped up the subject for one of his renown Top 10 lists. Among the Top 10 surprises on the Simpson tape was Kaeto not being a real blond, and number one — he says he did it.

The Goldman family took a less humorous approach by holding a press conference. There, Ron Goldman's sister said she and her family would watch the tape and the interviews he gave. They felt that sooner of later discrepancies would be found within the stories, and then they'd nail him.

Hillary Rodham–Clinton has been making waves from the very beginning, not just in Whitewater, but also a documentary, PBS had the First Ladies classmates talk about her in "Hillary's Class." They recalled that Rodham–Clinton, the first student to give a speech at graduation, gave a brilliant and impromptu reply to Senator Edward Brooks' opening statement that he didn't have faith in youth.

The documentary showed what happened to some of the women in the class of '69, including CBS correspondent Martha Tiechner. In a revealing comment, one woman confessed she pointed out Rodham–Clinton to her mother and said, "she's going to be the first woman president."

The controversies surrounding the First Lady didn't dissipate, and she took to the airwaves to tell exactly what happened. Hillary's half hour interview with Barbara Walters showed a relaxed and confident First Lady. She was adamant in saying she and the President didn't do anything wrong. She also promoted her new book, It Takes a Village, which outlines her ideas on how to raise a happy, healthy child, as well as solutions to solving problems in the foster car and juvenile court systems.

On "60 Minutes" Andy Rooney delivered a rather touchy editorial debating Hillary's status as a "First Lady" saying she was the first one that refused to take a seat in the home. Comparisons were made to Jacqueline Kennedy–Onassis, Elenor Roosevelt and Barbara Bush. He suggested Hillary should run for president next year, but until then leave the political spotlight to her husband.

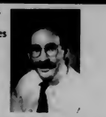
Michael Jackson's break up with Lisa Marie Presley set the world on its ear for all of five second, before shrugs and "I knew it" moved the publics attention. VH1 seized the opportunity to have another Jackson jam fest, and shows loved to have "man on the street" segments that monitored public opinion.

Seema Gangasirkar is a Collegian Staff member. Tara MK Connelly also contributed to the article.

The Daily Collegian
We fill the void
in your existence.

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
University Health Services
Amherst, MA 01003
549-2671

An open letter to the UMass Student Community from the Director of the UHS Eye Care Program



Frederick H. Bloom, O.D.
Director, UHS Eye Care Program

My name is Frederick Bloom. I graduated from the University of Massachusetts in 1971 and the New England College of Optometry in 1975. I am very proud of the high quality of eye care delivered to more than 80,000 individuals over that last 20 years.

I have been on the teaching faculty of the New England College of Optometry and recently co-authored an article with Dr. Abel, a UHS physician, that was published in a national optometry journal. In addition, I am credentialed in diagnostic ocular pharmaceuticals by the massachusetts Board of Optometry.

Eye care services include:
- Complete optometry examinations
- Reduced rates on spectacle frames and lenses from local participating opticians
- Emergency eye care
- Comprehensive contact lens service

Our staff takes great pride in being about to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.

Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Care Program over the years has been consistently excellent.

"I Invite you to use the eye services at UHS"

uhs EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient Hours and Campus Location
CALL 549-2671 EXT 244

ART SUPPLIES
DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
DISCOUNT CARD with this coupon.
Good for 10% off all purchases for one full year. FREE
expires 2/29/96

WE WANT YOU
to try our burritos
Come to Bueno Y Sano and see why our large and healthy burritos are causing a revolution.
Bueno Y Sano
1 Boltwood Walk • Amherst • 253-4000

Sidewalk Sale.
(Indoors, of course)
Biggest shoe sale ever.
4 days only! Starts Jan. 31.
ZAMA
Downtown Amherst

Show Your UMass SPIRIT!!

Call today for your appointment
PATRICK & Company
104 Russell St.
(Rte. 9) Hadley
586-7477

• Fresh Flowers
• Distinctive Design
• We Deliver Anywhere
Always in Bloom
220 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
253-5545

CollegianSports
Back to School Spring, 1996 • Tuesday, January 30, 1996

• The women's gymnastics team defeated Rhode Island in its season opener Jan. 20 and the men's gymnastics team defeated Air Force in its first dual meet of the season (See story, page C5).

• The men's swimming team took to the water for the first time since the death of Greg [illegible] and the swimming team fell to the Lady Huskies of Connecticut on Jan. 20 (See story, page C11).

• Young talent has led the men's and women's indoor track and field teams to great success over the intersession (See story, page C12).

Massachusetts continues unbeaten streak over break

COLLEGIAN FILE

After sitting out for over a week and undergoing numerous tests because of his collapse on Jan. 14, it appears that Marcus Camby will return to the court soon, possibly for UMass' game against St. Bonaventure on Jan. 27. Results from that game were unavailable as of press time.

More men's basketball inside

• A complete wrap–up of all the Minutemen's games over the break.....Page 6
• Minutemen become No. 1 again.....Page 7
• Bright's leading the way.....Page 7
• Camby's collapse.....Page 7
• Minuteman notebook.....Page 7
• Minutemen defeat Georgia Tech.....Page 8
• Minutemen defeat Memphis.....Page 8

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

The intersession was a combination of a jubilant rise and terrifying fall for the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team.

As UMass students had just finished up finals, the Minutemen were passing the test of becoming No. 1 as they beat the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets at the Jimmy V Classic to claim the top spot in the polls.

What weighed more heavily on the minds of players and fans alike, more than keeping the No. 1 ranking in January, was the health of Marcus Camby, the nation's leading Player of the Year candidate.

The 6–foot–11–inch junior center fell motionless in the runway to the UMass locker room just minutes before tipoff against St. Bonaventure on Jan. 14. Test after test was administered to the Hartford native, but no cause for his collapse had been diagnosed as of Jan. 23.

No answer may ever be given for it.

He was in uniform when the Minutemen took on the Pittsburgh Panthers on Jan. 23, but did not see any action. All indications pointed to his return being Jan. 27, ironically against the same St. Bonaventure team he was to play against before he was stricken. (The Collegian went to press before UMass' game against the Bonnies).

His teammates have responded with dynamic performances which have enabled UMass to remain undefeated deeper into the season than any other Division I team in the country.

After the Georgia Tech win, the Minutemen spent the week from Christmas to New Year's in Hawaii where they defeated North Carolina State, Southern Cal and Syracuse to claim the Rainbow Classic championship. They followed that up with a win over third–ranked Memphis.

In Camby's absence, several players took turns stepping up in place of their superstar center. In the game against the Bonnies, it was Tyrone Weeks who came up with 15 points and 12 rebounds (both career–highs) in an emotional and teary–eyed 65–52 win.

Three days later it was co–captain Donta Bright pouring in a career–high 32 against Rhode Island.

DAYMON SMITH/ COLLEGIAN

Dana Dingle's leadership and steady play are just two of the reasons why the Minutemen are undefeated and ranked No. 1 in the country.

Then Carmelo Travieso came to the forefront with 33 points, going 7–for–8 from downtown, in the 93–89 win over Duquesne. The duo put in a combined effort of 53 points to hold off upstart Pittsburgh, 79–71 in overtime, stretching their win streak to 17— a new school record

Minutemen miserable over break

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

For many athletes, the intersession period is one of their favorites during the year. With few or no classes to worry about, they can focus on their sport. The Massachusetts hockey team however can't wait to put the intersession behind it.

The Minutemen struggled through a miserable intersession going 0–6–1, heading into the weekend series against Maine in Orono (results not available as of press time).

UMass fell to Cornell twice, Boston College twice, and single games to Northesastern and Maine, with a tie coming against NU. UMass lost the shootout however as the Huskies grabbed the extra point 4–1.

Several Minutemen have been sidelined with injuries during the intersession. Dale Hooper returned from a shoulder injury against Maine after being sidelined since mid–November... Tom Perry and Tiger Holland both suffered injuries in the exhibition game against Slovakia. Perry missed three games. Holland has not returned.

Goaltender Brian Regan (strained shoulder), Dan Juden (strained shoulder) and Blair Wagar (sprained ankle) all missed the Boston College Series.

The Minutemen will hope to get back on track with games this week against New Hampshire and Merrimack.

EMILY REILY/COLLEGIAN

Jon Jacques (11) and the Minutemen have suffered through a miserable intersession, winning just once in seven games.

More hockey inside

• A complete wrap–up of all the Minutemen's games over the break.....Page 4
• Hockey note - book.....Page 4

Minutewomen struggle over intersession

COLLEGIAN FILE

Junior Crystal Carroll came up with some big offensive numbers during the intersession as the Minutewomen won five out of nine games.

By Mike Brown
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's basketball team fluctuated from positive wins to upsetting losses over the past month. The Minutewoman are 10–6 overall, 2–3 in the Atlantic 10, and would rather have found a hot streak which would have propelled them into the Top 25.

The Minutewomen are more than halfway through their schedule and look to finish up strong and capture a NCAA tournament berth.

Senior co–captains Melissa Gurile and Octavia Thomas anchored the Minutewomen through the nine games played during intersession.

UMass started the break in the Lady Gator Classic in Gainesville, Fla. The Minutewomen split the tournament, falling to host Florida and defeating intra–tate rival Boston College.

The Minutewomen followed the tournament with four more road games, splitting them as well. UMass handed losses to Temple and Dartmouth, while falling to St. Joseph's and Rhode Island.

The Minutewomen then lived up to the "there's no place like home" line posting back–to–back victories over Fairfield and Virginia Tech at the William D. Mullins Center.

The Minutewomen were not able to take their winning ways on the road again as they dropped a game to the La Salle Explorers.

Stats as of Jan. 23.

Women's Basketball

Minutewomen win five of nine over winter break

UMass women's basketball box scores

Florida 71, Massachusetts 54

Dec. 29 at the O'Connell Center

MASSACHUSETTS (5-3) — Kraft 4-7 2-2 13, Tudman 0-1 0-0 0, Curtle 2-10 2-2 6, Thomas 3-7 13-14 19, Mitchell 0-5 0-1 0, Kuzmeski 1-3 0-0 2, Hopson 0-0 0-0 0, Madajova 0-0 0-0 0, Rayside 0-0 0-0 0, Carroll 3-8 3-3 8, Bradley 2-4 2-4 6, Carter 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 15-49 21-26 54.

FLORIDA (11-1) — Page 2-8 1-5 7, Bingham 4-10 2-7 14, D. Milton 7-19 5-9 19, Hudson 3-8 6-6 12, Smith 3-8 0-1 7, Wright 0-1 0-0 0, Stebbins 0-0 0-0 0, C. Milton 0-0 0-0 0, Porter 4-8 2-4 12, Bright 0-0 0-0 0, Bruce 0-0 0-0 0, Jacobs 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 23-60 18-32 71.

Massachusetts 73, Boston College 63

Dec. 30 at the O'Connell Center

BOSTON COLLEGE (5-5) — Porter 8-15 5-8 21, Bacso 3-11 4-4 10, Campbell 2-5 4-7 8, Bzezer 1-3 0-0 2, Squaer 0-0 0-0 0, Passonno 0-0 0-0 0, O'Brien 0-4 6-6 6, West 2-8 0-0 6, Bowerson 0-0 0-0 0, McCuire 0-0 0-0 0, Cohen 1-2 0-0 2, Steele 0-0 0-0 0, Booth 2-5 4-4 8, McCormick 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 1-5-53 23-29 63.

MASSACHUSETTS (6-3) — Kraft 5-8 0-0 11, Tudman 1-1 0-1 2, Curtle 4-8 1-1 9, Thomas 10-10 9-12 29, Mitchell 0-0 2-3 2, Kuzmeski 0-2 0-0 0, Hopson 0-1 0-0 0, Madajova 0-2 0-0 0, Rayside 0-0 0-0 0, Carroll 5-9 8-11 20, Bradley 0-0 0-0 0, Carter 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 26-41 20-28 73.

St. Joseph's 64, Massachusetts 50

Jan. 4 at the Alumni Memorial Field House

MASSACHUSETTS (6-4) — Thomas 3-9 0-0 7, Tudman 0-0 0-0 0, Curtle 10-14 3-4 23, Kuzmeski 6-12 0-0 15, Mitchell 0-3 0-0 0, Carroll 3-7 0-0 6, Hopson 1-1 0-0 2, Bradley 0-1 0-0 0, Rayside 0-2 0-0 0. Totals 22-49 3-4 50.

ST. JOSEPH'S (6-4) — Compain 9-15 7-8 26, Facer 5-15 5-6 19, Costello 0-3 0-0 0, Sullivan 3-11 0-0 8, Jones 0-1 1-2 1, Iles 3-4 0-0 8, Straub 0-0 2-2 2. Totals 20-49 15-18 64.

Massachusetts 73, Temple 43

Jan. 7 at McGonigle Hall

MASSACHUSETTS (7-4) — Thomas 5-9 1-1 11, Carroll 6-8 4-4 16, Curtle 5-7 2-4 12, Mitchell 2-7 1-1 5, Carter 4-6 1-2 9, Tudman 1-3 0-0 2, Kuzmeski 2-4 0-0 6, Hopson 0-0 1-2 1, Bradley 2-4 1-2 5, Rayside 0-1 2-4 2, Madajova 1-1 2-2 4. Totals 28-52 15-24 73.

TEMPLE (2-8) — Ricco 3-8 0-0 6, Wetzel 1-6 0-0 2, Fulmer 2-2 0-0 4, Goods 3-8 0-0 6, Harold 3-11 2-2 14, Dittenber 1-7 2-2 4, Williams 0-4 0-2 0, Ingram 0-2 0-0 0, Bailey 0-1 0-0 0, Garrett 2-7 3-4 7, Davis 0-0 0-1 0, Plum 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 17-56 7-11 43.

Massachusetts 71, Dartmouth 51

Jan. 9 at Leede Arena

MASSACHUSETTS (8-4) — Thomas 7-12 5-6 19, Kuzmeski 3-5 0-0 8, Mitchell 3-4 2-2 9, Hopson 0-1 0-0 0, Madajova 0-0 0-0 0, Carroll 4-9 5-6 13, Tudman 0-1 0-0 0, Curtle 9-15 4-6 22, Bradley 0-0 0-0 0, Carter 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 36-48 16-20 71.

DARTMOUTH (7-4) — Rinaldi 2-5 0-0 5, Stamp 3-8 2-2 10, Pinkston 0-8 6-6 6, Arena 7-17 0-0 19, Pankeau 0-0 0-0 0, Rewalt 0-3 0-0 0, Samuelson 2-4 0-0 0, Tortolani 1-5 1-4 4, Marple 1-2 0-0 2, Lawrence 2-4 0-0 4. Totals 18-56 9-12 56.

Rhode Island 86, Massachusetts 74

Jan. 13 at Keaney Gymnasium

MASSACHUSETTS (8-5) — Thomas 4-10 10-10 18, Carroll 10-15 2-2 22, Curtle 12-17 1-3 25, Mitchell 0-0 0-1 0, Carter 0-0 2-2 2, Kuzmeski 3-9 0-0 7, Madajova 0-0 0-0 0, Hopson 0-1 0-0 0, Tudman 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 29-52 15-18 74.

RHODE ISLAND (9-4) — Gray 3-9 10-14 16, King 7-17 2-2 19, Fuller 1-1 3-3 5, Smith 5-8n 2-2 16, Giroux 3-7 9- 11 17, Byrd 2-9 6-6 10, Yarger 1-1 0-0 3 Totals 22-52 33- 38 86.

Halftime — Rhode Island 42, Massachusetts 29. Three-point goals — Massachusetts 1-7 (Carroll 0-1, Kuzmeski 1-5, Hopson 0-1), Rhode Island 10-18 (King 3-7, Smith 4-6, Giroux 2-4, Yarger 1-1). Rebounds — Massachusetts 31 (Carroll 8), Rhode Island 28 (King 7). Assists — Massachusetts 21 (Hopson 5), Rhode Island 19 (Giroux 7). Fouled out — Thomas. Total Fouls — Massachusetts 28, Rhode Island 16. Attendance — 1,316.

Massachusetts 69, Fairfield 58

Jan. 16 at the Mullins Center

FAIRFIELD (7-8) — Russerth 8-16 2-5 20, Gill 2-4 0-2 4, Cleary 0-1 3-4 3, Fryer 5-11 2-2 12, Williams 3-10 0-0 9, Natale 0-4 0-0 0, Mathews 0-4 0-0 0, Briscoe 0-0 0-0 0, Nicholas 0-0 0-0 0, Driscoll 1-1 0-0 2, Kortman 2-6 3-6 7. Totals 21-57 11-21 58.

MASSACHUSETTS (9-5) — Thomas 9-13 5-5 23, Carroll 2-5 0-0 4, Curtle 7-12 4-6 18, Mitchell 2-7 0-0 6, Carter 4-7 0-0 8, Kuzmeski 1-5 2-3 4, Rayside 0-0 0-0 0, Tudman -23 0-0 4, Bradley 0-0 2-2 2. Totals 27-52 13-16 69.

Halftime — Massachusetts 36, Fairfield 28. Three-point goals — Fairfield 5-14 (Rossarth 2-6, Fryer 0-1, Williams 3-4, Natale 0-2 Mathews 0-1), Massachusetts 2-5 (Mitchell 2-3, Kuzmeski 0-2). Rebounds — Fairfield 32 (Cleary 7), Massachusetts 36 (Curtle 8). Assists — Failfield 14 (Fryer 9), Massachusetts 18 (Mitchell 6). Total Fouls — Fairfield 17, Massachusetts 18. Attendance — 610.

Massachusetts 65, Virginia Tech 47

Jan. 18 at the Mullins Center

VIRGINIA TECH (47) — O'Connor 2-8 0-2 5, Nolley 4- 8 1-2 12, Hollister 4-10 5-11 10, Garland G-3 4-4 4, Banks 3-13 0-0 9, Maitland 0-0 0-0 0, Witherspoon 0-0 0-0 0, Drinke 1-2 2-3 4. Totals 14-45 12-22 47.

MASSACHUSETTS (65) — Thomas 8-15 2-2 20, Carroll 6-9 6-8 18, Curtle 3-7 0-1 6, Mitchell 1-7 0-0 3, Carter 0-2 0-0 0, Kuzmeski 3-8 2-2 11, Hopson 1-1 0-0 2, Rayside 1-2 0-0 2, Bradley 1-2 0-1 2. Totals 24-56 11-16 65.

Halftime — Massachusetts 32, Virginia Tech 18. Three-point goals — Virginia Tech 7-19, Massachusetts 6-15. Fouled Out — None. Rebounds — Virginia Tech 29 (Hollister 10), Massachusetts 43 (Carrol 11). Assists — Virginia Tech 11 (Garland 3), Massachusetts 18 (Mitchell 5). Attendance — 898.

LaSalle 87, Massachusetts 77

Jan. 20 at Hayman Hall

MASSACHUSETTS (77) — Thomas 7-13 5-5 19, Carroll 6-9 2-2 15, Curtle 6-9 10-10 22, Mitchell 0-5 0-0 0, Carter 1-2 0-0 2, Kuzmeski 3-12, 2-2 11, Hopson 0-1 0-0 0, Tudman 2-3 0-0 4, Bradley 2-2 0-0 4. Totals 27-56 19-19 77.

LASALLE (87) — McBreen 9-12 4-4 26, Donahue 6-11 10-11 22, Willis 2-2 2-2 6, Gallagher 2-4 1-2 6, Sparling 2-5 1-5 5, Wolfe 2-3 0-0 4, Rinke 4-5 4-4 12, Blue 0-2 0-0 0, Weiss 1-1 0-0 2. Totals 28-50 26-29 87.

Halftime — LaSalle 35, Massachusetts 32. Three-point goals — Massachusetts 4-12, LaSalle 5-11. Fouled out — Willis, Curtle. Rebounds — Massachusetts 28 (Carroll 6), LaSalle 24 (Sparling 5). Assists — Massachusetts 20 (Mitchell 5), LaSalle 25 (Donahue 8). Attendance N/A.

Rhode Island 86, UMass 74

Jan. 13 at Keaney Gymnasium

Rhode Island's Tasha King posted 19 points and seven rebounds to lead the Rams to an 86–74 victory in an ESPN2 televised game.

Despite the loss, Curile and Carroll each came out with season highs in points. Curile scored 25 while Carroll posted 22.

Rhode Island pulled out to a nine–point lead (26–17) midway through the first half, and built it up to 13 by halftime on 54.5 percent shooting from the three–point arc (6–11).

The Minutewomen went on a 12–4 run over a four–minute span in the second half to get to within one at the 8:26 mark, but an 11–2 counter run by the Rams over the next four minutes put UMass down by 10.

The Minutewomen struggled due to foul trouble throughout the second half. Curile, Thomas and Carroll each had four fouls by the 4:45 mark.

Thomas ended up fouling out.

Rhode Island drained all of its foul shots and with the loss of Thomas, it meant defeat for UMass. Thomas did, however, have a career night from the free throw line, as she shot a perfect 10–for–10 from the charity stripe. She ended the game with 18 points.

UMass 69, Fairfield 58

Jan. 16 at the Mullins Center

After over a month on the road, Thomas returned to the Mullins Center to score 23 points while Curile added 18 points and eight rebounds, leading homesick UMass to a 69– 58 victory over the Fairfield Stags.

The Minutewomen shot an outstanding 51 percent from the field. Jessica Grossarth led Fairfield with 20 points.

The Minutewomen jumped out to a 36–28 lead at the half on the strength of 12 points from both Curile and Thomas. UMass extended the lead to as many as 10 points early in the second half but Fairfield kept the game close by connecting on 4–of–6 3–point attempts.

The Stags cut the Minutewomen lead to three points with 11 minutes remaining with the sharpshooting of Chantel Williams, who was 3–for–4 from the three–point arc. Curile and Carroll combined for the next seven points to give the Minutewomen a 13–point lead, the largest margin of the game for UMass.

UMass 65, Virginia Tech 47

Jan. 18 at the Mullins Center

Thomas continued her scoring production scoring 20 points while Carroll added an 18–point effort to lead UMass to a 65–47 win in the first ever Atlantic 10 match–up between the two schools. Michelle Hollister led the way for the Hokies with 13 points and 10 rebounds.

The Minutewomen overpowered Virginia Tech early on, holding the Hokies scoreless for the first five minutes of the contest. The Minutewomen went on a 9–0 run, until Hollister connected at 14:42 to give the Hokies their first points of the game. The Hokies cut the lead to 13–10, but the three– point shooting from Thomas, who hit two, and Kuzmeski, who also connected from trey land, helped the Minutewomen extend the lead to 32–18 at the first intermission. More second half three–point sharpshooting from Thomas and Kuzmeski sealed the win for UMass.

La Salle 87, UMass 77

Jan. 20 at Hayman Hall

La Salle junior Marnie McBreen scored a career–high 26 points, while teammate junior Chrissie Donahue added a season–high 22 points to lead the La Salle Explorers to an 87–77 victory. Curile and Thomas led the Minutewomen with 22 and 19 points respectively.

The Explorers led 35–32 at the half resulting from 61 percent shooting from the field. La Salle pulled away in the second half, connecting on 4–of–6 three–point attempts. The Minutewomen bounced back to cut the lead to 61–57 at the 8:08 mark but could not hold the Explorers, who turned in a 12–2 run to secure the win.

The Minutewomen hosted St. Joseph's on Jan. 25 and St. Bonaventure on Jan. 27 but results were not available at press time.

By Mike Brown
Collegian Staff

It was a roller coaster ride for the Massachusetts women's basketball team the past month as the Minutewomen had their share of ups and downs.

Upon conclusion of the holidays, UMass began its voyage heading south to participate in the Nationwide Insurance/Lady Gator Classic in Gainesville, Fl. Here's a recap of the Minutewomen's games over the break.

Florida 71, UMass 54

Dec. 29 at the O'Connell Center

The Minutewomen faced the host in the opening round of the tournament and did not fare as well as they would have liked.

Florida's DeLisha Milton netted 19 points for the Lady Gators to lead them to the 71–54 victory.

UMass was unable to climb out of a 21–point hole incurred during first half play. The Lady Gators got off to a quick start, pulling ahead by 10 points by the middle of the first half.

The Minutewomen were unable to penetrate inside due to a swarming Florida defense and were held to only 18 first half points, of which senior Octavia Thomas had eight.

UMass pulled to within 13 points two minutes into the second half, but could not get any closer as foul trouble and turnovers spelled doom for the Minutewomen. Thomas led UMass with 19 points and nine rebounds, while sophomore Tez Kraft added 13 for the Minutewomen.

UMass 73, Boston College 63

Dec. 30 at the O'Connell Center

Thomas poured in 29 points leading UMass to its sixth victory of the season over the Eagles in the consolation game of the Lady Gator classic, 73–63.

UMass led throughout most of the first half and were up by as many as five by the midway point. Boston College fought back, however, to pull ahead by two at the half.

The second half play was evenly matched, with eight ties and seven lead changes. The Minutewomen came out on top when senior Melissa Gurile drained a turnaround jumper with 4:25 to play, putting UMass up for good. Gurile ended the game with nine points, junior Crystal Carroll posted 20 points and Kraft added 11 for the Minutewomen.

St. Joseph's 64, UMass 50

Jan. 4 at the Alumni Memorial Fieldhouse

Megan Compain led the Hawks with a career–high 26 points to defeat the Minutewomen, 64–50 in the first Atlantic 10 Conference game for both squads.

Gurile's 10 first–half points kept the Minutewomen to within three points at the half (26–23). Her jumper at the 10:10 mark in the second stanza got UMass to within one, but seven turnovers, along with a 21–5 St. Joe's run during that time, buried the Minutewomen.

Gurile led all scorers with 23 points and nine rebounds while junior Beth Kuzmeski added 15 to the Minutewoman effort.

UMass 75, Temple 43

Jan. 7 at McGonigle Hall

Carroll led the Minutewomen with 16 points in the team's first Atlantic 10 victory of the season. The game was played, despite one of the worst snowstorms in recent history in the area.

UMass led for all but 17 seconds during a game in which every Minutewoman scored, and three players

Turn to MINUTEWOMEN, page C3

Women's Basketball

Minutewomen

continued from page C2

reached double figures. The score was tied at the 7:20 mark of the first half, but UMass took the lead for good on a 20–2 run ending the first half.

The lead built to as much as 35 before game's end.

In addition to Carroll, Gurile netted 12 points while Thomas added 11. Senior Nicole Carter earned her first start of the season and scored a season–high nine points.

UMass 71, Dartmouth 56

Jan. 9 at Leede Arena

Gurile was the high scorer in this match–up with 22 points for the Minutewomen, leading her squad to a 71–56 victory over the Big Green.

The Minutewomen set the pace of the game early, as they got out to a 16–point lead by halftime on Gurile's 15 points. Dartmouth got back into the game a few minutes into the second half, going on an 18–7 run to cut the UMass lead to six with 10:54 remaining in the game.

Fifteen of 18 Dartmouth points came via the three pointer, four of which were hit by junior Sally Annis. She led the Big Green in scoring with 19 points. UMass went on a 12–3 run of its own over the next six minutes to go ahead by 14 with 3:03 to play, which sealed the game.

In addition to Gurile, Thomas added 19 points while Carroll netted 13 for UMass.

Rhode Island 86, UMass 74

Jan. 13 at Keaney Gymnasium

Rhode Island's Tasha King posted 19 points and seven rebounds to lead the Rams to an 86–74 victory in an ESPN2 televised game.

Despite the loss, Gurile and Carroll each came out with season highs in points. Gurile scored 25 while Carroll posted 22.

Rhode Island pulled out to a nine–point lead (26–17) midway through the first half, and built it up to 13 by halftime on 54.5 percent shooting from the three–point arc (6–11).

The Minutewomen went on a 12–4 run over a four–minute span in the second half to get to within one at the 8:26 mark, but an 11–2 counter run by the Rams over the next four minutes put UMass down by 10.

The Minutewomen struggled due to foul trouble throughout the second half. Gurile, Thomas and Carroll each had four fouls by the 4:45 mark.

Thomas ended up fouling out.

Rhode Island drained all of its foul shots and with the loss of Thomas, it meant defeat for UMass. Thomas did, however, have a career night from the free throw line, as she shot a perfect 10–for–10 from the charity stripe. She ended the game with 18 points.

UMass 69, Fairfield 58

Jan. 16 at the Mullins Center

After over a month on the road, Thomas returned to the Mullins Center to score 23 points while Gurile added 18 points and eight rebounds, leading homesick UMass to a 69– 58 victory over the Fairfield Stags.

The Minutewomen shot an outstanding 51 percent from the field. Jessica Grossarth led Fairfield with 20 points.

The Minutewomen jumped out to a 36–28 lead at the half on the strength of 12 points from both Gurile and Thomas. UMass extended the lead to as many as 10 points early in the second half but Fairfield kept the game close by connecting on 4–of–6 3–point attempts.

The Stags cut the Minutewomen lead to three points with 11 minutes remaining with the sharpshooting of Chantel Williams, who was 3–for–4 from the three–point arc. Gurile and Carroll combined for the next seven points to give the Minutewomen a 13–point lead, the largest margin of the game for UMass.

UMass 65, Virginia Tech 47

Jan. 18 at the Mullins Center

Thomas continued her scoring production scoring 20 points while Carroll added an 18–point effort to lead UMass to a 65–47 win in the first ever Atlantic 10 match–up between the two schools. Michelle Hollister led the way for the Hokies with 13 points and 10 rebounds.

The Minutewomen overpowered Virginia Tech early on, holding the Hokies scoreless for the first five minutes of the contest. The Minutewomen went on a 9–0 run, until Hollister connected at 14:42 to give the Hokies their first points of the game. The Hokies cut the lead to 13–10, but the three– point shooting from Thomas, who hit two, and Kuzmeski, who also connected from trey land, helped the Minutewomen extend the lead to 32–18 at the first intermission. More second half three–point sharpshooting from Thomas and Kuzmeski sealed the win for UMass.

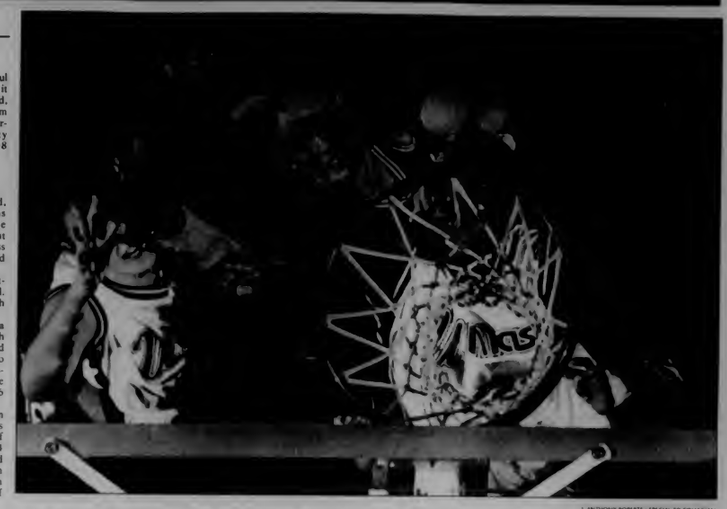
La Salle 87, UMass 77

Jan. 20 at Hayman Hall

La Salle junior Marnie McBreen scored a career–high 26 points, while teammate junior Chrissie Donahue added a season–high 22 points to lead the La Salle Explorers to an 87–77 victory. Gurile and Thomas led the Minutewomen with 22 and 19 points respectively.

The Explorers led 35–32 at the half resulting from 61 percent shooting from the field. La Salle pulled away in the second half, connecting on 4–of–6 three–point attempts. The Minutewomen bounced back to cut the lead to 61–57 at the 8:08 mark but could not hold the Explorers, who turned in a 12–2 run to secure the win.

The Minutewomen hosted St. Joseph's on Jan. 25 and St. Bonaventure on Jan. 27 but results were not available at press time.



Octavia Thomas (right) and Melissa Gurile (left), shown crashing the boards, have continued to lead the Minutewomen, in this, their senior year.

J. ANTHONY ROBERTS / SPECIAL TO COLLEGIAN

BACK TO SCHOOL
FLEX
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
253-3539
BACK TO FLEX

FAMOUS FOR
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
ROUTE 9
HADLEY, MA
GREAT ALL AMERICAN FOOD YEAR 'ROUND
VOTED BEST BURGERS IN THE VALLEY 1995
VOTED BEST BURGER STAND IN THE VALLEY 1995
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

TAU DISTRIBUTION
Thursday, February 1st 9 AM - 5 PM
Friday, February 2nd 9 AM - 5 PM
TAUs will be distributed outside the Housing Services Telecommunications Office, 235 Whitmore Administration Building, to University Housing Residents
Please bring your student ID.

Scott's LIQUORS
Welcome Back To Great Savings
Thank You For Your Patronage
Open Sunday 12-6
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 8a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692
Ruple Vodka $8.99 1.75 liter
Bud, Bud Light & Bud Ice 30 Packs $14.29 +dep
Busch & Busch Light 24-12oz. Cans $9.99 +dep
Red Dog & Ice House 24-16oz. Wide Mouths $13.79 +dep
* Get 7¢ For All Your Bottle & Can Returns
Rolling Rock Reg & Light 12 Pack Bottles $6.99 +dep
Boones Wines Mix & Match 5 for $9.99
Lowenbrau 12 Pack Bottles $6.99 +dep
Alize 750ml $11.99
* Full amount of return muet be used towarde purchase, good on any items in store. Ask about special pricing on special orders & quantity purchases
Tele-Check for your personal check
Check Out Our Other Great In Store Specials
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
Now open Sundays 12-5 until 1996

EXPERT AUTO BODY REPAIRS, AUTO PAINTING and GLASS REPLACEMENT
MARSHALL STEINBECK
PROFESSIONAL COLLISION WORK
• OVEN BAKED URETHANE FINISHES
• FREE ESTIMATES & CLAIMS ASSISTANCE
• INSURANCE APPROVED GLASS REPLACEMENT
• PROFESSIONAL UNIBODY REPAIR AND FRAME STRAIGHTENING
256-8157 256-1385
53 South Prospect Street, Amherst, Massachusetts

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst, 256-0080

AEROBICS
253-3539

Sports
Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call Candice Flemming at 545-3500

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON $134 $268
PARIS $171 $341
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $240 $480
TOKYO $752
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available. Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave. NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*In NYC

Ski snowboard Party in the Snow
Only $219
Winterbreak & Springbreak
INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS
Sponsors include: Molson & Labatt's
MT. ORFORD CANADA
LARGEST ACROSS THE MOUNTAIN RESORTS
5 DAY SKI & SNOWBOARD LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, CONTESTS & HOOPLA
NOTE: YOU LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18
GROUP LEADER & REP DISCOUNTS
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
SKI TRAVEL UNLIMITED
www.skitravel.com
1-800-999-Ski-9

3-D • COMPUTER FRACTALS • OpArt • MOVIE POSTERS • FINE ART • ROCK POSTERS • MODERN & ABSTRACT • MATISSE • HUMOR • TRAVEL • GALLERY PRINTS • ANIMAL POSTERS • FAMOUS MODELS • ROMANCE • FANTASY • WARHOL • DALI • ANSEL ADAMS • ROCKWELL • PICASSO • MC ESCHER • NATURE • MUSIC • FLORALS • MARILYN MONROE • EINSTEIN • SKIING • CONTEMPORARY BLACK & WHITE PHOTOGRAPHY • TALBOT • MONET • VAN GOGH •
BACK TO SCHOOL POSTER SALE
Most Images Only $6, $7 and $8
Sponsor: WMUA 91.1 FM
Date: Mon. Jan. 29th thru Fri. Feb. 2nd, 1996
Time: 9 A.M. - 4:30 P.M.
Place: Student Union Ballroom
Biggest & Best Selection

Hockey

Minutemen struggle over break, lose seven straight

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

While many students may dread the beginning of the new semester, the Massachusetts hockey team, which suffered through a dreadful intersession, is looking forward to the new semester in hopes of a change of luck.

The following are recaps of games played over the break. The weekend series with Maine last weekend is not included as it occurred after the Collegian went to press.

Massachusetts 3, Princeton 1
Dec. 17 at Hobey Baker Arena
This was the third annual meeting between the Minutemen and the Tigers following the reinstatement of the Massachusetts program, and the first time UMass came away with the victory. Sophomore goalie Brian Regan was the star for Massachusetts with 36 saves. Dan Juden, Blair Wagar, and Brad Norton all notched goals in the win.

Cornell 2, Massachusetts 1
Dec. 22 at the Mullins Center
Regan was solid again making 30 saves, but second period Cornell goals by Jason Dailey and Brad Chartrand proved to be enough for the Big Red as UMass could only muster one goal, a third period strike by Dennis Wright, as the home team lost its seventh game of the season.

Maine 7, Massachusetts 1
Jan. 7 at the Mullins Center
This game was not as ugly as the score might indicate, but ugly nonetheless. Reg Cardinal led the Black Bears offensively with a hat trick, while Blair Allison was positively brilliant making 25 saves, many of the acrobatic variety. The lone bright spot for UMass was the first collegiate goal of freshman Steve MacKinnon.

Northeastern 4, Massachusetts 3
Jan. 12 at Matthews Arena
Jonathan Calla's fluke goal just over six minutes into the third period stood up as the game winner as the Minutemen dropped their sixth straight game in Hockey East. Sal Manganaro led the offense for the Minutemen, setting a UMass record by scoring two goals in nine seconds.

Manganaro was frustrated after the game and discounted the flukiness of the goal. "They don't ask how they ask how many," he said. "They had four. We had three."

Northeastern 3, Massachusetts 3
NU wins shootout 4-3
Jan 13 at the Mullins Center
The Minutemen looked to have a win wrapped up in this one, but with one minute remaining, Scott Campbell tied the game at 3-3, forcing overtime.

Neither team scored in the five-minute sudden-death session forcing a shootout, UMass' first-ever.

In Hockey East, each team earns five points for a win, and two for a tie. The winner of the shootout gets one extra point for a total of three.

Northeastern, who has never lost in a shootout, had all four of its shooters score, while Warren Norris was the only scorer for the Minutemen. Dave Kilduff had a solid game for UMass with 34 saves.

Boston College 8, Massachusetts 2
Jan 19 at Kelley Rink
"We played a terrible second period, and it killed us," said Massachusetts coach Joe Mallen.

In the period the referring fo. the Eagles scored five unanswered goals to take a 1-1 game and turn it into a blowout. Warren Norris had the only two goals for Massachusetts.

Boston College 5, Massachusetts 3
Jan 20 at the Mullins Center
In a period of 18 seconds, UMass went from one goal ahead to one goal down, when Ken Hennenway beat Kilduff with under three minutes to play in the game. Don Chase would add an empty-net strike to seal the victory. Manganaro's two-goal effort against his former team stood out as the bright spot for Massachusetts.

Mike Evans (19) and Jon Jacques (11) battle Boston College defenders.

DAILY REGIF / COLLEGIAN

Cornell 8, Massachusetts 1
Jan. 27 at Lynah Rink
Struggles continued for the Minutemen who traveled a long way to get buried, as Ithaca, NY proved to be an unfriendly spot for UMass. Regan, returning from an injury, made 35 saves in the game, but faced too many shots. Jon Jacques scored the lone UMass goal, a short-handed tally midway through the middle period.

The Big Red opened the game with four unanswered goals and cruised from there.

Notebook: Injuries hurt UM

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

A *A*S*H unit — Several Minutemen have been sidelined with injuries during the intersession. Dale Hooper returned from a shoulder injury against Maine after being sidelined since mid-November. Tom Perry and Tiger Holland both suffered injuries in the exhibition game against Slovakia. Perry missed three games. Holland has not returned. Goaltender Brian Regan (strained shoulder), Dan Juden (strained shoulder) and Blair Wagar (sprained ankle) all missed the Boston College Series.

Hockey Notebook

Struggling snipers: He is the leading goal scorer since the UMass hockey program's reinstatement, and the member of an elite club of 100-point scorers at Massachusetts, but lately Rob Bonneau has been struggling. In the past 12 games, the junior right wing has been held to only one goal.

Senior Sal Manganaro had been struggling as well, but broke out with two goals in the first game against Northeastern and the second game against Boston University.

A time change: The starting time for the Feb. 24 game between UMass and Providence has been moved up to 8 p.m. to accommodate the men's basketball game on ESPN the same day.

Turn to NOTES page C10

Mandatory All Staff Meeting

Sunday, February 4 at 7:00pm Collegian Newsroom

If you cannot attend contact your department head.

DON'T WAIT TOO LATE

THE BOULDERS

■ Large 2 Bedroom Apartments
• *New Appliances
• *New Counters/Cabinets
• *New Carpets/Tile
* Selected Units

■ State of the Art Exercise Facility
• Stairmaster • Lifecycle • Nautilus

■ Free Heat & Hot Water
■ 24 Hour Maintenance
■ Central Mailbox Facility
■ Limited Access Entry System
■ 5 College Bus Stop on Property
■ Rent Starting At $695
$100 OFF 1st. Look Special

256-8534

From Amherst center take Rt. 116 south to East Hadley Rd. The Boulders is located 1/4 of mile down on the left.

Women's and men's gym have success

By Candice Flemming
and Steve Grant
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's gymnastics team started the season off on the right foot by downing Rhode Island on Jan. 20 in a record-breaking victory, 191.775-188.250.

In order to defeat the Lady Rams, the Minutewomen (1-0) had to break their previous team-high score of 190.925, which was set last year against West Virginia and Pittsburgh on Feb. 26.

Senior J.J. Tolhurst started right where she left off last year, as the co-captain earned first-place on the vault with a 9.85.

Also capturing first-place honors was junior Tara Swartz, who notched a 9.825 on the bars, and junior Lianne Laing, who scored 9.80 on the floor exercise.

Even more impressive, the three-some of Swartz, Laing and Tolhurst swept the all-around event, finishing with overall scores of 38.525, 38.475 and 37.775, respectively.

Another top performer for the Minutewomen, who are picked by many to win the Atlantic 10 Championship, was freshman Denise Johnson. She finished second on the bars with a 9.700 and second on the floor exercise with a 9.750.

The Minutewomen were scheduled to open the season at George Washington Jan. 13, but the meet was postponed to a later date. UMass travelled to face the Lady Wolverines, who finished second in the nation last year and are predicted by many to win the National Championship this year, Jan. 26, but results were not available at press time.

Columbus, Shupak lead Minutemen

The Massachusetts men's gymnastics team had an impressive showing over the intersession, placing fourth at the West Point Open, sixth at the Rocky Mountain Open, and then defeating Air Force in its first dual meet of the season.

At the West Point Open (Jan. 12), it was junior Ruslan Shupak who led the Minutemen scoring a 9.500 on the still rings to finish fourth overall on the rings. However, he had the highest score of any collegiate competitor. He also placed seventh on the parallel bars with a score of 9.200.

UMass finished behind Penn State, who claimed the title with 217.100 points, Syracuse (216.450 points) and Temple (213.725) while finishing ahead of Army (210.500), Navy (204.050) and Springfield (190.450).

Junior Gabe Columbus took sixth place on the horizontal bar with a 9.150, finished ninth on the parallel bars (9.100) and placed 11th in the all-around with a total of 52.450. Sophomore Keith Showstack finished in 10th place on the pommel horse (8.800) to give UMass another top 10 performer.

The following day in the individual event finals, Shupak placed fourth on the still rings (9.450) and seventh on the parallel bars (8.450) while Columbus took seventh place on the horizontal bar (9.200).

At the Rocky Mountain Open (Jan. 20), UMass (212.500 points) finished sixth behind The United States Olympic Training Center (USOTC), which won the event with 226.675 points, New Mexico (221.525 points), Nebraska (220.475), BYU (217.225) and Oklahoma (215.450) while placing ahead of Air Force (209.900) and Arizona State (196.400).

Columbus was solid once again for the Minutemen. He tied for sixth on the vault (9.200), tied for seventh on the high bar (9.400) and finished seventh on the floor exercise (9.55). Steve Goldman also finished well for UMass, taking ninth place on the still rings with a score of 9.200.

In the Minutemen's first dual meet of the season against Air Force (Jan. 23), UMass came away with the victory. Columbus led the way grabbing three first place finishes while also taking top honors in the all-around. He placed first on the floor exercise (9.60), vault (9.15) and parallel bars (9.45) on his way to an all-around score of 55.00.

Goldman was solid again finishing first on the still rings with a career-high 9.70 score. Freshman Brad LeClair took first place on the pommel horse with a 9.35.

The Minutemen hosted Navy on Jan. 26 but results were not available at press time.

Sports notices

Men's Lacrosse: The UMass Lacrosse Club begins Spring season 1996. There will be a team meeting tonight at 4:30 p.m. at the Boyden NW entrance. The first practice will be tomorrow at 9:15 p.m. at Boyden. For more information, call J. Dietel at 545-3815.

Paid referees needed for intramural basketball: Clinic dates: today and tomorrow (6 p.m.); Thursday and Friday (7 p.m.). Attend one clinic, games begin Feb. 5.

• Get your individual or team entries in for the newest intramural sport – Wallyball! Captains meeting Feb. 9; games begin Feb. 12. Don't miss out on intramural wrestling – matches begin Feb. 12. For more information, go to Boyden 215 or call 545-0022/2693.

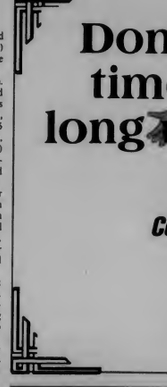
Don't waste your time standing in long [illegible] lines.



Collegian [illegible]ics has a job wa[illegible] you.

113 C[illegible]mpus Center

[illegible]orts meeting

[illegible]re will be a mandatory meeting [illegible] all sports staff members on [illegible]onday, Feb. 5. Anyone else who is [illegible]erested in writing sports is wel[illegible]me. If you have any questions or [illegible]unable to go, call Candic[illegible] at 545-0719.

AEROBICS

253-3539

RUSH ΒΘΒ

The only fraternity on campus that lets you haze yourself!

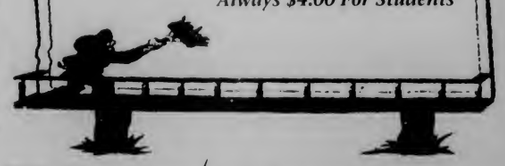
- Beta Theta Beta -
108 Campus Center

Amherst Cinema

"Lowest Prices In The Valley"
Easy Walk From Campus

Call Us At The Cinema 253-5426
For Current Listings

Always $4.00 For Students



MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

MIKE'S WESTVIEW IS BRINGING BACK OUR FAMOUS BIG ONE!

22oz. of Natural Light for $1.25 in Our Reusable Cup!
For Our Non-beer Drinkers . . .
16oz. Cocktail in the Reusable Cup for $1.25!

ON TUESDAY NIGHT, WE WELCOME BACK THE STUDENTS WITH 99¢ FLAVORED SHOTS: BUTTER, ROOT BEER, RASPBERRY, HOT 'N SPICY CINNAMON, BANANA, AND HOT DAMN!

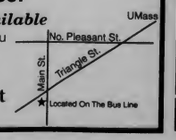
WEDNESDAY NIGHT IS OUR REGULAR RAFFLE NIGHT, FEATURING BRUINS TICKETS AT THE FLEET CENTER, $150 IN MIKE'S MAD MONEY, AND MIKE'S T-SHIRTS AND HATS!

THURSDAY NIGHT IS PARTY NIGHT! FREE HORS D'HOUVRES 9:30 - 10:30!

While You Were Gone . . .
We Had Our MID - SEASON HOCKEY CLEARANCE SALE
With Our BEST Prices Of The Season!

So You Won't Feel Left Out . . .
Show Your UMass ID &
Receive All The Sale Prices NOW!
Save 10 - 50% Off
Skates, Equipment & Sticks
Figure Skates On Sale Too!
Skate Sharpening Always Available
Offer Good Thru 2/3/96

Fentons SINCE 1924
Athletic Supplies
377 Main St., Amherst
253-3973



HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB

More than 25 aerobics classes a week!!

The Area's Most Complete Club • 256-6446

90 Gatehouse Road
"Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center"
•PVTA bus route to Rolling Green • pool •
• aerobics • aqua-aerobics • steps • nautilus •
• racquetball • free weights • jacuzzi •
• sauna • massage • bikes •
• indoor tennis & basketball •
•rowers • treadmills •

MasterCard VISA

Join now for our 15 week Semester Special ($159) & get a free HFC T-Shirt!

Men's Basketball

Minutemen keep winning, unbeaten streak hits 17

By Candice Flemming and Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

The Minutemen entered the break with a perfect 6-0 record and future tough matchups against the likes of No. 21 Georgia Tech, No. 13 Syracuse and No. 3 Memphis. But the Minutemen continued their winning ways, running their unbeaten record to 17-0. Here's a recap of UMass' games over the break.

Massachusetts 75, Georgia Tech 67
Dec. 22 at the Meadowlands
(See story, page 8).

Massachusetts 78, North Carolina State 67
Dec. 28 at Special Events Arena

The Minutemen entered this matchup as the No. 1 team in the nation for the first time since February of last year, but the Wolfpack were not intimidated.

In fact, N.C. State completely dominated the boards, out- rebounding the Minutemen 41-27, grabbing 17 offensive boards to UMass' eight. After the first half of play saw UMass down 34-31, and N.C. State center Todd Fuller controlling the middle with 16 first-half points along with eight first-half boards, the Minutemen seemed to be in trouble.

But UMass outshot N.C. State 69 percent to 40 percent in the second half to pull out the victory. Camby, who had just six points in the first half, finished with 19 points and 11 boards. Tyrone Weeks finished with 12 points off the bench.

Massachusetts 78, Southern California 65
Dec. 29 at Special Events Arena

This match-up with the Trojans gave the Minutemen their first real test of having to play without their star Marcus Camby, who suffered a bruised knee early on and sat out for the remainder of the contest.

The Minutemen responded with an impressive 15-point victory led by strong performances by Edgar Padilla (career- high 19 points), Donta Bright (15 points, eight boards), Carmelo Travieso (16 points) and Dana Dingle (nine points, 13 boards). Inus Norville (nine points, eight boards) and Weeks (eight points) both turned in solid performances off the bench for UMass.

The win advanced the Minutemen to the championship game to face Big East power Syracuse. The last time UMass faced Syracuse was in the 1992 NCAA East Regional Final, when the Minutemen upset the Orangemen to advance to the Sweet 16.

Massachusetts 65, Syracuse 47
Dec. 30 at Special Events Arena

Entering this game against the No. 13 Orangemen, the Minutemen were supposed be to challenged. Syracuse entered the matchup with a perfect 11-0 record and already had beaten Arizona and Illinois, both top 25 teams.

The Minutemen were challenged in the first half, trailing by one (25-24) at the intermission. But helped by a 17-4 run to start out the second half, the Minutemen came back, and outscored Syracuse 41-22 for the remainder of the game to post the victory — and claim the Rainbow Classic Championship.

Cambs came back from the bruised knee to lead UMass with 20 points, 11 rebounds and three blocks, as the Minutemen shot 15-for-25 from the field (60 percent) in the second half. The Orangemen, on the other hand, shot poorly all night, only 38.3 percent from the field.

Dingle finished with 16 points and Bright added 12 while Classic MVP John Wallace led Syracuse with 22 points and 12 rebounds.

Massachusetts 64, Memphis 61
Jan. 4 at the Worcester Centrum
(See story, page 8).

Massachusetts 78, Dayton 58
Jan. 6 at the Mullins Center

This game wasn't supposed to be a contest, and in the end it wasn't, as the Minutemen won by 20 (78-58). However, the Flyers kept themselves within striking distance and were down by just 10 at the half, helped by nine points and seven boards by Ryan Perryman.

Carmelo Travieso has been incredible lately. Against Duquesne on Jan. 20, he exploded for a career-high 33 points and then against Pitt he finished with 27.

| ANTHONY ROBERTS / SPECIAL TO COLLEGIAN

The Flyers went on a 15-5 run to start off the second half, pulling them to within one (41-40) with 16:18 to go. But UMass responded with a run of its own, outscoring the Flyers 10-1 over the next three minutes for a 10-point lead. Dayton countered with a mini 6-0 run to pull within four with 10:23 left, but that was as close as they would get as UMass pulled away to claim the victory.

Camby scored a career-high 38 points while also grabbing a game-high 11 boards. Padilla finished with 11 points, eight assists and four steals, while Dingle added 10 points.

Massachusetts 94, St. Joseph's 89 (OT)
Jan. 10 at the Alumni Memorial Field House

The upset-minded Hawks took UMass to overtime but the Minutemen pulled out the victory on the strength of a 34- point, nine-rebound and five-block effort by Camby.

The game was sent into overtime after Terrell Myers sank three free throws with nine-tenths of a second left, making it 79-79. UMass outscored the Hawks 15-10 in the overtime period to claim the victory. Padilla finished with 20 points and eight assists while Travieso added 16 points.

Massachusetts 65, St. Bonaventure 52
Jan. 14 at the Reilly Center

The outcome of this game was overshadowed by the collapse of Camby, which left many of the Minutemen in tears. But the players pulled themselves together and came away with the victory.

Weeks led the way, scoring a career-high 15 points and grabbing a career-high 12 boards to finish with his first double-double of the season. Dingle scored a game-high 17 points while Bright added 16. Three first half three-pointers by Travieso (11 points) helped the Minutemen take a lead they would never relinquish.

Massachusetts 77, Rhode Island 71
Jan. 17 at the Mullins Center

The Minutemen entered this contest without Camby for the second straight game. While it was Weeks who led the way against the Bonnies in the previous game, it was Norville who stepped up against the Rams. Norville, starting again in place of Camby, finished with eight points and seven boards.

"I felt like I was more involved in the game," Norville said. "I was trying too hard [against St. Bonaventure] and had a disgusting game. This game, I was concentrating more on defense and rebounding."

The real star of the game for UMass however was Bright, who finished with a career-high 32 points while also grabbing nine boards. Padilla was solid as well, finishing with 14 points, five assists, two steals, two blocks and no turnovers.

Massachusetts 93, Duquesne 89
Jan. 20 at the A.J. Palumbo Center

The Dukes, after falling behind by 19 points with 11:54 left in the second half, staged a comeback helped by a 19-8 run that pulled them to within 10 with 7:43 to go. With 3:19 left, Tom Pipkins nailed back-to-back treys to put the Dukes within six, and then a layup by Shelby Roberson made it 86- 82 with 1:40 to go. A Kevin Price basket with 1:02 left made it 90-86 but that was as close as the Dukes would get.

Travieso was on fire throughout the entire game and finished with a career-high 33 points. He started off the second half by scoring 25 of his team's first 30 points, finished the game 7-for-8 from three-point land and had a four-point play.

Massachusetts 79, Pittsburgh 71 (OT)
Jan. 23 at the Fitzgerald Field House

After falling behind by as many as 12 points in the first half, Travieso (27 points) and Bright (26 points) led the UMass charge back to a 66-60 lead with just over two minutes remaining.

With the game tied at 66 and 10 seconds remaining, the Panthers had a chance to prove Dick Vitale right, who predicted the home team would knock off the top-ranked Minutemen. Andre Alridge hit the backboard and the front rim, but his eight-foot runner as time expired would not fall, sending the game into overtime.

From there, Travieso hit the last two of his seven treys to seal the game for UMass. Marcus Camby was on the bench and in uniform, but did not see any action.

The Minutemen's home game against St. Bonaventure (Jan. 27) was played after the Collegian went to press.

No. 1 UMass Already Conquered Fordham

Tonight at 7 p.m. at the William D. Mullins Center

UMass' possible starting lineups:

F Donta Bright
F Dana Dingle
C Inus Norville
G Carmelo Travieso
G Edgar Padilla

Carmelo Travieso

On the air:

WHMP: 99.3 FM
Mark Vandermeer
Tony Barbee
Jack Leaman

WMUA 91.1 FM
Patrick Sheeran
Dan Welch

UMass men's basketball box scores

Massachusetts 75, Georgia Tech 67
Dec. 22 at the Meadowlands
GEORGIA TECH (6-5) — Harpring 2-11 0-0 5, Maddox 5-12 2-6 13, Elzinga 8-16 1-3 17, Marbury 7-20 3-4 18, Barry 1-9 4-4 6, Saunders 4-7 0-1 8, Murphy 0-0 0-0 0, Gaston 0-2 2-0 0, Brennan 0-0 0-0 0, Hodge 0-0 0-0 0, Kelly 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 27-77 10-18 67
MASSACHUSETTS (7-0) — Dingle 4-9 2-5 10, Bright 4-6 4-6 13, Camby 8-18 2-9 18, E. Padilla 5-5 5-8 12, Travieso 5-11 4-6 17, Weeks 2-4 0-0 4, Norville 0-0 0-0 0, Burns 0-0 0-0 0, G. Padilla 0-0 1-2 1, Cottrell 0-1 0-0 0, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0, Maclay 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 26-55 18-36 75.

Massachusetts 78, North Carolina State 67
Dec. 28 at Special Events Arena
NC STATE (6-1) — Strong 8-15 2-2 23, Wagner 0-1 0-0 0, Benjamin 1-5 0-0 2, Marshall 1-4 0-0 2, Pinkins 0-1 0-0 0, Hyatt 2-5 0-0 5, Harrison 2-5 0-0 4, Wilson 0-4 0-0 0, Fuller 12-22 6-11 30. Totals 26-67 8-13 67.
MASSACHUSETTS (8-0) — Dingle 3-5 5-7 11, Bright 4-8 4-4 12, Burns 0-0 0-0 0, G. Padilla 0-0 0-0 0, E. Padilla 1-8 0-0 3, Maclay 0-0 0-0 0, Camby 8-18 3-4 19, Travieso 6-11 0-1 19, Weeks 5-6 2-2 12, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0, Norville 2-3 1-2 5. Totals 29-60 15-20 78.

Massachusetts 78, USC 63
Dec. 29 at Special Events Arena
USC (7-3) — Jones 5-10 4-5 14, Martin 6-12 2-2 14, Dawson 0-0 0-0 0, Reuter 1-4 0-0 3, Wilson 3-10 0-0 6, Slaughter 0-0 0-0 0, Murray 4-9 1-1 9, Strong 0-0 0-2 0, Boseman 2-9 6-6 10, Crouse 3-4 1-2 7. Totals 23-58 14-18 63.
MASSACHUSETTS (9-0) Dingle 4-13 1-2 9, Bright 6-16 5-9 15, Burns 0-0 0-0 0, G. Padilla 0-0 0-0 0, E. Padilla 4-6 8-10 19, Maclay 0-0 0-0 0, Camby 1-1 0-0 2, Travieso 5-10 1-4 16, Weeks 3-4 2-2 8, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0, Norville 4-6 1-1 9. Totals 26-56 18-28 78.

Massachusetts 65, Syracuse 47
Dec. 30 at Special Events Arena
SYRACUSE (11-1) — Sims 0-2 0-0 0, Hill 2-10 0-0 4, Patrick 0-0 0-0 0, Burgan 4-7 0-0 10, Realfrowjer 1-2 0-0 2, Lazor 0-0 0-0 0, Cipolla 0-2 0-2 0, Ianulis 1-7 1-2 3, Wallace 8-17 5-9 22. Totals 18-47 6-13 47.
MASSACHUSETTS (10-0) — Dingle 5-10 6-11 16, Bright 4-7 4-4 12, Burns 0-0 0-0 0, G. Padilla 0-0 0-0 0, E. Padilla 4-5 0-1 8, Maclay 0-0 0-0 0, Camby 7-17 6-7 20, Travieso 3-11 0-0 6, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0, Nunez 0-1 0-0 0, Norville 1-4 1-3 3. Totals 24-55 17-26 65.

Massachusetts 64, Memphis 61
Jan. 4 at the Worcester Centrum
MEMPHIS (8-1) — Wilson 2-5 1-2 5, Henderson 4-8 2-2 10, Wright 8-14 1-3 17, Garner 5-8 0-0 10, Johnson 5-18 1-3 12, Gales 0-0 0-0 0, Allen 2-2 0-0 4, Newman 0-0 0-0 0, Newsom 1-9 0-0 3. Totals 27-64 5-10 64.
MASSACHUSETTS (11-0) — Dingle 1-5 4-7 6, Bright 5-9 4-7 15, Camby 8-16 7-8 23, E. Padilla 0-3 4-4 4, Travieso 5-12 0-0 13, Weeks 0-2 0-0 0, Nunez 1-2 1-2 3, Norville 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 20-49 20-28 61.

Massachusetts 78, Dayton 58
Jan. 6 at the Mullins Center
DAYTON (8-4) — Perryman 4-10 6-9 14, Brookins 2-4 0-0 5, Daniels 10-12 0-0 20, Hahn 2-15 1-2 6, Pontorino 0- 4 0-0 0, Meyer 1-1 0-0 2, Turner 2-5 0-0 5, Meitzler 0-0 0-0 0, Haughn 3-6 0-0 6, Horton 0-1 0-0 0, Beyina 0-0 0-0 0, Pikuar 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 24-57 7-11 58.
MASSACHUSETTS (12-0) — Dingle 4-7 1-4 10, Bright 4-11 0-1 8, Camby 13-27 12-17 38, E. Padilla 4-8, 2-2 11, Travieso 3-7 0-0 7, Burns 0-0 0-0 0, G. Padilla 0-0 0-0 0, Maclay 0-0 0-0 0, Weeks 2-4 0-1 4, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0, Norville 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 30-64 15-25 78.

Massachusetts 77, Rhode Island 71
Jan. 17 at the Mullins Center
RHODE ISLAND (9-5) — King 3-7 6-6 14, Reynolds 6- 12 3-3 15, Andersen 2-6 0-0 4, Thomas 6-9 0-0 13, Wheeler 5-15 3-3 14, Murphy 2-6 4-4 9, Bukari 0-0 0-0 0, Arigbabu 1-1 0-0 2. Totals 25-56 16-18 71.
MASSACHUSETTS (15-0) — Dingle 3-9 4-6 10, Bright 9-19 14-14 32, Norville 2-3 4-8 8, E. Padilla 5-11 2-4 14, Travieso 2-7 4-6 9, Weeks 0-2 4-4 4, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 21-53 32-46 77.

Massachusetts 94, St. Joseph's 89 (OT)
Jan. 9 at the Alumni Memorial Field House
ST. JOSEPH'S (4-5) — Townsend 9-12 1-1 19, Domani 5-7 2-3 13, Johnson 4-5 0-0 8, Bass 4-12 3-3 14, Bey 6-14 2-3 15, Myers 0-3 5-5 5, Petrovic 1-4 5-6 8, Simmonds 2-2 1-1 5, Page 1-1 0-0 2, DelVecyo 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 32-60 19- 22 89.
MASSACHUSETTS (13-0) — Dingle 3-5 4-7 10, Bright 3-4 6-6 12, Camby 13-24 8-13 34, E. Padilla 7-9 5-5 20, Travieso 5-11 2-5 16, Norville 1-1 0-0 2, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0, Weeks 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 32-54 23- 36 94.

Massachusetts 65, St. Bonaventure 52
Jan. 14 at the Reilly Center
ST. BONAVENTURE (5-7) — Palmer 2-7 4-5 8, Spellman 4-10 2-6 10, Schoone 0-0 0-0 0, McNeill 2-12 1-2 6, Wills 2-7 2-2 6, Blackwell 1-5 0-0 2, McFarland 5-14 5-6 17, Singleton 0-2 0-0 0, Shelton 1-3 1-2 3. Totals 17-60 15- 23 52.
MASSACHUSETTS (14-0) — Dingle 6-13 5-6 17, Bright 6-12 3-3 15, Norville 0-3 1-2 1, E. Padilla 2-6 2-2 6, Travieso 3-11 2-3 11, Weeks 5-10 5-6 15, Nunez 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 22-56 18-22 65.

Massachusetts 94, St. Joseph's 89 (OT)
Jan. 10 at the Alumni Memorial Field House
ST. JOSEPH'S (4-5) — Townsend 9-12 1-1 19, Domani 5-7 2-3 13, Johnson 4-5 0-0 8, Bass 4-12 3-3 14, Bey 6-14 2-3 15, Myers 0-3 5-5 5, Petrovic 1-4 5-6 8, Simmonds 2-2 1-1 5, Page 1-1 0-0 2, DelVecyo 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 32-60 19- 22 89.
MASSACHUSETTS (13-0) — Dingle 3-5 4-7 10, Bright 3-4 6-6 12, Camby 13-24 8-13 34, E. Padilla 7-9 5-5 20, Travieso 5-11 2-5 16, Norville 1-1 0-0 2, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0, Weeks 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 32-54 23- 36 94.

Massachusetts 65, St. Bonaventure 52
Jan. 14 at the Reilly Center
ST. BONAVENTURE (5-7) — Palmer 2-7 4-5 8, Spellman 4-10 2-6 10, Schoone 0-0 0-0 0, McNeill 2-12 1-2 6, Wills 2-7 2-2 6, Blackwell 1-5 0-0 2, McFarland 5-14 5-6 17, Singleton 0-2 0-0 0, Shelton 1-3 1-2 3. Totals 17-60 15- 23 52.
MASSACHUSETTS (14-0) — Dingle 6-13 5-6 17, Bright 6-12 3-3 15, Norville 0-3 1-2 1, E. Padilla 2-6 2-2 6, Travieso 3-11 2-3 11, Weeks 5-10 5-6 15, Nunez 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 22-56 18-22 65.
Halftime — Massachusetts 36, St. Bonaventure 27. Three-point goals — St. Bonaventure 3 (McFarland 2, McNeill), Massachusetts 3 (Travieso 3). Rebounds — St. Bonaventure 39 (Spellman 11), Massachusetts 45 (Weeks 12). Assists — St. Bonaventure 7 (McNeill 4), Massachusetts 10 (E. Padilla 5). Total Fouls — St. Bonaventure 19, Massachusetts 17. Attendance — 6,000.

Massachusetts 77, Rhode Island 71
Jan. 17 at the Mullins Center
RHODE ISLAND (9-5) — King 3-7 6-6 14, Reynolds 6- 12 3-3 15, Andersen 2-6 0-0 4, Thomas 6-9 0-0 13, Wheeler 5-15 3-3 14, Murphy 2-6 4-4 9, Bukari 0-0 0-0 0, Arigbabu 1-1 0-0 2. Totals 25-56 16-18 71.
MASSACHUSETTS (15-0) — Dingle 3-9 4-6 10, Bright 9-19 14-14 32, Norville 2-3 4-8 8, E. Padilla 5-11 2-4 14, Travieso 2-7 4-6 9, Weeks 0-2 4-4 4, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 21-53 32-46 77.
Halftime — Massachusetts 36, Rhode Island 36. Three- point goals — Rhode Island 5-14 (King 2-5, Thomas 1-2, Wheeler 1-6, Murphy 1-1), Massachusetts 3-7 (E. Padilla 2- 2, Bright 0-1, Travieso 1-4). Rebounds — Rhode Island 32 (Reynolds 7), Massachusetts 36 (Bright 9). Assists — Rhode Island 8 (Wheeler 4), Massachusetts 11 (E. Padilla 5). Fouled out — Weeks, Arigbabu. Total Fouls — Rhode Island 28, Massachusetts 15. Attendance — 9,493.

Massachusetts 93, Duquesne 89
Jan. 20 at the A.J. Palumbo Center
DUQUESNE (5-9) — Price 4-8 2-2 10, Curley 4-7 2-4 11, Bridges 1-5 3-4 5, Pipkins 6-14 4-4 21, Jones 4-13 7-10 25, Roberson 6-8 1-1 15, Hood 0-1 0-0 0, Clarno 0-0 0-0 0, Davis 0-0 0-0 0, Bonic 1-5 0-0 2, Walker 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 31-61 19-25 89.
MASSACHUSETTS (16-0) — Dingle 8-13 8-11 24, Bright 3-9 4-4 10, Norville 3-3 4-8 10, E. Padilla 3-7 2-5 10, Travieso 11-13 4-5 33, Clarke 0-1 1-4 1, Weeks 1-8 2-3 4, Nunez 0-0 1-2 1. Totals 29-54 26-42 89.
Halftime — Massachusetts 35, Duquesne 33. Three-point goals — Duquesne 8-14 (Curley 1-1, Pipkins 5-9, Roberson 2-4), Massachusetts 9-12 (E. Padilla 2-3, Travieso 7-8, Clarke 0-1). Rebounds — Duquesne 32 (Price 6), Massachusetts 37 (Weeks 9). Assists — Duquesne 20 (Jones 7), Massachusetts 21 (E. Padilla 11). Fouled out — Price, Curley, Bridges, Bright. Total Fouls — Duquesne 29, Massachusetts 21. Attendance — 6,119.

Massachusetts 79, Pittsburgh 71
Jan. 23 at Fitzgerald Field House
MASSACHUSETTS (17-0) — Dingle 3-8 2-3 8, Bright 9-16 8-8 26, Norville 0-1 1-2 1, Padilla 3-7 6-10 13, Travieso 9-17 2-4 27, Clarke 0-1 0-1 0, Weeks 2-6 0-0 4, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 26-56 19- 28 79.
PITTSBURGH (8-6) — Alridge 2-8 2-2 8, Varga 8-16 0-0 17, Blount 0-1 2-2 2, Thomas 4-11 0-0 8, McCullough 6-13 7-8 20, Willard 1-3 0-0 2, Jordan 4-9 4-6 12, Gill 1-1 0-0 2, Maile 0-1 0-0 0, Howard 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 26-64 15-18 71.
Halftime — Pittsburgh 35, Massachusetts 30. End of regulation — Massachusetts 66, Pittsburgh 66. Three-Point goals — Massachusetts 8-20 (Travieso 7-14, Padilla 1-4, Bright 0-1, Clarke 0-1), Pittsburgh 4-20 (Alridge 2-6, Varga 1-3, McCullough 1-4, Willard 0-1, Thomas 0-6). Fouled out — Norville. Rebounds — Massachusetts 37 (Dingle 9), Pittsburgh 43 (McCullough, Jordan 11). Assists — Massachusetts 14 (Padilla 10), Pittsburgh 12 (Alridge, McCullough 4). Total fouls — Massachusetts 19, Pittsburgh 25. Attendance — 6,798.

Men's Basketball

Minutemen's rise to No. 1 ranking surprising to all

Put your hands down.

Everyone who said he or she predicted that 16 games into the season the Massachusetts men's basketball team would be undefeated and ranked No. 1 in the country, you all have one thing in common — you're all lying.

With the losses of Lou Roe, Derek Kellogg and Mike Williams, people wondered how good this team was going to be.

Once the UMass world was subjected to watching the Converse All-Stars beat the Minutemen just 10 days before the season opener against Kentucky, the pre-season No. 1, questions abounded about what this team was capable of. The question of how good will this group be went from being asked in a hesitant, bewildered tone, to one of overflowing exuberance after the convincing win over the Wildcats.

Justin C. Smith

Impressive wins like the one at Maryland, coupled with victories over Wake Forest and Boston College, brought UMass up to second in the nation shortly before Christmas.

Then when the Minutemen knocked off Georgia Tech on the same court that Atlantic 10 sister school Temple defeated then top ranked Kansas, the Minutemen returned to the top of the polls for the first time since their loss last Feb. 3 at George Washington.

Skeptics said it would be short-lived, as surely the burden of being No. 1, jet-lag, or just the fact that people still didn't think they were that good, would lead to a loss in the Rainbow Classic. There was no let down as UMass posted three double-digit victories en route to the tournament championship. Even without Marcus Camby for all but the opening tip of the second round game, the Minutemen kept on rolling.

Wins over Memphis and at St. Joseph's in OT, plus four more wins without the services of leading Player of the Year candidate Marcus Camby, have people talking about what was unthinkable the night Kellogg returned to his old stomping grounds... a National Cha-um, let's not get ahead of ourselves quite yet.

Is this team a leading contender to be in New Jersey come the end of March? With a starting five as good as any in the country, right now no one can argue that — and there are many reasons why.

First and foremost, the guards. When the season started the Minutemen had two experienced guards, and one they hoped would learn quickly. While Charlton Clarke's learning process had to be postponed due to a broken bone in his foot, Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso have done yeoman-like work, playing more minutes than any starting backcourt in the country.

Averaging 37-plus minutes a game hasn't taken away from their intensity and precision on both ends of the floor. At the point, Padilla has an impressive assist-to-turnover ratio that's strikingly similar to the rock-steady play of Kellogg last season.

Travieso has played almost as many minutes already this season than he did in his first two years in Amherst, and has responded with tenacious defense and a sweet stroke behind the three-point arc. His 25-point outburst in eight minutes against Duquesne gives UMass another big-time scoring threat. With the return of Clarke in the backcourt, foul trouble and fatigue will not be an issue.

Camby has become a household name with anyone who follows college basketball. He is the leading Player of the Year candidate at the mid-way point of the season because there is nothing on the court he cannot do.

The 6-foot-11-inch junior center can play inside the paint, and hit fall-away jumpers from the outside. He can rebound and block shots with big guys underneath the glass, along with also being able to dribble up the court like a guard. Thirty seconds into the Memphis game, he dives into the stands to save a missed shot. The Hartford native wants to be the best and proves it every time he steps on the floor.

And he does it all against some of the best big men in the country. Tim Duncan, Lorenzen Wright and John Wallace all have run into Camby — and all have come away on the losing end of the battle.

Co-captains Donta Bright and Dana Dingle have been two terrific bookends for their team's star. When the game has been on the line, just as often as Camby has made the big shots, so has Bright. In the Memphis game he hit a clutch three and broke the Tigers press to get the lead back for UMass. He has become the finisher everyone was looking for out of high school and has responded as the second- leading scorer on the team.

Dingle, the most underrated of the starters, just quietly goes about his business of grabbing the big boards and scoring the hard-working points. His importance to this team doesn't show up on the stat sheet even though he does lead the team in rebounds.

The Bronx native comes to play every game and plays like the game is always on the line — no matter the situation. He hasn't come this far on pure talent. It's his work ethic that gets the job done.

The bench, though not nearly as deep as last year, has responded when called upon. Tyrone Weeks played huge in the St. Bonaventure game where Camby suffered his collapse, and Inus Norville has contributed quality minutes in his absence.

Rigoberto Nunez has played quality minutes as a fourth forward as UMass hasn't had a true third guard of the bench. He has taken his role with unbridled enthusiasm, helping the Minuteman machine remain well-oiled when either Padilla or Travieso need a breather. Even with the return of Clarke, the walk-on-turned-scholarship athlete will continue to play and cheerlead, helping the team win whatever way he can.

The Minutemen have had a bull's eye on their backs for a month so far, and the commencement of conference play has yet to put a blemish on their record, as they are the only undefeated Division I school in the country.

With a game at Louisville and the brunt of the Atlantic 10 schedule still ahead of them, including matchups at Temple, Virginia Tech and George Washington, talk of a perfect season is premature and highly unlikely. But with the longest stretch at No. 1 for the team yet, we are finding out how good this team can be.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian Columnist

A Bright spot in the Minuteman lineup

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

While most people point to Marcus Camby as being the main reason why the Massachusetts men's basketball team is No. 1 and off to its best start ever, the play of senior co- captain Donta Bright should be noted.

Camby has definitely been a huge factor, as he is leading the Minutemen in scoring and is a leading candidate for National Player of the Year honors, but Bright has been, at times, outstanding.

The 6-foot-6-inch forward has finally lived up to the hype that was put upon him when he first arrived at the University of Massachusetts four years ago, as he is averaging 15.9 points, second most on the team (as of Jan. 23).

Simply put — he's come up huge in big games.

In the much-ballyhooed match-up between UMass and No. 10 Wake Forest, that pitted the top two centers in the country against each other, Marcus Camby and Tim Duncan, it was Bright who stole the show. While everyone was focused on the duel of the big men, Bright quietly finished with a team-high 22 points.

Then in UMass' next game against Boston College in the Commonwealth Classic at the FleetCenter, Bright came up big again, leading the team in scoring with 24 points.

That impressive back-to-back performance was just the start of an outstanding eight-game streak in which Bright averaged 16.1 points and five boards a contest in helping lead UMass to victories over No. 21 Georgia Tech (Dec. 22), No. 13 Syracuse (Dec. 30) and No. 3 Memphis (Jan. 4), just to name a few.

In fact, it was Bright and his clutch shooting that won the game for UMass against Memphis. Bright, who normally isn't a three-point threat, nailed a big trey with 2:06 left to give the Minutemen a two-point lead, and then it was his driving layup with 1:05 left that gave UMass the lead for good.

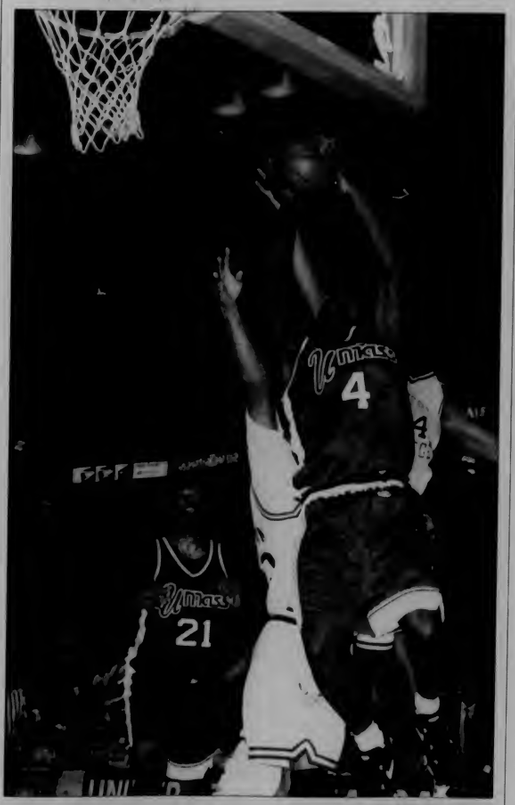
"Those are shots I have been working on," said Bright after the Memphis game. "I knew I could hit it and I was open, so I took them and they went in."

But it was in the Minutemen's victory over Rhode Island, with Camby still out because of his collapse, that Bright really stood out.

The Baltimore native exploded for a career-high 32 points and was a perfect 14-for-14 from the free throw line.

"Donta was incredible [against URI]," Edgar Padilla said. "Hopefully he can play like that

Turn to BRIGHT, page C9



| ANTHONY ROBERTS / SPECIAL TO COLLEGIAN

Donta Bright stepped up his play greatly over the intersession, particularly when Camby was out, as Bright averaged 21 points in the games Camby missed.

Collapse still leaves questions

It happened twice before, but never like this.

Two years ago it was on the floor of Madison Square Garden against North Carolina, and last year it was at home versus St. Joseph's. Massachusetts center Marcus Camby lay on the floor of a basketball arena with an injury and was lost to his team for a short period of time.

Justin C. Smith

Those incidents have since healed and are long forgotten. However those events are all overshadowed by the happenings on Sunday, Jan. 14 in Olean, N.Y.

On the way back to the locker room from the pre-game shoot around, less than seven minutes before game time against St. Bonaventure, the 6-foot-11-inch National Player of the Year candidate fell motionless and unresponsive in the runway for nearly 10 minutes. Unlike his previous injuries and ailments, no concrete indication as to what happened to the superstar that day has been given.

The 21-year-old future NBA draft pick was suited up for the Minutemen's clash with Pitt, but he didn't see action. But that does not mean that his battle is over, or does it? And what does this do for the team as a whole?

Every possible test that could determine what might have caused him to collapse has returned negative, so we know it's not neurological, cardiological or pharmaceutical. Those indicators are positive, and the doctors have cleared him to continue playing without any reservations.

But with the death of swimmer Greg Menton to a heart condition already casting a somber atmosphere over the University, how can there not be a lingering question in the minds and hearts of family, friends and fellow classmates.

Marcus Camby

Will it happen again?

Could the tests have missed something or just not be able to detect what the problem was? After all, Menton's condition was found only after his much-too-early passing. The answers to these questions we may never know until it is too late, or they may never be answered at all.

Every possible test that could determine what might have caused him to collapse has returned negative, so we know it's not neurological, cardiological or pharmaceutical. Those indicators are positive, and the doctors have cleared him to continue playing without any reservations.

But with the death of swimmer Greg Menton to a heart condition already casting a somber atmosphere over the University, how can there not be a lingering question in the minds and hearts of family, friends and fellow classmates.

Will it happen again?

Could the tests have missed something or just not be able to detect what the problem was? After all, Menton's condition was found only after his much-too-early passing. The answers to these questions we may never know until it is too late, or they may never be answered at all.

The way this team is playing, do they really need him? Since his well documented, but unaccounted for collapse, the Minutemen have played four games and come out on top in every one of them. Sure, twice they have gone to overtime, but those games were on Hawk Hill, where UMass always has a tough time defeating St. Joe's and at Pittsburgh of the Big East.

Earlier this year the Panthers completely dismantled fifth ranked Georgetown by 19 at the Fitzgerald Field house and had lost there only 11 times in the past six years. That record includes a 48-5 mark against non-conference opponents going into the UMass game.

I know the Minutemen won't go very far in the tournament without the best big man in the country, but this stretch of close games has brought out the best in the other contributors on the club.

Donta Bright has turned into the scorer we all heard he was when he came out of the best high school program in the country. Over the four games Camby has missed, Bright has averaged 21 points per game. The most impressive stretch may have been the 10 points in a 19-5 run that turned a five-point deficit into a 62-53 lead for UMass against Pitt.

Carmelo Travieso is a streak shooter that has found a zone hitting 14 of his last 22 three-point attempts, including at least five of those in the stretch. Dana Dingle also stepped up with a career-high 24 points against Duquesne.

We may have not learned enough about the health of the UMass superstar, but if the incident turns out not to be a threatening or recurring one, it still may have been a valuable learning experience.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian columnist.

UMass' start is best–ever in school history

Minutemen sprint out to record start — With their 17-0 record to start the season, the Minutemen shattered the previous mark of 12-0 to start a season (1933-34). The University of Massachusetts' 17-game winning streak to start the season set the school record for most consecutive victories and gives UMass the longest current winning streak in the nation. Last season, the Minutemen had a 16-game winning streak.

Minutemen only undefeated team in Division I — After Cincinnati's two-point loss to the University of Alabama- Birmingham and Penn State's one-point loss to Michigan on Jan. 21, UMass became the only remaining unbeaten Division I team at 17-0. The losses dropped Cincinnati from No. 3 to No. 5 while Penn St. remained at No. 14. The Minutemen put their unbeaten streak on the line against St. Bonaventure on Jan. 27 but results were not available at press time.

No. 2 in wins over past five years — With its 126 wins over the past five years, UMass is ranked second with North Carolina for most victories over that span. UMass and UNC are right behind Kentucky, who leads the country with 127 victories in the last five years.

The Minutemen rank ahead of such national powers as Kansas (121), Arkansas (120), UCLA (113), Michigan (110), Duke (108) and Indiana (108). (Win totals as of Jan. 23).

UMass Minuteman Notes

No. 1 for five weeks straight — When the Associated Press Top 25 poll came out on Jan. 22, the Minutemen were once again in the top spot, giving them the No. 1 ranking for five straight weeks. That is the most consecutive weeks UMass has stayed atop the polls in history. Its last time at No. 1 was last season when the Minutemen held the spot for four straight weeks (from Jan. 9 to Jan. 30). UMass was voted No. 1 for the first time following its 104-80 upset of defending national champion Arkansas in the Tip-Off Classic. The Minutemen remained at No. 1 for a week before losing to Kansas.

Bright sets record — With his 8-for-8 performance from the free throw line against Pittsburgh, Bright extended his consecutive free throw streak to 35 in a row, a UMass record. The old record was 24, held by Rich Vogley (over 13 games in 1971-72) and Rafer Giles (over nine games in 1990-91). Bright's streak started against St. Joseph's on Jan. 10. Against Rhode Island, he was 14-for-14, setting a UMass record for most free throws made in a game.

Bright has greatly improved on his free throw shooting from last year when he shot for a 68.3 percentage (71-for- 104) while this year he is shooting 85 percent (79-for-93).

Camby, Bright nearing 1,000 — As of Jan. 23, Marcus Camby needed just 16 points to break the 1,000 point barrier and become the 27th player in UMass history to accomplish the feat. Camby had 984 career points and could have gotten his 1,000 point if he played against St. Bonaventure Jan. 27.

Bright had 962 points entering the game against the Bonnies last Saturday needing 38 to break the barrier.

Career-high streak — With Camby sidelined because of his collapse prior to the St. Bonaventure game (Jan. 14), several different Minutemen stepped up with career-high performances. In three straight games, Tyrone Weeks, Bright and Carmelo Travieso turned in career-high performances.

Weeks turned in the best performance of his career against the Bonnies. The 6-foot-7-inch junior notched his first double-double of the season (third of his career) scoring 15 points and grabbing 12 rebounds to help lead the Minutemen to a 65-52 victory.

Against Rhode Island (Jan. 17) it was Bright's turn. The 6-foot-6-inch senior pumped in a career-high 32 points while also pulling down a team-high nine boards.

Then against Duquesne (Jan. 20), Travieso exploded for a career-high 33 points (11-for-13 from the field) as he was en fuego from behind the three-point arc (7-for-8). In the following game against Pittsburgh, Travieso nailed seven treys again, finishing with 27 points.

Clarke returns — Freshman guard Charlton Clarke was cleared to return to practice in early January and saw his first action since the Kentucky game (Nov. 28) against Duquesne (Jan. 20).

In six minutes of action Clarke scored one point and was 0-for-1 from the field, 1-for-4 from the free throw line. Clarke was sidelined for over a month after having surgery on his right foot on Nov. 30.

"Charlton had some good minutes [against Duquesne]," Calipari said. "In the first half, he did lose his man who made an open three and I had to take him out, but those are all lessons he needs to learn. He's doing fine."

Clarke saw action against Pittsburgh on Jan. 23 finishing with no points.

*Material for this article was compiled by Candice Flemming. All statistics were as

Men's Basketball

Minutemen beat GaTech, Camby nets 18 points

By Brian Perillo
Collegian Staff

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Massachusetts Minutemen used 18 points from junior center Marcus Camby to defeat Georgia Tech 75–67 Dec. 22 at the Meadowlands in the inaugural Jimmy V Classic.

The win over the No. 21 ranked Yellowjackets, despite raising UMass' record to a perfect 7-0, was only one of the story lines that circled the UMass basketball program that night.

With the victory, the Minutemen staked their claim to the No. 1 ranking in the country. Atlantic 10 rival Temple did UMass two big favors to help secure the honor.

Massachusetts	75
Georgia Tech	57

Coach John Chaney and the Owls, who had knocked off the No. 2 Villanova Wildcats the week before, cleared a path for UMass by defeating then No. 1 Kansas in the first game of the Jimmy V Classic as the Minutemen looked on.

Temple was led by sophomore transfer Marc Jackson. The former Virginia Commonwealth Ram torched the Kansas defense inside, and the Jayhawks could not muster enough offense to break Temple's match-up zone.

With the Kansas loss, UMass took the court knowing it was one win away from retaking the nation's top spot, a place the Minutemen appeared for the first time ever last season.

However, there was one more obstacle the Minutemen had to overcome. UMass had not had much success in the Brendan Byrne Arena at the Meadowlands. In fact, the last time Calipari's crew played in front of the East Rutherford, N.J. crowd, it was in the NCAA tournament's Elite Eight game versus Oklahoma State last season.

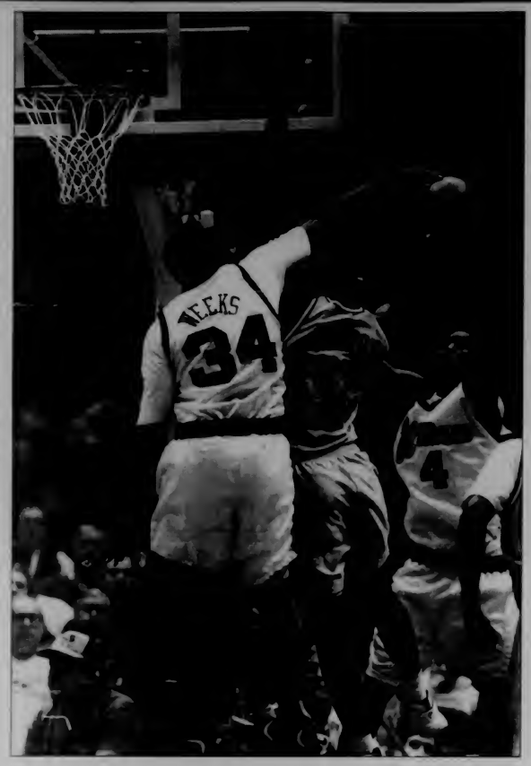
In that game, where the winner would advance to the Final Four, the Minutemen, who were the favorites, succumbed to Bryan "Big Country" Reeves (24 points) and the Cowboys 68–54. UMass saw its dream season come crashing down one win shy of its goal of the Final Four, and a trip to Seattle.

The Minutemen took the first step toward exorcising those Meadowlands demons, however, as they took it to Georgia Tech from the beginning. Tech's leading scorer Matt Harpring, averaging over 20 points a game coming into the contest, never got going against UMass' pressure man-to- man defense, and fouled out of the game after tallying only five points.

The Yellowjackets' super freshman Stephon Marbury, playing close to his home in New York City, showed why he was the most-highly sought after recruit the year before. The point guard led GaTech with 18 points, scoring several in acrobatic fashion.

"I thought I did alright," said Massachusetts guard Carmelo Travieso. "[Marbury's] supposed to be the best point guard in the nation. Every time we go up against a tandem that's supposed to be the best, we dig in. We're looking for respect."

Aside from Camby, the Minutemen got stellar performances from Travieso, who played all 40 minutes and scored 17, and Dana Dingle, who finished one rebound shy of a double-double.



J. ANTHONY ROBERTS / SPECIAL TO COLLEGIAN

Tyrone Weeks (34) and Donta Bright battle for the ball as Juan Gaston goes up for two during the Minutemen's 75-67 victory over Georgia Tech Dec. 22.

UMass hangs on to beat No. 3 Memphis Tigers

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

WORCESTER — After going 10-0 in 1995 against six teams ranked in the top 25, the top ranked Massachusetts Minutemen kicked off the new year with another high powered non-conference foe, the No. 3 Memphis Tigers.

Just as the caliber of opponent wasn't a change from last year, the results to ring in 1996 were very much the same, as UMass jumped out to an early lead, then hung on for a 64–61 victory.

Massachusetts	64
Memphis	61

Senior Donta Bright (15 points) stepped up with two key buckets in the waning moments as the Tigers tried to force the Minutemen into turnovers with their full court press. The first was a three-pointer from the left corner and the second a driving layup, as the co-captain regained the lead for UMass with both hoops, the latter lead it would never relinquish.

"Those are shots I have been working on," Bright said. "I knew I could hit it and I was open, so I took them and they went in."

After the Minutemen completely outplayed Memphis in the first half, never trailing and leading by as many as 16 in the first 20 minutes, UMass found itself in a see-saw battle during the final 20 minutes. The lead swapped hands 10 times, and the two teams were never separated by more than five points.

With 3:49 left in the first half, Marcus Camby hit two free throws to push the UMass lead to 14 at 33–19. Then coach John Calipari sat his star center along with Edgar Padilla, each with two fouls, and the resilient Tigers went on an 11– 2 run to finish the half. The spurt was led by Cedric Henderson, who scored eight of his 10 points in the opening 20 minutes.

"The guys bailed me out tonight," Calipari said as he patted Bright and Padilla on the back. "I tried to get away with sitting down [Camby and Padilla], and they got back into the game."

Camby once again led the Minutemen in scoring as he poured in 23 points to go along with his seven boards, three blocks and three steals against Memphis sophomore Lorenzen Wright. Wright (18 points, nine rebounds) was unable to take advantage of Camby's late foul trouble, scoring only one basket after the UMass center picked up his fourth foul.

The Minutemen scored the first nine points of the game before the contest was three minutes old. That included a stretch with Camby on the bench, while he toweled off a fan's beer spilled on him while diving out of bounds to save a ball in the first 30 seconds.

"I wasn't hurt at all," Camby explained on why he asked to be subbed after falling. "I was just covered with beer."

The matchup of previous unbeatens was the nightcap of the Atlantic 10/Conference USA Challenge, held at the Centrum, following the undercard of UNC–Charlotte/Virginia Tech.

The 17th ranked Hokies were led by juniors Ace Custis (15 points) and Jim Jackson (14 points) as they downed the 49ers, 76–60, giving the A–10 a clean sweep of the night's games.

1-800-COLLECT®

Proudly Sponsors Intramural Sports At

University of Massachusetts Amherst

1-800-COLLECT
Intramural-Recreational SPORTS

SPORTS:	PLAY BEGINS:
Basketball	2/5/96
Wallyball	2/12/96
Wrestling	2/12/96

OFFICIALS NEEDED FOR BASKETBALL, ICE HOCKEY AND WRESTLING.
CALL 5-2693/5-0022 FOR CLINIC INFORMATION.

SIGN UP TODAY

See Your Intramural Recreational Department

NIRSA Endorsed

Dial 1-800-COLLECT and Save Up to 44%.

For long distance calls. Savings based on a 3 min. AT&T oper.-dialed interstate call

■ women's track

continued from page C12

qualifiers. Tallying 132 points, UMass took second behind winner Connecticut (166) and ahead of third place host Brown (105).

"UConn really dominates New England track and field," LaFreniere said. "For us to come within 34 points of them shows a tremendous effort and significant improvement on our part. We closed the gap on them a lot."

Donaghue and Bryan again took the reigns to lead UMass, and they were supported by tremendous efforts from Roberts and Anya Forrest.

Bryan did her work in the field, taking second with a mark of 36–feet–9–inches in the triple jump. She also locked up third place in the long jump with a distance of 17–feet–11 and 1/2 inches. In addition to her field performances, Bryan ran a 7.36 second 55–meter dash, good enough for third place.

Donaghue secured a win in the mile with a ECAC qualifying time of 4:56.93. That time was fast enough to give Donaghue the fourth spot on the all–time UMass list for that event. She also captured the 800, clocking a time of 2:18.34.

Roberts contributed 19 points on the day, winning the 400 in a time of 59.80. That time puts her ninth on the all–time list. She also took fifth in the 200 with a 26.44. Roberts had not been able to train for three days prior to the meet, as she was nursing a bruised Achilles' tendon. In the field, she took sixth in the long jump.

Forrest did not compete in the preliminary meet as she was sitting out with a back injury, but healthy enough to compete again, she battled to a photo–finish in the 55m hurdles, taking second with a time of 8.24 seconds. The time qualifies her for ECACs and puts her tied for second on the UMass all–time list.

"Anya ran really well," LaFreniere said. "She has been out with a pulled muscle in her back and she was on crutches for a while. This is her first meet back, and she is right where she left off from the last time she raced. A time of 8.24 this early in the season is great."

Mitchell threw a personal best 47–feet–8–inches in the 20– pound weight throw, to take fourth place. Melanie Bell placed fifth in the long jump for UMass with a jump of 17–feet–3 and 1/2 inches.

Waeger placed third in the 1000m with an ECAC qualifying time of 2:59.27, while Greenia finished fifth in the 3,000m in a time of 10:24.62.

The 4x200m relay took second place, while the 4x400m and the 4x800m relays both finished third.

"I was really happy with a lot of our performances," LaFreniere said. "All the women on this team want to win. They are aware of the score. They are aware of their contributions and they want to win. That's the kind of attitude we want and are looking for. That's what we need."

The Minutewomen competed Jan. 26 against St. John's, Maine and host Rhode Island, but the results were not available at press time.

Dexter's not his usual self.

You suspect the salsa.

So you call Dr. Nusblatt, your family vet back home.

The call is cheap.

(Too bad about the consultation fee.)

Live off campus? Sign up for AT&T True Reach Savings℠ and save 25% no matter who, how, when or where you call in the U.S.

Life can be complicated. AT&T True Reach Savings℠ is simple. Save 25% on every kind of call on your AT&T phone bill—direct dial, calling card, directory assistance, local toll, cellular, fax and modem – when you spend just $25 a month.* No other plan gives you all these different ways to save. Just call 1 800 TRUE-ATT to sign up. Save on every call. That's Your True Choice.℠

AT&T
Your True Choice

*Advertising distance calls billed to AT&T home or AT&T Calling Card accounts. Discounts off AT&T base rates. Certain exclusions apply, subject to billing availability. Offer void where prohibited. Not available for residential AT&T customers. Minimum spending requirement is per residential line. Compared to major long distance carriers.

© 1995 AT&T

■ men's track

continued from page C12

Minutemen competed in the Challenge Cup finals at Brown on Jan. 20.

Led by eight New England Championship qualifying performances, UMass placed sixth at the finals.

Toye was again the leader for the Minutemen, as he ran to a New England and IC4A qualifying time of 22.36 in the 200m dash. That time breaks the UMass school record of 22.37, which was set by Kevin Walters in 1991.

Paul Blodorn also qualified for NFs with a second place time of 1:55.01 in the 800m. That time placed Blodorn 10th on the UMass all–time list for that event.

Other qualifiers on the afternoon were Behl, who took fourth place in the 3,000m, with a time of 8:29.91, and Roche, who placed fourth in the triple jump with a distance of 45 feet–9 1/4–inches.

The UMass 4x800m relay team of Blodorn, Mike Ferrari, Nedeau and Walter Stock, also qualified for NFs with a time of 7:56.06.

Considering the caliber of the athletes the Minutemen faced, O'Brien was pleased with his team's performance.

"I thought that we did well," he said. "We went in there and had some great events. Toye had an extremely good race, and Blodorn ran really strong. We have a lot of young guys who go out there and give a great effort.

"It's nice to see that we are at the point we were striving for early in the season. It's great to see the goals we set being accomplished."

The Minutemen competed against Central Connecticut, Holy Cross and New Hampshire at UNH on Jan. 27, but results were not available as of press time.

■ Bright

continued from page C7

[again] or someone else will have to step up."

Bright just took it all in stride.

"Coach got me the ball. I just took advantage. I was in great scoring position," Bright said.

"When [Donta] had the ball, I said to him, 'Take 'em, take 'em, he can't guard you.'" Massachusetts coach John Calipari said.

Against Pittsburgh (Jan. 23) Bright came up big again with Camby on the bench. He was perfect from the free throw line (8–for–8) and finished with 26 points on 9–of–16 shooting from the field. He also scored 10 points during a 19–5 run that turned a five–point deficit into a nine–point lead for UMass. During Camby's absence, he's averaged 21 points per game.

Bright's also been red–hot from the foul line as of late. He's set a UMass record for consecutive free throws as he has gone 35–for–35 from the line since the St. Joseph's game (Jan. 10).

In the Minutemen's victory over the University of Rhode Island, it wasn't just his 32 points and nine rebounds that helped the Minutemen come away with the victory. It was his defense on the Rams' Josh King that Calipari pointed out to as the difference in the outcome.

"Donta on defense held King to only four points in the second half," Calipari said. "If he doesn't do that, we don't win the game."

At the beginning of the season, Bright said he wanted to do whatever it took to help the team win — score, rebound, defend — whatever. Seventeen games into the season, Bright is doing just that — and the Minutemen keep on winning.

■ women's swim

continued from page C11

The 200–yard medley relay team of Kerrin McCarthy, Jessica Griffith, Irina Kossenko and Sarah Baker captured a new UMass pool record with a time of 1:52.61. The record was previously held by UConn.

In the diving competition, sophomore Angelique Rodriguez continues to perform well as she captured a third place finish in both the one and three–meter diving events to lead the Minutewomen off the boards.

UMass' duel meet record now stands at 3–1, with a second place finish at the New England Championships behind UConn.

The Minutewomen also swam in a meet this past Saturday at the University of New Hampshire and at Boston College today, a team they edged out for second place in the New England's. See tomorrow's Collegian for results.

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
160 West St.
So. Amherst. 256-0080

Hockey

DAILY FILE / COLLEGIAN

Warren Norris (14) and the Minutemen are hoping for better luck in their upcoming games than they had during the intersession when they won just once.

■ notes

continued from page C4

Another Massachusetts Kennedy: With all of the injuries, freshman center Bryan Kennedy dressed for the first time in the Friday night game versus Boston College. Kennedy, a native of Toronto, looks to figure into the UMass lineup in the future, but is being brought along slowly.

Kennedy joins forward Steve MacKinnon and defenseman Joe Trosky as the only freshmen to crack the Minuteman lineup this season. Frosh defenseman Brendan Shaw saw action in the exhibition against the Slovakian Junior National Team.

Non-conference success: While UMass has struggled in its own conference, it has been successful outside of Hockey East. Beginning with a season opening 5-3 win at Army, UMass has jumped out to a 6-3 record against non- conference foes, with wins over Air Force (2), Yale, RPI and Princeton, and losses to Vermont and Cornell (2).

Milestones: Regan became the fourth goalie in UMass history to pass the 1,000 save mark, when he notched 18 saves against Northeastern. Senior Dave Kilduff is also approaching the milestone with just under 900 career saves.

Arts & Living
So you wanna write for arts.
But you don't know what it does.
So you come down to 113 Campus Center
And you talk to Tara, Mike, Seema or Laura.
They give you an assignment.
You take it and write.
You're happy.
It's a lot like Nike – you just have to do it.

Can you Draw? Interested in Drawing a Cartoon or Comic?
Then Show Up at the
MEETING FOR CARTOONISTS
All current and future cartoonists must attend a meeting at 2 pm on February 4 in the Collegian Newsroom, 113 Campus Center.
Please Bring Several Samples With You.
If you have ?'s or cannot attend, please contact, Marni E. Heffner, Managing Editor, at 545-3500.

SKI BOUSQUET
$20 DAYS $15 NIGHTS
$5 OFF With College ID
Dan Fox Drive (413) 442-8316 Pittsfield, MA

BUY THE SLICE BLUEWALL PIZZA CLUB
Buy 10 slices, get 1 free!
Present this card to the cashier to receive sticker.

UMass Division of Continuing Education
Your entryway into the University and the future
• Over 200 credit courses and noncredit workshops – in the evening!
• Professional development courses, seminars, workshops
• Specialized degree programs
• Courses for recertification points for teachers
Register through February 12.
Call for a free course catalog - (413) 545-0107
e-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
Division of Continuing Education • University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

• Weekly Specials on Regular Beers • Fine Wines
R&P Liquors
• Largest Selection of Micro-Brews in S. Amherst • Fridge Rentals
253-9742
Minutes from Mill Valley, The Brook, & The Boulders
505 West St. • South Amherst

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

WE'RE HERE!
Come To Amherst Barbers and See Jim and Terri, Formerly of University Barbers!
Amherst Barbers Now Open
Unisex Hair Stylist
Tel. 253-1722
40 Main Street, Amherst, MA (Across Newbury Comics)
$8 and up
Hours: Mon - Wed 8am-5:30pm
Thurs & Fri 8am-8pm, Sat 8am-3pm
Proprietors: Jim Reed and Terri Lonerini
Formerly Of University Barbers
Jim Terri

Over 25 Aerobic Classes with Certified Instructors
Nordic Track ◆ Stairclimbers ◆ Treadmills ◆ Lifecycles
THE NEWEST FACILITIES... THE BEST VALUE... TOTALLY CONVENIENT
Kinetics ADULT FITNESS
4 MONTHS $129!
Located At KIDSPORTS FAMILY FUN & FITNESS
317 Russell St. (Rt. 9) Hadley, MA
586-0633
Trotter Circuit Weight Training ◆ Free-Weights
Basketball & Volleyball Court ◆ Open Court Time

Swimming

Men's and women's swimming back in action

• Minutemen return to action after death

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's swimming and diving team completed a tough period in their swimming careers and in their lives this winter session, as it lost both a fellow teammate and a friend.

On Jan. 10, junior Greg Menton died suddenly from cardiac dysrhythmia after a meet at Dartmouth.

The Minutemen returned to action after a couple of weeks off on Jan. 20 in a dual meet at Boyden gymnasium as they took on the Huskies of UConn, and defeated them by the score of 134-111.

B.J. Brannan took first place finishes in both the 500 and 1,000-yard freestyle events to lead the Minutemen.

Geoff Gear picked up first place in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:46.25, and second place in the 200-fly with a time of 1:58.70 in which UMass took the top three places. Mike Shaw had first and John Luviano third.

Senior captain Keith McLarty captured first place finishes in both the 200-yard individual medley and the 200-yard backstroke. Sophomore Sean Anderson took first place in the 50 yard freestyle to help the Minutemen to victory.

In the diving competition Justin Murphy had both second place finishes in the one and three-meter diving events.

UMass now improves its record in dual meets to 4-0. The Minutemen were at New Hampshire Saturday but results were not available as of press time. Today, the Minutemen head to Boston College. See the Collegian later this week for results.

• Minutewomen fall short against UConn

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

In its first meet in over a month and a half, the Massachusetts women's swimming and diving team put forth a valiant effort against top rated Connecticut on Jan. 20 at Boyden Gym.

The Minutewomen, however, fell just short to the Huskies in a 130-113 decision.

The Minutewomen were out of action the past two weeks because of the death of men's swimmer Greg Menton, Jan. 10, following a meet at Dartmouth.

On Jan. 2, the Minutewomen were scheduled to take part in the Lake Worth Invitational meet in Lake Worth, Florida. However, when the meet was postponed to Jan. 4, the Minutewomen were unable to swim as that morning they were on their way back to UMass.

"We used that time in Florida as a training period," said head coach Bob Newcomb.

Then after the tragedy of Menton, the Minutewomen did not attend the Rhode Island Invitational Jan. 12-13 in which they were to compete against URI, Providence and LaSalle.

So this meet against favored UConn was the first that UMass had swam in since the New England Championships during Dec. 1-3, in which they came in second place out of 10 teams behind UConn.

"I was really happy," Newcomb said. "I had no idea how we were going to perform. We took UConn to the last relay, and I was extremely pleased by our overall performance."

Needing a finish of first and third in the last relay to complete the upset, the Minutewomen pulled off second and fourth. All the relays were very close, according to Newcomb, as the Minutewomen took the Huskies right down to the wire in every one of them.

Senior Sarah Baker continued her outstanding season capturing first place in the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 24.89, and in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 53.68.

Sophomore long distance record holder Karen Sonnwald made her return to the water in style (after recovering from a broken foot that had her out from the start of the season) with a first place finish in the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 5:07.07.

"That's going to add a nice new dimension to our team now that Karen is back," Newcomb said.

Junior Jessica Farley placed first in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:57.38. Junior Barbara Hickey placed second in two races on the day, the 500 and the 1,000-yard freestyles with times of 5:07.48 and 10:28.92, respectively.

Turn to WOMEN'S SWIM, page C9

UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Jessica Griffith put in a solid effort in the Minutewomen's loss against Connecticut on Jan. 20.

Sparky's Safety Spot™
FIRE WON'T WAIT, PLAN YOUR ESCAPE
Have an escape plan that includes two ways out of each room and a meeting place outside the home. Practice it with the whole family at least twice a year.
NFPA National Fire Protection Association, Quincy, MA

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

CHANGE YOUR CLOCK
CHANGE YOUR BATTERY

Experience You Need
Looking for a job on campus that will help prepare you for a career when you graduate? Apply for the position of:
Advertising Representative
Seeking responsible, organized, creative individual that is outgoing and comfortable doing telephone and outside sales. The position includes working with existing accounts and generating new sales within your territory. Reliable car a plus.
To apply, stop by our office
DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center Basement, Amherst, MA 01003 413-545-3500

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS
SUMMER SCHOOL FOR PEOPLE ON THEIR WAY TO THE TOP.
If you didn't sign up for ROTC as a freshman or sophomore, you can still catch up to your classmates by attending Army ROTC Camp Challenge, a paid six-week summer course in leadership training.
By the time you have graduated from college, you'll have the credentials of an Army officer. You'll also have the self-confidence and discipline it takes to succeed in college and beyond.
ARMY ROTC
THE SMARTEST COLLEGE COURSE YOU CAN TAKE.
For More Information Call CPT Sean W. Higgins 545-2321

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
More than 450 Beers.
The Largest Selection Of Micro-Brewed & Imported Beers In The Area.
A Wide Variety of Fine Wines.
Over 40 Single Malt Scotches.
Specialty Kegs In Stock. (Cold Plates Available)
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
"Your Full Service Party Source"
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt.9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt.9E
VISA - MASTERCARD - DISCOVER Accepted

PANDA EAST
CHINESE RESTAURANT & SUSHI BAR
"We bring Chinatown to you"
BEST CHINESE RESTAURANT IN THE VALLEY SINCE 1927
LUNCH SPECIALS
Starting At $3.95
7 Days A Week
FULL MENU
For Sushi, Sashimi and Teriyaki Is Available
Amherst: 103 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA 01002
Telephone: (413) 256-8923 / 256-8924 Fax: 253-1173
We Deliver Thru Delivery Express: 549-0077

Track and Field

Men's and women's track have successful break

•Minutewomen take second at Cup finals

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

During the intersession, the Massachusetts women's indoor track and field team staked its claim as a force in New England track.

Competing in the New England Challenge Cup, a two- meet series, the Minutewomen squared off against the best talent in the region. After running away with first place at the preliminary meet, they claimed second place at the Challenge Cup finals.

Rosie Bryan and Rebecca Donaghue led the way as UMass won eight of 18 events and coasted to victory in the Cup preliminary, scoring 194.33 points. Dartmouth took second (137.33), New Hampshire was third (98.33), and Maine was fourth (85).

Bryan had 22.83 points on the day, taking two firsts and one fourth. With a time of 7.34 seconds, Bryan claimed first in the 55-meter dash. UMass swept the event, with Nicole Roberts taking second (7.45), and Emma Gardiner in third (7.48).

Donaghue tallied 20.5 points, winning the mile in a time of 5:02.19 and taking second in the 800-meter in a time of 2:19.67. Jen Waeger took the top spot in the 800, clocking a 2:19.17, and Kristin Donaldson and Christy Martin placed in the mile for UMass.

Shana Mitchell led the way for the Minutewomen in the field events by winning the 20-pound weight throw, recording a distance of 44-feet-9-inches. Christy Martin (44 feet, seven inches) and Stephanie Townson (43-feet-1-and 3/4 inches) also placed in that event.

UMass took the top two spots in the long jump, with Roberts and Shelanda Irish taking first and second, respectively. Roberts posted a jump of 16-feet-6-inches and Irish marked at 16-feet-5-inches.

Massachusetts also claimed wins in three of the four relays. Gardiner, Yves Amazan, Bryan and Irish won the 4x200m relay; Martin, Jen DelColle, Waeger and Donaghue took the 4x800m; and Cheryl Lyons, Silifa Kenku, Donaldson and Melissa Langevin captured the distance medley relay.

The team had 10 New England qualifiers at the meet, which impressed and pleased Massachusetts coach Julie LaFreniere.

"We had our first workout the Monday before, and the women ran really well for having just gotten back in the swing of things," LaFreniere said. "The first meet back is always hard, and we were just looking to be competitive.

"A lot of women ran very well, especially Emma. She has really worked hard and given a tremendous effort. She deserves to be recognized as one of our top sprinters."

The Challenge Cup finals proved to be the testing ground for the Minutewomen, as they faced stiff competition from the other preliminary meets at which a number of New England schools compete. From these teams, the top two at each preliminary move on to the finals the next week. Having faced elimination after the preliminary round the past two years, the Minutemen were focused on making this year's finals.

"We established that goal early on in the season," Massachusetts coach Ken O'Brien said. "We wanted to make the finals, to face the best athletes in New England."

UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Nicole Roberts won the 400 and then placed second in the 55-meter dash to help the Minutewomen take second place at the Challenge Cup Finals.

Turn to WOMEN'S TRACK, page C9

•Young Minutemen lead UM to Cup finals

UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Senior Mark Lefebvre took second place in the shot put with a distance of 48 feet-9 and 1/2-inches.

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

At the beginning of the season, the Massachusetts men's indoor track and field team set certain goals for the year. One of those goals was to qualify for the finals of the New England Challenge Cup.

On Jan. 12, the Minutemen accomplished that goal.

The Challenge Cup has three preliminary meets at which a number of New England schools compete. From these teams, the top two at each preliminary move on to the finals the next week. Having faced elimination after the preliminary round the past two years, the Minutemen were focused on making this year's finals.

"We established that goal early on in the season," Massachusetts coach Ken O'Brien said. "We wanted to make the finals, to face the best athletes in New England."

Young blood paid dividends for the Minutemen, as freshman Tom Toye took two firsts in leading the team to a second place overall finish at the preliminaries. Clocking a time that put him third on the UMass all-time list for the 200m dash, Toye took first with a time of 22.58 seconds. He also claimed the top spot in the 55m dash, with a time of 6.65 seconds.

Freshman Neil Concepcion won the 400m, posting a time of 51.07 seconds, while classmate Andre Roche took second in the triple jump, with a jump of 43-feet-7-inches. Albert Vasquez vaulted 13-feet-6-inches to take third in the pole vault, while Ryan Fortune jumped 6-feet-2-inches to place third in the high jump.

The Minutemen also had strong performances in several other events. Matt Behl won the 1,000-meter, recording a time of eight minutes, 42.9 seconds, while Dave Cahill posted a 1:16.61 to win the 600-yard dash. Ethan Nedeau took second in the 1,000-meter, with a time of 2:18.24, and Marc Lefebvre threw a distance of 48 feet, 9 1/2 inches, taking second in the shot put.

The afternoon was also highlighted by Ron Tauro's showing in the hurdles and triple jump. He placed third in the triple, jumping 43-feet-1 1/4 inches, and won the 55- meter hurdles with a time of 7.93 seconds. Tauro's time in the hurdles was fast enough to qualify him for New Englands.

The team had 22 different athletes figure into the scoring, a fact that pleased O'Brien.

"This is the first meet for these guys since they got back from the holiday break," he said. "They really did well, it shows that they really worked hard while they were away from school.

"We had some great performances, Tom Toye, Dave Cahill, all the guys ran hard. They focused on qualifying for the finals, and they did it."

With the field narrowed to the six best teams in New England, the Turn to MEN'S TRACK, page C9

Go Away!

There is world enough and time
for you to begin the adventure of your life.

Study Abroad next year,
or summer,
or fall.

Come to International Programs
Hills South, room 455
Monday - Friday
10 a.m. - noon & 1-4 p.m.
545-2710

Let us help you
do it!

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian Has Openings for Paid Positions for the Spring 1996 Semester:

- Black Affairs Editor
- Jewish Affairs Editor
- Women's Issues Editor
- Librarian
- Assistant to the Managing Editor

All applicants must be full-time, undergraduate students.

Interested students should complete an application and speak with either the managing editor or editor in chief.

The deadline for applications in 4 p.m. on Wednesday, February 7, 1996.

If you have any further questions, feel free to contact either Marni Helfner, Managing Editor or Matt Vautour, Editor in Chief, at 545-3500.

Dance the night away

The Residential Arts program starts its season off jumping with "Rites of Spring" at Hampden Theater (see Arts & Living, page 6).

Crafting a new center

The Craft Center has spent the last month getting a facelift to make it more accessible to students (see story, page 3).

Fordham rammed by Minutemen

Ted Cotrell played well off the bench chipping in six points as UMass stayed undefeated, defeating Fordham 80- 50 (see Sports, Pag. 12).

Extended Forecast

Today will be cold and windy, with a high chance of snow early in the morning. It will remain cloudy for the rest of the week, with a chance of snow again on Friday.

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 20 LOW: 0	HIGH: 15 LOW: 5	HIGH: 25 LOW: 15

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 70 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday, January 31, 1996

At workshop militias called racist

By Anastasia Kudrez
Collegian Correspondent

AMHERST — Leonard Zeskind, an expert on far right, racist and Anti-Semitic movements, said a national identity crisis had strengthened right wing militia in the United States.

The Five College Program for Peace and World Security Studies recently sponsored a faculty program on "Identity Politics and Collective Violence: A Workshop on Conflict Analysis and Resolution."

On Jan. 17 at 7:30 p.m., 70 people crowded into a seminar room for Zeskind's lecture, "Right Wing Militia and White Supremicism in the United States and Europe." Zeskind discussed the origins of the White Supremacy Movement (WSM) in the United States, the movement in Europe, and its relation to U.S. identity politics.

According to Zeskind, the right wing militia movement originated in the Christian patriot wing of the WSM. These militia are defined as armed paramilitary organizations, free- floating and private, with external and internal command structures and a guiding ideology.

Militia are one part of the WSM, which includes the Ku Klux Klan, Aryan Nations and the neo-Nazis. Zeskind discussed the movement as a whole, with emphasis on Christian Identity Doctrine militia.

Zeskind focused on three issues of the WSM: Ruby Ridge, Waco and the Brady Bill. The August 1992 Ruby Ridge confrontation between Randy Weaver and the FBI illustrated clashing ideologies of the militia and the government. Weaver was a follower of the Christian Identity Doctrine, which is based solely on the Bible, primarily the Old Testament.

According to the Christian Identity Doctrine, Jews are the offspring of Eve and Satan or descendants of the Esau line. People of color were created before Adam, and are therefore subhuman. Most right wing militia believe this "scientific racism." An unreported but crucial part of Ruby Ridge was a campaign at the perimeter of the FBI line. Many people gathered to protest government intervention in Weaver's freedom of religion and his right to bear arms.

Zeskind argued that this protest was significant because it indicated that the movement has a historical memory, dating from a stand-off in 1983. In Waco, there was a similar group of protesters around the Branch Davidian complex.

The Brady Handgun Prevention Act strengthened militia by angering defenders of the Second Amendment. To protest, many joined militia in a movement of mass civil disobedience. Although these militia formed to practice their right to bear arms, Zeskind believes the nature of the militia's power is shifting.

"The militia is dropping their guns and getting more grassroots political," he said.

Zeskind described the differences between the European and U.S. White Supremacy Movement, focusing on Germany. In Germany, tougher gun laws and a lower level of cultural violence has created a different WSM. The movement is mostly secular, organized in "party guards" resembling terrorist squads. Their identity crisis, deciding "Who is German?" has resulted in street violence. The difference is, unlike U.S. militia, German WSM groups can and do influence government policy.

The fall of the Berlin Wall is linked with the growth of a national identity crisis in the United States. Zeskind said, "We used to be defined by who we were not. Now that Communism fell, we can't be anti-Communist. So who are we?"

He argued that issues of race and religion have become defining identity topics in the United States. Zeskind called the Patrick Buchanan campaign a racial-ethnic campaign, "even borrowing the words of David Duke." This has lead to the embrace of the militia movement by conservative Republicans, and could affect the outcome of the New Hampshire primary.

Zeskind concluded by answering audience questions. He described the role of women in the WSM as "significant but limited." The growing political movement, based from kitchen table Bible studies, is run by women.

An attending militia member challenged Zeskind's lecture, saying that "the purpose of the movement is to protect the Constitution of the United States, not white supremacy." He said the militia movement includes people of color, and therefore is not a white supremacist movement.

Zeskind countered that some militia do have token people of color, just as the Nazi Party had some Jewish members. But the overwhelming majority are white and promote racism.

One woman asked Zeskind how a paramilitary movement could be based on the Bible, ignoring the First Commandment "Thou shalt not kill." Zeskind replied, "Well, they have their own quotes."

Zeskind conducts his research by studying WSM literature, attending meetings, and interviewing former members. He is President of the Institute for Research and Education on Human Rights in Kansas City, Missouri, serves on the Jewish Community Relations Board of Directors, and is a consultant to the Kansas City Mayor's Commission on Hate Group Activities. He has written numerous articles for the New York Times and expects to have a book published this year.

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

Hitting the books

Bill Toffel, a sophomore political science major, checks out an interesting piece of literature for his Microeconomics class at the Textbook Annex Tuesday afternoon.

Peace Corps offers students jobs

By Anastasia Kudrez
Collegian Correspondent

When the director of the Department of Wildlife in Botswana asked for a tour of a game reserve, he was not expecting Charlie Hamilton to take him through the swamps.

"He was an administrator, so he wasn't used to getting stuck or lost in the swamp, or seeing hippos and elephants around every corner," Hamilton said.

After four days, Hamilton returned the director to his Gaborone office with a better understanding of the reserve and what the Peace Corps was doing there. Hamilton spent six years in Botswana and The Gambia managing the Morami and Kiang wildlife reserves. He is one of 140,000 volunteers the Peace Corps has sent to 102 countries since 1960. A University of Massachusetts graduate, he earned a bachelor of science degree in Wildlife Biology.

Hamilton spent his first three years in Botswana. He lived in a Western-style house, working as an administrator. Sometimes he lived in the game reserve, working with the game scouts. Hamilton extended his two-year commitment to the Peace Corps and moved to the Kiang National Park in The Gambia.

"It was a very poor country. I lived in a mud hut with a thatched roof, no power or running water," he said.

Hamilton coordinated an "integrated conservation project," which incorporated local communities into the new park. After six years volunteering, he hopes to work for the Peace Corps full-time once he receives his master's degree in Natural Resources and Conservation.

The Peace Corps welcomes volunteers with liberal arts degrees as well. Karen Elam earned her B.A. in psychology from the University of Virginia. She had experience teaching English as a second language and spoke fluent Spanish, so the Peace Corps sent her to teach adult literacy in Honduras.

Elam organized a radio-transmitted distance education program that reached 12 communities. Students could earn their sixth-grade diploma, a milestone in Honduran education. At one point, Elam had 200 matriculated students in her program.

"It was an enormous responsibility, but the practical knowledge far exceeds classroom learning," she said. "You need to be flexible and creative, a self-starter in an unstructured environment."

The Peace Corps has three goals: skills transfer, practical and academic; to help other cultures learn about Americans; and to help Americans experience other cultures. The program places volunteers in 60 different health, agriculture, and teaching jobs. While most assignments require a bachelor's degree, volunteers do not need a profound knowledge or skills, only a strong commitment to the program. Various skills and experiences qualify applicants: being an EMT or simply knowing CPR; community service; working with minority groups; cross-cultural experience; knowing a second language; or basic gardening experience.

Tutoring experience is available through the Jones Library in Amherst or the International Language Institute in Northampton. The American Red Cross in Northampton offers CPR certification workshops.

The Peace Corps provides an eight to 12 week training session to learn language, cross-cultural skills, and technical skills. Although previously knowing a second language is helpful, it is not essential. Hamilton learned Setswana and Mandinka for his work in Africa.

The program pays for training, a round-trip flight and a comfortable living stipend. Volunteers have 24-hour medical coverage, 48 vacation days, and a vacation allowance. After two years, volunteers receive a $5,000 readjustment allowance. Other possible benefits include student loan deferral and a partial Perkins loan cancellation, eligibility for federal employment, academic credit, and special graduate school scholarships and assistantships.

Elam's experience helped her enroll in the UMass Center for International Education Graduate Program. The Fellows/USA Program specifically places returned volunteers in many graduate programs, including Columbia University and Johns Hopkins.

The Peace Corps has volunteer opportunities in Latin America and the Caribbean, Africa, North Africa and the Middle East, Asia, the Pacific, Eastern Europe and the formerly Communist Independent States.

General information sessions will take place on Feb. 20 and April 2, at 7 p.m. in the UMass Campus Center, Rm. 805-809. Additional sessions will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the other colleges: Smith on Feb. 13, Amherst College or Feb. 27, Mt. Holyoke on March 5, and Hampshire on March 26.

To speak with Karen Elam or Charlie Hamilton, drop by the Peace Corps Recruiting Office at 12 Draper Hall, UMass, or call 545-2105 or 800-424-8580.

COURTESY OF PEACE CORPS PROGRAM

Sara Genereaux spent her two years of Peace Corps service teaching the Bayei of the Okovango in Botswana about beekeeping.

Candidates vie for attention with same position on issues

By Sandra Sobieraj
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Like Tom, Dick and Harry, there's Lugar, Gramm and Dole. And Forbes, Buchanan and Alexander.

With so many candidates crowding the race for the GOP presidential nomination, voters should expect a whole range of options on the big issues of the day.

Not exactly.

The 1996 race is shaping up more like a "me too" game of one-upmanship: With each of the candidates espousing a balanced budget, smaller government, no abortions, lower taxes, flatter taxes, all they can do to stand out in the field is proclaim to be more for balancing the budget, more for cutting taxes, more opposed to abortion.

Listen to former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander at a recent debate in South Carolina: "No one else here has ever balanced a budget. I actually reduced our state's debt... I believe I'm more likely to get it done."

And Texas Sen. Phil Gramm's one-better response: "I commit to balance the budget... or I'm not going to run for re-election." Commentator Pat Buchanan on abortion: "I would basically make this right to life a real cause of my presidency. I would go to those right-to-life marches... I would speak at those marches." And Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole: "I was honored about a month ago to have Mother Teresa call me and thank me for my work in prohibiting partial-birth abortions."

A television ad from Indiana Sen. Dick Lugar neatly summarizes the dilemma: "All of us in the race promise to balance the budget, cut taxes, shrink government. And with a Republican Congress, any of us will do this. But the president never gets to that agenda if America isn't secure."

Lugar, who barely registers in most polls, has tried without success to escape the pack by stressing national security and his differences with GOP rivals on issues such as gun control, including his support for the assault-weapons ban.

In his own ads, Alexander has gone for a simpler approach: "I'm the only governor running for president, so I'm a little different from all those Washington senators."

The overlap among the candidates has left some voters blase. "They're just blending because it's all the same things they're talking about," complained Dexter Watson, an unemployed recent college graduate who says he'll vote for Dole. "You take away the names and the faces, what do you have that's different?"

With the exception of front-runner Dole and publisher Steve Forbes, the other candidates are clustered in the single digits in most polls.

Independent pollster Andrew Kohut said the similarities in the candidates' platforms will naturally lead to a personality-based — and ultimately negative — campaign.

"These candidates are going to be distinguished more from one another on personal characteristics than on issues," said Kohut. Already there are name-calling television and radio ads attacking "Senator Straddle" (Dole) and "Mudslinging Malcolm" (Forbes). Dole supporter Claira Monier of Goffstown, N.H., said her candidate is distinguished by a certain celebrity that comes from his previous presidential bids and his role as Republican leader in the Senate. But in her canvassing in New Hampshire, Monier finds that voters see only quirky differences among the candidates — such as Alexander's folksy red-plaid shirt — not substantive ones. "The voters will not be able to tell the difference between the Dole flat tax and the Forbes flat tax even though it's an important difference and we've got just 30 days to get it honed," Monier said.

In sharpening their message, candidates risk getting mired in tricky policy details that don't easily translate in sound-bite campaigns.

Witness Gramm trying to explain to a luncheon of insurance salespeople why his version of the flat tax trumps his rivals': "The Steve Forbes flat tax will distort the flow of capital into financial and physical assets, and away from human capital." Gramm has proposed a 16 percent flat tax on wages as well as investment income; Forbes' 17 percent flat tax would not tax individuals' investment income.

'Queer Identities' workshop examines GLB issues in secure weekend retreat

By Lisa M. Oliveri
Collegian Staff

Examining Queer Identities and Creating Queer Communities is a one-credit class being offered by the School of Education. This weekend a workshop will provide Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender students a safe place to examine different issues within the community as well as share common experiences and stories.

Workshop leaders will facilitate discussion on such important issues as internalized racism, sexism and identity crisises within the GLBT community. Dawn Bond, one of the coordinators of the workshop helped establish the retreat in order to provide an outlet for GLBT students to discuss commonalities, action planning and changes within the community.

"We plan to discuss the differences within our community and how those can divide us," said Bond.

Bond said she would like the group of students on the retreat to be as diverse as possible in order to adequately address issues such as racism.

"It isn't as relevant to discuss racism against minority students if there are only one or two there. We want to make sure we are being representative of the GLBT community," Bond said. She encourages students who will bring balance to the workshop to attend.

Although the support of heterosexual allies is appreciated, they are discouraged from attending the retreat due to the lack of space.

"We want this to be a retreat for GLBT students only or for those in question," said Bond. "Although some students are very out and open, some are shy and we want this to be a comfortable place for those students to share experiences with others in the GLBT community."

Students are required to submit a four to six page reflection paper on the experience, as well as complete readings beforehand. In addition, a mandatory first class session for all attendees will be held on Feb. 7.

The retreat will be held at Woolman Hill, a Quaker meeting house in South Deerfield. The price of the workshop is $10-25 based on a sliding scale, to defray the cost of housing and meals. The space is limited so students are encouraged to apply as soon as possible. Applications are due on Feb. 2.

For more information contact Dawn Bond at 545-0310.

Campus Police Log

Traffic Stop
Dec. 27
Lorenzo D. Gaines, 25, of 138 Garvey Dr., Springfield, was charged with unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and failure to have an inspection sticker.
Jan. 5
Richard V. Toomer, 24, of 245 Winter St., Hyannis, was charged with unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and running a red light.
Jan. 6
Kevin P. Mooney, 22, of 465 Rabbit Hill Rd., Truro, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol and driving outside the lanes.
Jan. 7
Orlow Kent Nygren, 41, of 55 Bay Rd., Hadley, was arrested for the unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, failure to have an inspection sticker and a missing headlight.

Warrant Service
Dec. 21
Adam S. Kestin, 21, of 506 Joralemon St., Belleville, N.J., was arrested on warrants for operating under the influence of drugs and alcohol, a brake violation and a number plate violation, as well as speeding and possession of a Class D substance.

Larceny
Dec. 18
A hard drive was reported stolen from the computer area in Lederle Research Tower.
An individual in Wheeler Residence Hall reported unauthorized use of his library card.
Dec. 20
A resident of Brown Residence Hall reported her credit cards were stolen during a fire drill.
A canvas roof was reported stolen from a vehicle in Lot 11.
Dec. 21
An individual reported stereo speakers stolen from his Dwight Residence Hall room.
Dec. 22
An individual reported his cellular phone stolen from Gorman Residence Hall.
Covers for a convertible top were stolen from a vehicle in the Campus Center Garage.
An individual reported credit cards stolen.
A bicycle was stolen from Brown Residence Hall.
Wheel covers were stolen from a vehicle in Lot 22.
An individual reported his jacket containing cash and a computer organizer stolen in Worcester Dining Hall.
An individual reported his jacket stolen in Worcester Dining Hall.
Jan. 7
Property was reported stolen from a locker in the Old Chapel.
Jan. 10
Brown Residence Hall Staff reported finding stolen property in a room.

Vandalism
Dec. 18
A vehicle was damaged in Lot 11.
Dec. 19
A vehicle's window was smashed in Lot 49.
There was damage to the fourth floor bathroom of Patterson Residence Hall.
Dec. 20
There was damage to a door in McNamara Residence Hall.
Vending Co. reported damage to three of their vending machines.
Dec. 22
Damage to fourth floor bathroom stalls in Patterson Residence Hall was reported.
Dec. 27
A vehicle in Lot 34 had a smashed window.
Jan. 5
An individual reported a smashed vehicle windshield at the Furcolo School.

Noise Complaint
Dec. 18
There was a report that an individual in Cashin Residence Hall was yelling obscenities and using some type of horn.

Annoying Behavior
Dec. 21
Mailboxes were damaged in John Adams Residence Hall.
Dec. 22
An individual threatened Gorman Residence Hall staff. An emergency restraining order was issued.

Medical Emergency
Dec. 18
An individual fell off of a recycling bin in Dickinson Residence Hall — he declined medical attention.
Dec. 21
An individual in Coolidge Residence Hall had the flu. Transport to a hospital was not necessary.
Dec. 22
An individual having a seizure in Hampshire Dining Hall refused transport.
Jan. 4
An individual in the Campus Center was transported to Cooley Dickinson Hospital with an ankle injury.
Jan. 8
A child in the North Village Apartments was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital with a high fever.

Health/Safety Hazard
Dec. 18
A smell of an electrical wire burning in the vicinity of Lot 64 was reported.
Jan. 7
Environmental Health & Safety was notified to repair a faulty fire hose in the Campus Center.
A water break was reported in the Admissions building.
Jan. 15
A small fire caused by a plumbers torch was extinguished in Lederle Research Building.

Hazardous Materials Spills
Jan. 15
There was a report of transmission fluid leaked from a parked motor vehicle.

Alarm — Fire
Dec. 20
A fire in a newspaper bin stored near a Washington Residence Hall elevator was extinguished.
Jan. 13
Police activated an alarm in Lincoln Apartments to evacuate the building after a towel left on a stove created smoke. Fire fighters used forcible entry since the occupant was not at home.

Burglary/Breaking & Entering
Dec. 21
A room in Washington Residence Hall was broken into.

Suspicious Person/Activity
Dec. 22
An individual in John Adams Residence Hall was taken into custody for causing a disturbance.
Jan. 4
Louis E. Blair, Jr., 19, of 14 Abby St., Chicopee, was arrested for trespassing.
Jan. 7
A door was damaged in an attempt to break into Chenoweth Laboratory.

Accident
Dec. 23
A vehicle struck and damaged a wall in the Campus Center Garage.
Jan. 4
A vehicle skidded into another vehicle and continued to slide into a third vehicle in Lot 31.
Jan. 14
A vehicle caused minor damage when it hit a snow bank and a wooden pole on Mullins Way.

Assist Agency
Jan. 7
A low temperature alarm went off in Dwight and Thatcher Residence Halls.

Animal Complaint
Jan. 15
An individual requested a check on the well-being of two cats in the North Village Apartments.

Correction

The date of Greg Menton's death was incorrectly reported as Jan. 9. He died on Jan. 10. The Collegian regrets the error.

The Collegian
Life wouldn't be the same without us.

For Your Information

Wednesday, Jan. 31

Music — The World of Raga, a presentation of the Five College Learning in Retirement Program, will take place at 10 a.m. in the Amherst College Campus Center. The featured musician will be Warren Senders, a Hindustani musician.

Music — The Five College Early Music Program is holding its spring semester auditions. Violinists, violists, and cellists are encouraged to audition. Baritones, singers, and other instrumentalists are welcome. Auditions are 3:45 p.m.- 4:45 p.m. Classroom, Music Building, Hampshire College. For further information call 538-2079.

Thursday, Feb. 1

Lecture— Eric Reyes, a graduate student at Brown University, will speak on the topic: Asian Pacific Queer Space — Questions of Sexual and Racial Geographies. This is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The lecture will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. Call 545-4824 for information.

Saturday, Feb. 3

Community — Hosaga of Springfield College will be sponsoring its 21st Annual Powwow from 1–10 p.m. at Dana Gym on the campus of Springfield College. There will be dancing in the afternoon and evening, and Native American vendors will be selling products and supplies. Admission is free. For more information contact Grant at (203) 655-4685 or Bill at 796–7147.

Dance — There will be a Scandinavian Dance Workshop from 6:30–8 p.m. at the South Amherst Munson Library. Arna Dresser will teach the class. The cost is $5. For information call 549–1913.

Dance — There will be an English Country Dance tonight at 8 p.m. at the South Amherst Munson Library. The cost is $5, and Helen Davenport will lead the dances. For more information call 549–1913.

Notices

Meetings — The Everywoman's Center has announced its group meetings for the spring semester. There will be a Communication and Intimacy Group on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m., a Re-entry Women's Group on Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m., a Women and Self Esteem Group for Undergrad Women on Mondays at 7:00 p.m. and a Women in Transition: Exploration Through Expressive Arts Group on Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. These groups may require registration and a screening interview. Call the Everywoman's Center at 545-0883 by Feb. 16 for more information.

Meeting — The Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a Child Sexual Abuse Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:00 p.m. and a Rape Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. Both of these groups require screening interviews. Call 545-0800 by Feb. 7 for information.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 585-0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5–6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545-4824.

Writing — mOthertongue, a multi-lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587–9884.

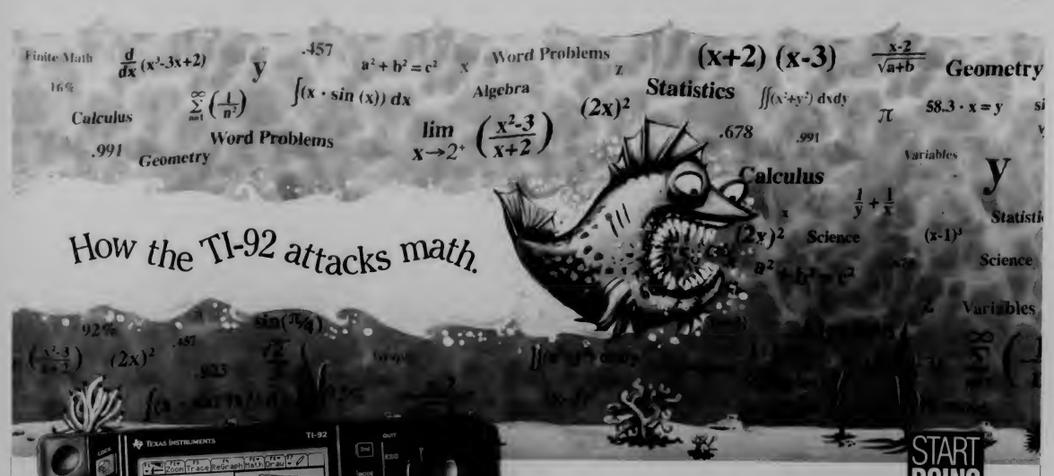
Meeting — The African Student Association holds a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the SWAG office. Meeting is open to everyone.

Meeting — Nommo News and Drum Supplement holds general body meetings on Thursdays at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2363 or 546–5562.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995–96 issue. Any Five-College student is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 406E Student Union, or call 545–2240.

Semi-Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi-formal on Feb. 10, 1996 in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 5-0960.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253–9622.



How the TI-92 attacks math.
START DOING EXTRAORDINARY THINGS
When it comes to math, it's sink or swim. Fortunately, we've found a way to help you keep your head above water: the new TI-92. It'll tear through statistics, crunch calculus and rip algebra to shreds unlike any other calculator. Of course, the TI-92 isn't just a piranha of power. With easy-to-read equations and handy pull-down menus, it's as friendly as Flipper. To see for yourself why the TI-92 calculator is the biggest fish in any pond, try it out on the Internet.
http://www.ti.com/TI-92
TEXAS INSTRUMENTS
See the new TI-92 at your college bookstore or:
STAPLES
Service

Key to exercising lies in consistency, goals

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

The key to starting a lasting exercise program for the new semester is to "find an activity you like to do," according to Exercise Science Professor Frank Rife.

"Consistency is the name of the game," he said. "Your body is made to be used."

Rife said students should take the following six steps to developing a lasting exercise program accompanied by an 1800 to 2000 calorie-per-day intake.

• Have goals in your exercise program. Goals may include adding weight, losing weight, adding flexibility, developing muscle or improving cardiovascular fitness.

"It may be a little fantasy," said Rife, "but your goals are really key."

• Plan a comprehensive program starting with a warm-- up and followed by aerobic activity, stretching and muscle strengthening and conditioning, as well as nutrition and body weight management.

The warm-up, the first step, is simply a slower version of the aerobic program, Rife said. In contrast, the aerobic element of a comprehensive exercise program places a demand on your cardiovascular system by performing a continuous type of activity. That activity should last approximately 20 minutes and taking place six out of seven days, according to Rife.

"The more demand, the more fitness," he said.

Examples of aerobic activity include biking, running, swimming, walking, or any other demanding activity.

"The key along with the duration is the intensity at which you do the aerobic activity," Rife said. The best way to monitor that is to monitor the heart rate in one of two ways.

To measure the heart rate in beats per minute, subtract your age from 220, then take 65 percent from the total, Rife said.

There is a more accurate two-step process to measure the heart rate. First, find your resting heart rate by placing your hand on either your wrist (for a "radiopulse"), the neck area above the collar bone (for a "corotid pulse") or just over your heart.

"The higher resting heart rate usually indicates a less fit person," Rife said.

After finding the resting heart rate, subtract your age from 220, then subtract your resting heart rate from that total. The difference is called "heart rate reserve," Rife said. Multiply the "heart rate reserve" by 65 percent, then add your resting heart rate. The final total is called "target heart rate."

The average target heart rate for women averages around 73 beats per minute, according to Rife.

• Stretch while the muscles are warm. "This really should be done after the aerobic program," said Rife, who warned against stretching cold muscles before a warm-up. Doing so may induce several injuries including joint distress, ligament distress and joint soreness.

• Do muscle strengthening and conditioning exercises every other day. Strengthening and conditioning involves 10 to 15 minutes of a weight-bearing stress on individual muscles, which promotes the growth of muscle fibers, Rife said. Such exercises include push-up, pull-ups or sit-ups.

For women, Rife recommends light weight training for skeletal and bone strength. Light weight training is "the amount of weight you can lift eight to 10 times and feel tired at the end of the 10th repetition," Rife said.

He advises against doing weight-training for more than three out of seven days since it may result in various degrees of joint problems and muscle fiber trauma.

Men participate in muscle strengthening and conditioning exercises for the same reasons.

"One in four adults with osteoporosis will be a male," according to Rife.

A comprehensive exercise program begins to take form when aerobics utilizes the heart while muscle strengthening and conditioning makes use of other muscles, Rife said.

• Include nutrition and body weight management in your program.

"A diet is an important piece of an exercise program," Rife stressed.

He recommends that students look at the type of calories they are putting into their bodies. "For each meal, eat less than 30 percent of calories that come from fat," Rife emphasized.

Fifty-five to 60 percent of calories in a meal should be from carbohydrates, such as pastas, grains and cereals, Rife said. Ten to 15 percent of the calories should come from protein. Protein can be found in green vegetables, fish, poultry, meats and dairy products.

"If you burn 500 calories per day you may be able to lose one to one and 1/2 pounds per week," Rife said.

He recommends consuming six eight-ounce glasses of water per day in order to replenish fluids lost in exercise.

• Measure your body fat.

"People need to have some idea of, not just body weight, but body fat as well," Rife said.

Body fat may be measured in one of two ways.

One way to measure the body fat you carry is to have a "body composition" done. For example, a student may have a skinfold done at any one of the Body Shops on campus.

The other to measure body fat has to do with measuring a person's girth. Rife recommends measuring around the abdomen around the stomach, around the hips, around the widest part of the thighs and around the upper part of the upper arm.

"People with more fat below the waist experience less heart problems," Rife said.

Although exercise causes a person to lose fat and develop muscle, their essential body weight may not change. "It is more difficult to lose body weight, but much easier to lose fat and develop muscle," Rife explained.

• Involve a variety of exercises and take an occasional day off.

"You want to have some variety within your program," Rife said. "Variety is key to endurance."

Taking a break helps people stick with their routine. Rife said, "It is okay to take a day off out of a week with the intent of coming back."

He said "good things" happen while the body rests.

• Have a check point.

For example, measure your girth measurements every two to three months.

• Fine-tune and re-evaluate goals.

Rife advises that at the end of a set period, such as a year, students re-think what they have done, decide whether they want to re-set their goals or continue their routine to achieve reasonable goals.

According to Rife, active people reap the benefits of exercise — weight management, improved physical appearance, less fatigue, more energy, lower cholesterol, better heart rate, avoiding health problems and experiencing fewer psychological concerns since they become more optimistic.

"Inactivity comes with a lot of health problems," said Rife, who uses the phrase "great preventative medicine" interchangeably with "exercise."

"Good things happen when we jam oxygen into the system," he said.

However, Rife warns against becoming exercise dependent. Symptoms of exercise dependency include withdrawal reaction, mood swings, nervousness and inability to focus, sleep or study.

"If you have to have it, and you can't wait to get back to it... you're overhooked," Rife said.

EMILY BELT / COLLEGIAN
Professor Frank Rife stands next to the stairmasters in the exercise room in Totman Building.

UMass Craft Center getting renovated for upcoming semester

By Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

The Craft Center in the Student Union is changing the way they look, and changing the way they offer workshops.

The Craft Center has been closed over January and is currently being renovated. Nam Mokwunye, assistant director of the Craft Center, said, "We're working on making it more open, friendly — it's so we can get more students in here."

Improvements in the center include trimming back the counter area, replacing a drying rack, creating more work space and installing a new silk screening machine.

According to Mokwunye, the center was in need of reorganization. Some space was not being used to its full capacity, including a loom that was rarely used and basically taking up valuable space.

History of the Craft Center

The Craft Center is 25 years old and according to Mokwunye, about three to four years ago, it was in dire straits. At that time, Susan Bourque came on board as the director of the center, and its usage has been growing steadily since.

The Craft Center estimates the number of members was between 1,500 and 2,000 last year. The usage of the center by undergraduate and graduate students also increased last year.

The center has always offered a wide variety of craft options for students including a sewing machine, darkroom, clay and pottery room, silk-screening, leather-making, jewelry-making and many others.

According to Mokwunye, most of the users of the center are non-art majors and are looking for something creative and constructive to do. People hang out here and make things for themselves and their family... They meet new people and learn something new," he said.

The center is staffed by students, and the 14-member staff are all trained specialists, experienced in their individual area of expertise.

A capital investment

The newest addition to the center is a four-color silk screening machine. "It's one of a few capital machines that we have added to improve the place," said Mokwunye. The machine will allow students to make multi-colored shirts and posters.

Mokwunye said the machine will be helpful for RSOs interested in making t-shirts and posters for events and for student entrepreneurs who want to make extra cash. The only costs involved in silk-screening is the cost of materials.

"Students pay a nominal price for the ink, and we can order t-shirts cheaper, too" said Mokwunye. "Instead of going to an outside company to have t-shirts made, you have the benefit of doing designs and prints yourself."

Small improvements, big change

Moving several large items within the center will help create more space according to Leather Area Coordinator Rob Archer, a junior. "We needed more table space — more space even for tables," said Archer.

In response to that need for more space, a large drying rack will go from being horizontal to vertical, the main counter area will be pushed back, the loom and display cases at the entrance will be moved and all areas will be overall re-organized. Mokwunye said the only area that will go without major change is the clay room.

The other major change in the center will be a new approach to how workshops are offered. At the end of last semester the center offered a new type of intensive one- evening workshop in which students could learn everything they need to know in one craft in order to start creating right away. According to Mokwunye, the two initial workshops in tie-dyeing and batik, were extremely successful, and got students creating crafts right away.

This semester, the center will offer workshops in a four week-four class session, such as clay, a two week-two class session, such as weaving, a two-day session such as silk screening, and the new intensive one-day sessions in jewelry-making and photography. Mokwunye said the new workshops will be more helpful for students who have to fit them into busy schedules.

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

1996 SUMMER CONFERENCE HOUSING

AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS/AMHERST

MAKE A DIFFERENCE!

FULL TIME JOBS ARE AVAILABLE FOR:

DESK CLERKS
DESK CLERK SUPERVISORS
OFFICE MANAGER
REGISTRARS
KEY CONTROL SUPERVISOR
CREW OPERATIONS STAFF
CREW OPERATIONS SUPERVISORS

APPLICATIONS AND JOB DESCRIPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT THE

CONFERENCE SERVICES OFFICE
ROOM 918-CAMPUS CENTER
NINTH FLOOR

COMPLETED APPLICATIONS ARE DUE BY FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1996

SORORITY RUSH IS HERE
FEBRUARY 4TH - 11TH
Register Now!!
Campus Center Concourse
Table
9 - 4 'Til Friday

Orientation:
Saturday, February 3rd
12 Noon, Campus Center Auditorium

For Information Please Contact:
Meran 256-3119
Carolyn 549-7279
Sharyn 549-3524
or Greek Affairs 545-2711

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief
Marni E. Heffner Managing Editor
Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Business Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Business Development Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Gina M. Oliveri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Position Vacant Jewish Affairs Editor
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor
Ami Paradiso News Editor
Emily Reilly Photographic Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Rob Aspert Staff Artist
Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Tom Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Classified Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
James P. Gurley Production Manager
Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager
Position Vacant Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating primarily from revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life and became known as the Weekly Collegian in 1906. The Collegian has been published daily since 1908.

Subscriptions are $150 per semester. Weekly subscriptions are $75 per semester. Subscriptions may be purchased by calling (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Future shocks

The inspiration for the column was simple. My editor said he didn't have a New Year's "wish list" piece yet. I balked initially, but he then informed me that he did have some potentially damaging photos of me from way back when. I thought about calling his bluff but quickly caved after imagining the horror of being forced to use the Vanessa Williams defense (i.e. "I was young and I needed the money").

So, here we go. Just remember, if any of these things really happen, I'm going to get my own 900 number and hire a bunch of washed-up celebrity friends (are you there Molly Ringwald and Judd Nelson?) to help me rake in cash from all the loonies who've lost faith in Erik Estrada.

But if nothing comes true, just shut up and get off my back.

• Hootie and the Blowfish write at least one song which excludes all of the following: beer, getting dumped, beer, the Miami Dolphins, beer crying, beer and the phrase "hold my hand" (which incidentally is not only the title of four cuts on their last album, but also appears in every song).

• Colin Powell re-enters the presidential race, runs a kick-ass campaign which leads him to victory, and reveals himself (after years of grueling planning) to be a throwback militant who makes Eldridge Cleaver look like Bearer Cleaver. Demands Newt Gingrich to powerless position of vice-president.

• The Hollywood community is stricken by bizarre tragedy when Keanu Reeves pitches the adaptation of his Canadian stage performance of Hamlet to the big screen. Several top executives die laughing, and Sir Laurence Olivier wakes up screaming, does a 360 in his grave and rests again.

• Regis Philbin's career ends unceremoniously when, upon hearing of Kathie Lee Gifford's upcoming departure from their show, shows up intoxicated for her final show, introduces himself to be the real father of Cody then shocks the audience, instructing them to "kiss his pasty white butt."

• Only months later, Kathie Lee's career ends unceremoniously during a taping of her new morning show when she suffers a freakish severe case of lockjaw during a smiley duet with Linda Ronstadt. Ends up looking something like Nicholson's Joker in Batman. Regis, who has remained drunk, says he'd still do her.

• Deion Sanders remains an outstanding two-sport athlete even after a near-fatal brain hemorrhage caused by what is diagnosed as acute ego-swelling. However he does lose the ability to speak, and even more oddly (but even more thankfully), the ability to showboat, thus proving there is a God, and he doesn't wear the no. 21.

• Eddie Vedder of Pearl Jam runs into the members of Silverchair in a Seattle pizza parlor. After mumbling a menacing "mns-zegdul" (a phrase actually included in the second verse of "Yellow Ledbetter"), he proceeds to twist each of the little prepubes' arms until they say "uncle," and also to promise never to write another of his songs before he does.

• Sen. Jesse Helms embarrasses himself when he throws a temper tantrum in a Durham convenience store. Flips out when he can't get a copy of Playboy. Resorts to Reader's Digest, but it turns out he banned that one, too. After wrecking the joint in a blind rage, a Slurpee-drenched Helms kicks a black lesbian on his way out. He resigns from his seat the next day.

• Realizing that he will not be back for a second term and that his legal bills are mounting, President Bill Clinton opts to use his celebrity status to become a media slut. Ads range from "Absolut Clinton" to a Pizza Hut campaign in which Clinton proclaims, "Eatin' pizza backwards is nothing! Try backin' down from your whole platform!" He also appears on the new Cypress Hill release.

• New Collegian columnist heals wounds on campus caused by racial, ethnic and religious differences. Love is everywhere. Black and Jewish students, Phish-heads and hip-hoppers, Southwesties and Sylvanites, faculty and the Board of Trustees all hold hands. Don't get any smart ideas, Hootie.

C. Taylor Conner is a Collegian columnist.

C. Taylor Conner

Re–tales

When I decided to take last semester off, I was faced with a limited number of employment opportunities. After working as a camp counselor, I got a job at the same camp as the maintenance man's assistant. This job basically entailed moving a lot of heavy things back and forth as well as drinking a lot of canned beer because in the world of professional contracting I am what is known as unskilled labor. This puts me in a category of being slightly (but not much) better than useless.

Soon the camp ran out of money and I was forced to take the first job that came my way, which happened to be in a hardware store. This would have been a good job, as I was given a generous employee discount that entitled me to buy tools that I don't really need but would like to own just the same. In fact, the only drawback of the job was that I had to deal with people.

The world of retail, boys and girls, is a very ugly place and it is not a suitable realm of work for the weak at heart. Whoever coined the phrase "The customer is always right," obviously did not work in a hardware store. If he had, he would have said, "The customer is to always be shot in the knee caps. Period."

The world of retail, boys and girls, is a very ugly place and it is not a suitable realm of work for the weak at heart.

Dave Copeland

Unfortunately, retail customers like to take full advantage of this stupid little rule. They assume that just because a person wears a uniform to work he is automatically at a lower level on the evolutionary scale. While in my own case that may be true, I do not accept that as a truth for my co-workers or most any other cashier/sales clerk type person in the world of retail.

The truth is, the customers tend to be the ones who are not too bright. They would ask such painfully ignorant questions, and if you don't believe me, read this segment of actual dialogue between myself and a customer:

CUSTOMER: "Do you sell those shopping carts?"
ME: (slightly irritated): "Yes."
CUSTOMER: "What kind do you have?"
ME: "We have the two wheel kind and the four wheel kind."
CUSTOMER: "What's the difference between them?"

Customers would flock the store with a vengeful passion anytime True Value advertised a sale. People come to sales without even knowing what is on sale. They buy things that they will never, ever need just because The Official Hardware Store of the NFL has put them on sale. (By the way, does the NFL actually need an official hardware store? Do NFL players get generous discounts to buy tools that they don't really need but would like to own just the same?)

Soon my desires and fantasies turned from sex, power, fame and wealth to pummelling a customer for no apparent reason.

CUSTOMER: "Is this rock salt on sale?"
ME: "(a high pitched battle cry resembling the mating call of a smooth-sided absynian fish ferret)!"
CUSTOMER: "Hey! What are you doing? Ouch!"

But that's behind me now. Believe it or not, the hardware store fired me for an inability to strive for and achieve customer satisfaction. I have moved on and returned to my post for slightly less pay as a volunteer Collegian columnist. I treat cashiers and retail sales clerks with a newfound respect.

By the way... does anybody know where I can get a good deal on a chain saw? I'm looking for a job and would like to be prepared if I end up working in retail.

Dave Copeland is a Collegian columnist.

Opinion/Editorial

Professors of deceit

The Provost's proposal to restructure a number of academic departments has inspired some extraordinary faculty outbursts in the Campus Chronicle and elsewhere.

The relative merits of the proposal aside, certain faculty have used it as a platform for a politically driven and self- serving deluge of hypocrisy. These professors have cynically hijacked, to their own ends, the language of a multicultural agenda for which they care nothing. In so doing, they may have damaged the prospects for real progress on campus.

Few will be surprised to learn that the University of Massachusetts' leading lesbian-liberal hypocrite, Ann Ferguson, director of women's studies, is up to her usual tricks. In attacking the plan, Ferguson, as always, relies on pseudo-PC rhetoric, chanting the incessant liberal mantra of "race–class–gender."

Ferguson writes that "the implications of downsizing the language departments are sexist, racist and classist." Unfortunately, Ferguson's arguments demonstrate what we already know: ---that she is no stranger to those very qualities. The whole exercise is a transparent attempt to garner sympathy from the gullible for her personal ambitions.

These ambitions include the consolidation, under her own leadership and all in the name of multiculturalism of course, of control in women's studies and its effective transformation into "white women's studies." Ferguson's power grab naturally required the side-lining of women of color, including a number of very distinguished faculty, such as the outstanding former chair, Dr. Leila Ahmed. This regressive transformation was glaringly apparent during the recent women's studies/black studies conference.

One also recalls Ferguson's repeated and unprincipled attacks on Minister Louis Farrakhan, condemning him as, you guessed it, "sexist, racist, homophobic and anti-Semitic." The apologies she owes to the Nation of Islam and the Black Student Union, especially in light of the magnificent Million Man March, remain unforthcoming.

In her arguments against the Provost's plan, Ferguson's real beliefs shone through another attempt at PC rhetoric. Her discussion of "racial minorities" perversely betrayed a deep affinity for the racist white colonial–settler societies she championed, such as French Canada and Israel, as opposed to the genuinely oppressed indigenous Mohawks and Palestinians, of whose existence she appears unaware.

Not to be outdone, Cristina Gonzalez, senior member of the Graduate Council, has joined the PC chorus of those who would publicly condemn the Provost, while privately opposing multiculturalism tooth and nail at every stage.

For example, Gonzalez distinguished herself by a passionate opposition to the hiring of women of color to senior administrative positions. In an effort to block the creation of a multicultural and diverse administration.

Astoundingly, this same Gonzalez now writes that the plan would "severely worsen the still precarious status of women and Hispanics on this campus." This precarious status is as much the result of the failure of Gonzalez and her ilk to advance a multicultural agenda as anything else.

What has she done to increase Hispanic enrollment on campus? Where was she when the struggle to increase resources for the Lann American Cultural Center was being waged? Where is Gonzalez when ALANA students are daily harassed by the police and other students? What has she done to promote the creation of a Latin American Studies Department?

In spite of this strong record of inactivity, Gonzalez now claims that "Our commitment to Hispanism and to the Hispanic community requires that we unequivocally and forcefully oppose this unsound and chauvinistic initiative." A bold and principled stance indeed!

As members of the Graduate Council, we watched Chairperson Gonzalez oppose every important student initiative to advance multiculturalism on campus, such as renaming of the library in honor of W.E.B. Du Bois; invitations to black speakers such as Minister Farrakhan (while keeping silent on the invitation to Charles Murray); measures to curtail faculty discrimination against international students; increased scholarships for ALANA graduate students; and diversity training programs.

Instead, Gonzalez focused on becoming the master of the back–room deal, the knowing wink, the telling nod, the conspiratorial nudge, the greasy handshake, and the sweetheart deal.

In contrast one notes the stellar efforts of other professors such as Sonia Nieto and Carmen Diana Deere to truly advance "Hispanism" and the interests of the Latin American community. In light of their achievements, Gonzalez' claims that "We are the experts in Hispanic culture" rings hollow. As Edward Said has warned us, the distinction between principled intellectual activism and sterile "expertise" is one of the greatest pitfalls of the academic profession.

It is only now that Gonzalez' personal and professional advancement is threatened, that she discovers the reality of "ethnic warfare" on campus. Her new-found role as champion of campus multiculturalism bespeaks a monumental hypocrisy.

An amusing addition to the chorus was Nina Scott's (no relation to Chancellor David K. Scott), description of herself as having "run out of out of estrogen." However, she did not further the cause by resorting to anti–communist rhetoric reminiscent of the 1950s McCarthyite witch-hunts and by threatening the use of firearms.

There has been a great deal of deservedly harsh criticism of the administration, especially the unimpressive Chancellor. However, faculty must also not be allowed to get away with spouting the worst rubbish, especially when they hypocritically appropriate the multicultural agenda.

These faculty members hope in vain that, by invoking empty buzzwords, they can pursue their personal agendas while hoodwinking students with phony appeals to a multiculturalism in which they demonstrably do not believe.

Nobody is going to buy it.

Shyamala Ivatury and Hussein Ibish are graduate students.

Hussein Ibish & Shyamala Ivatury

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

HERE'S AN INTERESTING LETTER, Z! "DEAR GUYS — WHAT'S IT TAKE TO BECOME A BIG-TIME COMIC STRIP CHARACTER?..."
"IS THERE SOME KIND OF TRAINING THAT'S USEFUL? YOURS, Z.K., NEW YORK."
BOY, HE'S GOT THAT RIGHT, DOESN'T HE, PARTNER?
YOUNGSTER, THE BEST TRAINING YOU COULD POSSIBLY HAVE IS SCHOOL! THERE ISN'T A COMIC TALENT ALIVE WHO DIDN'T START OUT AS THE CLASS CLOWN!
THAT'S RIGHT, SON — SO STAY IN SCHOOL!
DISRUPT CLASS OVER AND OVER AGAIN!
HONE YOUR SKILLS!
GBTrudeau

Letters to the Editor and Columns

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page. All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass. Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e-mail account: letters@oit.vms.oit.umass.edu The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545–1491, and ask to speak to Bob Dunn.

Arts & Living

Garwood's latest coming up roses

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

JULIE GARWOOD
For The Roses
Pocket Books

A scant year after releasing her previous best–seller, Prince Charming, romance authoress extrodinaire, Julie Garwood is back.

Unlike the hordes of would–be–writers who pump out books on a monthly basis like there's no tomorrow, Garwood stands out for her consistent writing which never boarders on blasé or repetition. Her current masterpiece, For The Roses, has just been released on paperback and has already climbed the New York Times' best–seller list.

The plot revolves around a band of mismatched "brothers" who have gathered together in New York City to survive the unsavory conditions homeless children are subjected to. The four self–declared Clayborne brothers find an abandoned baby in the garbage and immediately adopt her. They move to Montana in the hopes of having a better life not only for themselves, but for their new sister whom they have named Mary Rose.

The leader of this ragtag bunch is Adam, a run-away slave who is awaiting the Civil War to set him free and reunite him with his mother. The rest of the brothers — Douglas, Travis and Cole have either been abandoned or abused. Together they create a haven for Mary Rose and themselves until a visitor from England changes everything.

Garwood excels at creating believable characters that grab hold of your attention and move you with them throughout the book. She creates realistic circumstances without over– inflating characters or situation that lead to bad romance reading.

Mary Rose is a class A heroine that, like many of Garwood's leading ladies, manages to retain her identity and sense of purpose long after the love of her life has moved in and taken residency. She remains true to the ideals and feeling of the time period and any modern notions are neatly worked into the plot.

For The Roses will keep you turning pages and your interest properly sparked. Light and fluffy with the right amount of a sugary sweet ending makes this a perfect read for those who want to believe that imagination and spirit can still thrive in the daunting face of reality.

~ MOVIES ~

Slater, Masterson, Dreyfuss shine in new films

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

BED OF ROSES
Directed by Michael Goldenberg with Christian Slater, Mary Stuart Masterson
Playing at Hampshire Six

Nothing melts a girl's heart like a big bouquet of flowers and Christian Slater's lopsided grin, but unfortunately Slater's character, Lewis, in Bed of Roses simply does not exist anywhere on this planet.

Slater, last seen in Murder in the First, takes a romantic turn of character befitting the upcoming holiday. How is this for a Valentine? After spying Mary Stuart Masterson weeping in her apartment window, he anonymously sends her an enormous arrangement of flowers, which he, of course, made.

Lewis, the quintessential sensitive '90s man, is a florist who owns his own shop, yet works as delivery boy just to see people's faces as they receive their flowers. He has an exquisite rooftop garden on his New York City studio apartment, which he cultivated himself.

He goes to story–hour at the library because he likes to hear tales read aloud, and he takes late night walks through the city just to look up at random apartment windows, hence the encounter with Masterson.

Masterson's character, Lisa, is the polar opposite of Lewis. As the VP of her company, her cold, businesslike demeanor proves a tough shell to crack. Even when Lewis sends her enough roses to challenge the Parade of Roses, she remains apprehensive about his evident undying devotion.

As an actress, Masterson is all grown up. Gone is the young, punky exterior she flaunted in '80s movies like Some Kind of Wonderful. Now Masterson is portraying the chic woman in a power suit, and doing it pretty well.

In an overly dramatic scene where Lisa analyzes why she can't become involved with Lewis, she tells him that things between them are "too perfect." That sentiment basically describes the whole movie. Sure, Lisa deals with some hidden psychological problem from her childhood which inhibits her ability to get close to anyone, but that is as far as the film's depth plummets.

If you can get by this flawless exterior and the fantasy world boyfriend that Slater makes almost believable, then Bed of Roses is an enjoyable film. Its romantic plot is not hard–hitting, but rather as soft as a petal. B

MR. HOLLAND'S OPUS
Directed by Steven Herek with Richard Dreyfuss, Olympia Dukakis
Playing at Mt. Farms Four

Richard Dreyfuss stars in yet another teacher inspires students story, Mr. Holland's Opus. This time, however, the teacher is as reluctant to go to school as the students.

COURTESY GEMMA LA MANA

Richard Dreyfuss stars as Glenn Holland in this year's latest tear–jerker, Mr Holland's Opus.

All of that changes, as the never ending trailers indicated. Mr. Holland's dream of becoming a world renowned composer still lingers in the gray areas of his memory as his music teaching career proves to be more fruitful than he once imagined.

The film begins as Holland assumes the teaching position in the 1950's. With a baby on the way, he realizes he may have to put his composing dreams on hold. He takes the "gig" teaching to make money and buy the house with the picket fence. Sounds like most teacher's backgrounds, right?

Well, after a bumpy adjusting period, Holland becomes the students' and the principal's (Olympia Dukakis) favorite teacher. He is initially censured, then lauded, for his breakthrough usage of "rock 'n' roll" to teach students to appreciate music.

If this sounds a bit like Robin William's off–the–wall tactics in Dead Poets Society, or Michelle Pfeiffer's employing rap music to instruct poetry in last summer's Dangerous Minds, the connection is valid. But Opus has more to it than Holland helping a musically inept football player beat a drum or a shy clarinetist play a solo.

Holland's son, whom he names after John Coltraine, is born deaf to the world and to the music that inspired Holland's life. While his wife patiently adapts to their son's handicap, her husband has evident emotional problems with their traumatic situation.

While filmdom has pretty much tired–out teacher movies, Opus has additional plot turns that will make the sentimental viewer teary eyed. Dreyfuss succeeds at portraying a grumpy teacher with a big heart that keeps growing in his thirty years of teaching. B

COLLEGIAN DRIVER WANTED

• Need Car
• Call Ryan at 545-3500

Get the Morning Paper delivered to Dorms, Offices, and Limited Off-Campus Locations*

50% OFF
The Boston Globe

	SPRING TERM (2/4-5/15)
6 DAYS Mon-Fri & Sun	❒ $29.00
5 DAYS Mon-Fri	❒ $16.50
SUNDAY ONLY	❒ $12.50

Award Winning
Financial & International News!
The New York Times

	SPRING TERM (2/4-5/15)
6 DAYS Mon-Fri & Sun	❒ $51.40
5 DAYS Mon-Fri	❒ $26.40
SUNDAY ONLY	❒ $25.00

Subscribe at the Campus Center
call DADS NEWS at 259-1071
or mail to : DADS NEWS, P.O. Box 633, Amherst, MA 01004-0633
*$10.00 Charge for Off Campus delivery

UMass Division of Continuing Education

Your entryway into the University and the future

• Over 200 credit courses and noncredit workshops — in the evening!
• Professional development courses, seminars, workshops
• Specialized degree programs
• Courses for recertification points for teachers

Register through February 12.

Call for a free course catalog - (413) 545-0107
e-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu

Division of Continuing Education - University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

Black history to be celebrated in Feb.

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts celebrates Black History Month with a wide array of cultural, musical and social events. The activities begin this Friday at the Campus Center when Something Every Friday presents Return to the Source, an African–American music review.

Return to the Source consists of nine musicians and vocalists from New Jersey. The group presents a historical perspective as they perform a musical review chronicling the development of Black Music. Examples include African rhythms, Gospel, blues, Big Band, soul and hip hop. The film starring Wesley Snipes, To Wong Foo, Thanks For Everything, Julie Newmar, will be shown after the concert.

Something Every Friday will be presented Campus Center Auditorium at 8 p.m. and will end at approximately 11 p.m. Admission is free to UMass students with valid I.D.

The schedule of upcoming events for Black History Month is as follows. Unless otherwise noted, admission is free.

Feb. 9 — Something Every Friday presents O.J. Ekemode and the Nigerian All Stars. The nine piece ensemble and dancers will heat up the Campus Center Auditorium with their driving "world–beat" sound.

Also on Feb. 9, The Fine Arts Center will present the National Cuban Folkloric Dance Ensemble. Internationally recognized, the group blends together Afro–Cuban dance and musical traditions to create a unique style.

Tickets are $23, $18, $13 and $10.

Feb. 16 — The Hampden Theater plays host to Oversoul Collective, a Black–Indian musical theater group. The event, which is sponsored by the Josephine White Eagle Cultural Center, will feature poetry and stories focused on the political and cultural issues of the Black Indian.

Feb. 23 — He's made his mark on a variety of Black sitcoms, including "In Living Color," "The Cosby Show" and "Hangin' with Mr. Cooper." In a one night only performance, Something Every Friday will present comedian Reggie McFadden.

Free to 5–College students and UMass students with valid I.D. General public tickets are $5. For more information, call 545–2511.

Feb. 22 — The Stone Wall Center and the Hampden theater will present Barricade Against Wind, written by African–American lesbian Pamela Sneed. This theater presentation is an autobiographical piece about transformation and identity issues.

A $3–$5 donation is requested.

Feb. 25 — The Campus Activities Cultural Center will sponsor the Black History Month Social, a semi–formal dinner with entertainment provided.

Feb. 27— John McLaughlin and Free Spirits take the stage in Bowker Auditorium as a part of the Magic Triangle Jazz Series.

Tickets are $6 students and $9 general public. For more information call 545–2511.

Feb. 29— The Fine Arts Center Series presents The Billy Taylor Trio with Nick Brignola and guests.

Tickets are $15 and $10. For more information, call 545– 2511.

Rite of Spring to combine power moves & music

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

If you're into contemporary choreography with a twist, then Hampden Theater is the place to be this Thursday and Friday night at 8 p.m.

The Residential Arts program at the Fine Arts Center will open its Spring season with "Rite of Spring," a piece by choreographer Ruth Birnberg and danced by her six member company.

According to Bob Antil, the director for Residential Arts, the show is great for both long–time admirers of the dance form and novices alike because, "the movements are so powerful and the average person will be able to see fabulous movements and great staging."

"The piece is remarkable because it combines two aspects, a rare score for 'Rite of Spring' played on two live pianos creating extraordinary music.

"It also is a combining of strength and movement with a powerful set. The stage is magnificent — huge and steel. The movements will be dissonant and jumpy — like hip," said Antil.

The score was written by composer Igor Stravinsky and the dance reveals a narration of sacrificial death. Birnberg uses movement to punctuate the raw freedom and emotion the music embodies.

The Birnberg Dance company was created in 1983 and has since been commissioned to perform for various events.

The company performed at the Boston Conservatory at their 50th Dance Concert performing a piece called "Frayed Bones."

They have toured in New York, Washington, D.C. and all over New England. One of the choreographer's trademarks is her ability to compose and perform dances to live music, according to Antil.

Birnberg is currently teaching technique, improvisation and choreography at her own studio. The Residential Arts program was able to bring her rare talent to the University of Massachusetts via a grant from the Massachusetts Arts Council.

"Rite of Spring" first premiered in Paris during the early 1900s.

Only five performances were given because the audience was unable to deal with the harshness and raw movement it possessed.

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

"Rites of Spring" will play Hampden Theater this Thursday and Friday night.

"Rite of Spring" will play Hampden Theater Thurs., Feb. 1 and Fri., Feb. 2 at 8 p.m. Admission will be $10 gen., $5 students and seniors. Tickets are available from the Fine Arts Center Box Office or by calling 545–2511. Hampden Theater is located in the Southwest Residential Area at the top of the Horseshoe.

MTV's Tabitha Soren back on the campaign trail

By Frazier Moore
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Four years ago, Tabitha Soren was part of what some saw as a novelty act.

This year, as she leads MTV News into coverage of its second presidential race, she is part of the media mainstream.

Although some might disagree.

Welcomed by Soren aboard MTV's funky "Choose or Lose" bus last week, Sen. Bob Dole clearly sensed this wasn't exactly NBC's "Meet the Press" he had gotten himself into.

The 72-year-old Majority leader came across as a moralizing fussbudget in the company of Soren, herself a ripe old 28. As the New Hampshire scenery sped by, Dole looked less like someone who thought he was being interviewed than kidnapped. But that's the point. He wasn't. By his own free will, the presidential hopeful chose to take that ride.

Of course, Dole and all politicians remember the lesson of President Bush, who, last time around, noted that he was no longer a "teeny-bopper" and hence had no business on MT. He changed his mind only days before the election he would lose to MTV veteran Bill Clinton.

This year, by contrast, candidates and the 16-to-30-year-old audience alike consider MTV part of the process.

"Politicians, because they notice us getting noticed, are now making an effort to appeal to this voter block," says Soren, in her office in the Times Square headquarters of corporate parent Viacom.

"What I'm looking for in terms of the election this time is that we don't have to explain why we're there," she says.

"That'll allow me to redirect a lot of my energy into reporting."

As Soren continues, she is by turns prideful and self-effacing.

"Hopefully, the coverage will be even better than last time," she says, then laughs — "and I'll know a little bit about what I'm talking about this time."

Viewers will get another look at the campaign, MTV News-style, on the next edition of the network's "The Week in Rock" news wrapup. While it usually deals with a variety of items — cutting taxes, Smashing Pumpkins — this week's half-hour will be completely given over to "1996 Choose or Lose" coverage, including an interview with Republican presidential candidate Steve Forbes.

As usual, "The Week in Rock" premieres Friday at 7:30 p.m. EST, with subsequent repeats. Soren co-hosts with Kurt Loder. Tabitha Soren came to MTV News five years ago from a television station in Vermont, where she anchored the 11 o'clock news and served as Statehouse correspondent and her own film crew.

She had grown up a military brat who moved frequently, developed an interest in foreign affairs early on and, perhaps surprisingly, didn't watch much TV.

And what of Soren's given name?

Despite the fact that the daughter of Darrin and Samantha was "born" on "Bewitched" little more than a year before the MT correspondent-to-be, "my mom," says Soren, "told me she got the name out of the Bible."

At MTV, Soren has similarly played against expectations.

While her fingernails may sometimes turn up painted purple, she stops short of the hipper-than-thou look sported by many of her network's fellow on-air personalities. At the same time, she stands in sharp contrast to the glamour grotesques at other network news shops (for her polar opposite, think: Maria Shriver).

"I think I act differently than a lot of reporters," Soren says. "When I interview someone, it's more casual and there's not a lot of posturing. I ask different questions, they are caught off guard, and they seem more human because they have to think of an answer on the spot."

TWO YEARS. YOUR LIFE. OUR FUTURE.

TEACH FOR AMERICA
FOR INFORMATION OR TO REQUEST AN APPLICATION CALL 1-800-832-1230.

UMass
STILL TIME TO ENTER
Basketball (M/W/C).....A.S.A.P.
Wallyball (M/W/C).....2/5
Wrestling (M/W).....2/6
INTRAMURAL SPORTS
Don't Miss The ACTION
For entry forms and info
545-2693
545-0022
PAID OFFICIALS NEEDED FOR BASKETBALL AND WRESTLING. CALL FOR CLINIC DATES.

The Collegian
Life wouldn't be the same without us.

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 400 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

JOSEPH CURRAN ASSOCIATES
IMMIGRATION LAW OFFICES
- H-1B Specialty Occupations
- Labor Certification/Special Handling
- 212(e) J-1 Waivers
- Outstanding Professor/Researcher
- Relative Petitions

Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty
1163 Main Street - 2nd Floor, Springfield, MA 01103, 781-6370
13 Old South Street, Northampton, MA 01060, 584-3232
Specializing in IMMIGRATION LAW for over 10 years.

Eating Disorder Programs
Spring 1996
Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Assessment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single sessions for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, or compulsive overeating. Mondays 4:30 - 6 pm, (except holidays) at the Campus Center. Room number posted by elevator. Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.

Peer Health Connections
A confidential phone line for help around eating disorders, yourself or someone you know. Call 549-2671, ext. 168.

STOP SLEEPING WITH YOUR PROFESSORS.

Is it the sound of that whispery voice, or those big, intellectual words? If your professors are putting you to sleep, Revive with Vivarin®. Don't let fatigue get the best of you. Vivarin's® the safe way to stay mentally alert, with the same caffeine as about two cups of coffee.

So stay sharp in class. Don't sleep your way to the bottom.

Revive with VIVARIN

©1995 SB SmithKline Beecham Consumer Healthcare
Each tablet contains 200 mg of caffeine, equal to about two cups of coffee. Use only as directed.

Parties put spin on budget battle

By Alan Fram
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Barring a miracle, the quest for a grand balanced-budget deal is dead. But each side's election-year drive to portray the other as the villain is just beginning.

In professed attempts to revive the budget-balancing effort, President Bill Clinton and Republicans are waging separate long-shot campaigns to woo congressional moderates from the other party to their warring visions of spending and tax cuts. At the same time, Republicans may force House votes next month on the two camps' final offers at the budget talks, in hopes of showing that few Democrats support Clinton's plan while there is bipartisan backing for the GOP proposal.

Real budget work remains. The administration says a cataclysmic federal default will occur unless Congress extends the debt limit in February. And temporary spending authority for dozens of agencies, renewed last Friday, will have to be extended once again by March 15.

But for now, both parties — aware that voters want federal deficits eliminated — are trying to avoid blame for the collapse of the yearlong budget effort. Each side's attempt to gain support from House and Senate moderates is all but certain to fall short of producing a compromise that can become law, participants concede. "We just decided we're going to keep working, even if it's a very slight chance," said Rep. Collin Peterson (D-Minn.) a leader of the so-called Blue Dogs, conservative House Democrats who have been meeting with leaders of both sides.

Even so, the chairmen of the Senate and House budget committees, Sen. Pete Domenici (R-N.M.) and Rep. John Kasich (R-Ohio) plan to meet Thursday with leaders of the Blue Dogs and Senate moderates of both parties, led by Sens. John Breaux (D-La.) and John Chafee (R-R.I.). Last Thursday, White House chief of staff Leon Panetta and Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin met with the Senate group. Both the Blue Dogs and Senate moderates have produced budget plans with proposed savings in Medicare, welfare and other programs that fall mostly between Clinton and the GOP. The biggest gulf is over tax cuts: the Blue Dogs have proposed none and the Senate moderates want $130 billion over seven years, well below the near $200 billion the GOP has sought.

The problem with crafting a package that satisfies the moderates is that conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats are likely to be alienated in sufficient number to prevent a congressional package. Many House Republicans, for instance, are adamant that any final plan include sizable tax cuts.

"We can't spend all our time worrying about the House of Representatives," said the moderate Chafee in an interview. "So far what they've done is come up with programs that don't have a chance in" the Senate.

Nonetheless, each side hopes it can drum up enough moderate votes to pressure its opponents to return to the bargaining table and make major concessions. Even that is unlikely.

But in the meantime, the effort helps each camp depict itself as dedicated to eliminating the deficit — which could become especially valuable if continued deadlock causes the financial markets to dive. As they do virtually every day, both sides focused on that theme yesterday.

"The president believes there remains a centrist, bipartisan majority in favor of a historic balanced budget agreement and we're going to see if we can assemble that coalition," said White House spokesman Mike McCurry, adding that Republicans eventually would "want to get on something other than the caboose."

As a demonstration of determination to reach a deal, Clinton met yesterday with about 20 House moderates.

"He's going to scratch and claw and find an agreement wherever he can," Rep. Gary Condit (D-Calif.) said after leaving the meeting. "We're going to work hard as we can for an agreement until they turn out the lights, lock the doors and send us home." Campaigning in Iowa for the GOP presidential nomination, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole said that if Republicans can't reach a budget deal with the president, "we're going to send him bill after bill after bill that sends power to the people... and find out where the president stands."

Meanwhile, GOP leaders considered whether to schedule House votes on the final offers by Clinton and Republicans at the defunct budget talks. After meeting yesterday, they decided not to stage the votes this week, but planned on delaying them until after lawmakers return from a recess in late February.

Some Republicans believed few Democrats would support Clinton's plan because of its spending cuts, embarrassing him. They also thought enough Democrats would vote for the GOP offer to let Republicans spend the 1996 election campaign arguing that only Clinton blocked a bipartisan budget-balancing deal.

But others feared the strategy would backfire, giving Democrats a record vote for a balanced budget, thus removing a campaign argument against them. One Democratic aide suggested that Democrats might vote against the Clinton package en masse to invalidate the entire exercise.

Pakistan, India exchange gunfire

By Binoo Joshi
Associated Press

JAMMU, India — India accused Pakistan yesterday of ratcheting up tensions along their disputed border, even though the latest victims of the conflict were unarmed Pakistanis killed by Indian troops.

A government spokesman in the capital New Delhi said India has shown restraint despite Pakistani provocation and accused Pakistan of lying about firing by the armies of the two uneasy neighbors. Troops on the heavily guarded border around Jammu-Kashmir — the Indian part of Kashmir — often shoot at one another, but the attacks have intensified recently. More than two dozen people have been killed in the past week.

Two rockets slammed into a Pakistani mosque on Friday, killing 19 worshipers. India denied Pakistan's allegations that it fired the rockets.

Yesterday, four unarmed Pakistanis were killed crossing into India and then attempting to flee. The shootings occurred near Nanga, a village 100 yards inside Indian territory, said S.N. Dubey, an Indian border guards officer.

India and Pakistan have fought two wars over Kashmir, which is divided by a cease-fire line that zigzags through many villages. Muslim rebels in Jammu-Kashmir state have been fighting since 1989 for independence or union with Pakistan.

On Monday, an Indian villager was killed by a bullet that penetrated the walls of his home in the village of Sujwal, 25 miles northwest of Jammu, the state's winter capital, said Surendra Singh, a police official.

The house is near an observation post of Indian paramilitary forces, Singh said.

Indian and Pakistani troops met at an Indian border outpost yesterday to try to end the shooting. Officials said the talks were inconclusive.

A general strike, called by Kashmiri separatists yesterday to protest the attack on the mosque, closed all shops and halted traffic in Srinagar, Jammu-Kashmir's summer capital.

In Islamabad, Pakistan, United Nations observers said the mosque attack may have been part of a rocket exchange between Indian and Pakistani soldiers.

About the same time that the two rockets hit the mosque in Forward Kahuta, rockets also landed inside India about nine miles away, said Maj. Gen. Alfonso Pessolano, the chief U.N. observer. One of the rockets landed 300 yards from the U.N. observation post, he said.

Applicants asked to share GLB stories

By Lisa M. Oliveri
Collegian Staff

The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Speakers Bureau is accepting applications from students interested in sharing their stories related to GLB issues with other students this semester.

The bureau consists of approximately 30 students who speak about GLB issues throughout the campus and Five College area. Although members speak mainly on the University of Massachusetts campus in classrooms and for the residential programs, Amherst Regional High School and Deerfield Academy regularly invite panelists each semester. Generally the speakers make two appearances per week.

Each panel of three to five students addresses various topics which range from discrimination and homophobia to personal life stories. Each panelist is given the opportunity to speak individually for five to 10 minutes. Many open the discussion by briefly recounting how they realized their sexual orientation and how this has affected their lives. The floor is then opened for questions and discussion. The bureau strives to keep the atmosphere relaxed and informal.

All students, regardless of sexual orientation are invited to become part of this unique group. Sarah Pease, director of the Stonewall Center, A Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay and Transgender Educational Resource Center, strongly encourages heterosexual allies to volunteer because she feels that many straight students will benefit by hearing their stories. She says it also gives them a chance to show support for their gay friends and family members.

"It takes a lot of courage to be on a panel and put themselves in a position where they might be targeted for harassment," Pease said.

She said that a benefit of speaking is the opportunity to greatly impact listeners. Often, hearing personal accounts dispel many myths and stereotypes which are present in our society. In addition, the safe schools program in Massachusetts makes it possible for high schools to bring in these speakers to educate and inform their student, Pease said.

The Speakers Bureau will be holding a training session for new members at the end of February.

After this short session, the time commitment is very flexible and is up to the individual, Pease said. Members can choose which panel on which they wish to speak, depending on their interests. Internship credit is also available for speakers.

Interested students may contact the Stonewall Center at 545–4824.

Ski Snowboard
Only $219
Winterbreak & Springbreak
5 DAY SKI & SNOWBOARD LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, CONTESTS & WOOPLA
Party in the Snow
SKI TRAVEL
www.skitravel.com
1-800-999-Ski-9

Experience Seville, a crossroads of cultures, a crucible of history
Study in Spain
The Center for Cross-Cultural Study Seville, Spain
For information or a video, contact: Director, CC-CS, Department CN 446 Main Street, Amherst, MA 01002-2314 Tel: (413) 256-0011 (800) ESPAÑA-1 FAX: (413) 256-1968 http://www.cccs.com
Upper Division Spanish Studies Program (Fall, Spring, and Academic Year)
Explore language, literature, history, art, sociology, business, and politics, taught in Spanish, and TEFL.
Intensive Intermediate Program in Spanish Language and Culture
Progress to the advanced level. Fall or Spring Semester program integrates language, literature, civilization, and current events.
January Term
Challenge yourself! Intensive language courses and Spanish Poetry or Theater
Summer Programs
Focus on Spain. Two three-and-one-half week sessions offer Spanish language courses at all levels, plus literature, theater, history, and Jewish, Muslim, and Spanish Civilization.
Excellence since 1969 in College-Level Spanish Studies, in Cooperation with U.S. Colleges and Universities

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst, 256-0080

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-time Evening
• Classes start February 5, 1996
Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

Ever Think of writing for Sports?
Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

Sidewalk Sale.
(Indoors, of course)
Biggest Shoe Sale Ever.
Begins Today
ZAYRE
Downtown Amherst

Classes Start
February 7, 8, 9 & 10
SKI FOR CREDIT?!
Free Bus to area!
Sign-ups 1/29-2/1 at Totman
Pre Register Skiing I or II
All Abilities: Ski or Snowboard
4 weekly lessons: $80
Call PE Office, 545-2338, for more information
Mt. TOMski Area
Minutes from campus

EL ACUÑA
TEX-MEX CANTINA
Corona
CORONA CORONA CORONA!!!
Thursday is Corona Night at El Acuna!
Corona will be at El Acuna with Hats, T-Shirts, Posters, Banners and all the toys to give away!

Minutewomen weather Red Storm

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

With only one event left to score, the Massachusetts women's indoor track and field team was within reaching distance of securing a victory in a quad-meet at Rhode Island last weekend.

And when the points had been tabulated, the Minutewomen came out the victors.

Riding Rosey Bryan's 37-foot-6-inch performance in the triple jump, UMass stole a win out from the hands of St. John's. Massachusetts complied a score of 49; the Red Storm had 48. Host URI placed third with 36, and Maine took fourth (19).

Bryan claimed three second places on the day, including her key placement in the triple. She took second in the 55m dash with a time of 7.38 seconds, and the 55m hurdles with a 8.43. Bryan's triple jump qualified her for the New England Championships.

Jen Waeger, who has run consistently since a strenuous cross country season, turned in a pair of personal best times. Waeger took a first in the mile, clocking a 5:07.58. She also placed second in 800m, in a time of 2:17.0.

Nicole Roberts also scored a first and a second for the Minutewomen. Roberts had a New England qualifying time of 59.09 seconds to take first in the 800m. She also had a second place performance in the 200m, with a NE qualifying time of 26.21.

Massachusetts coach Julie LaFreniere was pleased with her team's clutch performance.

"These women are really concentrating on running well," she said. "There is sometimes the tendency with track to think about your own races. But these women are all aware of what is going on around them, of who else is racing. They all pull for each other, they all root for each other.

"St. John's is a talented team, and they have depth in the throws, jumps, and sprints," LaFreniere continued. "To come through with a win means we put together a real solid team effort. We had a really outstanding day."

Anya Forrest ran to a new personal best time of 8.21 seconds in the 55m hurdles. The time is a qualifying mark for NEs and ECACs.

Rebecca Donaghue turned in a first place in the 800m, with a time of 2:13.3, and Katie Greenia clocked a 10:30.10 placed second in the 3000m.

Emma Gardiner (7.52 seconds) and Melanie Bell (7.62) took fourth and fifth, respectively, in the 55m dash.

A trio of cross country runners placed in the top six of the mile, supporting Waeger's win. Christy Martin, Katie Greenia, and Kristen Donaldson finished third, fourth, and sixth respectively.

The Minutewomen will spend the next several races concentrating on more intense workouts and races. They travel to face several strong teams from New York and Canada at the Syracuse Invitational on Sunday, Feb. 4.

"We want to focus before Atlantic 10s. We want to hone in on quality races. We're going to focus on quality and not quantity," LaFreniere said.

At the weekend meet UMass will face Cortland, Ithaca, Ottawa, Western Ontario, and McGill, among others.

Another player paralysed at hockey rink

BOSTON (AP) — First there was Travis Roy, now another college hockey player has been paralyzed playing in the same rink. Last October, Boston University freshman Roy was paralyzed from the neck down after slamming headfirst into the boards just 11 seconds into his first college game.

Last Thursday, Suffolk University junior John Gilpatrick was left partially paralyzed when he hit his head on the net in a game against Stonehill College at BU's Walter Brown Arena.

Gilpatrick normally plays goalie for Suffolk but was playing center Thursday night to fill in a lineup depleted by injuries. Gilpatrick was charging the net, got checked from behind, spun and struck his head on the goalpost.

When didn't get up, his coaches immediately thought of what happened to Roy.

"It couldn't have been more than 20 feet from where Travis Roy was hurt. I felt funny. I had chills going up and down my body," Suffolk assistant coach Brian Horan said.

"We play our home games at BU and all our helmets have Roy's number 24 on them," Horan said. "Now he's being treated by the same doctors that Travis Roy has."

Gilpatrick was taken first to Boston City Hospital then transferred to Boston University Medical Center, where he was in stable condition last night without the use of his shoulders, arms or hands.

It was the second major spinal injury for Gilpatrick, who broke his neck playing hockey for Hanover High School seven years ago. After two years of rehabilitation, Gilpatrick returned to the ice in his senior year.

But Dr. Arthur Rosiello told the Boston Globe the latest injury may be directly related to the first. In 1989, doctors fused two of Gilpatrick's vertebrae and inserted two steel hooks to stabilize his neck.

When Gilpatrick's neck was snapped backward, the spinal cord probably hit the top of the hooks, he said.

A hospital spokeswoman said the family is no longer giving interviews. On Monday, however, Gilpatrick spoke to the Globe with the help of a nurse who held the telephone.

"I'm hanging in there," he said. "I'm having trouble with my arms. I was checked into the net and my head hit the goalpost. It didn't knock me out. I was awake for most of the time.

"I can move just about everything but my arms," Gilpatrick said. "I'm in a good hospital and trying to be upbeat."

Doctors are still evaluating the extent of Gilpatrick's injury. Rosiello said Gilpatrick's chances of regaining the use of his arms are "guarded."

Rosiello also said he would not have cleared Gilpatrick to resume playing hockey after his first injury. Gilpatrick's mother, Elaine Jones, said doctors at the time cautioned her son against contact sports but "he was medically cleared to play."

She told the Patriot Ledger of Quincy she hoped other parents are not frightened away from letting their children play hockey because of her son's injuries.

■ women's hoop

continued from page 12

utes as the Minutewomen outscored the Bonnies 14-2.

With 6:54 remaining in the half, senior Nicole Carter stole the ball and dished it to Gurile in the paint, who went in for two and the foul. The rest of the way, the Minutewomen dominated the half closing it out with a 7-0 run, earning a 36-24 advantage going into the locker room.

"It took us a little while to get going," O'Brien said. "Nicole [Carter] got herself subbed out real quick, but got herself back in and picked up the energy of the defense and got us going again."

Kicking off the second half, Thomas came out aggressively, forcing turnovers and crashing the boards. The true backbone of the offense was Carroll, who tallied 26 points on the evening and was a flawless 6-6 from the line. Paired with another impressive showing by Gurile, the Minutewomen got the boost they needed to bring home the win.

"We've got to take advantage of size against a lot of teams that we are playing against," O'Brien said. "Tonight, when you go 11-13 and 7-12, you'll take that kind of effort on the offensive end."

As for the Bonnies, each time the momentum swung their way, they couldn't convert it to points on the board.

"Early on, we were getting some good looks at the hoop and momentum was in our favor," said St. Bonaventure coach Marti Whitmore. "And then they showed that three quarter defense and that slowed us down. We are not a great half court team and don't match up well against UMass at all."

The Minutewomen travel to Washington, D.C. to face a tough George Washington team tomorrow, and then return home for a four game home-stand at the Mullins Center.

■ college hoop

continued from page 12

game was postponed, and the team had to travel nine hours by bus to get home. Their next scheduled game, against top- ranked UMass was rescheduled for the next day, and the Hawks lost in overtime.

Arizona was to come to town on Jan. 13 for a game at the Palestra, but Wildcat officials were concerned about the weather, along with the Hawks taking topped ranked UMass to OT, and refused to fly to Philadelphia. The airport remained open after a snow and sleet storm that Friday, but Arizona officials said that they had, "serious problems in tracking the weather."

As a result, Hawks coach Phil Martelli said that he thought the real reason Arizona refused to play was the fact that St. Joe's took top ranked Massachusetts to overtime earlier in the week. Martelli said he would flat-out refuse to play Arizona in the future.

So instead of three national television appearances, the Hawks ended up with one loss and no TV time.

• The inaugural Busch Atlantic 10/Conference USA Challenge was a success. The signs on the lockerooms that night were not.

The doors that said UMass and Virginia Tech were fine, but the Conference USA signs were a little off. The first sign said Memphis State, even though the word state was dropped by the University three years ago.

The second sign said University of North Carolina. Somebody came by and wrote in the word Charlotte in ball point pen.

• It takes a lot of heart to get through a game when a player feels an injury. But to play almost an entire game without being able to see properly? That takes something special.

Rhode Island's Tyson Wheeler, a 5-foot-10-inch sophomore, played in the third place game of the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii with one good eye. He lost one of his contacts with 13 minutes to go in the first half, and played the rest of game with impaired vision. He didn't have a spare pair of lenses and the one he lost was mangled.

Nevertheless, Wheeler was named to the All-Tournament team.

• Virginia Tech coach Bill Foster had every reason to celebrate this New Year's Eve. After 28 years in college coaching, Foster rang in 1996 in style by celebrating his 500th career win with a victory over Wright State, 62-46.

Foster became the 16th active and 40th Division I head coach to reach 500 wins. The win brought Foster's all-time record to 500-304. At the time of the win, Virginia Tech was ranked No. 21 in the AP poll.

• On Jan. 7, the University of Houston held a ceremony at halftime of the Memphis–Houston game to honor former coach and player, Guy Lewis. The court in Hofheinz Pavilion was renamed "Guy Lewis Court," to honor the man who served as head basketball coach for 30 seasons.

As a player, Lewis was a co-captain of Houston's first two basketball teams in 1946 and 1947. He led the Cougars to two Lone Star Conference championships.

As a coach, Lewis served the University from 1956 to 1986, and ended his career with 592 wins. He had 15 NCAA Tournament berths, making the trip to the Final Four five times. He coached in two NCAA Championship games. Lewis won two regular season Southwest Conference Titles, and two Conference post-season titles.

During his tenure at Houston, Lewis coached 15 All- Americas, including Elvin Hayes, Hakeem Olajuwon and Clyde Drexler.

Lewis is on this year's ballot for induction to the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame.

• When Wisconsin beat Michigan on Jan. 3, the Badgers coach Dick Bennett became the first head coach in Madison to win his Big Ten debut since Walter Meanwell did so in 1912. During the span between Meanwell and Bennett there have been eight head coaches at Wisconsin.

• Paul Pierce insists that he doesn't think of himself as a second coming of Danny Manning. But the people of Kansas seem to believe so.

In 1984, through 10 games freshman Manning had scored 150 points. This year, through 10 games, Pierce has scored 145 points. In that tenth game, Manning scored 30 points, and Pierce matched that total in his tenth game.

During his freshman season Manning averaged 14.6 points per game. Currently, Pierce is averaging 14.5 ppg.

• The Iona–Fairfield game scheduled for Jan. 14 had to be postponed. But it wasn't because of the snow, it was because of the food. Ten Fairfield players and two assistant coaches were admitted to the hospital with cases of food poisoning, after having a team meal which had been prepared by several players.

• The time-keeper at the University of Oklahoma's Lloyd Noble Center certainly earned his paycheck on Jan. 13 and 14. On Jan. 13, the Sooner men's team beat Nebraska in triple overtime. And on the 14th, the OU women's team lost to Oklahoma State in double overtime.

• The Winthrop Eagles faced a major problem when they flew to Baltimore to play the University of Maryland – Baltimore County and Loyola, MD. With the blizzard hitting the entire eastern seaboard, everything in the area was closed. There was nowhere to get a hot meal — well, almost nowhere. They went to the only place open, a local strip club.

"We had dinner there, we had breakfast there, we had lunch there," coach Don Kenney said. "There was nothing open."

Casey Kane is a Collegian staff member.

Good Things

Jewelry Natural Fiber Scarves

Blouses Skirts Dresses

Happy B'day Cards Earrings Rings Bracelets T-Shirts Posters Candles Chains Incense Chinese Shoes Socks Leather Sale 10% India Print Bedspreads Sweaters Dresses Area Rugs Baskets Skirts Mugs

Sale 20 to 50% off selected Clothing

The GreatGifts Mercantile Visa / MC Th.Fri.9PM Sun 12-5 Daily 10-6

Northampton-18 Center St. Amherst-Carriage Shops

The Top Ten Reasons to Use the UHS Eye Care Program and Contact Lens Service

1 We have a comprehensive contact lens program
2 Emergency eye care delivered at UHS, as a covered benefit if you are a student plan member.
3 Savings on eyeglasses from participating optometrists are available if you are a student and have a complete optometry examination at UHS
4 We can obtain almost any contact lens in the U.S.A.
5 On-site contact lens specialist.
6 Free sample start-up contact lens solutions.
7 Contact lenses can be mailed directly to you; free postage for normal delivery.
8 Same day replacement of contact lenses, in many cases, due to our large in-house inventory.
9 We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
10 Convenient hours and location.

Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Program over 20 years has been consistently excellent.

"I invite you to use the Eye Services at UHS."

Frederick H. Brown, O.D. Director, UHS Eye Care Program

University Health Services • 549-2671 X244

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Area Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst. 256-0080

Collegian Graphics

We design all kinds of stuff for clients and students. Check us out for yourself at the office.

THE NATIONAL BESTSELLER NOW IN PAPERBACK

DREAMS DO COME TRUE.

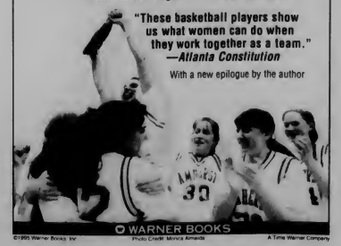
IN THESE GIRLS, HOPE IS A MUSCLE
A True Story of Hoop Dreams and One Very Special Team
BY MADELEINE BLAIS

"Better than the best pep talk, this book will kindle your pride in your own unique, feminine strength." —New Woman

"These basketball players show us what women can do when they work together as a team." —Atlanta Constitution

With a new epilogue by the author



WARNER BOOKS

©1995 Warner Books, Inc. Photo Credit: Monica Almeida A Time Warner Company

UMass Division of Continuing Education

LEARN & ENJOY:

Bartending, Photography, Therapeutic Movement & Massage, Past Life Regression, Saving $ on Travel, Japanese Business Etiquette, Jitterbug/Swing, Floral Design, The Internet & other computer workshops, ESL, EMT Training, GMAT & GRE Preparation, and many, many more.

Inexpensive noncredit workshops for you and your friends.

Pick up a catalog on campus or in town or call 545-0474 for more information. e-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu

Adventures in Lifelong Learning Workshops
Division of Continuing Education • University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK

	One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON	$134	$268
PARIS	$171	$341
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA	$240	$480
TOKYO		$752

Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs/immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l. student I.D. cards may be required.

PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420
800-272-9676
in NYC

Massachusetts 80, Fordham 50

At Mullins Center

FORDHAM (2-18)
Berrien 3-7 0-0 6, Henry 4-11 4-5 12, Deschryver 2-7 0-0 4, Lovett 3-7 5-6 12, Mascia 2-4 0-0 4, Carroll 1-8 1-2 4, Kissane 0-0 0-0 0, Baxter 1-2 0-0 2, Mack 2-8 2-6 6, DiMascio 0-2 0-0 0. Totals 18-56 12-19 50.

MASSACHUSETTS (18-0)
Dingle 2-6 3-4 7, Bright 4-7 0-0 8, Camby 9-12 6-6 24, E.Padilla 4-8 0-0 9, Travieso 0-2 0-2 0, Clarke 2-4 0-0 4, Weeks 5-8 1-1 11, Norville 2-3 1-1 5, Nunez 1-4 0-0 2, Cottrell 3-5 0-0 6, Maclay 0-0 0-0 0, C.Padilla 1-3 2-2 4, Burns 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 33-63 13-16 80.

Halftime-Massachusetts 32, Fordham 17.
3-Point goals-Fordham 2-9 (Lovett 1-2, Carroll 1-3, DiMascio 0-1, Deschryver 0-1, Berrien 0-2), Massachusetts 1-9 (E.Padilla 1-3, Clarke 0-1, Cottrell 0-1, Nunez 0-1, C.Padilla 0-1, Travieso 0-2). Fouled out-None. Rebounds-Fordham 32 (Henry 7), Massachusetts 39 (Dingle 7). Assists-Fordham 7 (Deschryver 3), Massachusetts 17 (E.Padilla 10). Total fouls-Fordham 14, Massachusetts 18. A-9,493.

Edgar Padilla – 9 points, 4 rebounds, 10 assists, 1 steal.

Highlights...

Padilla ran the fast break exceedingly well for 21 points while committing only one turnover in 33 minutes...Ted Cottrell got into the action to the delight of the crowd adding six points... Marcus Camby continued to impress since his return leading the Minutemen with 24 points and five blocks... Charlton Clarke hit his first career field goal and finished with four points.

Massachusetts 72, St. Bonaventure 47

At Mullins Center

ST. BONAVENTURE (5-11)
Palmer 4-12 1-3 9, Blackwell 4-13 1-1 9, Spellman 3-9 1-2 7, McNeill 2-12 1-2 6, Singleton 1-5 0-0 2, McFarland 1-10 4-5 6, Schoone 3-3 0-0 6, Williams 0-1 2-2 2. Totals 18-65 10-15 47.

MASSACHUSETTS (18-0)
Dingle 3-6 1-2 7, Bright 5-9 4-4 15, Camby 6-8 7-8 19, E. Padilla 5-7 0-0 15, Travieso 3-11 0-0 9, Clarke 0-1 0-0 0, Weeks 1-3 0-0 2, Norville 0-0 1-2 1, Nunez 1-1 0-0 2, Cottrell 1-1 0-0 2, Maclay 0-0 0-0 0, C. Padilla 0-0 0-0 0, Burns 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 25-47 13-18 72.

Halftime–Massachusetts 36, St. Bonaventure 23. 3-Point goals-St. Bonaventure 1-12 (McNeill 1-5, Blackwell 0-1, Singleton 0-1, McFarland 0-5), Massachusetts 9-21 (E.Padilla 5-7, Travieso 3-10, Bright 1-2, Clarke 0-1, Dingle 0-1). Fouled out-Blackwell. Rebounds-St. Bonaventure 36 (Blackwell 10), Massachusetts 37 (Camby 7). Assists-St. Bonaventure 5 (Spellman 2), Massachusetts 16 (E.Padilla 9). Total fouls-St. Bonaventure 15, Massachusetts 15. A-9,493.

Marcus Camby – 19 points, 7 rebounds, 9 blocks

Highlights...

Camby returned from his collapse without skipping a beat tying a team record with nine blocks in a game...UMass blocked a total of 14 shots to none for the Bonnies...UMass' three point shooting remained hot as the Minutemen hit 60% their first 7 from downtown, Edgar Padilla led the way with five treys.

■ Minutemen

continued from page 12

12 of his 15 points in the first half.

The most encouraging part of the game though, was the return of the big man in the middle. Camby started out slow on the offensive end, missing his first two shots before shaking the rust off and hitting his last six attempts, finishing with 19 points.

More impressively, his timing on defense hadn't missed a beat, blocking a career-high nine shots. The leading player of the year candidate said he felt fine after the game, though it took him a while to get started his first game back.

"Today has been a great day," Camby said with a huge smile. "I really felt like I was back when I hit the turnaround jumper [in the second half]."

Minutemen Notes: UMass guard Carmelo Travieso (no points on 0-for–2 shooting) played only 10 minutes in the Fordham game due to a head cold.

"At halftime [Carmelo] said he felt a little wheezy," Calipari said. "So I just decided to sit him, and he said it was all right."

The Minutemen return to action tomorrow night in Philadelphia when they take arch rival Temple at 9:30.

Hockey drops two to No. 7 Maine

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

ORONO, Maine — While the scoreboard will just show two more losses, the Massachusetts hockey team, which suffered two 6–5 losses to No. 5 Maine this weekend, was much improved over the unit that suffered through a tough month of January.

The Minutemen had the Black Bears on the ropes for two periods as the two teams were knotted at three at the second intermission, before Maine pulled away in the final 20 minutes of action.

Maine opened up a 2–0 lead in the first period on goals by Steve Kariya and Tony Frenette just over half way through the opening stanza.

Then the Massachusetts offense came to life on a spectacular rush by Dean Campanale. The sophomore forward collected the puck at his own blue line, and carried it up the ice. After walking around one defender, he split two more and walked in on Maine goalie Blair Allison. Campanale slid a perfect pass to a charging Dennis Wright, who knocked the puck in the wide open right side of the net.

Just under three minutes later, Sal Manganaro would even the game at 2–2.

Rob Bonneau put UMass briefly ahead when he stole a pass and converted a breakaway just 4:05 into the middle period, but Maine sniper Tim Lovell tied the game eight minutes later to send the teams to the locker room for the second intermission tied 3–3.

Maine added three unanswered goals in the third to put away the win.

Brian Regan was brilliant between the pipes for Massachusetts, making 49 saves in the defeat.

While many expected the highly favored Maine to pound the upstart Minutemen in the second game after the close first game, Massachusetts was solid again.

The Black Bears took a 5–1 lead midway through the second period, but Massachusetts didn't concede. Manganaro's second goal of the weekend narrowed the gap to 5–2 with 4:40 remaining in the second. Warren Norris' early third period strike made the score 5–3.

The Maine defense tightened, allowing only eight shots on Allison in the third. UMass pulled Regan for the extra skater late in the game in hopes of a comeback, but Brad Purdie would tally an empty net goal to seal the victory.

Lovell was the hero for Maine collecting a hat trick in the contest. Regan played well again with 37 saves.

Another positive for the Minutemen was that Bonneau appears to have emerged from his goal scoring slump. The junior right wing had a goal in both games and picked up an assist in the Friday game.

The two wins improve Maine to 18–5–4 (9–3–4 in Hockey East). The Black Bears moved closer to the league's top spot, as conference leader Boston University was swept in its weekend series with UMass–Lowell.

The losses drop UMass to 9–14–1 (3–11–1 in HE). The eighth place Minutemen have a chance to improve their standing next weekend. They battle ninth place Merrimack on Friday with a chance to put some space between themselves and the Warriors. Massachusetts will look to gain some ground on its next closest opponent when it makes its first trip to the brand new Whitimore Center to battle seventh place New Hampshire.

Minuteman notes: Senior defenseman Dale Hooper reinjured his right shoulder, which he separated earlier in the season, in Saturday's game. Hopper will be sidelined for an indefinite amount of time.

Sophomore defenseman Mike Gaffney was disqualified for the Friday night game for a butt end in last Tuesday's loss to Cornell. Keith O'Connell played in his place. O'Connell, usually a forward, also dressed as a blueliner on Saturday in place of captain Jaynen Rissling.

Due to a change in NCAA rules, players that would only have three years of eligibility because of their age are now eligible for four. This gives Minutemen Jaynen Rissling, Blair Wagar, Mike Evans, Dave Kilduff and Dale Hooper another year.

EMILY BEST / COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts hockey team continued to struggle as it dropped two games this passed weekend at Hockey East rival Maine. They lost both games by a score of 6–3.

■ NFL

continued from page 12

to make the correct call as he was probably one of only a handful of people in the stadium who could actually see the ball graze the turf for a split second.

Who says we need instant replay? Oops.

• With the dramatic triumph the Steelers were the AFC's sacrificial lamb in the 30th edition of the Super Blowout. When this tradition started, the old NFL hated to be mentioned in the same breath as the AFL and now that the old Raider and Steeler dynasties have died out the NFC has reason to brag, as they have now won 12 straight Lombardi Trophies.

Looking to put an end to that streak is Jimmy Johnson, now officially the head coach of the Miami Dolphins. The last time he took over a team, Johnson was literally starting from scratch with the Cowboys. This go-round he has a team loaded with talent who could barely break .500 playing for the game's winningest coach Don Shula. Is Johnson the answer?

The answer to that question is soon to be determined but I would bet my [limited] salary on it. With the release of several members of Shula's coaching staff, including Tom Olivadotti and Mean Joe Greene, the former U. of Miami coach will bring in his own staff and whip his boys into shape. It will be interesting to see if free agent Bryan Cox returns to the 'fins where his and his new bosses' personalities are sure to collide.

Don't be surprised to see the Dolphins go after an Smith–type running back in the draft to open up Marino's passing game. Johnson will most likely cut most of his running backs possibly keeping only third down back Keith Byars.

• Here's what probably would have been an even more intriguing Super Bowl: the Dallas Cowboys vs. the Nebraska Cornhuskers. The only offensive line comparable to the Boys' is Tom Osborne's and the true black cloud that hangs over Barry Switzer would be losing to his old arch–rivals one more time.

• Along with the Miami coaching change, heads have also rolled in Tampa Bay and Arizona. Sam Wyche and Buddy Ryan have been given the boot, with Minnesota Viking defensive co-ordinator Tony Dungy already been given the Buccaneer job. The Cardinals are still looking for a coach to replace Ryan and unfortunately for Bill Bidwell, he may have given up on the ex–coach's predecessor too early.

Joe Bugel was fired at the end of the 1993 campaign when Bidwell said the coach must be at least .500 to finish the year in order to keep his job. While they were 3–6 at one point, the troops rallied around Bugel and came one game short of the mark, finishing 7–9. That wasn't 8–8 and the coach was canned.

Bugel, now a member of Johnson's staff in Miami, didn't nearly have the talent, especially on defense, that Ryan had and was used as a scapegoat. Bugel was picked up immediately after his dismissal by the Raiders for his knowledge of the game and deserves another chance at a head coaching spot.

If he wins a Super Bowl while in the Sunshine State, don't be surprised to see the Giants toot his horn when Dan Reeves' contract runs out at the end of 1997.

• For everyone who said this would be the year for Marty Schottenheimer to prove that he could coach in the playoffs, they have now converted to conventional wisdom. The coach of the Kansas City Chiefs has a great scheme on both sides of the ball, but also could be victimized by any team with talent.

The Chiefs were a steady team with no superstars who willed their way to the best regular season record in the league at 13–3. By beating team with consistent play and not making turnovers it seemed that Marty's troops were the perfect playoff team. But when your average margin of victory is less than a touchdown and letting games come down to the final play you leave little margin for error.

This time it wasn't the opposing quarterback who miraculously stole this game away from him, it was his own place kicker. Lin Elliot went 0–for–3 on field goals, all well within his range, including what would have tied the game with just minutes remaining.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian columnist.

Dept. of Germanic Languages & Literatures
510 Herter Hall 545-2350
OPEN CLASSES

All German language courses, elementary to advanced

GERMAN 341 Early German Culture (HS) MWF 11:15
GERMAN 379 Contemporary Germany (I) TTH 2:30
GERMAN 390A Witches: Myth & Reality (I) TTh 4:00
German 597A Cold War Culture: Film TTh 4:00 - 7:00

All Courses TAUGHT IN ENGLISH

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Paid Officials Needed For Basketball and Wrestling

Clinics: Basketball - Jan. 31, Feb. 1, 2
Wrestling - Feb. 6
Call for times & locations
Still Time To Enter Basketball, Wrestling & Wallyball
More Info In 215 Boyden, 5-2693/5-0022

The University of Massachusetts Campus Activities Office Presents:

This event is made possible by a grant from [illegible] and the Vice Chancellor for

Something Every Friday
A weekly program series of events
Coming this Friday
Return To The Source
Campus Center Auditoium
February 2, 1996,
8:00pm
FREE
Followed by the Movie
"To Wong Fu, Thanks For Everything, Julie Newmar"
time approx. 11pm
Refreshments Will Be Served

STUDENTS WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES

This Spring semester, researchers at the UMASS School of Education will be conducting a research project/independent study course which focuses on the life experiences of students with learning disabilities. The title of the project is Learning Disabilities and Adolescence: an Autobiographical Perspective. Students who participate in the project will write a personal essay about their own adolescence and how it has been affected by having a learning disability. Participants will receive 3 undergraduate independent study credits and individualized instruction in writing.
If you are interested in participating, please call 665-6729 for more information. Students who elect to participate will be asked to begin in early February, so please call soon!

MENTAL HEALTH GROUPS
SPRING '96

Self Exploration Group -- Short Term Process Therapy Groups
Group I – Thursday, 3:45-5 P.M. Begins in mid-February
Group II – Monday, 12:30-2 P.M. Begins in late March

Women's Health Group -- Exploring the Mind-Body Connection
Monday, 3:30-5 P.M.

Adult Children of Dysfunctional Families/Ninos Adultos de Familias Disfuncionales -- in Spanish -- Tuesday, 9-10:30 A.M.

Increasing Self-Esteem & Building Self Confidence
Tuesday, 3:45-5 P.M.

Letting Go and Moving On -- A Break-up Support Group
Tuesday, 6-7:30 P.M.

Women's Group for Graduate Students and Professional Women -- Tuesday, 12:45-2:15 P.M.

Exploring Gay and Lesbian Relationships
How To Get In, How To Stay In, How To Get Out -- Wednesday, 3:30-5 P.M.

Long Term Therapy Group for Graduate Students, Older Students, and UMASS Staff -- Thursday, 3:30-5 P.M.

Groups begin in early to mid-February. All groups require a pre-group interview. Groups are open to students and to Kaiser members whose site is UMS. For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337 or drop by 127 Hills North, M-F, 8-5.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

- Activities
- Announcements
- Apartment For Rent
- Auto For Sale
- Employment
- Entertainment
- For Sale
- Found (2 days Free)
- Happy Birthday
- Houses For Rent
- Instruction
- Lost
- Musicians
- Miscellaneous
- Motorcycles
- Personals
- Room For Rent
- Room Wanted
- Roommate Wanted
- Services
- Summer Sublet
- To Sublet
- Travel
- Transportation
- Wanted to Rent
- Wanted

EMPLOYMENT

Now hiring Restaurant day time wait staff, hostesses, kitchen staff, also N.E. Bar & Grill night wait staff & door people. Apply in person on 1st floor Ask for Manager.

National Parks hiring Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests and Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & seasonal jobs. 1-206-971-3620 Ext. J5018

Fund Raiser Motivated groups needed to earn $500+ promoting AT&T Discover Card and Retail cards. Since 1983 we've helped thousands of groups raise the money they need. Call Gina at 800-592-2121 Ext. 198. Free CD to qualifying groups.

$3500/Yr Income Potential reading books. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 Ext R-1732 for details.

Undergrad Network Manager Manage the largest Peer to Peer Network. Help the student businesses maximize system productivity. Computer Science background or experience a plus. Applications accepted through February 14 & Work background a plus. 409 Student Union above the Main Store. 545-2167

Copy Shop Staff Campus Design and Copy (Kinko's) is hiring dedicated and smart full-time student run businesses. Great business and group experience. Applications accepted until February 16. 409 Student Union. 545-2167

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2,000+/month. World travel. Seasonal & full-time positions. No exp. necessary. For info call 1-206-971-3550 Ext. C5052

Teach English in Asia Make up to $25-$45/hr teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan, China, Thailand, Indonesia & S. Korea. Many employers provide room & board & other benefits. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For more information call 1-206-971-3570 Ext. J5053

Alaska student jobs Great $$$! Students of all majors are available. Male/Female. Room/board/transport. Fish processor. No exper. nec. Call 919-929-1936 ext. A1582

EMPLOYMENT

$Cruise ships hiring! Students needed! $$$ + free travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii). Seasonal, permanent, no exper. necessary. Call (919) 929-4398 Ext. C1040

Premiere brother/sister camps in Massachusetts. Counselor positions for talented and energetic students as program specialists in all team sports, especially baseball, basketball, roller hockey, gymnastics, field hockey, soccer, volleyball, 30 tennis openings; also golf, archery, riflery, pioneering/overnight camping, ropes and rock climbing, weights/fitness and cycling, other openings include performing arts, fine arts, hi-ropes, ski/snowboard, newspaper, photography, yearbook, radio station, cooking, sewing and rocketry. All waterfront/pool activities (swimming, sailing, windsurfing, canoeing, kayaking). Top salaries, room & board and travel. June 18th - August 17th. Inquire: Mah Kee Nac, Bowie 1-800-753-3118 Danbee (girls) 1-800-392-3752.

Alaska employment - Fishing industry earn up to $3000 - $6000+ per month. Room and board! Transportation! Male/Female. No experience necessary! (206)971-3510 ext. A5A0012

$40,000/yr income potential. Home typists/PC users. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 ext. T-1732 listings.

$35,000/yr income potential. Reading books. Toll 1-800-898-9778 ext. R-1732 for details.

Exceptional summer opportunity Camp Wayne, NE PA (Dmv, NYC) sports oriented. Counselor/Specialists for all land/water sports, camping, climbing, ropes, mountain biking, rocketry, A&C, drama, video, radio, on campus interviews Wednesday, February 28. Please call 1-800-737-8778 or 510-883-3087. Leave your phone number & mailing address.

Summer jobs in Yellowstone Now hiring over 2000 employees to work in hotels, restaurants and other guest service. A representative will be at the concourse Wednesday, January 31 between 10:00am & 4:00pm stop by for applications and information. TW recreational Services, PO Box 165, Yellowstone National Park, WY 82190. (307)344-5324 AA/EOE M-F, O/V

HOUSES FOR RENT

Cape Cod group summer rentals. Waterfront houses - Falmouth area (508)477-0000

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742

FOR SALE

Bed for Sale Twin mattress box spring & frame $70 OBO. 5 Disk Changer $100 also. Call Craig 253-2777.

'93 Corvette Coupe excellent condition $15500 (negotiable) + accounts. Call Barbara at 549-8674.

INSTRUCTION

Free Week February 4-13 Music, Acting, Dance lessons. Performing arts division 93 Bartlett Hall. 545-0519.

PERSONALS

Welcome Back sisters of Sigma Delta Tau. Have a great semester!

ROOM FOR RENT

One Room on bus route for $200 plus 1/3 utilities. Call us at 665-4758.

SERVICES

Need Help writing a resume... Let a professional do it for you. Special student rate! Call Lori 253-1867.

TRAVEL

Hitch the Skies Cambi/Mex only $189 R/T Europe $169 / Low domestic rates. Ashtech 800-379-2009.

'94 Spring Break shopping days left! Don't procrastinate! Now is the time to guarantee the lowest rates and best hotel selection for Spring Break '96. Leisure Tours has complete packages to South Padre Island, TX and Cancun. Party with thousands! For free info call 1-800-284-7281. Group rates are available. (...) Leisure Tours International.

Cancun Spring Break Best party prices from $499! Americas premier travel company earn free trips and highest commissions! Call 800-736-1509 for info.

TRAVEL

Spring Break! Book Now! Spring Break '96. Party only 1 week to me, don't blow it! Book Now! Florida & Padre $109. Bahamas $359. Jamaica Cancun $399. Organize a group. Travel free! Sunsplash Tours 1-800-426-7710.

Ski & Snowboard - Winterbreak & Springbreak '96. Intercollegiate ski weeks only $219. Includes: 5 day lift ticket, 5 nights lodging (luxury condos), 5 days intercollegiate activities, drinking age 18+. Sponsors include Molson & Labatts. Mt. Orford Canada (Just across the Vermont border). Group leaders req. discount. Call Ski Travel Unlimited 1-800-999-SKI9.

WANTED

Hot! Hot! Hot! New metabolism pills through Lose It 100% Guaranteed results 1-800-600-7389.

Happy Birthday Thom
The Tuesday Night Crew

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Researching a major purchase could save you a bundle of money. Remain optimistic about a personal relationship. Your attitude will greatly influence the course of events.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Teamwork is vital if starting a family-owned business. Get everything in writing to avoid future problems. State your views in a calm and frank manner. Superficial answers are insufficient.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Be on the lookout for ideas and information you can use in the future. Romance is more rewarding than in the recent past. Find less expensive ways to say "thank you" to friends and relatives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — A desire to assist the underdog takes over. Help a teen-ager get better organized. Let romance simmer on the back burner while you give work assignments top priority. Repay loans as soon as possible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Do not neglect your regular work while handling special projects. Your reputation for meeting deadlines is an important part of your success. Be more patient with parents.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Stick to the tried-and-true when supervising subordinates. A good day for real estate transactions and landlord-tenant discussions. Your ideas receive a fair hearing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Your ESP tells you how to boost your social standing or recapture romance. Attending a VIP affair leads to surprising perks. Fulfill a work quota before pursuing pleasure. Explain an unusual circumstance to your mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Your social contacts or membership in a professional organization help you reach a cherished goal. A financial backer or VIP will pull important strings if you ask politely. Avoid rushing into a hasty romantic commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Your financial future looks bright. Think about the long-range possibilities. Letting someone else take the helm of a time consuming project may be a good idea. There is no way you can handle everything alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — At home and abroad, friends go to bat for you. Meetings involving prominent people will result in a home run. Maintain your special rapport with a former employer. You may one day become business partners!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Others recognize and applaud your abilities. Influential business and social acquaintances welcome you into their ranks. You will win even more admirers by remaining modest. Share the limelight with the deserving. Dine out tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You can cure a restless mood by focusing on a major artistic project. Utilize your network or business contacts near and far — then reach for the stars! Spend the evening with a few close friends.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

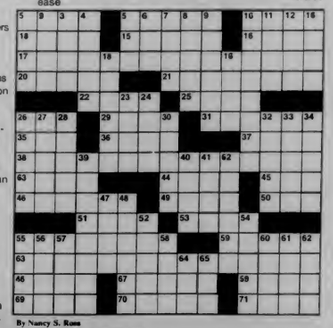
ACROSS
1 Fictional canine
5 Davenports
10 "Wuthering Heights" locale
14 Case for 1 Down
15 Sweden's third largest city
16 Tourist mecca in India
17 1905 novel by Edith Wharton
20 Vacillates
21 Chichi quality
22 Eastern Hemisphere merganser
25 Adult elvers
26 Container for cookies
29 Columnist's tidbit
31 Lower
35 Court sizzler
36 1934 Nobel chemist
37 It flows past Interlaken
38 1907 novelette by Edith Wharton
43 Fedora part
44 Curb
45 Perform for Peter Brook
46 Passover dinners
49 Table staple
50 Mil. officers
51 Seance communications
53 Chunk of bacon
55 Control
59 Cork natives
63 1934 autobiography by Edith Wharton
66 "Tosca" locale
67 Asian-American
68 Leading light
69 Acute
70 Fishhook fastener
71 Round dance

DOWN
1 ABA member
2 Part of New York or London
3 Die with three pips
4 One of a Dumas trio
5 Dallas campus: Abbr.
6 Western hemisphere org.
7 Pet pest
8 Love in 66 Across
9 Relent
10 Bulwark
11 Scary creature
12 Scraps
13 Stadium shouts
18 Densest element
19 5,280 feet
23 To be, in Normandy
24 Garden intruder
26 Sidepiece timbers
27 Without — in the world
28 Decorated anew
30 Fort —, SW Florida city
32 Middle Eastern porter
33 Put up
34 Takes one's ease
39 — Legion
40 Oolong, and others
41 Small brook
42 Involve by necessity
47 It's sometimes pulled
48 Generates
52 Sully
54 Impudent
55 "Lady in the —" Weill musical
56 Clarinet's cousin
57 Angela Lansbury role
58 Gaelic
60 "— the Woods": Sondheim musical
61 Identifying feature
62 Juno's Greek counterpart
64 Neighbor of Md.
65 Teammate of Jackie and Duke

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

C	I	R	C		N	O	E	L	S		T	A	T	S
O	N	O	R		O	R	B	I	T		E	L	A	N
P	E	T	E	R	N	O	O	N	E		D	E	L	I
E	R	O	D	E	S		N	E	V		K	E	L	P
S	T	R	O	B	E	S		S	E	W	N
			A	N	T	S		N	E	I	G	H	S
S	A	I	D		S	A	T	E		E	G	R	E	T
E	C	C	E		E	D	E	M	A		H	A	R	E
C	L	A	N	S		T	E	A	R		T	M	A	N
T	U	N	N	E	L		L	I	R	A
			I	W	A	S		L	O	U	T	I	S	H
Y	A	P	S		R	H	O		G	L	O	R	I	A
A	G	E	D		D	A	W	N	A	D	A	M	S
R	I	T	A		E	L	L	E	N		A	T	O	P
N	O	S	Y		R	E	S	E	T		Y	E	N	S

6/9/95



By Nancy S. Ross
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Attention Collegian Staff

There will be a mandatory staff meeting
Sunday, February 4 at 7:00 P.M.
contact your department head if you are unable to attend.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

SHOOT
for the Collegian
Photographers Needed
Immediately!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

LOOK! IT'S THE MAN-MONSTER!
I'LL CALL FOR BACKUP!
SQUAD CARS—CONVERGING ON TIMES SQUARE! THEY'VE FOUND HOWARD!
AT THAT MOMENT...
I DEMAND THE ARREST OF DR. WILLIAM TURNER, THE CREATOR OF THE MAN-MONSTER!

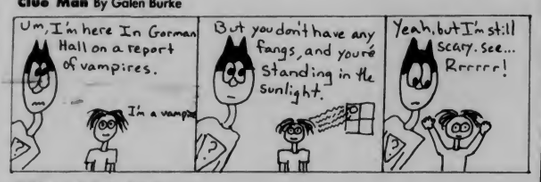
The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Jim's Journal By Jim

Ruth came over last night. We were going to make dinner.
On our way to the grocery store, we talked about jobs I could apply for.
I've seen want ads for bank tellers, insurance and advertising sales.
When we got to the store Ruth said, "You could work here!"

Clue Man By Galen Burke



Um, I'm here In Gorman Hall on a report of vampires.
I'm a vamp
But you don't have any fangs, and you're standing in the sunlight.
Yeah, but I'm still scary. See... Rrrrrr!

Dilbert By Scott Adams

WALLY WRITES THE CRITICAL CODE FOR OUR NATION'S NEW AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL SYSTEM.
THE CROWD IS SILENT
SUDDENLY THE GIFTED PROGRAMMER EMPLOYS A RARELY SEEN STRATEGY OF "CODE REUSE."
THE CROWD GOES WILD
SO YOU USED CODE FROM THE PAYROLL SYSTEM?
HERE'S A TIP: DON'T FLY ON PAY DAY.

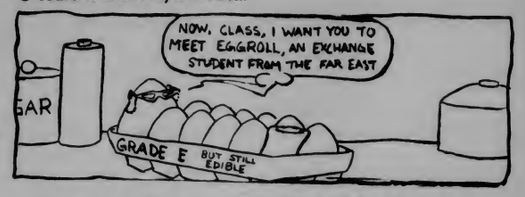
Monkey Socials By Boogaloo Shrimp

The Break-Off is Friday. After the Windmill, your ass goes down Shutterbug.
During your Hacktopin, you might feel a slight sting. That's pride mewls with yours. Screw Pride!
I Have No Truble with That Mr. Gus.
When your Ass is chillin' in Compton, sucking down all the 40's you can imagine, You'll be thanking Gus.

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Can you Draw? Interested in Drawing a Cartoon or Comic?
Then Show Up at the
MEETING FOR CARTOONISTS
All current and future cartoonists must attend a meeting at 2 pm on February 4 in the Collegian Newsroom, 113 Campus Center.
Please Bring Several Samples With You.
If you have ?'s or cannot attend, please contact, Marni E. Heifner, Managing Editor, at 545-3500.

8 Years in Braces By Eric Peterson



Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

Everybody knows that things are not always what they seem.

Did you ever leave an orange out for a long time? Green mold starts to grow in little spots at first, but eventually, it completely covers the orange.

Basically the orange disappears. The living mold is the only thing that remains.....but the mold has nothing left to eat so it dies .

We think the earth was created for us, but what if....we are only a growth on the earth. We eat the earth, ... then the earth lets us die.

Sometimes the mold-orange-earth thing reminds me of my girlfriend and me...except I'm not sure which one of us is the mold.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"To help distract you during your gum surgery, Ms. Parker will be performing one of her engaging puppet shows."

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Jacob W. Michaels
Copy Editor.....Tara MK Connelly
Photo Technician.....Emily A. Reily
Production Supervisors.....James P. Ganley
G. Tony Morse
David X. Voldan

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH	DINNER
Mac and Cheese	Roast Beast
Rotini	Caponata
Red Beans	Baked Ziti
Sandwich Bar	Sandwich Bar

Franklin

LUNCH	DINNER
Chicken Puck	Roast Beast
Lemon Grill Burger	Cheese Lasagna
Mac and Cheese	Chicken Breast
Marty's Deli	Sandwich

Hampshire

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger	Roast Beast
Chicken Puck	Cheese Lasagna
Mac and Cheese	Sandwich Bar
Marty's Deli

Worcester

LUNCH	DINNER
Hot Hero	Roast Beast
Mac and Sneeze	Caponata
Rotini	Baked Ziti
Red Beans	Pastabilities

Quote of the Day

"Don't let your prey hit you in the face."

–Overheard

Sparky's® Safety Spot™

STOP, DROP, AND ROLL
If your clothes catch fire, stop where you are, drop to the ground, cover your face with your hands and roll over and over to smother the flames.
NFPA National Fire Protection Association, Quincy, MA

TWO YEARS. YOUR LIFE. OUR FUTURE.
TEACH FOR AMERICA
FOR INFORMATION OR TO REQUEST AN APPLICATION CALL 1-800-832-1230.

Write for Arts

Music • Film
Books • Concerts
Lifestyles • Art
Dance • Theatre

We need your expertise in covering this cornucopia of culture.
Contact
Tara MK Connelly • 545-1361

Sports

UMass rolls as unbeaten streak is now 19

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

The brutal schedule that the Massachusetts men's basketball team plays saw one of its least formidable foes last night as the Minutemen hosted Fordham at the Mullins Center. As advertised UMass made it look fairly easy, extending its winning streak to 19 as it pummelled the Rams (2-15 overall, 0-7 Atlantic 10), 80-50.

Massachusetts	80
Fordham	50

"This is the best defensive team we've played all season," Fordham coach Nick Macarchuk said. "We aren't a real good offensive team to begin, but they contributed to that tonight. We can't take anything positive from this game and that's because of them."

UMass' defensive intensity led to 17 Ram turnovers and created 21 fast-break points. The Minutemen running game was executed to near perfection by guard Edgar Padilla, who made several key passes which in turn created easy layups for his teammates. He finished with 10 assists while committing only one turnover.

"[Edgar] delivered the ball the moment the moment the ball needed to be delivered," Calipari said of his point guard. "He's really done the things that he has needed to do and knows where the ball needs to go. In my opinion, he's the best point guard I've ever coached — he's only a junior."

"The guards never looked like they got tired," Macarchuk added. "They pushed us outside and if we ever did get inside then we had to deal with [Marcus] Camby."

Camby was a monster presence in the paint once again as he recorded five blocked shots along with leading all scorers in the game with 24 points.

UMass got extensive productive playing time from its bench as well. Junior Tyrone Weeks was the second leading Minuteman scorer with 11 points, chipping in with five boards. Inus Norville also contributed to the UMass cause pouring in five points and grabbing two rebounds in 16 minutes of solid playing time.

Senior Ted Cottrell saw his first major playing time off the pine this season and responded to the delight of the sellout crowd. The Maryland native hit 3-of-5 from the field for six points, and with his positive 10 minutes on the court, his coach feels he may deserve to get more time in the future.

"That's the great thing about this team is that they respond," Calipari said. "The last game [Ted] just went out and performed and he showed he could play, and now he'll play more. I've tried to tell that as a lesson to the rest of the guys on the team."

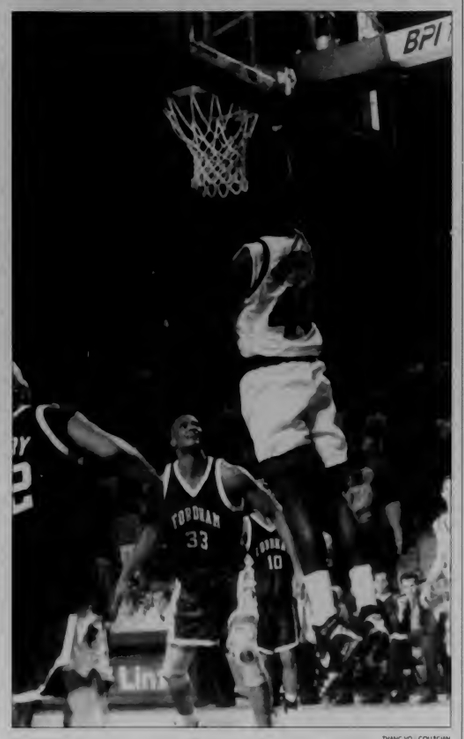
Freshman Charlton Clarke recorded his first field goal last night and finished with four points, two steals and one assist.

Massachusetts 72, St. Bonaventure 47

UMass threw a party to celebrate the return of Camby and used the Bonnies, the team which the Hartford native was to play before he collapsed, as the pinata. The Minutemen hit six of their first seven from three-point land helping them jump to a early 13-point lead and never looked back.

Edgar Padilla sparked the UMass quick start, scoring

Turn to MINUTEMEN, page 9



THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Junior Ted Cottrell, putting home two of his six points on the night, played inspired ball off the bench helping UMass to an 80-50 win over Fordham.

Camby shows no ill-effects in his return

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

For those expecting Marcus Camby to be sluggish and out-of-sync upon his return to the court last Saturday against St. Bonaventure, forget about it.

The 6-foot-11-inch National Player of the Year candidate did have to shake off a little rust, but he showed how dominating he can be with his performance against the Bonnies and against Fordham last night.

On Saturday, Camby finished with a game-high 19 points, seven boards and a career-high nine blocks; and against the Rams last night, he broke out for 24 points, five boards and five blocks. The nine blocks against the Bonnies tied Camby with Harper Williams for the UMass record for most blocks in a game.

"When he's on a mission and he's focused, it's a joke how good he is. You see how he played [Saturday], and you can imagine that the last week and a half he's really made an effort," Massachusetts coach John Calipari said after the St. Bonaventure game. "He was fine, aggressive. He was probably more aggressive then a couple of games before he fainted. That's good to see."

Last night Camby must have been on a mission, because he scored 16 points on 7-for-8 shooting from the field in the second half, after a first half which saw him shoot the ball only four times.

"[At halftime] Coach said in order for us to be successful in the second half, I had to score more," Camby said.

"We went a 5-to-6 minute stretch where Marcus doesn't touch the ball. [In the second half], every pass came down and Marcus got the ball — every single time," Calipari said. "Let him touch the ball because he's unselfish. He can score one-on-one, if they double him, he can pass it."

At one point in the second half, Camby scored eight straight points, nailing three outside jumpers and two free throws to help increase UMass' lead to 22.

Against the Bonnies, Camby started off slow as well — offensively at least, attempting only three shots from the field and scoring five of his first-half seven points on free throws.

Defensively though, Camby was solid, blocking four shots before halftime while also pulling down four defensive rebounds.

In the second half he got it going offensively, shooting a perfect 5-for-5 from the field while also scoring his 1,000 career point. In one sequence midway through the second half, he scored six straight points. After a basket underneath with 13:13 left, he scored on a turnaround jumper on the baseline and then dunked a pass from Edgar Padilla to give the Minutemen a 51-34 lead at the time.

"What I was telling [Camby] to do before the game [against St. Bonaventure] was worry about defense, rebounding and blocking shots," Calipari said. "Because those are just efforts. You don't have to think much.

"Coach was telling me to just play defense, rebound the ball and block a lot of shots. That's what I concentrated on at first and my offense just came along with it," Camby said.

Camby was originally cleared to play in time for the Pittsburgh game Jan. 23, but because he hadn't practiced enough Calipari chose not to play him, although Camby was aching to play. But against the Bonnies, he got his chance.

"It felt like my freshman year all over again, getting in the starting lineup," Camby said about his return. "My palms were getting sweaty. I was just anxious to get out there on the court. It's been tough sitting in a hospital for a week watching my guys play, but it was a relief to get out there and finally get it over with, and show the world that there's truly nothing wrong.

"It felt great. I got out there in the starting lineup, the place was going crazy. I had a lot of blocks and scored my 1,000 point. It's been a great day for me. I just went out there and just played."

NFC wins 12th in a row; Johnson succeeds Shula

JUSTIN SMITH on the NFL

And the beatings go on...

Well not really, the 27-17 score in favor of the Dallas Cowboys in Super Bowl XXX is fairly indicative of these two teams. Both defenses played it close to the vest, with big hits and timely stops. In the end it was turnovers that killed the Steelers come-back bid to upset the highly favored Cowboys.

MVP Larry Brown did nothing but catch the two balls thrown right at him by Neil O'Donnell. Two weeks ago, when Aaron Bailey of the Colts could not hold on to the desperation pass that literally fell into his lap, the Steelers escaped. This time, head coach Bill Cowher had tears of sorrow instead of joy as Pittsburgh fell short of their fifth Super Bowl win in five tries.

The two interceptions Brown made were just misreads by the quarterback and wide receiver. In those two key plays the coverage dictates the route the receiver should run. Both times O'Donnell read Brown was playing Andre Hastings to go deep, so the QB threw the hitch pass, assuming his wide out would cut the pattern off. Instead Hastings saw he could get deep and went long past the coverage. Brown merely read the former Terrapin's eyes realized he was throwing short and made the catch.

If one were to select a cornerback for MVP, why not Carnell Lake of the Steelers? Key tackles early in the contest allowed the Cowboys to score only field goals instead of touchdowns. On the second Dallas touchdown, Lake stopped Emmitt Smith short of the end zone and tackled him before the ball crossed plane of the goal line. It's not Lake's fault the side judge signaled touchdown anyway, that's why we should have instant replay.

• Had the Steelers won and I got to vote for the MVP my selection may well have been place kicker Norm Johnson. To have the confidence Cowher had in him to let him kick a 46-yard field goal, nearly out of his range, is a good thing to have in such a ball game, but then to come back on the ensuing kickoff attempting and succeeding on an on-side kick was the turning point until the second interception.

• Over the past few seasons, fans of professional football have pointed to the NFC Championship as the true Super Bowl, highlighted by the matchup of the Cowboys and 49ers to distinguish which team would romp in the actual event.

This year was a little different in a lot of respects for the NFL however. Yes, the Green Bay/Dallas tilt was probably the more anticipated of the two championship contests, but very little else could have happened in that game that would have made people forget about the other two teams that played a few hours earlier.

The Colts were not supposed to be playing for the AFC crown in the first place, they were the classic Cinderella story, while the Steelers cry for this season had been three more yards, in regards to the fourth and three play that failed in last year's title game.

To prove once again that the truth is stranger than fiction, after Captain Comeback, Jim Harbaugh threw a 44-yard bomb for a 16-13 lead, Pittsburgh had, you guessed it, fourth and three from the Indy 46. Once again, the season on the line for the Steelers and they came through with a six-yard completion to Yancey Thigpen.

With the completion, the drive was alive and the Steelers went on to win 20-16 even with the near-miracle catch by Bailey as time expired. Hats off to the back judge who was in the proper place

Turn to NFL, page 9

Minutewomen continue to win at home

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's basketball team cemented its undefeated home record as the Minutewomen are 6-0 in the William D. Mullins Center thus far this year. Massachusetts' most recent wins have come over St. Joseph's last Thursday and St. Bonaventure last Saturday. The Minutewomen now stand at 12-6 overall, 4-3 in the Atlantic-10.

Massachusetts 67, St. Joseph's 50

A quick look at the conference standings would lead one to believe that last week's match-up between the Minutewomen and the Hawks would be close. St. Joseph's was just ahead in the A-10 rankings (4-3), sitting in the No. 2 spot in the East Division; while the No. 3 Minutewomen (3-3) were looking to avenge an early season loss to the Hawks. Coach Joanie O'Brien's crew took to the court opening a 31-13 advantage at the half, and never looked back in the 67-50 victory over the struggling Hawks.

Once again, the powerful offensive tandem of senior captains Melissa Gurile and Octavia Thomas provided the Minutewomen with an aggressive front court, as the two combined for 22 of the team's 31 half time points. Shooting an impressive 56 percent (14-25) from the field and 67 percent (2-3) from outside the arc, the Minutewomen worked hard at both ends of the court holding the Hawks to a paltry 22 percent (5-22) from the field.

The second half brought much of the same as UMass ran up a 21 point lead. Complementing the leadership of Gurile and Thomas, juniors Beth Kuzmeski and Crystal Carroll did their share tallying 10 and nine points respectively.

Massachusetts 79, St. Bonaventure 65

Unlike the beating UMass dished out to St. Joseph's earlier in the week, the Minutewomen stumbled out of the blocks in the opening minutes with the Bonnies. The first half saw two teams going basket for basket, leap-frogging the score with two and three point advantages either way. Things started to turn around in the last 10 min-

Turn to WOMEN'S HOOP, page 8

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

UMass' Melissa Gurile helped lead the Minutewomen to two straight victories over the passed week.

Vitale picks UConn; St. Joe's gets cold shoulder from Cats'

Snow, celebration, strippers and much, much more. January has been an interesting month in college hoop...

• Tim Duncan can't escape Marcus Camby's shadow.

When Wake Forest travelled to Cameron Indoor Stadium for an ACC match-up with Duke on Jan. 10, Duncan played a less than stellar first half.

The less than hospitable Cameron Crazies proceeded to taunt Duncan with chants of, "Camby! Camby!"

Casey Kane on College Basketball

Meanwhile in Winston-Salem, Demon Deacons coach Dave Odom insists that Duncan will return to Wake for his senior season, stating that the star junior center told him so on several different occasions.

• Apparently the writer in Pasadena who keeps giving Connecticut a first place vote in the AP poll isn't the only person who thinks a UMass-UConn contest would result in a Husky victory. Dick Vitale has been quoted as saying that he would take UConn in a heads-up match between the neighboring powerhouses.

• The week of Jan. 7-14 was an interesting one for the sport of college basketball. Because of the Blizzard of '96, schools were forced to postpone 38 games. Perhaps the team with the worst fate that week was St. Joseph's.

The Hawks' week of horror on the schedule was turned into a week of havoc because of the snow. On Jan. 7, they were scheduled to play Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, but the

Turn to COLLEGE HOOP, page 8

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 71 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, February 1, 1996

Rivalry Renewed
Donta Bright and the Minutemen play Temple tonight in the year's first installment of the long-standing Atlantic-10 rivalry.

UVC to carry UMass-Temple game
Although ESPN is unavailable in the dorms, campus residents will be able to see tonight's game as UVC has picked up the satellite feed (See Sports, page 16).

Pigs in space
Spacehog just released their debut album on Sire records. See how the band fared in this weeks Traxs (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
Today will be bitterly cold with the high only reaching around 20. Snow will once again rear its ugly head on Friday with highs climbing to the mid-20s.

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 20 LOW: 5	HIGH: 25 LOW: 5	HIGH: 20 LOW: 5

Board of Trustees to vote on potential tuition roll-back

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

The Higher Education Coordinating Council (HECC) of Massachusetts voted Jan. 17 to mandate a five percent in- state tuition roll-back for state colleges and a 10 percent roll-back for community colleges for the 1996-97 academic year. However, HECC's relationship to the University of Massachusetts system, unlike other state schools, is "strictly advisory."

All other public colleges in Massachusetts will undergo the five percent roll-back. Whether or not UMass students get the same break is dependent upon a vote by the Board of Trustees in April. Unlike the other schools, which are more strongly connected to HECC, the University's Board of Trustees deals directly with the president of the University and the Department of Education.

"To be perfectly honest," said Vice Chairman of the Board of Trustees Robert Karam. "I think the Board of Trustees of the University is way ahead of HECC."

Karam explained that the Amherst campus had no tuition increase last year, and a one percent increase the year before. At the Lowell campus, there was no increase either year. The other state colleges experienced an average increase of seven percent over the last two years, Karam said.

Trustees have not recently increased tuition at UMass because it increased by 13 percent over four years, starting in 1991, according to Karam.

At that time there were substantial reductions in state funds over a three-year period when the "state of Massachusetts was in dire financial circumstances."

The trustees increased tuition "to keep the faculty in the classroom and to keep the heat going," when state funds were cut in the middle of the budget year, Karam said.

The factors

Student Trustee Dan Rivera said he believes increased state funding would be necessary if the five percent roll- back were passed at UMass.

"We need to have an understanding with the legislature... They've been good to us," Rivera said. "They'd have to be better to us."

A five percent roll-back at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst would mean a $111 decrease for undergraduates and a $139 decrease for graduates. However, it would cost the University a total of $8 to $9 million dollars, according to Karam.

The main difficulty is the federal fiscal year budget is done by July 1, about three months after the Board of Trustees must make a decision.

Rivera explained that the University and the state house have a symbiotic relationship.

"We cannot say we're going to do something fiscally until they okay it," he said.

A three percent cost of living increase may be another obstacle, according to Rivera.

Weighing the options

HECC made their roll-back recommendation because "all of higher education in Massachusetts is too expensive," according to Student Government Association (SGA) President Christine Lopes.

The committee's authority is limited to public colleges and universities. Although

Turn to TUITION, page 9

Off-campus discounts lure students

University Store falls prey to cheap prices at some local establishments

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

It is school supply shopping season at the University of Massachusetts, and while it may be convenient for students to shop on campus, many will be making the journey off campus in order to save money.

Campus prices on several school supply items are higher then those at other stores in the area. Prices on the same items sold at the University Store, Staples and K-Mart were compared the week of Jan. 22 through 28. The prices varied dramatically on basic items such as pens, paper, and notebooks.

A 10-pack of Bic pens at the University store cost $1.99 while the same package at K-Mart only cost $.87, and a 12- pack of the same brand of pens cost $.99 at Staples.

A basic one-subject spiral notebook on campus cost somewhere between $1.39 to $1.59, while a comparable notebook was $1.18 at K-Mart. Staples sold one-subject notebooks in multi packs of three which cost $3.49, so a single notebook would cost about $1.16.

Those two competitors also beat the University Store when it came to folders, envelopes, staplers, three ring binders and disks. Price differences on staples reached upwards of about $8.

"I buy mine at CVS because they have everything and are cheaper then the University Store," senior music major Jeff Fons said.

However, on campus, spiral notebooks with folders cost less at the University Store than at the Hadley K-Mart or Staples.

At the University Store a two-subject notebook with a folder cost

Turn to DISCOUNT page 9

RYAN TEZZIC/COLLEGIAN

Students flock to the University Store in the rush to buy school supplies for the spring semester.

Diabetics get support; learn tools for survival

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

Diabetics and their loved ones are welcome at the monthly Learning and Living Well with Diabetes Support Group at Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

The purpose of the group is to "facilitate patients toward healthier lives," said Cheryl Smith, who has had diabetes for 39 years and started the group.

"I live what I teach," she said. Members enjoy someone that has been there, she added.

Diabetic participants either have Juvenile Diabetes (Type I) or Adult Onset Diabetes (Type II).

Type I diabetes usually presents itself before the age of 40. This type occurs when the pancreas stops producing insulin, an enzyme that unlocks the entry of cells allowing glucose to enter cells in order to sustain cell function.

Type II diabetes usually occurs with older people and accompanied by weight gain prior to diagnosis. This type occurs when the body does not produce enough insulin to counteract sugar levels. It may also occur when insulin is not utilized properly by cells.

Learning about diabetes and living with the disease is the goal of the five step diabetic treatment program.

The "five cornerstones to the diabetic program" begin with limiting fats and sugars in the diet, according to Smith.

The second step is an exercise program followed in conjunction under the supervision of a physician.

The third cornerstone involves patients following a medication regimen depending on the specific type of diabetes.

Type I diabetes patients take injections of insulin. Type II diabetes patients change their diet and take pills that make the pancreas produce more insulin.

The next cornerstone deals with regularly monitoring blood glucose levels at home.

Education is the final step, a goal Smith's group tries to accomplish. She educates her group participants using visual materials and expert speakers to supply up-to-date information. Speakers have included Raymond Capers, who serves as vice president and chief operating officer of Joslin Diabetes Clinic in Boston. The manager of teaching nurses at the clinic, Laurinda Poirier, is also on the group's list of diabetes experts.

"I believe in staying up-to-date and accurate," Smith said.

Each support group meeting includes a presentation by a health care professional, interactive discussion and support between our participants. All presented topics are chosen by group members.

Smith stressed that patients' greatest success come when they learn how to read food labels.

Families and friends are encouraged to attend meetings with members in order to provide emotional support and reinforce what they learn in the support group. For example, family members aid in planning for a healthy diet in limiting saturated fats and sugars.

An average of 20 support group members regularly attend the monthly meetings. The majority of patients say benefits from the support group include learning tips from others, appreciating diabetes experts providing thorough information, and becoming more aware of diet habits. Patients stated how they no longer feel alone.

Smith designed the diabetic support program in June 1994, supplied with a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing and 24 years of experience working with diabetics, their families and other health care professionals.

Currently, Smith is a full-time student at the University of Massachusetts School of Nursing. She is concentrating on the Family Nursing Practitioner Program, in order to specialize in working with diabetes patients.

The diabetic support group meets every third Tuesday of every month from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Cooley Dickinson Hospital, 30 Locust Street, Northampton. Call (413) 582-2400 for further information.

Minuteman protestor pushes Weld presidency

By Lucy Brinicombe
Collegian Correspondent

Martin Jones, the sole member of the National Draft Committee, held his first official press conference yesterday, calling for Gov. William Weld to run for the Presidency.

Jones, a journalism major at the University of Massachusetts, was ridiculed by Weld when he protested the campus mascot, the Minuteman, in October 1993. A year later, Jones has recanted his opposition to the mascot and is attempting to convince Weld to run for the nation's highest office. Weld was unaware of the meeting.

In response to the National Draft Committee's proposal, Governor Weld reissued a statement he made earlier last year. While flattered that he should be considered to stand for the Presidency, he said in the press release that "having considered the sacrifices a campaign for President would require of my family life and role as Governor of Massachusetts, I concluded that 1996 is not the year for me."

Following the conference, Jones argued that President Clinton's reelection cannot be guaranteed due to the potential escalition of the Whitewater controversy, and the present Republican candidates were inadequate alternatives. Jones said Weld would represent a more moderate option at the ballot.

The four major Republican candidates, according to Jones, offer cause for concern. Jones predicts that Bob Dole will be forced to drop out of the race within the next few weeks, lacking popular support and exposed to criticism for being directly involved in negotiations over the federal budget.

This would leave Patrick Buchanan who wants to extinguish Affirmative Action, Steven Forbes who was quoted in yesterday's Boston Globe yesterday as saying pollution is "created by nature, not by smokestacks," and Sen. Phil Gramm, a "pro-life fanatic."

Jones acknowledged that Weld is not perfect. The student said he considered Weld to be a conservative but that "compared to Pat Buchanan, for example, he's a saint."

Wishing to highlight the transformation of the Republican Party since its emergence, Jones held the meeting 131 years after — to the day — the Republican driven 13th Amendment was successfully passed through the House of Representatives.

Since then, the Republican Party has moved further to the right under Barry Goldwater in the '60s and later under the Nixon and Reagan administrations. Weld has the potential to unify the party from a more moderate stance than its current extreme position, Jones said.

Jones said he believes his proposal was a realistic one. He explained that Weld who is campaigning for the Senate, already has financial support. He cited Weld's success at a political action committee dinner he recently held in Washington as evidence that continued financial aid is imminent.

Support from California Gov. Peter Wilson is also likely if Bob Dole was to drop out of the race, according to Jones, because Weld devoted much of his energies during Wilson's attempt to run for the presidency last year. Wilson's support could provide victory in California so Weld's absence from the first two primaries would be irrelevant.

"More than likely," Jones continued, Weld would win all five New England states "because the other challengers are so inadequate as candidates that they will begin to resemble the Three Stooges."

Even though Weld does not plan on running for the presidency, the National Draft Committee is aiming to encourage further participation in the presidential campaign, including the choice of candidates for both parties.

"We can no longer afford to sit at home, watch and wait for a candidate to be presented to us," Jones said. "We must be involved at every stage of the debate."

A second meeting will be held Feb. 2 at 7 p.m. in the East Room at Bangs Community Center in Amherst.

New Renaissance center soon to become a reality

By Roseann Cohen
Collegian Staff

Plans for the establishment of the long-awaited Center for Renaissance Studies were enthusiastically announced by University of Massachusetts Chancellor David Scott at a reception held at his home Monday evening.

The Center, which will take up to a year to complete, will house a 14,000-15,000 volume collection of Renaissance literature. It will be located on 650 East Pleasant St., the former home of Winthrop "Toby" and Janet Wilder Dakin.

The Center for Renaissance Studies will cultivate a great deal of multidisciplinary activities and programs in the region due to the relentless effort and vision of Arthur F. Kinney, Copeland Professor of Literary History at UMass, and his own personal contribution of 10,000 volumes.

The center will host international cultural exchanges and provide a large collection of literature where visiting faculty and scholars may stay and engage themselves in research. It will also be the home for the Five College Early Music Program and the Five College Early Modern Philosophy Program.

Renaissance scholars from a multitude of disciplines and backgrounds attended the reception and said they were thrilled that there would be a Renaissance Center in this region of the country.

Louis Martz, a retired English professor at Yale University, expressed his excitement for the center.

"It's a very good idea to have a regional renaissance center, considering there isn't anything like it in the east, except for the Folger Library in Washington D.C.," Martz said. "This will make a good addition to the whole east coast."

According to Kinney, the center would only be one of six in the entire country.

"The Center will highlight and bring national attention to the many resources that are located here," Kinney said.

The Center will attempt to bring various disciplines together, such as the different language departments,

Turn to RENAISSANCE page 9

Federal funding aids local cops

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

Sen. John Kerry announced that 17 Massachusetts cities and towns would receive a total of $1.25 million to hire and train new police officers. Amherst was awarded $18,587 through the federal funding and Northampton received an estimated $6,300.

The money, which was made available through the 1994 Senate Anti-Crime bill, will put 100,000 new police officers on streets nationwide. Last year, $5.5 million was awarded to over 50 Massachusetts communities.

"Officers and leaders in the Massachusetts law enforcement community tell me again and again that direct federal aid to communities who need it most will put more cops on the beat and help our police departments make better use of their resources," Kerry said.

Almost $200,000 was allotted to five police forces within Franklin and Hampshire Counties to purchase equipment and hire more officers in a continuing effort to increase community policing.

The Hampshire Sheriff and Williamsburg Police Departments will each receive $75,000 to hire officers made available through the Department of Justice's Universal Hiring Program, according to Rep. John Olver.

The Community Oriented Policing Service's (COPS) Making Officer Redeployment Effective (MORE) program will provide the Deerfield Police Department with nearly $24,615, the Orange Police Force with $17,306 and the Shelburne Police Force with $5,625.

"I have worked to secure this funding because I know that the COPS program is a real help in our communities," Olver said.

The police departments will receive the funding as a response to buying the equipment and hiring additional officers for the program, according to Olver.

"We need to build a new relationship between the cops and the community to prevent crime," Kerry said. "Cops are the first line of defense."

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day

Thursday, Feb. 1

Lecture– — Eric Reyes, a graduate student at Brown University, will speak on the topic: Asian Pacific Queer Space — Questions of Sexual and Racial Geographies. This is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The lecture will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. Call 545-4824 for information.

Music — Extremos presents "The 5 Spot Lounge" at Club Metro. The swing/R&B presentation with The O–Tones starts at 9:30 p.m. Club Metro is located on Pleasant St. in Northampton. For more information call 586–7348.

Friday, Feb. 2

Meeting — There will be a general interest meeting of the Bill Weld for President National Draft Committee at the Bangs Community Center, Lower Level East Room at 7 p.m. For more information call Martin at 546–6758.

Saturday, Feb. 3

Community — Hosaga of Springfield College will be sponsoring its 21st Annual PowWow from 1–10 p.m. at Dana Gym on the campus of Springfield College. There will be dancing in the afternoon and evening, and Native American vendors will be selling products and supplies. Admission is free. For more information contact Grant at (203) 655–4685 or Bill at 796–7147.

Dance — There will be a Scandinavian Dance Workshop from 6:30–8 p.m. at the South Amherst Munson Library. Arna Desser will teach the class. The cost is $5. For information call 549–1913.

Dance— There will be a English Country Dance tonight at 8 p.m. at the South Amherst Munson Library. The cost is $5, and Helen Davenport will lead the dances. For more information call 549–1913.

Sunday, Feb 4

Music — PAD goes Pops! The Performing Arts Division at UMass will presents a number of different theater and musical styles, including commercial, jazz, and folk styles. The free presentation will be at Bezanson Recital Hall at 3 p.m. For more information call Susan at the PAD at 545–0519.

Monday, Feb. 5

Music — There will be a variety of musical classes offered as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. In FAC 155 there will be Voice Repertoire with Nikki Stoia from 2:30 – 3:30 p.m., and African Cuban Drumming with Joe Platz from 7–9 p.m. In FAC 151 there will be a Piano class with Fannetta McLean. In the Old Chapel Seminar Room there will be a Voice class with Jane Hanson from 7–8 p.m. In Old Chapel 116 there will be a Musical Skills and Composition class with Sherry Buskey from 8–9 p.m. Call the Susan at the PAD, 545–0519, for more information.

Dance — There will be two dance classes offered as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. From 7–8 p.m. in the Old Chapel Auditorium there will be a Jazz class with Jenn Scanlon. Scanlon will also teach a Tap class in the same room from 8–9 p.m. Call Susan at 545–0519 for more information.

Tuesday, Feb. 6

Dance — As part of the Performing Art Division's Free Week, there will be several dance classes at the Old Chapel. In the Auditorium, from 7–8 p.m., there will be Advanced Ballet with Katie Magyar. From 8–9 p.m., there will be Modern Dance with Hillary Knowlton. In the Seminar Room, from 6:30–8 p.m., there will be Country Line Dancing with Sandy Anderson. Call 545–0519 for information.

Theater — There will be an Acting and Directing Workshop with Davor Diklich from 5:30–7:30 p.m. in Kennedy 508 in the Southwest Residential Area. This workshop is a part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. Call 545–0519 for more information.

Music– — There will be a Reggae Ensemble with Abdul Baki as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The presentation will be in FAC 155 from 7–9 p.m. Call 545–0519 for more information.

Music — There will be two guitar demonstrations with Kevin Collins in Emerson 112 of the Southwest Residential Area. Classical Guitar will be from 6–7 p.m. and Just for Fun Guitar will be from 7–8 p.m. This is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For more information call 545–0519.

Wednesday, Feb. 7

Theater — There will be an introductory acting class with Michelle Sullivan in the Old Chapel Seminar Room from 6:30–8 p.m. The class is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For information call 545–0519.

Dance — There will be a dance workshop with Tracy Vernon as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The class will be in the Old Chapel Auditorium, from noon–1 p.m. Call 545–0519 for information.

Theater — There will be a musical theater presentation with Dan Peterson in the Old Chapel Auditorium, from 7– 8:30 p.m. This is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For information call 545–0519.

Thursday, Feb. 8

Lecture — Dr. Beverly Greene, a certified Clinical Psychologist and Professor of Psychology at St. John's University, will speak on the topic: African–American Lesbians: Mental Health and Psycotherapy Issues. The lecture is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The event will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. For information call 545–4824.

Music — There will be an African Caribbean Drumming presentation as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The presentation will be led by Abdul Baki, and will be from 8–10 p.m. in FAC 157. For information call 545– 0519.

Music — Peter Orphanos will lead a guitar class in Emerson 112 of the Southwest Residential Area from 5:30–7 p.m. The presentation will be part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. Call 545–0519 for information.

Friday, Feb. 9

Music — There will be a Chamber Music presentation with Catalina Arrubla and Camilo Rojas. The presentation is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For more information call 545-0519.

Saturday, Feb. 10

Theater — There will be an Acting Monologue Workshop with John Fiscella, from 3–5 p.m. There is no charge, and the workshop will be held in the 4th floor Upstairs Studios above Fitzwilly's in downtown Northampton. Call 545–0519 for information.

Wednesday, Feb. 14

Movie — A Valentine's Day movie, The Incredibly True Story of Two Girls in Love, will be shown in the Stonewall Center. The Center will open at 7:00 p.m. and the movie will begin at 7:30 p.m. For information call 545–4824.

Thursday, Feb. 15

Lecture– — Selena Whang, a graduate student at NYU, will speak on the topic: Baby You Can Drive My Car — Yellow Cabs, Lesbians of Color and Interracial Third World Desire. This is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The lecture will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. Call 545– 4824 for information.

Saturday Feb. 17

Dance — The Northampton Community Music Center is sponsoring a Contra Dance at the Northeast American School of Dance, 4th Floor Ballroom, above Fitzwilly's in Northampton at 8:00 p.m. For information call 247–9210.

Thursday, Feb. 22

Lecture– — Martin Manalansan IV, a doctoral candidate at the University of Rochester, will speak on the topic: Transnationalism and Diaspora: Exploring New Terrains for Gay and Lesbian Studies in the Late 20th Century. This is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The lecture will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. Call 545–4824 for information.

Lecture — Pamela Sneed, an African–American lesbian writer, poet, and solo performer from New York, will be presenting Barricade Against Wind at 7:30 p.m. in the Hampden Theater. A $3–$5 sliding scale donation is requested. For more information call 545–4824.

When Appearance Counts, Count on Jonathan Reid for a great selection of men's suits and knowledgeable, professional service
Suit Sale, 40% Off or More!
Jonathan Reid
The Men's Store
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-5302

Hunan Garden Restaurant
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
NEW BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 p.m. $5.99
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Lunch Buffet Mon.-Sat. 11-3 $3.99
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 BELCHERTOWN RD. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Hadley Coin-Op Laundromat
206 Russell St./Rt.9
Open 7 Days 6am - 10pm
Top Loaders: $1.00 • Dbl Loaders: $1.50

Scott's LIQUORS
Welcome Back To Great Savings
Thank You For Your Patronage
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 9a.m.-11 p.m Tel: 549-2692.
Ruble Vodka $8.99 1.75 liter
Bud, Bud Light & Bud Ice 30 Packs $14.29 +dep
Busch & Busch Light 24-12oz. Cans $9.99 +dep
Red Dog & Ice House 24-16oz. Wide Mouths $13.79 +dep
* Get 7¢ For All Your Bottle & Can Returns
Rolling Rock Reg & Light 12 Pack Bottles $6.99 +dep
Boones Wines Mix & Match 5 for $9.99
Lowenbrau 12 Pack Bottles $6.99 +dep
Alize 750ml $11.99
* Full amount of return must be used towards purchase, good on any items in store. Ask about special pricing on special orders & quantity purchases
Tele-Check for your personal check
Check Out Our Other Great In Store Specials
6 University Drive
at Newmarket Center, Amherst
Now open Sundays 12-5 until 1996

Come Enjoy our all new delicious
BUFFET
Over 20 Different Items To Choose
Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner
Lunch Buffet • $5.95
Dinner Buffet • $8.95
Soups • Entrees • Appetizers
Regular Lunch and Dinner Menus Always Available • Full Liquor License
10% off PICK UP/TAKE OUT ORDERS
Cannot Combine With Other Offers • 1 Coupon Per Person
"Bringing The Tradition To You"
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Delivery thru Delivery Express 549-0077 • Route 9 & University Drive in Amherst
256-8800
OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM • FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM • SUN 12-10 PM

CLUB METRO AND EXTREMOS PRESENT
5 College Spotlight Nights
Thursday's & Friday's in February
$1 Admission with College ID
Thursday, February 8th
Mother
Holly
The Unband alternative rock
Thursday, February 15th
The Equalites
roots reggae
Every Friday: Deep House Dance Party with DJ Rick Nunez
CLUB METRO
492 Pleasant St.
Northampton, MA
(413) 582-9898
open until 2am

Restaurant hosts political talk

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — Incumbent Democrats, including Sen. John Kerry and Rep. John Olver, urged voters not to allow the Republican controlled Congress to eliminate social programs in the name of deficit reductions.

Kerry and Olver met this past Saturday at Bertucci's to raise support for their November elections. Olver, a former chemistry professor at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, is involved in a bitter race to regain his Western Massachusetts seat.

Democrats need to win an additional 25 seats to regain a majority in the House, said Olver. He suggested that if the Democrats win back at least 35 seats, then they can end the assault on principles for low income families.

Kerry addressed the crowd of college students and local Democratic supporters after arriving late due to a traffic jam caused by fans going to a UMass men's basketball game.

"The battle for a balanced budget is the most serious ideological confrontation between a vision and an anti–vision [for the United States] since I returned from Vietnam," Kerry said.

He charged the Reagan Administration with deliberately creating a massive federal deficit to reduce Medicaid, Medicare, the Environmental Protection Agency, higher education loans and Headstart.

A seven–year plan to balance the budget is possible, according to Kerry, who urged voters to allow it to be done in eight or nine years if that meant social programs could be saved.

Olver called for a coalition of voters to support Clinton in his budget fight with House Speaker Newt Gingrich. The Gingrich Republicans are taking "a step backwards" by eliminating health care for the poor, reducing the EPA by a third, cutting education funding, and in their assault on women's reproductive rights, Olver said.

Kerry attacked challenger Gov. William Weld for having many of the same positions as Gingrich. He said that Gingrich used the government shut–downs as a means to exclude any aspects of the budget that he didn't want.

"Both Olver and Kerry support higher education and it is important for UMass students to support them," said Student Government Association president Christine Lopes.

Creating more jobs, fairness for social programs, access to education and protecting the environment are the key elements for the election, according to Kerry. He said that the nation made a lot of progress in these principles during the 1960s and are in jeopardy of being lost. The need to save the "things that make life worth living" is fundamental, Kerry said.

Lanza returns to Lectures Committee

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Dr. Guy R. Lanza, director of the Environmental Sciences Program at the University of Massachusetts, has been appointed to a second three–year term on the Foundation for Microbiology Lectures Committee of the American Society for Microbiology.

As a member of the lectures committee Lanza assists in the selection of a list of distinguished teachers, researchers and scientists who are highly qualified within their fields and are able to speak at local and regional scientific meetings.

Lanza was appointed as Director of the Environmental Sciences Program approximately six months ago after a nationwide search.

"My new position is wonderful," Lanza said. "It is very challenging and I enjoy working with the students and faculty."

After receiving his doctorate in biology from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Lanza has been a teacher, researcher and administrator in the areas of environmental microbiology and toxicology.

He has served at several educational institutions including the Smithsonian Institution, New York University and the University of Texas at Dallas. He also has done research in Southeast Asia and Europe.

The Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Energy, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (in Paris) and the Department of Justice have all used Lanza as a consultant.

Presently Lanza and the Environmental Sciences Steering Committee are planning a graduate program for environmental sciences, new interdisciplinary undergraduate curriculum, and teaching laboratories.

Two other professors have also received accolades for their achievements in their respective fields.

Kenneth Brown, a professor of communications who has taught at the University since 1971, has been awarded the Donald H. Ecroyd Award for Outstanding Teaching in Higher Education from the National Speech Communication Association (SCA).

The award, which is given annually by the SCA, Recognizes and SCA member who is an example of superlative teaching in higher education, as evidenced by written recommendations of students, colleagues and campus administrators.

Another professor who has received an award is Ernest May, a professor of music.

May has been elected as a member of the Commission on Accreditation of the National Association of Schools of Music.

May assists other members of the commission in making ultimate decisions on the accreditation status of particular schools. He will serve on the commission until November 1998.

The following Collegian paid positions are available for the Spring 1996 semester:

Black Affairs Editor
Jewish Affairs Editor
Women's Issues Editor
Associate News Editor
Librarian
Assistant to the Managing Editor
Staff Artist

For a job description and an application, come down to the Collegian Offices at 113 Campus Center and ask to speak to either Marni E. Heifner, Managing Editor, or Matt Vautour, Editor–in–Chief or call 545–3500. Applicants interested in the Associate News Editor position should speak with Amy Paradysz, News Editor.

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Candidates for Nobel Prize diverse

OSLO, Norway (AP) — A Chinese dissident, a 100-year-old Dane, a jailed Israeli nuclear activist and Russian mothers against the war in Chechnya are among those nominated for the 1996 Nobel Peace Prize.

By Wednesday, the deadline for nominations, the awards committee had not finished counting the number of candidates for this year's award.

Norwegian media said U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke seemed a certain candidate for his peacemaking in Bosnia — but there was no confirmation on that report.

The secretive five-member committee never reveals the names of candidates and only discloses the total number, usually more than 100. The names of candidates are disclosed by those making the nominations.

Last year's Nobel Laureate, anti-nuclear activist Joseph Rotblat, has said the 1996 winner should be Mordechai Vanunu, imprisoned since 1986 by Israel for exposing its atomic weapons program.

Other known nominations include:

• Imprisoned Chinese dissident and human rights activist Wei Jingsheng;

• Russian human rights activist Sergei Kovalyov, and the Russian anti-war group Soldiers' Mothers;

• Turkey's Kurdish parliamentarian Leyla Zana;

• East Timor's Catholic Bishop Carlos Filipe Ximenes Belo;

• Ibrahim Rugova, president of the troubled Kosovo region of Serbia;

• Hermod Lannu, a 100-year-old Dane nominated for his lifelong efforts to promote international solidarity.

Likely, but not confirmed, candidates include President Clinton, former President Carter, The Salvation Army, Doctors without Borders, The Red Cross, and South African jurist Richard Goldstone for setting up a war crimes tribunal for the former Yugoslavia.

Peace prize nominations are accepted from members of national legislatures, some university professors, awards committee members, former laureates and a few organizations.

The $1 million award is presented in Oslo on Dec. 10, the anniversary of the death of Alfred Nobel, a Swede who invented dynamite and endowed the prize in his 1895 will.

The Nobel Prizes in literature, economics, physics, chemistry and physiology or medicine are awarded on the same day in Stockholm, Sweden.

Ever Think of writing for Sports?
Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

At Filene's and May Department Stores, we believe that our success is built upon having a premier organization composed of the finest talent in retailing.

We offer one of the most challenging and rewarding careers in business for individuals who are bright, motivated, and energetic. Learn more about our exciting Executive Training Program and talk with recent UMass alums at our upcoming events...

Open House
Tuesday, February 6th
10 am - 4 pm
School of Management
Faculty Lounge

Be sure to bring your resume!

FILENE'S
A DIVISION OF THE MAY DEPARTMENT STORES COMPANY

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring, "Busch & Light" 30-pks $11.99
Genuine Draft & Draft Light $9.49 cse/bots
Glen Ellen W. Zinfandel $3.99 750 ml
Hornsby's Ciders $4.99 6 pack
Vodka 80° $8.99 1.75 liter
Bacardi Rum $7.99 750 ml
"The 6/PK. Bonanza "Continues
Sam Adams- Lager, Ale, Porter, Stout, Scotch, & "D" Bock
Catamount- Porter, Amber, Gold & Pale Ale
Brooklyn- Lager & the Rich Brown Ale.
Harpoon- All flavors including I.P.A.
Smuttynose- Shoals Pale Ale, Old "Brown Dog" Ale
Mix/Match "two" 6/Pks . . . $9.95
All Beers Plus Deposit OPEN 9:00AM - 11:00PM VISA/MASTERCARD •Delivery Available•

DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded 1890

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Conley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Business Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Lisa M. Oliveri Guy Lesbian-Bisexual Issues Editor
Position Vacant Jewish Affairs Editor
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor
Amy Paradyse Conner News Editor
Emily Reily Photography Editor
Candice Fimanting Sports Editor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist

Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editor
Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Herm Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1903, the Weekly Collegian in 1914, and then the Pre-Words Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily except Sunday and has been a broadsheet publication since January, 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Brough–ha–ha

I own a car now.

Oh, I'm sorry. If you're having difficulty in hearing me, it is because I just started my car. Once I get the rotted muffler ripped out of it, you'll be able to hear me better. And if you wait for me to actually dump more money into the fossil to actually connect the exhaust pipe to the vehicle so I can repeat myself without the God-forsaken noise, you'll probably wait as long as this car has been in existence.

Anyway, with the car in my possession, those who know me are puzzled to hear that I have a car. There are the ones who will persist with the jokes, asking me if I have my license yet. OK, so I got my license after my freshman year of college. Yeah yeah, I got into an accident with my permit some five years ago.

Oh, and if you hear that I failed my permit test when I got my license after my first year of college, you unfortunately heard right (please remember you need a valid permit when getting your license, and the last time I had taken the permit test, it was done with a pencil and paper, not a computer like nowadays. However, in no way do I blame modern technology for my poor performance).

This is all true, and I am not the proudest of licensed drivers. But I live with it. I mean, bumming rides became a habit, so the license wasn't of major importance. It all came into proper perspective, though, when younger brothers and sisters of my friends were taunting me with their own licenses.

The license took a while for me to get, so buying a car inevitably moved at the same speed. Now I finally have a car, mainly to get to and from work. And, in the day–and–a– half I've been driving it, everything's gone pretty well.

So far, anyway.

It is a 1981 Oldsmobile Cutlass Brougham. That makes it 15 years old, so the name Oldsmobile is fitting. In fact, when this car went on the market, George Burns turned 15, George Washington could be found sharpening his wooden teeth and King George III allegedly drove the car in the heat of battle during the Revolutionary War.

Alright, so it's not that ancient, but George Burns was a ways from hitting the centennial, George Brett was coming off the year he hit a blistering .390 and I was just beginning to hit the books complete with character- like Curious George and the Man With the Yellow Hat.

Sometimes when I'm sitting in the car at a stop light, staring at the glowing "check engine" light while watching the smoke pour out of the back of my car, I wonder if this car was actually considered cool in 1981. As I listen out of the radio speakers that sound like there is a large heap of clothes covering them, I wonder if this boat, which made a buddy of mine ask if I was in the Yacht Club, was the car to drive. When I see brand–spanking new cars next to me, or cars that were made in this half of the century, I wonder if this car was ever new itself.

And Brougham? If the car and the crap I get for driving it isn't bad enough, they tack on Brougham to the end of the name. I don't know what it is or what it means. Hell, I don't even know how to pronounce it. Is it BROO–HAM? Is it BRUFF–HAM? No one knows. I just know that when someone dares to ask me what kind of car I have, it's the '81 Olds. That sounds cooler than the car really is, which is the whole point.

I'm being a little hard on the car (yeah, since it took me 15 minutes to get it started before getting it out of the driveway). Yet, the '81 Olds is older than dirt (or created at around the same time) and it doesn't purr like a kitten (more like a lion roaring after it's been hit by a car). But it's a means of transportation (a perfect one if you have earplugs, gas masks, a portable radio, a portable air bag, and a whole lot of patience). It gets me to work, and that's all I need (I've driven to work once so far).

It's my first car. I'm a college student with tiny increments of income. It's the best I can do, and right now, it's not all that bad.

Damn.

You could hear me say "damn" because my '81 Olds stalled. C'mon, baby, don't die on me.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist

Time to prioritize

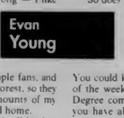
Go Go U Go U–Mass. Go UMass.

Whee–ee

Has anyone ever asked you where you go to school, and you say "I go to UMass" and they say "No way! Number One, huh?"

Well, if this is not a familiar scene to you, you must not meet too many people. Over break I got the "Hey, it must be pretty cool to go to the school with the number one team in the country" routine about 200 times.

Now, don't get me wrong — I like watching our team, and I'm proud of the fact that they are still undefeated. I might even go to a game this year. I have friends that are big Temple fans, and one that goes to Wake Forest, so they both endure healthy amounts of my bragging when we are all home.



But in a way, doesn't it all kind of make you sick? We all come from UMass, the school of people who are getting an OK education, but boy do they have a great basketball team! Maybe if we pump a lot of money into our athletic program, we can become nationally famous and glamorous and people will want to come to our school! Recognition! Fame! Glory! A National Title!

Wait a second... We're here for an education. We pay money to learn stuff. Don't we?

I can see it now.

"So, Mr. Young, you are applying to our company because heating and air conditioning installation is one of your main interests. Hmm... It says here on your resume that you went to UMass. Were you there when they won the title back in '96?"

"Um, yeah."

"Wow, that must have been great. What was that guy's name again, uh..."

"Marcus Camby, sir?"

"Yeah, yeah. That kid was something else!"

"So does this mean I got the job?"

"Heh heh. Yeah, we'll, uh, we'll call you back in a couple of days..."

Hey Coach Cal, you're doing a great job. You could kick Chaney's ass any day of the week, and I loved you in the Degree commercial. By the way, do you have about 50,000 extra bucks lying around, say, as an advance loan for me when I get out of school? Yunno, to help me get off the ground? Go UMass ... ?

Imagine what kind of reputation our school would have if we put the effort that goes into basketball into some of the different educational programs. We always hear about how highly ranked our such–and–such major is on a national poll taken by so–and–so and based on blah blah blah over the last ten years.

So my question is this. If the basketball team can be the best in the country, why can't our communications program be the best in the country? Or our English program? Have we all slightly misplaced our priorities here, or is it more important for me to learn what "wiping the glass" means than it is for me to learn how to write clearly? Doesn't it bother anyone out there that our basketball team is top–notch while one of the only really outstanding programs here is Computer Science? That is not meant to be a knock on Computer Science majors, but what happens when you aren't interested in computers? What happens when you are interested in film? Could someone please find me the requirements for the film major please? I seem to have misplaced them.

When people think Harvard, or Yale, or Princeton, or William and Mary or MIT, they think intelligence, ability and education. When they hear "I go to UMass" they think "Wow, I bet he's got a nice outside shot." Which way would you rather have people think of you?

Wouldn't it be nice if, just once, you said "I go to UMass" and someone said "No way! Isn't UMass where those scientists made a human ear grow on the back of an immuno–deficient laboratory mouse? Wow, I bet it must be cool when you see those guys around campus!"

Yeah, right. Like scientists will ever be able to do something like that.

Evan Young is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

HERE'S ONE FROM ABROAD, ZONK! MAHMOUD OF DAMASCUS WRITES "DO YOU HAVE TO CLEAR YOUR STRIPS WITH YOUR GOVERNMENT?"
WELL, MAHMOUD, WE'RE NOT REQUIRED TO BY LAW, BUT AS A MATTER OF COURTESY, WE ALWAYS E-MAIL ADVANCE PROOFS TO THE AUTHORITIES!
1-24
"THE STRIP IS THEN SCRUPULOUSLY CHECKED FOR ACCURACY, FAIRNESS AND GOOD TASTE."
HMM... A BIT OVER THE TOP...
"THEN — AND ONLY THEN..."
...DO WE PRINT WHATEVER WE DAMN WELL PLEASE!
I WONDER HOW IT WORKS IN HIS COUNTRY.
©'96 Trudeau

Opinion/Editorial

Pornucopia

Freedom of expression. Free speech. Free enterprise. All cherished concepts in this supposedly democratic, capitalistic society. But when it comes to pornography, where do society's sympathies ultimately lie — with the spirit of liberty or with the sinister gag of the censor?

Standing alongside Route 9 in Hadley, next to the bridge that spans the Connecticut River, is a store that specializes in pornographic videos, magazines and sexual toys. Along the walls and on racks throughout the small shop are displayed row upon row of rectangular videocassette cases, their titles and graphic illustrations clamoring for attention in the glaring fluorescent light.

In the far corner a man is browsing, trying to find a video to suit his taste. Over by the door, a woman comparison shops for vibrators. In one hand she holds one she considers adequate and inexpensive, in the other, an instrument twice as expensive but possibly twice as effective. She stands for a few minutes murmuring to herself as she makes her decision.

Wendy Darling

Behind the counter, a clerk goes about her duties, checking in the recently returned videos, calling on those who have overdues, arranging the display beneath the counter. Occasionally she rings in a purchase or signs up a new member. She is tired and looks forward to closing time, when she will lock up the store and drive back home. Then tomorrow, there would be another day on the job.

Out on the highway, cars and trucks speed by, a blur in the darkening light, the streetlights flashing briefly against their shiny sides as they pass. At the edge of the store's parking lot stands a sign with the name of the establishment written in clear, black letters, calling out for all eyes to see.

Above the store, on a long piece of plywood, hangs another sign, this one hand painted in black: "Hadley, Mass., or Waco, Texas?"

Drivers and passengers going past sometimes look at the sign and recall the battle that occurred this past fall. The town was aghast at the realization that it had unwittingly permitted such a store to open its doors to the public. Protesters gathered on the bridge to decry its existence and rail against pornography in general, their signs catching in the headlights of passing cars.

Then the other people, these shouting their support, thrusting their signs into the light as well.

The battle to close the store down, to drive it away, get it in trouble, was all to no avail. People went in and people went out, renting and buying and embracing those concepts we as Americans are supposed to hold most dear: Freedom of expression, free speech and free enterprise.

Back in the '80s there used to be stories told about people in Russia and Eastern Europe and the way they treated their cigarettes. Anything would do, no matter the brand, just as long as it burned — the things were so scarce, so hard to find. So smoke it slowly, savor it, no matter if the paper is falling off, if it's filled with tobacco or peat moss.

Look at those people, cried the big–hearted Americans across the ocean. Can't even have a good smoke over there! I'm telling you, that communism has just got to go. Haven't these people got any business sense? Free enterprise is the savior of this country, I say. Along with all the other freedoms, of course. Not like over there. Thank the Lord for the good ol' U.S. of A.

But pornography? No, siree, that's just wrong, immoral, evil, wretched! Pornography exploits human weakness, objectifies women, lines the pockets of wicked slave masters. It distorts reality and cheapens the passion of true love and proper sex (if such a thing exists). So we must banish it from the land, from the mail, from the telephones, from the Internet, from everywhere it lurks, before it's too late.

No matter the advertisements on TV, beseeching the masses to value money, superficial good looks and status above all else. Casting women as domestic servants, men as athletic gods and children as mindless, formless idiots. America is good, America is great, bow down to the great gods, our Congress, our military, the great corporations that make our jobs and put food in our mouths. Go out shopping and buy plastic toys, spew those gasoline fumes into the air, build your giant luxury homes right in the middle of that forest. Anything goes in this country, anything you want.

Anything but pornography.

Wendy Darling is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Professor shows disrespect

To the editor:

Professor of Philosophy Fred Feldman in his 1:00 Tuesday/Thursday class showed disrespect unbecoming a faculty [member] of this university. Sitting in his class, waiting for it to begin, I noticed a bell placed upon his table at the front of Mahar auditorium. Professor Feldman began his lecture by ringing the bell and saying, "School is in session now, kids!"

Later, in explaining how we should be good little students, he said, "I am going to treat you like adults." Are we supposed to be grateful of the generous favor? Upon hearing him question our knowledge of the alphabet so we could use his World Wide Web page, I decided that I was not going to be taught philosophy from a man who should both love wisdom and practice it, but seemingly does not.

Show some manners, professor, and apologize to both me and the rest of your class.

Andrew Novak
Sunderland

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e–mail account: letters@collumass.edu

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545 1491 and ask to speak to Bob Dunn.

Arts & Living

~ MUSIC ~

Michael returns to music scene

Possum Dixon's sophomore release, Star Maps, aims high

GEORGE MICHAEL
"Jesus To A Child"
DreamWorks

After his arduous battle with Sony records and vowing never to record until his contract was null, George Michael is back with his debut single from his new label, DreamWorks Records. Currently Michael is in the studio recording his third solo album slated for release later this year.

For now, fans will have to be content with this three song EP containing "Jesus To A Child" (which debuted on MTV Jan. 3), "One More Try (Live Gospel Version)" and "Older (Instrumental Version)." The first track was written by Michael, the second recorded in 1993 at the Concert of Hope in England and the third is to be included on the new full–length album.

"Jesus To A Child" is a dreamy ballad that could easily have been an unreleased track from Faith. It has a familiar slow methodical beat layered with soft strings and equally soft vocals flavored with an almost Latin flair. It's a love song reminiscent of "Kissing A Fool" and even some of Wham's sultry '80s swayers like "Careless Whisper." But this is what Michael is good at — adult contemporary music tailored for those who want to escape from the kids for a few days. It's nice sounding, no surprises, but carries the consistent sound his fans have come to like.

The live version of "One More Try" is a bouncier version of the original, which first appeared on Faith, and features lots of people screaming in the background much like Michael's remake of Queen's "Somebody To Love." It's a remake that sticks closely to the original and doesn't get ruined like so many artists do with new renditions (think Cindy Lauper's "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun"). This album is sure to do well on the charts. However, judging from the way this three–song tempter sounds, don't expect anything new and groundbreaking. B (Tara MK Connelly)

VARIOUS ARTISTS
Bio–Dome Soundtrack
Priority Records

Trax On Trax Off

When the previews first came out for this film, the first question on many a mind was why — why, or rather how — could Stephan Baldwin go from Usual Suspects to Bio– Dome? With Pauly Shore... the Weasel.

The second question concerns the soundtrack, which is strangely divided into two distinct sections. The first segment of the compilation contains early '80s tunes like "I Want Candy" by Bow Wow Wow. This is followed in succession by "World Destruction" by Time Zone and a cover of "Kids In America" (last heard in the box office hit Clueless).

An unexpected treat was a remix version of "Safety Dance" by Men Without Hats and Wax performing a cover of Bobby Freeman's "Do You Wanna Dance," popularized by punk staples The Ramones.

The second part of the disk is a hodgepodge of the label's up and coming artists such as Magnapop, Rugburns and Dance Hall Crashers. None are particularly memorable which is just perfect the movie isn't either. D (T.M.K.C.)

COURTESY ELI HERSHKO

Spacehog aims to please but falls flat with its debut album.

COURTESY NICK KNIGHT

George Michael is back and with a brand new label, DreamWorks.

SPACEHOG
Resident Alien
Sire

The latest in a succession of British imports are Spacehog, a quartet of bloody Brits hoping to make it big in America with their eclectic mix of '70s style songs, English style. Spacehog have become MTV's latest "buy or die" poster boys, getting heavy rotation from the "Buzz Bin." Their first track, "In The Meantime," is played daily and nightly ad nauseam, which doesn't necessarily make it a bad song. It is definitely listenable, smooth and palatable like processed cheese spread, but like processed cheese spread, it's no Camembert.

Like Everclear's "Santa Monica," Spacehog is a band that if you heard in high school you'd be like, "Hey this isn't too bad." However for the more learned listener, the results earn only a glance.

Many of the tracks are alterna–rock at its cookie cutter best. "Spacehog" is an interesting song that sound like it could be featured on an episode of "Pigs In Space." Its lyrics follow the same type of premise that the Presidents of the United States used for "Peaches" — the more stupid the lyrics the more the kids will love it.

"Starside" is interesting in the fact that it shows promise with its groovy '60s type feel, complete with feel–good harmonies. The intro to "Candyman" sounds a bit like the Beatles' "Strawberry Fields Forever," but the similarities could only be coincidental. The band may be thriving for a "glam rock" feel, but you can't help wonder if they were a little confused with the definition.

However, there are a few goodies in the bag. "Space Is The Place" is catchy and has a great riff that keeps your feet tapping. "Cruel To be Kind" is an acoustical assortment of vocals and guitars. The album has potential and so does the band. They just have to develop it more. C (Karb Koew Panon) Spacehog will be playing Pearl Street Feb. 6.

POSSUM DIXON
Star Maps
Interscope

Possum Dixon is a pop band to the core, pumping out catchy and interesting tunes with lyrics and instrumentation to match. This is their sophomore LP but unlike most artists who go through a creative slump come numero deux, Possum Dixon only gets better.

The four members mix bouncy sounds and smart–alec lyrics with a touch of off–beatness that makes for a unique sound all their own. "In Her Disco" has an excellent meshing of vocal and guitar, layered over snazzy percussion, that keeps the song in your head long after the first listen. They seem to be sticking to the same format that they engineered on their self–titled debut, but thankfully for them, it works. "Radio Comets," "Personals" and "Reds" follow the same recipe for success, and the intro to "Emergency's About To End" is incredible.

Possum Dixon is unique in that they sound like themselves and no one else. Upfront vocals, acoustic guitars and by–the– book chords are a refreshing vacation from the cluttered sound "alterna–rock" music has seemed to take on. The group played Pearl Street last semester and they sound just as good live, if not better — a definite bonus. A (K.K.P.)

The Daily Collegian
We fill the void
in your existence.

Ever Think of writing for Sports?
Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

HOT SIZZLIN SALES TO START THE WINTER THAW
Jan. 31st – Feb. 3rd
Regency Hairstylists
Downtown Amherst • 253-9320

Lincoln Real Estate
Apartment Rentals
25 N. Pleasant St.
253-7879

We Deliver
Kai Chi
To UMass
Chinese-American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm
Fri-Sat 12-3 am
Enjoy HALF PRICE APPETIZERS
9 pm - Close • 7 Days a Week
31 Selections!
Ex. Pu Pu (for 2) Reg. $11.10 Now $5.99
No other promos apply • EAT IN ONLY

PEDAL FOR THE PLANET
Coast to Coast with BIKE-AID '96
BIKE-AID IS...
• Physical Challenge • Community Spirit
• Global Vision • Fundraising
• National Service • Education
ROUTES AVAILABLE for 10, 4 or 2 weeks from Seattle, WA; Portland, OR; San Francisco, CA; Montreal, Canada or Chapel Hill, NC. Rides start in June, July and August. All routes end together in August in Washington, DC.
Space is limited, call now for an incredible summer!
BIKE AID
For more information, contact:
Bike-Aid '96
1-800-RIDE-808
333 Valencia Street, Suite 330
San Francisco CA 94103
415-431-4480
email: odn@igc.org
http://www.igc.apc.org/odn/

4 SEASONS
RTE. 9 HADLEY 584-8174
Monday- Saturday 9:00am-11:00pm
Not Responsible for typos • Visa, Mastercard & Discover accepted
DISCOUNT LIQUORS
• BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

SAM ADAMS 24-12 oz. Bott $18.99 + dep.	HARPOON I.P.A. & Ale/24-12 oz. Bott. $16.99 + dep.	SARNAC 24-12 oz. Bott $16.99 + dep.	MOOSEHEAD 24-12 oz. Bott $13.99 + dep.	MICHELOB & LT. 18 pks. $9.99 + dep.	BEERBALLS! BUD, BUD LT, & KILLIANS $22.99 + DEP	KEGS!!! NATURAL LT. ..... 1/2 BBL $34.99 + DEP
ICEHOUSE & RED DOG Cs-16 oz. Bott $13.99 + dep.	BUSCH & LT. 30 pks. $11.99 + dep.	BUD DRY 24-12 oz. Bott $9.99 + dep.	NATURAL LT. 24-12 oz. Cans $8.49 + dep.	HAMM'S 24-12 oz. Cans $7.29 + dep.		BUSCH ..... 1/2 BBL $38.99 + DEP
ABSOLUT VODKA $20.99 1.75L	SOUTHERN COMFORT $7.99 750 ml	4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L	JIM BEAM $7.99 750 ml	TEQUILA $6.99 1.0L	ICE!! 10 lbs. $1.99 50 lbs. $5.99 100 lbs. $9.99 584-8174 WE DELIVER! SALE ENDS 2/8/96	BUD, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LT, ICE HOUSE, RED DOG, LITE, ROLLING ROCK, BUD ICE, M.G.D., LITE ICE, MICHELOB BOCK. $41.99 + DEP KEG OF THE WEEK! BUD LT. $39.99 + DEP
MEZZA CORONA Merlot & Pinot Grigio $6.49 750 ml	ANTINORI Santo Chistina $6.49 750 ml	RENE JUNOT $4.99 1.5L	CARLO ROSSI $6.99 4.0L	BOLLA $7.99 1.5L

SKI
Collegiate Ski Weeks
"SpringBreak 96"
Mont Sutton
Canada
only $229
◆◆ 5 DAY LIFT TICKET
55 RUNS, 8 GLADES, 9 LIFTS
2,125 FT VERT 2150 SNOWMAKING
◆◆ 5 NIGHTS LODGING
(MOUNTAINSIDE CONDOS, FULL KITCHEN, FIREPLACE & LOFTS)
◆◆ 5 NIGHTS COLLEGE PARTIES
BIKE TO HAPPY HOUR EVERY DAY, BEERS, DJ'S, CONTESTS
GROUP LEADER DISCOUNTS CALL FOR INFO
CALL SKI & SAND TRAVEL, INC.
1-800-848-9545

Amos' latest release nondescript & boring

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

BOYS FOR PELE
Tori Amos
Atlantic

Trying to describe Tori Amos' music can sometimes be a little like attempting to describe a color — one just really has to experience it to know what it's all about. With a mix of folk, classical, rock and even some drum programming and loops thrown in, the listener is taken on a ride that can start at a classical performance and end up at the carnival.

Amos has had at least an indirect impact on the music world and an immeasurable one on her fans since her debut, Little Earthquakes, in 1991. Showcasing a brutal honesty coupled with infectious piano hooks, Earthquakes became a favorite among college students and fans of good songwriting alike.

Her follow-up, Under the Pink, featured more of the same qualities, but utilized programming and samples (and even featured an appearance by programming guru Trent Reznor) that lifted songs like "God" and "Cornflake Girl" into the national spotlight and put her on the verge of alterna-stardom.

Under the Pink was almost two years ago, and now Amos has returned to a music industry that no longer has just Whitney Houston and Mariah Carey representing female artists. The gates holding women to relative cult status in the early '90s (which Amos arguably helped to knock down) have now flooded over with women making their mark on the music biz. It seems that women are fronting more bands these days than men, and it is into this world that Amos has brought forth her third effort, Boys for Pele, to fend for itself.

With Pele, Amos has shifted instrumentation directions again, this time favoring the harpsichord over all else, but also using some horns, bagpipes and even an entire orchestra on one track. However the unusual instrument selection cannot hide the inevitable — Boys for Pele is a mediocre effort when placed up against her previous releases.

The drum programming, (or any drums for that matter) that were so prevalent on Under the Pink are scarcely present on this 18 track album. When they are featured, as on "Caught a Light Sneeze" and "Little Amsterdam," Amos' songwriting seems to regain a cohesion which is missing on a lot of other songs.

Tracks like "Marianne," "Hey Jupiter" and "Twinkle" rely too heavily on floating piano arpeggios and floating vocals, making distinguishable melodies difficult to latch onto. "Mr. Zebra" clocks in at about one minute, (as do two others) and is one of the most memorable songs, reminiscent of Little Earthquakes' "Happy Phantom" and Queen's "Killer Queen" rolled into one.

Imagery touching on everything from prostitution to religion is thrown around with an abandon not heard before from Amos. Lyrics have a tendency to come off sounding forced, and at times perhaps there just to fill space or rhyme.

Boys for Pele is one of those albums that you'll like if you like Tori Amos just because of who she is, but if you would like a good representation of what she is capable of, her previous releases are more highly recommended. C

COURTESY CINDY PALMANO

Tori Amos misses the beat with latest release.

Latest novel examines girl's battle with anorexia

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

STEPHANIE GRANT
The Passion of Alice
Houghton Mifflin

Stephanie Grant provides readers with a chilling glance into the mind and 5 foot 11 inch, 85 pound body of a recovering anorexic in her latest novel, The Passion of Alice.

The story of Alice Forrester, though fictitious, is frighteningly realistic. After suffering heart failure, Alice enters the Seaview Hospital where she and other women with various eating disorders undergo treatment to cure their diseases.

Narrated by the sarcastic voice of Alice, the serious situations are often lightened, but the effect is more macabre than amusing. Alice clearly enjoys wallowing in her illness at the start of the novel. Not eating has become a way of life for her. Sneaky maneuvers like hiding food in her pants to later give to a bulimic friend in the bathroom stall is routine.

As the story progresses, so does Alice's psychological improvement. What is ironic, however, is that the therapists and doctors that try to inspire and heal Alice do nothing for her anorexia. Discovering her hidden passions and forming a close bond with a bulimic girl named Maeve are the keys to her success.

Introspective and intelligent, Alice is a fascinating character to dissect. Although her frame is slender, her mind is abound with knowledge as she analyzes her own psychological problems. Through her memories and intricate thoughts, we discover the source of her illness along with her.

Other colorful characters are carefully woven into Alice's tale and they provide additional perspectives on her personality. Gwen, a pale, fair-haired anorexic, brings the startling reality of anorexia's deadly ends closer to Alice, and staff physician Dr. Paul represents the evil that can slip into the hospital system.

Grant has crafted a powerful and personal story about one girl's battle with anorexia and struggle with her identity. Thoroughly researched, every detail and image appears true to life. Though most of the tale is devastating, the overall feeling of the novel is both uplifting and inspiring. A

The Collegian
Life wouldn't be the same without us.

UMass' Best!

The Collegian Poll Rules:

1. Ballots must be dropped of at The Collegian office in the basement of the Campus Center or mailed to 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003.
2. No Photocopied ballots.
3. One ballot per person
4. Ballots must be filled out with reasonable completeness. Ballots with less than half of the blanks filled will be disqualified.
5. Independent Ballot Referees are hired
6. All Ballots due by Wednesday, February 28, 1996.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian's UMass' Best is intended to be a fair, good natured contest among the local businesses. We encourage all of our readers to experience all of our area's businesses.

Ballot

Name: _____
Address: _____
Phone #: _____
S.S. # _____

I. UMass Grub
1. Best Pizza Place _____
2. Best Sub Shop _____
3. Best Place to Go on a Date _____
4. Best Place to Eat if Your Parents are Paying _____
5. Best Ice Cream Shop _____
6. Best Chinese Restaurant _____
7. Best Italian Food _____
8. Best Breakfast (Hangover Cure) _____
9. Best Bagel Shop _____
10. Best Vegetarian Place _____
11. Best Northampton Restaurant _____
12. Best Candy Store _____

II. UMass Drink
1. Best Liquor Store _____
2. Best Coffee Shop _____
3. Best Place to Start the Night Out _____
4. Best Place to Finish the Night Out _____
5. Best Shot _____
6. Best Beer _____
7. Best Drinking Game _____
8. Best Bartender (Note Which Bar?) _____
9. Best Northampton Bar _____

III. Shops & Services
1. Best Grocery Store _____
2. Best Florist _____
3. Best Clothing Store _____
4. Best Gas Station _____
5. Best Bike Shop _____
6. Best Bookstore _____
7. Best Hair Salon _____
8. Best Place to Work Out _____
9. Best Tanning Salon _____
10. Best Place to Buy Condoms _____
11. Best Northampton Nik Nak Shop _____

IV. Arts & Entertainment
1. Best Place to Hear Live Music _____
2. Best Local Band _____
3. Best Radio Station _____
4. Best Music Store _____
5. Best Place to Play Pool _____
6. Best Cheap Date _____
7. Best Video Store _____
8. Best Movie _____
9. Best TV Show _____

V. Unique UMass' Best
1. Best Thing About UMass _____
2. Best Apartment Complex _____
3. Best Class _____
4. Best Reason to Miss Class _____
5. Best Reason to Hand in a Paper Late _____
6. Best Professor _____
7. Best Place to Read The Collegian _____
8. Best Excuse for Not Graduating in 4 Years _____
9. Best Place to Study _____
10. Best College Newspaper _____

$5 Gift Certificates to Sweeties of Northampton for the first 50 completed ballots!

All completed surveys will be entered in a drawing to win one of four dinners for two at your favorite restaurant. Winners Drawn March 25, 1996

Northampton to host annual a capella festival

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

For all a cappella fans out there, brace yourself as the A Capella Fest '96: 100% Pure and Unplugged comes to Northampton this weekend. Saturday's performance, Wide World of A Cappella, will feature four of the top national acts while Sunday's Silver Chord Bowl brings several of the most talented collegiate acts together from the Northeast.

Headlining Saturday's showcase will be the popular California quartet, The Bobs who have entertained audiences around the world with their unique mixture of a cappella, theater, comedy, performance art and much more. Since forming 15 years ago, the band has released several acclaimed albums on Rounder Records and have been nominated for a Grammy.

The Persuasions bring their legendary act to Northampton and will feature their New York street sound that is "smooth-as-a-cool breeze harmonizing, sans instrumentation, that filled the night air like smoke rings under a street-lamp." For the last 30 years the Persuasions have been singing doo-wop, rhythm and blues, gospel as well as covering of popular artists such as Paul Simon and Willie Dixon.

Performing before the Persuasions will be Sons and Lovers, featuring Elliot Pilshaw of the Flirtations. This four piece gay a cappella group has quickly risen from singing in subway stations in 1993 to opening the Stonewall 25 Rally in Central Park in front of 80,000 fans.

Opening the fine night of music are the Trembles, an all female trio from New York City. Recently at the Harmony Sweepstakes in their hometown, they won the "Top Female A Cappella Group" for 1995. Their concert pieces range from pre-World War II tunes through popular favorites of more recent times, as well as original material.

If one evening of a cappella is not enough for you, Sunday afternoon's Silver Chord Bowl will spotlight the future of a cappella as seven collegiate vocal groups go head to head in a battle of the bands. Members of the Bobs, the Persuasions, Sons and Lovers and the Trembles will serve as the judges.

Highlights of the Silver Chord Bowl will include Yale University's Whim 'n' Rhythm, an acclaimed all-female group and the University of Pennsylvania's Inspiration, an African-American group. Acts from Brown University, Smith College, Amherst College, Hampshire College and Mount Holyoke College are also performing.

Tickets for The Wide World of A Cappella are $15.50 general admission and $12.50 for students in advance, $18.00 at the door for everyone. Tickets for the Silver Chord Bowl are $5.00 per person in advance, $7.00 at the door. Tickets are available through the Northampton Box Office, Thorne's Market in Northampton and For The Record in Amherst.

JOSEPH A. ROSEN

The Persuasions will perform at the John M. Greene Hall this Saturday night with the Bobs

PBS program brings 'F.U.' saga to a dramatic finale

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — Cut, the director called, bringing an end to the last scene in the last chapter of Francis Urquhart, British politician and public menace extraordinaire.

"I looked up and tears were pouring down my dresser's face," recounts actor Ian Richardson. "I said, 'What's the matter with you?'"

"It's so sad. F.U. is gone," wailed the assistant. Good riddance, says Richardson, who brought Urquhart — aptly if not fondly known as F.U. — to alarming life in the PBS "Masterpiece Theatre" drama "House of Cards" and its sequel, "To Play the King."

"The Final Cut" (written by Andrew Davies and airing 9-11 p.m. EST Sunday and Monday) is Prime Minister Urquhart's own version of a Nixonian "Final Days." The past is catching up, and fast. He's fending off challenges that could oust him before he has broken Margaret Thatcher's record of 11 1/2 years in office. He is scheming to ensure his place in history by brokering an international peace deal.

And he is helping nurture his loving, steely wife Elizabeth's (Diane Fletcher) own corrupt deal to feather their retirement nest.

All this while neatly mixing a diplomat's dignity and a mobster's morals.

Let others sing his praises. Richardson sums up the character as "an absolute monster, a murderous man."

Oh, but how we love to hate him.

As Urquhart totters at the top, on scaffolding constructed of more than one corpse, he draws us in with beguiling confidences aimed directly at the audience, his co-conspirator.

"How do you feel about me now? Like a force of nature, perhaps," he muses at one point. "I've been here so long now that, love me or hate me, it's hard for you to imagine anyone else in my place. Isn't it?"

Previous behavior, such as tossing an irksome young journalist off a rooftop, was somewhat off-putting. But there is a hypnotic allure when evil is witty, impeccably well-mannered — and even has a twinkle in its eye.

On reflection, Richardson says, Urquhart had his good points.

"It seems strange to say this but he was a great Britisher, a patriot, a great believer in Britain," the actor says. "He had a passionate desire to see Britain great again."

But it was time for him to go. In fact, Richardson only agreed to the third outing after the producers guaranteed Urquhart would make a grand exit. One way or another.

Richardson's elegant portrayal gained widespread recognition for the classically trained actor and won Britain's top acting honor.

COURTESY TONEE HARBERT

Mesmerizing music

Carol Noonan will be playing the Iron Horse, Fri. Feb. 2 at 7 p.m. Tickets are $8 adv. and $10 door. Noonan is touring in support of her solo album Absolutions and was a former member of the band Knots and Crosses. For tickets call the Northampton Box Office at 586-8686.

"Hey there cowboy, how would ya like to come over to my ranch tonight. Just you me and your copy of the Daily Collegian."

The Daily Collegian
because you should always be prepared

SAVE SOME DOSEY-DOUGH, Pardner!

EVERY THURSDAY at THE PUB in AMHERST
Whatche' waitin' ter! Hopelong over to The Pub on East Pleasant Street 'cause there's a Wild West Fest every Thursday night. Round up your geng and save big! We'll take 25% OFF your bill on Burgers & Chicken Sandwiches...Yee Hah!

MENTAL HEALTH GROUPS
SPRING '96

SELF EXPLORATION GROUP -- Short Term Process Therapy Groups
Group I - Thursday, 3:45-5 P.M. Begins in mid-February
Group II - Monday, 12:30-2 P.M. Begins in late March

WOMEN'S HEALTH GROUP -- Exploring the Mind-Body Connection
Monday, 3:30-5 P.M.

ADULT CHILDREN OF DYSFUNCTIONAL FAMILIES/NIÑOS ADULTOS DE FAMILIAS DISFUNCIONALES -- in Spanish -- Tuesday, 9-10:30 A.M.

INCREASING SELF-ESTEEM & BUILDING SELF CONFIDENCE
Tuesday, 3:45-5 P.M.

LETTING GO AND MOVING ON -- A Break-up Support Group
Tuesday, 6-7:30 P.M.

WOMEN'S GROUP FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN -- Tuesday, 12:45-2:15 P.M.

EXPLORING GAY AND LESBIAN RELATIONSHIPS
How To Get In, How To Stay In, How To Get Out -- Wednesday, 3:30-5 P.M.

LONG TERM THERAPY GROUP FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS, OLDER STUDENTS, AND UMASS STAFF -- Thursday, 3:30-5 P.M.

Groups begin in early to mid-February. All groups require a pre-group interview. Groups are open to students and to Kaiser members whose site is UMS. For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337 or drop by 127 Hills North, M-F, 8-5.

EVEN THE GROUNDHOG WILL COME OUT FOR THESE SPECIALS

LIQUORS 44 Don't Drink and Drive

BEERS	WINES	LIQUORS
BECKS BEER CASE OF 2-12 PK BOTTLES 17.49 + DEP	INGLENOOK WINES 5 LT BAG IN A BOX CHABLIS, BLUSH, RHINE, WHITE GRENACHE 7.99	BLACK VELVET CANADIAN WHISKEY 1.75LT 12.49
J.W. DUNDEE HONEY BROWN LAGER 12 PK BOTTLES 7.49 + DEP	SEBASTIANI PROPRIETORS WHITE ZINFANDEL 1.5 LT 5.49	COSSACK VODKA 1.75LT SALE $8.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $6.99
GENUINE DRAFT REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES 9.49 + DEP	BOONES WINE ALL FLAVORS 750ML 1.99	SEAGRAM'S 7 BLENDED WHISKEY 1.75LT SALE $15.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$4.00 FINAL COST $7.99
NATURAL LIGHT CASE OF 2-12 PK. CANS 8.99 + DEP	COLUMBIA CREST MERLOT 750ML 8.99	GILBEY'S GIN 1.75LT SALE $11.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $8.49
GUINNESS STOUT 6 PK BOTTLES 6.49 + DEP	RIUNITE WINES ALL FLAVORS 1.5LT 5.99	JUAREZ TEQUILA SILVER & GOLD 1.0LT 6.99
PETE'S WICKED ALE FLAVORS 6 PK BOTTLES 4.99 + DEP	LINDEMANS CAWARRA SEMILLON CHARDONNAY, SHIRAZ CABERNET 1.5LT 8.49	TEN HIGH BOURBON 1.75LT SALE $11.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $8.49
½ KEGS BUD, BUD LT, ICE, LITE, ICEHOUSE, RED DOG, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LT, LOWENBRAU 39.99 + DEP	KAHLUA COMBOS MILKQUAKE, MUDSLIDE, ALMOND MOO MOO 4 PK. 4.49	CHIVAS REGAL SCOTCH 750ML 16.99

We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption

AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555

SALE PRICES THURS. 2/1/95 THRU WEDS. 2/7/95

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Sidewalk Sale.
(indoors, of course)
Biggest Shoe Sale Ever.
Only 3 days left.
ZAYRE
Downtown Amherst

Breast cancer research aims to bury Cold War rivalry

By Diane Duston
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Russia and the United States will be allies in the fight against breast cancer, officials from both nations said Wednesday as they outlined plans to use Cold War spying technology to find tiny lumps in women's breasts.

The initiative spearheaded by Health and Human Services Secreary Donna Shalala is one of several efforts between the two countries to strengthen friendship now that the Cold War is over.

"It is evidence that the heads of our states put great stress on the health of the populations of our countries," said Russian Health Minister Alexander Tsaregorodtsev, who appeared at a news conference with Shalala.

"The point is to show Russians that they aren't the only ones converting military technology to peacetime needs," said Shalala.

It's also a way to introduce American products into the Russian economy, she said.

The announcement coincided with the semiannual meeting of Vice President Al Gore and Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin who met up with reporters on Wednesday at the legendary Katz's Delicatessen in New York City.

Gore chowed down on pastrami and corned beef on rye — with mustard, no mayonnaise — and a side of fries. Chernomyrdin sampled half his hot dog and sauerkraut, but barely touched his combination sandwich.

Between bites, Gore said that recently proposed loans to Moscow would be good for both countries, opening Russian markets to the United States.

Other areas of US-Russian cooperation revealed by U.S. officials on Wednesday:

• Two additional shuttle dockings with Russia's aging space station Mir at no extra charge.

"NASA has a $400 million contract with the Russian space agency for the seven original shuttle trips to Mir and early work involving the international space station," said NASA's acting space flight chief Wilbur Trafton.

Shuttle Discovery will transport cargo to Mir twice in 1998, helping the Russians extend the lifetime of their station.

• An exchange of maps and diagrams of military bases derived from classified intelligence data, mainly from satellites.

The Americans gave the Russians diagrams of Yeysk Air Base on the Sea of Azov, and the Russians gave the Americans diagrams of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. The information is supposed to help each country learn more about the extent of petrochemical contamination on those bases.

• A $1 billion Export-Import Bank loan for the Russian airline Aeroflot to buy jet engines and electronic components from Pratt & Whitney and Rockwell International for construction of a fleet of new planes to replace Aeroflot's aging inventory.

• An agreement to allow U.S. aircraft manufacturers into the Russian market. The Russian fleet badly needs modernizing and the potential demand is very large, said a senior Clinton administration official.

As many as 1,600 aircraft will be needed in the next 20 years, including 250 civilian aircraft over the next five years.

The breast cancer project, which HHS announced last year had begun in the United States, uses computer technology supplied by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Sri Lanka terrorist attack deemed worst in history of twelve year civil war

By Niresh Eliatamby
Associated Press

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — In one of the worst attacks in Sri Lanka's 12-year civil war, a truck packed with explosives rammed into the central bank Wednesday, igniting towering fires in the business and tourist district. At least 53 people died, including the driver, and 1,400 were wounded.

Authorities blamed the attack and a fireball caused by a rocket-propelled grenade moments earlier on the Tamil Tiger rebels, whose 12-year armed campaign for an independent homeland has killed nearly 40,000 people. There were no immediate claims of responsibility.

In the chaos after the midday attack, dozens of people were trapped atop burning buildings waving for help. Helicopter gunships bristling with machine guns tried to pluck survivors from rooftops but were repelled by the heat. Many were rescued by ladders; those on the streets were taken away in public buses and private cars.

As darkness fell, soldiers armed with assault rifles patrolled the center of Colombo, and drizzling rain forced rescuers to scale back their hunt through unsteady buildings for bodies and survivors.

The director of the National Hospital's trauma unit, Hector Weerasinghe, told The Associated Press that 53 people died. Another 1,060 injured people were admitted to two hospitals, 100 in critical condition. Scores of people released after treatment raised the estimated number of injured to 1,400.

Most of the dead and wounded were in the Central Bank building, where Sri Lanka's gold reserves are held and the country's financial policy is made.

Bank guard Prasanna Wijewardhana said a blue truck with three men drove into the security barricade outside the bank. Two men leaped out and started firing automatic weapons.

Some guards returned fire, but many of them fled, Wijewardhana said. The attackers "had the advantage of surprise," he said.

During the gunfire, a rocket-propelled grenade landed in front of a nearby office building, gouging a crater and shattering windows at The Associated Press office 100 yards away.

Police said the driver of the truck died in the explosion. Hours later, they arrested two others seen fleeing with automatic rifles about a mile from the blast.

The bank building burst into flames, which spread to a half-dozen other buildings. The fires raged for much of the day and thick black smoke blanketed the city, hampering rescue efforts.

The explosion caused the first two floors of the 10-story Central Bank to collapse. The building is a few hundred yards from President Chandrika Kumaratunga's office, the naval headquarters and other government buildings.

The blasts shattered the windows of the 39-story twin-tower World Trade Center, which was still under construction and only partially occupied. The Intercontinental Hotel, one of several luxury hotels in the area, was evacuated. City streets were an impenetrable mass of twisted metal, fallen bricks and wrecked office furniture.

Business executive H.D. Peiris was on the street when the blast occurred. "We saw cars burning. I ran as far as possible from the area. As I was running, there was an old woman whose blouse was stained with blood," he said. "There were at least 12 or 13 people lying dead on the street."

Amid the debris outside the bank, police found a small card printed with the message: "This vehicle is carrying 4,000 kilograms (8,800 pounds) of explosives. If you try to stop us, we will blow it up."

Police believe the attackers carried the card, printed in English and Sri Lanka's majority and minority languages, Sinhalese and Tamil. They maintained the bomb weighed only 110 to 220 pounds.

Officials blamed Tamil Tiger rebels, and claimed they were trying to unhinge a government plan to give the Tamil minority greater regional autonomy and end the war. There was no immediate statement from the Tigers, who rarely claim responsibility for their attacks.

Serb–held section of Sarajevo rejoins city

By George Jahn
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Like surgeons reattaching a limb, NATO troops have rejoined a Serb-held section of Sarajevo to the rest of the city, pushing away metal containers and other barriers that divided the capital's inhabitants for 3 1/2 years.

Sarajevo residents on both sides of the former front line awoke to a startling scene Wednesday. The Bridge of Brotherhood and Unity, a no-man's land just a day before, was once again a link over the Miljacka river. Gone were the barriers that had blocked the view from snipers.

Serbs on the southern side of the bridge could watch the streetcars hurtling by in the government-held sector. Muslims looking south saw the broad avenue leading into the Grbavica neighborhood.

"It's so wonderful," said Maja Davic, a woman watching from the Serb side Wednesday. "This is a symbol of the normal life we can live again."

Across the river, a taxi driver called Hamo smiled broadly as he gestured to the other side. "I've waited years for this," he said.

Still, lingering suspicions threaten to keep Sarajevo's Serbs and Muslims apart after the physical barricades are swept aside.

In Ilidza, another Serb-held section of Sarajevo, unidentified gunmen wounded a British NATO driver in the wrist late Tuesday and peppered a NATO Land Rover with bullets. Two days before, a U.S. Army officer was grazed in the neck by a sniper's bullet.

NATO officials attribute the shootings to growing apprehension in Serb-held areas about handing their territory over to the Muslim-led government by March 19.

Many Serbs have said they would rather leave than have their sectors submit to government control, as stipulated by the U.S.-brokered peace agreement.

The government, meanwhile, has been demanding that Serbs account for Muslims missing in the war. Muslims seeking information about their loved ones rioted Monday and Tuesday in Tuzla, the northeastern city that is headquarters for the 20,000 U.S. troops participating in the NATO-led peace mission.

However, the city was peaceful Wednesday and a Red Cross spokeswoman denied reports the organization had suspended operations.

"Yesterday we continued to work and today we continue to work," said Anne-Sophie Bonnefeld.

Despite the will for reconciliation, difficulties persisted at the Grbavica crossing.

Serb police set up in a sandbagged building cuffed and slapped two teen-agers who tried to saunter over without official permission. Bosnian government police would have turned them back even had they made it: Both sides were letting in only those whose names were on approved lists.

The list system began in the thick of the war to permit brief reunions of a select few — aging or dying relatives on the other side, for instance. That it was still in place Wednesday spoke volumes about how poorly the freedom of movement stipulated in the peace accord was being enforced.

French NATO troopers supervising the scene shrugged when asked why people were not being allowed to cross at will.

"It's up to the two sides to get their act together," said one French soldier.

A baby-faced Serb policeman in blue fatigues who called himself Sinisa said he was just enforcing orders. But he related with relish how he went to the other side to bum a local cigarette available only in government-held Sarajevo.

"I was the first one over last night when they cleared away the barriers," he said. "I approached one of their cops and said 'how about a Drina?'

"We shook hands and we talked, I knew him from before the war," he said. "It was like darkness was lifting and was being replaced by sunshine."

Before saying good-bye he asked that a Muslim friend of his who was disfigured by a Serb-fired shell be given a message.

"Tell him I'm sorry.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967

COMING SOON...VALENTINE'S DAY!
Whether you...Want to be funny/play a joke • Want to make a good friend smile
Be a secret admirer • Want to say a little "I love you"

Reserve Your Valentine's Day Collegian Personal by FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9TH for the Collegian's Wednesday, February 14th Valentine's Day Issue.
Place as many as you like - No Limit per person.

For more information call the Collegian @ 545-3500 Drop off order forms @ Collegian in the Campus Center basement or mail to 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003 (by 2/6)

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: Office Use Only
Date to run: February 14, 1996 Headline: Personals
S.S.# _____ Total Words: _____ X .10¢ rate = _____
Total Cost (w/specials) _____ Authorized signature: _____

Specials
Free Red Spot Color w/purchase of a graphic
$2.50 Heart Graphic at Beginning & End ❒
$5 Heart Graphic Border ❒
$7 Heart Shadowed Behind Message ❒
Graphic #1 ♡ ❒
Graphic #2 ❣ ❒
Graphic #3 ❤ ❒
Graphic #4 ❦ ❒

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN/UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
VALENTINE'S DAY CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER
Cash ❒ Check # _____ VISA/MC# _____ Exp._____

ADVERTISING COPY
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10
Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

Pearl Street
THURSDAY FEB 1
99.3 DANCE PARTY
The Area's Biggest Dance Party
CHUCKLEHEAD
FRIDAY FEB 2
RETRO NIGHT
With DJ Brad
MUSIC FROM THE 70's & 80's
FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS AD
JOHN SHELDON & BLUE STREAK
SATURDAY FEB 3
CLUB NIGHT
Dance with DJ Dave
Now Available THE CLUB CARD
Good for no Admission on Saturday
Reserved Tables and More
MAGIC SLIM & THE TEARDROPS
TUES. FEB. 6 8:00 PM
SPACEHOG
WEDNESDAY FEB 7
NORTHAMPTON'S FIRST & ONLY
GAY NIGHT
With Guest DJ Dave Ru-well
from Hartford Sanctuary
(Coming Feb 14 Valentine Party)
FREE ADMISSION BEFORE 10:30 PM
THURSDAY FEB 8
99.3 DANCE PARTY
BIM SKALA BIM
FRIDAY FEB 9
RETRO NIGHT
Dress to get Physical
PHYSICAL GRAFFITI
SATURDAY FEB 10
CLUB NIGHT
DEBBIE DAVIES
COMING TO PEARL STREET...
2/11 PARTRIDGE KING
2/13 Farewell Tour! THE RAMONES
2/15 NAPALM DEATH
2/16 ZOO STATION
2/17 WARREN ZEVON
2/18 SKANARCHY
2/19 FRIDAY JONES BAND
2/22 PHINEAS GAGE
2/23 TEXAS FLOOD
2/24 ROOMFUL OF BLUES
2/25 SHIFTY
SHADES APART
3/1 WAR (Upstairs)
3/1 MAX CREEK (Downstairs)
3/5 DANCE HALL CRASHERS
3/9 7 MARY 3 / Poe (Up)
3/9 THE UPPER CRUST (Downstairs)
3/12 LABYRINTH BLACK MANDAZO
Box office: On sale 1,000 THE TICK
Numbered, Fan-Club Record in Amherst
About Music in Greenfield
Tix Unlimited at U. Mass
79 Pearl Street, Northampton 413-584-7327

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst. 256-0080

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-time Evening
• Classes start February 5, 1996
Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

SUNDAY FEBRUARY 4
Showtimes:
12:30, 3:00, 5:30, 8:00, 11:00 P.M.
Campus Center Auditorium
first three shows $3.00
late two shows $4.00
free popcorn with admission

■ discount

continued from page 1

$2.39, a three-subject notebook with a folder cost $2.99 and a four-subject notebook with a folder cost $4.99.

Although K-Mart did not have a wide selection of similar notebooks, they had three-subject ones which cost $4.59, and a five-subject at $4.97.

Staples did not have a wide variety of notebooks with pockets, and they charged significantly higher prices than the University Store. A three-subject notebook cost $2 more at Staples then on campus.

However, when it comes to convenience the campus store cannot be beat. Yesterday afternoon the University Store was swarming with students buying notebooks.

"I buy them here because it is easier," junior psychology major Tanya Hoos said.

K-Mart lacked the selection of both the University Store and Staples. Also, the University Store and Staples always have clerks available for assistance.

A few students avoid the school supply rush altogether.

"Why waste money?" asked Carrie Crossland, a junior political science major who gets her notebooks from her father's office.

There are times when you wish you could do more than watch the world pass by in a haze of wonder and a cloud of what it's
COLLEGIAN NEWS
"Make it happen"

Du Pont pursues insanity defense

By Amy Westfeld
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — John E. du Pont saw Nazis in his trees, heard the walls talking to him and cut off pieces of his skin to remove the bugs from outer space.

"Doesn't take a rocket scientist or even a psychiatrist to say the guy was crazy," law professor Eddie Ohlbaum said.

But that doesn't mean the multimillionaire accused of murdering an Olympic wrestling champion is crazy under the law.

Lawyers rarely pursue the insanity defense and rarely succeed. Even Jeffrey Dahmer couldn't convince a jury he was insane when he killed and dismembered 15 men and boys.

"An insanity defense in general is an uphill battle," said Dr. Neal Blumberg, a Baltimore psychiatrist who evaluates about 60 criminal defendants a year. "There's a public perception that people are getting away with murder and this is an easy defense to fake."

Du Pont's legal team, which includes Richard Sprague, a leading defense lawyer and former Philadelphia district attorney, has not disclosed whether it will pursue an insanity defense. The heir to the chemical fortune faces a preliminary hearing Feb. 9.

To prove insanity, attorneys must show that du Pont was too mentally ill to know what he was doing or unable to know the difference between right and wrong.

For example, "let's assume that when he pulled the trigger he thought he was releasing electrons to communicate with the nature of the Holy Spirit," said Ohlbaum, a Temple University law professor who has argued insanity defenses.

Lawyers representing du Pont need to establish a history of mental illness and document his behavior at the scene of the crime.

The stories of du Pont's erratic behavior already have been multiplying since he allegedly shot Dave Schultz on du Pont's 800-acre suburban estate on Friday and began a two-day standoff with police.

■ Renaissance

continued from page 1

English and classics departments, history and arts and humanities programs. Scott called the combination of individuals who pushed for the development of the center a "synergistic group," and he spoke about the times from which the Renaissance evolved.

"There was a time of tremendous upheaval and instability in the world. It was a time of pestilence and plague .. of fragmentation and cultural decay," Scott said. "The Renaissance emerged from all of that. I would like to say that we should let this Renaissance Center at the University of Massachusetts be the symbol of a Renaissance 2000 at this university. I believe it can."

The house, left as a gift to the University after the death of Janet Wilder Dakin, will undergo renovations this year. Kinney said he hopes the Center will be open for an international conference coming the second weekend of November.

■ tuition

continued from page 1

HECC is not able to control student fees, the Council's Administration and Finance Committee asked schools to decrease their fees by five percent as well.

"They could do just the opposite," Lopes said.

Although Karam agrees tuition is too high, he said, "I think HECC has a simple solution to a complicated question."

He explained that he is unsure whether the roll-back would "give the students their money's worth for the $100 or so they would save."

Karam said he spent the last few years attempting to reduce spending at the University.

"We're not convinced that if we can find places to cut expenses that we should," he said. Karam mentioned several ways in which he feels money is needed on campus, such as for computers.

Stations look to broadcast trial

Cameras in courtroom seen as 'delicate matter' in Salvi case

By Katharine Webster
Associated Press

BOSTON — Four Boston television stations asked a high court justice Wednesday to allow television cameras at the trial of a man accused of murdering two abortion clinic receptionists.

John Salvi III also is charged with wounding five other people in a shooting rampage at two clinics in Brookline on Dec. 30, 1994.

The Supreme Judicial Court justice hearing the appeal said media coverage in Salvi's case is a delicate matter because abortion raises such strong passions, and some witnesses fear further violence.

"Perhaps the biggest difference here is the underlying concern, interest, division in this country over the issue of abortion," Justice Herbert P. Wilkins said. "That kind of problem ... just has not existed in other cases."

Norfolk Superior Court Judge Barbara Dortch-Okara last week agreed with defense lawyers and prosecutors not to allow electronic media at Salvi's trial. Still cameras would be permitted under her ruling.

Attorney Steven J. Comen appealed Wednesday, saying Dortch-Okara could place restrictions on live television and radio coverage without kicking cameras out of the courtroom altogether.

Salvi's attorney, however, argued television cameras only encourage Salvi to act up. While Salvi's outbursts during pretrial hearings — which were broadly televised — may not have harmed his right to a fair trial, such behavior could badly prejudice the jury, J.W. Carney said.

"The presence of cameras has often encouraged this mentally unbalanced defendant to try to address the cameras and read statements about the conspiracy against Catholics," Carney said. "When there were no television cameras, the defendant sits quietly and makes no efforts to disrupt the proceedings."

Assistant District Attorney Stephanie Glennon argued that witnesses — especially shooting victims and clinic employees — worry television coverage would allow anti-abortion activists to identify them and target them for more violence.

Steven J. Comen argued those problems were easily solved: A single, unmoving camera could be disguised to look like part of the furniture. Or Dortch-Okara could order the television cameras shut off any time Salvi acted up, and could order camera crews not to tape particular witnesses.

"The moment Mr. Salvi acts up, we switch off the cameras," Comen said.

"That may be, but that doesn't switch off the jury," the justice replied.

Collegian Graphics
We're up all night putting together New England's Largest College Daily
When our job is done your day is just beginning.

You know Bobby, copying these answers from our family encyclopedia for your science project reminds me of my college days. Ahh... those were the good ole' days, cheat sheets on the inside of my Ivy league muffler, paying off the students at the state school to take my exams. Summa Cum Laude! God bless those shiviling staties! I did love them so!
DAILY COLLEGIAN
State school intelligence free every weekday

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS $10.

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256 0080 460 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

HOW DO YOU MAKE A BAR FLY?

with HALF-PRICE APPETIZERS & NACHOS
EVERY DAY at THE PUB in AMHERST from 3-5pm and 7-9pm only in the bar and lounge!
15 E. PLEASANT STREET • DOWNTOWN AMHERST

UMass
STILL TIME TO ENTER
Basketball (M/W/C) ..... A.S.A.P.
Wallyball (M/W/C) 2/5
Wrestling (M/W) 2/6
INTRAMURAL SPORTS
Don't Miss The ACTION
For entry forms and info 545-2693 545-0022
PAID OFFICIALS NEEDED FOR BASKETBALL AND WRESTLING. CALL FOR CLINIC DATES.

Classes Start
February 7, 8, 9 & 10
SKI FOR CREDIT?!

Free Bus to area!
Sign-ups 1/29-2/1 at Totman
Pre Register Skiing I or II
All Abilities: Ski or Snowboard
4 weekly lessons: $80
Call PE Office, 545-2338, for more information
Mt. TOMski Area
Minutes from campus

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
Bud Dry $9.99 case Bottles
Bud 16 oz bottles $2.99 4-pack
Sam Adams $4.99/six Lager Ale Stout Porter
Smutty Nose $4.99/six Old Brown Dog Pale Ale
Goldschlager $8.99
Myers Rum $10.99
Jack Daniel's $12.49
Gordons Vodka $6.49
Keg Special: 1/2 Keg $75.00
Pete's Wicked Ale Red Hones Wheat
Micro-Brewed Beer Kegs in Stock
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted

Upset bid falls short as UNC nips Duke

No. 8 UNC 73, Duke 72

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dante Calabria's tap-in with 6.5 seconds to play helped No. 8 North Carolina cap its second straight comeback from a double-digit deficit and take a 73-72 victory over Duke on Wednesday night.

The victory overshadowed a 20-point night from Duke's Ricky Price, who came into the game a 41.5 percent shooter averaging 12 points.

North Carolina (16-4, 7-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) battled from 17 points down, nearly mirroring the 18-point comeback it staged against Wake Forest last week.

Steve Wojciechowski sank his only basket of the second half, a 3-pointer with 1:13 remaining, to give Duke a 72-68 lead. Shammond Williams retaliated with a 3-pointer at 57.9 to bring the Tar Heels within one.

Duke (12-8, 3-5 ACC) was milking the shot clock when Wojciechowski's pass for Chris Collins sailed past him and into the Duke bench.

North Carolina nearly lost the ball when Calabria was tied up near half-court with Collins, but the Tar Heels regained possession.

Serge Zwikker's shot inside was blocked by Greg Newton, but Calabria came down the lane untouched and got the tap-in.

Price, in position to be a hero once again, missed a jumper from the wing as the buzzer sounded.

No. 13 Virgina Tech 74, UNC-Greensboro 48

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Virginia Tech scored 17 of the first 21 points of the game and cruised to a 74-48 victory over North Carolina-Greensboro for its 15th straight home victory Wednesday night.

Ace Custis led the 13th-ranked Hokies (15-2) with 15 points and seven rebounds, and Shawn Good and Travis Jackson had 14 points each.

The Spartans (13-5), who came in riding an eight-game winning streak, used a 9-0 run to close the early gap to 17-13 with 7:56 left before half-time.

Custis later scored seven points in a 10-2 run that gave the Hokies a 36-22 lead at halftime.

Skeet Woolard paced the Spartans with 11 points, and Brian Brunson had nine points and nine rebounds.

The Hokies extended their lead to 19 points midway through the second half on a 3-pointer by Jackson that capped a 9-0 run with 11:56 to play.

No. 4 Connecticut 77, Rutgers 59

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — Ray Allen and Doron Sheffer scored 25 points apiece, and No. 4 Connecticut pulled away from stubborn Rutgers in the final 10 minutes for a 77-59 victory Wednesday night.

The win ran UConn's school-record winning streak to 19. Rutgers (5-12, 2-7 Big East) trailed 51-45 with 11:30 remaining and had three separate chances to get closer.

The Knights missed four shots and committed a turnover before Allen followed his own miss to start UConn (20-1, 10-0) on a 19-4 run. Allen had seven points in the run and Sheffer hit two 3-pointers as UConn took a 70-49 lead with under four minutes remaining.

Huskies center Travis Knight, who started his first game since having two screws put in his fractured left thumb Jan. 26, had 10 points. Damon Santiago had 17 for Rutgers, while Andrew Kolbasovsky and Billy Gilligan scored 15 each.

Trailing 37-30 at halftime, Rutgers got as close as 45-42 before UConn scored six straight. Santiago hit a 3-pointer before Connecticut went on its run.

Connecticut, which leads the Big East in shooting percentage, made just two of its first 19 shots as Rutgers took an 11-7 lead. Sheffer and Allen then combined for 17 points in a 25-5 Huskies run, which gave UConn a 32-16 advantage.

With the score 37-19 and Connecticut seemingly poised for a blowout, Eric Clark and Santiago keyed an 11-0 run over the final 2:06 to pull Rutgers to 37-30 at halftime.

No. 9 Georgetown 91, West Virginia 67

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Allen Iverson led four Georgetown players in double figures with 18 points, and the ninth-ranked Hoyas used a 31-10 second-half run to defeat West Virginia 91-67 in a Big East game Wednesday night.

The Mountaineers played tough team defense in the first half and trailed by just five points at the break, but Georgetown (18-3, 8-2 Big East) played even stronger defense in the second half, and the 31-10 run sealed the outcome.

At one point, the tiring Mountaineers — playing without suspended starter Gordon Malone — went nearly six minutes without a field goal, including a spurt in which Georgetown scored seven points in 20 seconds. A 35-30 halftime lead was extended to 71-44 with 7:30 to play.

While Iverson led the Hoyas in scoring as usual, the game proved that the 6-foot sophomore guard doesn't have to have an awesome scoring night for Georgetown to win. In fact, two of Georgetown's three losses this season came when Iverson scored 40 and 39 points.

Against West Virginia, Iverson didn't score until 5:32 into the game. Most of his points came late in the game after the outcome was decided.

Victor Page scored 17 points, Othella Harrington 12 and Jerome Williams 10 for Georgetown. Harrington had eight rebounds and Williams nine, helping Georgetown's 49-25 rebounding advantage.

Reserve Greg Simpson led West Virginia (8-10, 3-7) with 16 points.

After making two free throws, Williams had a steal and dunk that excited the crowd in Georgetown's big second-half run. However, Williams, one of the best defenders in the country, looked uncomfortable when coach John Thompson briefly unveiled a bizarre offensive formation that had the 6-9 forward playing point guard.

Shortly after Williams' slam, the Hoyas created two turnovers that led to seven points in 20 seconds — Iverson had two free throws, Page hit a 3-pointer and Harrington a hook — that gave Georgetown its first 20-point-plus lead at 63-42.

It was in sharp contrast to the first half, when the Moutaineers scooted away with uncontested fast breaks and got back on defense to prevent the Hoyas from doing the same. But after building an 8-0 lead with Damien Owens' two dunks, West Virginia was doomed by poor shot selection and the Hoyas' solid rebounding.

Georgetown took the lead for good at 12:11 on Ya-Ya Dia's basket with 12:29 to go in the first half.

Will Philly standout be the next Garnett?

By Dave Ivey
Associated Press

ARDMORE, Pa. — Two roads diverge in Kobe Bryant's future, and both are paved with hardwood.

The 6-foot-6-inch suburban Philadelphia high school star can choose the well-worn path and play for any college in the nation next year, or he may select the road less traveled and jump straight to pro basketball.

The senior guard-forward at Lower Merion High averages 35 points and 10 rebounds a game; won MVP honors at the elite Adidas-ABCD summer camp; and held his own in summer workouts with the Philadelphia 76ers.

His athleticism, grace and end-to-end court savvy summon up comparisons to Anfernee Hardaway or Grant Hill.

"Kobe Bryant is the most complete player in the class of 1996. What he can't do, can't be done," high school recruiting guru Tom Konchalski said. "He has no weaknesses. None. Zero. Zip."

Not many 17-year-olds can dictate their own recruiting terms to coaches the caliber of Dean Smith, Rick Pitino and Mike Krzyzewski. But Bryant has: no official campus trips and no home visits. In other words, don't call him — he'll have somebody call you. Maybe.

"After the season, I will let everyone know," Bryant said following a recent game. "Right now, I don't even know myself."

One teammate said Bryant would go to either North Carolina or LaSalle, unless he's drafted by his hometown 76ers.

If he does take the college road, it could make all the difference to a program like LaSalle, where his father, ex-Sixer Joe "Jelly Bean" Bryant is an assistant coach. Word around campus is that the jobs of coach Speedy Morris and his assistants are on the line.

Would he play a season or two with the Explorers to save his dad's job? Both father and son say the choice is up to Kobe (pronounced KOH-bee).

"I'm looking out for Kobe's best interests, and not my own," said Joe Bryant, a first-round 1975 draft choice who played eight seasons in the NBA and eight more in Europe. "I'm a father first, coach second."

There are other factors working in favor of LaSalle, which has had its problems in its first season in the Atlantic 10 conference.

His friend, 6-foot-9-inch Travar Johnson, has signed a letter of intent with La Salle and another friend, highly touted Donnie Carr of Roman Catholic in Philadelphia, is deciding between La Salle and St. Joseph's.

Plus, Bryant is from a Big Five family.

His father played at LaSalle and met his mother Pam, a Villanova alum, at a Big Five doubleheader. Their daughter Sharia, 19, is on the volleyball team at Temple and daughter Shaya, 18, plays volleyball at LaSalle.

And the Explorers, who have not been to the NCAA tournament since 1992, will need an exciting player such as Bryant if they keep playing their home games off campus. Fewer than 300 fans passed through the turnstiles for one recent game at the Civic Center.

"And don't forget my mom's good home cooking," added Bryant, a polite and pleasant, muscular and mature 205-pounder. "That's another good reason to stick around. Believe me."

Bryant, who has scored more than 2,100 points in his career, won't turn 18 until August and could still grow another inch or two. He is confident that he is both physically and mentally ready for the NBA.

"If I do go pro, I'll have a lot of people in my corner, helping me to make the transition," Bryant said. "The way I look at is, I can only get better by playing against the best." Four others have made the jump, with varying degrees of success: Darryl Dawkins and Bill Willoughby in 1975, Moses Malone in 1974 and Kevin Garnett last year. All were big men; Bryant, a point guard prospect, would be the first backcourt player to bypass college.

Also, he might not be a lock for the lottery. Wake Forest's Tim Duncan, Marcus Camby of Massachusetts, Ray Allen of Connecticut, Georgetown's Allen Iverson and Kerry Kittles of Villanova would likely all go higher, although the cellar-dwelling Sixers might take a chance.

With the NBA's rookie salary cap, a late first-round selection earns in the neighborhood of $2 million over three seasons. But Bryant already lives near that neighborhood, playing ball on the ritzy Main Line.

And Kobe doesn't need basketball to go to college — he scored 1,080 on the SAT, has better than a 3.0 grade point average and speaks fluent Italian.

A strong voice against Bryant's turning pro is Marty Blake, director of scouting for the NBA.

"He's a very good high school basketball player — with the emphasis on high school," Blake said. "Garnett was an exception. He was 19 and he was 6-11. Kobe's just not ready yet."

The November early signing period has come and gone, so Bryant now must wait until April to commit to a school. He has until mid-May to declare his eligibility for the June NBA draft, but under NCAA rules he gets 30 days to decide whether to sign with the team that drafts him. If he doesn't, and he doesn't sign with an agent, he loses no college eligibility.

"No matter what he decides, he's going to have to live with it," said Lower Merion coach Gregg Downer, whose Aces (12-3) have improved from 4-18 in Bryant's freshman year to 26-5 and the state playoffs last season.

"It will be a tough transition, but what makes Kobe so special is that he's a complete player," Downer said. "He's got unbelievable versatility, and he's totally unselfish. His potential is unlimited."

Sixers coach and general manager John Lucas said his team was impressed with Bryant's level of play.

"He showed up a couple of my guys when he was working out with us last summer," Lucas said. "He's got all the tools to be a phenomenal player in this league, but the NBA's not going anywhere."

Konchalski said Bryant has the ideal combination of skills, athleticism and intangibles, but shouldn't give up dorm life.

"I think every kid deserves the right to be 18 and go to college," he said. "Let him play one, two or three more years of basketball without the pressures of a million-dollar paycheck and just have some fun."

Garnett, who is scoring about 6.2 points a game as a 19-year-old rookie with Minnesota, was recently asked what advice he would give.

"Tell Kobe to be his own man," he replied. "Tell him that once he is in the pros, there's no turning back. Whatever he decides, whether it's the NBA or college, he has to put all his effort into it."

PERSPECTIVES ON AFFIRMATIVE ACTION: HOW DOES IT AFFECT YOU?

An opportunity to listen and respond to different viewpoints

February 5, 1996 - 7:00 - 9:30 p.m. - 163 Campus Center

MODERATOR

Barbara Love, Associate Professor of Education, UMass Amherst

PANELISTS

Faye Crosby, Professor of Psychology, Smith College

Hermenia Gardner, Director of Affirmative Action, Amherst College

Michael Burkart, Corporate Diversity Consultant, Amherst

Hadley Arkes, Professor of Political Science, Amherst College

Jerrold Levinsky, Deputy General Counsel
Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination

Jointly sponsored by the Amherst Civil Rights Review Commission, the Amherst Public Schools and the Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations sign language interpreter services will be provided

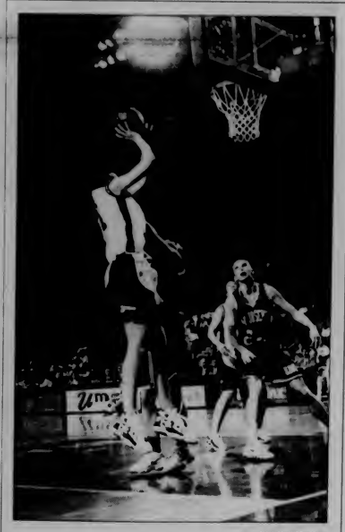
Graphics
At 3 a.m. we're only getting started.

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst. 256-0080

Ski Snowboard
Only $219
Winterbreak & Springbreak
INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS
Sponsors Include: Molson & Labatts
MT. ORFORD, CANADA
JUST ACROSS THE VERMONT BORDER!
5 DAY SKI & SNOWBOARD LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, CONTESTS & HOOPLA
NOTE: THIS LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18
GROUP LEADER & REP DISCOUNTS
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
SKI TRAVEL UNLIMITED
www.skitravel.com
1-800-999-Ski-9
Party in the Snow



EMILY REILY/COLLEGIAN

Melissa Gurile and the Minutewomen travel to the Charles E. Smith Center in Washington, D.C. tonight to take on the George Washington Colonials.

UMass INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Paid Officials Needed For Basketball and Wrestling

Clinics: Basketball - Jan. 31, Feb. 1, 2
Wrestling - Feb. 6
Call for times & locations

Still Time To Enter Basketball, Wrestling & Wallyball

More Info In 215 Boyden, 5-2693/5-0022

Local pros dominate weak opponents as Bruins down Ottawa, C's crush Grizzlies

While they've both struggled in recent weeks the Bruins and Celtics were impressive against their respective league's weaker foes.

Bruins 3, Senators 1

KANATA, Ontario (AP) — Boston goaltender Bill Ranford was the difference in a wide-open NHL game as the Bruins downed the Ottawa Senators 3-1 Wednesday night.

Adam Oates, Josef Stumpel and Shawn McEachern scored to end a two-game Bruins losing streak, but it was Ranford who stole the show in his best performance since coming to Boston from the Edmonton Oilers in a Jan. 11 trade.

Ranford's 29-save performance included a beauty three minutes into the third period when he slid across to stop Kerry Huffman's one-timer from the slot so quickly the goal judge briefly flashed the red light in anticipation of the puck entering the Boston net. The win lifted Boston over .500 to 21-20-6 while the Senators dropped to 9-38-2.

Alexandre Daigle finally beat Ranford at 11:35 of the third period when his pass attempt deflected in off Bruins defenseman Ray Bourque with Ottawa enjoying a two-man advantage.

Seconds later, Ranford made a brilliant glove stop on Rob Gaudreau from close range to preserve the Boston lead, and McEachern clinched the victory on a Bruins power play at 14:45. Rick Tocchet, acquired by the Bruins last week from Los Angeles in a trade for Kevin Stevens, set up McEachern's goal but was otherwise nondescript.

Ottawa outshot Boston 30-25, including 13-3 in the third period, and scored once in five power-play chances. The Bruins went 1-for-3 with the man advantage.

Both teams had good scoring chances in the first period but, apart from Ranford's breakaway save on Ottawa rookie Daniel Alfredsson, some rather routine goaltending work was enough to keep matters scoreless.

There was nothing routine, however, about the second period. Just 19 seconds in, Oates split the Ottawa defense and banked a shot off the crossbar over goalie Damian Rhodes glove-side shoulder.

Cam Neely slipped a shot between Rhodes' pads that somehow squirted wide of the Ottawa net before the Senators came alive. Ranford made excellent saves on Stan Neckar, Alexandre Daigle and Alexei Yashin in succession and Ottawa rookie Antti Tormanen hit the far post with a wide-open Boston net.

That sent the Bruins down the ice and Stumpel gave Boston a 2-0 lead on a fine feed from McEachern — all this before the second period was five minutes old.

That lead held into the third period on the strength of some terrific saves from both Rhodes and Ranford.

Celtics 131, Grizzlies 98

BOSTON (AP) — Todd Day scored 24 points as the Boston Celtics rolled to their most lopsided victory of the season Wednesday night, 131-98 over the Vancouver Grizzlies.

The Grizzlies were coached by assistant Rex Hughes, who filled in for Brian Winters. Winters missed the game due to the death of his mother-in-law.

Bryant Reeves, Byron Scott and Eric Murdock each scored 16 points for Vancouver, which lost its third straight game.

Eric Williams scored 17 points for Boston.

The Celtics used a 9-3 run in the final two minutes to take their biggest lead of the night, 131-98 with 19 seconds left. After Vancouver's Anthony Avent was ejected for getting two technical fouls in the third quarter, Boston went on a 9-2 spurt. Pervis Ellison capped the run with a layup that gave the Celtics a 78-45 lead with 8:46 left in the quarter.

The Grizzlies made only 16 of 43 shots and turned the ball over eight times in the first half as the Celtics took a 61-41 lead. Boston took control in the second quarter when it outscored Vancouver 33-19. Williams came off the bench to score 11 points in the period.

Howard leading Bullets' success

By David Ginsburg
Associated Press

LANDOVER, Md. — The Washington Bullets are in the midst of their finest season in nearly a decade, thanks to a former Michigan star who easily made the transition to the NBA despite leaving college early.

No, it's not Chris Webber. A sore shoulder has limited him to only 15 games this season, and the Bullets lost six of them. The key to the Bullets' resurgence has been Juwan Howard, who hasn't received anywhere near the publicity of his former Fab Five teammate but has played a much more significant role in turning Washington into a contender.

Howard, who is averaging 20 points and seven rebounds per game in his second NBA season, was named to the Eastern Conference All-Star team on Tuesday.

"I'm thrilled to be named by the coaches," he said. "I was a little surprised, but this is a great honor for me and the Bullets."

"I'm thrilled to be named by the coaches. I was a little surprised, but this is a great honor for me and the Bullets."
— Juwan Howard

The 6-foot-9-inch forward leads Washington in minutes played and ranks second in assists. Most importantly, he's managed to stay healthy while starters Webber, Mark Price, Robert Pack and Calbert Cheaney have been sidelined by injuries at various times.

Led by Howard, Washington (21-21) is off to its best start since 1986-87. If Howard and the Bullets continue on their present course, Washington will make the playoffs for the first time since 1988.

"There's no question he's our most reliable player, the guy we count on night in and night out," Bullets general manager John Nash said. "We would be in a sorry state if Juwan wasn't available these first 40 games or so."

Webber was supposed to be the Bullets' franchise player, and he may ultimately fulfill that role. For now, Howard is the man whom the Bullets are counting on.

"They've got a real chance. They have a lot of talent on this team, starting with Juwan Howard," Vancouver coach Brian Winters said last Saturday after Howard had 24 points and 12 rebounds in Washington's 102-77 rout of the Grizzlies.

"He's a very disciplined player. He can post up on you, he can bring you out on the floor, he can shoot right in your face," Winters said. "He also plays good defense."

The Bullets expected big things from Howard when they made him the No. 5 overall pick in the 1994 NBA draft. No one, however, expected him to be so good so quickly. After all, Howard averaged only 15 points per game before leaving Michigan after his junior season.

Howard missed his first NBA training camp last season because of a contract dispute. He quickly worked his way into the starting lineup and finished second in scoring and rebounding. He reached double figures in scoring 57 times, including a streak of 46 straight games.

But the Bullets went 21-61, making the year a major failure for a player who had never before played on a losing team.

"Last year was a very disappointing, depressing year," he said.

Howard took it upon himself to do something about it, beginning almost immediately after the Bullets closed out the 1994-95 season. "The reason I've blossomed the way I have is because of the work I did during the offseason. I really concentrated on preparing Juwan Howard to be a better player," he said. "I took the offseason seriously, because I feel this is a job, this is my livelihood. I'm a proud person, and I want to be one of the best out there."

He's already there, according to the NBA coaches who chose him to play for the East squad on Feb. 11. Furthermore, the best is yet to come.

"He's going to continue to get better because hard work results in improvement," Nash said, "And Juwan works as hard as anybody."

The University of Massachusetts Campus Activities Office Presents:

Something Every Friday

a weekly program series of events

Coming this Friday

Return To The Source

Campus Center Auditoium
February 2, 1996,
8:00pm
FREE

Followed by the Movie

"To Wong Fu, Thanks For Everything, Julie Newmar"

time approx. 11pm

Refreshments Will Be Served

This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

When you're not hitting the books, hit the slopes at Stratton Mountain.

Stratton has sensational savings for college students throughout the winter and spring semesters. Just present your valid college I.D. to get mid week lift tickets for just $20. And save $5 on weekends and holidays. And Stratton Village has loads of restaurants, pubs and live entertainment right at the mountain, so you'll have an amazing time off the slopes, too. Do your field work at Stratton Mountain this semester. Your Econ professor will be proud. For more details, call 1-800-STRATTON. Or visit Stratton on the Internet at http://www.gengihis.com/stratton.htm

Stratton VERMONT

The mountain will move you.

EXTRAORDINARY RESORTS BY INTRAWEST

BLACKCOMB PANORAMA STRATTON TREMBLANT

FIGHT FOR THE 5% TUITION ROLLBACK
INCREASE UMASS STATE FUNDING!
EARN CREDIT WHILE YOU DO IT!

1996 SCERA CAMPAIGN FOR ECONOMIC ACCESSIBILITY NEEDS
ORGANIZERS AND LOBBYISTS FOR SPRING SEMESTER!!!

LEARN TO LOBBY!!!

1 CREDIT LOBBYING INTERNSHIPS
4 FULL-DAY TRIPS TO BOSTON TUESDAYS OR THURSDAYS

LEARN TO ORGANIZE!

3 CREDIT ORGANIZING INTERNSHIPS
10 hours per week.

Conduct grass-roots organizing in the dorms and classrooms.
Educate students about these important issues

TO APPLY!

Address a one-page letter explaining why you want the job and what kind of relevent experience you have, address it the SCERA Search Committee and drop it off in room 420 Student Union. Deadline is Thursday, February 8th @ 5:00 p.m. Successful candidates will be notified on Friday, February 9th.

For more information please contact::

Dr. Marc Kenen, SCERA Director 545-0709.

Ski team takes second in tourney

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men and women's ski teams finished up the winter break with two competitions before returning to school for the second semester. UMass hosted nine squads from throughout New England in the UMass Tournament, held Jan. 20-21 at Berkshire East, then travelled to Waterville Valley, N.H. to compete in the Plymouth State Carnival.

UMass Tournament

Senior Tom Schaefer led the way for the Minutemen, winning both the individual slalom and giant slalom events. With a two run slalom time of 67.13 seconds, Schaefer was a solid 2.29 seconds ahead of Boston College's second place Jim Ferris. In the end, it was BC which took the men's team slalom with a score of 351.96, while UMass finished second with 356.35, ahead of Plymouth State (360.61).

In the giant slalom, it was Schaefer who again carned the top spot in the individual competition with a two run time of 2:02.57, .57 seconds ahead of John Kim of the Eagles squad. The combined effort of the Minutemen put them another second place spot, finishing second to Boston College and edging out Plymouth State in the three spot.

For the women, UMass' Leah Muliero won the women's individual giant slalom with a two run time of 98.66, leading the way for the Minutewomen's fourth place showing in the event. In the team slalom, UMass placed sixth.

Plymouth State Carnival

The men returned from Waterville with two third place showings at the close of this event. Schaefer again cinched the first place spot in the slalom with a two run time of 88.49. Not far behind was teammate Tom Holden who finished in the three spot with a two run time of 90.55. In the end, UMass finished with a combined score of 475.05, as the Minutemen were edged out by host Plymouth State and Boston College, a school which did them one better in the UMass Tournament as well.

In the giant slalom, UMass was led by a second place Schaefer, who finished with a two run total of 64.02. In the end, UMass fell to third place with a score of 325.29.

For the women, UMass placed fifth in both the slalom and giant slalom events. In the slalom, the Minutewomen were led by Heather Olsen who finished 14th, with a two run time of 106.07, while Leah Muliero took sixth in the giant slalom with a two run total of 69.56 seconds.

baseball

continued from 12

The Seekonk native will hope a change of scenery can revive his once promising career.

• Speaking of the Phillies, they signed free agent catcher Benito Santiago to a one year deal a couple of days ago. This in itself is not earth shattering, but it means that long time receiver Darren Daulton could be moving to the outfield.

Daulton is coming off knee surgery, and now has two bad wheels. It might be tough for him to break in to a packed Philly outfield, but the Phils would miss his bat in the lineup.

• Aside from the acquisition of Tino Martinez, the moves the Yanks made don't necessarily improve their offense. Rock Raines joins Wade Boggs as a pair of veterans whose skills are declining. Joe Girardi, while probably a little better defensively, will not give NY half the production that new Red Sox receiver Mike Stanley did.

Mariano Duncan looks good penciled in as the everyday second baseman, but with Randy Velarde heading west to Anaheim, Tony Fernandez, who couldn't cut it as an everyday player, looms as the fifth infielder. The Bombers will miss Velarde more than they realize, especially as the season stretches on.

However, the Yanks' pitching rotation will be what keeps them in contention. Even with the loss of "The Finger," Jack McDowell, to Cleveland, the starting pitching has the potential to be the best in the league.

David Cone has finally found a home in the Bronx, at least for the time being, and so has prize free agent lefty Kenny Rogers. If, and this is a big if, Jimmy Key and Melido Perez can return from injuries, they will join Andy Pettitte, who is coming off a strong rookie season, in a group that should make some noise.

They had better eat up some innings, as well, though, because the bullpen is an entirely different story.

• When the Red Sox grabbed closer Rick Aguilera from the Twins, they gave up one of their best pitching prospects in Frankie Rodriguez. Now, free agent Aguilera has resigned with the Twins, and it seems he will not only join Rodriguez on the pitching staff, but in Minnesota's starting rotation.

Aguilera, a veteran who will try to make the unusual switch from closer to starter, at this point looms as the staff ace. Aside for Aggie and Rodriguez, the Metrodome fans will see such no-names as Brad Radke, Rich Robertson and Latroy Hawkins on the hill.

• Old friend Scott Cooper has a new contract. Unfortunately, it is not with the St. Louis Cardinals, but with the Seibu Lions.

That's right, the former Sox third baseman is moving to Japan after hitting .230 last year with the Cardinals.

Optimistic Sox fans (all three of them) will say he's the player the Sox traded for major flop Mark Whiten.

But remember, this is the guy the Sox brass was so high on back in 1992, that they decided another minor league third baseman by the name of Jeff Bagwell could be used as trade bait.

Brian Perillo is a Collegian columnist.

Sites chosen for first hockey World Cup

TORONTO (AP) — Madison Square Garden in New York and the Spectrum in Philadelphia are the U.S. sites for the first World Cup of Hockey tournament later this year.

The official announcement of the event will be Monday at the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto.

"We've got a lot of great offers," tournament organizer Ted Saskin of the NHL Players Association said. "We looked at the new arenas, and the Canadian games went fast."

The World Cup replaces the Canada Cup, which enjoyed tremendous success in Hamilton, Ontario, the site of the 1987 and 1991 tournament finals. The World Cup's Canadian venues will be Ottawa, Montreal and Vancouver, cities that have or will have new NHL arenas. Toronto's Maple Leafs Gardens will be under repair. New York and Philadelphia are the American venues.

The tournament kicks off Aug. 26 in Stockholm with Germany at Sweden and the first game in Canada is Aug. 29 in Vancouver as Canada plays host to Russia, according to a copy of the tournament's schedule obtained by The Canadian Press. Slovakia and Canada will play at Ottawa's new Palladium on Sept. 1.

Madison Square Garden will stage two early-round games — Russia-United States on Sept. 2 and Slovakia-United States the following night.

The best-of-3 championship round will start in Philadelphia and end up in Montreal.

While the World Cup is in its infancy, organizers hope matchups like Canadians Wayne Gretzky, Mario Lemieux and Eric Lindros taking on Russians Sergei Fedorov, Alexander Mogilny and Pavel Bure will make the event a hot sell.

The players certainly are ready.

"It is an honor to play in a tournament like the World Cup," said Gretzky, who has played some of his best hockey on the international stage.

"I'm really looking forward to it," New York Rangers captain Mark Messier said.

In Europe, Finnish officials want two games held at Turku's 11,000-seat arena instead of Helsinki's 8,000-seat facility. But Saskin said that could change because Turku can't match Helsinki's higher profile.

Germany will play the Czech Republic in an 8,000-seat arena Aug. 31 in Garmisch, south of Munich.

The eight-team tournament will comprise two divisions. Canada, the United States, Russia and Slovakia will make up the North American Division, with Sweden, Finland, Germany and the Czech Republic forming the European Division.

The top three teams in each division advance to the medal round, with the first-place finishers getting a bye into the semifinals. The remaining four face off in sudden-death quarterfinal action. The semifinal victors meet in a best-of-three tournament championship. The championship series opens in Philadelphia on Sept. 10, then shifts to Montreal for Game 2 on Sept. 12. A third and deciding contest, if necessary, is scheduled for Sept. 14, also in Montreal.

Edmonton general manager Glen Sather will manage Canada's World Cup team. But he'll let his players select their coach. Lou Lamoriello, general manager of the Stanley Cup-champion New Jersey Devils, will be the American team's general manager. Anaheim coach Ron Wilson is expected to be behind the bench.

NHL

continued from 12

opposing coach yell to the players on the ice: "Guys! Zombo!" while waving all the troops into the rush.

The depressing part is looking at who has departed the Boston blueline in recent years: Garry Galley, a borderline star in Buffalo who was dealt for Gord Murphy, who the Bruins gave away to Florida, for which he's a vital cog. Even John Gruden, who was rushed to the lineup with fellow rookie Rohloff last year, deserves another look. He's lightning quick and much less mistake prone than Rohloff. I guess the Bruins just love that hard shot of Rohloff's. His goal total this year? Zero.

Wondering who Lacher might fetch? How about Dallas' Doug Zmolek, Edmonton's Bryan Marchment or Washington's Ken Klee?

2. Do everything legal to get Al Iafrate back. "The Planet" is a fitting nickname for this enigmatic man (coined by Kevin Paul DuPont of The Boston Globe), because astronomy is not a subject one can dabble in. Face it: You really don't know anything about this guy's situation. Sure, you might have seen him and his radar-jamming shot and simplistic physics talking with ESPN's Gary Thorn during the NHL All-Star Skills Competition last week, but the Globe reported recently that he won't even skate for another couple weeks. Gosh, he sure seemed to be skating when he took that shot.

Iafrate is a defensive liability, often caught up ice while pinching in to promote the offense he loves. Well, that's OK, because the Bruins do need power play help (they're 15th in NHL), and the thought of Ray Bourque and Iafrate at the points is, hey, we actually saw it for a fortnight two seasons ago. Oops, wait a minute, haven't our dreams for this team soured recently once already? (Bourque...to Oates...to Stevens...score! Yeah right.)

3. Don't expect the world of Rick Tocchet, and pray he isn't...Kevin Stevens. Won't this be fun. At the time of this writing, those brand new spotlights in the Ottawa Palladium (actually in Kanata-Kanata, Canada, I love it) are turning up the heat on the newest Bruins savior. It was pretty easy rolling alongside the Great One, wasn't it, Rick? Tocchet benefits in that he won't be asked to join Adam Oates and Cam Neely on the team's top line. Todd Elik is quite comfortable there.

Of course, so was Shawn McEachern not long ago, and the way coach Steve "You're a left wing? Try right wing" Kasper "runs the show" (tee-hee-hee! What a Rick Bowness-like pawn he is! Get ready for the Bowness end-of-season treatment, Stevie), Tocchet may skate first line. As it stands, look for him with center Jozef Stumpel and McEachern on the right. The way Dave Reid and Ted Donato, certainly the team's two most consistent forwards (Oates isn't the third only because of his injury), are going together, it looks like they really do have some depth, but that picture of mine also looks like a Bruins team picture, and right now that's one of the hardest things to capture on film.

Ted Kottler is a Collegian columnist.

MAKE YOUR OWN
MEAL DEAL
Buy Any Sub, Receive Chips And Med. Drink For $1.00
Some Way. Apply. Not Valid With Any Other Offer
SUBWAY
The Place Where Fresh is the Taste
4 Main Street • Amherst

YUKON JACK EL ACUÑA YUKON JACK
TEX-MEX CANTINA
COME JOIN YUKON JACK AND HIS COMPADRES, SNAKEBITE & PERMAFROST, THURS., FRI., AND SAT. AS THEY PARTY DOWN AT THEIR FAVORITE CANTINA, EL ACUNA, TEX-MEX CANTINA BABY...
(Hats, T-Shirts, Posters, Banners to be given out)
41 Boltwood Walk, Amherst
253-4040

APPLY now
IF you're looking for funding for an arts-related project this Spring, the UMASS ARTS COUNCIL is here to help!
WHO is eligible to apply for a grant?
ANY UMass student group/organization may apply for a grant for an arts-related project involving UMass students through program management, participation and/or as an audience.
WHAT kind of project is eligible for funding?
GRANT awards support a wide variety of activities, including music, dance and theater performance, video and film production or presentations, interdisciplinary projects, art and literary publications, exhibitions and arts-related lectures or workshops as well as artistic components of multicultural programs.
HOW do I apply?
SIMPLY complete a Single Project/Event Grant application and submit it by the deadline. The application form provides detailed information on how to prepare your grant, how it is reviewed, and when you will know if your project has been funded.
WHERE do I get an application?
FROM the Arts Council Office, Hasbrouck 101-103. We will be able to provide you with help, information, networking and alternate resources.
UMASS ARTS COUNCIL 101 HASBROUCK 545-0202
WHEN do I apply?
SPRING '96 grant deadlines are:
February 16 for events after March 6
March 15 for events after April 3
April 19 for events after May 8
(Including Summer and Fall projects/events)

Welcome back friends!! Night Life at Welcome back friends!!
PRUDDY'S
9:00 pm to 1:00 am
• FOOD • TROPICAL DRINKS • FRIENDS •
23-2899 Main St., Amherst
Basketball Thursday
See UMASS defeat Temple on 2 big screen tv's
HipHop Friday
DJ Big Phil spin some hip-hop and R&B
Saturday Live Reggae
This saturday 2/3/96 the reggae band Black Rebels will be performing live at Pruddy's
$1.00 Pints / 4.50 pitchers
$4.50 pints / 4.0 PITCHERS
Why wait in line in the cold? Come to the best tropical place in town
$4.50 pitchers, best drink prices in town!
Main st.
Http://www-vax.oit.umass.edu/~walters/pruddy.htm

Women's swim edges New Hampshire

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

After starting off at 3–0, the Massachusetts women's swimming and diving team has had a little trouble as of late, dropping two of its last three duel meets and winning the other by only 2 points.

However the losses have not come against weak opponents. After the loss to the top ranked UConn Huskies, the Minutewomen came back with a slim 151–149 victory over New Hampshire, Saturday afternoon in Durham.

"We're going through a phase right now where the people aren't swimming real fast," said head coach Bob Newcomb. "We're doing a transition from heavy training to our taper time, and performances have been down a little bit.

"I always worry about New Hampshire. It's a good program, and they've got some really good kids there, and I never count them short."

Barbara Hickey came up big for the Minutewomen with her New Hampshire pool record-setting time of 10:27.89 in the 1000 yard freestyle, en route to one of two first place finishes on the day. The other was in the 500 yard freestyle, where the closest Wildcat was 17.85 seconds behind her.

"She had an outstanding meet," Newcomb said. "She captured a pool record and her time in the 500 was her best time. And she anchored a relay that came in third that helped us clinch the meet."

Karen Sonnwald, back strong from a broken foot, was right behind Hickey in the both the 500 and 1000 yard freestyles, good for two second place finishes.

"She's coming along," said Newcomb. "She's getting faster each time she's swimming and that's what we were looking for."

Sarah Baker topped the charts once again with a first place finish in the 100 yard freestyle in a time of 54.04, over two seconds better than the competition. She also grabbed second place in the 50 yard freestyle.

Jessica Farley placed second twice, in the 200 yard freestyle and 100 yard butterfly, as did Jessica Griffith with her finishes in the 100 and 200 yard breaststrokes.

Angelique Rodriguez dove well off the boards for the Minutewomen with a first and a second place finish in the one-meter and three-meter diving events.

Lauren Calderone and Denise Leckenby definitely set the pace for the Wildcats, each with three first place finishes. Calderone in the 100 and 200 yard fly as well as the 400 yard individual medley, and Leckenby the 50 and 200 yard freestyles, and in the 200 yard backstroke.

With this victory the Minutewomen upped their record to 4–1, with their only loss coming at the hands of UConn.

Then on Tuesday night at Boston College the Minutewomen ran into a little trouble against the Eagles, a team they had beaten by 32.5 points back in early December at the New England Championships.

They fell to the 11–2 Eagles by the score of 179–121.

"We did not swim well," Newcomb said. "We went in really flat."

Massachusetts was only able to come up with two first place finishes in the swimming events, and that was thanks to Baker, whose name has been a permanent fixture atop the charts of the 50 and 100 yard freestyles this season.

However in the diving competition, hats were off to sophomore diver Rodriguez who captured both first place finishes in the one-meter and three-meter diving events in the same meet for the first time this year. Krystin Carpenter and Kim Schadt also picked up fourth and fifth place finishes respectively in the events.

The meet was held in an eight-lane pool, as opposed to the usual six-lane set-up, meaning more competitors from each team swam.

Farley put forth another strong effort in this meet also with three second place finishes in the 100 and 200 yard freestyle events as well as the 200 yard individual medley.

Sonnwald also came up with second place finishes with times of 5:09.01, and 10:32.36 in the 500 and 1000 yard freestyle events respectively.

Kerrin McCarthy was also a second place finisher in the 100 yard backstroke, with a time of 1:02.05.

Newcomb believed that the Minutewomen's technique remains strong, just that they were not as fast as usual.

"We swam smart races, just slow," Newcomb said.

For BC it was Sara Guerena's day as she took to the bank three first place victories in the 200, 500, and 1000 yard freestyle events.

Allyson Horgan followed that act with her own show, taking first in the 100 and 200 yard butterflies and the 200 yard individual medley.

After the loss, the Minutewomen dropped to 4–2 in duel meet competition.

On Saturday UMass is back in action in a meet against George Washington and host Rutgers.

Last year the Minutewomen beat Rutgers in their first ever meet with the Scarlet Knights.

"I've seen some results with them, and they have some very talented kids, but I think we stack up really well with them," Newcomb said.

George Washington, which took second place in the Atlantic 10 Championship last year, is a very talented team as well.

The Minutewomen will try to rebound on Saturday with a few adjustments.

"We're going to change our workout pattern and what we're doing right now and go from there," Newcomb said. "We need to pick up the intensity a little bit."

After this meet on the road, the Minutewomen will finish up at home the following Saturday with Fordham. Then it's off to the Atlantic–10 Championships, the meet which UMass sets its goals on each year.

"I think our swimmers our tired, and I think they just need to rest," Newcomb said. "I think that's just the big thing we need to do right now is just give them an opportunity for their bodies to recover and get ready to swim at the A–10's."

women's hoop

continued from page 12

didate and 1994 A–10 Rookie of the year Tajama Abraham. Averaging 18.2 ppg and 9.6 rpg, Abraham will keep the UMass defense on its toes. Another pillar of the Colonial offensive lineup is junior forward Lisa Cerminano who averages 13.4 ppg and 5.1 rpg.

"We're going to have to use our experience," O'Brien said. "Our point guards and shooting guards are going to have to step up. If they play the way they are capable of, it will be a good game."

This detour to the nation's capitol is the last stop before a four game home stand at the William D. Mullins Center.

Men's swim cruises to win over Wildcats

By Jay Warner
Collegian Staff

While the University of Massachusetts men's swimming and diving team could do little to extend its winter break, the Minutemen did control the fate of their season-long winning streak when they faced New Hampshire this past weekend.

In convincing fashion, UMass proceeded to dominate nearly every aspect of the meet, beating the Wildcats 192–106.

With the expectation that his team could cruise to an easy victory against UNH, due to the Wildcats' lack of depth, Minutemen coach Russ Yarworth made a number of changes in the lineup.

"They're not a weak team, they just don't have the depth we have," he said. "Some of our kids that don't get that much time got to swim some events."

Several new names appeared in the 1000 yard freestyle, as freshman Mike Della Galla and sophomore George Charmota placed second and third with times of 10:38.02 and 10:53.31, respectively. With limited experience under their belts, Della Galla and Charmota set the tone for the meet in what would be an overwhelming victory.

Among the many events in which the Minutemen took multiple scoring places, the 100-yard backstroke and 50–yard freestyle events were swept by the UMass squad.

In the 100–yard backstroke, sophomore Sean Anderson, freshman Brian Wisniewski and sophomore Matt Turner took first through third respectively, putting plenty of distance between themselves and the competition.,

In the 50–yard freestyle, Anderson, freshman Geoff Gear and junior Matt Getty swept the event in similar fashion.

Senior Justin Murphy continued to show why he is considered to be one of the top divers in the Atlantic 10. Competing in the three–meter dive at the meet's start, Murphy had a winning score of 276.30, distancing himself considerably from the second place finisher. Murphy continued to be a force throughout the competition, winning the one–meter dive with a score of 321.45, nearly 80.0 points better than his opponent.

Despite the fact that his team was clearly the better of the two, Yarworth felt that no one member stood above the rest.

"It was a moderate performance," he said. "It wasn't something we were really keying on because we knew we could go there and do well. We did okay, but didn't really have a whole lot of highlights."

Having won against the Wildcats, UMass raised its record to a perfect 6–0, and will compete this weekend at Rutgers in a tri–meet which also includes George Washington. With the possibility of tacking on two more wins, Yarworth will work hard to make sure his team performs well in what promises to be a tough meet.

"George Washington is the team that was chosen by the coaches to be number one in the Atlantic–10, so they're a team we are keying on," he said. "Rutgers has some very good swimmers but they're a little short on depth.

"I'm going to have to put together a lineup that I think will give us a good opportunity to continue our undefeated streak."

The Minutemen compete Saturday at noon.

NATALIE MERCHANT
TIGERLILY TOUR
Feb 21 · 8pm
MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
TICKETS $20 & GOLD CIRCLE - AVAILABLE AT THE MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE AND ALL TICKETMASTER LOCATIONS INCLUDING MOVIES & MORE, FILENE'S, RECORD TOWN, VIDEO PARADISE, WOOD BROS. MUSIC, MUSIC FORUM AND NRM MUSIC. TO CHARGE BY PHONE CALL (413) 733-2500. FOR INFO CALL (413) 545-0100. No service charge at box office open M-F 9am-5pm. Sat 10am-5pm. Tickets subject to applicable Ticketmaster service charges. Phone orders subject to additional per order handling fee. Event date and time subject to change.
PRODUCED BY DELSENER/SLATER ENTERPRISES

Direct from Havana!
NATIONAL CUBAN FOLKLORIC DANCE ENSEMBLE
One of the world's most prestigious folkloric dance companies.
Only $5 for Five College Students
Friday, February 9
Concert Hall, 8pm
Tickets: $23, $18, $13
Age 17 and under: $10
Five College Students: $5
Presented with the generous support of Community Health Plan and Cable Advertising
CELEBRATING 20 YEARS
THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
Call for tickets, a complete series listing and ticket discount information 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS

Collegian Graphics, our job is done when your day is just begining

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

UMASS

TEMPLE
Thursday, Feb. 1st. on UVC-TV 19
Channel 19 and 15 on NSCN.
9:00pm Pre-game Show
9:30pm Game Time
approx. 11:30pm Post-game Show
Courtesy of ESPN
Supported by University Food Service, Campus Center Food Service, Campus Center University Store, Office of Undergraduate Admissions and Campus Activities.

UMass Division of Continuing Education
Your entryway into the University and the future
• Over 200 credit courses and noncredit workshops — in the evening!
• Professional development courses, seminars, workshops
• Specialized degree programs
• Courses for recertification points for teachers
Register through February 12.
Call for a free course catalog • (413) 545-0107
e-mail: continued@admin.umass.edu
Division of Continuing Education • University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

Hey UMass Faculty & Students!
Get the Morning Paper delivered to Dorms, Offices, and Limited Off-Campus Locations*
50% OFF
The Boston Globe
SPRING TERM (2/4-5/15)
6 DAYS Mon-Fri & Sun ❒ $29.00
5 DAYS Mon-Fri ❒ $16.50
SUNDAY ONLY ❒ $12.50
The New York Times
SPRING TERM (2/4-5/15)
6 DAYS Mon-Fri & Sun ❒ $51.40
5 DAYS Mon-Fri ❒ $26.40
SUNDAY ONLY ❒ $25.00
Subscribe at the Campus Center
call DADS NEWS at 259-1071
or mail to: DADS NEWS, P.O. Box 633, Amherst, MA 01004-0633
$10.00 Charge for Off Campus delivery

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

EMPLOYMENT

New hiring [illegible]

National Parks hiring [illegible] Parks and Wildlife Positions! Excellent benefits & bonuses. (206) 971-3620 ext. V9612

Fund Raiser: Motivated groups needed to earn $500+ promoting AT&T calling cards. Perfect for clubs, sports teams, fraternities/sororities. No investment or sales required. Call 1-800-592-2121 ext. 200

$3500/Yr Income Potential [illegible]

Undergrad Network Manager Manage our site on the Internet. Help us develop new products. Must be computer literate. Call 1-800-[illegible]

Undergraduate Business Consultant Work with Fortune 1000 companies and many more. Develop computer and group experience. Applications accepted now through February 14. Call 1-800-[illegible] ext. 1

Cruise Ships Hiring [illegible]

Copy Shop Staff [illegible] Copy shop experience preferred but not required. Great location and hours. Application deadline February 14. Call 253-[illegible]

Cruise Ships Hiring [illegible]

Undergraduate Business Consultant Work with Fortune 1000 companies and many more. Develop computer and group experience. Applications accepted now through February 14. Call 1-800-[illegible] ext. 1

Undergraduate Business Consultant [illegible]

Alaska student jobs [illegible]

5 Cruise ships hiring [illegible]

EMPLOYMENT

Premiere Brotherhood/sister campus Massachusetts' Course of positions for trained and energetic students as program specialists in all team sports, especially baseball, basketball, roller hockey, gymnastics, field hockey, soccer, volleyball, tennis openings also golf, archery, archery, pioneering/overnight camping, ropes and rock climbing, weights, fitness and cutting, open high altitude performing arts, fine arts, figure skating, newspaper, photography, yearbook, radio station, cooking, sewing and nursery. All waterfront/pool activities (swimming, skiing, sailing, windsurfing, canoeing, kayaking) Top salaries, room & board and travel. June 18th - August 19th required. Man-Kee Nau (boys) 1-800-753-6118 Danbee (girls) 1-800-392-3752

Alaska employment - Fishing industry jobs up to $3,000+ $6000+ per month. Room and board. Transportation. Male/Female. No experience necessary. (206)971-3511 ext. A5500

$40,000/yr Income potential. Home typing PC plans. Toll free 800 898 9778 ext. R1132 [illegible]

$35,000/yr income potential. Reading books. Toll free 800 898 9778 ext. R1132

Educational summer opportunity Camp Wayne, NEPA (Brodheads) sports oriented. Positions for Specialists for all waterfront sports, camping, climbing, ropes, mountain biking, riflery, ARC, drama, video, radio, all computers, newspaper. Interviews February 28. Please call 1-800-[illegible]-8266 or 610-881-3087, leave your phone number & mailing address.

Summer jobs in Yellowstone Now hiring over 3000 employees to work in hotels, restaurants and other guest services. A representative will be at the conference Wednesday, January 31 between 9:30am-4:00pm stop by for applications and information. TW recreational Services, P.O. Box 165, Yellowstone National Park, WY 82190. (307)344-5324 ext. 2 M-F 8-5 MT. O/V

Wanted bed garden summer counselors, student admissions representatives. Applications available at Admissions Center

Summer Positions Mgmt. positions in Bristol and Hartford. Great resume builder. Possible internship. Summer earnings $8000+ (nearly). Strong work ethic and great attitude a must! Call N.E. Corporate Partners at 1-800-569-9939

HOUSE FOR RENT

Cape Cod group summer rentals. Waterfront houses. Falmouth area (508)477-6000

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742

FOR SALE

Bed for Sale Twin mattress, box spring & frame $70 080 5 Disk CD Changer $70 also CarTrigg 253-7777

93 Cavalier Coupe excellent condition $7500 negotiable amount Call Barbara at 549-9579

486/100MHZ Intel RAM 850HD needs IDE controller Procter monitor, mouse no doubt $900 Call Amerie 549-3864

Buying CD's records and tapes. Also sell 8-track. Discoveries, Inc. Roundhouse Plaza Crafts Ave. (near but tarmac) Northampton 587-9908

Ski & Snowboard - Springbreak '96 Intercollegiate ski weeks only $219 includes 5 day lift ticket, 5 nights lodging, luxury condo's/ 5 days intercollegiate activities (drinking age !!!) Sponsors include Molson & Labatts. Mt. Orford Canada (Just accross the Vermont border) Group leader/rep. discount Call Ski Travel Unlimited 1-800-999-SKI-9

Heil Heil Hot! New metabolism brake through Lecithin 8 100ms Guaranteed results 1-800-600-7389

Scuba Dive Key Largo, FL during Spring Break. 2 credits GPE (L) 10.1 800 767-0977, 545-7336

Spring Break! Cancun $499 Daytona, FL $119 Panama City, FL $159 Best prices and hotels! Call Heidi 256-8110

FOUND

Watch found before intermission at concert sledding hill. If lost, call 6-3284

INSTRUCTION

Free Week February 4-11 Music, Acting, Dance lessons. Performing arts division 72 Bennett Hall, 545-0515

Learn to Scuba Dive 2 credits GPE (L) 08 or 262-0977 - 545-7336

MISCELLANEOUS

Beautiful, friendly 21 month cat needs loving home. Please call ASAP 253-4621

PERSONALS

Welcome Back sisters of Sigma Delta Tau. Have a great semester!

ROOM FOR RENT

One Room on bus route for $700 plus 1/3 utilities. Call us at 665-4756

Housemate Wanted Puffton Village. Call Doreen 549-5221. Asking $280 a month

SERVICES

Need Help writing a resume - Let a pro facilitate it for you. Special student rate. Call Lori 253-1862

TRAVEL

Hitch the Skies Cartn/Mex only $189 R/T Europe $169 / Low domestic rates Ashtech 800-329-7009

14 Spring Break shopping days left! Don't procrastinate! Now is the time to guarantee the lowest rates and best hotel selection for Spring Break '96. Leisure Tours has complete packages to South Padre Island, TX and Cancun. Party with thousands! For free info call 1-800-584-7381. Group rates are available. L.T.I. Leisure Tours International

Cancun Spring Break Best party prices from $749!! American premier travel company, earn free trips and highest commissions! Call 800 798-1509 for info

Spring Break! Book Now! Spring Break '96. With only 1 week to live, don't blow it!! Book Now! Florida & Padre $109 Bahamas $359 Jamaica/Cancun $399 Organize a group. Travel free! Sunsplash Tours 1-800-426-7710

Ski & Snowboard - Springbreak '96 Intercollegiate ski weeks only $219 includes 5 day lift ticket, 5 nights lodging, luxury condo's/ 5 days intercollegiate activities (drinking age !!!) Sponsors include Molson & Labatts. Mt. Orford Canada (Just accross the Vermont border) Group leader/rep. discount Call Ski Travel Unlimited 1-800-999-SKI-9

Heil Heil Hot! New metabolism brake through Lecithin 8 100ms Guaranteed results 1-800-600-7389

Scuba Dive Key Largo, FL during Spring Break. 2 credits GPE (L) 10.1 800 767-0977, 545-7336

Spring Break! Cancun $499 Daytona, FL $119 Panama City, FL $159 Best prices and hotels! Call Heidi 256-8110

WANTED

Looking for some quick, extra pocket money. Collegian needs some people to be ballot referees for a Collegian Poll. Call 545-3500 for more information

Student basketball ticket wanted vs Temple. Paying $25. 538-3106

Do you have junk you want to sell? Need a job? Traveling?

Let other people know.

50,000 eyes would be reading your ad right now if you had placed it in the Collegian Classifieds.

Come down to 113 Campus Center.

Place a Collegian Classified.

Get Noticed.

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily collegenewspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS
1 Headwear
5 Iranian holy city
8 Hebrew letter
13 Nichols' hero
14 Seethe
15 M*A*S*H nickname
16 Erect
17 Münchhausen
18 "The Strange Love of Martha —": Stanwyck movie
19 Al's predecessor
20 Walesa
21 "— Fidelee"
22 Headwear
25 Athlete/author Arthur
26 One billion years
27 Winter mo.
30 Give in
32 Headwear
34 Utah ski resort
35 ...like — thumb
37 Catch redhanded
38 Headwear
40 Defining line
41 Flock female
42 — tea: exactly
43 Small monkey
45 Headwear
49 Gets some shut-eye
52 Discerned
53 Good Feeling, for one
55 Conductor Georg
56 Have the lead
57 Headwear
58 "... Pussycat went —,"
59 Panthers of Penna.
60 Cuba, e.g.
61 Demanding
62 "— Poetica"
63 Morays

DOWN
1 Word with hat or headed
2 Didn't miss —
3 Rain forest flora
4 Above, poetically
5 Popular brunch dish
6 Brando's hometown
7 Sea, to Sartre
8 Neptune's spear
9 Frugal one
10 Hoosier humorist and family
11 Arrow
12 Language of Cork
14 Meat
20 Bite the dust
21 Pay the penalty
23 Palindromic honorific
24 Close
27 Union Jack or Jolly Roger 28 Author Wiesel
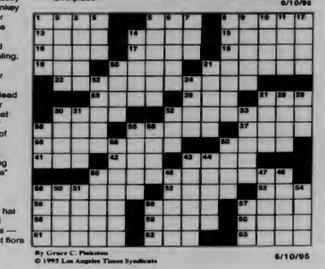
29 Formal dance, in Paris
30 Talon
31 To be: Fr.
32 Gold medalist skier
33 Kipling's birthplace
34 Vote response
35 In that case: Fr.
36 Three-handed card game
39 Ideal
40 Windsor Castle's neighbor
43 Entertains
44 Composer Jacques
45 Curbside coin collector
46 Active
47 Delta
48 Learn by rote
49 Concordes
50 Spoils
51 Other
54 "Oh, dear!"
56 Health resort
57 Enter the fray

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

A	S	T	A		S	O	F	A	S		M	O	O	R
T	O	R	T		M	A	L	M	O		A	G	R	A
T	H	E	H	O	U	S	E	O	F	M	I	R	T	H
T	O	Y	O	S			A	N	T	I	N	E	S	S
			S	M	E	W		E	L	L	S
J	A	R		I	T	E	M		N	E	T	H	E	R
A	C	E		U	R	E	T			A	A	R	E
M	A	D	A	M	E	D	E	T	R	A	Y	M	E	S
S	R	I	M			R	E	I	N		A	C	T
S	E	D	E	R	S		S	A	L	T		L	T	S
			R	A	P	S		S	L	A	S
D	O	M	I	N	A	T	E			I	R	I	S	H
A	B	A	C	K	W	A	R	D	L	A	N	C	E
R	O	M	A			I	T	S	L	I		S	T	A
K	E	E	N		S	N	E	E	L		H	O	R	A



By Grace C. Pinkston
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate
6/10/95

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) – Hopes raised early in the day could be dashed unless you proceed with caution. Do not allow chatty associates to waste your time. Concentrate on work!

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) – Tie up loose ends and complete current projects. Others will understand if you decide to keep a financial arrangement. Take steps to enhance your work surroundings or home environment.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) – Being absentminded could prove costly now. Write down things you must remember. Greater trust is the key to lasting romance. Financial changes are good news.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) – Someone with big plans wants you to join their team. Weigh your options. Although family support is more important than ever, you alone can make the big decision. Romance is sweeter the second time around.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) – Your lucky streak continues as phone lines or travel link you to wonderful news. Romance is a source of joy. Taking a calculated risk pays off. You agree to investigate a loan or financial policy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) – You may now feel ready to bare your romantic or artistic soul. Someone influential is surprisingly easy to impress. New friends or plans will impact favorably on your future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) – Reduce anxiety by discussing a problem openly. Success will be hard to achieve if communication is stilted. Letters could bring about a reconciliation. Make quicker decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) – Partner will consent to your plans. Diplomacy is necessary to avoid alienating close friends over a sensitive matter. Use your special skill for dealing with groups to get a point across.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) – A hunch is accurate. Heed your intuition. Think about working on a free-lance basis. Your openness sometimes works against you. Learn when to remain silent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) – Show your courageous side. Competition in love brings a commitment. Others may be talking about something you did. Refuse to pamper unreasonable people. Do not expect the path of romance to always be smooth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) – Trust your intuition. Close friends will do good deeds to make up for a failure. Look your best if going out tonight. Being part of a small select group will give you a thrill. Pursue romance.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) – Plunge ahead with enthusiasm. Transform any hurdles into stepping stones. Prominent people begin to recognize your hand at writing or painting. A favorite hobby could become a source of income.

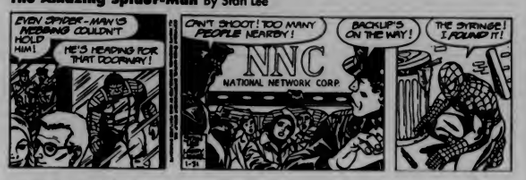
The Amazing Spider-Man By Stan Lee

SPIDER-MAN'S STRENGTH PICKED USELESS AGAINST THE MAN-MONSTER...
EVEN THE WEB-SHOOTER CAN'T STOP HIM!
ONLY ONE THING TO DO!
NO! THERE'S STILL ONE CHANCE!

The Amazing Spider-Man By Stan Lee

I'VE GOT TO DO THIS, HOWARD...
IT'S THE ONLY WAY TO SAVE YOU!
THIS'LL GIVE ME TIME TO FIND THE ANTIDOTE!
BUT IT SEEMS SPIDER-MAN'S TIME HAS JUST RUN OUT!

The Amazing Spider-Man By Stan Lee



EVEN SPIDER-MAN'S WEBBING COULDN'T HOLD HIM!
HE'S HEADING FOR THAT DOORWAY!
DON'T SHOOT! TOO MANY PEOPLE NEARBY!
BACKUP'S ON THE WAY!
NNC
NATIONAL NETWORK CORP
THE SYRINGE! I FOUND IT!

Jim's Journal By Jim

I usually feed Mr. Peterson first thing in the morning.
But today when I got up I noticed I was out of cat food.
So I had to walk to the store and get some.
By the time I got back it seemed like Mr. Peterson wasn't interested in eating anymore.

Kippii By Barry Deutsch

SO, YOU'RE GOING TO COLLEGE ...THIS IS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT MOMENTS OF YOUR LIFE...
WELL, WHEN I WENT TO COLLEGE, MY MOTHER GAVE ME SOME ADVICE THAT HELPED ME GREATLY IN THE YEARS TO COME.
WELL?
I CAN'T REMEMBER WHAT IT WAS, IT WAS AWFULLY GOOD ADVICE, THOUGH.

Monkey Socials By Boogoloo Shrimp

Milkweed By Neil Golden

WHY IS THERE A TREE IN YOUR LIVING ROOM?
IT'S A CHRISTMAS TREE.
WHAT'S CHRISTMAS?
IT'S SORT OF A BIRTHDAY PARTY.
AH. SO YOU'RE CELEBRATION IS SOMEONE'S LIFE.
SOMEONE'S LIFE.
SO YOU DO LUMP A TREE.
NOT EXACTLY. IT'S SORT OF... WE BUY IT, WE DECORATE IT AND LET IT DIE.

Loser Cow Comics By Mike Krozy

Can you Draw? Interested in Drawing a Cartoon or Comic?
Then Show Up at the
MEETING FOR CARTOONISTS
All current and future cartoonists must attend a meeting at 2 pm on February 4 in the Collegian Newsroom, 113 Campus Center.
Please Bring Several Samples With You.
If you have ?'s or cannot attend, please contact, Marni E. Heifner, Managing Editor, at 545-3500.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

THANKS TO MY LEADERSHIP, THE NEW AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL SYSTEM IS DESIGNED ON TIME AND UNDER BUDGET.
I HAD TO CUT A FEW CORNERS. THIS BIG RADAR-LOOKING THING IS A WALL CLOCK. AND MOST OF THE BUTTONS ARE GLUED ON.
IT LOOKS LIKE IT MIGHT BE UM... DANGEROUS.
GREAT... I FINISH EARLY AND WHAT DO I GET. "FEATURE CREEP."

Lucid By Roger & Salem Salloom

I had a girlfriend.
I gave her 2 nicknames, "Sweetie" and "Her Imperial Foulness."
She was a little moody.
She had at least one problem.
Her photo belonged in the dictionary listed under:
"Why don't you show me any attention, you scum?"
I really loved her but she never knew it. She was busy thinking of ways to make herself feel rotten.
Ah.....it's o.k..
She was actually very loveable.
Someday she'll wake up and she'll say softly to herself while her head is still on the pillow.....,
"Maybe it was me who was wrong?"
Then she'll call me up and say, "Don't you owe me $45.?"

Close to Home By John McPherson

OK, HOT SHOT! I JUST CLOCKED YOU GOING 97 IN A 35-MILE-AN-HOUR ZONE!... BUT YOU PROBABLY JUST PICKED UP SOME EXTRA SPEED FROM THIS TAIL WIND! I'M AMBODY SHOULD GET A TICKET, IT'S THE WIND! HA! HA!
PFFFT!
M. Pacher
2-1

Fortunately, Dave had a can of Cop-Be-Nice in the car.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Audette
Copy Editor ..... Chris Conner
Photo Technician ..... Emily Reily
Production Supervisor ..... Tony Morse
Production ..... David Voldan, Kevin Farrar, Ian Gurfield, Jim Ganley

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH	DINNER
Turkey Burger	Greek Lemon Chicken
Fettuccini	Garden Chili
Sesame Noodles	Pastabilities
Sandwich	Sandwich Bar

Franklin

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger	Greek Lemon Chicken
Quiche Lorraine	Veal Cordon Bleu
Meatball Grinder	Fiesta Rice & Cheese
Marty's Deli	Quarter Pound Burger

Hampshire

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger	Greek Lemon Chicken
Grilled Chicken	Veal Cordon Bleu
Meatball Grinder	Sandwich Bar
Sandwich Bar

Worcester

LUNCH	DINNER
Turkey Burger	Greek Lemon Chicken
Fettuccini	Garden Chili
Sesame Noodles	Pastabilities
Sandwich Bar	Manicotti with Saucel

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Top 10 Reasons why the Top 10 only come out once a week now

By Brian Marchionni

10. Last semester, people got tired of saying "this sucks" every day.
9. Somewhere in between the hours and hours of mind wrenching work, I realized that I don't get paid for this.
8. Chancellor Scott left a severed head in my mailbox with a note reading "you."
7. Like anyone on this campus can actually read.
6. Time off gives me the opportunity to spend more time with my pet monkey 'Marcel.'
5. In between the phone calls, threats, and hate mail, it's all I have time for.
4. I got a really nasty paper cut yesterday.
3. My writers are on strike.
2. Whitmore officials have promised to "bill my ass back to the stone age" if I don't lay off.
1. It's what the voices keep telling me to do.

Quote of the Day

"Shakespeare has not only shown human nature as it is, but as it would be found in situations to which it cannot be exposed.

–Samuel Johnson"

Sports

Old rivals meet tonight for grudge match in Philly

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

Rivalry. Grudge match. War.

When the Massachusetts and Temple men's basketball teams renew acquaintances tonight at Philadelphia's McGonigle Hall, there seems to be one thing that both teams will agree on — there will be no holds barred.

"They let everyone in off the streets for this game," Massachusetts coach John Calipari said. "The place sits 3,600 and they'll be 7,200 in the arena. It's a game you live for and if you don't like a game like this you're in the wrong profession and at the wrong school."

In UMass' 15 visits to Temple the team has come away with only one win, that being two years ago 50-49 on a Mike Williams three pointer with just seconds remaining. The top ranked Minutemen remain undefeated (19-0, 7-0 in the Atlantic 10) entering the contest, while the Owls, who started slowly, are now 11-7, and also 7-0 in the A-10.

With a schedule that rivals UMass' the Owls have not been as successful but have some very impressive victories, the two biggest coming in back-to-back weeks knocking off then-No. 2 Villanova 62-56 and then-No. 1 Kansas 74-66 in OT.

Temple will once again be gunning to knock off a highly ranked team, especially its long-time nemesis. Calipari feels his team will be ready for the challenge.

"We've had it every year with all the big games," Calipari said. "It's another one in a line of 10 or 12 big games to this point and this is what you live for. This is what it means to play this [game]. A team dying to beat you and going into their building."

Just a couple of years ago when UMass still played in the Curry Hicks Cage and finally beat Temple, the above quote might just as well have been said by Chaney. Now the tide has turned in the favor of the Minutemen, and the heated rivalry grows with the changing of the guard.

The latest stir around this storied matchup is the addition of Virginia Commonwealth transfer Marc Jackson to the mix. The 6-foot-10-inch, 270 lb. power forward has wreaked havoc upon his opponents to the tune of 16 points a game, while grabbing 9 boards.

Last Thursday, Jackson was involved in an incident against Duke where after a loose ball, he threw a forearm to the back of Duke center Greg Newton's head. No foul was called on the play but, after a review of the play, Jackson was suspended for one game for his actions.

Temple coach John Chaney stayed on campus with his emotionally distraught player during that game, a 54-52 win over St. Joe's, but both will be in action for the showdown of A-10 powers. The 520-win coach stood behind his player.

"We can expect jeers and problems wherever we go," Chaney said. "He's a clean young man and a manly young man, and when he turns to the basket with that much bulk, he's never swinging an elbow.

"I don't condone it, but down I took him out once when he lost the ball," he continued. "He told me he got hit in the mouth and I replied that it doesn't matter. Don't ever turn the other cheek."

The victory over the Hawks gave Temple its eighth win in its last nine games. That game took place last Saturday giving the Owls nearly a week to prepare, while UMass is coming off a 80-50 decision over Fordham on Tuesday.

Last year when UMass took its annual trip to Philly, Johnny Miller lit up the Minutemen for 25, hitting seven three pointers to help knock off the Minutemen 72-63. Miller has just recently returned from a shoulder injury and is not quite 100 percent.

UMass' leading scorer in the matchup at McGonigle, Marcus Camby, matched the output by Miller but his supporting cast wasn't quite up to the task. Of the players returning from last year, the next highest point scorer in that contest tallied six points.

To remain undefeated after this test the UMass coach feels his team must play much better offensively than it did of late.

"We looked sloppy offensively in the first half [against Fordham]," Calipari said. "We forgot we had the best player in the country, and we talked about it at halftime. I think everyone saw that when we came out of the break.

"We also have Donta Bright, [who I've said is] the best finisher in the country. I told Dana [Dingle] he needs to shoot the elbow jumper, shoot the elbow jumper," he added, hitting his fist on the table. "To win against [Temple's] defense, he has to shoot that shot."

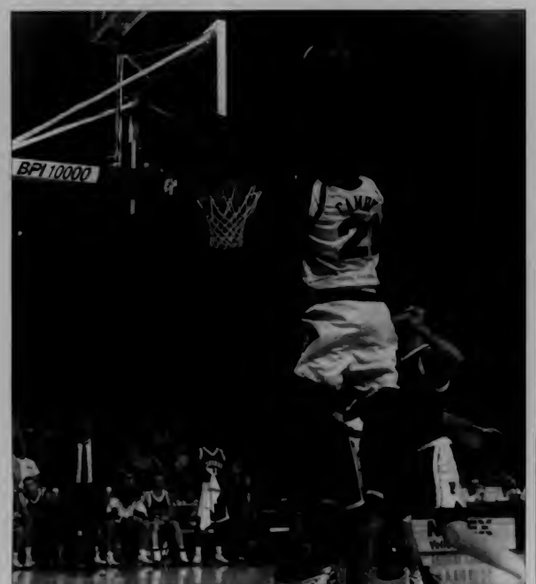
Freshman Charlton Clarke, who will participate in his first ever game between these two teams, described what his teammates have told him to expect in a contest such as this.

"They said that it is a really physical game, and that there is no offense on the inside," the St. Raymond's alum said. "All of the offense comes from the outside game."

When asked about whether he was surprised at his team's undefeated record, Calipari answered with a yes and a no.

"Am I surprised my team has played the way that they have? No," he said. "Am I surprised that some team hasn't come up and shot 70 percent [to beat us]? Yes. We are the big game on everyone's schedule and they're all shooting for us."

Tonight's game will be telecast live on UVC-19 starting at 9 p.m. with pre- and post-game shows hosted by Patrick Sheeran and Josh Jacobs. It can also be heard live on WMUA 91.1 with Mike Reiss on play-by-play and John Patterson on color analysis.



Marcus Camby, who scored a game high 24 points against Fordham Tuesday night, will lead UMass into McGonigle Hall to take on Atlantic 10 rival Temple tonight at 9:30 p.m.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Game Preview

Carmelo Travieso

UMass Tonight 9:30 at McGonigle Hall

UMass' Record at McGonigle Hall 1-14

18-0 / 11-7

Johnny Miller

UMass Probable Starters		Temple Probable Starters
F	Dana Dingle	F	Lynard Stewart
F	Donta Bright	F	Derrick Battie
C	Marcus Camby	C	Marc Jackson
G	Carmelo Travieso	G	Johnny Miller
G	Edgar Padilla	G	Levan Alston

On the Air

TV: ESPN, UVC
Radio: WMUA 91.1 FM, Mike Reiss, John Patterson
WHMP 99.3 FM, Mark Vandameer, Tony Barbee, Jack Leaman

Bruins' defensive struggles continue

Once in this NHL season I spent a king's ransom to attend a Boston Bruins game (why would anyone do that?), a 5-4 defeat of the Dallas Stars. Afterwards, I purchased an 8 by 10 inch photograph of the team in its new uniforms. Pretty snazzy, I thought.

That picture is a little like one of the Simpson trial jury; it was updated for about 15 minutes. Sometimes I look at it and laugh— Alexei Kasatonov, exiled to Providence, where he plays with Blaine Lacher. Neither is even getting the job done on the farm. Mariusz Czerkawski, try your featherweight, bit-free style somewhere else, pal. (It's actually working quite well in Edmonton, if you didn't notice.) Kevin Stevens? Damn, this is killing me.

Taking you back to the summer of '95, the prognosis for the Black and Gold was all good. With Stevens, Shawn McEachern and Joe Mullen claimed in the Pittsburgh fire sale (my didn't that just kill the Penguins), at last it seemed the B's had the depth they needed to get past the playoffs' second round.

Well, they are scoring goals. Their 159 scores in 44 games placed them behind only the Big Four in the Eastern Conference— the Rangers, Flyers, Panthers and Penguins.

But this isn't a game of half-court basketball; life does go on behind the red line. However, that's where the Bruins have played dead so well you'd think they were... well, dead. Though the wholesale changes made by Boston have rendered my photo obsolete and made the side stronger, the most key personnel changes may still await. Let's look at what they might be.

1. Dval Lacher for a true stay-at-home defenseman. Dean Chynoweth is better than Kasatonov, but he's basically a thug and that means a whole lot of trips to the bin. He can stay, but Rick Zombo and Jon Rohloff simply can't. It's stunning the atrocities these two clowns have committed in 1995-96. I mean, I haven't even forgiven Rohloff for that own goal (was it the beginning of the end for Lacher?) in Game 4 of the series with the Devils last year.

If you listen closely while at a Bruins game or watching one on television, sometimes you can hear the

Turn to page HOCKEY, page 12

Ted Kottler on the NHL

GW looms over Minutewomen

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team travels to Washington, D.C. to face defending Atlantic 10 Champion George Washington tonight.

With the Colonials coming off their fifth 20-victory season, the Minutewomen look to knock off the team which sits atop the A-10 West standings.

As for the UMass squad, they have two solid wins over St. Joseph's and St. Bonaventure at their backs and look to bring the Colonials their first loss in the Charles E. Smith Center. This is not an easy task for a team which has been hot and cold the last month of regular season play.

"We've been on this win two, lose one thing for a month," UMass coach Joanie O'Brien said. "Our goal for February is to have the best month of basketball we've had and to take it one game at a time."

To recycle the cliche, when they're hot they're hot and when they're not, they're not. Take Crystal Carroll. The junior forward, who came off a 10 point showing against St. Joseph's, came back with a 26 point tally against St. Bonnie's.

To beat George Washington, UMass is going to have to look to every player to do their part. With senior captains Octavia Thomas and Melissa Gurile usually providing the staple threat, a solid effort from the guards is crucial to pull off the win.

"For this team to get off the roller coaster, we need a solid effort every time we step on the floor from Octavia [Thomas] all the way down the line," O'Brien said.

With Thomas a "big game" player, she will no doubt be in her element. Last year's match-up in D.C. between the perennial A-10 powerhouses saw the Colonials take the Minutewomen 69-60. O'Brien looks forward to the challenge of taking her team into an arena which is guaranteed to be riled up.

With the new East and West divisions of the A-10, this is the only time UMass and GW will meet during the regular season.

"I enjoy when people get on me, it keeps me in the game," O'Brien said of playing in an inevitably hostile arena.

As for the Colonials, who currently stand at 13-5 (6-1) their only conference loss came in a 77-70 loss to Xavier. George Washington is still trying to feel their way with five new women on board.

At the head of the class for GW is All-America can-

Turn to page WOMEN'S HOOP, page 13

UVC to carry UM vs. Temple

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

All UMass on-campus residents will be able to see their basketball team play on a cable TV network and won't even have to leave their rooms tonight. Normally the evening's much anticipated clash between UMass and Temple would not be available for viewing inside one's dorm room, but UVC-19 has taken steps to change that for at least one night.

Beginning at 9 p.m., Josh Jacobs and Patrick Sheeran will host a half hour pre-game show that will lead directly to the tip-off of the Atlantic 10 tussle between the Minutemen and the Owls. They will also host a post-game show following the match-up, starting approximately at 11:30 p.m.

The entire process of this game being broadcast on UVC-19 was started in September by William Sanchez, Production Manager of the student-run television station. By making phone calls to different cable outlets, he found a way to rent the ESPN feed of this particular basketball game.

At a housing meeting on Jan. 10 of this year, Sanchez found sponsors. The Office of Undergraduate Admissions, Campus Center Food Services, University Food Services, the Campus Center University Store and Campus Activities will all support the venture.

Tonight it becomes a reality with UVC-19 broadcasting the UMass game to each and every dorm television set.

"There had been talk of trying this for years," Sanchez said. "This time we really pushed for it and made the calls to make this a reality."

Sanchez said the reason for putting the games on the student television station was to spark student interest in seeing more games on UVC-19, as well as promoting student media coverage.

"We would like the student body to take advantage of the student media coverage here at UMass," Sanchez added. "We are encouraging the students who choose to watch the game in their residence halls to turn down the volume on the television and tune into WMUA 91.1, the student radio station which will be doing play-by-play live from Philadelphia.

"If the interest and support on campus is positive from this event, steps will taken to have at least one more this year and we will pursue the proper procedures to bring more games through UVC."

Off season moves spice up baseball

BRIAN PERILLO on Baseball

There are still over two months until opening day, but a lot has been going on in the world of Major League Baseball. Once again hordes of players have been changing uniforms, and while no blockbuster trades were announced at the winter meetings, one blockbuster move, namely interleague play, seems imminent.

So without further delay, let's crank up that hot stove and take a look around the diamond...

• The Baltimore Orioles have reloaded and now look to be the favorites in the American League East. The O's won the Roberto Alomar auction, and also opened the purse strings to sign third baseman B.J. Surhoff away from the Brewers.

Add in Iron Man Cal Ripken, Jr. and Rafael Palmeiro, and new manager Davey Johnson has what looks like an All-Star team in his infield.

• The Red Sox finally pulled the trigger on the deal for closer Heathcliff Slocumb with the Phillies. Is this a good trade for Dan Duquette and the Beantowners?

The answer is yes, but not because Slocumb is a bona fide major league closer that will solve the Sox' bullpen woes (or because he has such a catchy name). The righthanded sinkerballer has good stuff, and although he had 32 saves a year ago and made an appearance on the NL's All-Star squad, he did struggle at times. Also, last year was the first time in six major league seasons that Slocumb made any noise.

However, the Sox only had to part with Lee Tinsley, who would surprise if he hit over .280 again in a full season in the bigs, Ken Ryan, who got whiplash last year watching all the balls hit off him soar into the bleachers, and Glenn Murray, who, despite showing good power in the minors last year, had a problem hitting over .220.

The Sox are very high on Dwayne Hosey for the centerfield slot, and acquired Alex Cole and Milt Cuyler as insurance. So the loss of two centerfielders doesn't mean much, and if Slocumb tallies half the saves he did last year, it will be an improvement over the erratic Ryan.

Turn to page BASEBALL, page 12

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 72 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, February 2, 1996

Minutemen pulverize Owls
Last night UMass extended their win-streak to 20 destroying Temple 59-35. Carmelo Travieso led UMass with 16 points (See story, page 10).

Controversy over new police chief
As Springfield prepares to announce its new police chief, several candidates for the position have threatened to sue (See story, page 3).

The Next Green Day?
The Mr. T Experience's new album on Lookout! is one of many hot current releases in the world of punk rock and hard-core (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
It'll warm up today — a real big high near 25. But the groundhog won't get to see his shadow today because we're expecting snow, up to 3 inches. That fabulous snow will taper off Saturday with a high around 15.

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 25 LOW: 10	HIGH: 15 LOW: 8	HIGH: 10 LOW: 5

Antonio's lines unsafe; town looks for solution

EMILY BERRY / COLLEGIAN

Students enjoy pizza outside of Antonio's. The Town of Amherst is addressing safety questions about Antonio's late- night student customers.

By Roseann Cohen
Collegian Staff

Slices of chicken-broccoli, pepperoni and sausage, tortellini and taco pizza have caused a potential safety hazard in the town of Amherst on weekend nights when lines of hungry customers pour out onto North Pleasant Street outside Antonio's Pizza.

The Town of Amherst has made several attempts to find a way to control the crowds assembling outside the steam- filled windows of the pizzeria during late nights.

The four-year-old pizza by-the-slice restaurant generates a large amount of business after the uptown bars close. The problem is that people gather on the sidewalks and streets.

Although no accidents have occurred due to the crowds, the town is taking no chances.

Chair of the Town Commercial Relations Committee (TCRC) Robert Brooks said he is concerned for the safety of those outside the restaurant, as well as motorists.

"It's an accident waiting to happen," he said. "We are reluctant to wait until something happens to try and resolve the issue, both in the interest of pedestrians and motorists."

Amherst's Select Board had wanted to close Antonio's before 1 a.m., when the matter of renewing Antonio's license had come up at a meeting of the Select Board in December 1994. However, after local Amherst businesses rallied to support Antonio's, the town turned the safety issue over to the TCRC to find a solution that would not penalize Antonio's for its success.

"We aren't the root of this problem, and it's kind of like we're being discriminated against because of our location," said Chris Sarage, manager of Antonio's. "Other businesses can stay open because they have a different location... We're just meeting a demand."

"It was quite clear, from the sentiment of those attending the meeting, that it would be unfair to place the burden of resolving a long-standing community problem on one successful business," said Robert Brooks, stressing the necessity of finding a fair solution to the problem.

"This is not a new problem, and for Antonio's to have to close earlier it would mean we would have to punish success," said Brooks. "It's not Antonio's problem, it's a problem for the town."

In addition to emphasizing the responsibility of the town to resolve the safety issue, Brooks also reflected on the opinions expressed at a meeting of the TCRC on Jan. 2. "Some people raised concern about the bars, that behavior was less affected by pizza than by alcohol... but the focus on alcohol was focused on as heavily as the mere numbers of people," he said.

Sarage's comments mirrored the sentiments raised at the meeting. "We don't serve alcohol or instigate such behavior," he said.

Brooks listed possible suggestions for the town to employ that were raised at the meeting such as lowering speed limits or adjusting late-night PVTA bus schedules to extend later into the night. Also among the many suggestions was the idea of closing of North Pleasant Street and re-routing traffic between certain hours to create a "pedestrian mall."

However, according to Brooks, since the meeting was held while many students were home on winter break, there will be another meeting held so that students will have more input via their elected student representatives. This meeting will be held on Feb. 13 at 5:15 p.m. at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst.

"No one solution is desirable or appropriate, and it will be a combination of many things. We are looking for cooperative solutions," Brooks said, urging for a combined effort on the part of students, citizens, businesses and town officials to find a solution. "We want everyone to come up with a solution that will protect their safety in a way that will not impinge on a successful business owner and respect the rights of all those concerned."

On-campus gun incidents tried

■ Former student found guilty in Southwest shooting

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

A former University of Massachusetts student was sentenced yesterday to serve six months in Hampshire County House of Corrections.

Georgy Jean-Louis was involved in a multiple gun shot incident in the Southwest Residential Area in the early hours of April 30, 1995. At that time, an argument broke out between Jean-Louis and a non-student outside Washington Residence Hall. The argument escalated and Jean-Louis allegedly shot several rounds from a handgun.

Two individuals were struck by the gunfire and sent to Cooley Dickinson Hospital for treatment. One victim suffered injuries to the arm and leg and the other with a wound to the stomach, police said. The victims reported that they were sitting on a nearby wall and were not involved in the argument when they were shot.

At Hampshire County District Court in Northampton, Jean-Louis was charged with possession of a firearm on the UMass campus. His two counts of assault with an intent to murder were dismissed by the Commonwealth.

He plead guilty to the firearm charge and agreed the Commonwealth had sufficient facts to convict him for that.

An additional charge of unlicensed possession of a firearm was also dropped.

Jean-Louis' sentence was divided into two periods of three months. He will surrender himself to the Court on May 31 and serve 90 days. On May 30, 1997, Jean-Louis will again surrender to finish his sentence.

■ Jury finds Holyoke man guilty in possession trial

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

A Holyoke man was sentenced to two and a half years in jail after a jury found him guilty of two counts of illegal possession of a firearm at the University of Massachusetts.

Joel Perez, 20, was immediately put into custody, and is set to serve one year of direct time.

The jury found him "not guilty" on a count of receiving a firearm with an obliterated serial number.

Last summer, Perez was stopped by UMass police for driving without displaying an inspection sticker and for having a license plate fixed in the rear window.

The jury found the officers had sufficient reason for stopping the vehicle.

While approaching the vehicle, a police officer called for backup after noticing suspicious activity in the car. Police ordered Perez and the three passengers to exit the car. Upon inspection of the vehicle, two firearms were found.

Charges of illegal gun possession against Frankie Rivera, 19, of Amherst, were dismissed when he agreed to cooperate with the authorities. His testimony for the prosecution helped convict Perez.

In a separate trial, a juvenile passenger was found guilty. Details of his trial are sealed due to his age.

A jury is currently deliberating on the fourth passenger, Edwin G. Carmona, 23, of Holyoke.

School of Ed TV to be shown in 30 cities

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Persons in over 30 cities and towns across Massachusetts and Connecticut can now watch University of Massachusetts science professor Dr. Richard Konicek do science experiments from the comfort of their living rooms.

UMass Educational Television, a project of the School of Education, has recently signed an agreement with Continental Cablevision of Western New England in which the highly acclaimed television programs of the School will be aired in more than 30 cities and towns in the two states.

"This is a unique opportunity to share the resources of the University with the public using this medium," said Liane Brandon, UMass Educational Television co-director, "We are very excited about this partnership."

The UMass Educational Television programs were originally only seen in Amherst. Their programs will now be available in Westfield, Holyoke, Springfield, Northampton, and many other communities.

"We were very impressed with the quality of the UMass shows and are delighted to be able to provide them to our viewers," said Jim McKeever, community programming manager of Continental Cablevision of Western New England. "We are proud to be a partner in a first-of-its-kind venture on a large scale which has the potential to reach 150,000 subscribers."

"We have always been a bridge between the University and the community," said Scott Perry, a graduate student who is the coordinator of UMass Educational Television said. "We are very happy to expand. We can now introduce a larger community to the University and the School of Education."

UMass Educational Television was developed to create innovative, original educational programming using the resources of the School of Education and the University.

Brandon said, "We are very excited to be able to share our resources with the community on such a large proportion."

UMass Educational Television also serves as a learning laboratory for students and teachers in order for them to learn how to create educational programs.

"We serve as a very good workshop for students," said Perry. "We employ up to six interns from a variety of departments every semester and three graduate students. They learn every aspect of production, from the actual shooting to editing."

The television shows produced are designed for a general audience. They are of special interest to educators, parents and students.

"We wanted to create original, non-commercial educational television that we would like our kids to be watching and that we would want to watch ourselves," said John Carey, co-director of UMass Educational Television. "This seems like a wonderful way to reach a larger audience."

The UMass Educational Television Program will begin by airing three shows on Continental Cablevision.

"Who Knows?" is a show in which campus experts provide answers to viewers' questions. The majority of the program will be partial to children. It will feature them asking basic questions such as, "Why is there salt in the ocean?" and "Why do we sleep?"

In "Fine Print" five of the Valley's acclaimed authors will read and speak about their work and their muses. The show will be taped at Wooton's book store in Amherst and features Martin Espada, Julius Lester, Patricia Wright, Paul Mariani and Sonia Nieto.

Dr. Richard Konicek will be teaming up with some adventurous 7 and 8-year-olds to perform science experiments in the show "Try this at Home."

"I expect great things from the UMass Educational Television/Continental Partnership," said School of Education Dean Bailey W. Jackson. "This venture demonstrates the potential for private and public collaborations in education. It's clearly a win-win position."

U.N. officials unearth more mass graves in Bosnia

By George Jahn
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — A U.N. investigator surveyed human bones — some with flesh and clothing still on them — in a muddy field where thousands of people may be buried, and prepared Thursday to supervise the excavation of another mass grave. The dig — which would be the first one supervised by the United Nations — could stir desire for revenge and complicate moves toward reconciliation after nearly four years of war.

And it could prove politically problematic as investigators provide more ghastly evidence for an international war crimes tribunal.

But unearthing corpses could also answer the burning questions of relatives over the fates of tens of thousands of people missing in Bosnia's war.

Meanwhile Thursday, two U.S. soldiers were wounded by a land mine in Hadizici, 10 miles southeast of the American base in Tuzla. One suffered a shrapnel wound to the leg and the other was injured in the right foot, the military said.

They were taken to a U.S. military hospital, where they were listed in stable condition. Their names were not immediately released.

French special forces killed one gunman and disarmed another late Thursday in a tough NATO response to recent sniping at Alliance troops in Serb-held Sarajevo.

A gunman was shot and seriously wounded, dying of his injuries despite what a NATO statement said was medical intervention. Another armed civilian, found in the same area just west of the city proper, was disarmed "without any bloodshed," said the statement from the NATO-led force implementing peace in Bosnia. The incidents occurred in an area supposed to be free of soldiers after Bosnia's foes pulled back from front lines Jan. 19, the statement said. It did not say whether the two gunmen were Serbs, but NATO officials have blamed Serbs for recent sniping in Ilidza.

Investigator Manfred Nowak visited a ghoulish field near the town of Glogova in eastern Bosnia, where Muslim authorities fear thousands of missing residents of Srebrenica, an enclave overrun by Serb rebels last July, may be buried.

Bones protruded from the snow and mud. One human leg still wore what appeared to be pajamas. A few boots and scraps of clothing lay nearby.

Nowak, snapping occasional photographs, said it was imperative to begin excavation as soon as weather permits.

He said he had received assurances from the new Serb mayor of Srebrenica "that I would have full access to all alleged sites of mass graves, or other places where I could find evidence about the whereabouts of missing persons."

Without learning the fate of the missing, Nowak said, "we will never achieve a lasting peace."

The first excavation will begin Friday, when Nowak will travel to the area around Jajce in northwestern Bosnia, where three graves containing 46 bodies were recently found.

Ljerko Radic, a spokesman for the Bosnian Croat commission on exchange of prisoners and bodies, said excavation would start with a pit holding 33 bodies.

The grave at the village of Carevo Polje was one of three discovered when recent flooding washed away earth and revealed parts of corpses. One of the other graves holds nine bodies; the other holds four.

"They are all believed to be victims of the (Bosnian) Serb purge," Radic told The Associated Press, speaking from Mostar. He said the victims apparently ranged in age from 11 to 70 and were mostly Croats and Muslims. It was unclear when the killings took place, but Serbs took the area in October 1992. Bosnian Croats regained it last September.

The NATO-led force in Bosnia has said it will not guard or help dig up mass graves. The extent to which the force would help Nowak's team on Friday was unclear.

Last fall, the Bosnian government and Bosnian Croats began excavating mass graves in areas of northwestern Bosnia captured from Serbs. Friday's dig would be the first with a high-ranking international official present.

The excavation of mass graves has long been a sensitive political issue in Bosnia, which is thought to have up to 300 of them. The Muslim-led government is coming under increasing pressure from citizens to determine the fate of an estimated 20,000 or more missing people. Many are presumed dead.

This week, protesters demanding information trashed the Red Cross offices in northeastern Tuzla, where thousands of refugees from Srebrenica found refuge, demanding more information on the missing.

On Thursday, more than 2,000 women gathered outside local government offices in Tuzla, demanding to see President Alija Izetbegovic and threatening a march down the "road of death," 40 miles southeast to Srebrenica through Serb-held territory. "We will dig out the mass graves with our bare hands, and carry our beloved in bags back home," one of the demonstrators shouted through a megaphone.

The excavation of the graves could inflame passions as the extent of mass murder is revealed and families learn of loved ones' fate. But it could also answer questions that are consuming relatives about the fate of the missing.

"What would you do if you knew that the one you loved the most had been rotting for more than 200 days in a camp, or was lying dead somewhere in a field, in the mountains, on the road of horror from Srebrenica to Tuzla?" asked an appeal from the Tuzla protesters addressed to "the women of the world."

The protesters planned to take their protest to Sarajevo on Friday.

Izetbegovic wrote to the protesters in an attempt to placate them, assuring them that he understood their anger and urging patience.

"We will find the truth," he said.

Techniques for pain sufferers provided by support group

By Melanie Arruda
Collegian Staff

Pain, from back injuries to tension headaches, may be inevitable, but the misery is optional, according to Gail Finger, founder and facilitator of the Pain Management Support Group at Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

The most mentioned piece of progress is a sense of feeling more in control over the intensity and frequency of the pain," Finger said.

Clients deal with chronic pain accompanied by stress resulting from injury, disease, illness or structural damage caused by back injury. Chronic migraines, endometriosis or fibroid within the uterus that cause painful menstruation and tension headaches are also common complaints.

Chronic pain usually lasts for six months or more, according to Finger.

The outpatient program is a specialty for people who live with the stress of pain, Finger said. The Pain Management Group operates under the premise that people with chronic pain can still live a life with pain.

Group members follow an eight element program that lasts an average of 10 to 12 visits for four to six months through either weekly or monthly meetings.

The first component deals with Finger teaching clients mind and body coping techniques helping clients deal with the element of pain after the client's "fight-or-flight" response.

Whether the pain is chronic or acute, the person is in a hyper-aroused state called the "fight-or-flight" response, she said. This response involves numerous chemical changes that cause responses such as anxiety and sensitivity to noise or touch she added.

"They may be experiencing more pain because of the fight-or-flight response since muscles tend to tense up," according to Finger.

The program's participants either treat pain ("fight response") or avoid pain altogether ("flight response"), she said. Pain is treated through medicines, acupuncture, doctors and massage therapy or by avoiding certain activities.

The second program component involves clients completing a daily pain scale evaluation in between appointments or keeping

Turn to PAIN page 3

Campus Police Log

Accident

Jan. 21
A vehicle in Lot 63 was struck by a unknown individual on Stockbridge Rd.

Alarm

Jan. 22
Overheating in HVAC system on the 13th floor of the Lederle Research Center.

Annoying behavior

Jan. 19
A investigation has begun of allegedly threatening behavior by a individual at the Hampshire Dining Commons. Jan. 30
Individuals were reported throwing snowballs at Johnson Residence Hall.
Five juveniles were asked to leave campus after smashing bottles in Parking Lot 45.
A individual claimed she was followed by a motorist who forced her car into the guardrail on Route 116, causing damage to her vehicle. She was advised by the University of Massachusetts Police Department to report the incident to the Hadley Police Department.

Assault and battery

Jan. 28
A individual reported being assaulted during an altercation at the Mullins Center skating rink.

Burglary/breaking and entering

Jan. 29
A vending machine in Field Residence Hall was broken into, and its contents, including cash, were stolen. A similar incident happened in Grayson Residence Hall.

Domestic violence

Jan. 18
There was a report of a domestic situation where a woman was thrown to the ground by a man. The woman refused medical treatment; the man left the area on a PVTA bus. The incident remains under investigation.

Drug law offenses

Jan. 28
Drug law offenses were reported in Gorman Hall.
Jan. 29
Drug law offenses were reported in Coolidge Residence Hall and Baker Residence Hall.

Heath/safety hazard

Jan. 19
Housing Services received a report that toilets were backing up in Brooks Residence Hall, causing water to overflow into the lobby.

Larceny

Jan. 17
A individual reported a gym bag, containing a tape deck, was stolen from Boyden Gym.
Jan. 18
An individual reported his gym bag containing credit cards was stolen. Several transactions have been made on credit cards in the area.
Jan. 19
A individual reported his credit cards were stolen from Boyden Gym.
Jan. 28
Individual reported a filing cabinet stolen from John Q. Adams Residence Hall.
Individual reported TV, computer, and VCR, stolen during intersession from Coolidge Residence Hall.
Stereo stolen from room during intersession.
Credit cards stolen in December from Thoreau Residence Hall were reported as being used illegally at area businesses.
Jan. 29
Individual reported his refrigerator stolen from Pierpont Residence Hall.
A vehicle was broken into in Parking Lot 13 and license plates were stolen.
There were reports of shoplifting at Campus Center Store.
Jan. 30
An individual reported his laptop computer stolen from Crampton Hall.

Medical Emergency

Jan. 26
An individual with chest pains was transported to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
Jan. 29
An individual in the second floor bathroom of Kennedy Residence Hall was placed into protective custody.
An individual was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital after experiencing problems from falling on his head.
An intoxicated individual was taken from the courtyard in Baker Residence Hall to Health Services.
Jan. 30
An individual was injured falling on ice near Mahar Auditorium and was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital due to a reaction to medication.

Motor Vehicle Theft

Jan. 18
A vehicle stolen from Lot 13 on Dec. 23 was recovered by the Palmer Police Department. The incident remains under investigation.

Noise Complaint

Jan. 20
A loud party was reported on the sixth floor of the Campus Center.
Jan. 27
A loud party was reported in Pierpont Residence Hall.

Suspicious Person

Jan. 23
A trespass notice was issued to a individual in the Campus Center.

Traffic Stop

Jan. 22
Christopher Padovano, 22, of 19 Denise Dr., Randolph was arrested and had his license suspended for driving without an inspection sticker.
Jan. 25
Christopher G. Filasky, 22, of 20 Turnpike Blvd., Middle Island, N.Y., was arrested on North Pleasant Street for driving under the influence.
Jan. 30
Ibraham S. Ali, 23, of 698 Alden St., Springfield was arrested on Commonwealth Ave on a warrant.

Vandalism

Jan. 17
There was a report of graffiti in a Campus Center bathroom near the Collegian office.
Racial graffiti was written on the back seat of a PVTA bus.

Warrant Service

Jan. 29
Patrick Belizaire, 23, of 80 New Whitney St., Boston was arrested under warrant.

Soon to be rolling your way,

Collegian On-Line

BEHIND EVERY ONE OF OUR GREAT LOCATIONS IS SOMEONE WHO DOESN'T WORK THERE.

Make no mistake. they're definitely T.J. Maxx professionals. But they're not the ones who work in our stores — you'll find them behind the scenes at our corporate headquarters. And you could join them through the T.J. Maxx Corporate Executive Training Program.

As a Merchandise Analyst, the first step in our career path which leads to a Buyer or Planning Manager position, you will:

- impact the merchandise mix of over 500 stores nationwide
- be involved in making and implementing critical merchandise planning and distribution decisions
- utilize your analytical problem-solving and creative skills

Working for America's largest off-price retailer, you will also enjoy valuable on the job training, individualized mentor support and a variety of informative seminars. Not to mention a Home Office just 30 minutes from scenic downtown Boston!

Then come find out if this is right for you — to discover what the T.J. Maxx Corporate Executive Training Program can do for you. Visit us at our on-campus information session:

Monday, February 5th, 6pm 8pm,
Campus Center, Room 162-175

If unable to attend, please forward your resume to: College Recruiter, T.J. Maxx, Dept. UMA, P.O. Box 770, Cochituate Road, Framingham, MA 01701. E-mail: maxx_mail@tjx.com

T.J.maxx

We are an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to workforce diversity.

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Friday, Feb. 2

Meeting — There will be the first meeting of the Alliance Christian Fellowship at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. The room number will be posted by the elevator downstairs. Call Mark or Elizabeth at 253-7206 for information.

Religious — Campus Crusade for Christ will have a meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. There will be a sign with the room number on it. All students are welcome. For more information call Andrew at 256-3469.

Poetry — Thomas Grimes will be a featured guest at Claudia's Cafe for an erotic poetry reading event. The reading begins at 8 p.m. There is a $2 cover and sign-up at the door. For information call Danielle at 546-5155.

Meeting — There will be a general interest meeting of the Bill Weld for President National Draft Committee in the Lower Level East Room of the Bangs Community Center in Amherst. The Center is located near RAO's Coffeehouse on Boltwood Walk. For more information call Martin at 546-6758.

Saturday, Feb. 3

Community — Hosaga of Springfield College will be sponsoring its 21st Annual PowWow from 1-10 p.m. at Dana Gym on the campus of Springfield College. There will be dancing in the afternoon and evening, and Native American vendors will be selling products and supplies. Admission is free. For more information contact Grant at (203) 655-4685 or Bill at 796-7147.

Dance — There will be a Scandinavian Dance Workshop from 6:30-8 p.m. at the South Amherst Munson Library. Arna Desser will teach the class. The cost is $5. For information call 549-1913.

Dance — There will be a English Country Dance tonight at 8 p.m. at the South Amherst Munson Library. The cost is $5, and Helen Davenport will lead the dances. For more information call 549-1913.

Sunday, Feb. 4

Music — PAD Jazz Pops! The Performing Arts Division at UMass will present a number of different theater and musical styles, including commercial, jazz, and folk styles. The free presentation will be at Bezanson Recital Hall at 3 p.m. For more information call Susan at the PAD at 545-0519.

Monday, Feb. 5

Music — There will be a variety of musical classes offered as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. In FAC 155 there will be Voice Repertoire with Nikki Stoia from 2:30 -3:30 p.m., and African/Cuban Drumming with Joe Platz from 7–9 p.m. In FAC 151 there will be a Piano class with Fannetta McLean.

Music — In the Old Chapel Seminar Room there will be a Voice class with Jane Hanson from 7–8 p.m. In Old Chapel 116 there will be a Musical Skills and Composition class with Sherry Buskey from 8–9 p.m. Call the Susan at the PAD, 545-0519, for more information.

Dance — There will be two dance classes offered as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. From 7–8 p.m. in the Old Chapel Auditorium there will be a Jazz class with Jenn Scanlon. Scanlon will also teach a Tap class in the same room from 8–9 p.m. Call Susan at 545-0519 for more information.

Meeting — UVC-19 is having its first general body meeting for the semester at 7 p.m. in the studio at Student Union Room 216. It is mandatory that staff members attend at least two of these meetings per semester. Anyone interested is welcome to attend. For more information call 545-1336.

Meeting — UMass Update will hold a news meeting at 7 p.m. in the UVC-19 studios. Anyone interested in reporting, writing, or becoming a member of the technical crew is welcome. Call 545-1336 for information.

Meeting — The UMass Ski Club will hold a general meeting for skiers and snowboarders at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. All abilities are welcome. For more information contact Arik at 545-3437.

Call 1-800 GIVE LIFE.
Please bring some form of I.D.

Notices

Job Applications — The GEO Personnel Committee is accepting applications for three part-time positions: Office Coordinator, Grievance Coordinator, and Contract Campaign Coordinator. All positions are for 20 hours per week at $12.30/hr for 16 weeks. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9. Contact Beth at 545-0705 or 665-3299 with any questions.

Meetings — The Everywoman's Center has announced its group meetings for the spring semester. There will be a Communication and Intimacy Group on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m., a Re-entry Women's Group on Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m., a Women and Self-Esteem Group for Undergrad Women on Mondays at 7:00 p.m. and a Women in Transition: Exploration Through Expressive Arts Group on Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. These groups may require registration and a screening interview. Call the Everywoman's Center at 545-0883 by Feb. 16 for more information.

Meeting — The Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a Rape Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and a Child Sexual Abuse Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:00 p.m. Both of these groups require screening interviews. Call 545-0800 by Feb. 7 for information.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 585-0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5–6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545-4824.

Writing — mOthertongue, a multi-lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587-9884.

Religious — Rides are being provided to any students who would like to attend worship services at the Alliance Church on Sunday mornings. For information contact Mark at 253-0361.

Meeting — The African Student Association holds a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the SWAG office. Meeting is open to everyone.

Meeting — Nommo News and Drum Supplement holds general body meetings on Thursdays at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546-2363 or 546-5562.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995–96 issue. Any Five-College student is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 406E Student Union, or call 545-2240.

Semi-Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi-formal on Feb.10 in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 5-0960.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253-9622.

Religious — Rides to Chapel: Christ Community Chapel of Amherst sponsors "Pick Me Up." Worship time 10-11:30 a.m. every Sunday. Bus stop points 9:45 a.m. at the GRC, Fine Arts, North Village, Southpoint, Prince House, Southwest parking lot and Amherst College at Converse Hall.

Dancing — There is International Folkdancing at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst every Friday, 8–10 p.m. Greek, Bulgarian, Turkish, American, former Yugoslavian, Armenian, Israeli, Hungarian, French ... teaching at all levels, beginners welcome. For more information, call Eva and Gene, 549-6748 or Cindy and Dennis, 323-6330.

Health — Worried about HIV/AIDS? Call 1-800-750- 2016. The Family Planning Council's HIV Hotline counselors can tell you whether or not you are at risk for contacting HIV; how you can protect yourself from contracting the virus; where, when and how to get a free, anonymous HIV antibodies test at over 70 sites throughout the state.

Health — The Family Planning Council Tobacco Cessation Project offers free, confidential individual & group counseling/support to smokers trying to quit. Variety of methods including "the patch." Call Lynne at 1-800-696- 7752.

Grant deadlines — The UMass Arts Council single project/event grant applications deadlines for Spring 1996 are February 16 for events after March 6, March 15 for events after April 3, and April 19 for events after May 8 including Summer and Fall 1996 projects/events.

Skiing — Cross country skiing guides for the visually impaired are needed. Guide training is provided; you must have your own equipment and advanced skiing ability. Contact Chris at 584-0807.

Astronomy — The Amherst Astronomy Association will conduct free Planetarium Shows every Saturday in February at the Amherst College Bassett Planetarium. For more information contact Tom at 256-6234.

Scholarship — Applications are now available for the UNCF-Merck Science Fellowships. Applications for the fellowships, which are primarily targeted at African American science students, can be obtained through the Registrar's Office. The deadline for applications is Feb. 26.

Health — The Breast Health Project, a program of the Family Planning Council of Western Mass., provides physical exams, breast and pelvic exams, Pap smears and referrals for mammograms and colposcopies at sites in Northampton and Amherst. For more information on these services call Ellen or Anne at 1-800-696-7752.

Spring Class — French 372: Advanced Conversation has been added to the class schedule for spring semester. The class will be taught Christian Garaud and will meet Tu-Th at 11:15.

Art — The UMass Arts Council will sponsor its first art exhibit of the semester Feb. 6–28. The exhibit, entitled "The New Dimension," will be shown in the Student Union Art Gallery and is free and open to the public. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information call 545-0792.

Tutoring — Tutoring services are available by appointment at the Learning Resources Center in the W.E.B. DuBois Library from Dec. 15–Feb. 12. For information contact Linda at 545-5334.

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association, holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., in the Campus Center. For information call Utama at 256-8482.

Class — There will be a mindfulness-based stress management course that will focus on meditation, yoga, and relaxation exercises. The class will meet every Wednesday, 6-8:30 p.m. at the Synthesis Center in Amherst. The cost is $250, and the class starts Feb. 28. Call Carla for more information at 253-5494.

Exemption Tests — There will be two Tier 1 Basic Math Skills Tests this semester, for exemption from the Tier 1 requirement. Test dates are Wednesday, Mar. 13 and Tuesday, Apr. 2, both at 6:30 p.m. in Marcus Hall, Rm 131. Students taking the tests should bring an ID and a #2 pencil. Contact the Math Dept. for information.

Senior Portraits — The Index Senior Portraits will be taken from Feb. 5 – Feb. 23, in Campus Center Rm 177/178. Call 1-800-836-0558 to schedule a free appointment.

Meeting — There will be a meeting of the Animal Rights Coalition on Thursday, Feb. 8, at 7 p.m. in Room 306 of the Student Union. For more information call 546-0558.

Library Tours — Orientation tours for the DuBois Library will be held February 1–2 and February 5–9. Tours leave from the entrance library at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily.

Exchange Program — The Domestic Exchange office will be holding information sessions throughout Feb. in the Campus Center at 4:30 p.m. For further information contact the office at E-26 Machmer Hall or Liz at 545-5351.

THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST
AMHERST, MA
253 3442
We Are Now On OCMP!
10 % DISCOUNT
TO STUDENTS
ALL YEAR
WITH UMASS ID.

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst. 256-0080

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

States move to ban gay weddings

Hawaii's attempt to allow same-sex marriage prompts debate

(AP) — Alarmed by efforts in Hawaii to let gays wed, several states are moving closer to banning recognition of same-sex marriages. California's Republican-controlled Assembly voted 41-31 on Wednesday to block the state from recognizing same-sex marriages. The bill goes next to the Senate. The debate left the Legislature's only openly gay member teary-eyed.

"Whenever a society wants to demonize a particular group it prohibits them from marrying," said Assemblywoman Sheila Kuehl, referring to laws that once barred slaves and interracial couples from marrying. Kuehl is a lesbian and former actress who played Zelda on TV's "Dobie Gillis."

Also Wednesday, a House committee in Washington state approved a bill to ban same-sex marriages. While the full House may approve the measure, Senate passage is unlikely and Democratic Gov. Mike Lowry has pledged a veto.

And on Thursday, a committee in Idaho's legislature introduced a bill that would make same-sex marriages performed in another state invalid in Idaho.

Lawmakers said they introduced the bills when it became apparent that Hawaii's courts or Legislature might make same-sex marriages legal, and thereby grant gay couples the social, legal and financial benefits afforded married heterosexuals.

"It's like a freight train coming at us from Hawaii," said Bob Larimer Jr. of Vancouver, director of Washington for Traditional Values.

In California, the measure may have a harder time getting through the Senate, where Democrats hold a slim majority.

In 1993, Hawaii's Supreme Court agreed with three gay couples that they had been unconstitutionally denied marriage licenses in 1990. The justices said the state had to show a compelling interest to ban such marriages and sent the case back for trial in a lower court.

The lower court has scheduled arguments in the case for July 15.

Police threaten suit over nominee

By Jeff Donn
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — A lawyer dropped threats Thursday of immediate legal action to block the appointment of a new police chief by city officials, who have named a woman as the top candidate.

If named to the post, Capt. Paula Meara would be the city's first female police chief and the most powerful local policewoman in New England.

Aides to Mayor Michael Albano said they would announce the new chief Friday after a vote by the city's Police Commission. "We're confident that the process was valid, legal, thorough," said City Solicitor Michael Kogut.

A lawyer for several failed candidates, including Acting Police Chief Daniel Spellacy, had threatened to ask Thursday for a court order heading off the appointment.

But the lawyer, Frank McGee, acknowledged late Thursday that "it was 95 percent sure it would have been an exercise in futility." He said he will await a state Civil Service hearing set for Feb. 29 on the complaint of his six clients.

He also contended that an aide to Gov. William Weld had requested Capt. Meara's resume — and only hers — from City Hall on Thursday. Weld was scheduled to speak at Friday's news conference announcing the new chief.

"It's plain and clear to me that there's an outright scam going on here," said McGee.

But Robert Bliss, a Weld spokesman, said the aide had actually asked for resumes of the top three candidates. "The point of the matter is the governor doesn't have any influence" in naming a city police chief, Bliss added.

McGee's clients are questioning the form of testing and the credentials of examiners hired by a consultant to do the testing. Unlike traditional written exams, tests confronted candidates with a variety of hypothetical situations to resolve.

Meara scored highest of all the candidates.

However, relations have not always been smooth between her and the department. Meara, 50, has sued twice herself during her 22-year career, when she felt she was unfairly held back by the Springfield Police Department.

Only 5 percent of the city's 496-member force is female, compared to a national average of 9.5 percent. The 82 Springfield command positions include four women.

In this old, New England city of 160,000 residents — the third largest in the state — Irish American men have traditionally made up the bedrock of the police force.

Meara has said that, if appointed chief, she would change an autocratic style of management to allow more involvement by high-ranking officers. She said some officers believe promotions are based more on friendship than merit.

The other two top candidates for chief were Deputy Chief William Fitchet, 46, a 23-year department veteran; and Capt. Peter Dillon, 48, a 27-year veteran.

The department has not had a permanent chief since Ernest Stelzer died in October 1994.

Subpoena sought for Clinton's testimony

By James Jefferson
Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The lawyer for one of President Clinton's Whitewater partners asked a federal judge Thursday to subpoena Clinton to testify at her upcoming fraud trial.

Susan McDougal, who with her ex-husband James was a partner with the president and Hillary Rodham Clinton in the northern Arkansas land development, says Clinton's testimony is necessary for her to get a fair trial.

James McDougal's attorney also says Clinton's testimony is crucial, but he has not requested a subpoena.

The McDougals and Gov. Jim Guy Tucker go to trial next month on fraud and conspiracy charges. Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr says the three illegally benefited from $3 million in loans obtained from federally backed lenders.

In his motion, lawyer Bobby McDaniel said Clinton's testimony could challenge prosecution witness David Hale, who ran Capital Management Services, a Small Business Administration-backed lending house.

Hale is expected to testify that Clinton pressured him to loan Mrs. McDougal $300,000 and that Clinton later complained to him that she did not use the money for the stated purpose.

Clinton has denied Hale's allegations.

"There is no one who can refute the testimony of David Hale except President Clinton," McDaniel said.

In Washington, Clinton wouldn't comment on the prospect of becoming only the second sitting president to give testimony in a criminal proceeding: "I can't comment on it. I don't know what the facts are."

President Reagan's videotaped deposition was played at Oliver North's Iran-Contra trial but Reagan but did not appear in person. McDaniel's motion asks only that the president be subpoenaed to "appear and give testimony." The lawyer said last week that Clinton could give testimony via satellite or videotape.

To support his request, McDaniel cited Reagan's testimony, a subpoena for President Nixon's audio tapes during the Watergate scandal and a recent federal appeals court decision allowing Paula Corbin Jones' sexual harassment lawsuit against Clinton to proceed. The 8th U.S. District Court of Appeals ruled a president could be sued for his unofficial acts.

A spokeswoman for independent counsel Kenneth Starr's office said prosecutors had not seen McDaniel's motion but would file a response. Clinton's appearance "is a matter for the discretion of the court. We do not represent the president," Deborah Gershman said.

James McDougal's attorney, Sam Heuer of Little Rock, said he was "working on making arrangements to obtain President Clinton's testimony" but would not elaborate.

The McDougals were the Clintons' partners in the Whitewater land development from 1979-92.

They and Tucker are charged in a 21-count indictment alleging they concocted $3 million worth of loans in 1985 and 1986 from McDougal's Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan and Hale's lending company.

Their trial is scheduled to begin March 4.

In another development, documents from the General Accounting Office show that the Whitewater investigation has cost taxpayers at least $15 million since it started two years ago.

The documents said spending by independent counsel Kenneth Starr, the FBI, IRS and Justice Department exceeded $11.3 million through Sept. 30, the end of the last fiscal year. Before Starr took over the investigation Aug. 5, 1994, Robert Fiske Jr. spent about $2 million.

The figures include the payroll for the independent counsel's office, travel expenses and rent but only part of the expenses from the FBI, IRS and Justice Department. Because expenses have been increasing, the cost of the investigation probably passed $18 million during the fall.

...now that I'm in the Collegian"

AEROBICS
FUNK • HI/LOW • STEP
• Classes Daily
• Certified Instructors
• Suspended Wood Floor
• Areas Largest Room
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
460 West St.
So. Amherst. 256-0080

SUNDAY FEBRUARY 4
Showtimes:
12:30, 3:00, 5:30, 8:00, 11:00 P.M.
Campus Center Auditorium
first three shows $3.00
8PM & LATE SHOWS $4.00
hot popcorn with admission

GLB Issues
Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call
Lisa Oliveri
at 545-3500

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-time Evening
• Classes start February 5, 1996
Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

Police threaten suit over nominee

By Jeff Donn
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — A lawyer dropped threats Thursday of immediate legal action to block the appointment of a new police chief by city officials, who have named a woman as the top candidate.

If named to the post, Capt. Paula Meara would be the city's first female police chief and the most powerful local policewoman in New England.

Aides to Mayor Michael Albano said they would announce the new chief Friday after a vote by the city's Police Commission. "We're confident that the process was valid, legal, thorough," said City Solicitor Michael Kogut.

A lawyer for several failed candidates, including Acting Police Chief Daniel Spellacy, had threatened to ask Thursday for a court order heading off the appointment.

But the lawyer, Frank McGee, acknowledged late Thursday that "it was 95 percent sure it would have been an exercise in futility." He said he will await a state Civil Service hearing set for Feb. 29 on the complaint of his six clients.

He also contended that an aide to Gov. William Weld had requested Capt. Meara's resume — and only hers — from City Hall on Thursday. Weld was scheduled to speak at Friday's news conference announcing the new chief.

"It's plain and clear to me that there's an outright scam going on here," said McGee.

But Robert Bliss, a Weld spokesman, said the aide had actually asked for resumes of the top three candidates. "The point of the matter is the governor doesn't have any influence" in naming a city police chief, Bliss added.

McGee's clients are questioning the form of testing and the credentials of examiners hired by a consultant to do the testing. Unlike traditional written exams, tests confronted candidates with a variety of hypothetical situations to resolve.

Meara scored highest of all the candidates.

However, relations have not always been smooth between her and the department. Meara, 50, has sued twice herself during her 22-year career, when she felt she was unfairly held back by the Springfield Police Department.

Only 5 percent of the city's 496-member force is female, compared to a national average of 9.5 percent. The 82 Springfield command positions include four women.

In this old, New England city of 160,000 residents — the third largest in the state — Irish American men have traditionally made up the bedrock of the police force.

Meara has said that, if appointed chief, she would change an autocratic style of management to allow more involvement by high-ranking officers. She said some officers believe promotions are based more on friendship than merit.

The other two top candidates for chief were Deputy Chief William Fitchet, 46, a 23-year department veteran; and Capt. Peter Dillon, 48, a 27-year veteran.

The department has not had a permanent chief since Ernest Stelzer died in October 1994.

■ pain

continued from page 1

a daily journal.

Rating pain helps individuals "get an idea of fluctuations of pain throughout the day," Finger said. "I customize what I do with them," she added.

The third program element involves educating clients with psycho-educational written materials on the relationship between pain and stress. There is a "vicious cycle" where a stress response leads to pain which is followed by another stress response.

The mind-body techniques taught in the following part of the program trains the mind to release anxious thoughts resulting in the body relaxing.

Finger utilizes positive behavioral techniques to manage pain and stress as the fifth component of the program. "Cognitive reframing" allows clients to stop the stream of negative thoughts and replace it with positive thoughts.

Clients are educated on how to plug specific mind–and-body techniques comfortably into their daily life. This section of the program allows clients to utilize techniques at the onset of pain or as a preventative measure.

The program concludes with realistic goal setting techniques.

"It is important to focus on one's freedoms rather than one's limitations," Finger emphasized.

Finger, who sustained whiplash injuries from several car accidents, is a chronic pain sufferer.

"I needed to find a way to help myself find an alternative to chiropractors, muscle relaxing medications and physical therapy," she said.

Finger incorporates a master's degree in counseling, a license in Mental Health, and 16 years of experience into both individual and group treatment at two locations.

The following paid positions are available for the Spring 1996 semester:

Black Affairs Editor
Jewish Affairs Editor
Women's Issues Editor
Associate News Editor
Librarian
Assistant to the Managing Editor
Staff Artist

For a job description and an application, come down to the Collegian Offices at 113 Campus Center and ask to speak to either Marni E. Helfner, Managing Editor, or Matt Vautour, Editor–In–Chief or call 545–3500.
Applicants interested in the Associate News Editor position should speak with Amy Paradysz, News Editor.

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Ski Only $219 snowboard party in the Sun & Snow!
INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS '96
SPRINGBREAK
5 DAY SKI & SNOWBOARD LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING LUXURY CONDO
5 NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES & CONTESTS
Sponsors Include Molson & Labatts
NOTE: THE LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18
MT. ORFORD QUEBEC, CANADA
LAST ACCESS TO VERMONT RESORTS
GROUP LEADER & REP DISCOUNTS
CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
SKI TRAVEL
www.skitravel.com
CALL 1 - 800 - 999 - Ski - 9

UMass Division of Continuing Education

Your entryway into the University and the future

• Over 200 credit courses and noncredit workshops — in the evening!
• Professional development courses, seminars, workshops
• Specialized degree programs
• Courses for recertifiation points for teachers

Register through February 12.

Call for a free course catalog - (413) 545-0107
e-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu

Division of Continuing Education • University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

The University of Massachusetts Campus Activities Office Presents:

Something Every Friday
a weekly pro/ratte series of events
Coming this Friday
Return To The Source
Campus Center Auditoium
February 2, 1996,
8:00pm
FREE

Followed by the Movie
"To Wong Fu, Thanks For Everything, Julie Newmar"
time approx. 11pm
Refreshments Will Be Served

This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded c. 1890 • Web, Since 1967

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni F. Heffner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Senior Diversity Editor

Tara Mc Connelly Arts & Living Editor Position Vacant Women's Issues Editors
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial Opinion Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Lisa M. Oliveri Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Ami Paradowski News Editor Maureen Marcynoski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reily Photography Editor Marris Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist Turtles Publications Printer

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is entirely self-supported from the business of Massachusetts operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Index. It became the Massachusetts Collegian in 1914 and then the Tu Wesith Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 Mon. - Fri. between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

The great Weld hope

Martin F. Jones

"The 1996 Presidential race is on! Long live Bob Dole, the GOP front runner and eventual nominee. He'll slaughter a WhiteWater scandal-plagued Bill Clinton in November and the GOP takeover of America will finally be complete!

As fanatic as this may sound, this is the current conventional wisdom that has been propagated by the mass media for the past 15 months. Without a single primary vote being passed, the big money PAC contributors, the political pundits, pollsters and GOP party leaders have sold the American people the most worn out, ragged, broken down lemon since the Democrats nominated Walter Mondale in 1984 (Mondale lost every state except his own state to GOP incumbent Ronald Reagan that year).

Yes, I am talking about Bob Dole, the 1996 poster child for political dinosaurs who won't die. Bob Dole is, in fact, already dead. Deader than a dead horse. And it makes no sense to keep kicking him. There's no way he's going to get back up.

Bob Dole is 72 years old. He's physically deformed (the leader of the free world should at least be able to shake hands properly). He's a mean looking, sonavagun. He's about as inspiring as a broken sidewalk. So why has he been anointed the GOP nominee? Simple. There's no one else.

Try and imagine for a moment what the GOP field would look like without Bob Dole. So far the other major contenders look more like a line of circus clowns and freaks. Alan Keyes, the black GOP token, could easily pass for Jimmy Walker with a little more meat on his bones. Richard Lugar is a dead ringer for Howdy Doody. Lamar Alexander is the perfect cure for insomnia.

And then there are the three Republican stooges: the dorky geek Steve Forbes as Larry, the sadistic, black-haired Pat Buchanan as Moe and Phil Gramm, the bald-headed, blithering, blabbering ideological idiot as Curly Joe.

Are you scared yet? Well you should be, because Bob Dole WILL NOT receive his party's nomination for president in August at the GOP convention in San Diego. Surprised? Well wake up and smell the coffee. Here's why.

Bob Dole is the Senate Majority Leader. He's currently tied up in Washington over budget negotiations. Sleeping in the same house with Clinton doesn't allow him to run a credible campaign against the young vibrant incumbent president. Right now, most Americans think of Washington D.C. as Hell on Earth. One half thinks that Clinton's the devil. The other half is calling Newt Gingrich Satan. Lying right in between these two loveable characters is good ole' Bobby Dole, who's trying to help Bill and be stuck between the two parties to resolve the budget gridlock. Who's gonna do it? Bob Dole, that's who.

Remember George Bush's 1988 campaign pledge not to raise taxes? "Read my lips," said George. "No new taxes!"

And sure enough, not two years had passed before the wimp in Mr. Bush caved in to Democratic demands for a tax hike. And yes, it was Mr. Dole himself, then Senate Minority Leader who set up and cut the deal altogether.

Can it happen again? You bet! And it will!

Watch for Dole to bargain away the proposed GOP tax cuts as a way to resolve the budget dispute. Watch Dole get defeated in kind in both Iowa and New Hampshire by Steve Forbes and Pat Buchanan. Expect to see a teary eyed former GOP front-runner drop out of the race within the next few weeks. Watch the GOP panic, as the American people are left with the choice of Mr. Larry and Curly for GOP nominee.

I'm sure most of you out there could care less about who the GOP nominates. Hell, it's hard enough just to get people to vote in November. Besides - everybody knows that Clinton will get reelected no matter what, right? Well if you believe that, you'll believe anything.

Do the words WhiteWater ring a bell? Hillary Rodham Clinton (I think I'm getting warmer). Rose Law Firm? Jim McDougal? Vincent Foster? (Yes I did go there!)

If you're still a bit confused, go check out Oliver Stone's latest political masterpiece, Nixon. I'm sure there will be no more questions if you do.

The fact remains that there is no guarantee that Bill Clinton will be reelected. Shoot, if the WhiteWater scandal continues to develop at its current rate he may not even be president come the election. So then what? Are we left with a Gore-Gramm matchup on Nov. 5? Or even the return of Ross Perot? God help us! Is there no one who can save us from this impending catastrophe?

Look, up on Beacon Hill! It's a bird! It's a plane! It's William Floyd Weld, the Governor of Massachusetts! Yes, yes! Bill Weld will save America from those evil, bigoted, homophobic pro-lifers from the GOP! Weld is the living embodiment of the New Republican, the political savior of a reckless, rancid and reeling Republican Party. The Right Wing will be crushed forever under his glorious reign. He'll stand up for the environment, affirmative action, and the AmeriCorps way!

He's perfect! He's tall. He's handsome. He can shake with both hands! He's a baby boomer! And most important of all, HE'S A DEADHEAD!!! Yes, Bill Weld is a fan of the Grateful Dead. When I first heard that tidbit of information, I thought immediately, "Now, here's a Republican I could actually learn to live with, and rather comfortably I might add, as President of the United States of America."

So let's just wrap this discussion up about now. Bill Weld must enter the race to challenge Clinton in 1996. There are no ifs, ands or buts about it. If not Weld then whom? Steve Forbes the Corporate Fascist? Phil Gramm, the Texas Aficionado? Or the General Pat "Culture War" Buchanan?

The choice is clear. Bill Weld for President in 1996. I can see it crystal clear. And soon you will too.

Martin F. Jones is a UMass student.

Sibling symmetry

Laura Schmidt

There was a moment of a certain summer that always remains vivid and clear in her memory.

She was there again, like every summer, vacationing on the magnificent shores of Cape Cod. Some evenings, when she wanted quiet space, she would walk down the sandy path along the beach which eventually led to the chilly ocean water ahead.

Sometimes she would find the perfect smooth stone to skim over a curvy wave or she'd gather the most beautiful seashells she could find which washed up with the evening tide.

Tonight, alone again on the peaceful shore, the girl wondered what she would find at the beach. Maybe more shells to add to her collection. Perhaps some spare change left over from the busy afternoon that day at the beach. Again, she wondered what she would find.

Not long after she arrived, her sister and brother surprised her with their presence as she quietly sat on the jetty overlooking the water.

This place, she thought, was the perfect place to witness a sunset.

The pink and purple colors of the sky represented the colors of compassion just as the couple walking hand in hand along the edge of the water reminded her of love.

The sister, brother and girl, sat on the rocks next to the tiny red and white lighthouse. They searched for starfish below their bare feet and watched an old fisherman make his catch of the day.

It was here where the girl realized how much her sister and brother had grown, and matured into intelligent, individual adults. Her sister, now 20 years old, was no longer the younger sister who simply stole her clothes and her 16-year old brother was no longer the brother who was too young to participate in casual conversation.

They had each grown up. They each had things to say. They each were, for that moment, in harmony with the beauty of their surroundings.

The sisters and their brother each, in their own way, realized they would cherish this time they were spending together forever. Her sister's contagious laughter and brother's debonair smile let her know how they felt. They were happy, content with themselves, content with each other.

"Go ahead guys," she said. "Mom and Dad will be wondering where we are. You two better get back. I'll catch up soon," she promised.

So they walked ahead, leaving her there for another moment by herself. It was then that she realized she had found something she had always longed for, and even something which she needed.

Quiet time with her sister and brother.

For once, despite their different opinions, views, beliefs and crazy schedules, the beauty of the ocean, the comfort of a passing breeze, and the love detected from the colors in the summer sky, were enough to reassure her that no matter what, she would always be loved by her sister and brother.

Laura Schmidt is a Collegian Staff Member

Doonsbury By Garry Trudeau

"DEAR MR. DOONESBURY: DO YOU USE QUALITY CONTROLS TO WEED OUT WEAK MATERIAL? I CAN'T TELL. SINCERELY, P.K., TAOS" WELL, YES, P.K., WE DO HAVE QUALITY CONTROLS. QUITE STRINGENT ONES AT THAT!
1-25
FOR INSTANCE, ORDINARILY, WE WOULD NEVER RELEASE THE STRIP YOU ARE READING RIGHT NOW!
WE WOULDN'T? WHY NOT?
WELL, FOR STARTERS, I DON'T HAVE A PUNCHLINE.
THAT'S IT— PUT ALL THE PRESSURE ON ME!

Opinion/Editorial

Communication breakdown

Brad Davidson

5-45-1000, 545-1000, 545-1000: Wait something is wrong with this stupid thing. Oh no I can't even get a dial tone. Let me hang it up and wait a couple of minutes. Shoot, this thing still doesn't work. What the hell is the problem here. Well I'll go to the neighbors house and see if I can call in. What? A busy signal, how can that be?"

That is what happened to me just a few days ago. I simply picked up the phone to make a call when I realized that the worst of all possible things had happened. My phone died. Not the actual phone, but the phone line as it was so kindly explained to me by my local and overly friendly NYNEX representative. It was also explained to me by the same courteous lady that my "service would be on in just a few short hours." Little did I know that in NYNEX land, a few hours actually means three long days. Hence my nightmare begins.

I had to come up with a plan. What would the "King of Communication" (that's what my roommates call me) do with out his main weapon? I needed to keep my mind occupied. Would I read? Would I clean my room? Would I get a jump on my schoolwork for next semester? Who was I kidding, I quickly grabbed the TV Guide and searched for a good show. "Yes, the Brady Bunch followed by Saved By the Bell," I was saved, at least for the moment.

After the shows had finished I picked up the phone to see if my "service" was working. It wasn't. By now it was nearing Saturday night and I had no plans. Obviously I couldn't have called around so I took a gamble and ventured over to my friend Keith's house. I explained to Keith my phone dilemma but the "King of Vague" (that's what we call him) just said, "that's too bad." He did not share my pain. So we all went out, had a few drinks and managed to have a pretty fun night. That is, until I got home.

You see, I have this horrible habit of calling people really late at night or after I've had a few cocktails. So as I walked in the door I immediately ran for the phone so I could call an old buddy in Colorado or maybe my eighth grade girlfriend. In my tipsy condition I completely forgot that my phone was not working. As I started to dial I was quickly reminded. Now I was Furious. How could I go to bed with out waking someone else up at 3 a.m. to talk about nothing?

When I woke up on Sunday morning I thought that maybe it was all a bad dream. Maybe my phone did work. I ran to my phone, picked it up expecting to hear that beautiful musical dial tone. Of course I heard nothing. Another day without telecommunication.

How could I go two days without a phone? There were people I needed to call. People needed to call me. What If I suddenly won a million dollars and the lottery people were trying to call? What if Steven Spielberg was trying to contact me to star in his next blockbuster? Maybe it would be the long awaited sequel, E.T. II: The Search. I could play Elliot. What if suddenly Julia Roberts wanted to call and ask me out on a hot date? Hey, don't laugh, it could happen.

So, I went back to my neighbors and called NYNEX again to find out the situation. My telephone agent apologized again and said that my phone should be working by Monday at the latest. "Monday morning," I yelled. "That's one more day!" My friends were used to hourly calls and now they've heard nothing for two days. What would they think? I had a reputation to uphold!

In my state of phone withdrawal, I broke down and used the pay phone down the street. It was the day of the Superbowl and I needed to confirm plans. I called a few friends but as my luck would have it, no one was home. Despite the minor setback, I wasn't that worried because I knew there was a party at Keith's house at 5 p.m. I figured I could survive without the phone until I got to his place.

I arrived at Keith's around 4:30 and to my surprise, no one was home. Now, I started to worry. I waited there until 5:15 and still their house was empty. With my head hung low, I walked back to my car and drove home. It was going to be a lonely Superbowl.

When I got home I found my roommate and her boyfriend firmly planted on the couch. Now, I was thrilled. Not only was I missing a party where all my friends were, but now I had to watch the big game with the "lovebirds."

As I watched the game I daydreamed about beer, Doritos and basic unhealthy food. I imagined myself at the party giving high fives and using foul language. But in actuality I grimaced as the "lovebirds" smooched and hugged after every touchdown or field goal.

When the game ended and after I watched Friends (how funny was that scene with Marcel and the Barry Manilow music?) I decided to take a chance and return to Keith's house. As I walked in the door I was bombarded with "Hey, where were you?" As you can imagine, my blood boiled. They explained to me that the party had changed locations. One friendly chap joked, "we tried to call you but your phone wasn't working."

At 7 a.m. Monday morning I was awoke by the most beautiful ring one could imagine. I hopped out of bed and picked up my phone. It was my mom. "Brad, why has your phone been busy for three days? Do you know that I've been calling you non-stop. I didn't know if you were alive or dead. Who were you talking to for... ?"

In the end I managed to survive. It was a difficult three days, but with the support of my roommates and friends I overcame. The "King of Communication" lives! By the way, during those three days I only left the house seven times just to make phone calls. Not bad huh?

Brad Davidson is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

Column disguises the real issues

To the Editor:

Hussein Ibish and Shyamala Ivatury are up to their old tricks, using scurrilous critiques of individuals with little or sham evidence to try and divide and conquer those they disagree with on liberal and progressive issues. It would be no surprise to those who have seriously studied issues of multiculturalism to know that proponents of such studies disagree among themselves as to how best to challenge white Western hegemony over academic studies, and that such disagreement does not involve whites on one side and people of color on another. In their diatribe against my critique of the Provost's proposal to re-organize language instruction on this campus, they give not one reason that deals with my actual arguments, but only character assassination, as if the fact that I am white, lesbian and a liberal are relevant to thinking that I cannot be trusted to be a real ally to multicultural education. This behavior and the actual reasons they provide for charging myself and Christina Gonzalez with being "professors of deceit" suggests that, as usual, their hidden agenda has little to do with the real pros and cons of the issue is question, that is, reorganizing and downsizing language teaching of racial minority cultures. Rather, it has more to do with wanting them to divide the "good girls" (Sonia Nieto and Carmen Diana Deere, who were not consulted about their views about my loyalties to multicultural education) from the "bad girls" (Christina Gonzalez and myself) and the love detected from the colors in the summer sky, were enough to reassure her that no matter what, she would always be loved by her sister and brother.

Laura Schmidt is a Collegian Staff Member

anti-racist, anti-imperialist Third World Che Lumumba School, or my present coordinating of a faculty seminar on Race and Gender, among other things. In any case it is instructive to see that Ibish and Ivatury do not say anything about their own views about the Provost's proposals to downsize language and minority culture teaching.

The considerations that they give to argue that I am out to "power grab" from and "sideline" women of color are ridiculous. They refer to a minor disagreement Dr. Leila Ahmed and I had at a recent conference. Professor Ahmed and I are on good terms: She was enthusiastic about my decision to stand for Director of Women's Studies, thus giving her more time for her scholarly work on Middle Eastern Muslim women. The critique I made on Louis Farrakhan's sexism, anti-Semitism and homophobia was made several years ago in a letter to the Black Student Union suggesting they reconsider inviting him to campus and/or to arrange forums in which he might respond to disagreements about his politics. At no time did I suggest that the decision ought to be made by white people: it was obvious to them and me the decision was theirs. How is this a "power grab?" Also, as is well known, a number of prominent African American women, including Angela Davis, Patricia Williams and bell hooks, have spoken out against Louis Farrakhan's politics. Should I apologize to the Black Student Union because white people must never have political disagreements with people of color about the politics of a person of color, even when such a person is controversial among those in that group?

Ibish and Ivatury imply that I am an imperialist in disguise because I label Farrakhan anti-Semitic and support French Canadians. But they imply critiqueing someone for being anti-Semitic, as I do Farrakhan, is the same as supporting the state of Israel's racist policies against Palestinians, which I do not condone. Pointing out that French Canadians are an ethnic minority in this country, as they are in Canada, does not imply supporting their colonization of Native Americans. Although white anti-racists must constantly re-examine our racist assumptions, strong multicolor anti-racist coalitions need to allow some tolerance in our ranks for political disagreements among ourselves in order to fight reactionary positions, and I am concerned that Ibish and Ivatury's attacks make it difficult to create such coalitions.

Ann Ferguson
Director, Women's Studies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR AND COLUMNS

Attention all columnists: If you haven't yet, please come down this week to get your picture taken. Questions? Call Bob.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e- mail account: letters@oit.vms.oit.umass.edu

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Bob Dunn.

Arts & Living

New French film fresh and exciting

By Justin D. Smith
Collegian Staff

CITY OF LOST CHILDREN
Directed by Marc Caro & Jean-Pierre Jeunet
with Ron Perlman, Dominque Pinon, Daniel Emilfork
Playing at Pleasant St. Theatre

French filmmakers Marc Caro and Jean-Pierre Jeunet promised City of Lost Children to be like a hybrid of Pinocchio and Night of the Hunter. This is only one of the few ways that it can be described.

Five years ago, Caro and Jeunet created a post-apocalyptic masterpiece with Delicatessen, a disturbing comedy that offers cannibalism as the answer to famine. Caro and Jeunet are the modern day Brothers Grimm — they weave fairy tales that are dark and demented and involve a complex storyline.

Mad scientist, Krank (Daniel Emilfork), is aging prematurely because he is unable to dream. So he invents things in order to combat his problem. One such invention is a stellar mega-structure that steals children's dreams. But since the children are constantly frightened, they only have nightmares.

His former partner (Dominique Pinon) fled from Krank and his evil intentions and created a mini Atlantis, where he lives in seclusion. But before he left, he created six blundering clones of himself (all played by Pinon) that remain Krank's lackeys. Krank also has an aged midget wife that he invented when he tried to create his dream woman and an omniscient disembodied brain (with the voice of famed international actor Jean-Louis Trintignant).

The Cyclops, who can only see in a bizarre digitized green, are paid by Krank to kidnap the children. One of the kids that they kidnap is "Little Brother" to the carnival strongman named One (Ron Perlman, the beast from '80s TV show "Beauty an the Beast"). One is a simpleton and will stop at nothing to get his brother back.

Evil Siamese twin school teachers force One to aid and abet orphan children in larceny. Miette (Judith Vittet) leads the criminal orphans. One is drawn to her in what first seems to be an unwholesome Lolita-like manner. Later, One reveals his intention of being the bigger brother for Miette as well. So she joins him in his quest to rescue his brother from the evil Krank, all the while the Siamese twins try to find and kill them.

The plot is complicated at the surface level, but it is so intense that you are compelled to precisely follow it. As if the story was not interesting enough, the film is visually phenomenal. The water playground setting is miles ahead from the billion dollar debacle, Waterworld.

The film is beautiful at all costs. The blue-black color sets a tone that heavily supplies a gloomy, gothic feeling. Angelo Badalamenti, of David Lynch fame, takes the feel a step further by creating a dark ambience with his haunting soundtrack. The costumes are designed by French fashion icon and Madonna pushover, Jean-Paul Gaultier. The outfits are stylish but do not draw too much attention by being overly lavish.

City of Lost Children is a fantastic film that delves to the depths of many levels. Caro and Jeunet are geniuses. Finally, there is something fresh and new paving the way for the exhausted French cinema. Not since the early days of Jean-Luc Godard and François Trauffaut has there be so much potential. City of Lost Children is a masterpiece of epic proportions. A

Punk is still alive, from Deadguy to Ramones

By Adam Dlugacz
Collegian Staff

I'm back here to update you with what's been going on in the world of hardcore and punk over the last month and give you some previews of what is coming up.

For all you straight-edgers, Victory Records recently released a slew of albums. The best is Deadguy's Fixation On A Coworker. Deadguy are the angriest band around, in fact their style has often been referred to as murder-core. Fans of Neurosis, Mind Over Matter and upset people in general should check this out.

Victory also released Synaesthesia by Guilt which is sort of emo-metal; fans of Endpoint and Falling Forward will enjoy this. One Life Crew's new album is generic mosh metal reminiscent of Earth Crisis and entirely useless. Victory will be putting out new albums by Snapcase, The Doughnuts and Bloodlet in the spring.

New York Hardcore veterans Leeway just released Open Mouth Kiss on Futurist records. It is a return to form after the disappointing Adult Crash — however it's too mellow and nowhere near as good as Born To Expire. New York hero's 25 Ta' Life released a new EP Keepin It Real on We Bite America Records.

H2O, one of New York's best new bands, are bringing their upbeat posi-core to Blackout Records. The LP which should be out in the spring will feature the four songs off their demo re-done, one song off the 7" and five new tunes including the crowd favorites "5 Year Plan" and "Roots."

COURTESY CATHY BAUER

The Mr. T Experience have returned with their classic pop-punk sound which should win over many a Hardcore veterans Murphy's Law, Sick Of It All, Killing Time and Maximum Penalty are all working on new albums. Silent Majority, who ripped up Van Meter last fall, have a new 7" out on Motherbox Records, fans of Lifetime should be interested in this one. Texas Is The Reason are releasing a full length on Revelation Records as a follow up to their impressive EP.

Striving For Togetherness Records is re-releasing the Vision Of Disorder and District 9 7"s on CD with bonus tracks. Walter Schreiffels of Quicksand and Gorilla Biscuits fame and Artie Sheppard from Mind Over Matter are working on a CIV-sounding project that should be out soon. Supertouch is back for good and they are working on a brand new full length.

On the punkier side of things, Bad Religion put out All Ages which is a compilation of their older, previously released stuff — essential if you're only familiar with their newer stuff, useless if you've been a fan for awhile and probably already have all of the songs.

The Queers have a new LP on Lookout that features all of their old 7"s. Wimpy is the singer not Joe King and this album is much more abrasive then their new happier material. Mr. T Experience have a new LP on Lookout called Love Is Dead. Fans of Green Day, Parasites and the like should enjoy this. The song "Ba Ba Ba Ba Ba" might be the catchiest song of the year.

Locally, The Ramones are playing one of their last shows ever at Pearl Street. For hardcore fans Shift and Shades Apart are performing at Pearl Street at the end of February. Butterfield has a great show coming up featuring Doc Hopper, Weston, The Marshes, and Deadguy.

Oscars up for grabs in an undistinguished & confused field

By John Horn
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The 5,000 Academy Award voters have turned in their nominating ballots and the guessing game has begun.

With no Forrest Gump or Schindler's List, there is plenty of drama. Will The Postman, ineligible for foreign-language film, be nominated for best picture? Does Richard Dreyfuss have a chance for Mr. Holland's Opus? Is Babe this year's surprise pick? And will Nixon co-star Joan Allen be nominated for lead actress, supporting actress or neither?

With few obvious favorites besides Sense and Sensibility and Leaving Las Vegas in the Oscar race, Academy Award campaigning has been particularly feverish this year. Most of the 5,043 eligible voters have been inundated with videocassettes (up to 60), and trade newspapers have been filled with "for your consideration" advertisements.

Ballots were due Thursday, and nominations will be revealed Feb. 13. As the ballots were turned in, two films and two roles are generating some of the most spirited discussion.

Joan Allen's performance as first lady Pat Nixon in Nixon was celebrated by scores of critics and should be a lock for an Oscar selection. Should be, except for what could be a costly blunder by the film's producers.

A month before the film was released, producer Cinergi Pictures and distributor Walt Disney submitted Allen's name to the Golden Globes and Screen Actors Guild - for best actress consideration in the two award shows. A few weeks later, Cinergi and Disney concluded Allen was a better fit for supporting actress, but they forgot to alert the Golden Globes and SAG to the decision.

Allen wasn't nominated for a Golden Globe, but she was nominated for a SAG award — as best actress. Oscar voters nominate performers in the category the voters themselves deem appropriate — there's no list of the lead and supporting actress contenders.

So even though Cinergi and Disney's trade advertisements have pushed Allen for supporting actress, Oscar voters — many of them SAG members — could be confused by the SAG nomination. If Allen's Academy Award nomination votes are roughly divided between supporting and lead actress, she probably will not be nominated in either category.

Confusion isn't limited to Allen's category. A lot of people would like to vote for The Postman (Il Postino) as the year's best foreign-language film. Unfortunately, they can't because the film debuted in Italy in 1994 and wasn't submitted.

In order for a film to be considered in the Academy's foreign-language category, it has to be officially submitted by the country of origin, and Italy elected to enter another film last year, L'America.

The Postman, however, is eligible for best picture (and best actor, director, and so on) in this year's race because it was released in the United States in 1995.

Miramax must thus convince Oscar voters their instincts are wrong— The Postman should not be treated as the foreign-language film it is.

"We are having to run an explaining campaign," says Marcy Granata, Miramax's executive vice president of marketing and publicity. "The challenge is to tell people, 'We know you love the movie, but the category you think it's in, it's not.'"

To bolster the Academy campaign, Miramax sent voters Postman videocassettes remarkably early, before Thanksgiving. The company also solicited favorable advertising quotes from some unlikely critics: renowned authors John Updike, William Styron, Kurt Vonnegut, Oscar Hijuelos, Isabelle Allende and Taylor Branch.

Another long shot is Babe. Universal Pictures hopes Oscar voters can make the same type of leap that allowed them to nominate the animated Beauty and the Beast in 1991, and select the live-action talking-pig movie as one of the five best picture picks.

Babe opened relatively early in the year (August) for peak Oscar momentum and some Oscar voters may have forgotten about it.

Many others, as well as film critics, have not. The movie landed on many Top 10 lists, the National Society of Film Critics named it the year's best movie and Babe won the Golden Globe for best comedy or musical.

Much of the success of Babe was owed to word-of-mouth. This also is true of Mr. Holland's Opus.

When the makers of Mr. Holland's Opus saw the nearly finished film last June, they thought they might have this year's Forrest Gump.

The film about a dedicated high school music teacher went through several changes, release dates were selected and then dropped. As the end of the year approached it was unclear whether Mr. Holland's Opus would be out in time for Oscar qualification. At the last minute before New Year's Day, it opened in time to qualify, playing in a small theater in Los Angeles.

The film didn't go into wide release until Jan. 19. The date has worked great with audiences, but may have jinxed the film's Oscar shot.

"We were kind of late making people aware of us," concedes the film's producer, Robert Cort. "We just didn't get viewed enough."

Just as Academy members were finalizing Oscar ballots, Mr. Holland's Opus took off at the box office and the film's strong word-of-mouth built rapidly. Even though the film was playing nationally, Disney sent videocassettes to voters, and hoped that somehow Dreyfuss would be nominated for his performance in the title role.

For all the effort, though, Mr. Holland's Opus may just miss.

Says Cort: "I wish everything was pushed a week back."

Can you Draw? Interested in Drawing a Cartoon or Comic?
Then Show Up at the
MEETING FOR CARTOONISTS
All current and future cartoonists must attend a meeting at 2 pm on February 4 in the Collegian Newsroom, 113 Campus Center.
Please Bring Several Samples With You.
If you have ?'s or cannot attend, please contact, Marni E. Heffner, Managing Editor, at 545-3500.

Ever Think of writing for Sports?
Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

Christine Northrup, M.D.

A Public Lecture
"Women's Bodies, Women's Wisdom: Creating Health Throughout the Life Cycle"

Date: Tuesday, Feb.6th

Time: 7pm (sharp)

Place: Hampshire College, Franklin Patterson Hall (first building on left from front entrance off route 116)

The lecture, which is free and open to the public, is being videotaped for national distribution; your cooperation will be requested and appreciated.

media education Foundation
Media Education Foundation
26 Center Street
Northampton, MA 01060

Teradyne
The right place for you.

Teradyne is the right place for people like Regan Mills. It's a stimulating environment that challenges people every day. You're free to do the things you think need to be done, with a minimum of rules, regulations, and bureaucracy. We want people who don't need to be led by the hand. We want talented, bright people with new ideas and the initiative to give those ideas a shot.

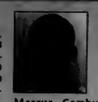
You'll have plenty of opportunity at Teradyne. We're an $800 million electronics company that competes in the global market, working with the world's largest companies. Our technology is unmatched, and our commitment to Total Quality Management is unwavering. In other words, we're big... but not too big!

If you want to learn more about your place at Teradyne, visit your Career Services Office or check out our home page on the Internet's World Wide Web at: http://www.teradyne.com

TERADYNE
An Equal Opportunity Employer

Massachusetts 59, Temple 35

MASSACHUSETTS 59, TEMPLE 35
MASSACHUSETTS (20-0)
Dingle 2-6 2-4 6, Bright 5-8 1-4 11, Camby 7-14 1-1 15, E.Padilla 1-4 2-3 5, Travieso 6-14 0-0 16, Weeks 2-2 0-0 4, Norville 0-0 0-0 0, Clarke 0-2 0-0 0, Cottrell 1-3 0-0 2, Nunez 0-1 0-0 0, C.Padilla 0-1 0-0 0. Totals 24-55 6-12 59.
TEMPLE (11-8)
Stewart 1-7 0-0 2, Battie 2-11 4-6 8, Jackson 6-18 5-6 17, Futch 0-5 0-0 0, Alston 1-8 0-0 2, Miller 1-7 0-0 2, Ivey 1-4 0-0 2, Cunningham 0-1 0-0 0, Adams 0-1 0-0 0, Laws 1-1 0-0 2. Totals 13-63 9-12 35.
Halftime-Massachusetts 30, Temple 12. 3-Point goals-Massachusetts 5-17 (Travieso 4-11, E.Padilla 1-3, Bright 0-1, Clarke 0-1, Nunez 0-1), Temple 0-16 (Adams 0-1, Stewart 0-3, Futch 0-3, Alston 0-4, Miller 0-5). Fouled out-None.
Rebounds-Massachusetts 44 (Dingle, Weeks 7), Temple 42 (Battie 12). Assists-Massachusetts 16 (E. Padilla 9), Temple 2 (Stewart, Ivey). Total fouls-Massachusetts 12, Temple 16. A-3,900.



Player of the Game

Marcus Camby- 15 points, 5 rebounds, 9 blocks

Highlights...

Camby tallied 15 points and 5 rebounds as UMass kept Temple to a .210 shooting percentage...Carmelo Travieso led the Minutemen with 16 points...the Temple team, as a whole, outscored Camby by one point in the first 20 minutes...UMass' three-point scoring was another key to the victory as the Minutemen hit 5 shots from beyond the arc, and Temple was 0-16 for threes...Massachusetts kept Temple to its lowest point output since a 1974 win over Tennessee, 11-6.

■ hoop

continued from page 10

four three pointers while Camby finished with 15. Donta Bright added 11 points. Edgar Padilla dished out a game high nine assists, blocked two and notched two steals. The UMass guards outscored the Temple guards 21-4. Temple was led by Jackson who finished with a game high 17 points, while also pulling down 11 boards. Derrick Battie grabbed a game high 12 rebounds as well.

The 35 points was the lowest total for Temple in a game since it scored 47 in a 49-47 loss to West Virginia in 1994. At one point in the second half, the UMass defense pressured Temple into missing 14 straight shots.

"Good teams put good fuel in their feet and hearts on defense not just when you score baskets," Chaney said. "We've won games before shooting 18 percent so that's not an excuse."

■ side

continued from page 10

ers alike.

"The new facility will hold a combination of events, more than basketball," Heather Muthler, a sophomore music education major said. "Musical, theatrical and sporting events will be held there and that helps attract more students to Temple."

Temple coach John Chaney expressed those sentiments earlier this week. "Players want an arena they can be proud of, and the facility will bring more players to Temple," Chaney said.

UMass will only have to come back to McGonigle Hall one last time, and then the games here will be a memory as the Cage is now. The fans will move to a new building. Chaney's match-up zone will make them cheer as loud as ever, but nothing could ever replace the history that is McGonigle Hall.

■ horn

continued from page 10

the Walsh gra at Maine will probably draw to an uncremonious close.

• Ron Weaver pulled off one of the scams of the century recently as the thirty year-old played football, with a full scholarship, at the University of Texas under the assumed name Ron McKelvey. Weaver, who had also played a total of six seasons at three California Junior Colleges, would not have been even close to eligible under NCAA guidelines, and assumed a friend's identity to play for the Longhorns.

This horn got hooked. His story exposed by a California paper, he skipped out of New Orleans the night before UT's Nokia Sugar Bowl loss to Virginia Tech.

However unethical Weaver's impersonation was, you have to admire his conviction. His dream was to play big-time college football, and for one season, the eyes of Texas were upon him. He accomplished his life's ambition, and nobody will be able to take that away from him.

• The injury of the week award goes to University of North Dakota hockey senior Darcy Mitani who will miss this weekend's crucial series against No. 1 Minnesota because he sprained his ankle pushing a car out of a snowbank.

While this seems like a rare injury to those of us in the rest of the country, be assured this ailment is no abnormality in Arctic tundra of North Dakota.

Leigh Torbin is a Collegian columnist.

Seahawks to fly south, find new home in L.A.

By Jim Cour
Associated Press

SEATTLE, Wash. — The Seattle Seahawks are joining the growing list of NFL teams to abandon their home, saying they will play next season in Los Angeles, which last year lost both its pro football franchises.

Citing the high cost of renovating the aging Kingdome, team sources said Thursday the Seahawks would play in the 102,083-seat Rose Bowl after 20 years in Seattle.

Seahawks owner Ken Behring met with King County officials at an undisclosed location to notify them of the move. County officials said an announcement was planned for later in the day.

The Seahawks would be the fifth NFL franchise to change cities in the last year. The Raiders and Rams moved out of Los Angeles last year. The Cleveland Browns have announced they will play next season in Baltimore and the Houston Oilers will move to Tennessee. Since the Rams and Raiders moved out of Los Angeles, the nation's second-largest TV market was left without an NFL team. There was no immediate response from Pasadena's Rose Bowl Operating Committee. A message requesting comment from its president, Alfred Moses, was left with his office.

KIRO-TV in Seattle said Seahawks coaches were told Wednesday to be ready to move to the Rose Bowl.

It seemed unlikely the 74-year-old Rose Bowl would be the team's permanent home, however.

Several groups in Los Angeles have expressed interest in building a new stadium for an existing or an expansion NFL franchise. Among them were R.D. Hubbard, chairman of the Hollywood Park racetrack; Dodgers owner Peter O'Malley; and Disney chairman Michael Eisner.

Franchise instability has been increasingly troublesome for the NFL in the last 12 months, and commissioner Paul Tagliabue as recently as Sunday decried it, saying the league "shares the emotions of fans" losing their teams to other cities.

"It is incoherent to destroy what it took 75 years to build," he said. "We want to maintain continuity and tradition." Tagliabue blamed the NFL's problems on a competitive marketplace and escalating player costs. He wants the league to have at least a limited antitrust exemption that would allow it to battle franchise moves.

Other teams still considering moving include the Arizona Cardinals and Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello, reached in Hawaii at the Pro Bowl, said he was not familiar with the situation. But he noted league owners voted last year that "the LA franchise opportunity would be controlled by the league — the 30 clubs collectively."

The Seahawks would be the second major pro sports franchise to abandon Seattle. The Seattle Pilots played the 1969 season and then left in 1970 to become the Milwaukee Brewers. The Seattle Mariners, formed in 1977, decided to stay last year only after a winning season won them legislative support for a new stadium that had been rejected by county voters.

The Seahawks, who were 8-8 last season, have repeatedly complained about the 20-year-old Kingdome they share with the Mariners.

Behring, a California developer, reportedly had a study indicating it could cost as much as $90 million to fortify the Kingdome against earthquakes — at least three times more than earlier estimates.

That amount, along with other improvements sought by the Seahawks, could send the cost of renovating the domed stadium past $200 million.

Earlier estimates of seismic repairs to the county-owned stadium have been $10 million to $30 million.

If the county couldn't afford to make those improvements, Behring conceivably could use it as an excuse to break the team's lease, which runs through 2005.

Behring has said the Kingdome is not the first-class facility guaranteed in the team's lease and has pushed for $150 million worth of improvements.

Behring's call for Thursday's meeting had prompted a session Wednesday night that included King County Executive Gary Locke and Councilman Peter Von Reichbauer.

HOK Sports Facilities Group of Kansas City has been hired by the county to study the dome. A report is due next month.

The Seahawks joined the NFL in 1976 in the expansion that also brought Tampa Bay into the league.

Seattle's NBA and major league baseball teams either have or are getting new venues.

The city-owned Seattle Center Coliseum was redesigned as Key Arena for the SuperSonics. A firm was chosen this week to design a new baseball stadium for the Mariners, whose owners had vowed to sell the team if it was forced to keep playing in the Kingdome.

■ hockey

continued from page 10

Erik Nickulas and others can fly, which will pose problems for the UMass defense on the larger ice surface.

The match-up problem was evident in a pair of games last season at the Mullins Center where UNH forwards flew around UMass defensemen, tallying 13 goals in the two games. UNH had a much tougher time scoring against UMass in the one game at the undersized JFK Coliseum in Manchester, which the team called home last year while Snively Arena was undergoing its present transformation.

A weakness for the Wildcats on the bigger ice is its own defense, which has been suffering from the graduation of the solid Kent Schmidtke. UNH has been involved in some barn-burners in their new barn, where opponents have scored an average of 6.3 goals-per-game since Christmas.

■ track

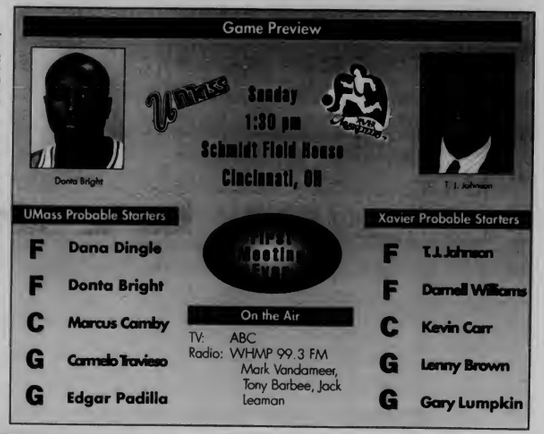
continued from page 10

in Massachusetts' last meet, winning two events and scoring a team-leading 13 points for the Minutemen while Blodorn (15.75 pts.) is the team leader in both the 800m and the 1000m races.

Sophomore Chris Conner has tallied nine points so far this season including a second place effort in the 400m last weekend. Conner, along with Neil Concepcion and Dave Cahill, will be the keys to Massachusetts' success in the 400m and 500m races.

This competition should be a solid measuring stick for UMass as they look towards the Atlantic-10 Conference Championships. Coincidentally, the A-10 Championship meet will be held at the University of Rhode Island. This meet gives the Minutemen a chance to familiarize themselves with the URI track and surroundings, helping them to be comfortable come championship time.

"Rhode Island, last year, was one of the top five teams in New England," O'Brien said. "I liken [this meet] to a very high quality college dual meet which is a great step to get you prepared for the championships."



ARTS & LIVING
It's a cool section.
With cool topics.
And cool people.
So get off your cool can.
And come write for us.

TOTAL FITNESS
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES • TREADMILLS • LIFESTEPS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • FREE WEIGHTS • NORDIC TRACK
Semester Special $139
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
BEST AEROBICS
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB 256-0080 460 WEST ST. ON BUS ROUTE OPEN 7 DAYS

THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY OF PARIS
Etablissement d'enseignement supérieur privé
AUP prepares its students to be a part of an increasingly global society.
Bachelor degree programs in ten disciplines. Fully-accredited by Middle States.
Traditional Junior-Year Abroad curriculum.
Special Visiting Programs, which include study at the Sorbonna and other French institutions.
Full range of Summer Programs.
Contact our U.S. Office: B.P. 130, E. 11th St., Suite 434, New York, NY 10003-6000
Tel. (212) 677-4870 / Fax (212) 475-5205
Web Address: http://www.aup.fr
AUP. The American university in Europe.

EVEN THE GROUNDHOG WILL COME OUT FOR THESE SPECIALS
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive
BEERS WINES LIQUORS
BECKS BEER CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES 17.49 + DEP
J.W. DUNDEE HONEY BROWN LAGER 12 PK. BOTTLES 7.49 + DEP
GENUINE DRAFT REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES 9.49 + DEP
NATURAL LIGHT CASE OF 2-12 PK. CANS 8.99 + DEP
GUINNESS STOUT 6 PK. BOTTLES 6.49 + DEP
PETE'S WICKED ALL FLAVORS 6 PK. BOTTLES 4.99 + DEP
½ KEGS BUD, BUD LT, ICE, LITE, ICEHOUSE, RED DOG, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LT, LOWENBRAU 39.99 + DEP
INGLENOOK WINES 5 LT BAG IN A BOX CHABLIS, BLUSH, RHINE, WHITE GRENACHE 7.99
SEBASTIANI PROPRIETORS WHITE ZINFANDEL 1.5 LT 5.49
BOONES WINE ALL FLAVORS 750ML 1.99
COLUMBIA CREST MERLOT 750ML 8.99
RIUNITE WINES ALL FLAVORS 1 LT 5.99
LINDEMANS CAWARRA SEMILLON CHARDONNAY, SHIRAZ CABERNET 1 LT 8.49
KAHLUA COMBOS MILKQUAKE, MUDSLIDE, ALMOND MOO MOO 4 PK 4.49
BLACK VELVET CANADIAN WHISKEY 1.75LT 12.49
COSSACK VODKA 1.75LT SALE $8.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $6.99
SEAGRAM'S 7 BLENDED WHISKEY 1.75LT SALE $15.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$4.00 FINAL COST $7.99
GILBEY'S GIN 1.75LT SALE $11.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $8.49
JUAREZ TEQUILA SILVER & GOLD 1 LT 6.99
TEN HIGH BOURBON 1.75LT SALE $11.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $8.49
CHIVAS REGAL SCOTCH 750ML 16.99
We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 2/1/95 THRU WEDS. 2/7/95
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Sidewalk Sale.
(Indoors, of course)
Biggest Shoe Sale Ever.
Only 2 days left.
ZAMA
Downtown Amherst

More Alternatives More choice
BUSH Sixteen Stone
SPACEHOG Resident Alien
GOO GOO DOLLS A Boy Named Goo your choice 10.95 each choice less Price
DAVE MATTHEWS BAND Under The Table And Dreaming
TOADIES Rubberneck
DEEP BLUE SOMETHING
10.95 less choice
MUSIC • SOFTWARE MOVIES • BOOKS
MEDIA PLAY
MORE CHOICE. LESS PRICE. EVERY DAY.
81-8037
Hampshire Mall Hadley 582-0410
At Media Play we want to make learning an exciting experience to enjoy for life.
STORE HOURS OPEN MON-THUR: 10AM-9PM, FRI-SAT: 10AM-10PM, SUN: 11AM-6PM

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Skiers and Snowboarders UMass #1 club. The UMass ski club 430 Student Union, 545-0143

EMPLOYMENT

WMUA News needs you! We're looking for anchors, hard reporters, and newscasters for daily newscasts. Many other positions are also available. For more information, come down to our offices in 105 Campus Center or call 545-2870 and ask for Alexandra.

Ski + Snowboard Campus reps needed. Springbreak '96. Interested applicants seeks. 5 free lift tickets, meet lodging & nights parties + activities. Ski Ireland Canada (Heln Vermont) Drinking age for trip only $279! Help earn free trips cash, new equip. etc. Call us (over unlimited) 800-999-7536

National Parks hiring Positions are now available at National Parks, Forest and Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1-206-971-3620 ext. N9601

Undergrad Network Manager Manage the USA Peer to Peer Network. Help the student businesses maximize system productivity. Computer science background, experience a plus. Application [illegible] 14 409 Student Union 545-0144

Undergraduate Business Consultant work with marketing, Peoples Market and many more local businesses! Computer and general experience helpful. Work accepted until February 14. Business 14 409 Student Union 545-0144

Cruise Ships Hiring Make up to $1200+/month, world travel, seasonal & full time positions. No experience necessary. You call (refer to) [illegible] ext. C10001

Teach English in Asia Make up to $25-$45/hr teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan, South Korea and Indonesia & S. Korea. Many employers provide room & board & other benefits. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For more information call (206) 971-3570 ext. J9613

Alaska student jobs Earn $$$ Thousands of openings in fishing industry. Male/Female. Room/Board. Transportation often provided. No experience necessary. GO! 919-933-0198 Ext A1040

5 Cruise ships hiring! Students needed! $$$ + Free travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, Seasonal/permanent, no experience necessary. GO! 919-929-4398 Ext. C1040

Premiere blanket/sticker comps in Massachusetts! Counselor positions for talented and energetic students as program specialists in all team sports, especially baseball, basketball, roller hockey, gymnastics, field hockey, soccer, volleyball. 30 tennis openings, also golf, archery, riflery, pioneering/overnight camping, ropes and rock climbing, weights, fitness and cycling, other openings include performing arts, fine arts, figure skating, newspaper, photography, yearbook, radio station, cooking, sewing, and rocketry. All waterfront/pool activities (swimming, skiing, sailing, windsurfing, canoeing, kayaking). Top salaries, room & board and travel. June 18th - August 17th. Inquire: Mah Kee-Nac Bonzi 1-800-753-8118 (Dahlen-gallo) 1-800-342-3752

Alaska employment - Fishing industry. earn up to $3000 - $6000+ per month. Room and board! Transportation! Male/Female. No experience necessary! (206)971-3510 ext A5560012

$40,000/yr income potential. Home typing PC users. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 ext. T4732 +listings

$35,000/yr income potential. Reading books! 1-800-898-9778 ext. R1732 +listings

Wanted Men/ladies summer counselors. Academy admissions representatives. Applications available at Admissions office.

Summer Positions Make positions in Hingham and Hartford. Great resume builder. Private internship. Summer earnings $8000+ (realistic). Strong work ethic and great attitude a must. Call N.E. Intercamp Pardners at 1-800-569-9028

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9747

FOR SALE

Bed for Sale Twin mattress, box spring & frame $45/080. 5-Disk CD Changer $70 obo. Call Craig 253-2777

486/100MHZ 8mb RAM, 850MB needs IDE controller. Printer, monitor, mouse, keyboard. $900 Call Annette 549-3884

Furniture - Desk, bookshelves, large dorm size fridge, two antique bar stools. All prices negotiable. Call 2566867 for more information

Four Alanis Tickets Sunday Mullins Ctr Call 253-2592

I have used books for sale: Physics 181, 182, Math 131-132, Econ 100 autocad release 12, Jewish People 8 102. I also have a head tennis racket pd 250 will sell for $100. Call Jeff for prices 6-2233

FOUND

Watch found before intersession at central sledding hill. If lost, call 6-3284

INSTRUCTION

Free Week February 4-11 Music, Acting, Dance lessons. Performing arts division 73 Bartlett Hall, 545-0519

Learn to Scuba Dive 2 credits GPE. G-09 800-282-0977 / 545-7338

LOST

Lost from DU Drive 126 black check organizer bag + brown leather tool bad contains important electronic equipment. Fluke 96, Oscilloscope + various tools reward offered. Please call 413-253-1814

MISCELLANEOUS

Beautiful, friendly 7 month cat needs loving home. Please call ASAP 253-4627

PERSONALS

Welcome Back sisters of Sigma Delta Tau. Have a great semester!

Rachel, I'm sorry for everything I did. I want us to be back together. If you can forgive me, please meet me at the Blue Wall on Tuesday at noon. Ross

To the hot guy in my Psych 101 class: I'd really like to get to know you better. I'm the brunette in the third row. If you're interested, I have lunch in the Coffe Shop every day, and would love some company.

One Room on bus route for $200 plus 1/3 utilities. Call us at 665-4758

Housemate Wanted Puffton Village. Call Darren 549-5221. Asking $280 a month

Room Downtown. Quiet, private. Lease $300/mo inclusive. 253-4236. 9 am-9 pm

Large Bedroom in PRESIDENTIAL form-

ROOM FOR RENT

tone, on bus route. Call 549-8642 / mail box #3

SERVICES

Need Help writing a resume. Let a professional do it for you. Special student rate! Call Lori 253-1882

TRAVEL

Cancun Spring Break Best party prices from $749!! Americas premier travel company earn free trips and highest commissions! Call! 800-798-1509 for info.

Spring Break! Book Now! Spring Break '96. With only 1 week to live - don't blow it!! Book Now! Florida & Padre $109! Bahamas $359. Jamaica/Cancun $399! Organize a group - Travel free! Sunsplash Tours 1-800-426-7710

Hurl Hut! Hut! New mesabolism break through. Loose 8-100lbs Guaranteed results 1-800-600-7389

Scuba Dive Key Largo FL during Spring Break. 2 credits GPE. G 10 1-800 282-0977, 545-7338

Spring Break! Cancun $499 Daytona, FL $115 Panama City, FL $150 Best prices and hotels! Call Heidi 256-8110

Spend Spring Break with whom you know! Jamaica $549, steamboat $815, Killington #709! UMass ski club 545-3431

Quebec Weekend!! Feb 16-19. Board, ski, and party with the UMass Ski Club 545-3431

14 Spring Break shopping days left! Don't procrastinate! Now is the time to guarantee the lowest rates and best hotel selection for Spring Break '96. Leisure tours has complete packages to south Padre island TX and Cancun. Party with thousands! For free info call 1-800-784-7381. Group Rates are available. LTI Leisure Tours International

WANTED

Looking for some quick, extra pocket money. Collegian needs some people to be ballot relievers for a Collegian Poll. Call 545-3500 for more information

Student basketball tickets wanted vs Temple. Paying $75. 538-3108

Do you have junk you want to sell? Need a job? Traveling?

Let other people know.

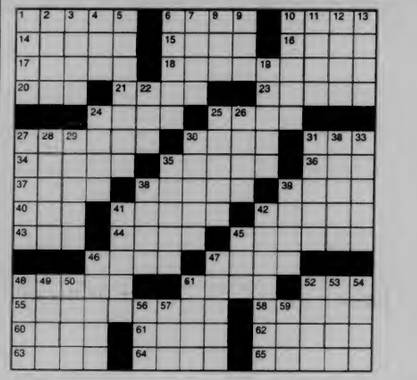
50,000 eyes would be reading your ad right now if you had placed it in the Collegian Classifieds.

Come down to 113 Campus Center.

Place a Collegian Classified.

Get Noticed.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE



ACROSS

1. Bloodhound action
6. Charge on property
10. Locale for Colonel Mustard
14. Therefore
15. Unsorted meal
16. Clannet's orchestral neighbor
17. Sevareid et al.
18. Afternoon senal (2 words)
20. Staccato indicator, in music
21. Govt. agents
23. Kind of maid
24. TV Guide putdown
25. Delighted
27. ___ dance
30. Persian ruler
31. "Bye Bye Birdie" girl
34. Leaves
35. First name in hotel-owning tax evaders
36. "What'll ___" (Berlin) (2 words)
37. Conway et al.
38. One alternative in marriage vows
39. Type of collar
40. Lemon or lime drink
41. Illegal enrichment
42. Actress Jergens
43. Start of many French titles
44. Frees
45. Stylish
46. Queens team
47. Hurt
48. Fabulous
51. Marceau, e.g.
52. Young fox
55. Bird movement
58. Come up
60. Tropical plant
61. Horseradish, e.g.
62. Chopped finely
63. The Untouchables role
64. Picnic joiners
65. Harnesses

DOWN

1. After water or tool
2. Claudius' successor
3. Monogram pt.
4. Govt. agcy.
5. Rankles
6. Intense light beam
7. Blame ____ Rio (2 words)
8. Schedule abbr.
9. Short sleep
10. Anticipated
11. Aid's mate
12. Learning
13. Shakespearean monarch
19. Midwest tribe
22. Stag attendees
24. West Side Story gang
25. Eidolon
26. Lois of the comics
27. Mineral
28. Chemical compound
29. Ten-year prison sentences, slangily
30. Medieval workers
31. Floats bad checks
32. False gods
33. The Color of ___
35. Packs
38. Legal document
39. Imported cheese
41. First name in "Ninotchka"
42. So soon?
45. Engine part
46. Stable matriarchs
47. Pointers
48. FBI agent
49. Anger
50. Analysts' foci
51. Doubtful
52. "I Get a ___ Out of You"
53. Crystal gazer's phrase (2 words)
54. Williams and Knight
56. Melodic syllable
57. Electrified particle
59. "Road to ___"

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Budget your money wisely in order to accumulate savings. Catering to an unreasonable individual will only make the situation worse. Invite friends over for a casual supper.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — The emphasis now is on meeting your obligations. Avoid taking too much for granted or leaning too heavily on others. You need to take your time when working on financial figures or important details.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — Allow extra time for a journey, especially if travelling by car. Traffic may be heavier than usual. Do not neglect your natural talents; branch out in a new direction.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Exercise restraint when dealing with career and financial matters. Get their most up- to-date information before making key decisions. A loved one's behavior may be confusing.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — You feel full of energy and ready to conquer the world. A newcomer finds your daring very appealing. Rely on an older person's expertise when the chips are down.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — People who work behind the scenes admire your style. A dormant romance could spring to life again. Protect your reputation by being discreet. Keep your personal and professional lives completely separate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Avoid making commitments you may not want to keep. Expand your intellectual horizons. A journey of the mind will lift your heart and spirits. Good timing is the key to professional and personal success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — A busy day lies ahead. An upsurge of confidence is indicated. Be on the lookout for opportunities to advance your career. Gambling tips are unlikely to pay off. Save your money for a special treat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Someone who performs services for you may feel unappreciated. Be generous with your praise. Let harmony reign at home. Seek an expert's advice if concerned about a legal matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — Not a good a day for taking chances. However, do seize a golden social opportunity. Wise choices are likely if you emphasize practical concerns. Be prepared to move on with the times.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Avoid leaping back and forth from one project to another. Too much is at stake. Important details could get lost in the shuffle. Take a realistic approach to priorities.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Discord is possible this morning. Use your talents as a mediator to restore peace. New friendships are indicated. Speak of your beliefs and hobbies. Your winning ways will not go unnoticed by an attractive newcomer.

Be Kind To All Kind

Recycle This Paper

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I FOUND THE ANTIDOTE!
NOW IF I CAN JUST REACH HOWARD IN TIME!
NNC NATIONAL NETWORK CORP.
WHILE, INSIDE THE BUILDING...
IT'S THE MAN-MONSTER!
RUN FOR YOUR LIFE!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

UNTHINKINGLY, SAVAGELY, THE MAN-MONSTER LUMBERS INTO THE NNC BUILDING AND...
ARRGH!!
WHILE, ON THE 15TH FLOOR...
DR. TURNER CREATED THE MAN-MONSTER! HE MUST ANSWER FOR THAT!
THAT'S ENOUGH, DR. NORBERT!

Kippii By Barry Deutsch

Jim's Journal By Jim

Three girls came into the copy store today.
They were wearing high-school letter jackets from a town I didn't know.
They looked at all the supplies and laughed a lot.
I guess they had never seen a copy store before.

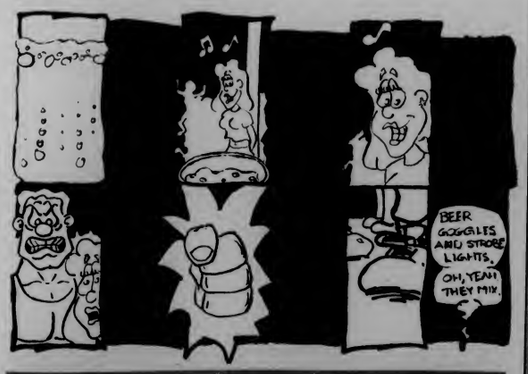
Jim's Journal By Jim

I told Tony I was probably going to find a different job.
He said, "Have you considered astronaut, Jim?"
"They get to travel and wear cool suits, and I bet they get tons of babes."
I told him I was thinking of the grocery store and he said, "Babes, babes and more babes."

Dilbert By Scott Adams

I NEED EVERYBODY TO HELP IN THE SHIPPING DEPARTMENT TODAY.
EVERY PRODUCT THAT SHIPS BEFORE THE END OF THE MONTH GETS COUNTED AS REVENUE FOR THE FISCAL YEAR. UNFORTUNATELY, WE DON'T HAVE INVENTORY.
SO WE'LL SHIP WHATEVER IS LYING AROUND, BOOK IT AS REVENUE AND SORT IT OUT LATER.
THIS ONE'S GETTING GUM.

8 Years in Braces By Eric Petersen



Attention all current, former and future

CARTOONISTS:

All student comics that have not been claimed will be thrown out one week after the last day of the semester.

Milkwood By NeilGolden

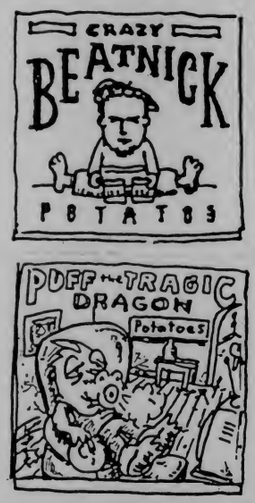
DID YOU FIND OUT WHY THERE'S A DEAD TREE IN THE LIVINGROOM?
APPARENTLY IT'S PART OF SOME BIZARRE BIRTHDAY RITUAL.
AND WHAT ARE THESE STRIPED THINGS?
"CANDY CANES."
CANDY HUNG FROM THE LIMBS OF A PROPPED-UP CORPSE? IT ALL SEEMS SO ODD!... I DON'T KNOW WHAT'S THE WORD?
SACRELIGIOUS?
YEAH.

Close to Home By John McPherson

Gradually, employees at Milnard Industries began to abuse the company's Friday casual-dress policy.

Close to Home By John McPherson

As soon as the Fernquists spotted the house's built-in piano, Carl knew the sale was in the bag.



Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Marni E. Helfner
Copy Editor.....Laura Stock
Photo Technician.....Thang Vo
Production Supervisor.....Marc Dionne
Production.....Mike Krozy
Leon Latino

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH
Fish Munchies
Chicken Sandwich
Pasta/Meat Sauce
Tri Bean Casserole
Sandwich Bar

DINNER
Beef Strips/Snow Peas
Stir Fry Veg. & Tofu
Pastabilities
Eggplant Parmesan
Sandwich Bar

Franklin

LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Fish Munchies
Marty's Deli

DINNER
Beef Strips/Snow Peas
Baked Ziti
Chicken Sandwich

Hampshire

LUNCH
Hamburger on a Roll
Chicken Sandwich
Fish Munchies
Sandwich Bar

DINNER
Beef Strips/Snow Peas
Baked Ziti
Sandwich Bar

Worcester

LUNCH
Fish Munchies
Chicken Sandwich
Pasta/Meat Sauce
Tri Bean Casserole
Sandwich Bar

DINNER
Beef Strips/Snow Peas
Stir Fry Veg. & Tofu
Pastabilities
Eggplant Parmesan
Half Time Deli

There will be a mandatory meeting for all Collegian staff members on Sunday, February 4 at 7:00 P.M.

Contact your department if you are unable to attend.

Quote of the Day

"We turn clay to make a vessel; but it is on the space, where there is nothing, that the utility of the vessel depends. We pierce doors and windows to make a house; and it is on these spaces that the utility of the house depends. Therefore, just as we take advantage of what is, we should recognize the utility of what isn't.

–Lao-tzu"

Sports

Streak climbs to 20, Minutemen cruise over Owls

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — The odds were against them.

Coming into last night's match-up with Temple University at McGonigle Hall, where the Massachusetts basketball team was 1-13 lifetime, the Owls held a slight advantage. Adding to that, the Minutemen were headed into the game with the pressure of having an unblemished 19-0 record and most thought the Minutemen would not be able to escape Philadelphia without a loss.

In order for the Minutenten to pull out the victory they would need strong play from their back court, as Temple's tough two-three zone would surely be hard to handle. What UMass didn't count on was an atrocious shooting night for the Owls who shot 22 percent in the first half and 19.4 percent in the second as the Minutemen came away with a surprising 59-35 victory.

Behind 5-for-9 shooting by Marcus Camby before intermission, the Minutemen raced out to a 30-12 half time lead holding Temple to its lowest output in a half since 1991 against Pennsylvania.

Temple tried to establish Marc Jackson right away going to him on almost every possession from the start. He responded by shooting 5-for-8 and scoring 10 points. But when it wasn't working for Jackson, his teammates were unable to score, as the lone Owl basket came from a Lynard Stewart 13 footer that put the Owls within one early on with 16:56 left in the half. But from there, UMass went on a 23-6 run to end the half including an 11-0 run which was highlighted by two back to back Carmello Travieso three- pointers. Besides Jackson, Temple shot a miserable 1-19 in the first half.

Even with UMass' 30-12 half time lead, knowing the history of the rivalry, it would be tough for the Minutemen to hold to that lead for long as Temple would inevitably make a run. At the start of the second half, Temple made that run, climbing to within eight with 9:49 left (38-30). With a mere eight-point advantage and Camby playing with three fouls, UMass looked to be in big trouble. The Minutemen stormed right back, however, going on an 19-1 run.

"You have to give Temple credit," UMass coach John Calipari said. "They were down 18 at the half and they made a run. We just have good players. That was a good effort by us."

During the run, Camby was phenomenal, not shying away with three fouls. He blocked shot after shot, finishing with nine in the contest, tying his career high tally for blocks in a game.

"That was the best because they played as a team," Temple coach John Chaney said. "That's what you hope to have one day. They preserve off of each other. They feed off of each other. That's the best team in the country as far as we've seen."

Travieso finished with a team high 16 points, including

Turn to HOOP, page 6

THANG VO/ COLLEGIAN

Last night, the Minutemen travelled to Philadelphia and pummelled a lackluster Owl squad 59-35 in hostile McGonigle Hall

Old McGonigle part of Owl lore

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — After years of planning, searching for funds and omnipresent setbacks to build it, Temple's McGonigle Hall will be replaced as the site for future games hosted by the men's basketball team.

"The Apollo of Temple" will open to start the 1997-98 season just two blocks from the Owls' current home court.

UMass basketball fans experienced similar emotions as their arch-rivals are feeling now, looking ahead to a larger more modern facility in the near future. The rickety bleachers and close confines of the Curry Hicks Cage were replaced by the 9,493 seat arena of the William D. Mullins Center.

McGonigle Hall boasts similar seating comforts as the Cage, wooden bench seats and a stiff breeze any time the door to the building is opened. One might compare the actual playing court to that of a high school gymnasium floor. The teams' locker rooms have doors that pour directly out onto the court. There is little more than two feet of out- of-bounds floor space on either side or end line, including walls behind both baskets which help to amplify the noise.

The cramped courtside forces the media to the concourse above the wall on either endzone, and the radio broadcasters, who would normally grace press row, sit in the "Owls Nest," which seems to fall out of the ceiling.

Most importantly for cheering purposes, it creates a great atmosphere to play in and a frightening place to visit once a year.

"The size of the arena affects the way the opposition plays," John Steele, a senior economics major said. "Now, a bigger arena brings bigger attendance to games, such as this. Only 2,700 tickets get on sale, and seats in the upper balcony are being scalped for a hundred dollars a seat. The people love to watch a game here, and the players will love to play there."

Fan support goes a long way in helping the basketball team win games it may not ordinarily win. The Owls have a record of 166-25 all time at McGonigle Hall, a remarkable .869 winning percentage. The Minutemen can attest to that, as their 59-35 win last night was only their second victory at McGonigle in 15 tries. Owl players can also draw inspiration from the trophy cases, which hold many of the University's awards in athletics over the years, as well as the portrait of each Temple Hall of Fame member.

Much like the Mullins Center, the Apollo will host much more than basketball games. Concerts, plays, and conventions will all be held to help create revenue for the University, which helps both basketball and arts support-

Turn to SIDE, page 6

Walsh gets alternative job, C's need alternative arena

• In one that will surely send feminists running for cover, the actor behind the hyper-buxinistic, woman-bashing, child-neglecting cult hero Al Bundy on Fox's Married with Children, will be named Youngstown State's Man of the Year next week. Actor Ed O'Neill played linebacker for the Penguins in the late 60's, but is far better known for his role as the ultra-macho shoe salesman and founder of the church of No Ma'am. The fictional Polk High legend Al Bundy's receiving of the award will surely be cheered by men everywhere, but instead of calling 1-800-COLLECT, like O'Neill suggests in his MCI commercials, women might start calling 1-800-1-GIVE-UP.

• I have never been much of a hoop fan, but watching the highlights of the Temple-Duke game last week, might start to turn me. In that one, Temple forward Mare Jackson, leveled Duke's Greg Newton, while away from the play, with a vicious forearm to the back of the head. Gordie Howe would have been proud of that one, which deserved a five-minute major, and this puckhead took notice.

• The Ottawa Senators just moved into their new home, the Palladium in Kanata, Ontario. That name just reeks of hockey and you can almost feel the history waiting to happen in that place. Too bad a team that has had three coaches this season and is shackled to the NHL's basement resides there.

The best part of the name is that in a league which has recently seen the addition of the FleetCenter, United Center, Molson Place, GM Place and America West Arena, along with the recently renamed Continental Arena and CoreStates Spectrum. This lack of a corporate sponsor is refreshing, especially north of the border where the fans are generally less in tune to the corporate side of sports.

The arena planners certainly did not put the facility in a typical, downtown, subway and highway-accessible American-style setting. The state-of-the art facility is located 45 miles from the Canadian capital, connected by a two-lane road. Bruins commentator Derek Sanderson said that the cab ride cost him $52 CDN from his hotel in Ottawa.

Despite all the recent attempts to Americanize the game (note the hideous FoxTrax puck that ruined an otherwise excellent All-Star Game, in particular) and turn it into the NBA on ice, what sets hockey apart is its rural Canadian heritage. While providing its team with a beautiful new facility, the rustic location can remind the fans of all the good things that hockey still represents, which the more bottom-line focused sports have long sense forgotten under a dirge of labor disputes, free-agency and exponentially spiraling salaries.

• On the subject of new buildings, Bruins and Celtics fans alike have taken to the palatial new FleetCenter like New Coke, and can't wait until the team does the right thing and moves back into the Garden.

Home court/ice advantages are lost in the building, which is frequently full of empty seats, and who can blame the fans? Both teams have among the highest ticket prices in their respective leagues, and the sightlines pale in comparison to the old place. Concession stands in the balcony rent binoculars for games.

The concessions are ridiculously overpriced ($3.00 for a 20 ounce Coke, $4.25 for a 12 ounce Bud Light) and the rush of attending a game at the Garden is long gone. Even the teams have shown the same apathy, in their effort, or lack there of, towards the end of games, as both the Celtics and Bruins have been dreadful to watch this season.

• Embattled Maine hockey coach Shawn Walsh has found a new job to support himself while he serves his year-long University imposed suspension. Walsh, hailed by some as the Jerry Tarkanian of college hockey, is working as the director of development at Beaver Plant Operations Inc., a subsidiary of Alternative Energy Inc., which is based in the neighboring town of Bangor.

Walsh had better get used to this "alternative" job, and focus his "energy" away from Alfond Arena, because after the NCAA announces the results of its investigation, likely over the summer,

Turn to HORN, page 6

Women fall to GW as the roller coaster continues

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts' women's basketball squad continues to struggle as it fell to the No 1 Atlantic 10 Eastern Div. George Washington Colonials 72-65 last night.

The Minutewomen (12-7, 4-4 in A-10) set the pace of the game early, despite playing in the always-hostile Charles E. Smith Center, leading by five until the final three minutes of the first half. The Colonials (14-5, 7-1 in A-10) were determined not to be outdone on their home court as they went on a 13-2 run, knotting the score at 29 with 5:01 to go.

UMass couldn't keep momentum swinging in its favor for long, as three fouls, including one placed on the Minutewomen bench gave GW a handy six point advantage at the half.

Massachusetts couldn't regain sizeable offensive control in the second and found themselves in a 16 point hole with a score of 62-46) with 5:37 left in the game. Coach Joanie O'Brien's squad proved that they were down and not out as they battled back with a 15-5 run in the final four and a half minutes, cutting the GW lead to seven, but couldn't push ahead.

Crystal Carrol, coming off an impressive 26-point outing against St. Bonaventure, led the Minutewomen offense once again with 20 points and seven boards. Senior co-captain Octavia Thomas tallied 14 points on the evening. Thomas' counterpart, senior Melissa Gurile notched her second double-double of the season, contributing 13 points and 10 rebounds to the UMass attack.

Tajaimi Abraham led GW with 21 points and eight boards leading her team to victory.

Going into the game, O'Brien commented that her team has had difficulty playing consistent basketball sighting a "win two, lose one" syndrome that plagued the Minutewomen throughout January.

UMass went 23 for 69 shooting only 33.3 percent from the field, while the Colonials bettered the Minutewomen 26 for 52 for a solid 50 percent on the evening.

With only a month remaining in regular season play, UMass needs to turn on the heat and find the consistency they have been struggling to control. Players like Thomas, Carroll and Gurile have proven that they can step up in pressure situations, and if they wish to keep their sights set on an A-10 Tournament berth, victory in February is eminent.

Massachusetts returns to Amherst Saturday to face new Atlantic-10 opponent, Fordham at 2 p.m. In the Mullins Center. This match is the first of a four-game homestand for the Minutewomen.

Hockey faces pivotal games at UNH, Merrimack

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts hockey team will look to end its extended losing skid, and stay out of Hockey East's basement when it travels to Merrimack and New Hampshire this weekend for a pivotal pair of games.

After opening up the season on a 9-6 tear, the Minutemen (9-14-1, 3-14-1 in Hockey East) have slumped into the conference's eighth place position, with only Merrimack (7-13-5, 2-12-2) keeping UMass in line for a playoff position.

UNH, which ranks, along with Merrimack, as the two most underachieving teams both in the league and the nation, enters this weekend's play seventh in Hockey East at 9-12-2, 5-8-2.

After losing five straight times to Merrimack during the first two years of the reincarnation of the program, UMass cracked the riddle of Warrior goalie Martin Legault as the Minutemen swept a series earlier this season. It was a weekend of firsts for UMass as it represented their first sweep of a league team, and the 4-3 win at the Volpe Complex was UMass' first ever overtime victory against a league opponent.

Tonight UMass will look to complete its first season sweep of a Hockey East team when it faces off with the Warriors in North Andover.

Merrimack will be fired up for tonight's game, it being as much of a must win for them as it is for UMass. With No. 5 Maine skating into Volpe tomorrow night, the Warriors need the wins, and points in the standings, while they can get them.

Lately the Warriors have concentrated their efforts more on offense, where they are averaging just over three goals per game this season. Defenseman John Jakopin, one half of the team's "twin-towers" defensive line with Steve McKenna, has stepped up his offensive play of late, becoming less defensively oriented.

The prospects of the 6' 6", 235 pound junior charging towards the net would keep most defensemen up at night panicking. These defensemen will have to prepare for a tremendous change of pace tomorrow night against high- flying UNH.

The Wildcats, although not much higher than UMass in the standings, will pose tremendous problems for the beleaguered Minuteman defense tomorrow night on the Olympic-sized ice at the brand-new Whittemore Center's Towse Rink.

Exceptionally speedy forwards have long been a staple of UNH coach Dick Umile's team, and this year's crop does not disappoint. Mark Mowers,

Turn to HOCKEY, page 6

Track to face URI, UNH in championship preview

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's indoor track and field squad travels to the University of Rhode Island to face off against the Rams, the Wildcats of New Hampshire and a weak Central Connecticut College team this weekend.

Competition should be fierce between the top three schools. The Minutemen finished sixth out of six teams in the Challenge Cup finals while URI and UNH finished one- two in the Challenge Cup conciliation meet.

Massachusetts has beaten the Wildcats two out of the three times they have met, but the Minutemen lost to the Rams the only time they locked horns.

"We're really matched up very tightly," coach Ken O'Brien said. "It has been that way in the past and I would anticipate that kind of meet this time around.

"Rhode Island has the edge on the up-front performers. New Hampshire and us seem to match up pretty well in that our strength is in the depth of our performers."

The Minutemen competed in a meet with four other universities last weekend beating three and absorbing their only loss at the hands (and feet) of New Hampshire.

Again, UMass took 10 of 16 points in the shot-put with Jan Stevens finishing second to captain Mark LeFebvre. Both men have already qualified for the New England Championships.

Freshman Tom Toye from Scarborough, ME continues to lead the team in points with 41 while O'Brien's every-man Ron Tauro, who scored in three events over the weekend, has tallied 40 points for the 10-7 Minutemen.

Toye has qualified for the IC4A Championships (a step below NCAAs) in the 200m, and Tauro, a junior from Burlington, has qualified for the New England Championships in two events — the hurdles and the high jump.

Along with O'Brien's standout performers, he would like to have a solid performance from his middle distance runners this weekend in order to negate the strengths of Rhode Island.

"I guess you would have to give Rhode Island the edge in the sprints," O'Brien said, pointing to the Rams standout sprinter Dave Federico, who is one of the top short distance runners in New England.

Senior Ethan Nedeau, junior Paul Blodorn and others will be counted on to notch high points in the middle distance events in order to distance themselves from URI and to keep New Hampshire from taking points away.

Nedeau (18.75 points on the season) stood out

Turn to TRACk, page 6

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 72 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Monday, February 5, 1996

Padilla to the rescue
Edgar Padilla hit a clutch three pointer and sealed the game in overtime with a steal in UMass' 78-74 OT win over Xavier. (See sports, page 12)

238 die in China in earthquake
Most fatalities occurred in rural mountain area where mud-brick homes are vulnerable. Nearly 14,000 were injured. (See story, page 3)

A Hung Jury
Demi Moore's latest thriller, The Juror, does little to thrill audiences. Check out our review (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
It's going to be a cold couple of days. Today will be mostly sunny with increasing late day clouds. Tuesday and Wednesday will be cloudy and cold, with the clouds increasing each day.

HIGH: 15 LOW: 10 | HIGH: 20 LOW: -5 | HIGH: 30 LOW: 5

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Making Up
Leslie Shafer Koval prepares for her performance in "Rites of Spring" by the Ruth Birnberg Dance Company featured in Hampden Theater on Feb. 1 and 2.

Grad student's Web site pulled for political ideas

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

The department of computer science at the University of Massachusetts pulled the World Wide Web site of graduate student Lewis McCarthy.

His Web page included the writings of Ernst Zuendal, a German who denies the occurrence of the Holocaust.

The contents of the page were in violation of a state law which prohibits the use of University resources for political purposes.

McCarthy was protesting a German mandate which outlaws materials deemed to incite racial hatred from being posted on the Internet.

The University supported the decision of David Stemple, chairman of the computer science department, to remove the Web site, according to University Spokesperson Karin Sherbin.

However, this move was not intended to show support for the German law or in opposition to the material in question, according to Stemple.

"You don't use public resources for that," said Sherbin, who emphasized that it was the political nature of the writings that was problematic.

Chancellor David K. Scott issued a statement on Friday, saying that University resources could not be used to "influence the policy of the German government."

"It would be equally inappropriate to have used University stationary for such a purpose," he added.

Scott said department heads — not the administration — should have the authority to decide on these matters, and supports Stemple's decision.

Stemple emphasized that the money used by his department to establish Web cites was not intended for use other than for the study of computer science. Students such as McCarthy, therefore, cannot be permitted to use these resources for purposes not related to the University.

While Stemple said that the material McCarthy selected was "offensive to me, the content did not effect my decision."

"It is not a freedom of speech issue for me. We get our money to do something specific — like research. We are not free to do as we please with it," Stemple said.

Even if McCarthy had posted a less controversial topic, if it remained political in content, Stemple's decision would have not changed.

> "It is not a freedom of speech issue for me. We get our money to do something specific — like research. We are not free to do as we please with it."
> David Stemple

According to Stemple, McCarthy chose the writings in protest to German laws which prevent racially charged material from appearing on the Internet, simply because they restrict his freedom of expression.

McCarthy could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Stemple said McCarthy will not be reprimanded, other than the removal of the Web site, including- Zuendal's writings.

Both Stemple and Sherbin said the university will not step up the monitoring of web cites because of this incident.

Stemple said he would review any material brought to his attention, such as McCarthy's.

Stemple, who is opposed to the German law because it restricts the flow of information, said the dilemma posed by the World Wide Web and international freedom of expression laws will not soon disappear.

"This is a transitional stage for Internet protocol," Stemple said.

Oil spill reports understate damage

By Keith Snow
Collegian Correspondent

While many lament the devastation caused by Rhode Island's "worst [oil] spill in history," there are discrepancies between the actual damage and accounts by Rhode Island and federal officials.

Some 2,000 workers were affected by the spill, which killed at least 12,000 lobsters in one day alone. The Department of Environmental Management (DEM) counted 203 birds dead, and 64 others suffered noticeably. A seal and a sea turtle were also killed. Another seal and sea turtle were, instead, casualties, though reasons for exclusion were not given.

According to University of Rhode Island oceanographer Virginia Lee, officials only focused on the surface slick. She said, "the real issue is below the surface. People have this image that its surface oil. It's not. It's mixed into the water. That's the lethal part."

URI scientists reported that the absorbed oil hung close to the shoreline roughly along four miles of national wildlife refuges. They estimated that toxicity levels near the barge were high enough to kill at least 50 percent of the lobster population there within 3 days, and that 40 to 50 percent of the toxins were absorbed into the water. According to the URI scientists, the underwater "cloud" covered an area of about eight square miles confirming that oil had penetrated from the surface to the bottom, 40 feet below. Winds spread the surface slick over an area of about 144 square miles, according to Applied Science Associates Engineers.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials took "tissue samples from dead lobsters to determine whether they died from oil exposure or the violent storm on Friday night."

Lee reported that tissues of lobster washed up on the first few days of the spill contained high concentrations of hydrocarbons, thus discrediting early attempts to blame shellfish mortality on the weather.

But on Feb. 1, Coast Guard spokesman Fred Alger told Valley Optimist reporter Catherine Hines the large numbers of lobsters washed up were the result of the storm.

Marcel Valois of R.I.'s Economic Development Corporation told people at a local Town Council meeting that "South County is the engine that drives the state's tourism business and we are very concerned that national exposure of the oil spill will cause people to change their minds about coming to visit here."

Valois said the state intends to "aggressively" begin a national campaign to persuade people "that this problem will go away" and "will leave behind no negative effects" either on tourism or on seafood.

The R.I. health department embargoed 43,000 pounds of lobsters and 9,000 pounds of crab, after oil-contaminated salt water was pumped into tanks holding them.

"We are extremely lucky not to have a catastrophe on our hands," said Spence Conley, assistant regional director for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Evidence is beginning to emerge that confirms that petroleum exposure — home-heating oil in particular — is more lethal to health and environment than industry apologists say.

On the day of the spill, local residents Michael Cabral and his girlfriend were treated for exhaustion, lightheadedness and burning sensations in throat and tightness in their chests due to fumes. Their concerns about long-term effects of the inhalation of toxins, which they said also saturated their clothes, were dismissed by officials.

Virginia Weaver, an occupational environmental physician with John Hopkins School of Public Health in Maryland, said that while the chemicals in home-heating oil are considered "standard toxins" which "have only short term side-effects." She also said that "little research has been done on long-term effects of exposure."

Keith Kvenvolden of the U.S. Geological Survey, who is investigating oil residues found near the Exxon Valdez spill, told the New York Times, "the degradation products of oil spills certainly have long residence times, in this case 30 years."

The North Cape accident in Cape Cod spilled over a million gallons of toxins close to shore, in a pounding surf, which drove toxins into the water column, along the shore of sensitive ecological wetlands and tidal marshes, breeding grounds for scallops, quahogs, winter flounder and sand lance, a food source for many fish higher up on the food chain.

"Yeah, it's all cleaned up," said DEM officer Sheila Desaro, "that's why there's lots and lots of dead lobsters and shellfish washed up on the beach. The repercussions from this will last a long, long time. We've got decimated populations of shellfish and lobsters. I don't agree that there's no impact, or that it's short term. This should never have happened."

SGA & RSOs budget time nears, few changes in funding expected

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

While lawmakers in Washington butt heads over the federal budget, local leaders in the Student Government Association (SGA) can expect the fiscal process which allocates funds to all Registered Student Organizations (RSOs) to be considerably simpler.

Jeffrey Coker, Chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, is urging RSOs to get their budget proposals in as soon as possible, to ensure they receive appropriate resources.

"If they do not turn in a budget packet on time, they will not receive money — no exceptions," said Coker, whose committee is responsible for overseeing the budget process and making final recommendations to the entire Senate body for official approval.

Coker is optimistic that most RSOs will receive a satisfactory amount of funding.

We shouldn't expect any dramatic increases or decreases for the RSOs," he said.

The committee controls $1.2 million of the $3.2 million Student Activities Trust Fund, which is financed through students fees on the undergraduate semester bill.

The Ways and Means Committee dealt with an SGA budget deficit of approximate $16,000 by eliminating all funding for the Distinguished Visitor's Program.

According to Coker, the cut was necessary to off-set the costs of inflation — about three percent annually — and the impending hike of the state minimum wage to $5.25 per hour.

This money, in addition, said Coker, will be used for organizations

> "Organizations have to show that they have been active and have used their money well"
> Jeffrey Coker

looking for ways of becoming financially self- sufficient. He cited WMUA, which will receive funding to assist in their annual telethon.

RSOs which demonstrate they can effectively manage their money and have made efforts to locate outside sources of funds will be at an advantage when SGA considers their budget.

"Organizations have to show that they have been active and have used their money well," said Coker.

The first draft of the budget is expected to be completed at the beginning of April, at which time RSOs can appeal the decisions of the Ways and Means Committee.

"If there is a definite reason why a RSO should get more money, we [will] bring it back to the committee," Coker said.

While Coker refused to speculate about even preliminary funding decisions, he said that the sooner RSOs submit their budget proposals, the more likely they will be satisfied with what is allocated.

The final budget is scheduled for approval by the beginning of April.

Coker does not "anticipate any overwhelming changes" in the first and final drafts of the budget proposal, citing existing support present in the Senate and other executive offices for what work has already been completed.

RSOs that need assistance with procedural matters can consult Coker, or can go to the Student Activities Office on the second floor of the Student Union Building.

New class explores Jewish history through murals

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

A new course offered at the University of Massachusetts will focus on creating murals to teach Jewish history. The course allows students to learn about Jewish life and art through a hands-on experience in a small group setting.

Northampton artist Jonathan Kohrman will teach the one- credit class offered through Jewish Affairs. Entitled "Mural Workshop on Jewish Themes," the course will meet on alternating Tuesdays at the Hillel House. Students will learn a broad overview of Jewish history and look through photographs and paintings prior to creating their own mural design.

The mural will be featured in the dining room at Hillel House. Kohrman expects it to be finished before the end of the semester.

"The mural will allow students to reflect on the cultural purpose of Hillel and create a setting for Jewish students," Kohrman said.

Murals have served many functions in history, said Kohrman, who feels that the overall sense of a room is transformed decoratively by the large wall paintings. Also, murals have been used as a means to protest against atrocities. Many different cultures, including the Catholic Church and Mexican government, have used murals as a way to educate people about their history, Kohrman said.

He will guide the class from concepts to small-sized drawings, then to the transfer onto the wall. Kohrman said students are free to create their own theme, although he is personally interested in European Jewish history before World War II.

His experience with helping Holyoke teens make seven large-scale murals led him to create the course. Kohrman said that he learned a great deal about Puerto Rican culture through another mural project.

While a graduate student at UMass, Kohrman designed the mural near the barber shop in the Campus Center. His art work, "The Civility," won a competition to raise consciousness about race relations.

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Teacher of the "Mural Workshop on Jewish Themes" class Jonathan Kohrman painted "The Civility" while a graduate student at UMass.

Teenager shot on way to school by Israeli, claim Palestinians

NABLUS, West Bank (AP) — An Israeli man shot at Palestinian students near a West Bank school on Sunday, wounding a 16-year-old Palestinian witnesses said.

Three students said they were walking to school Sunday morning on the main road in the village of Sawiyeh, near Nablus, when they heard gunfire and saw 16-year-old Yasser Snobar fall to the ground, blood streaming from his back.

"We got him into a car and took him to hospital," said one student, who would not give his name. After the shooting, the students said they saw a man pulling away in a car with yellow Israeli license plates.

A worker at Rafidiyeh Hospital in Nablus, who also would not give his name, said Snobar was in fair condition with a gunshot wound to his back and stomach.

Both the Palestinian police and Israeli police in the West Bank said they were investigating the reports.

"According to the preliminary report that we have, a settler opened fire on a group of students and one student was injured," said Col. Fahed Biyad of the Palestinian police.

Israel radio originally said several students were wounded and that there had apparently been some deaths, but later backed off its report, saying only that a hospitalized student said he had been shot.

The Israeli army first confirmed the report that there had been a shooting, saying that an Israeli driver opened fire, wounding students, after stones were thrown at his car. The army later retracted its statement.

"There was no incident. No shooting, no stone throwing, nothing," said a military source who refused to be identified. The source said the army had been "led around by rumors."

The army said it did not know how Snobar was wounded.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Monday, Feb. 5

Music — There will be a variety of musical classes offered as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. In FAC 155 there will be Voice Repertoire with Nikki Stoia from 2:30 – 3:30 p.m., and African Cuban Drumming with Joe Platz from 7–9 p.m. In FAC 151 there will be a Piano class with Fannetta McLean

In the Old Chapel Seminar Room there will be a Voice class with Jane Hanson from 7–8 p.m. In Old Chapel 116 there will be a Musical Skills and Composition class with Sherry Buskey from 8–9 p.m. Call the Susan at the PAD, 545-0519, for more information.

Dance — There will be two dance classes offered as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. From 7–8 p.m. in the Old Chapel Auditorium there will be a Jazz class with Jenn Scanlon. Scanlon will also teach a Tap class in the same room from 8–9 p.m. Call Susan at 545–0519 for more information.

Meeting — UVC–19 is having its first general body meeting for the semester at 7 p.m. in the studio at 216 Student Union Bldg. It is mandatory that staff members attend at least two of these meetings per semester. Anyone interested is welcome to attend. For more information call 545–1336.

Meeting — UMass Update will hold a news meeting at 7 p.m. in the UVC–19 studios. Anyone interested in reporting, writing, or becoming a member of the technical crew is welcome. Call 545–1336 for information.

Meeting — The UMass Ski Club will hold a general meeting for skiers and snowboarders at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. All abilities are welcome. For more information contact Arik at 545–3437.

Lecture — Barbara Love, a UMass associate professor of education, will moderate a panel discussion entitled, "Perspectives on Affirmative Action: How Does It Affect You?" The lecture will be in Campus Center Rm 163 at 7 p.m. Panelists include Faye Crosby from Smith College, Hermenia Gardner and Hadley Arkes from Amherst College, Michael Burkart, a corporate diversity consultant, and Jerrold Levinsky, from the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

Meeting — The Boltwood Project will be holding recruitment nights Feb. 5, 6, 7 from 6–8 p.m. Feb. 5's meeting is in the Commonwealth Room (Earthfoods) in the Student Union. The Boltwood Project is a service organization working with Amherst and surrounding communities. For more information call Mark at 546–3301.

Tuesday, Feb. 6

Dance — As part of the Performing Art Division's Free Week, there will be several dance classes at the Old Chapel. In the Auditorium, from 7–8 p.m., there will be Advanced Ballet with Katie Magyar. From 8–9 p.m., there will be Modern Dance with Hillary Knowlton. In the Seminar Room, from 6:30–8 p.m., there will be Country Line Dancing with Sandy Anderson. Call 545–0519 for information.

Theater — There will be an Acting and Directing Workshop with Davor Diklich from 5:30–7:30 p.m. in Kennedy 508 in the Southwest Residential Area. This workshop is a part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. Call 545–0519 for more information.

Music — There will be a Reggae Ensemble with Abdul Baki as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The presentation will be in FAC 155 from 7–9 p.m. Call 545–0519 for more information.

Music — There will be two guitar demonstrations with Kevin Collins in Emerson 112 of the Southwest Residential Area. Classical Guitar will be from 6–7 p.m. and Just for Fun Guitar will be from 7–8 p.m. This is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For more information call 545–0519.

Lecture — "Women's Bodies, Women's Wisdom: Creating Health Throughout the Life Cycle" is the title of a lecture to be given by Christiane Northrup, M.D. at Franklin Patterson Hall at 7 p.m. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Demonstration — There will be a demonstration to free Leonard Peltier, a Native American convicted of killing two FBI agents, at 5 p.m. in the Federal Bldg. in Springfield. For more information, or a ride, contact the National People's Campaign at 538–8537.

Info–Social — The UMass Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance will hold its first info–social of the semester from 7–9 p.m. in Campus Center Rm 803. Refreshments will be served and a movie will be shown. For more information call Ashavan at 545–0154.

Meeting — The Boltwood project will be holding recruitment nights Feb. 5, 6, 7 from 6–8 p.m. The meetings on Feb. 6 and 7 will be held in Campus Center Rm 162. The Boltwood Project is a service organization working with Amherst and surrounding communities. For more information call Mark at 546–3301.

Wednesday, Feb. 7

Theater — There will be an introductory acting class with Michelle Sullivan in the Old Chapel Seminar Room from 6:30–8 p.m. The class is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For information call 545–0519.

Dance — There will be a dance workshop with Tracy Vernon as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The class will be in the Old Chapel Auditorium, from noon–1 p.m. Call 545–0519 for information.

Theater — There will be a musical theater presentation with Dan Peterson in the Old Chapel Auditorium, from 7– 8:30 p.m. This is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For information call 546–4363.

Meeting — The Italian Club will hold an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 301. All students are welcome. For more information call 546–4363.

Volunteer Fair — The VIVA Council is holding a volunteer fair from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., in the Student Union Ballroom. Forty service agencies will be recruiting volunteers. Call 545–3368 for more information.

Theater — The UMass Theater Guild will hold its first general meeting of the semester at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center. Anyone interested is invited to attend, there will be audition information available. For more information call 545–0415.

Meeting — The Student Health Advisory Board will hold its first meeting of the semester from 5:30–6:30 in University Health Services Rm 304. Everyone is welcome. Call 549–9940 for information.

Meeting — The Boltwood project will be holding recruitment nights Feb. 5, 6, 7 from 6–8 p.m. The meetings on Feb. 6 and 7 will be held in Campus Center Rm 162. The Boltwood Project is a service organization working with Amherst and surrounding communities. For more information call Mark at 546–3301.

Notices

Job Applications — The GEO Personnel Committee is accepting applications for three part–time positions: Office Coordinator, Grievance Coordinator, and Contract Campaign Coordinator. All positions are for 20 hours per week at $12.30/hr for 16 weeks. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9. Contact Beth at 545–0705 or 665–3299 with any questions.

Meetings — The Everywoman's Center has announced its group meetings for the spring semester. There will be a Communication and Intimacy Group on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m., a Re–entry Women's Group on Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m., a Women and Self Esteem Group for Undergraduate Women on Mondays at 7:00 p.m. and a Women in Transition: Exploration Through Expressive Arts Group on Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. These groups may require registration and a screening interview. Call the Everywoman's Center at 545–0883 by Feb. 16 for more information.

Meeting — The Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a Rape Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and a Child Sexual Abuse Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:00 p.m. Both of these groups require screening interviews. Call 545–0800 by Feb. 7 for information.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 545–0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5–6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545–4824.

Writing — mOhhertongue, a multi–lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587–9884.

Religious — Rides are being provided to any students who would like to attend worship services at the Alliance Church on Sunday mornings. For information contact Mark at 253–0361.

Meeting — The African Student Association holds a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the SWAG office. Meeting is open to everyone.

Meeting — Nommo News and Drum Supplement holds general body meetings on Thursdays at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2365 or 546–5562.

AWARD WINNING LOCAL SERVICE
• Full Service Autobody Insurance Approved
• Full Selection of genuine GM Goodwrench parts.
• Mass. State Inspection Station #3243
• Fine selection of new and used cars & trucks.
• Ask about our FREE 18 point maintenance check.
PAIGE'S CHEVROLET Amherst Geo
DICKINSON ST. - BETWEEN RT. 9 & MAIN ST. • 253-3444 • PARTS LINE 253-5923

East Coast L.A. Fitness Aerobic Instructor Training -Since 1988-
An ACE approved exam preparation program
American Council on Exercise CECs available to currently certified instructors
Practical Training • safety • choreography • cueing
Academic Instruction: anatomy • physiology • fitness assessment
8 week program begins
February 24 1996 • Saturdays 8:30-4:30
• No Previous Teaching Experience Required
• CPR Training & Certification
• Limited Enrollment
Call 413 • 774 • 6351
(program held at Flex Fitness/ Amherst)

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT...
SHAB
Gain Experience in Administrative Aspects of Health Care
Sponsor Health Promotion Events
Come join the Student Health Advisory Board
Informational meeting:
Wed. Feb. 7, 5:30 -6:30pm
University Health Services Rm. 304
For more info call Tamara at the Health Education Office 549-2671x181

Student Affairs Special Services

UNDERGRADUATE COMMENCEMENT BACHELOR'S DEGREE CANDIDATES

- Preliminary Information -

Undergraduate Commencement will be Sunday, May 26, 1996 10:30 - 11:45 a.m., at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium (rain or shine).

ELIGIBILITY: Seniors whose degree requirements will be completed in February, May, or September, 1996, are eligible to participate. Immediately contact a member of the "Senior Staff", Undergraduate Registrar's Office, 207 Whitmore (5-0555), if you are unsure of your academic status or have questions in this regard! Only Seniors of record as of April 7, 1996, will be listed in the Commencement Program.

INFORMATION BROCHURE: A brochure with general Commencement information will be mailed to seniors and their parents by late February . An update with further details about the ceremony will be made available to seniors in May as well as in one of the last issues of the "Collegian" in the spring. There is no Commencement rehearsal, so it is very important that the brochure be reviewed, and retained for further reference in May.

The brochure will include information about Accommodations (on-campus); Announcements; Caps; Gowns, and Tassels; Disability Services; Food Services; Parking and Shuttle Services; Seating; Travel Assistance, including suggested alternative routing; Videotape orders; When and Where to Assemble; and Yearbook orders; as well as the seating plan for graduates.

INVITATIONS, TICKETS, GUEST SEATING: Neither invitations nor tickets are required. There is no limit on the number of guests you may invite. Guest seating is unreserved.

HOUSING (on-campus): Guest housing will be available in residence halls the night before commencement. Details will be noted in the information brochure mailed in February.

STUDENT SPEAKER: Those interested in being considered for Student Speaker are advised to watch for ads in the "Collegian" concerning this competition. The deadline for proposals will be February 14. Contact 5-3464 for additional information.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: Please call the Visitors Center, 545-0306.

Congratulations to all concerned.

UMASS SKI CLUB presents...
THE 1996 SKI YEAR
TONIGHT, FEB 5TH, at 7PM
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
Featuring:
QUEBEC, CANADA
NEGRIL, JAMAICA
STEAMBOAT, COLORADO
KILLINGTON, VERMONT
...and Introducing:
MT. TOM SKI AND BOARD NIGHT
KILLINGTON HALF PIPE AND MOGUL TOUR
ROUGE RIVER WHITE WATER RAFTING,
Come find out why all the critics are saying,
"the UMass Ski Club is the Northeast's #1 Ski & Snowboarding Club" !!
SKIERS AND SNOWBOARDERS OF ALL ABILITIES WELCOME!!
Free Giveaways - Lift Ticket Raffle - Ski Club Merchandise
430 Student Union (Above People's Market) - 545-3437
This is an ad for our 1st General Meeting and should not be mistaken for a Hollywood production
Steamboat · Stratton VERMONT · JAMAICA · Mt. TOM Ski Area · Mont Sainte-Anne · Mount Snow Haystack · Killington VERMONT

Survey to help local businesses

Market Street Research seeks answers to gather information

Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

The 14–member Regional Pioneer Valley Small Business Council is surveying several of the 22,000 small businesses in the Valley to determine their needs.

"It is the first survey I know of done in the entire pioneer Valley to identify the needs of small businesses," said Julie Pokela, survey designer.

Interpreted results from Market Street Research are anticipated in mid–March from the 4,500 small businesses that were mailed a survey. The aim is establish new programs for small businesses.

The questionnaire poses critical questions focusing on four major areas to, "find out the needs of small businesses and determine how we can help small businesses," said Stanley Kowalski, Jr., chairman and founder of the one–year–old council.

Survey results will show small business' knowledge of their resources, and the perception of the Chamber of Commerce in the area, said Pokela.

The first area of the survey will ascertain trends in small business markets by asking, for example, whether sales are increasing or decreasing. It will examine trends by looking at specific businesses which are doing well and which are doing poorly, Pokela said.

The second area involves identifying common interests regarding public policy. Questions will focus on the availability of labor force, land, buildings and capitol to buildings, Pokela stated.

Providing services and benefits tailored to the needs of specific businesses, is another aspect of the questionnaire.

From the results of this section, Pokela hopes to develop a database clearinghouse where information can be accessible by businesses who need help developing planning. For example, the database can provide information on the number and size of businesses in the local area to which a business may market.

Training programs dealing with strategic planning and obtaining financing will be implemented, Pokela added.

The final section of the survey deals with creating a network system to identify and advocate for small business issues.

"We strongly encourage businesses to fill out this survey in order for Market Street Research to develop programs to meet businesses specific needs," Pokela said. "The better the response rate, the more we can develop programs to meet business needs."

Market Street Research, Pokela's company, works with businesses to obtain information about their markets and potential markets to develop more effective strategies, she added.

The Regional Pioneer Valley Small Business Council is a modeled after the Cleveland Council of Small Enterprises (CCSE). The council in Cleveland is the largest business organization within the United States, according to Kowalski. It consists of 12,000 members who make up the small business division of the greater Cleveland Growth Association within Cleveland's Chamber of Commerce.

Service to help students with computers

By Lucy Brinicombe
Collegian Correspondent

A new computer service is being set up by University of Massachusetts students to improve the "quality of computing" in the Valley. The organization, named Non– Academic Computing (NAC), aims to offer a referral service, putting local computer users in touch with consultants who can solve their computer problems.

According to NAC's student advisor, Edward Abrams, the organization aims to act "as a consumer protection union for computer users" in the area. "Some local companies have been charging too much for services like computer tutoring, maintenance and support," he said.

The organization will be able to refer those troubled by uncooperative computers to their pool of consultants. The consultant and the client can then agree on a fee independently between themselves.

The consultants will primarily be students, giving computer literate students at UMass an opportunity to apply their skills to a vocational context. NAC seeks to allow students with specific computer skills to market their knowledge, without having the pains of the paper work and public relations that would otherwise have to be considered.

NAC will also help individuals offering other services such as Desk–top publishing, spread sheet work and compiling World–Wide–Web home pages. Moreover, the organization intends to eventually offer free services, including consultation over the phone for small computer problems.

Abrams pointed out that consultants can enrich their computer knowledge by getting involved in the service. NAC provides the "opportunity to learn from each other among consultants."

NAC also "seeks to encourage community participation by its consultants," Abrams continued. Non–students, too, are eligible to be listed in the referral service. There will be an organizational meeting within three weeks for anyone wishing to get involved.

Over 238 dead in Chinese earthquake

BEIJING — Medics and soldiers rushed into scenic Lijiang in southwestern China on Sunday to help survivors of a powerful earthquake that killed at least 238 people and injured nearly 14,000.

The floors of two local hospitals were filled with injured people, the state-run Xinhua news agency said. Doctors also worked outdoors and in temporary clinics set up in tents.

Television reports showed medics attending to bloodied victims who lay on mattresses on a floor, covered with thick quilts to protect them from temperatures that hovered near freezing. On Monday, tens of thousands of injured and homeless people sat huddled under quilts or dug through the rubble of their devastated mud and rock homes.

One young rescue worker sat on the rubble embracing a quake victim and weeping.

"People from all walks of life have been quick to act to help," said Chen Jie of the Yunnan province government. Teams of relief workers reached all areas that were heavily damaged, she said.

The television report said 238 people died, 3,700 were seriously injured and more than 10,000 suffered minor injuries. A male foreign tourist was among the severely injured, but his name and nationality were not immediately known, Xinhua said. Four other foreigners suffered minor injuries, the news agency said.

Most of the fatalities occurred in nearby Dayan town and in the rural areas of White Sand and Gold Mountain, said Chen. The picturesque town of Lijiang, 1,300 miles southwest of Beijing, is one of Yunnan's most popular tourist areas.

But the traditional homes that decorate the mountainous region are vulnerable to earthquakes because they are made of mud bricks, with heavy roofs of rounded gray tiles on wooden rafters.

Saturday's magnitude 7 quake damaged the old quarter of Lijiang, a maze of narrow, twisting cobblestone streets and fast-flowing canals crossed by arched stone bridges.

About 10 percent of the town's old one- and two-story wooden buildings with pillars and balconies were destroyed, the report said.

Most of Lijiang's residents were evacuated to temporary shelters set up in tents, and the government was providing quilts, water and food, Chen said.

The quake collapsed nearly 180,000 buildings across the stricken area, cut off communication and, in some areas, knocked out water, electricity and roads, Chen said.

Nearly 200 aftershocks, including 18 that measured between magnitudes 4 and 4.8, were recorded in Lijiang County by Sunday, Xinhua said. Seismologists warned that aftershocks of up to magnitude 6 could hit in the next few days.

The Red Cross Society of China appealed for international humanitarian aid. It was sending dozens of doctors and nurses and $160,000 worth of clothes, quilts and medicine.

Ninety cars, trucks and jeeps brought soldiers and other rescue workers into the disaster area, provincial official Wang Ze said. Xinhua said teams of relief workers began arriving at dawn on Sunday.

COMING SOON
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian on the World Wide Web
New England's Largest College Daily Online

OOPS! North Amherst Motors CARSTAR
• Free Estimates • 5 Year Nationwide Warranty • Auto Glass Replacement • Car & Truck Rental
78 Sunderland Road, North Amherst, MA 549-2880
(One Mile from UMass bus route)

Hunan Garden Restaurant
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
NEW BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 p.m. $5.99
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m. ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Lunch Buffet Mon.-Sat. 11-3 $3.99
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 BELCHERTOWN RD. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

AEROBICS 253-3539

PERSPECTIVES ON AFFIRMATIVE ACTION: HOW DOES IT AFFECT YOU?

An opportunity to listen and respond to different viewpoints

February 5, 1996 - 7:00 - 9:30 p.m. - 163 Campus Center

MODERATOR

Barbara Love, Associate Professor of Education, UMass Amherst

PANELISTS

Faye Crosby, Professor of Psychology, Smith College

Hermenia Gardner, Director of Affirmative Action, Amherst College

Michael Burkart, Corporate Diversity Consultant, Amherst

Hadley Arkes, Professor of Political Science, Amherst College

Jerrold Levinsky, Deputy General Counsel Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination

Jointly sponsored by the Amherst Civil Rights Review Commission, the Amherst Public Schools and the Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations

sign language interpreter services will be provided

TOC Bar & Grill
11TH FLOOR • LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER
(413) 545-3217
Grand Opening
Check out our new Pub Menu & Microbrews!
Half Price Appetizers & Great Beer Specials
4:00pm to 6:00pm
Monday, Feb. 5th - Friday, Feb. 9th
Hours: Mon. - Sat. 4:00pm - 12:30am
Positive ID Required

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Viatour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Heffner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Senior Diversity Editor

Tara Mc Connelly Arts & Living Editor Position Vacant Women' Issues Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor Tom Morse Editorial Production Manager
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Adam Chase Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial Opinion Editor Al Stewart Finance Manager
Lisa M. Oliver Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Werner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classified Manager
Lisa Ono Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Amy Paradise News Editor Maureen Mazerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reis Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Circulation Advisor/Instructor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist Turles Publications Printer/Publisher

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian, published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts' summer and fall semesters. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 and began fully became the college's paper in 1971. The Massachusetts Collegian merged with the Daily Hampshire Gazette in 1986. Since then, it has been published daily, Monday through Friday, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500, weekdays, between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

Let E.T. be

Mark McGrath

Visitors few questions have given more people more hours of imaginative enjoyment than the question of the existence of extra-terrestrial life. Sadly, scientists are working to end the speculation and in doing so, robbing us of one of the few remaining mysteries of life. In this particular case, it seems the possible rewards of discovery will be overshadowed by the losses incurred in the process.

This time, the astronomers have gone way too far. In their quest for headlines and grants to keep their own little hobbies alive, they've gone outside the lines. They have played with our emotions. "Life Could Exist in Outer Space," read the headlines. Of course life could exist in outer space. Life could also not exist in outer space, and that would hardly be worth writing about. In making these claims, they toy with our very sense of understanding our place in the cosmos. They challenge our notions of religion. They challenge our very security, and over what?

The basis of their claims is the fact that certain stars trillions of miles away could have planets orbiting them and that these planets could be cool enough to accommodate liquid water, which is considered necessary for life to exist. Interesting, yes. Enough to warrant the headlines, no.

First of all, it is rather arrogant for these so-called scientists to assume that just because life on Earth needs liquid water, that any possible life would also need it. The fact that they believe extra-terrestrial life could exist shows their imaginative capabilities, but they fall short of the mark. Who are we to define life, especially in a place that is a 100 trillion miles away from us?

Secondly, if we were to discover life outside the solar system, what good would it really do? I'm assuming that the life discovered would be either more or less advanced than us. If the aliens were more advanced than us, odds are that they would already have discovered us. In fact, they are probably getting a good laugh out of us now.

They probably get a kick out of watching our problem-ridden society act as if we had any business testing the limits of the unknown when we can't even deal with the known. Before setting their sights on other worlds, a race should have a habitable world of its own.

For all we know, the universe could be nothing more than a single cell of some inconceivably large being who resides in an even more inconceivably huge world. Even if that is the case, does the knowledge do us any good? The most it could do is give us an alarming sense of insignificance in the grand scheme of things.

On the other hand, the life that is yet to be discovered and probably doesn't exist could be less developed than we are. Well gosh, that would be useful to know. Yep, it lives, but nope, we can't reach it and even if we could reach it, it doesn't have anything good to tell us.

Seriously, is it really worth all of the trouble we are going through to find out that some bacteria-like organisms are living light years away and once they've evolved millions of years from now may actually be able to communicate with us? Scientists need to realize that knowing for the sake of knowing is going to get us all in trouble.

I guess that what I'm really trying to say is that sometimes a question has more value to us than any answer to that question possibly could. An analogy could be made to the expecting parents who do not want to know the sex of their child because part of the fun is in not knowing. As far as the extra-terrestrial thing goes, I have the answer.

Yes, extra-terrestrial life does exist. It exists in the imagination of millions of people. It exists on the screens of our movie theaters and on the pages of our comic books, and in those ways prove useful to us. But to assume that super-powered radio telescopes are going to somehow retrieve a cure for AIDS or a solution to our environmental problems is simply absurd. The money and brain power wasted on such research could be better used in dealing with some of Earth's real problems head on.

Mark McGrath is a Collegian columnist.

A few of my favorite things

Stacey Shackford

I got new shoes. I got new shoes. I got new shoes. They're black Dr. Martens with lots and lots of lace holes and rainbow-colored stitching. I love my new shoes. They're pretty special. I got my new shoes to replace my old battered Mary Janes. My Mary Janes had to be retired after a long arduous four years of daily wear. Mary's heel was tearing in two, Jane's seams were unseaming and forming holes. It was hard to say goodbye, but necessary nonetheless, which brings me back to my new shoes.

I got my new shoes last Saturday. I've been wearing them every day since. I must say, however that it has been a painful few days. Every step brings searing pain that starts at my heels and continues all the way up my spine. Like the Little Prince and his fox, I've been taming my beloved shoes in hopes that one day my shoes and I will be able to share a similar relationship to the one I shared with my Mary Janes. It's been a difficult task, though, for my new shoes are definitely a wild pair. Sometimes they have a mind of their own. They nick the back of my heels continuously and inhibit my every step. They make strange noises and sounds. I swear people can hear me "galumping" awkwardly along from several feet away.

For those of you who have stayed with me this far, you are probably wondering, "What the hell is the point of this petty proclamation anyway?" Frankly, I was beginning to wonder the same thing myself. Actually, I do believe I'm beginning to get concerned. I've always liked to consider myself non-materialistic, but I think this apparent shoe fetish is starting to reveal otherwise. Therefore, I think it is an appropriate time to redeem myself by turning it into an examination of my petty obsessions. So, like Julie Andrews, I will now provide you with a list of my favorite things.

Vacuum cleaners: I love the sound big chunky objects and even not-so-big chunky objects make as they get vacuumed into the dusty abyss of the chunky things graveyard.

Orion: Orion has got to be the hands down best constellation in the galaxy. He's the most trustworthy friend I have. I need only look up in the starry night sky and he is there, always waving back at me. I'd have to say that if there truly is an omnipresent God in the heavens, its name is Orion.

Fire: I absolutely love fire. I love playing with lighters and matches. I love campfires. I love the atmosphere campfires provide and what goes on around campfires. I love the smell of campfires going in the brisk winter air. I love watching fire. Even lightning bugs have a dynamo in their rear end. When I die, I want to go out like a moth in its kamikaze descent into the fire. At least it becomes part of beauty for an instant rather than living an eternity never experiencing it.

Glitter: Glitter and dressing up silly every now and then are absolutely necessary. Along with glitter come my Hello Kitty markers which are perfect for coloring fingernails and drawing rings on your fingers or coloring the stitching on your new shoes. Sub topic: silly not-so-cosmetic items. This includes Lip Smackers, Vanilla Blossom "cologne spritzer," mint-flavored chapstick and pearl/glitter nail polish.

Chopsticks: I always eat with chopsticks, and chopsticks only. Except for breakfast. Speaking of which, breakfast is definitely my favorite meal of all time. If it was up to me, I would eat chocolate chip pancakes, cheese omelets, Belgian waffles with strawberries and whipped cream and French toast with peanut butter and maple syrup with every meal. But alas, I'm forced to cope with reality and in the real world, I've become quite fond of rice, salt and vinegar anything, pickles and I do believe I'm starting to like that tofu sausage they serve every now and then up here.

Christmas: This ranks number one in my holiday book. When else can you listen to tacky, tacky music, smell pine 24/7, wrap up dozens of silly presents and send out tons of silly tacky cards, play with tinsel and orange Christmas lights and spend time with the beloved family parental unit? Okay, scratch that one. And while I'm at it, I hate the phrase 24/7.

Tom Robbins: Still life with Woodpecker is my favorite book of all time. Any author who uses metaphors like, "her hair was like ironed ketchup riding gravity's one-way ticket all the way to her waist," is OK by me. While we're on the topic of proper nouns, I love The Dead Milkmen, They Might Be Giants, Annie, Pricilla Queen of the Desert, the Muppets, Winnie the Pooh, my friend Bill Smitty (my iguana) and the song "You and Your Friends" by T-ride.

That about completes my (short) list of a few of my favorite things. I also like snow, candles, rubber duckies, the Eighties, my purple bean bag chair, pretty blank books (another unexplainable obsession), poetry, caffeine and pillows. I will now conclude with my favorite word: "Scarfied."

Stacey Shackford is a UMass student.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

GOOD MORNING. I'D LIKE TO WELCOME EVERYONE TO THE CYBERCITIZENS-FOR-STEVE-FORBES ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING!
AS YOU KNOW, AT THE CORE OF EVERY GREAT CAMPAIGN ARE THE VOLUNTEERS WHO BELIEVE, WHO SHARE THE DREAM!
I SHARE THE FORBES DREAM OF A FLAT TAX! I BELIEVE! WHO ELSE HERE SHARES THE DREAM? WHO BELIEVES?
YEAH... OVER HERE
I MIGHT BE GETTING TOO OLD FOR THIS..
EVE BES IN '96

MR. FORBES, ISN'T EXPECTING YOUR FLAT TAX TO "PAY FOR ITSELF" LIKE EXPECTING CREDIT CARD DEBT TO PAY FOR ITSELF?
BUT IT WILL!
IF YOU MAX OUT ENOUGH OF YOUR CREDIT CARDS, THE ECONOMY WILL GROW SO MUCH YOU'LL GET A NEW JOB WITH A BIG RAISE!
NO DOUBT ABOUT IT. HE'S GOT THAT REAGAN TOUCH.
SIMILAR BEARINGS, GOOFY EXPRESSION, TOO

Fat cat versus old bat

Peter Orvetti

If you believe the Republican Party, Suge Knight of Los Angeles should be the ideal American. Born a lower-middle-class African-American in South Central, Knight was encouraged to finish school so he could get a good job. After graduating high school, he went to college. He didn't do it on government support, either — he earned an athletics scholarship. Knight then played briefly in the NFL, and did a stint as a bodyguard. A few years ago he pulled himself up by the GOP's famed bootstraps — or in Knight's case, sneakers — and formed his own company, Today, Suge Knight is a self-made millionaire. He has not lost sight of his community, and still invests in it.

Knight would probably be the poster boy for the Dole/Gingrich values blitzkrieg, except for the sticky point that the company Knight founded is Death Row Records, the label which markets Snoop Doggy Dogg, Tupac Shakur, Tha Dogg Pound and Dr. Dre.

Bob Dole attacked Death Row and its corporate parent, Time-Warner last summer. The Senator later admitted that he himself had never actually listened to Death Row's variety of music.

Now the hypocritical Dole is getting his. You would think that a man who first sought national office in 1976, running for vice-president then and president twice since, and always losing, would eventually get the point. In 1976, Dole was blamed for President Ford's defeat due to Dole's disastrous, fiercely negative campaign oratory. Twenty years later, it looks like America's septuagenarian shadow president may have blown it again.

It was not supposed to be this way. All of Dole's old competition is either dead or has already been president. With no one left to challenge him, Dole was prepared to finally claim the nomination by default. The November election was going to be a rather dull contest between the old, mean guy and the sleazy, dishonest guy. At best, the short, crazy guy might run again, too, just for entertainment value. (He says he's not running, but we've heard that one before).

But Dole has proven himself to be such a weak candidate that he may not even make it past this month's critical primaries. As it turns out, Dole's key opponent is not the well-financed Texas Senator Phil Gramm, or the populist rabble-rousing conservative Patrick Buchanan. So many New Hampshire Republicans are wary of Dole that 31 percent of them are planning to vote for a prep school business magazine publisher.

Enter the rich, goofy guy. Malcolm S. Forbes, Jr., is a name rarely uttered in the press in this campaign. They consent to his desire to be called "Steve," which sounds friendlier. The media's motive? The better Stevie does, the closer the campaign is, and the better the drama. So the "liberal press" has been Stevified these past few weeks. The discovery of two inhabitable planets was buried in Section C, while Forbes's gains in the polls made the front page.

I had thought that the Republicans could not nominate a less enticing candidate than either Dole, Gramm or Buchanan, until little Malcolm arrived on the scene. Even delusional megalomaniac Ross Perot and alleged culture-trasher Suge Knight had to make their own money. Malcolm's plan for deficit reduction is to pay it off with your inheritance. (I suggest Malcolm name the U.S. Representative who recently claimed that a $250,000 income is "lower class" as his running mate. They seem like kindred spirits.)

Even Little Malcolm himself admits that no one would be listening to him if there weren't a lot of zeroes on his bank statement. He is perhaps the most honest version of a real Republican presidential candidate. Malcolm is a rich man with no experience, directly attempting to buy the White House. He is not pretending to be a politician first by serving as a governor (Nelson Rockefeller) or as an ambassador and vice-president (George Bush).

With Little Malcolm, there's no middle man, and no sense of humility. He claims the presidency as his birthright.

Malcolm steals a page from Bill Clinton as well, when he refuses to say how he feels about much of anything. Here is an American presidential contender who is truly one of us: he does not care about how to balance the budget, cut taxes, decrease crime and deal with abortion. He just wants to complain about it.

Malcolm has taken one stand: he calls for a flat-rate tax on income. On the surface, this sounds quite egalitarian. But an executive who makes 10 million dollars a year can afford to pay 2 million dollars in taxes more than a single parent working in a factory who makes $15,000 can afford $3,000, even though these are both the same rate. To add further insult, Malcolm's plan has a loophole that would make the factory worker pay her $3,000 while the executive pays somewhere in the vicinity of $0.

The gist of the Forbes message: elect Malcolm and you'll get less government and less services, and you'll pay more in taxes! The average voter's taxes will increase $400 per year under Forbes's tax. For a business publisher, Malcolm sure has a funny view of market economics: get less, charge more. No wonder he had to raise the price of Sugar Daddy's magazine.

The old mean guy versus the rich, goofy guy in New Hampshire. Maybe the GOP would be better off with the crooked porn producer.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

Hit the showers

Daniel Levinson

Picture it. It's 2 a.m. on a Friday night and you are tired from a long night of studying at the library. All you want to do is brush your teeth and go to bed. You enter the bathroom, but instead of being greeted by a clean and comfortable scene, the sight before you is nauseating: the pungent odor of vomit hangs in the air and there is hair clogging the drains of the sinks. Someone (perhaps several people) has used the toilet and not flushed it. You mutter something about the mess, brush your teeth and go to bed.

This is a shockingly common experience for anyone who has used the bathrooms in the dormitories on this campus. Despite the efforts of the dedicated custodial staff, the bathrooms, at least on the weekends, are absolutely vile.

I would be willing to guess that most of the people who are putrefying the dorm bathrooms would not do the same thing in their own home. Maybe it's because their mothers and fathers would yell at them. Maybe it's because they're reluctant to make a mess where they live.

Well, I have some news for these people. At least for the semester, this place is your home, and if you don't have any courtesy and respect for the dorms, at least have some for the other people who have to use the bathrooms.

But what can be done? I have one idea, but with the cuts in funding I don't know if the University would be willing to go for it. Since it is clearly obvious that a large number of people who live in the dorms are unable to use the bathrooms without defiling them, I would like to propose a class. We'll call it "Hygiene 101." All the University needs to do is make it a requirement for people living in the dorms. Give students one credit. Find someone willing to teach it and everything will be ready to go.

I don't think we'll have to find Miss Manners to teach the course either, just someone with a good understanding of the basics: how to flush a toilet, how not to urinate/vomit all over the floor and how to rid cut hair from the drain.

Why, I can even imagine how the course description would read, "A one credit course designed to teach students how and how not, to use the bathrooms. Topics such as mechanics of toilet flushing, how to clean up your own vomit and why it's a good idea to wear shoes in the shower, will all be covered in great detail. No prerequisites. Open to non-majors."

I know I would feel a lot better about using the bathrooms if I thought that maybe the person throwing up in the stall beside me was going to clean up after themselves. I'm not saying we should be able to eat off the floor, and I make no claim to being the king of cleanliness, but shouldn't there be a basic level of respect for others that would make people think twice about making a mess? I think so.

Well, my work here is done, maybe someone from the administration has seen this and Hygiene 101 will soon be playing at a lecture hall near you. If not, maybe I've gotten through to a few people. Hey, you never know, just maybe it will make the bathrooms a little more clean and comfortable for all of us.

Daniel Levinson is a Collegian staff member.

Arts & Living

Moviegoers object to The Juror

By Laura Stack
Collegian Staff

THE JUROR
Directed by Brian Gibson with Demi Moore, Alec Baldwin
Playing at Hampshire Six

If you've ever served jury duty on an unending, monotonous trial, then you know what it feels like to sit through The Juror.

Demi Moore's talents are lost on yet another torturous screenplay, as she portrays a single mom terrorized because she is a jury member of a mob-boss murder trial. Merely hours after being selected to serve on the jury, joking to the courtroom that her preteen son knows more about mobster Louie Boffano than she, her horror begins.

Alec Baldwin (who must have it written in his contract that he can only act in dimly lit, Malice-esque movies) embodies villainy as "the Teacher." Not your usual Italian suit-wearing gangster, the Teacher has his own agenda when it comes to harassing Annie (Moore). The mob just wants her to convince fellow jury members to acquit their boss. The Teacher wants to steal her mind, soul and body.

We can sense in Baldwin's icy indigo eyes how psychotic his character is supposed to be, but we've seen this sociopath routine before. He hugs her house, taps her phone and plasters his wall with secretly taken photographs of her. He drives fear into her heart by threatening to kill her son, thus putting her in between a rock and the hard place of the jury chair and the mob.

As Annie grapples with how to save herself and her son, the movie drones on and on. The Teacher's mob buddy, Eddie (James Gandolfini), shows concern for Annie and her plight, as the movie tries to make this killer seem humane.

The sinister stalker convinces himself that he is really protecting Annie, not ruining her life, and that he loves her. What?! The only promise he fulfills to her is that this trial will make her stronger, for as per the recipe for typical genre "thrillers," Annie suddenly evolves from an ignorant little lady to a vengeful woman on a mission to take back her life.

The Juror's calculated plot is insulting to viewers, leaving nothing to the imagination. Moore and Baldwin look good onscreen, but the actors are limited to their aesthetics. Eyes roll as Baldwin dishes out chintzy lines like, "be-da-bing" before he shoots and kills his victims.

Director Brian Gibson fails miserably with this venture, leaving fans wondering what happened to films like his gripping drama, What's Love Got to Do With It?

Formulaic and cliche, The Juror is less exciting than those extraneous hours of O.J. Simpson trial footage. Don't deliberate over this one, throw it out. D

Demi Moore and Alec Baldwin generate little suspense in The Juror. COURTESY ANDY SCHWARTZ

A new view of Warhol's Factory

By Mika Burke
Collegian Staff

STEPHEN SHORE & LYNNE TILLMAN
The Velvet Years: Warhol's Factory 1965-67
Thunder's Mouth Press

Thirty years ago Stephen Shore visited Andy Warhol's Factory for the first time. At the tender age of 17, the Factory left a large impression on Shore as well as the entire New York underground art scene. This new book examines Shore's view from his camera lens capturing the creativeness and queerness of the legendary Factory.

Warhol used the Factory as a performance space for his art work, filmmaking and as a practice spot for his house band, The Velvet Underground. It also served as the setting of the majority of the photographs featured here. Among the highlights are a picture of Warhol working on his piece, "Cow Wallpaper" and one of his exhibition "Silver Clouds."

Velvet Underground fans will be enthralled with up close candid photos of Lou Reed, Sterling Morrison, John Cale, Maureen Tucker and Nico. But the majority of the photographs are of lesser known figures including International Velvet (Susan Bottomly) the ex-Mademoiselle cover star who starred in Chelsea Girls, Warhol's 1966 film.

Even though the photographs are the spotlight here, the text compiled by Lynne Tilman also serves as an essential feature. Conducted through extensive interviews, Tilman talked to many of the Factory's leading luminaries from Cale to Billy Name to Edie Sedgwick. Reading tales of the Factory gives fascinating insight into the brilliance behind Warhol's creative mind, from his filming of the 25 hour long film, * (Four Stars), to his work with the Velvet Underground.

COURTESY STEPHEN SHORE

The Velvet Years: Warhol's Factory 1965-67

Tucker, drummer of the Velvet Underground, discussed her relationship with Warhol. "Andy and I had a very special friendship. Not a close personal friendship where we told secrets or anything like that, but I think a mutual respect."

Shore added that, "Andy came across as very insecure and would ask people what they thought of what he was doing. Although one always had a sense he knew just what he was doing."

The story line of this book ends in late 1967 just months before Valerie Solanas shot Warhol, one day before the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy. Although Warhol survived, he was never the same, neither was the Factory. The Velvet Years: Warhol's Factory 1965-67 captures the golden years vividly with Shore's crisp photos.

Since leaving his residence at Factory, Shore went on to a successful photographic career as he became the first living photographer to have a one-man show at the Metropolitan Museum Of Art in New York. For the past 14 years Shore has been at Bard College as the chairman of the photography department.

Hey UMass Faculty & Students!
Get the Morning Paper delivered to Dorms, Offices, and Limited Off-Campus Locations*
50% OFF
The Boston Globe
SPRING TERM (2/4-5/15)
6 DAYS Mon-Fri & Sun ☐ $29.00
5 DAYS Mon-Fri ☐ $16.50
SUNDAY ONLY ☐ $12.50
The New York Times
SPRING TERM (2/4-5/15)
6 DAYS Mon-Fri & Sun ☐ $51.40
5 DAYS Mon-Fri ☐ $26.40
SUNDAY ONLY ☐ $25.00
Subscribe at the Campus Center
call DADS NEWS at 259-1071
or mail to: DADS NEWS, P.O. Box 633, Amherst, MA 01004-0633
$10.00 Charge for Off Campus delivery

Opportunities
High School juniors, seniors and prior service soldiers who qualify may fill vacant positions in the Massachusetts Army National Guard. Benefits include:
100% Free Tuition to State Colleges and Universities
Job Training
Money For College
Hands on Vocational Training
Up to $150/month for Education Expenses
If you are between the ages of 17-35 or have prior military service, this is a package of benefits that you can't pass up. For details call:
1-800-322-1338
Americans At Their Best.

Legal Problems?
Call UMass Student Legal Services Office!
Housing - Family - Student Rights
Civil Rights - Workers Rights
Criminal and Consumer Law
and more...
Call 545-1995
for an appointment
UMASS/AMHERST STUDENTS ONLY

MARINE OFFICER
IF YOU'VE GOT WHAT IT TAKES TO BE A LEADER IN OUR COMPANY, THIS COULD BE YOUR OFFICE.
Summer Training Opportunities Available.
Underclassmen Welcome!
If you are interested in becoming a Marine Officer or would like some information, see CAPT PETERS at the Newman Center on Wednesday the 7th of February or call: 1-800-255-USMC.

Amherst Cinema
Lowest Popcorn, Soda and Candy Prices in the Valley!! Get a Small Popcorn, Small Soda and Small Candy Bar - All three for just $2.00!! Free refills on all large and extra large sodas with UMass I.D. !!
Ticket Price for Students with ID always just $4.00 . . .
Located in Downtown Amherst - Across from the Jones Library
Call 253-5426 for Current Movie Listings & Times.
Now Playing . . .
Othello
Starring Lawrence Fishburne & Kenneth Branaugh

UMass Division of Continuing Education
Your entryway into the University and the future
• Over 200 credit courses and noncredit workshops — in the evening!
• Professional development courses, seminars, workshops
• Specialized degree programs
• Courses for recertification points for teachers
Register through February 12.
Call for a free course catalog • (413) 545-0107
e-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
Division of Continuing Education • University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

Blast off with Spacehog at Pearl St.

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

COURTESY ELI HERSCHKO

Glam wonders Spacehog performs at Pearl Street Tues. night.

Any band that claims to be "A cross between Nirvana, Take That and the Bay City Rollers," has to be commended on their blunt honesty and keen sense of humor. Even if they can't play a single note, a comic image can take you a long way, just look at GWAR. But for Spacehog their image is aided by their unique '90s glam sound that is quickly winning over the MTV crowd.

Largely due to the success of their first single, "In The Meantime," Spacehog has made glam glamorous again. Hard to believe in an age of torn jeans and spiked hair, a band who owes more to David Bowie and T. Rex could gain more than a cult following. But by no means is Spacehog your generic run of the mill modern rock band.

The origin of the band is on the bizarre side. All of the members hail from Leeds, England but they met in the East Village of New York City. A year after their formation in 1994, the band was signed to Sire who recently released Spacehog's debut album, Resident Alien. During one gig in their adopted hometown, before they were signed, two A&R representatives nearly got into a fistfight over the band.

Despite their British origins, the band feels more comfortable with the American music scene. "We went back to England this summer and got a very healthy feeling," said member Antony Langdon, "but New York is a lot better scene than most people realize. In New York, people still can tell a good song and they let you know it."

While the band may compare themselves to Take That and the Bay City Rollers, the band's true sound is harder to pinpoint as the Pearl Street crowd will see.

Spacehog performs at Pearl Street Tuesday night. Tickets are available in advance from the Northampton Box Office. Call the club at 584-7771 for more details

African dance featured in UMass exhibit

By Wiebke Schweer
Collegian Staff

Sounds of African music fill the room of the Augusta Savage Gallery in the New Africa House. Colorfully dressed black women who fill the paintings on the wall seem to move with the rhythm, form figures, swing their hips and rise their arms in ecstasy. "The Dance" is the name of this serial of 20 pictures and drawings, created by Louisianian artist Donald Boudreaux.

"I wanted to show several phases of an African dance, from the slow beginning to an ecstatic end," explains Boudreaux. "So I broke the dance into little pieces, which are shown in the paintings, but all together they form one big exciting dance." Some of the paintings show women in multi-color dresses performing the same steps and figures, which remind viewers of a swarm of birds. Others portray solo dancers totally absorbed in their movements or show the actors at rest during a little break.

Nearly all pictures are painted with intensive colors and captivate their liveliness and movement, as if the figures cannot wait to leave the frames and continue their dance between the visitors.

"Wherever there is movement, there is distortion of colors and forms," said Boudreaux about his choice of colors and his technique, which shows the movements and steps of the dancers with a few strokes of brush.

The intensity of the colors rise as the intensity of the dance rises within the paintings. Whereas the picture "The Beginning" is made of charcoal in black and red, the last picture of the serial is an explosion of colors which flow over the painting.

"A dance is never perfect, so I did not want to create perfect pictures," explained the artist. "I wanted to show how I build my figures and how the pictures are done, in the same way as the dancers build a dance."

Lines and sketches that the artist initially drew to construct his figures can still be seen in his pictures. His figures are colored with rough strikes and their faces are sometimes only suggested by a few strokes. Furthermore, Boudreaux often combines several techniques and materials on works such as his self-portrait "Creator of the Dance."

The artist also involves spiritual elements in his paintings. Attentive beholders can discover drawn, shadow-like figures, which appear between and behind the dancers. Boudreaux explains that with this method he integrated the African ancestors in his paintings.

"Dance is a very spiritual thing and in African tradition the ancestors are always with us during the dance," he said.

One of the pictures in the exhibition seems to differ from the others. It is a very intensive and lively portrait of a black woman dancing in a purple-blue room. She dances expressively, her face shows deep concentration and engrossment. Boudreaux explains that the painting shows a friend of his, a dancer, who was supposed to pose for his dancing serial, but unfortunately his friend died before they started to work together.

So he wanted to create his serial "The Dance" in her memory, painted her portrait from a photo and integrated her in most of the dancing pictures. "I knew nothing could go wrong with these paintings, "says Boudreaux, "because I could feel the presence of my friend, she was guiding every brush."

"The Dance" will be shown at the Augusta Savage Gallery at the New Africa House until Feb. 28, Mon.& Tues. 1-7 p.m., Wed.-Fri. 1-5 p.m.

Donald Boudreaux will also visit the exhibition for a gallery talk on Feb. 27 at 9:30 a.m.

ARTS & LIVING NEEDS NEW WRITERS!

Come down to the Collegian, located in the Campus Center Basement, Tuesday night at 7 p.m. to find out how you can cover the most entertaining beat in the Valley. Contact Tara at 545-1361 if can not attend.

UMass' Best!

The Collegian Poll Rules:

1. Ballots must be dropped of at The Collegian office in the basement of the Campus Center or mailed to 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003.
2. No Photocopied ballots.
3. One ballot per person
4. Ballots must be filled out with reasonable completeness. Ballots with less than half of the blanks filled will be disqualified.
5. Independent Ballot Referees are hired.
6. All Ballots due by Wednesday, February 28, 1996

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian's UMass' Best is intended to be a fair, good natured contest among the local businesses. We encourage all of our readers to experience all of our area's businesses.

Ballot

Name: _____
Address: _____
Phone #: _____
S.S. #: _____

I. UMass Grub
1. Best Pizza Place _____
2. Best Sub Shop _____
3. Best Place to Go on a Date _____
4. Best Place to Eat if Your Parents are Paying _____
5. Best Ice Cream Shop _____
6. Best Chinese Restaurant _____
7. Best Italian Food _____
8. Best Breakfast (Hangover Cure) _____
9. Best Bagel Shop _____
10. Best Vegetarian Place _____
11. Best Northampton Restaurant _____
12. Best Candy Store _____

II. UMass Drink
1. Best Liquor Store _____
2. Best Coffee Shop _____
3. Best Place to Start the Night Out _____
4. Best Place to Finish the Night Out _____
5. Best Shot _____
6. Best Beer _____
7. Best Drinking Game _____
8. Best Bartender (Note Which Bar?) _____
9. Best Northampton Bar _____

III. Shops & Services
1. Best Grocery Store _____
2. Best Florist _____
3. Best Clothing Store _____
4. Best Gas Station _____
5. Best Bike Shop _____
6. Best Bookstore _____
7. Best Hair Salon _____
8. Best Place to Work Out _____
9. Best Tanning Salon _____
10. Best Place to Buy Condoms _____
11. Best Northampton Nik Nak Shop _____

IV. Arts & Entertainment
1. Best Place to Hear Live Music _____
2. Best Local Band _____
3. Best Radio Station _____
4. Best Music Store _____
5. Best Place to Play Pool _____
6. Best Cheap Date _____
7. Best Video Store _____
8. Best Movie _____
9. Best TV Show _____

V. Unique UMass' Best
1. Best Thing About UMass _____
2. Best Apartment Complex _____
3. Best Class _____
4. Best Reason to Miss Class _____
5. Best Reason to Hand in a Paper Late _____
6. Best Professor _____
7. Best Place to Read The Collegian _____
8. Best Excuse for Not Graduating in 4 Years _____
9. Best Place to Study _____
10. Best College Newspaper _____

$5 Gift Certificates to Sweeties of Northampton for the first 50 completed ballots!

All completed surveys will be entered in a drawing to win one of four dinners for two at your favorite restaurant. Winners Drawn March 25, 1996

North Carolina can't make up the deficit, as UNC falls to North Carolina

Saturday's results

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's run of comeback luck ran out Saturday night as Todd Fuller's 16 second-half points gave North Carolina State a 78-75 victory.

In its two previous games, the No. 8 Tar Heels rallied from double-digit deficits to get Atlantic Coast Conference victories. This time, the Wolfpack's 19-point edge withstood the latest North Carolina charge.

Fuller hit a pair of free throws with 9.9 seconds to play, giving the Tar Heels plenty of time to try for a tying 3-pointer. Shammond Williams, a 33 percent 3-point shooter who had already hit a pair of 3-pointers in the rally, got the ball in the left corner from Dante Calabria. His shot over two Wolfpack defenders glanced off the back of the rim, setting off a raucous celebration that spilled onto the court and onto the ice-covered streets outside Reynolds Coliseum.

Fuller finished with 24 points for N.C. State (13-8, 3-6 ACC). Antawn Iamison, held to two points in the first half, finished with 18.

No. 7 Utah 74, New Mexico 58

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Shaking off a recent habit of starting slowly, Keith Van Horn made sure seventh-ranked Utah got out of the box early against New Mexico.

Van Horn scored 12 of his season-high 30 points in the first 7 1/2 minutes and Utah led 21-7 on the way to a 74-58 victory over New Mexico Saturday night.

"We really get up for them. They've always been at the top of the conference since I've been here, and we needed to start strong," the 6-foot-9 junior forward said.

Van Horn scored on shots from all over the floor, including three 3-pointers, and pulled down nine rebounds.

"Very frankly, I'm not sure how many guys that size are as good inside and outside as he is," New Mexico coach Dave Bliss said. Utah coach Rick Majerus understands an opponent's dilemma. "We present them some matchup problems. If they double Keith...we have a lot of other things available to us, if we're hitting shots," he said. "I expect a lot out of Keith. His own expectations for himself are high, so we're on the same page." The Utes (18-3, 10-1 Western Athletic Conference) led 62-51 with six minutes remaining when Van Horn scored five points in a 12-2 Utah run that buried the Lobos (17-4, 7-4).

Brandon Jessie, who scored 15 points, capped the run with 2:01 left with two foul shots that gave Utah a 74-53 advantage. Michael Doleac added 12 points and 13 rebounds for Utah, while neutralizing the Lobos' Kenny Thomas, who finished with just eight points, less than half his conference average.

"New Mexico thought he [Thomas] could just play behind us and that would work. He really didn't try to fight to get around [Doleac's defense], so we just held our position on the block," Majerus said.

Thomas finished the night just 3-of-8 from the floor.

Utah won its 10th straight game this season, and sixth in a row overall against New Mexico.

Duke 83, No. 24 Clemson 53

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - Duke wasn't about to let this lead slip away.

The Blue Devils, a team that has struggled this season holding on to double-digit margins, went up early on No. 24 Clemson and then routed the Tigers 83-53 Saturday.

It was a bit of revenge for blowing a 15-point second-half lead a month ago at Clemson and a 17-point margin this week in a one-point loss at No. 8 North Carolina.

Michigan 77, Ohio St 58

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After suffering through the second-worst loss in Crisler Arena history on Wednesday night, 20th-ranked Michigan didn't need any motivational speeches.

"Any coach would be mad after three losses in a row, especially that one to Purdue on our home court," guard Dugan Fife said after the Wolverines pounded Ohio State 77-58 Saturday night. "Coach [Steve] Fisher didn't have to be mad. We were mad at ourselves. We felt embarrassed."

Maurice Taylor scored 14 points and Robert Traylor 13, and each had two buckets in a late 13-0 run as the Wolverines utilized their superior size and strength down the stretch.

"I think we overpowered them toward the end," said Traylor, who hit 6-of-8 shots from the field and also had six rebounds. "We kind of wore them down."

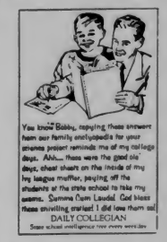
Willie Mitchell and Fife each had 11 points for Michigan (15-7, 5-4 Big Ten), which has won its last seven meetings with the Buckeyes. Travis Conlan chipped in with nine assists.

Maryland 88, No. 25 Georgia Tech 74

COLLEGE PARK, Md (AP) — It seems as if Maryland might make an impact in the Atlantic Coast Conference after all.

The Terrapins held No. 25 Georgia Tech to one basket during a 10-minute stretch of the second half Saturday, and Exree Hipp matched his season-high with 15 points in an 88-74 victory. Keith Booth and Duane Simpkins also scored 15 for Maryland (11-7 4-4 ACC), which forced 19 turnovers and committed only six. The victory, the Terrapins' fifth in six games, avenged a 98-84 loss to the Yellow Jackets last month.

"Maryland is back. They play like that, and they're going to be tough," Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins said. "They really dominated us today."



You know Bobby, copying those answers from our family encyclopedia for your midterm project reminds me of my college days. Ahh... those were the good ole days, cheat sheets on the inside of my Ivy league mortar board, swiping off the students at the state school to take my exams. Summa Cum Laudes. God bless those unwitting starlets! I did love them so!
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Some school intelligence now every weekday

Dexter's not his usual self.

You suspect the salsa.

So you call Dr. Nusblatt, your family vet back home.

The call is cheap.

(Too bad about the consultation fee.)

Live off campus? Sign up for AT&T True Reach Savings℠ and save 25% no matter who, how, when or where you call in the U.S.

Life can be complicated. AT&T True Reach Savings℠ is simple. Save 25% on every kind of call on your AT&T phone bill–direct dial, calling card, directory assistance, local toll, cellular, fax and modem – when you spend just $25 a month*. No other plan gives you all these different ways to save. Just call 1 800 TRUE-ATT to sign up. Save on every call. That's Your True Choice.℠

AT&T
Your True Choice

*Taken to long distance calls billed to AT&T home or AT&T calling card accounts. Discounts off AT&T base rates. Certain exclusions apply. Limited-time promotion. Offer available to residential AT&T customers. Minimum spending requirement per month for 25% discount. Short-term limited-time promotion.

© 1996 AT&T

EMERGENCY MEDICAL TRAINING
by Human Services Training Consultants, Inc.
• Part-time Evening
• Classes start February 5, 1996
Call UMass, Continuing Education at 545-0474

SKI
Collegiate Ski Weeks
"SpringBreak 96"
Mont Sutton Canada
only $229
5 DAY LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING
5 NIGHTS COLLEGE PARTIES
GROUP LEADER DISCOUNTS CALL FOR INFO
CALL SKI & SAND TRAVEL, INC.
1-800-848-9545

Massachusetts 78, Xavier 74 OT

At Cincinnati Ohio

Massachusetts (21-8)
Dingle 4-10 0-2 8, Bright 8-17 5-6 21, Camby 9-22 8-14 26, E.Padilla 2-12 0-1 5, Travieso 2-6 0-0 5, Clarke 2-2 0-0 4, Weeks 3-10 3-4 9, Nunez 0-0 0-0 0, Norville 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 30-79 16-27 78.

Xavier (8-8)
Johnson 5-10 6-9 16, Williams 4-10 3-5 12, Carr 7-7 3-4 17, Brown 2-9 10-11 15, Lumpkin 4-12 3-4 13, Kelsey 0-0 0-0 0, Anderson 0-0 0-0 0, Harvey 0-2 0-0 0, Murray 0-2 1-2 1, Payne 0-0 0-0 0, Britt 0-3 0-0 0. Totals 22-55 26-35 74.

Halftime-Xavier 32, Massachusetts 31. Regulation-Xavier 68, Massachusetts 68. 3-point goals-Massachusetts 2-10 (Travieso 1-3, E.Padilla 1-5, Bright 0-1, Camby 0-1), Xavier 4-11 (Lumpkin 2-3, Williams 1-2, Brown 1-3, Harvey 0-1, Murray 0-1, Britt 0-1). Fouled out-Dingle, Travieso, Johnson, Carr, Payne. Rebounds-Massachusetts 51 (Weeks 13), Xavier 41 (Johnson 11). Assists-Massachusetts 11 (E.Padilla 3), Xavier 11 (Lumpkin 6). Total fouls-Massachusetts 25, Xavier 24. A-10,118.

Tyrone Weeks – nine points, 13 rebounds, one block, one steal

Highlights...

Weeks 13 rebounds was a career high and grabbed 10 of them after picking up three first half fouls...UMass trailed at the half for the ninth time this season, winning every time and are undefeated in their last 10 overtime games, three of those this season...Marcus Camby continued his torrid pace of blocking shots as he rejected five Xavier offerings...Edgar Padilla's three pointer which sent the game into overtime was only his second filed goal of the game...UMass .593 free throw percentage for the game was their worst output of the season.

■ basketball

continued from page 12

run on a Weeks free throw and went to the locker behind by only one. They would take their first lead of the game on a Marcus Camby turnaround on the first possession of the second half.

Camby, UMass leading scorer on the day with 26 points, was noticeably limping for the last 10 minutes of regulation and overtime after stepping on a Xavier player's foot but never came out of the game.

"I thought we had 'em," said T.J. Johnson, who is the only returning starter from last years team and finished the game with 16 points.

"We didn't come to give them a good game. We came to win," said Kevin Carr, who led Xavier with 17 points, but fouled out early in overtime. "We let it slip through our fingers. We should have had it."

Xavier led 67-62 with just two and a half minutes remaining before the Minutemen closed out the second half on a 6-1 run including Padilla's heroics. The Minutemen could have made it easier on themselves as they hit only 59 percent of their free throws on the day, well below their season average of .692.

"They [Xavier] were more aggressive, and that's unusual for us," Calipari said. "We're not used to that. They played with more fire than us. We still played with the refuse-to-lose attitude. Different guys made different plays, which is the trademark of this team."

UMass returns to action tomorrow night at 8:30, when they travel to New York City to play Fordham at Madison Square Garden.

■ Vautour

continued from page 12

the crown and should be a huge boost to UNH recruiting.

Merrimack's defenseman Steve McKenna is listed as 6- foot-8 in the Warrior media guide, while UMass defenseman Brad Norton and forward Steve MacKinnon are both 6-foot- 5 by the UMass media guide. As Norton and McKenna skated next to each other in pregame however, the duo appeared to be pretty even. Who says that height altering happens only in basketball?

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

■ hockey

continued from page 12

Manganaro added a power play goal of his own, one timing a Tom Perry feed, but UMass still trailed 3-1 after one period.

The Minutemen made the necessary adjustments and held UNH scoreless until Mark Mowers tallied 9:18 into the third period.

Perry scored to draw UMass within two, when he tried to repay Manganaro for the earlier well-laid pass, but it deflected off of UNH goalie Brian Larochelle's stick and between his legs.

Mowers worked his magic once again as last year's Hockey East Rookie of the Year went around the UMass defensemen like pilons, and beat a defenseless Brian Regan with a challenging wrist shot fired back across his body.

At this point things got physical and referees Rich Fowkes and Steve McBride lost control of the game. Until 12:29 of the third 26 penalty minutes had been called, but 52 were called in the final 7:31 as UMass' comeback attempt was buried under the dirge of complaints lobbied towards the officials.

"In the third period we self-destructed," Mallen said. "We've been teeter-tottering on the edge of emotional control and uncontrol and tonight we were out of control in the third period. We took our selves out of the game at a key time."

The road that lies ahead of UMass gets rockier this weekend as the team will conclude its season-long six-game road trip when they face the defending national champion Boston University Terriers Friday night at Walter Brown Arena.

UMass will return to the Mullins Center Saturday night for a crucial game with surprising UMass-Lowell, with the Alumni Cup on the line. The start time for this game has been pushed back to 8 p.m. due to a women's basketball earlier in the day.

Minutemen Notebook: Saturday night was a great one for the entire Manganaro family. Sal the younger scored his eighth power play goal of the season breaking Mike Evans school record of seven. Manganaro also holds the modern record for power play goals in a career with 11. It was a good night for Sal Sr. as well as he was sitting in the Lucky Seat Saturday night and won a UNH hockey sweatshirt, ski tickets and a UNH book store gift certificate...

Friday night was homecoming at Merrimack, and the paid attendance was 713...UMass is 0-3 this season in games officiated by both McBride and Fowkes...UMass is still showing its inexperience in the penalty minute department.

The team is on pace to shatter last year's 826 minutes as the team is averaging 25.3 minutes per game...The Merrimack win set a UMass high for Hockey East wins in a season...Dan Juden missed the UNH game due to illness.

■ hoop

continued from page 12

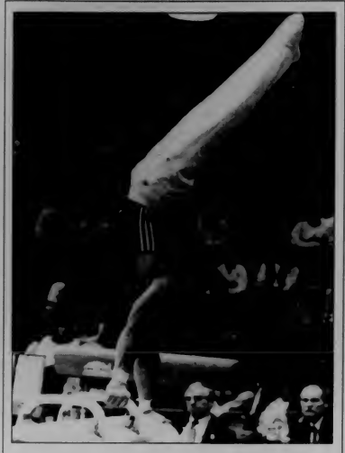
ethic could mark her as a key player stepping in off the bench.

At the helm for Fordham was forward Suzanne Maguire who totalled 17 points on the evening before fouling out of the game with under a minute left.

The swarming UMass defense kept the Lady Rams from getting quality looks at the hoop putting them in a whole from which they could not escape.

This big win over Fordham kicked off a four game homestand in the Mullins Center as the Minutewomen look to round out their season 12-0 in their home arena.

On Thursday, UMass hosts their archrival Temple at 7 p.m



ELIZABETH BROWN \ COLLEGIAN

kicker: Look Ma No feet!

Sophomore Chris Funk performs on the pommel horse during UMass' quad-meet on Saturday. The Minutemen placed first in the meet with a team score of 216.925.

Christine Northrup, M.D.

A Public Lecture
"Women's Bodies, Women's Wisdom:
Creating Health Throughout the Life Cycle"

Date: Tuesday, Feb.6th

Time: 7pm (sharp)

Place: Hampshire College, Franklin Patterson Hall (first building on left from front entrance off route 116)

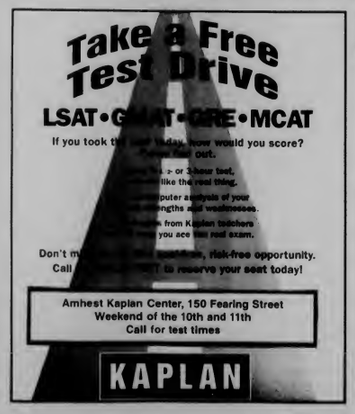
The lecture, which is free and open to the public, is being videotaped for national distribution; your cooperation will be requested and appreciated.

media education Foundation

Media Education Foundation
26 Center Street
Northampton, MA 01060

Attention! Attention!
T.V. NEWS SHOW
UMASS UPDATE
is looking for crew members reporters, and writers.
No experience necessary.
If interested, come to the News meetings every Monday at 7:00 P.M. at UVC-TV 19.
First meeting is on Monday February 5.
Any questions, call the News Department at 545-1336

sports notice
Sports Meeting
There will be an all sports staff meeting tonight at 6 p.m. in the Collegian news room. All current staff writers must attend and anyone interested in writing for sports is encouraged to attend. If you are unable to do so please call Candice Flemming at 545-0719.



Take a Free Test Drive
LSAT • GMAT • GRE • MCAT
Amherst Kaplan Center, 150 Fearing Street
Weekend of the 10th and 11th
Call for test times
KAPLAN

The Top Ten Reasons to Use the UHS Eye Care Program and Contact Lens Service

1. We have a comprehensive contact lens program.
2. Emergency eye care delivered at UHS, is a covered benefit if you are a student plan member.
3. Savings on eyeglasses from participating opticians are available if you are a student and have a complete optometry examination at UHS.
4. We can obtain almost any contact lens in the U.S.A.
5. On-site contact lens specialist.
6. Free sample start-up contact lens solutions.
7. Contact lenses can be mailed directly to you: free postage for normal delivery.
8. Same day replacement of contact lenses, in many cases, due to our large in-house inventory.
9. We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
10. Convenient hours and location.

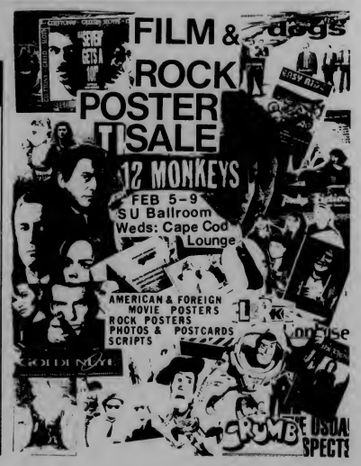
Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Program over 20 years has been consistently excellent.

"I invite you to use the Eye Services at UHS."

University Health Services • 549-2671 X244



Minutewomen get back on track

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

After a few struggling meets, the Massachusetts women's swimming and diving team came back strong in a dual meet against Rutgers this past Saturday in Piscataway, N.J.

The Minutewomen ripped apart the Scarlet Knights by the score of 147-86, in the type of meet we are used to the Minutewomen swimming this year, rebounding from their 58 point loss to Boston College last Tuesday.

"I knew it was going to happen," said head coach Bob Newcomb. "I'm glad it all happened at one meet so we can get it out of the way. We needed to put that meet behind us. It was a really important thing that we swam well this weekend. We really needed it."

Karen Sonnwald led the attack for the 5-2 Minutewomen, pulling off three first place finishes. In the 1000 yard freestyle she broke her own school record (10:23.99) replacing it with a time of 10:23.20. Then after just a 10- minute break, she came back with a first place victory in the 200 yard freestyle. Later she tallied the hat trick being the fastest in the 500 yard freestyle.

"Those were good races for her against some good swimmers from Rutgers," said Newcomb. "She overcame a deficit in the last 100 yards in the 1000 burning by the competition to get the record."

Sarah Baker came away with her second best times of the year in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events with times of 24.39 and 53.58 respectively.

"It's good that she's swimming well right now for us," said Newcomb. "She's right on track."

The continuing effort by many of the swimmers on this team is what has enabled them to strong finishes this season. Jessica Griffith came away with two second place times in the 50 yard freestyle and the 200 yard breaststroke.

Barbara Hickey continues swimming strong as she's done all year with a second place finish in the 200 yard freestyle, and third place in the 500 and 1000 yard freestyle.

Jessica Farley took second and third place finishes in the 200 yard individual medley and the 100 yard freestyle respectively.

In the 200 yard backstroke, one of three events on the day that saw UMass take the first three spots, Kerrin McCarthy came in first, Meghan Matacera second, and Kerrie Hodge third.

In the 200 yard butterfly, Irina Kossenko took first, with Shana Strothers and Sarah Allery second and third.

Anne Fletcher took two first place finishes on the day for Rutgers in the 200 yard breaststroke and 200 yard individual medley.

Algelique Rodriguez has been consistent all year in diving for the Minutewomen, and on Saturday she recorded third place in the one and three meter diving events.

Kristin Schambach captured third in the 200 yard freestyle, and Julie Alexander came in third in the 200 yard breaststroke.

"We had to swim well this meet," said Newcomb. "I think it gave our swimmers their confidence back and the chance to get back on track after a tough winter break."

The victory for the Minutewomen was a boost to the team going into their final home meet of the year next Saturday at 12 p.m. against Fordham. The seniors will take to the water for the last time in the Joseph R. Rodges, Jr. Pool in Boyden.

"We're getting back to form, and it feels good to get the rhythm going again," said Newcomb. "We're doing the right things, and in two-and-a-half weeks I think we'll be ready for the Atlantic 10 Championships."

Behring still intent on moving to LA

By Jim Cour
Associated Press

SEATTLE — Ken Behring says he's in Los Angeles to stay, but Seattle officials still aren't giving up hope of finding a local buyer for the Seahawks.

"The question remains whether he wants to sell," King County Executive Gary Locke said Sunday night, confirming talks were continuing between Behring's people and a prospective buyer. "I think that when we succeed in court in forcing the team to stay here, he may have more incentive to sell the team," Locke said. The county filed suit last week.

While the mayor of Anaheim is set to announce plans Monday that would provide the Seahawks with a training site at Rams Park, a moving van showed up at team headquarters in suburban Kirkland and workers loaded it with exercise equipment.

Behring told The Los Angeles Times from his Danville, Calif., land developing offices on Saturday, "I'm committed to Los Angeles." He said his team will be moving to Rams Park "very soon."

"I'm a Californian and this is where I want to be," Behring said.

In Seattle, a key player in the Behring drama reacted calmly Sunday to Behring's comments.

"I'm sure Mr. Behring wants to keep as many options as he can on the table," said Peter von Reichbauer, a member of the Metropolitan King County Council.

Von Reichbauer said he talked to Behring by telephone Saturday and was "still hopeful" Behring would agree to sell the Seahawks to a local buyer.

Locke said price and terms were questions to be answered, but that Behring had indicated he wouldn't close the door to an offer. He also said he hoped other prospective local owners would surface. Anaheim mayor Tom Daly issued a statement late Saturday night, which read: "We are optimistic we can reach an agreement with Ken Behring for his team's use of our training facility, and then use that as a springboard for negotiations for his NFL team to have a home at Sportstown Anaheim."

A Sportstown complex is in the planning stages.

"Decisions on a new name, colors, and team logo will be made with local community involvement, signaling the team's desire to reach out to Southern California fans right away," Daly said.

Seahawks' fans are hopeful local billionaire Paul Allen will wind up with the franchise. Von Reichbauer hasn't identified the team's prospective buyer, but it's widely believed to be Allen, a Seahawks' season ticket holder and owner of the NBA Portland Trail Blazers.

"We're in ongoing discussions that began a couple of weeks ago and I anticipate there will be negotiations within 10 days or two weeks," von Reichbauer said.

Behring brought up the subject of selling the Seahawks to a local buyer at a lunch with von Reichbauer four weeks ago. Von Reichbauer then contacted Allen, according to Allen's representatives. If Allen decides against making a bid for the Seahawks, von Reichbauer has lined up a possible backup buyer. Von Reichbauer described him as "a business leader not from Seattle, but from the Northwest."

In Southern California, horse racing mogul R.D. Hubbard, chairman of Hollywood Park in Inglewood, reminded Behring of plans he announced last December for a $250 million stadium to be built on the northwest corner of Hollywood Park property near the Forum where the Los Angeles Lakers play.

"We have worked for two years on this project," Hubbard said.

GET YOUR FIRST ORDER OF CHECKS FREE!

It's simple. BayBank gives you the best value for your banking buck.

And no matter which account you choose, you get the BayBank Card with access to over 1000 BayBank X-Press 24® locations.

Check out your options - starting with two of our most popular student accounts.

BASIC ECONOMICS

For $2.50 per month[1] or $1.50 with direct deposit - not a lot of cash either way - our Basic Checking includes:

- Four BayBank X-Press 24 withdrawals a month
- Up to eight checks a month
- Reserve Credit overdraft protection
- X-Press Check,® to pay for purchases anywhere MasterCard® is accepted

ECONOMIES OF SCALE

Just $6.00 a month[1] gets you our Student Value Package; designed just for students, it includes:

- Unlimited BayBank X-Press 24 transactions
- Up to eight checks a month
- Reserve Credit overdraft protection
- X-Press Check, to pay for purchases anywhere MasterCard is accepted
- The option[2] for a BayBank Visa® or MasterCard

It's economics made easy. So if you want to open a new account or just find out more about BayBank - come see us, or call 1-800-BAY-FAST® anytime - and mention this ad.

Check out our Web site at http://www.BayBank.com

BayBank®

WHERE DO YOU WANT TO DO YOUR BANKING?

1 Other fees, such as charges for transactions at X-Press 24 CASH®, non-BayBank ATMs, and designated point-of-sale terminals, are additional
2 Credit products are for qualified applicants who are 18 years of age or older. Annual fee for credit card is extra

Member FDIC Equal Opportunity Lender

Colgate's star center recovering from fall, home from hospital

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP) — Adonal Foyle, Colgate's star center and the Patriot League's leading scorer, was released from the hospital Sunday morning after suffering a concussion in Saturday's game against Siena.

Foyle sustained a second-degree concussion when he was intentionally fouled by Siena's Andy Thies on a breakaway dunk attempt with 4:09 left in the game. Foyle was in the air when Thies made contact. The 6-foot-10-inch sophomore fell head-first into the floor.

He was taken to Community Memorial Hospital in Hamilton, where tests revealed he did not fracture his skull. He was kept for observation overnight.

"The collision was hard enough that it snapped his braces," Colgate spokesman Bob Cornell said Sunday. "He still has a headache, but he was released and is resting today."

Cornell added that Foyle was questionable for Wednesday's game against Holy Cross.

He had scored 27 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and blocked six shots before being injured with Colgate ahead 82-70.

Foyle leads the Patriot League in scoring this season with 405 points in 21 games for a 19.3 points-per-game average. He is ranked second in the nation in blocked shots with 116 and is fourth nationally in rebounding with 12.4 a game. Foyle grew up in the Grenadine Islands in the Caribbean and moved to the United States five years ago.

He made headlines when he turned down recruiting offers from a host of powerhouse colleges to attend Colgate because of its academics.

Hamilton is located 35 miles southeast of Syracuse.

No. 5 Cincinnati 79, S. Florida 60

CINCINNATI (AP) — Danny Fortson scored seven points during a 16-1 run late in the second half as No. 5 Cincinnati overcame a slow start to beat South Florida 79-60 Sunday.

Fortson finished with 20 points and tied a career high with 17 rebounds.

Darnell Burton added 19 points for the Bearcats (17-1, 6-1 Conference USA), while Damon Flint had 17.

James Harper led South Florida (8-10, 0-7) with a career-high 21 points.

Brian Lamb had 15 points for South Florida. The team's leading scorer, Chucky Atkins, was held to nine points and No. 2 scorer Donzel Rush was scoreless when he fouled out with 5:20 left. Cincinnati, which had a rare midnight game Friday, was playing its second game in less than 40 hours and looked sluggish in the first half.

Skowed by South Florida's deliberate offense and plagued by poor shooting, the Bearcats struggled to a 30-28 halftime lead, equaling their lowest first-half production of the season.

Cincinnati opened a 50-40 lead with 12:47 to play, but couldn't shake South Florida, which used free throws to narrow the gap to two points at 56-54 with 8:20 left.

But then Fortson led the 16-1 run as Cincinnati pulled away.

Mississippi St. 78, No. 22 Auburn 75, OT

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) - The way Darryl Wilson saw it, it was his turn to do something.

The Mississippi State guard scored only three points in regulation, but when the overtime period started so did he. Wilson scored 11 points in the extra period to lift the Bulldogs over No. 22 Auburn 78-75 Sunday.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Skiers and Snowboarders: Join -Mass #1 club The UMass Ski Club 430 Student Union 545-3437

AUTO FOR SALE

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center 545-1995.

1988 VW/BUS, well maintained and from Th $2,000. Call Ben 256-1835

EMPLOYMENT

WMUA News needs you! We are looking for anchors, field reporters, and news casters for daily newscasts. Many more positions are also available. For more information come down to our offices in 105 Campus Center or call 545-2876 and ask for Alexandra

Ski + Snowboard - Campus reps needed. Springbreak '96 intercollegiate ski weeks. 5 day lift ticket/ condo lodging 5 nights parties + activities. Mt. Orford, Canada (near Vermont). (Drinking age 18) Trip only $219. Reps earn free trips, cash, new equip. etc. Call ski travel unlimited 1-800-999-7669

National Parks hiring - Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests and Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call (1 206-971-3620 Ext. N50013

Undergrad Network Manager - Manage the CSB Peer to Peer Network. Help the student businesses maximize system productivity. Computer Science background or experience a plus. Applications accepted through February 14. 409 Student Union 545-2167.

Undergraduate Business Consultant - work with Earthfoods, Paradise Market, and many others. Great business, computer and group experience. Applications accepted until February 14. Business/MRA background a plus. 409 Student Union above the Mini Store! 545-2167.

Copy Shop Staff: Campus Design and Copy needs committed designers and staff for their student run businesses. Great business and group experience. Applications accepted until February 16. 403 Student Union 545-2271.

Cruise Ships Hiring. Earn up to $2000+/month. world travel. seasonal & full time positions. No exp. necessary. For info Call 1-206-971-3550 Ext. C50012

Teach English in Asia: Make up to $25-$45 hr teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan, China, Thailand, Indonesia & S. Korea. Many employers provide room & board & other benefits. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For more information call (206) 971-3570 Ext. J50013

EMPLOYMENT

Alaska student jobs: Great $$$!. Thousands of jobs available. Male/Female. Room/board/transport. often provided. No exper. nec. GOE 919 929-0188 Ext. A1040

$ Cruise ships hiring! Students needed! $$$ + free travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii). Seasonal/ permanent, no exper. necessary. GOE 919-929-4398 Ext. C1040

Alaska employment - Fishing industry. earn up to $3000 - $6000+ per month. Room and board! Transportation! Male/Female. No experience necessary! (206)971-3510 ext. A6560J12

$40,000/yr income potential. Home typists/ PC users. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 ext. T1732 listings.

LOBBYING

Help UMASS, learn to lobby, and earn credit too! SCERA is hiring one credit lobbyists for Spring state budget campaign. Four trips to statehouse. Training provided. Apply with letter of interest to Dr. Marc Kenen, SCERA Director, 424 Student Union, by Thursday, February 8th at 5:00 p.m. Successful candidates will be notified on February 9th.

Pramieria Brother-Sister Camps in Massachusetts. Counselor positions for talented and energetic students as program specialists in art, team sports, especially baseball, basketball, roller hockey, gymnastics, field hockey, soccer, volleyball, 30 tennis openings, also golf, archery, riflery, pioneering/overnight camping, ropes and rock climbing, weights/fitness and cycling, other openings include performing arts, fine arts, figure skating, newspaper, photography, yearbook, radio station, cooking, sewing and crockery, all waterfront/pool activities (swimming, skiing, sailing, windsurfing, canoeing/kayaking). Top salaries, room, board and travel. June 18th - August 17th. Inquire: Mah Kee Nac, Box 61, 800-753-9118 Dunbee (girls) 1-800-392-3752

I have used books for sale. Physics 161, 162, Math 131-132, Egin 190, autocad release 12, Jewish People II 102. I also have a head tennis racket pd 250 will sell for $100. Call Jeff for prices 6-7233

19 inch color TV bought last year need cash $150 or BO 253-2156 George

INSTRUCTION

Free Week February 4-11 Music, Acting, Dance lessons. Performing arts division 73 Bartlett Hall. 545-0519.

Learn to Scuba Dive 2 credits EPE G 09 800-282-0977 / 545-7238

EMPLOYMENT

Free T-shirt & $1,000 credit card fundraisers for fraternities, sororities & groups. Any campus organization can raise up to $1,000 by earning a whopping $5.00/VISA application. Call 1-800-932-0528 Ext. 65. Qualified callers receive free t-shirt.

Jobs at GEO: 3 interim positions available (20 hrs) office coord. grievance coord. contract campaign coord. pay: $12.30/hr. Stop by GEO SU 201 for more info. Deadline: Fri. Feb 9 pending approval.

Fight tuition and fees and earn credit too! SCERA is hiring campus organizers for Spring campaign! Three credits for ten hours per week. Includes two nights per week. Work primarily in dorms and class rooms. Apply with letter of interest to Dr. Marc Kenen, 424 Student Union 545-0709 by Thursday, February 8th @ 5:00pm. Successful candidates will be notified on Feb 9.

$35,000/yr income potential. Reading books. Toll 1-800-898-9778 ext. R 1732 for details.

Summer Positions. Many positions in Boston and Hartford. Great resume builder. Possible internship. Summer earnings $8000+ (realistic). Strong work ethic and great attitude a must. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 1-800-562-9939

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742

FOR SALE

Bed for Sale Nishi mattress, box spring & frame $70 OBO. 5-Disk CD Changer $70 also. Call Craig 253-7777

486/100MHZ Bmb RAM, 850HD needs IDE controller. Printer, monitor, mouse, keyboard. $900. Call Annette 549-3864

Furniture - Desk, bookshelves, large dorm-size fridge, two antique bar stools. All prices negotiable. Call 2568862 for more information.

I have used books for sale. Physics 161, 162, Math 131-132, Egin 190 autocad release 12, Jewish People II 102. I also have a head tennis racket pd 250 will sell for $100. Call Jeff for prices 6-7233

19 inch color TV bought last year need cash $150 or BO 253-2156 George

INSTRUCTION

Free Week February 4-11 Music, Acting, Dance lessons. Performing arts division 73 Bartlett Hall. 545-0519.

Learn to Scuba Dive 2 credits EPE G 09 800-282-0977 / 545-7238

LOST

Lost from DU Drive: 126 black check organizer bag + brown leather tool bad contains important electronic equipment Fluke 96, Oscilloscope + various tools reward offered. Please call 413-253-1914

MISCELLANEOUS

Beautiful, friendly, 7 month cat needs loving home. Please call ASAP 253-4677

Do you party? Do you like easy $? Can you spare 2 days a month? Business distributorship for sale. New, proven hang over reducing product. No selling. Restock accounts $25,000 yearly potential with $1250 investment 100% money back guarantee! 941-768-9001

PERSONALS

Rachel, I'm sorry for everything I did. I want us to be back together. If you can forgive me, please meet me at the Blue Wall on Tuesday at noon. Ross

To the hot guy in my Psych 101 class. I'd really like to get to know you better. I'm the brunette in the third row. If you're interested, I have lunch in the Coffa Shop every day, and would love some company. One Room on bus route for $200 plus 1/3 utilities. Call us at 665-4758.

Cris, feliz cumpleanos. Te amo, su novio Carlos

ROOM FOR RENT

Room Downtown. Quiet, private. Lease $300/mo inclusive. 253-4236 9 am-9 pm.

SERVICES

Need Help writing a resume. Let a professional do it for you. Special student rate! Call Lori 253-1867

TRAVEL

Cancun Spring Break Best party prices from $749!! Americas premier travel company earn free trips and highest commissions! Call (800) 798-1509 for info.

Spring Break! Book Now! Spring Break 96. With only 1 week to live, don't blow it!! Book Now! Florida & Padre $109 Bahamas $359, Jamaica/Cancun $399 Organize a group. Travel free! Sunsplash Tours 1-800-426-7710

Hot! Hot! Hot! New metabolism break through. Loose 8-100lbs Guaranteed results 1-800-800-7988

Scuba Dive Key Largo FL during Spring Break. 2 credits EPE. G 10 1-800-282-0977 / 545-7238

TRAVEL

Spring Break!
Cancun $499
Daytona, FL $119
Panama City, FL $159
Best prices and hotels!
Call Heidi 256-6110

Spend Spring Break with whom you know! Jamaica $549, steamboat $815, Kissington #209! UMass ski club 545-3437

Quebec Weekend!! Feb. 16-19. Board, ski, and party with the UMass Ski Club 545-3437

Australia: 4 credit course. Contemporary Society. Down Under. For brochure call (413) 548-6141

WANTED

Looking for some quick, extra pocket money. Collegian needs some people to be ballot raisers for a Collegian Poll. Call 545-3500 for more information. Ross

Student basketball ticket wanted vs Temple. Paying $25. 538-3106.

Wanted: 100 students lose 10-30+ lbs. Next 90 days. New metabolism breakthrough. Guaranteed. Dr. recommended. $35.50 MC/VISA. 24 hr. Free info: 1-800-229-7562

Student/Reg. Temple ticket needed. $30. Leave name/No. 1-800-385-5612 x7103

ROOM FOR RENT

Room Downtown. Quiet, private. Lease $300/mo inclusive. 253-4236 9 am-9 pm.

SERVICES

Need Help writing a resume. Let a professional do it for you. Special student rate! Call Lori 253-1867

TRAVEL

Cancun Spring Break Best party prices from $749!! Americas premier travel company earn free trips and highest commissions! Call (800) 798-1509 for info.

Spring Break! Book Now! Spring Break 96. With only 1 week to live, don't blow it!! Book Now! Florida & Padre $109 Bahamas $359, Jamaica/Cancun $399 Organize a group. Travel free! Sunsplash Tours 1-800-426-7710

Hot! Hot! Hot! New metabolism break through. Loose 8-100lbs Guaranteed results 1-800-800-7988

Scuba Dive Key Largo FL during Spring Break. 2 credits EPE. G 10 1-800-282-0977 / 545-7238

Collegian Classifieds

50,000 eyes will see your ad if you place it in the Collegian Classifieds.

Call 545-3500

Visa & Mastercard accepted

Collegian Classifieds They Work For You

545-3500

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

1. Cougars, e.g.
2. Moses' desert
10. Calcutta garb
14. Jai ___
15. Preceding
16. Tribulations
17. Hard-to-please fairy-tale girl
19. "___ alone sit lingering here" (Vaughn) (2 words)
20. Common abbr.
21. Division
22. Air conditioner need
23. Colleen
24. Singer Whitman
26. 1972 Oliver mystery
29. "___ Valley Sunday" (Monkees)
33. Twit
34. Pasadena transport
35. Sound of a comic book punch
36. Baby's imitation
37. ___ Comes for the Archbishop
38. FDR's pup
39. "___ Got a Secret"
40. Moleskin indications
41. Nopal and turk's-head
42. Hucksters
44. Lustrous fabric
45. Flimsy
46. Return to health
47. Tuft
50. Beginner
51. Stripper's scarf
54. Plucked instrument
55. Nude ___ a Staircase (Duchamp)
58. Sidle
59. Track shapes
60. Muskogee man
61. Number suffix
62. Inverted V
63. Salon offerings

DOWN

1. Zoo compartment
2. "Little Things Mean ___" (2 words)
3. Powder base
4. Vicious or Caesar
5. Dive result
6. Reversal of Fortune actor
7. Actor Adams
8. Fine and dandy, in space
9. Treasury dept. bureau
10. Bands of bees
11. Highest rating
12. Perform again
13. Ancient Sumerian city
18. Seeing red
22. Arbitrary decree
23. Luxuriant
24. Grooves
25. Rachel's sister
26. Bump and grind
27. Furlough
28. Allayed
29. Schedules
30. Rapidly
31. Cape Fear star
32. "___ never the ___ shall meet"
34. Staten Island transport
37. Performer
38. Kismet
40. Retrieve a coupon
41. Gigi player
43. Make moist
44. Most able
46. After uni, bi or tri
47. Newsman Huntley
48. Take on cargo
49. Impetus
50. Autocrat
51. Kid's wheels
52. Sleep ___ (postpone a decision) (2 words)
53. Becomes senescent
55. M.D.'s nickname
56. One Gabor sister
57. 1919 author John ___ Passos

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Others are counting on your leadership. Do all you can to make up for lost time, relying on your own resources as much as possible. Persevere in your efforts to advance your career aims.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — Be prepared to roll up your sleeves and buckle down to work. Outside contacts and resources help you sell a major proposal. Your business associates show you new respect.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — A bold approach will impress someone influential. A great idea gets the green light! Cupid could show up at work. Romance needs a new angle. Sit back an list things develop at their own pace.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Romantic partner could ask some interesting questions. Take steps to provide for your financial future. Go over savings and checking accounts; you could find a mistake that needs correcting.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Catch up on detail work and correspondence. You should stick to what you know where finances are concerned. Seek expert advice in unfamiliar areas. Distant affairs hold promise despite rumors.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Group support and outside experts help you jump over professional hurdles. Co- workers will appreciate your efforts even if an authority figure questions it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Personal relationships have their ups and downs. Do not fret. Work is very rewarding! Consider the words of an older relative before making an important decision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Allow extra time for a journey, especially if travelling by car. Unexpected delays are possible. You belong in the limelight. Look for ways to showcase your special talents.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Exercise restraint when dealing with career and financial matters. More information is needed. Your loved one's behavior provides clues to their state of mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — Put your best foot forward when dealing with people who know you well. Do not burn your bridges where former employers and co- workers are concerned. A conversation with a partner strengthens a valuable bond.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Changes at place of employment will work in your favor. Be alert to the danger of taking unnecessary risks. Getting together with old friends tonight should prove highly enjoyable.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — A good day to form an alliance with someone whose talents compliment your own. A joint strategy holds great promise. Your showing a give- and-take spirit will stabilize an affair of the heart.

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest college daily.

When our job is done, your day is just beginning!

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Dilbert By Scott Adams

HEY, WALLY! THE BOSS SENT HIS FIRST E-MAIL MESSAGE!
AND YOU SAID HE WASN'T BRIGHT ENOUGH TO FIGURE OUT HOW TO USE E-MAIL!
WHAT'S HIS MESSAGE?
"I FORGOT MY WATCH. DOES ANYBODY KNOW WHAT TIME IT IS?"
TIME TO CHANGE JOBS.

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

THE HOUSE WILL SEEM SO EMPTY WITH BOTH YOU AND YOUR SISTER AT COLLEGE...
...OH, MOM
I'LL ONLY HAVE KIP LEFT TO MOTHER...
I'M SURE YOU'LL BE FINE.
:-(sniff)
I FEEL SO BAD.
I'LL GO CALL ONE TO GO.

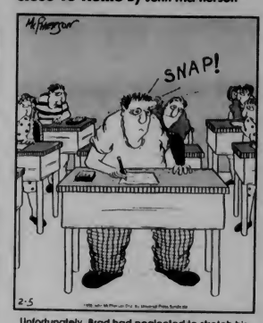
Dilbert By Scott Adams

I HAVE DISCOVERED THE CAUSE OF YOUR PROJECT DELAYS.
SOMEBODY IN THIS ROOM IS A PIECE OF DEADWOOD PRETENDING TO BE A CONTRIBUTOR!
IT IS YOU!
HEY, I MADE SOME CALLS AND I'M WAITING FOR INFORMATION!

Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I have a friend.
She's Jewish.
She says she's developed an attraction to boys with German names that rhyme with Hitler...like Stiller, Bitler and so on....
.....she said the straighter the blond hair the better.
She's still in therapy with Dr. Stuttgart.
It works for her.
He put her on Prozac but she'll be off it soon because she mistakenly mailed the prescription sheet out with her Christmas cards this year.

Close to Home By John McPherson

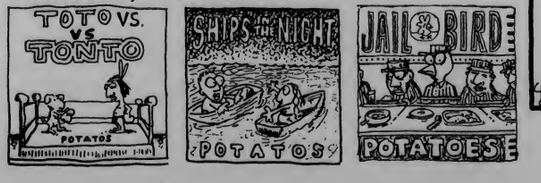


Unfortunately, Brad had neglected to stretch his brain before taking the big algebra midterm.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

ONLY A MADMAN WOULD HAVE CREATED THE MAN-MONSTER!
THAT MAN IS DR. WILLIAM TURNER!
THAT'S IT, DR. NORBERT, YOUR TIME IS UP!
YOU CAN'T SILENCE ME! TURNER MUST PAY!
AT THAT MOMENT...

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee



AS THE MAN-MONSTER CLIMBS THE ELEVATOR CABLE...
SPIDER-MAN MAKES A FATEFUL DECISION!
I'VE GOT TO GO AFTER HIM!
HE'S BIGGER AND STRONGER THAN ME -- BUT I CAN'T BACK OUT!

Tool Box By Mike-Steve-Arne

This damn food is so full of bad bad bacteria, & we must be out upon the dinner table, the family that ate us might be down for weeks.
Yo, I feel a bit like Puck Sawyer ready for another hitch?
Lets see if we can't find some kids going out west.

Jim's Journal By Jim

I was really tired at work today.
when I got off, I was going right home for a nap.
I walked home as fast as I could.
when I got home, I didn't feel the least bit sleepy.

8 Years in Braces By Eric Peterson

I THINK JIM IS DEAD. IT'S AMAZING HOW LIFELESS DEAD PEOPLE LOOK. THEY LOOK SMILE, LIKE THEY HAVEN'T MOVED IN YEARS. IT'S CREEPY.
YEAH, BUT JIM ALWAYS LOOKS LIKE THAT.

Milkweed ByNeil Golden

YOU KNOW, I REALLY LOVE CHRISTMAS.
THE TREE LOOKS SO PRETTY WITH ALL THE LIGHTS AND DECORATIONS. THE SONGS ARE PRETTY TOO. MY FAVORITE IS "JOY TO THE WORLD."
SO WHAT DID YOU ASK SANTA FOR?
A CONCUBINE, PREFERABLY ONE WHO MAKES A GOOD 6 RILLED-CHEESE SANDWICH.

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Company Choose By Kevin Tracy

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Amy Paradysz
Copy Editor.....Mike Burke
Photo Technician.....Elizabeth Brown
Production Supervisor.....Kathryn Gracia
Production.....Matt Audette
Jim Ganley

Today's D.C. Menu

Sorry No Menu today, Call 545-2626

Quote of the Day

"You're gonna lose so put your head in your tuba and go home!

–UMass fan watching Xavier game"

RUSH ΒΘΒ

The only fraternity on campus that lets you haze yourself!

- Beta Theta Beta -
105 Campus Center

There are times when you wish you could do more than watch the world pass by in a haze of wonder and a cloud of what if's

COLLEGIAN NEWS

"Make it happen"

Sports Weekend

Collegian Sports • Monday, February 5, 1996

Xavier scares but UMass survives

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

Refuse to lose. They simply refuse to lose. It may be starting to sound too cliche, but it's undeniable.

For the ninth time this season the Massachusetts men's basketball team trailed at the half and for the third time this season went into overtime, each time escaping victorious.

UMass (21-0 overall, 9-0 Atlantic 10) tied the game at 68 on a three point bomb by Edgar Padilla with 15 seconds left as Xavier (9-9, 5-3) had three attempts to win in regulation but could not get a basket. In overtime it was Tyrone Weeks who got several key rebounds which led to four of the Minutemen's ten points in the extra session, helping UMass to the 78-74 win. UMass has also won their last 10 overtime games overall.

Massachusetts	78
Xavier	74

Padilla preserved the victory in overtime, after Marcus Camby hit one of two free throws to boost the UMass lead to two, when he stole the ball from Lenny Brown as Xavier tried to tie the game with 10 seconds remaining. Charlton Clarke picked up the loose ball and went in for a layup as the buzzer sounded. The four point lead would be the largest one of the day for the Minutemen.

"We move on," coach John Calipari said, sounding more relieved than satisfied. "I'm just happy we're leaving now."

Weeks picked up three quick fouls in the first half and after sitting on the bench, came back and played a season high 31 minutes not picking up his fourth foul until late in the second half. Weeks finished with nine points and a career high 13 boards.

The Philadelphia native, Weeks, and bench mate Clarke accounted for all 13 bench points for the Minutemen, while Xavier's bench could only muster one point.

The Musketeers came out with a vengeance, pressing UMass all over the court and scored the first six points of the game. They built their lead to as many as 11 at 23-12. Xavier's early burst was keyed by the play of freshman guard Gary Lumpkin (13 points, 2-of-3 from 3-pt range).

Senior co-captain Donta Bright helped keep UMass close early when he scored six of his 21 points during Xavier's early run.

"We came out thinking we were going to beat them by 15 points," said Bright, who added seven rebounds. "They came out and took it to us."

Trailing 31-21 with less than three minutes remaining in the first half UMass ended an 11-1

Turn to BASKETBALL, page 8

EMILY BERLY \ COLLEGIAN

Junior Edgar Padilla tied the game with a three pointer with 15 seconds left, sending the game to overtime. He made a key steal that helped the Minutemen stave off a young Xavier team 78-74.

UMass's bench rises to occasion against

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

In Saturday afternoon's women's hoop match-up between UMass (13-7, 5-4 in the Atlantic-10) and Fordham (8-9, 2-7), the Minutewomen found themselves rebuilding momentum in a roller coaster season as they crushed the Lady Rams 72-50.

Coming off a narrow loss to George Washington earlier in the week, the Massachusetts squad was counting on a big showing from the bench to give them a boost as they round out regular season play.

From Melissa Gurile's opening grab on the tip-off which started the game with a 21-9 run, to Yolanda Rayside's game-ending rejection, UMass ran the floor all afternoon.

The Minutewomen abused Fordham with a suffocating full court defense which forced the Lady Rams into making sloppy mistakes.

As always, the powerful one-two punch of Gurile and Crystal Carroll combined for 22 points (10 and 12 points respectively) posing a threat under the basket Fordham just could not control.

At the close of the first stanza, UMass had a 35-20 advantage. Shooting was the key in the victory as Massachusetts shot 57 percent (15-26) from the field while the lackluster Lady Rams shot a dismal 29 percent (7-24).

UMass currently leads their opponents in shooting from the field (.488-.369), having lost only one game when they shoot over 50 percent from the field.

It is not surprising that Gurile, Carroll and Octavia Thomas, the three leading scorers for the Minutewomen, are all shooting above 50 percent on the season.

"Right now, a team like UMass is too deep, too big, too quick for us to contend with for 40 minutes," said Ram's coach Kevin Morris. This loss to the Minutewomen marks Fordham's fifth consecutive loss.

To start the second half, UMass opened with a 10-4 run eventually extending the lead to as many as 24. Thomas led the way for the Minutewomen, earning 15 points on the evening along with five rebounds bringing her career rebound total to 831, thus tying her with Julie Ready (1978-81) for the all time career rebounding record. Thomas was back to playing her patented brand of high-intensity hoop, driving hard in the paint and converting steals off the ball to easy points on the other end.

Perhaps the greatest breakthrough of the afternoon was the solid performance by the UMass bench, as the whole squad tallied 25 points in the outing.

"I think the one thing people questioned about us, especially in the last month, was our depth," O'Brien said. "But, you get to the point where it's put up or shut up and our kids have done that. They put their time in and they've all improved."

The second stanza saw players like Rayside, Jaywana Bradley and Lucia Madajova stepping off the bench to feed the flames of victory. As Bradley notched a season high nine points, while Madajova and Rayside each grabbed a season high six boards.

"One thing I knew I could do when I came to college was rebound," Rayside said. "Since I got here, I feel even better about that skill because there's always more to learn."

Just a freshman, Rayside's aggressive rebounding and work

Turn to HOOP, page 8

Hockey East suffers from a Volpe Complex

Matt Vautour

NORTH ANDOVER — It markets itself as the elite collegiate hockey conference in the country, and based on the caliber of some of its teams over the years Hockey East can legitimately call itself "big-time."

The phrase "big time" is a relative term. While the level of play is comparative to every other top level Division I sport, some Hockey East institutions forget that production is part of the equation as well.

While many institutions, including UMass are excellent in that department and can be used as examples for other institutions, there are still programs that exist somewhere between the stone and bronze ages.

The prime example of that is Merrimack.

In Friday night's game with Massachusetts, The Warriors scored a key goal to pull them within two goals of the Minutemen. The fans were jubilant, until 18 seconds later when Dennis Wright scored for UMass. The sound-effects operator, without thinking, pressed the button to set off the Merrimack celebration sound effects.

As the fake fog horn roared, the Warrior fans began cheering again. Are the students and locals at Merrimack really drones, not watching the game at all and just reacting to the speaker system?

If this is true, then the Volpe Complex becomes downright scary, because the other sound effects that emanate from the public address system are not in any way normal.

It all starts with the National Anthem.

"And now please rise," the public address announcer bellows. "As Huey Lewis and the News sing our National Anthem."

Huey Lewis and the News?

No the "hip cause they're square" 80's band didn't step out to honor America, but instead a scratchy tape of the quartet singing an a capella version of the "Star Spangled Banner" was played.

"We taped it from opening day at the Red Sox game a few years ago," said a source close to the team.

The sound effects continued as the sounds of dogs barking, an airplane flying over head and most appropriately a flushing toilet were all heard at the Complex de Volpe.

Even the name is deceiving. With the name it has, naive fans might expect that building is an elaborate sports establishment.

Au contraire. The building is cold. Oh, there are heaters. The hybrid of Wendy's heat lamps and bad tanning salon gadgets don't work too well.

The Volpe Complex... it sounds like a contagious disease. Don't catch it.

Saturday's game however was the exact opposite. The brand new Whittemore Center was beautiful. The new home of New Hampshire has almost made up for the fact that the Wildcats are struggling through a dismal season by their standards. The tradition that exists at UNH, i.e. the band, throwing fish, tennis balls and octopi after goals is almost unmatched. The beauty of the new building is just an added jewel in

Turn to VAUTOUR, page 8

UMass winless streak ends at 11

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

DURHAM, NH — In two games as dissimilar as the buildings in which they were played, Massachusetts dropped Merrimack 8-5 Friday night in the chilly Volpe Complex, and were then crushed by New Hampshire 7-2 Saturday night at the new Towse Rink at the Whittemore Center.

Massachusetts	8
Merrimack	5

The weekend split improves UMass to 10-15-1 and 4-12-1 in Hockey East, where it solidified its eighth place position with the win over the ninth place Warriors (7-15-5, 2-14-2). The Minutemen remain significantly behind the seventh place Wildcats (10-13-2, 6-9-2) though and will likely take on Hockey East's regular season champion in the opening round of the playoffs.

UMass jumped out to an early lead on Merrimack as the fourth line produced a pair of goals on its first two shifts. Gerry Cahill scored the first of his two on the night on a wrap around, from Chris Fawcett and Mike Evans at 3:45. After having his initial shot blocked by Martin Laroche, Fawcett collected the loose puck and beat Martin Legault upstairs past the blocker at 7:09 to give UMass a 2-0 lead.

"[The fourth line] are hard working kids. Tonight was a good chance for [Fawcett] to get a little more playing time, we threw him over the boards early in the game and he and Gerry responded quick."

The Minutemen are 7-2 when scoring first, and 3-13-1 when the opposition does, and true to form the Minutemen continued their attack. After 6-foot-6 Warrior John Jakopin scored on a rush to the net, where he simply ran right over UMass' defense, the Minutemen would score twice more.

Warren Norris beat Legault with a wrist shot from a tough angle, and Sal Manganaro added a power play goal to put UMass up 4-2 12:09 into the second, and mark the end of Legault's stay in the Warrior net for the evening.

After taking a 6-3 lead on tallies by Evans and Dennis Wright, Merrimack staged a late rally, scoring two goals in 23 seconds, making the score 6-5 with 5:31 to play.

UMass held on though, as Blair Wagar put in the rebound of a Jon Jacques shot at 18:29 of the third, and Cahill added a nifty 180 foot empty-net goal to ice the victory.

"We've had trouble in tight games getting the job finished," coach Joe Mallen said. "One thing that happened tonight that we didn't do in other games is that we regained our composure and settled down.

"This was a big game just because of momentum. Merrimack looked like they were showing some progress, and it's important for us to gain some momentum and just put a little more chink in the armor in the point category."

The win completed a season sweep of Merrimack, the Minutemen's first against a Hockey East foe.

"It goes to show how much we've improved and how much we've experienced," Wagar said. "[We've shown] how [experience] pays off and what a difference that makes in Hockey East."

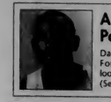
New Hampshire	7
Massachusetts	2

UNH coach Dick Umile was in attendance at Volpe Friday night, and must have seen something as his Wildcats opened up an early 3-0 lead on UMass. Two of the three goals came on the power play as a result of the UMass defenseman losing sight of wings on the off side, leaving them clear lanes to cut to the net for a well-laid cross-ice pass.

Turn to HOCKEY, page 8

EMILY BERLY \ COLLEGIAN

Sal Manganaro scored two power play goals on the weekend which gives him eight on the season, a new UMass record. The Minutemen split this weekend, beating Merrimack 8-5, while falling to UNH 7-2.



A Garden Party
Dana Dingle and the Minutemen face Fordham in New York this evening looking to extend their win streak to 22
(See Sports page 10.)

Need a job after graduation?
The Mather Career Center has tips for students about creating effective resumes including electronic ones
(See News page 3.)

"You Oughta Know"
Superstar Alanis Morissette took the Mullins Center by storm with an electrifying hour long set (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
The ground hog wasn't kidding and Spring is nowhere in sight. The sun will disappear later today so keep your jacket on or stay inside. It's still cold!

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 20	HIGH: 30	HIGH: 25
LOW: -5	LOW: 5	LOW: 10

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 74 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, February 6, 1996

Boltwood looks for new recruits

By Beth McCarthy
Collegian Corespondent

The Boltwood Project, a community service organization run entirely by students, is having recruitment sessions Feb. 5, 6 and 7 for 200 available openings.

The project has touched the lives of those with special needs, the elderly, children in shelters and the disabled.

"It's open to anyone in the five colleges as well as graduate students. There are no restrictions," said coordinator Kara Roche.

Jigna Parekh, one of the supervisors of the project, said, "It's incredible."

Parekh supervised the Northampton Pediatric Unit which dealt with low functioning children. These are kids who cannot talk. They're confined to wheelchairs and for the most part they do not have the use of their hands, Parekh said.

She used pet therapy and arts-and-crafts. Also, a pony was brought in for the kids to look at and touch.

"I was really scared at first," Parekh said. "I had never dealt with these kids before, but you really learn by their facial expressions what they like and what they don't. All you had to do was hug them and you could feel them smiling."

"I had never dealt with these kids before, but you really learn by their facial expressions what they like and what they don't. All you had to do was hug them and you could feel them smiling."
Jigna Parekh

Melissa Friedman supervised the Girl Scouts group. These were mentally challenged individuals between the ages of 11-24. According to Friedman the Scouts would choose what they wanted to work on during the allotted hours. One year it was making a dollhouse, another year it was going over fire drills, and an option this year is learning about the first aid kit.

"They are really intelligent women," said Friedman, referring to the Girl Scouts. "Most of them have jobs and have graduated from high school. They are really great."

The Boltwood Project is "far reaching" according to its coordinator Kara Roche.

"There's a wide range of different groups you can get involved in," Parekh said.

Any student can volunteer for up to two credits towards their elective, and join one of the 23 groups that spread out into the Amherst and its neighboring communities.

For credit, the requirements are two hours of volunteer work per week, a weekly journal and a four-page final paper.

The recruitment date of Feb. 5 will be held at the Commonwealth Room, also known as Earth Foods, at 6 p.m. On Feb. 6 and 7 it will be held at the Campus Center in rooms 162-175 also at 6 p.m.

EMILY BERLY \ COLLEGIAN

Brendan Shea, a freshman undeclard major, speaks with Kristin Mannke and Pam Freed about volunterring for the Boltwood project.

China plans military activity near Taiwan

By George Gedda
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In an apparent effort to intimidate Taiwan, China is planning large-scale military exercises in waters separating the mainland from the island, a congressional official said Monday.

The official said he and other experts believe the action is not a prelude to a military attack but rather an attempt to create uncertainty on Taiwan, an economic powerhouse that China considers a rebel province.

That view was echoed by a senior administration official who described the reported exercises as "psychological warfare" to persuade the government on Taiwan to choose stability rather than a higher international profile.

In recent months China has staged war games and test-fired missiles to signal its displeasure with Taiwan's attempts to promote itself internationally.

Disclosure of the anticipated new exercises, first reported by The Washington Post, came as Li Zhaoxing, China's vice foreign minister, opened three days of talks in Washington. The State Department said the talks are routine.

The administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said Li was advised that hostilities would run counter to the interests of both China and Taiwan. Any effort by China to determine Taiwan's future by other than peaceful means would be "of grave concern to the United States," the official said the Chinese diplomat was told.

State Department spokesman Glyn Davies and a military official at the Pentagon said he has seen no evidence of preparations for military maneuvers. In Taipei, Taiwan's Defense Ministry said it also has detected no change in deployments along China's southeastern coast.

Davies reaffirmed the longstanding U.S. position that "the future of Taiwan is a matter for the Chinese people themselves on both sides of the Taiwan Strait to resolve."

Davies added: "We've urged both sides repeatedly, and continue to do so, to refrain from any actions which would increase tensions in the region That would obviously include any intimidating or provocative exhibitions of military power."

White House spokesman Mike McCurry issued a similar statement.

Amherst panel debates differing effects of affirmative action

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Discussion continued last night surrounding the heated topic of affirmative action at a forum titled, "Perspectives on Affirmative Action: How Does it Affect You?"

This question was discussed and explored by a board of five panelists including Faye Crosby, professor of psychology at Smith College; Hermenia Gardner, director of affirmative action at Amherst College; Michael Burkart, a corporate diversity consultant in Amherst; Hadley Arkes, professor of Political Science at Amherst College; and Gerald Levinsky, deputy general council member.

The event was jointly sponsored by the Amherst Public Schools, the Civil Rights Review Commission of Amherst, and the Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations.

University Chancellor David K. Scott states, "The collaboration of these three groups blurs the banders between them and attempts to create a transversity, which connects all of the communities."

Barbara Love, associate professor of Education at UMass, moderated the discussion. Each of the panelists were allotted 10 minutes in order to state their main premises and thoughts about affirmative action.

Crosby began her discourse by offering a definition of affirmative action which coincided with a definition on the fact sheet which was available at the forum.

"Affirmative Action is a remedial concept that involves positive steps to improve the work opportunities of racial and ethnic minorities, women, persons with disabilities and Vietnam Veterans... It includes positive steps to recruit, encourage and prepare minorities and women to take advantage of job opportunities."

Crosby ended by stating that affirmative action needs to be fixed and not abolished.

"Voting does not always work, yet we do not choose to go back to a monarchy; it is the same with affirmative action."

Gardner spoke in agreement with Crosby, "We need to work on the idea of sharing resources; the decisions concerning equal opportunity employment which we make now will lead us into the 21st century."

Gardner also claimed that two strategies were being employed in order to turn the public's attention away from the real issue of affirmative action. Diversionary schemers tell the general population that jobs are going to unqualified minorities and women, even though no facts support this statement. While a deconceptualization of the concepts of merit and fairness also exists stress is placed on the imperfection of affirmative action.

In closing, Gardner offered a challenge, "We need to be good American citizens who love America too much to be averted from the core problems.

"We live in a culture designed for white men, therefore white women and people of color need affirmative action," stated Burkart, "We need diversity in institutions."

He stressed that white men are in a comfort zone which enables them to work well with other white men. And Burkart warned, "Unless we [white men] give up the comfort zone and let it go, we are going to be in major trouble."

Arkes offered an opposing opinion to his peers, "letting decisions pivot on racial preferences is wrong." He offered an example stating that any white student could not even be accepted to Georgetown University without a 4200 on their LSAT, yet a black student with the same score would be at Harvard

In opposition to Arkes and in strong support of affirmative action, Levinsky stated, "We need to fight for social justice in order to ensure equal protection of our laws."

A farmer from Amherst, Jim Pitts, questioned the nature of the entire discussion. Pitts felt that to speak in theory about affirmative action was gratuitous. He stressed that what really needs to be done is actual concrete action within the local community."

I attended a UMass basketball game and I was actually embarrassed to be there." Pitts felt that there was a major discrepancy in the racial diversity of the crowd, cheerleaders, and band: they were almost all white.

Scott explained that season ticket distribution was based on historical patterns in which preference goes back to a time period at the University of less diversity.

Senior Phil Copeland agreed with Pitts, "The issue of affirmative action directly affects us, the students. I was disappointed more students were not present."

Love ended the forum by saying that her last notion is of hope. "It is possible to accomplish the ideal of affirmative action within our lifetimes."

RYAN TIEZZI / COLLEGIAN

A panel of speakers discuss different views on affirmative action in the Campus Center last night.

Protest urges release of Indian activist

By Lisa Chiu
Collegian Staff

A national day of non-violent protest will be held tonight at the Federal Building in Springfield, to protest the imprisonment of Leonard Peltier.

The march, held exactly 20 years after the imprisonment of Peltier, leader of the American Indian Movement (AIM), will be one of several public protests throughout Massachusetts and in approximately 35 states across the country.

According to the National People's Campaign, Peltier was convicted in 1975 of killing two FBI agents at the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota.

In 1984, a U.S. Court of Appeals ordered an evidentiary hearing because of alleged FBI misconduct that led to Peltier's conviction. The court stated that the FBI's actions were "... a clear abuse of investigative procedure." According to records, federal agents coerced witnesses, committed perjury and fabricated and suppressed evidence.

An FBI memo showed that a ballistics test conducted on the alleged murder weapon could not match the shell casing of the rifle owned by Peltier. The FBI withheld this evidence during the trial.

During Peltier's appeals in both 1985 and 1992, Lynn Crooks, government prosecutor in the case, stated that he did not know who committed the crime that Peltier is currently serving time for.

According to local organizer Susan Montague of The Leonard Peltier Support Group of Southampton (LPSG), in November 1993, the U.S. Pardon Appeal Board said that it could take six to nine months to review and two and a half years later, the LPSG still has not heard an answer.

On Dec. 11, 1995, a parole hearing was held in which the board said it would take five weeks or more to determine whether or not Peltier could be granted parole. The LPSG is still awaiting the outcome.

Peltier was recently transferred from Levinworth Federal Prison in Kansas, where he was held for 10 years, to the Springfield Missouri Medical Facility. He was treated for knee pain and a deteriorating jaw bone. Montague says that the Board of Prisons will not give the definite prison site where he is to be transferred next.

"People who stand up for justice need to stand up for Leonard and Native peoples," Montague urged. "For me it's a justice and constitutional issue, Leonard's civil rights were violated. He couldn't have had a fair and impartial trial or a fair and impartial jury, when the prosecution withheld key evidence."

President Bill Clinton has full power to free Peltier. The LPSG was told that Leonard was currently third on a list of presidential pardons. According to Montague, the

Turn to PROTEST page3

Survey reports UMass students satisfied

By Anastasia Kudrez
Collegian Correspondent

Last spring, 93 percent of University of Massachusetts undergraduates were happy to be here, according to a Five College report.

Student Affairs Research, Information, and Systems (SARIS) at UMass published the "Five Colleges Cycles 1995" report. Judy Connelly and Elizabeth Williams analyzed the results of surveys distributed by mail to random sample undergraduates at Amherst, Hampshire, Mt. Holyoke, and Smith Colleges. UMass data was compiled by telephone surveys.

There were 1,950 students surveyed, 734 of whom were from UMass.

The report compares students' views of life at the five colleges, addresses issues such as academic, social and residential experiences, campus services and perceptions of campus problems.

The vast majority of respondents at the five colleges were satisfied with their overall college experiences. Lisa Jalazo, a first year UMass student, had some initial difficulties adjusting to the school.

"I'm not used to big classes. I'm a shy person, so I wish it could be more personal," she said.

Despite this, Jalazo is generally happy with her decision to attend UMass.

"I like the diversity, so I plan on staying," she said. "It's been interesting."

Although most were satisfied, approximately one-fourth of the respondents from Amherst, Hampshire, Smith, and UMass considered withdrawing during the 1995 spring semester. Forty percent of Hampshire respondents considered withdrawing.

Academically, Mt. Holyoke was rated the highest for student gain or progress. Just over 68 percent said they personally had progressed "quite a bit" or "very much" in 12 areas of learning skills. Smith followed with 58.7 percent, Hampshire with 56.6 percent, UMass with 55.9 percent, and Amherst with 54.2 percent.

SARIS rated student satisfaction with specific college services. At Amherst, Hampshire, Mt. Holyoke and Smith, 50 to 60 percent were satisfied with food services. At UMass, only 32 percent were satisfied.

Jennifer Durgin, a first year UMass student, agreed with this statistic.

"It doesn't surprise me that there is such a high level of satisfaction at the other four colleges. At Smith, each dorm has it's own kitchen staff, so meals seem home cooked. At UMass it seems a lot harder to please such a large group of people," she said.

Of all five colleges, UMass respondents expressed the greatest satisfaction with their social lives, 93 percent. Forty- four percent were "very satisfied," a substantially higher percentage than the other schools.

Christopher Ronkese, a second year UMass student, praised the University social scene.

"I'm an engineer, but when I can go out, there's always things to do, people to see, and places to go in Amherst and Northampton," he said.

SARIS connected student satisfaction with the proportion of student loneliness. "Consistent with these findings, the University of Massachusetts had the lowest proportion (6 percent) of students saying they have felt lonely while at college," the report said.

Regarding perceptions of campus problems, respondents at co-educational schools witnessed or experienced more sexual and racial harassment.

Heather Cole, a first year UMass student, has witnessed racism and homophobia.

"I've seen discrimination, especially against the Asian community. But it doesn't seem to be a pervasive problem on campus," she said.

At Hampshire and UMass, 35 percent of respondents witnessed or experienced harassment. At Amherst, it was 47 percent.

In comparison, 11 percent of Smith and 20 percent of Mt. Holyoke respondents witnessed or experienced harassment.

Other campus problems addressed were religious affiliation and sexual orientation harassment, alcohol and drug use, eating disorders, cheating and lack of racial and ethnic diversity.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Tuesday, Feb. 6

Dance — As part of the Performing Art Division's Free Week, there will be several dance classes at the Old Chapel. In the Auditorium, from 7 – 8 p.m., there will be Advanced Ballet with Katie Magyar. From 8 – 9 p.m., there will be Modern Dance with Hillary Knowlton. In the Seminar Room, from 6:30 – 8 p.m., there will be Country Line Dancing with Sandy Anderson. Call 545-0519 for information.

Theater — There will be an Acting and Directing Workshop with Davor Diklich from 5:30 – 7:30 p.m. in Kennedy 508 in the Southwest Residential Area. This workshop is a part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. Call 545-0519 for more information.

Music– — There will be a Reggae Ensemble with Abdul Baki as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The presentation will be in FAC 155 from 7 – 9 p.m. Call 545-0519 for more information.

Music — There will be two guitar demonstrations with Kevin Collins in Emerson 112 of the Southwest Residential Area. Classical Guitar will be from 6 – 7 p.m. and Just for Fun Guitar will be from 7 – 8 p.m. This is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For more information call 545-0519.

Lecture — "Women's Bodies, Women's Wisdom: Creating Health Throughout the Life Cycle" is the title of a lecture to be given by Christiane Northrup, M.D. at Franklin Patterson Hall, on the Hampshire College campus, at 7 p.m. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Demonstration — There will be a demonstration to free Leonard Peltier, a Native American convicted of killing two FBI agents, at 5 p.m. in the Federal Bldg. in Springfield. For more information, or a ride, contact the National People's Campaign at 538-8537.

Info–Social — The UMass Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance will hold its first info–social of the semester from 7 – 9 p.m. in Campus Center Rm 803. Refreshments will be served and a movie will be shown. For more information call Ashavan at 545-0154.

Meeting — The Boltwood project will be holding recruitment nights Feb. 5, 6, 7 from 6 – 8 p.m. The meetings on Feb. 6 and 7 will be held in Campus Center Rm 162. The Boltwood Project is a service organization working with Amherst and surrounding communities. For more information call Mark at 546-3301.

Wednesday, Feb. 7

Theater — There will be an introductory acting class with Michelle Sullivan in the Old Chapel Seminar Room from 6:30 – 8 p.m. The class is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For information call 545-0519.

Dance — There will be a dance workshop with Tracy Vernon as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The class will be in the Old Chapel Auditorium, from noon – 1 p.m. Call 545-0519 for information.

Theater — There will be a musical theater presentation with Dan Peterson in the Old Chapel Auditorium, from 7 – 8:30 p.m. This is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For information call 545-0519.

Meeting — The Italian Club will hold an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 301. All students are welcome. For more information call 546–4363.

Volunteer Fair — The VIVA Council is holding a volunteer fair from 11 a.m. – 2 p.m., in the Student Union Ballroom. Forty service agencies will be recruiting volunteers. Call 545–3368 for more information.

Theater — The UMass Theater Guild will hold its first general meeting of the semester at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center. Anyone interested is invited to attend, there will be audition information available. For more information call 545-0415.

Meeting — The Student Health Advisory Board will hold its first meeting of the semester from 5:30 – 6:30 p.m. in University Health Services Rm 304. Everyone is welcome. Call 549–9940 for information.

Meeting — The Boltwood project will be holding recruitment nights Feb. 5, 6, 7 from 6 – 8 p.m. The meetings on Feb. 6 and 7 will be held in Campus Center Rm 162. The Boltwood Project is a service organization working with Amherst and surrounding communities. For more information call Mark at 546–3301.

Thursday, Feb. 8

Lecture — Dr. Beverly Greene, a certified Clinical Psychologist and Professor of Psychology at St. John's University, will speak on the topic: African–American Lesbians: Mental Health and Psycotherapy Issues. The lecture is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The event will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. For information call 545–4824.

Meeting — There will be the first meeting tonight of the Animal Rights Coalition at 7 p.m. in Room 306 of the Student Union. Everyone is welcome, and meetings will continue throughout the semester. For more information call Nana at 546-0358.

Music — There will be an African Caribbean Drumming presentation as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The presentation will be led by Abdul Baki, and will be from 8 – 10 p.m. in FAC 157. For information call 545- 0519.

Music — Peter Orphanos will lead a guitar class in Emerson 112 of the Southwest Residential Area from 5:30 – 7 p.m. The presentation will be part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. Call 545–0519 for information.

Notices

Job Applications — The GEO Personnel Committee is accepting applications for three part–time positions: Office Coordinator, Grievance Coordinator and Contract Campaign Coordinator. All positions are for 20 hours per week at $12.30/hr for 16 weeks. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9. Contact Beth at 545–0705 or 665–3299 with any questions.

Meetings — The Everywoman's Center has announced its group meetings for the spring semester. There will be a Communication and Intimacy Group on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m., a Re–entry Women's Group on Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m., a Women and Self Esteem Group for Undergrad Women on Mondays at 7:00 p.m. and a Women in Transition: Exploration Through Expressive Arts Group on Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. These groups may require registration and a screening interview. Call the Everywoman's Center at 545–0883 by Feb. 16 for more information.

Meeting — The Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a Rape Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and a Child Sexual Abuse Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:00 p.m. Both of these groups require screening interviews. Call 545–0800 by Feb. 7 for information.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 585–0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5 – 6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545–4824.

Writing — mOthertongue, a multi–lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587–9884.

Religious — Rides are being provided to any students who would like to attend worship services at the Alliance Church on Sunday mornings. For information contact Mark at 253–0361.

Meeting — The African Student Association will hold a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the SWAG office. The meeting is open to everyone.

Meeting — Nommo News and Drum Supplement holds general body meetings on Thursdays at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2363 or 546– 5562.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995–96 issue. Any Five–College student is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 406E Student Union, or call 545–2240.

Semi–Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi–formal on February 10, in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 5–0960.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253–9622.

Religious — Rides to Chapel: Christ Community Chapel of Amherst sponsors "Pick Me Up." Worship time 10 – 11:30 a.m. every Sunday. Bus stop points 9:45 a.m. at the GRC, Fine Arts, North Village, Southpoint, Prince House, Southwest parking lot and Amherst College at Converse Hall.

Dancing — There is International Folkdancing at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst every Friday, 8 – 10 p.m. Greek, Bulgarian, Turkish, American, former Yugoslavian, Armenian, Israeli, Hungarian, French ... teaching at all levels, beginners welcome. For more information, call Eva and Gene, 549–6748 or Cindy and Dennis, 323–6330.

Health — Worried about HIV/AIDS? Call 1–800–750–2016, The Family Planning Council's HIV Hotline counselors can tell you whether or not you are at risk for contacting HIV; how you can protect yourself from contracting the virus; where, when and how to get a free, anonymous HIV antibodies test at over 70 sites throughout the state. For more information on these services call Ellen or Anne at 1–800–696–7752.

Campus Police Log

Assault & Battery

Jan. 31

An individual reported that a male subject placed his hands on her shoulders in an elevator in Thoreau Residence Hall. The incident is currently under investigation.

An individual reported being slapped by another individual in Kennedy Residence Hall. She does not wish to pursue charges.

Medical Emergency

Jan. 31

An individual complaining of chest pain was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual in Bartlett Hall was transported to her Hadley residence after feeling faint.

A individual in Van Meter Residence Hall was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital with flu symptoms.

Larceny

Jan.31

A John Adams Residence Hall individual reported his credit cards stolen.

A bookbag with textbooks and personal items were stolen from an individual in the Textbook Annex.

An individual reported credit cards stolen his John Adams Residence Hall mailbox.

A bookbag and a Sega system was reported stolen from a Webster Residence Hall individual.

An individual in Mackimie Residence Hall reported a past larceny of credit cards.

Feb. 1

Property was reported stolen from a Coolidge Residence Hall room.

Warrant Service

Jan. 31

Shannan L Magee, 26, of 129 Orleans St., Springfield, was served a warrant for motor vehicle charges.

Traffic Stop

Jan. 31

Derrick A Brown, 22, of 54 Railroad St., Amherst, was arrested and charged with the unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, operating after the suspension of registration, operating a vehicle under unsafe conditions and failure to have an inspection sticker.

Health / Safety Hazard

Jan. 31

Environment Health and Safety was notified of candles burning in an Emerson Residence Hall room.

A rat was reported to be in a John Adams Residence Hall bathroom; nothing was found by Environment Health and Safety.

Alarm

Feb. 1

Burnt food activated an alarm in McNamara Residence Hall.

Vandalism

Feb. 1

A vehicle in Lot 22 had its rear bumper off; the owner was notified.

Health care workers assisted by grant

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts' Donahue Institute has been awarded an additional $90,000 to continue assisting refugee, immigrant and Puerto Rican health care workers looking to re-enter the health field. Connections in training, educational and career opportunities in the local area are provided, Project Manager Kerri Heitner said.

The program "serves the people who already have the skills," Coordinator Job Developer Elaine Kenseth–Abel said.

The first goal of the program is to strengthen and develop foreign workers' English speaking ability. A free class, English For Special Purposes, is offered at Mercy Hospital in Springfield through the program.

Brenda Quintero, a dentist in Bogata, Columbia, is involved in the process of enrolling in a dental assistant course to familiarize herself with English dental vocabulary.

After mastering the English language, foreign health care workers are offered career counseling to devise a plan that enables them to reach their goals and desired credentials.

With dental assistant credentials, Quintero can apply for a two-year dental program or decide to remain as a dental assistant.

Some of the hardships faced by immigrants and refugees include working and attending classes simultaneously with or without family responsibilities to juggle. The program aides in finding the right courses at community colleges to suit worker's lifestyle, especially single parents.

An obstetrics and gynecology surgeon, Inna Kupina, faced the decision of eight years of study to become a licensed U.S. physician. Kupina decided to be a certified U.S. Nurses Assistant prior to being accepted into the University's intensive 18–month Second Degree Bachelor Program. Upon completion of the intensive program, she will receive the necessary Bachelor of Science degree in nursing needed to take the U.S. licensing nursing exam.

It is just a matter of learning the American system of nursing, according to Abel.

With foreign licensed doctors, a customized plan is utilized by these doctors who are not allowed to practice medicine unless he/she passes a battery of tests, according to Abel.

To practice medicine in the United States, the foreign physician must first register their credentials with the Education Commission for Foreign Medical Graduates. The ECFMG reviews transcripts in terms of quality of courses under American Medical Association standards.

Once transcripts are approved, the foreign doctor is allowed to take the U.S. Medical Licensing Exam. With a passing exam grade, he/she must seek a residency for three years.

A great problem faced by foreign health care doctors and nurses is the intense competition with medical school graduates and others seeking residency. Abel added.

After residency is completed, foreign physicians are allowed to take a final exam which licenses them to be a U.S. licensed doctor.

By the same token, foreign trained nurses must obtain approve of their transcripts by the Council for Graduates of Foreign Nursing Schools. With approval, foreign nurses are allowed to take the CGFNS exam. Following two to three years of preparation and a passing grade, foreign nurses can take the N–CLEX exam licensing them as a U.S. Registered Nurse.

"We will do anything we can do to help the people to re- enter the health care field," Abel said.

PROCTER AND GAMBLE

Procter and Gamble is the global leader in thr consumer products industry. We sell our products in 140 countries, with annual sales over $33 billion. We offer paid internship positions in Sales in majoring marketing areas throughout the United States

ARE YOU A JUNIOR or SOPHOMORE and INTERESTED IN A PAID SUMMER INTERNSHIP?
PLEASE COME TO OUR INFORMATION SESSION:

WHEN? WED, FEB 7 at 7 PM
WHERE? CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 804-08

WE ARE LOOKING FOR [redacted] STUDENTS WITH :
- A STRONG MOTIVATION TO ACHIEVE
- OUTSTANDING RECORD OF LEADERSHIP
- STRONG ORAL & WRITTEN COMMUNICATION
- ABILITY TO ANALYZE FACTS AND MAKE CONCLUSIONS
- ABILITY TO INNOVATE
- EFFECTIVE IN TEAM SITUATIONS

WANTED!
- DRIVERS -
MUST HAVE CAR
(WILL TRAVEL)
Call Lee at 545-3500
THE COLLEGIAN

- TONIGHT -
Christiane Northrup, M.D.

A Public Lecture
"Women's Bodies, Women's Wisdom:
Creating Health Throughout the Life Cycle"

Date: Tuesday, Feb.6th

Time: 7pm (sharp)

Place: Hampshire College, Franklin Patterson Hall (first building on left from front entrance off route 116)

The lecture, which is free and open to the public, is being videotaped for national distribution; your cooperation will be requested and appreciated.

media education Foundation
Media Education Foundation
26 Center Street
Northampton, MA 01060

Mather offers tips for winning resumes

By Anastasia Kudrez
Collegian Correspondent

As graduation day gets closer, many students realize "the real world" is approaching fast. It's is time to write a resume.

In anticipation of this need, many independent companies advertise custom resume and cover letter packages, usually ranging in price from $40 to $300. These companies will print, edit, or even write resumes.

According to Joan Stoia, director of the Mather Career Center at the University of Massachusetts, students are often better off using electronic resumes rather than the standard "old–fashioned" approach.

The basis of Stoia's information on electronic resumes and the job market is Electronic Resume Revolution and Electronic Job Search by Joyce Lain Kennedy, and Job Shift by William Bridges

If students do use a private resume service, they should be careful selecting a company. "Some are scams, some are well–intentioned, but expensive," Stoia said.

One Boston–based company, Smart Resumes, offers four resume packages, ranging from $39 to $289. Marc Makos, president of Smart Resumes and author of three resume and interview guides, promotes the use of action verbs. The Smart Resumes advertisement states, "An action verb energizes the statement and makes the reader feel the action taking place."

Stoia argued that the use of action verbs, which often imply hierarchical strength, was ideal in the age of middle management.

According to Stoia, companies are seeking resumes stressing competencies and teamwork rather than delegation. Resumes should now emphasize qualities and skills involving flexibility and coping, communication, empathy and awareness, learning and assertiveness. These key words, along with leadership, decision–making and competitiveness describe the applicant for whom today's companies are searching.

"The old paradigm of working at 20 and retiring at 60 is gone," she said. "As the 'de–jobbing' of America continues, people need to have dynamic skills."

Makos agreed that electronic scans make these key words important. But, "employers look for nouns and verbs that speak to things. You still need to show yourself as a performer, a team builder," he said.

Makos, who has operated Smart Resumes for six years, anticipates going on–line by next year. However, he believes that the electronic system will not replace the traditional resume.

"It's a question of how you want to present yourself. Many smaller companies don't want information on–line," he said.

Additionally, many people are unwilling to put their personal information on–line, he said. "On–line resumes have attractive qualities, but there's the question of who can access your information."

Stoia pointed out that a resume package is a static biographical document. The job market is increasingly characterized by niche positions that require specific resumes and cover letters.

In response to the need for dynamic resumes, Mather offers an electronic resume program for campus interviewing and resume referral. This program allows students to update and tailor resumes as often as they wish on a computer disk.

The resume is uploaded into Mather's main computer, and available for perspective employers. Mather faxes resumes to interested employers, insuring speedy response to job openings.

Some applicants believe that resumes on fancy paper "sell" better. While this may be true for smaller companies, Stoia said paper is obsolete in larger companies. Most scan resumes onto a data file, so the original paper is unimportant. In these cases, a fax from Mather is just as effective as a fancy resume.

The electronic resume disk is available at Mather for $13.50. It includes a word processor resume program, a tutorial, cover letter formats and storage for completed documents.

Additionally, the disk records specific job targets, geographic limits, minimum salary and special skills. Students remain on file for six months.

Stoia admitted that the technology is not without critics, but this passive job search is an invaluable supplement to active job searching.

Makos, who sees a happy future for Smart Resumes, said, "The idea of electronic resumes is lovely. But for individuals out of school, even if you're on–line, the question remains, how do you get companies to recognize you?"

Stoia said that UMass students should utilize their access to Mather's resume system, because the University is a magnet for jobs, attracting hundreds of employers each week.

Editor positions still available:

Contact Marni for more information at 545-0719 or stop by the Collegian Newsroom 113 Campus Center.

■ protest

continued from page 1

White House is staying silent.

The organizers of the event hope that the march will urge Clinton to grant executive clemency and immediate freedom to Peltier.

"It will be public pressure that will free Leonard Peltier," Montague said.

Similar marches will be held at the Federal Building in Boston, and on the town common in Hyannis.

Body Shops return to residence halls

By Bryan C. Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

Totman and Boyden Gyms are no longer the only places to work out on campus, because the Body Shops are back in the dorms for the spring semester.

In the past Body Shop members had the option of going to designated dorms to exercise. Last fall members were surprised to learn that housing had closed the residence hall Body Shops.

According to Melissa Motyka, the Assistant Director of Wellness for Housing Services, the dorm Body Shops were owned by housing and the exercise science department, until housing took over.

"The Body Shops were going to be used for use by housing staff," Motyka said.

Getting the Body Shops back in housing was a difficult negotiating process, involving a lot of equipment moving. As it stands all the equipment located in the dorms is owned by housing while the equipment in Totman and Boyden gyms is owned by the exercise science departments.

The Body Shop that was formerly located in Coolidge Residential Hall has been moved to Brown in the Sylvan residential area. Leah Holdsworth, assistant director of fitness for the Body Shop said "We wanted to have a gym available in each living area."

"I'm excited that the Body Shop is in Sylvan because I won't have to walk all the way down the hill to work out," said Emmie Green, an Resident Assistant in Cashin Residence Hall.

Holdsworth also said that lack of staff was one of the reasons the Coolidge location was closed.

"The Boyden and Totman locations are open all day," she said. "We don't have any more students to staff another location."

Southwest will still have a Body Shop which will be located in Washington Residence Hall. There will also be locations in Gorman, Lewis and Webster Residence Halls.

The Body Shops are staffed by students of exercise science 310, who must make a commitment of at least three hours a week. The Body Shop is run by the exercise science department and headed by Professor Joseph Rife.

The Totman and Boyden locations opened yesterday, but the residence hall locations will not open until next Monday. The cost of membership for this semester is $55, and are proactive.

BRYAN S TEZZI / COLLEGIAN

Totman Gym will be one location this semester where students can work out at the Body Shop.

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB
Ends February 15th
The Area's Most Complete Club • 256-6446
90 Gatehouse Road
"Off Rt. 9 2 miles East of Town Center"
• PVTA bus route to Rolling Green • pool • • aerobics • aqua-aerobics • steps • nautilus • • racquetball • free weights • jacuzzi • • sauna • massage • bikes • • indoor tennis & basketball • • rowers • treadmills •
MasterCard VISA
Join now for our 15 week Semester Special ($159) & get a free HFC T-Shirt!

PHOTO MEETING
Wednesday, February 7
at 7:00pm
New Staff members Welcome

1996 SUMMER CONFERENCE HOUSING
AT THE
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS/AMHERST
MAKE A DIFFERENCE!
FULL TIME JOBS ARE AVAILABLE FOR:
DESK CLERKS
DESK CLERK SUPERVISORS
OFFICE MANAGER
REGISTRARS
KEY CONTROL SUPERVISOR
CREW OPERATIONS STAFF
CREW OPERATIONS SUPERVISORS
APPLICATIONS AND JOB DESCRIPTIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT THE
CONFERENCE SERVICES OFFICE
ROOM 918-CAMPUS CENTER
NINTH FLOOR
COMPLETED APPLICATIONS ARE DUE BY FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1996

UMass Division of Continuing Education
Your entryway into the University and the future
• Over 200 credit courses and noncredit workshops — in the evening!
• Professional development courses, seminars, workshops
• Specialized degree programs
• Courses for recertification points for teachers
Register through February 12.
Call for a free course catalog • (413) 545-0107
e-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
Division of Continuing Education • University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Lisa M. Oliveri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Tyler A. Henry Operations Manager
Arts Parashot News Editor Maureen Magerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reily Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist Turley Publications Printer/Publisher

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Fridays during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts - operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life became the College Signal in 1903, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1984. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

...and many happy returns

Happy Birthday John. Can I call you John? Did you know that you and I have the same birthday? Yep, me and you. Coach John Calipari share something — February 10. I learned this four years ago when I was a freshman. I always wanted to send you a card or something, but I didn't want you to feel obligated to send something back.

I mean, you've given me so much already. The first game I ever saw was my freshman year against Central Connecticut back in the old Cage, you guys blew them out 78 to 55. Since then, I've been hooked.

Everyone was saying that this was going to be a building year for the Minutemen. I don't think so.

Tim White

I used to get up at 4 a.m. to get tickets for games at the Cage. Freezing my butt off, but it was all worth it.

I'll never forget my first Temple game, just edging a win with two points. It was crazy, the Cage was going berserk. I will never forget that feeling.

Remember when Harper Williams played with that broken hand? Guys like Will Herndon (a year before me) and Tony Barbee where my heroes when I watched the Minutemen make the Sweet Sixteen. Then only to fall to Rick Pitino's crew and that stupid technical call (that's OK, you snagged 'em this year).

You kind of helped me finalize my decision to come to UMass.

My brother went to UMass before me — he was a senior my first year here. He tells me stories from those "building" years. Like the time there was a huge line of people waiting outside the Cage in the freezing cold for tickets. You walked up, unlocked the Cage and ordered pizza for everyone waiting to get the tickets.

That might be a little more difficult today with all the people that fit in the Mullins Center (that's a lot of pizza). But it was the stuff you did the years before that made us "the classiest fans in America."

Thanks also for upsetting the No. 1 team in the country three years in a row. Talk about the bragging rights I get with all my friends from those other Division I schools.

And now, I mean my senior year and everything, Man, talk about a birthday present. So far we have been the No. 1 team in the country for seven weeks and have gone undefeated. I couldn't ask for anything more. Everyone was saying that this was going to be a building year for the Minutemen. I don't think so.

My favorite memory so far from this year just came a few nights ago when we played Xavier. It was overtime, all tied-up and Marcus Camby was going to the line for two. ABC showed a close-up of you, and anyone who could remotely read lips could see you say to Marcus, "you are the best player in the country!" I get chills thinking about right now.

Coach, I'm not a sports writer or anything. I don't have the desire to coach basketball when I get older and if you ever saw me play basketball you would probably laugh yourself wet. I knew a little about college ball when I was growing up, but you gave me the bug. That disease that I will have the for the rest of my life.

When I get older, I can tell my kids about the basketball team in my four years at UMass. It's hard to believe that the Minutemen are being mentioned in the same breath as UCLA, North Carolina, Duke, Kansas, Indiana ... these are the years that are building the platform to give us that history.

So I guess you really don't have to get me anything for my birthday, if you were worried about it. You have given me my gift already — my memories.

Of course, if you have any extra Temple tickets lying around, I could sure use those.

I'm not really sure what to get you though ... do you need a blender or anything?

Tim White is a Collegian columnist.

Waiting for the muse

Do you have the passion and desire to do your very best?

When there is something that you hold dear to your heart and it means more than anything else to you, nothing can hold you back or keep you away. I am not talking about a passing phase that people go through or a trendy fad that goes away with the ticking of the clock. I'm talking about when something or someone gets inside of you and no matter what happens, you can't get it out of your system.

If you have ever been touched by someone in a way which changes how you see, hear and feel everything in your life, maybe you can relate.

At the beginning of the last school year, there was very little I could depend on in my life. My relationship with my immediate family had gone to pieces, and my education was suffering from the stress endured from the constant head knocking with my mother and brother. I had no direction in school and my effort was sub-par at best. I didn't have confidence in anyone or anything in my life.

Justin C. Smith

Then one young woman entered my life and changed my whole attitude and outlook on everything.

It was Sept. 8, 1994. We passed in the stairwell and said "Hello" for the first time. It was an otherwise normal start to what would become a relationship that would bring out the best in myself.

Everytime we saw each other, whether in passing or while hanging out, she had this incredibly soft and sweet smile that warmed my heart. After two days of informal small talk we found ourselves alone one Saturday night, after a group of us watched a movie together.

It was the first time we were alone in the same place since the stairwell. I asked if she would like me to leave so she could sleep since it was getting late. She asked me to stay and we talked for hours about everything from interests to relationships.

It was so easy for me to talk with her. She was genuinely interested in what I had to say and I learned so much from what she told me about herself.

Just talking to her I could feel how passionate she was about her dream of someday teaching. There was nothing that would keep her from achieving that goal. She would not be satisfied with anything less. It wasn't about being the best teacher, but being the best person she could be.

On Sunday when I left to go home and tie up some loose ends, all I could think about was the talk we had the night before. All the things she said to me and the way she made me feel, helped me realize that I wasn't actually giving my best when I thought that I really was. I never knew that I could be a better person, but she opened my eyes to my potential.

Over the span of those four days, I think I learned more about myself than I had most of my life. I became more focused on what I wanted and expected out of myself.

During that semester, I found a direction and was more dedicated to improving my work and school habits. I began to be more understanding with my family, and my attitude towards life had been completely changed and I was a better person for it. I had fallen in love with her and I think she was in love with me, though she never said so. There was something between us. I thought might never be broken. But things between her and I changed.

We had our first real argument which was followed by more and more of them. It broke my heart like I never thought possible when she told me we should not spend as much time together and that kinship we had once, had since left.

When the school year ended, she said she wouldn't forget about me over the summer, but for all intents and purposes she did. At this point we really don't talk at all, but a day doesn't go by without thinking about her and what influence she had on me.

Though we have gone our separate ways, my passion to be the best writer and person I can be hasn't changed. Even though things between us will never return to what they once were, I still have the dedicated work ethic and drive needed to pursue my career with my best effort. Her influence helped me to patch up a shaky home life to where it is now comfortable for me to live there.

Without spending the time with her that I did, there is no way you could have read any of my stories, because I would have given up on myself as a student.

I still wonder if she thinks about me, now that our lives have gone separate ways. I want to thank her for giving me the opportunity to bring out the best of myself and no matter what, I will never forget all she did for me. I'll never forget her and someday I hope to touch someone the way she touched me.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

CYBERCITIZENS-FOR-STEVE-FORBES HAVE GATHERED AT BERNIE'S BYTE SHACK
LET'S BE CLEAR. WHAT'S AT STAKE, MY FRIENDS...
MOST OF US HERE ARE LOADED UP WITH STOCK OPTIONS! AND WE DESERVE IT! — WE BUILT THIS INDUSTRY, BUT WHAT'S THE POINT IF WE LOSE IT ALL IN TAXES?
THAT'S WHY THE FORBES CAM-PAIGN IS A HOLY CRUSADE! THAT'S WHY WE MUST FIGHT WITH EVERY FIBER IN OUR...
BOB?
WHAT?
COULD WE TAKE A BREAK? I WANT TO CHECK MY E-MAIL.
STEVE FORBES IDENT IN '96

Opinion/Editorial

poink
poink
poink
poink
poink
COSTS TO CORPORATIONS FROM CUTTING EMISSIONS
...and yet, a few scientists, using different equipment and calculations, conclude that global climate change isn't happening.
TOLES universal press synd ©1996 THE BUFFALO NEWS
YOU HAVE A FUTURE IN TOBACCO INDUSTRY RESEARCH

What is a Puerto Rican?

Charles R. Venator Santiago

On Sept. 23, 1993, the first group of Puerto Rican nationalists adopted a Puerto Rican passport. The rationale was not only to assert their political convictions, but to take the struggle to the courts and force the United States to decide on a political status for the island. This signified a further dissociation of the political from the popular, and redefined the struggle for independence as something that lawyers and judges do in the courts. Recently, however, two Puerto Ricans who could financially afford to renounce their U.S. second class citizenship gave up their status and became Puerto Rican citizens. The implications of this judicial game are yet to be decided in court. In this essay I would like to problematize one of the implications of this political act, namely how Anglo-American academics of Puerto Rican heritage are going to define their categories of the Puerto Rican identity.

Clearly, any cultural assertion of difference is a political statement in the public realm. Moreover, there is no doubt in my mind that a judicial category, and a legal battle in a court will not determine my identity. However, the questions still remain, if one is a U.S. citizen as opposed to a Puerto Rican citizen, is one Puerto Rican or Anglo-American? Should we opt for a dual citizenship? Or, should we follow the accomodationist immigration reforms of the three Anglo-American Congressional representatives of Puerto Rican heritage? Shouldn't a commitment to being Puerto Rican encompass a political commitment to the struggle for independence which some Puerto Ricans have waged for over a century?

At present, I don't have the economic resources to travel to another country and renounce my U.S. second class citizenship, although I am saving up. And what about those Anglo-Americans of Puerto Rican heritage who have lived all of their lives in this nation, who can't speak the language, or can't just pick up their lives and migrate to another political, social and economic space? I mean, how feasible is it for any Anglo-American to renounce their U.S. citizenship and acquire a "green card?" What does it feel like to lose some rights in order to assert a legitimate political identity?

Clearly, the question of Puerto Rican independence is something that needs to be resolved in multiple fronts, and it is something which needs to encompass a democratic commitment by an active citizenry. However, a Puerto Rican citizenship does assert a judicial right within the Anglo-American constitutional tradition. More especially, it creates a distinction between being an Anglo-American citizen, and a Puerto Rican citizen. This membership does in fact demarcate the ideological commitments, by default of course, of a Puerto Rican. It continues to present the paradox in which Puerto Ricans continue to exist, namely that of claiming a separate identity in a separate space, or continue to affirm their different identity as Anglo-Americans of a multicultural heritage.

It clearly puts the question on the table: are we going to be Puerto Rican citizens, separate and distinct from Anglo-American citizens or are we going to continue to embrace a second class citizenship which justifies our affirmation and claim to diversity?

Charles R. Venator Santiago is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

Column presents inaccuracies

To the editor:

I was surprised to find a reference to myself in a [column] from Shyamala Bantury and Hussein Ibish the appeared in the Collegian on January 31. Because I was named in the [column], and because of the nature of the reference, I feel compelled to respond.

Ms. Bantury and Mr. Ibish describe my efforts, as well as those of Professor Carmen Diana Deere, as "stellar" in advancing the interests of Latinos on campus. It is generally very rewarding to be praised for the work one does, particularly in times of limited resources and low morale. Such praise is not especially rewarding, however, when unfavorable comparisons are made with others, in this case, Ann Ferguson, Cristina Gonzalez and Nina Scott. I believe the numerous criticisms leveled against them are simply unfair. All three, along with Carmen Diana Deere, are valued colleagues and personal friends. I have known and worked with each in a variety of contexts and I respect their work and commitment to multiculturalism. I have known Ann Ferguson for over twenty years and to characterize her as advancing the transformation of women's studies into "White women's studies" is contrary to everything that Ann has ever stood for. On the contrary, she has always sought to develop inclusive and affirming coalitions with a broad spectrum of people.

As for Cristina Gonzalez, I have been tremendously impressed with the leadership she has demonstrated in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese since she became chair. She has made a concerted and principled effort to make the department more welcoming, comfortable and inclusive for all students, but especially for Latino students who many times feel a chilly climate in other departments. She has also done extensive outreach with Latino student groups, Latino faculty throughout campus, other departments and with Latino community organizations in Holyoke and Springfield.

Finally, Nina Scott's reference to handguns needs to be taken with the humor with which it was intended. I would hope that we do not become so critical of language that even metaphors are dangerous.

We need to promote the creation of a truly multicultural community by developing coalitions, not by fostering divisions among some of the very people who have the most progressive vision concerning the future of our campus. We cannot expect that such coalitions will be free of dissent, because conflict is inevitable as honest disagreements arise over goals, tactics or implementation. We can promote, however, a climate of mutual respect and civil discourse. If such a climate does not exist, the multicultural campus we claim we want will remain an illusion.

Sonia Nieto
School of Education

What about F.D.R.?

To the editor:

Just what are the qualifications needed to author an editorial in the Collegian? Martin F. Jones' column "The Great Weld Hope" (Feb. 2) represents a new low in collegiate journalism. His offensive, childish and politically ignorant piece is an embarrassment to the Collegian. Does the paper really want to associate itself with someone who believes the most important characteristic in determining our nation's leader is the ability to "shake with both hands"? Under Jones' scheme, one of the greatest presidents of the twentieth century would never have cleared the primaries—let alone win four unprecedented terms—because of his crippling disability. Is Jones after a movie star or a leader? Perhaps he should have continued his hunger strike. By publishing this superficial sophistry, the Collegian has degraded its reputation to the level of daytime tabloid television.

Joshua Rice
History Dept.

Letters to the Editor and Columns

Attention all columnists: If you haven't yet, please come down this week to get your picture taken. Questions? Call Bob.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Arts & Living

Mullins goes "head over feet" for Alanis

Canadian born singer wows audience with two new songs; excels with harmonica solos

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

ALANIS MORISSETTE
Mullins Center
Feb. 4

Alanis Morissette has been hailed as a champion of women, a person who can write songs that empower females everywhere to stomp on the heartless lugs that didn't realize what they had until it was gone.

But one would not know this from watching Sunday's show at the Mullins Center. The somewhat sedate audience was treated to a kinder, gentler Morissette; a woman bent on playing music and singing her songs rather than insurrecting would-be Lorena Bobbits.

The show opened up with "All I Really Want," the first song on her chart topping album Jagged Little Pill. In her stage clothing of choice — flowing poet's shirt and black leather pants — her long hair obscured features that have been plastered on many (and just about all) magazines over the past year.

Her voice isn't pretty or particularly delicate, but filled with emotion, quirks and other vocal feats that make you sit up and listen as demonstrated with "Right Through You," "You Learn" and "Not the Doctor."

Strobe lights glinting off whirling disco balls hailed the beginning of her only "ballad-type" song, "Mary Jane," which prompted the audience to spark up their lighters and sway to the story of a wayward girl in limbo.

For "Head Over Feet," the Canadian proved that a harmonica wasn't her only instrument of choice, when she strapped on a guitar and dedicated the song, "to all of you." Greeted with equal enthusiasm was a new song she called "I Don't Know," named such because she had just written it.

"You're a lovely crowd," she said. "The next song is very good, it's a new song, fresh out of the proverbial oven."

Of course the clincher for the crowd was her second to last song and the one broken-hearted girls sang themselves to sleep with — "You Oughta Know." Fans leapt to their feet, screamed the lyrics and made every male member of the audience cringe.

In sharp contrast with the way the girl belted out her tunes, Morissette had a quiet stage presence whispering, "Thank you very much" after each song and waiting often until the lights were off to do so. Unfailingly polite, she concentrated on the music and her harmonica solos, which kept the crowd standing and yelling themselves hoarse.

And there was no doubt in anyone's mind that the girl can play. From the well known bridge of "Hand In My Pocket" to a more improv solo during another new song, "Can't Not," her harmonica playing was as diverse and strong as her vocals.

Morissette returned to the stage for a two song encore after listening to five minutes of clapping and yelling waiting as if she were savoring every minute of the audiences response. But she didn't disappoint them and came back to belt out "Ironic" and "Wake Up" with renewed spirit.

The latter song was accompanied by a gleeful Morissette running and jumping around the stage like a kid on a sugar high — abandoning the dark, wary character and revealing that spontaneous energy that comes through so clearly in her songs.

DAYMION SMITH / COLLEGIAN
Alanis Morissette tears up the Mullins Center with sing-a- long hits and two new tunes.

Morissette opener talks about life on the road as a budding rock band

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

Sitting on the floor of a locker room and talking to Christian Lane, guitarist and vocalist for the band Loud Lucy, you wouldn't get the idea that this guy was in a band on a major label or touring with one of today's most popular artists. Loud Lucy is quiet, talkative (without being over- bearing) and they simply tell it like it is.

Having toured the United States on their own with British pop sensation Elastica and now with Alanis Morissette, Lane and Tommy Furar (bass) haven't let anything go to their heads.

"Today was kind of hard. We usually get here kind of early, usually around three or four and we end up having sound check probably around five and then we're just kind of stuck here," Lane said.

The trio, who toured with Morissette in August, chalked up their ace touring schedule to good luck and connections.

"It was basically the same booking agent, the same label and the same people who came to hear us and thought we were a cool band. It was just the right things...," Lane said.

The 23-year-old singer/songwriter is taking everything in stride. Signed to Geffen in 1994, Loud Lucy has been known as a band who plays no-holds-barred live shows. In February of last year they recorded their first full album entitled Breathe, which they are currently touring in support of.

"Personally I like doing larger arenas, but for our own shows, smaller is probably better. I just like playing in front of a lot of people who like having a good time.

"I just rather play an all ages show than have to go out and do bar shows where it's over 21 and people just aren't into it... It's just a drag when we can't do all ages shows," Lane said.

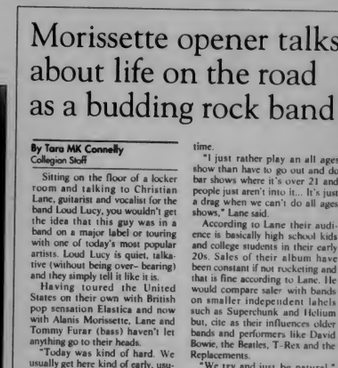
According to Lane their audience is basically high school kids and college students in their early 20s. Sales of their album have been constant if not rocketing and that is fine according to Lane. He would compare sales with bands on smaller independent labels such as Superchunk and Helium but, cite as their influences older bands and performers like David Bowie, the Beatles, T-Rex and the Replacements.

"We try and just be natural," said Lane. "I think that whatever we're into and whatever we're wearing — that's what we are. I think musically we're the same way. Any kind of sound goes, we're not restricted to what we want to be — natural is the key."

The group has a video for their track "Tickle" which has been played on "Alternative Nation" off and on. The band filmed the video during their tour with Elastica and said it was one of the most "grueling things they had ever done."

Lane and company may have their work cut out for them as far as getting recognized, but for now the one thing Lane is sure of is that he's going to keep on doing what he likes best.

"I'm sure that I'll keep writing songs and playing music in some form— not that I'll always make records or I'll always be touring, but that I'll always play music and learn something new. That's the one thing I'm sure of — that I'll always be learning something new."



COURTESY MICHAEL LAVINE
Loud Lucy opened up for Morissette with generic modern rock tunes.

50,000 eyes will look at your ad if placed in the COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS.
Now for your convenience at the Campus Center Concourse on Thursdays.
Ask for our specials.

HTC AMERICAN CAR CARE CENTERS
HADLEY • TIRE • CENTER
AT OUR NEW LOCATION! ROUTE 9 • AMHERST HADLEY LINE!
Expert Car Care Service with Nationwide Warranties!
NO HASSLE! LOWEST PRICE GUARANTEE!
Why American Car Care Centers?
America's largest independent dealer network!
HTC MID-WINTER SPECIAL LUBE, OIL & FILTER $14.95
HTC MID-WINTER SPECIAL Free front end inspection
HTC MID-WINTER SPECIAL ONLY $59.00 2-Wheel Front Disc Brakes or Rear Wheel Drum Brakes
HTC MID-WINTER SPECIAL ALIGNMENT $39.95
HTC MID-WINTER SPECIAL $29.95 RADIATOR FLUSH & FILL
THE PERFECT TIRES FOR PEOPLE WHO ALWAYS NEED TO BE IN CONTROL
MICHELIN PRICES XHR XGT4 XWX ZXZ MXV
AMERICAN RADIALS SILVER 5000 TOURING
AMERICAN RADIALS AMERICAN GT GRAND TURBO
AMERICAN RADIALS AMERICAN GOLD 6000
TOURING • ALL SEASON
PREMIUM • ALL SEASON
PERFORMANCE • SR
COME SEE US AT OUR NEW LOCATION!!
HTC HADLEY TIRE CENTER
ROUTE 9 • AMHERST HADLEY LINE
253-9911 or 253-9054
ALL MAJOR CREDIT CARDS ACCEPTED. *SEE AMERICAN CAR CARE CENTERS FOR DETAILS.

It's Hot! Hot! Hot!
It's a Mexican Fiesta!!!
Olé!
EVERY TUESDAY at THE PUB in AMHERST
We're taking 25% OFF All Mexican Dishes every Tuesday Night! It's gonna be Hot!
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET • DOWNTOWN AMHERST

Campus Interviews
February 27&28, 1996
OLDE, America's Full Service Discount Broker℠, is looking for highly motivated individuals to establish a career in the brokerage business.
Qualified college graduates who enter our 4-12 month Securities Training Program will prepare for Series 7 licensing and receive a wealth of experience working side-by-side with a successful stockbroker.
OLDE's Compensation Package Includes:
■ Attractive base salary & commission payouts
■ Comprehensive health plan & vacation time
■ 401(k) Retirement Plan
Campus interviews will be held on February 27& 28, 1996. If you would like to succeed in the dynamic brokerage industry, please see your Career Center for more information or contact:
OLDE Discount Stockbrokers
National Recruiting
751 Griswold Street
Detroit, MI 48226
1-800-937-0606
OLDE DISCOUNT STOCKBROKERS Member NYSE and SIPC
An Equal Opportunity Employer

FILM & ROCK POSTER SALE
12 MONKEYS
FEB 5-9
SU Ballroom
Weds: Cape Cod Lounge
AMERICAN & FOREIGN MOVIE POSTERS
ROCK POSTERS
PHOTOS & POSTCARDS
SCRIPTS
GOLDEN AGE
GRUMBLE USUAL SUSPECTS

Robbins' drama worthy of praise

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

DEAD MAN WALKING
Directed by Tim Robbins with Susan Sarandon, Sean Penn
Playing at Academy of Music

COURTESY MICHAEL WEINSTEIN

Tim Robbins shines as director and writer of Dead Man Walking.

Take away the glittering sheen that is usually shellacked onto Hollywood productions, add a few actors who know how to take risks and throw in a controversial subject without getting too political and you've got all the makings of an outstanding film.

If Dead Man Walking had been released in the summer, it would have been one of the year's best kept secrets. Since it was released in December, its potential as an Oscar contender has earned it more acclaim and media coverage than it would have garnered in other months.

Actor Tim Robbins broke onto the directing scene with 1992's political drama, Bob Roberts. In this, his second venture, Robbins clearly displays an acquired expertise for crafting a film — from screenplay to direction.

Based on the true-story novel, Dead Man Walking tackles the politically ultrasensitive topic of the death penalty. Sister Helen Prejean, played by Susan Sarandon, receives a pleading letter from death-row convict Matthew Poncelet, asking her to help save his life. Though unexperienced with counselling prisoners, Sister Helen feels driven to Poncelet and tries to rescue him.

Through iron bars, Sister Helen gets to know Poncelet, who is played by a gritty Sean Penn. Poncelet was sentenced to death by lethal injection for the brutal murder and rape of two teens parked at Lover's Lane.

Poncelet claims to be innocent of the charge, admitting he was there and that his friend, who was sentenced to life, performed the slaying. Unsure of his role in the crime, but ardently opposed to the death penalty as a means of punishment, Sister Helen finds a lawyer to represent Poncelet in front of the appeals board. Poncelet loses.

With six days left to live, Sister Helen becomes Poncelet's spiritual advisor — a position that is usually assumed by the prison's cold-hearted chaplain. Her mission is to steer Poncelet towards redemption and seek God's forgiveness.

The relationship that builds between the dainty woman with the crucifix around her neck and the tattooed prisoner with the handcuffs is close and personal, even through the plexiglass wall. Sarandon and Penn touch each other once in the entire film, yet their actions and lines create a deep intimacy with each other.

With such a weighty topic as impending death, one would never expect to laugh in Dead Man Walking. There are, however, several realistically funny lines. The dialogue is honest, and the emotions portrayed are bitterly authentic.

The most refreshing aspect of the film is that it does not force you to choose a side on the issue of the death penalty. While conservatives and liberals continue to debate it, Dead Man Walking raises the controversial issues. Robbins' direction achievet this feeling.

His juxtaposition of the step-by-step brutal murder of the teens with the seemingly "humane" lethal injection of Poncelet puts the audience in the deciding seat. Does death justify death? We have to figure that out for ourselves.

Sarandon is also key in the "debate" that the film prompts, for Sister Helen undergoes a lot of scrutiny for siding with a murderer and rapist. Her most difficult moments are the hardest to scenes to watch — when she confronts the parents of the victims.

Dead Man Walking is a wonderfully filmed drama with a powerful ending. It will cause more than controversy — it will provoke soul-searching. A

UMass still No. 1 despite close call

By Jim O'Connell
Associated Press

A close win didn't do much to Massachusetts' big lead at the top of the college basketball poll Monday.

The Minutemen (21-0), who needed overtime to beat Xavier of Ohio 78-74 Sunday, easily held the No. 1 spot in the rankings for the seventh straight week.

The only unbeaten Division I team, Massachusetts received 58 first-place votes and 1,641 points from the national media panel, well ahead of the seven first-place votes and 1,586 points garnered by Kentucky (18-1).

For the Wildcats, whose only loss was to Massachusetts, it was their seventh straight week as runner-up in the voting as the top seven teams in the poll held their spots from last week.

While the top of the rankings has remained steady all season, the changes continued at the bottom as three teams came in this week. Louisville, Iowa State and Stanford all entered the Top 25 - Iowa State for the first time this season - while Auburn, Clemson and Georgia Tech fell out.

Kansas was third followed by Connecticut, which got the only other first-place vote, Cincinnati, Villanova and Utah.

Georgetown moved up one spot to No. 8 and was followed in the Top Ten by Wake Forest, which jumped three places, and Penn State, which was 10th last week.

Virginia Tech jumped two spots to lead the Second Ten and was followed by North Carolina, Texas Tech, Purdue, Memphis, Arizona, UCLA, Syracuse, Iowa and Louisville.

The last five teams were Iowa State, Boston College, Michigan, Eastern Michigan and Stanford.

Louisville (16-6), which was 12th in the preseason poll and then fell out of the rankings five weeks into the season, return after a six-week absence. The Cardinals, who have lost their entire projected starting frontline for various reasons, came in on a six-game winning streak that included a win at UCLA and Saturday's 74-56 thrashing of Memphis.

"I hope they are right," Louisville coach Denny Crum said of the voters. "Our team has been through some tough times, but they are playing remarkably well. They're showing great effort. As long as they keep that up, I will be happy with them."

Iowa State (16-4) was ranked for most of last season, getting as high as 11th in the poll. The Cyclones entered the rankings on a five-game winning streak and their first game as a Top 25 team will be at Kansas on Wednesday night.

"We wouldn't have dreamed we'd be 16-4 right now," Cyclones coach Tim Floyd said of the team that was picked last in the preseason Big Eight poll. "We're very encouraged. We did have a huge turnover in personnel, but fortunately we got some decent players in here. They've grown together, they like each other and they're playing extremely hard right now."

Stanford (13-5) was 18th in the preseason voting but fell out four weeks later. The Cardinal made a one-week return over the next eight weeks and come in having won five of six, the last two impressive victories over California and Seton Hall.

The three teams that fell out of the poll lost a total of five games last week. Auburn (15-6) lost at Vanderbilt and at home to Mississippi State. Clemson (13-5) followed a home win over Georgia Tech with a 30-point loss at Duke. Georgia Tech (13-10) followed the loss at Clemson with another road loss to Maryland.

Roy rehabs in Ga; Sox sign Cordero

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

BOSTON — Travis Roy looked at the spinal cord image that showed why he's paralyzed from the neck down - that small white spot that would have been grey if he were healthy.

He had asked to see the MRI for the first time last Friday, 105 days after his injury in Boston University's season-opening hockey game. His father Lee held it up. His doctor, Susan Biener-Bergman, pointed to it.

"That tiny bit of area, that's all that's wrong with his body," Lee Roy said Monday. "It's the size of an eraser on a pencil and it's damaged so badly."

After the doctor left, father and son talked about what they'd seen.

"He looked at me and said, that's pretty depressing," Lee Roy said, "and I shook my head and said, 'yep.' But does that mean we give up hope? Absolutely not.

"I would say probably within five minutes we were laughing about something else. He won't allow himself to grieve very long. Life is too precious."

Travis left Boston University Medical Center on Monday for the next stop in his rehabilitation, Shepherd Center in Atlanta. His father planned to leave Tuesday for the two-day drive in a donated black van that was converted for wheelchair use. He expects to stay there for most of the time Travis is a patient.

Lee said his son probably will spend at least two months at Shepherd and might return for his sister Toby's wedding April 27 in Yarmouth, Maine.

"He wants to be there," Lee said. "He needs to be there." After being injured when his head hit the boards Oct. 20 when he tried to check a North Dakota player, Travis went to Boston City Hospital. He was transferred Oct. 22 to BU Medical Center, a general care hospital where Lee said he was pleased with the care. "Travis achieved significant milestones during his recovery here, including independence from the ventilator and removal of his tracheotomy tube," Biener-Bergman said. "He is medically stable and ready to begin the next phase of his rehabilitation." The Shepherd Center specializes in treating spinal cord injuries. It has more extensive recreational and therapy programs and facilities that interest Travis, such as a computer laboratory and a kiln for doing ceramics.

"If he can begin to somehow use his arm or hand, if he can work with clay, that would be a wonderful opportunity," Lee said. "Just that change in scenery, I think, is going to be significant."

But Lee is under no illusions. It would be "a miracle" if Travis were to walk again, he said, considering the damage to his spinal cord.

Travis has spent most of his time since the injury lying on his back. A bed sore that hindered his therapy is getting better, Lee said, and Travis has been able to raise his right arm and recently began feeling sensation in his lower arm and abdomen.

"For me to lift five pounds, I could probably sit here and do it all day," Lee said. "For Travis to lift his arm five times, it tires him out. ... so there's only so much (rehabilitation) in a day he can do."

It's been a long grind for the Yarmouth, Maine, family whose son's dreams ended in a single, tragic moment.

It's been made easier by the outpouring of financial and emotional support from around the world and the generosity of a Boston hotel that put the Roys up for free. Lee's bosses at North Yarmouth Academy, where he manages the ice rink, have continued to pay him even though he has spent a lot of time away from the job. But now he'll be separated periodically from his wife Brenda, an assistant high school principal in Portland, Maine, who flew to Atlanta with Travis but won't be there constantly.

"We have maintained the philosophy that today is all we have to deal with," Lee said. "If we can get through today, then we hope tomorrow will be better."

—

Those wishing to contact Travis Roy can write to: Travis Roy, c/o Shepherd Center, 2020 Peachtree Rd., N.W., Atlanta, GA 30309.

Sox sign Cordero

BOSTON (AP) — Boston infielder Wil Cordero, obtained last month from the Montreal Expos, avoided an arbitration hearing Monday by agreeing to a $1.85 million, one-year contract with the Red Sox. The deal, more than a fivefold increase over last year's $335,000 salary, also includes $300,000 in performance bonuses. For the arbitration hearing, Cordero had asked for $2.25 million and the team had offered $1.45 million.

Cordero, who could replace Luis Alicea as Boston's regular second baseman, was obtained in a trade for pitcher Rheal Cormier that involved three other players.

Cordero, 24, led the Expos with 147 hits last season when he batted .286 with 10 homers.

Boston still has arbitration hearings scheduled with six players: first baseman and AL Most Valuable Player Mo Vaughn, shortstop John Valentin, Alicea, and pitchers Stan Belinda, Mike Stanton and Heath Slocumb.

Thirty players remain in arbitration, with hearings now scheduled to start Wednesday.

Micropose makes Colonization thrilling

«Software Review

You hold the fate of an undiscovered land in your hand as an explorer and governor in Micropose's Colonization.

If you enjoy strategy games, you will love this game because Micropose has encompassed a little action into a classic strategy game.

Unlike most strategy games you do more then simply build a city or country or attack an opponent. You can build colonies, order your troops to pillage and burn Native villages or other colonies, or even raid ships on the high seas.

The game begins when you set sail from an European port with one ship — usually a caravel — and a soldier and colonist aboard. When you discover land, you can name it and land your forces on the coast to build your first colony. I recommend scouting the coast before building anything.

After building a colony, you will need colonists to populate it, and help build new structures. Recruiting colonists is easy because they are usually available back in Europe. If they are untrained in a specialty, you have a few options. Colonists and indentured servants can be trained by Natives, or educated in schools in the New World.

Once your colony is well established you can trade with Natives, convert them to Christianity, or even wage war against them — you lose points for killing Natives. Another important aspect of the game is exploring and waging war against other Europeans — killing Europeans gets you bonus points as well as more colonists.

Basically your ultimate goal is similar to those of the European explorers and colonists who founded our nation: make money. Cash crops are important in this game, so you will want master planters to grow tobacco, cotton and sugar.

Like the United States in 1776 you will want to declare independence after establishing colonies which utilize the land in the best manner. However, before you can declare independence you must convince your populous it is the best route for your fledgling nation. Master politicians will be detrimental in convincing the population. Once the population agrees, declare your freedom from the mother country, but be prepared for the hardest battle of the game.

Do not expect this game to push your monitor to the edge because the graphics are not very advanced. However, the game play is simple enough. Each unit is represented by an icon on the map. Units can be moved by simply dragging them to the new location. There are a few keyboard short cuts to speed the game up.

I enjoy this game because every time I play it, it's never the same. There is even a little artificial intelligence because the computer usually does not use the same strategy. After playing other games, I always find myself returning to this one.

Colonization requires a 486, four megabytes of memory, a VGA monitor and a mouse. The game is designed for DOS, but will run in Windows 3.1 with eight megabytes of memory and in a DOS Window in Windows 95. Grade: A–

Matthew Wurtzel is a Collegian columnist.

Ever Think of writing for Sports?
Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

MENTAL HEALTH GROUPS
SPRING '96
SELF EXPLORATION GROUP -- Short Term Process Therapy Groups
Group I – Thursday, 3:45 - 5 P.M. Begins in mid-February
Group II – Monday, 12:30 - 2 P.M. Begins in late March
WOMEN'S HEALTH GROUP -- Exploring the Mind-Body Connection
Monday, 3:30 - 5 P.M.
ADULT CHILDREN OF DYSFUNCTIONAL FAMILIES/NINOS ADULTOS DE FAMILIAS DISFUNCIONALES -- in Spanish -- Tuesday, 9 - 10:30 A.M.
INCREASING SELF-ESTEEM & BUILDING SELF CONFIDENCE
Tuesday, 3:45 - 5 P.M.
LETTING GO AND MOVING ON -- A Break-up Support Group
Tuesday, 6 - 7:30 P.M.
WOMEN'S GROUP FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN -- Tuesday, 12:45 - 2:15 P.M.
EXPLORING GAY AND LESBIAN RELATIONSHIPS
How To Get In, How To Stay In, How To Get Out -- Wednesday, 3:30 - 5 P.M.
LONG TERM THERAPY GROUP FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS, OLDER STUDENTS, AND UMASS STAFF -- Thursday, 3:30 - 5 P.M.
Groups begin in early to mid-February. All groups require a pre-group interview. Groups are open to students and to Kaiser members whose site is UMS. For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337 or drop by 127 Hills North, M-F, 8-5.

Arts & Living
So you wanna write for arts
But you don't know what it does.
So you come down to 113 Campus Center
And you talk to Tara, Mike, Seema or Laura.
They give you an assignment.
You take it and write.
You're happy
It's a lot like Nike - you just have to do it.

Take a Free Test Drive
LSAT • GMAT • GRE • MCAT
If you took the test today, how would you score?
Come find out.
Take a 3 ½ - or 5-hour test, performed like the real thing.
Receive computer analysis of your outstanding strengths and weaknesses.
Get strategies from Kaplan teachers that will help you ace the real exam.
Don't miss out on this cost-free, risk-free opportunity.
Call 1-800-KAP-TEST to reserve your seat today!
Amherst Kaplan Center, 150 Fearing Street
Weekend of the 10th and 11th
Call for test times
KAPLAN

AEROBICS
253-3539

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT...
SHAB
Gain Experience in Administrative Aspects of Health Care
Sponsor Health Promotion Events
Come join the Student Health Advisory Board
Informational meeting:
Wed. Feb. 7, 5:30 -6:30pm
University Health Services Rm. 304
For more info call Tamara at the Health Education Office 549-2671x181

Capriati to make debut at Paris Open

PARIS (AP) — Jennifer Capriati, hoping to put off-the-court problems behind her, will make her first tournament appearance since November 1994 at next week's Paris Open.

Organizers said Monday that Capriati was granted a wild card for the Feb. 13-18 event.

"Jennifer is very excited about playing in Paris," said Barbara Perry, Capriati's agent.

The 19-year-old player, who was not available for comment, approved release of a statement that said she has made no commitments to compete in other tour events.

Capriati left the tour after losing in the first round of the U.S. Open in 1993 and returned to school. She later dropped out, then was arrested in the spring of 1994 for marijuana possession. A teen-ager arrested with her claimed Capriati also had been using heroin. Capriati never denied the allegation.

Capriati went for treatment in two drug rehabilitation clinics, then attempted a comeback at a tournament in Philadelphia in November 1994. She lost in the first round to Anke Huber and has not played since.

"She feels ready physically and mentally after a long period of preparation in Florida," Paris Open organizers said in a statement.

Huber and former Australian Open champion Mary Pierce are the top entries in the Paris tournament. The 28-player field also includes Iva Majoli, Jana Novotna and Martina Hingis.

Steffi Graf was originally seeded No. 1, but withdraw last week because she is still recovering from foot surgery.

Capriati beat Graf to win the Olympic gold medal at the 1992 Barcelona Games. She was ranked No. 6 in the world in 1993, and reached the semifinals at the French Open in 1990, and Wimbledon and the U.S. Open in 1991.

■ men's swim

continued from page 10

a scare. Failing to get a win in the past three events, Yarworth and his team knew what they had to do.

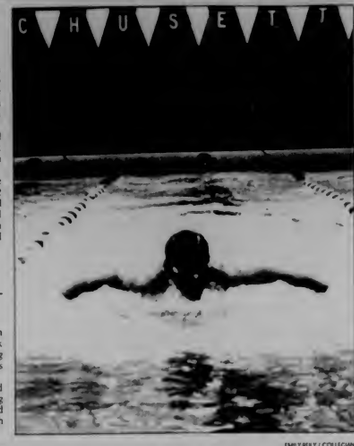
In the final event, the 400-yard freestyle relay, the Minutemen took first and third with relative ease to capture the win.

"We had a nice lead with four events to go and they won the next three events and all of a sudden we were behind," Yarworth said. "We had to win the last relay to win it and we did.

"I thought it would be a real close match, but I had a pretty good idea that we had enough depth to win it. We had some really nice swims and the kids were tough. Rutgers had four or five real stars and in the meet they had to hold it together because there's not a lot of depth. If you look through the results, you can see they got some kids that really stand out."

With the win, Massachusetts ran its record to a perfect 7-0 and look to close out the regular season strong when it plays Fordham at home this weekend.

"We've (coaching staff) worked hard on recruiting them and getting them here and the kids have worked hard during the season," Yarworth said.



EMILY BEET / COLLEGIAN

The men's swim team edged out Rutgers in a meet that saw George Washington snowed in Washington, D.C.

ARTS & LIVING
It's a cool section with cool topics and cool people, so get off your cool can and come write for us.

■ basketball

continued from page 10

Travieso struggled against the Musketeers as well, finishing with just five points before fouling out.

Macarchuk was impressed with Padilla and Travieso after last week's contest.

"Their back court is just so sound," he said. "They are an extension of John Calipari."

On the Rams' roster, there are no players averaging in double figures, while all five of the Minutemen starters do. Henry leads the Rams with 9.6 points per game while Camby leads UMass with 20.9 points per game.

"If someone plays a perfect game (against us], then we go home with a loss — who cares? This is all about preparing for the tournament," Calipari said. "We've been through everything this year. It's been a good season for us to learn about our team, we've seen just about all of it.

"I'm not sure how much you learn from a loss. We've won 21 games and those were all hard-fought games, so we've learned."

Minuteman notes: In the latest Naismith Player of the Year poll, Camby remains the front-runner with 35 percent of the votes. Wake Forest's Tim Duncan (23 percent), UConn's Ray Allen (16 percent), Georgetown's Allen Iverson (eight percent) and Villanova's Kerry Kittles (six percent), round out the top five vote-getters.

■ men's track

continued from page 10

scored for UMass as the Minutemen currently sport a 13–7 record with just the St. Valentine's Day Classic at Boston University remaining on their schedule before they head back to Rhode Island's to compete in the A–10 meet.

Junior Mike Maceiko finished second to fellow Minuteman Blodurn in the mile this weekend, but was able to qualify for the New England Championship becoming O'Brien's 13th entry in the first post season meet.

New Hampshire was competitive, but became a non-entity as things wound down in Kingston, RI scoring just 48 points. UMass tallied 67 points to the Rams' 65 while Hartford, replacing Central Connecticut, mustered just five.

■ men's gym

continued from page 10

dous for us," junior Ruslan Shupak boasts. In particular, Steve Pryor has had the biggest impact of all the first year gymnasts.

As the midpoint of the season nears, the team is looking to capitalize on some impressive momentum. The one weakness of this team is with the vault. The return of a healthy Shupak, should solve this problem. His score of 9.45 at last week's meet, could be a sign of what is to come. There is no doubt that he has the talent to be a force in this event.

The UMass gymnastics team has achieved goals that have not been in reach for years. First came an outstanding recruiting class, then came a top 10 national ranking. With a little luck, this trend could continue with a victory over the rival Temple Owls.

GET YOUR FIRST ORDER OF CHECKS FREE!

It's simple. BayBank gives you the best value for your banking buck.

And no matter which account you choose, you get the BayBank Card with access to over 1000 BayBank X-Press 24® locations.

Check out your options - starting with two of our most popular student accounts.

BASIC ECONOMICS
For $2.50 per month[1] or $1.50 with direct deposit - not a lot of cash either way - our Basic Checking includes:
- Four BayBank X-Press 24 withdrawals a month
- Up to eight checks a month
- Reserve Credit overdraft protection
- X-Press Check,® to pay for purchases anywhere MasterCard® is accepted

ECONOMIES OF SCALE
Just $6.00 a month[1] gets you our Student Value Package; designed just for students, it includes:
- Unlimited BayBank X-Press 24 transactions
- Up to eight checks a month
- Reserve Credit overdraft protection
- X-Press Check, to pay for purchases anywhere MasterCard is accepted
- The option[2] for a BayBank Visa® or MasterCard

It's economics made easy. So if you want to open a new account or just find out more about BayBank - come see us, or call 1-800-BAY-FAST anytime - and mention this ad.

Check out our Web site at http://www.BayBank.com

BayBank®
WHERE DO YOU WANT TO DO YOUR BANKING?

1 Other fees, such as charges for transactions at X-Press 24 CASH*, non-BayBank ATMs, and designated point-of-sale terminals, are additional.
2 Credit products are for qualified applicants who are 18 years of age or older. Annual fee for credit card is extra.
Member FDIC Equal Opportunity Lender

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way / Roundtrip
LONDON $134 $268
PARIS $171 $341
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $240 $480
TOKYO $752
Scheduled flights
Fares to worldwide destinations
Extra/passes Available
Weekend surcharges may apply
Customs-Immigration taxes apply
Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required
PRISM TRAVEL
347 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

Auto Glass Center
• Same Day Service
• Billed Directly To Insurance Company
• Windshields Replaced
North Amherst Motors CARSTAR
A CARSTAR Collision Repair Center
75 Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA
549-2880
(One Mile from UMass)

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Skiers and Snowboarders Join UMass #1 club The (UMass) Ski Club 430 Student Union 545-3437

ANNOUNCEMENTS

University Productions & Concerts UPC Come see what concert productions is all about at our General Committee meeting tonight at 6:00 in room cc 804-08 Everyone is welcome Come get involved.

AUTO FOR SALE

1968 VW/BUS well maintained and from "X $2,300 Call Ben 256-1935.

EMPLOYMENT

WMUA News needs you! We are looking for anchors, field reporters, and newscasters for daily newscasts. Many more positions are also available. For more information come down to our offices in 105 Campus Center or call 545-2876 and ask for Alexandra.

Ski + Snowboard - Campus reps needed. Springbreak '96 intercollegiate sk weeks. 5 day lift ticket, condo lodging 5 nights parties + activities. Mt. Orford (Canada, new Vermont) (Drinking age 18) Trip only $219. Reps earn free trips, cash, new equipment. Call ski travel unlimited 1 800 999-7519

National Parks hiring – Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests and Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses. Call 1-206-971-3620 Ext V5501.

Undergrad Network Manager Manage the 1Gb Peer to Peer Network help the student businesses maximize system productivity. Computer Science background or experience a plus Applications accepted through February 14. 409 Student Union 545-2767

Undergraduate Business Consultant work with Earthfoods, Peoples Market, and many others. Great business computer and group experience. Applications accepted until February 14. Business/ MIS background a plus. 409 Student Union above the Mini Stores) 545-2767

Copy Shop Staff - Campus Design and Copy needs committed designers and staff for their student run businesses Great Business and group experience Applications accepted until February 16 409 Student Union 545-2771

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month world travel seasonal & full time positions No exp necessary for info (Jax) 206-971-3550 Ext. C50172

Teach English in Asia Make up to $25-$45/hr teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan, China, Thailand, Indonesia & S. Korea. Many employers provide room & board & other benefits. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For more information call (206) 971-3570 Ext. J50013

EMPLOYMENT

Alaska student jobs: Great $$$! Thousands of jobs available Male/Female Room/board/transport often provided No exper nec (206) 971-3510 Ext A1040

$ Cruise ships hiring! Students needed! $$$ • Free travel (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii) Seasonal/permanent, no exper necessary. (206) 971-3570 ext. C1040

Alaska employment - Fishing industry earn up to $3000 - $6000+ per month Room and board! Transportation! Male/Female No experience necessary! (206)971-3510 ext A0560I2

$40,000/yr income potential. Home typists/ PC users. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 ext. T-1732 listings.

LOBBYING

Help UMASS learn to lobby, and earn credit too! SCERA is hiring one credit lobbyists for Spring state budget campaign. Four trips to statehouse. Training provided. Apply with letter of intent to Dr. Marc Kenen, SCERA Director, 424 Student Union by Thursday February 8th at 5:00 p.m. Successful candidates will be notified on February 9th.

Wanted Tour Guides New Students Program summer counselors and admissions reps. Pick up applications in Campus Center concourse or at the Admissions Center. Until Feb 9.

Jobs at GEO 3 interim positions available (20 hrs) office coord. grievance coord. contract campaign coord. pay $12.30/hr Stop by GEO SU 201 for more info Deadline Fri Feb 9 pending approval

Fight tuition and fees and earn credit too! SCERA is hiring campus organizers for Spring campaign! Three credits for ten hours per week. Includes two nights per week. Work primarily in dorms and classrooms. Apply with letter of interest to Dr. Marc Kenen, 424 Student Union 545-0709 by Thursday, February 8th @ 5:00pm Successful candidates will be notified on Feb 9

$35,000/yr income potential Reading books Toll 1-800-898-9778 ext R-1732 for details

Summer Positions Mgmt. positions in Boston and Hartford. Great resume builder. Possible internship. Summer earnings $8000+ (realistic) Strong work ethic and great attitude a must. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 1-800-569-9939.

Counselors Camp Wayne Sister/Brother Camp Pennsylvania 6/20-8/18/96 Have the most memorable summer of your life! Coaches, teachers and college students needed to teach all specialty areas. Many other jobs available on campus interviews February 20th interviews held in Student Union Ballroom 10 4pm For appt and more information call 1-800-279-3018

I FOUND IT IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253-9742

FOR SALE

Bed for Sale Twin mattress box spring & frame $70 OBO 5-Disk CD Changer $70 also, Call Craig 253-2777

486/100MHZ 8mb RAM 850HD needs IDE controller Printer monitor mouse keyboard, $900 Call Annette 549-3864.

Furniture - Desk, bookshelves, large dorm size fridge, two antique bar stools All prices negotiable Call 2568862 for more information

I have used books for sale Physics 151, 152, Math 131-132, Econ 150 autocad release 12 Jewish People II 102 I also have a head tennis racket pd 250 will sell for $100. Call Jeff for prices 6-2233.

19 inch color TV bought last year need cash $150 or BO 253-2156 George

19 inch color TV bought last year need cash $150 or BO 253-2156 George

1/3 CT White Diamond Sold For $1800 need $400 ASAP Steve 665-2738

Macintosh Color Classic 8/80 Mouse Keyboard, Software $675 call 256-0080.

Space Quest 8 CD-ROM $30 call Brian 6-1243

FOUND

Swiss Army Knife on Campus Center on 2/1/96 Call 549-6216

HOUSE FOR RENT

Cape Cod Group Summer Rentals Waterfront Houses Falmouth Area 508-477-8000

INSTRUCTION

Free Week February 4-11 Music Acting, Dance lessons Performing arts division 73 Bartlett Hall 545-0519

Learn to Scuba Dive 2 credits (PE G-09 800-282-0977 / 545-2338

LOST

Lost from DU Drive 126 black check organizer bag + brown leather tool bad contains important electronic equipment Fluke 96 Oscilloscope + various tools reward offered Please call 413-253-1914

MISCELLANEOUS

Beautiful, friendly, 7 month cat needs loving home Please call ASAP 253 4627

PERSONALS

Rachel, I'm sorry for everything I did I want us to be back together If you can forgive me, please meet me at the Blue Wall on Tuesday at noon. Ross.

THEY WORK FOR YOU

PERSONALS

To the hot guy in my Psych 101 class I'd really like to get to know you better I'm the brunette in the third row If you're interested, I have lunch in the Coffe Shop every day, and would love some company The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega welcome everyone back for Spring. Lots of luck!

ROOM FOR RENT

One Room on bus route for $200 plus 1/3 utilities Call us at 665-4758

Room Downtown. Quiet, private Lease $300/mo inclusive 253-4236, 9 am-9pm

ROOM FOR RENT

Female Housemate Wanted share a room $170/mth incl. heat call Candi 549-8894

Vegetarian, non-smoking, sane cooperative household seeks 25+ Car needed $250- 584-6441

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Need Help writing a resume. Let a professional do it for you. Special student rate! Call Lori 253-1882

TRAVEL

Cancun Spring Break Best party prices from $249! Americas premier travel company earn free trips and highest commissions! Call! 800-798-1509 for info

Spring Break! Book Now! Spring Break '96. With only 1 week to live - don't blow it!! Book Now! Florida & Panama City $119 Bahamas $359 Jamaica/Cancun $399 Organize a group. Travel free! Sunsplash Tours 1-800-426-7710

Hot! Hot! Hot! New metabolism break through Lipotrex 8-10lbs Guaranteed results 1-800-600-7388

Scuba Dive Key Largo, FL during Spring Break 2 credits (PE G-10 1-800-282-0977 / 545-2338

Spring Break! Cancun $499 Daytona, FL $119 Panama City, FL $159 Best prices and hotels! Call Heidi 256-6110

Spend Spring Break with whom you know! Jamaica $549 steamboat $815, Killington #2091 UMass ski club 545-3437

Quebec Weekend!! Feb. 16-19 Board, ski, and party with the UMass Ski Club 545-3437

Australia - 4 credit course Contemporary Society Down Under. For brochure call (413) 549-6741

TRAVEL

Looking for some quick, extra pocket money Collegian needs some people to be ballot referees for a Collegian Poll. Call 545-3500 for more information

Australia 4 credit course Contemporary Society Down Under. For brochure call (413) 549-6741

Hitch the Skies Cards/Mex only $189 R/T Europe $169/low domestic rates Avitech 1-800-326-2009

Organize a full busload Earn five free roundtrip tickets to your spring break destination. We'll pick you up on campus, send you straight to spring break. At the end of the week we pick you up and send you back to school 1-800-600-1057. Ask for Liz

WANTED

Student basketball ticket wanted vs Temple Paying $25- 538-3106

Student/Reg Temple ticket needed $30 Leave name/No 1-800-395-5612 x7103

Student/Reg Temple ticket needed $30 Leave name/No 1-800-395-5612 x7103

Are you sick of watching Congress wreck our environmental laws? Become a CLEAN WATER ACTION organizer & start working now to elect pro-environment candidates in November. Have fun, work w/great people & get paid to save the planet! $6-$8/hr, flexible schedule 584-9830

Spring Break Daytona Beach

March 15-24
7 Nights at a Beachfront Hotel $89.00
$219.00 Bus and Hotel
To book call
Breakaway Tours
1-800-465-4257
SPACE IS LIMITED

There are times when you wish you could do more than watch the world pass by in a haze of wonder and a cloud of what if's

COLLEGIAN NEWS

"Make it happen"

The Daily Collegian

Every day a healthy dose of news, arts, sports and more from UMass and the Five Colleges. If it isn't in the collegian it didn't really matter anyway.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

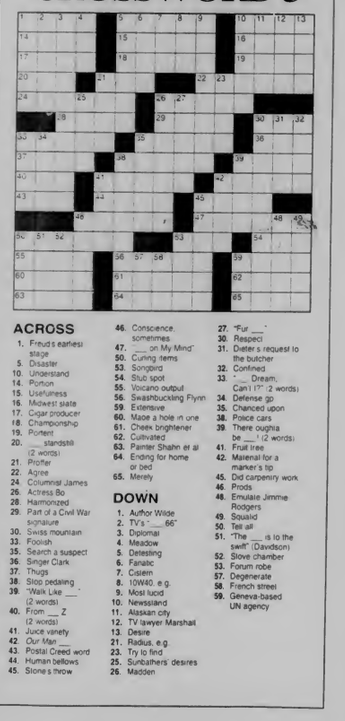
ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

CROSSWORD 3



ACROSS

1. Freud's earliest stage
5. Disaster
10. Understand
14. Portion
15. Usefulness
16. Midwest state
17. Cigar producer
18. Championship
19. Portent
20. ___ standstill (2 words)
21. Proffer
22. Agree
24. Columnist James
26. Actress Bo
28. Harmonized
29. Part of a Civil War signature
30. Swiss mountain
33. Foolish
35. Search a suspect
36. Singer Clark
37. Thugs
38. Stop pedaling
39. "Walk Like ___" (2 words)
40. From ___ Z (2 words)
41. Juice variety
42. Our Man ___
43. Postal Creed word
44. Human bellows
45. Stone's throw
46. Conscience, sometimes
47. ___ on My Mind"
50. Curling items
53. Songbird
54. Stub spot
55. Volcano output
56. Swashbuckling Flynn
59. Extensive
60. Made a hole in one
61. Cheek brightener
62. Cultivated
63. Painter Shahn et al
64. Ending for home or bed
65. Merely

DOWN

1. Author Wilde
2. TV's "___ 66"
3. Diplomat
4. Meadow
5. Detesting
6. Fanatic
7. Cistern
8. 10WD, e.g.
9. Most lucid
10. Newsstand
11. Alaskan city
12. TV lawyer Marshall
13. Desire
21. Radius, e.g.
23. Try to find
25. Sunbathers' desires
26. Madden
27. "For ___"
30. Respect
31. Dieter's request to the butcher
32. Confined
33. "___ Dream, Can't I?" (2 words)
34. Defense gp.
35. Chanced upon
38. Police cars
39. There oughtta be ___! (2 words)
41. Fruit tree
42. Material for a marker's tip
45. Did carpentry work
46. Prods
48. Emulate Jimmie Rodgers
49. Squalid
50. Tell all
51. "The ___ is to the swift" (Davidson)
52. Slove chamber
53. Forum robe
57. Degenerate
58. French street
59. Geneva-based UN agency

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

by Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — The emphasis now is on meeting your financial obligations promptly. Invest in real estate. By adopting a more creative approach to your work, you can lay the foundation for future gains.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — Claim the spotlight – and your fair share of recognition! Being completely open and aboveboard in your business dealings will protect your good name. Travel is best postponed.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — Well-thought-out changes will prove beneficial. Do not take too much for granted or lean too heavily on others. You need to take your time dealing with financial figures or complex arrangements.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Business plans could suddenly change. Look ahead. Others admire your flexibility and visionary outlook. Devote some thought to providing for your family's financial future.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — A great day for submitting manuscripts. Give free rein to your imagination and creativity. Someone may need a favor. Devote more of your attention to budgets and accounts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Unusual ideas receive new support at work. Concentrate on business during the day, then devote the evening to fun. A task you undertake now could include a special challenge. You rise to the occasion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Be on the lookout for an opportunity to advance your career goals. Small mistakes could prove costly later on. Check financial calculations carefully before approving expenditures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Decisiveness is the key to success. Others will admire your ability to perform well when under pressure. Busy maneuvering behind the scenes can boost you up the career ladder.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Control your impatience. Trying to force your opinions on others will backfire. Teamwork boosts profits and spreads good will. Bring correspondence up to date. The road to romance is free of obstacles. Forge ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — A positive approach will help solve a business problem. Limit your personal spending. Decline an invitation to go out tonight if it will cost you money. A dormant romance could spring back to life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Seek the support of influential people who can provide financial backing. Loved ones are warm and affectionate. You realize how deeply someone cares for you. Postpone asking for special favors. Fulfill your family obligations.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Refuse to let co-workers take advantage of your good nature. Good timing is the key to greater career success. Domestic matters require immediate attention. Be discreet. Keep your personal and professional lives completely separate.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

WHY DO YOU HATE DR. TURNER SO MUCH?
BECAUSE THE UNIVERSITY GAVE HIM THE GRANT THAT SHOULD HAVE BEEN MINE!
BUT I'LL HAVE MY REVENGE!
WHAT DO YOU MEAN?
"I WILL TELL THE WORLD THAT TURNER IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE MAN-MONSTER!"

All People By Ali

Why are all the good, Yummy foods so fattening?
(me)
(my brother)
ice cream
My brother eats pies, chocolate cake, ice cream, donuts... you name it... want a bite?
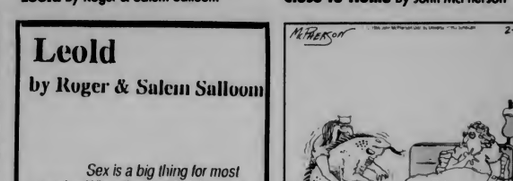
...And his body is so beautiful... Ughh!
I eat apples...
Snap a piece of cake...
at '96
yuck...

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

SO MUCH FINALLY LEFT... OH WELL. IT WAS EMBARRASSING, HAVING MY MOM AROUND ...EVEN SO, I SHOULDN'T COMPLAIN.
I'LL BET THAT SOMEWHERE ON THIS CANVAS, SOME STUDENT IS EVEN MORE EMBARRASSED BY A PARENT.
(WATCH THIS, SON) — NOU FULL MY BITHER FINGER, MAN! UH...
SOMEONE TELL ME I'LL BE NOU.

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



Close to Home By John McPherson

Milkweed By Neil Golden

SO, DID YOU GET WHAT YOU WANTED FOR CHRISTMAS?
NO
MY MOM SAID THAT GETTING ME A NINTENDO WOULD CORRUPT MY "VALUE SYSTEM", SO SHE GOT ME THIS VIDEO GAME INSTEAD
AH I SEE
NOW, WHICH CHARACTER ARE YOU?
I'M THE CHEESE DISHWASHING HIM.

Jim's Journal By Jim

Ruth and I talked today.
I told her Steve and I were going to work on my resume.
I told her I didn't know how to write one to get a good job.
She said, "for hobbies, put stamp collecting."

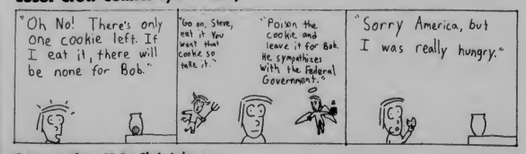
Nuckle Buster By Dug

Molson Spice By Derek Olson

Dilbert By Scott Adams

ALICE, YOU'VE GOT TO LOCK UP THESE PROPRIETARY DOCUMENTS YOU HAVE IN YOUR CUBICLE.
IF OUR COMPETITORS SEE OUR PLANS, IT COULD BE VERY DANGEROUS.
FOR US OR FOR THEM?
THE COMPETITORS
OOH! LOOK! THEY'RE PLANNING TO "UTILIZE SYNERGY." WE'RE IN TROUBLE NOW!
STOP! YOU'RE KILLING ME!!

Loser Crew Comics By Mike Krozy



"Oh No! There's only one cookie left. If I eat it, there will be none for Bob."
"Poison the cookie and leave it for Bob. He sympathizes with the Federal Government."
"Sorry America, but I was really hungry."

Generation X By Chris Lehman

OUR PSYCHIC OPERATORS ARE STANDING BY.
REMEMBER: ALL IT TAKES IS A TELEPHONE...
.. AND AN OPEN MIND ($3.99 PER MINUTE)
AND AN OPEN WALLET

Leold
by Roger & Salem Salloom

Sex is a big thing for most people. When they get it right... for most people it's a blast.

What about creatures who don't really have it...? Like bees.

But they can fly. All summer they cruise in and out of the gardens at 100 miles an hour.

Imagine yourself standing at the top of the roof to your house. You look at the building next to you, simply raise your arms and fly over to the trees nearby. When was the last time you looked down at the top of a tree? Absolutely lovely!

Wouldn't it be great to fly all over whenever you wanted... up into trees, over homes... just jump up into the air and soar through the blue skies... free from the shackles of an earth bound, plodding, foot existence.

Gee, what would be better than flying...?

SEX.

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Vautour
Copy Editor ..... Mike Maclean
Photo Technician ..... Ryan S. Tiezzi
Production Supervisor ..... Jeff Hodge
Production ..... Candice Flemming
Rob Snow
Dave Voldan

Today's D.C. Menu

Sorry No Menu today, Call 545-2626

Company Choose By Kevin Tracy

The Daily Collegian
We fill the void in your existence.

Quote of the Day

"Flush twice, it's a long way to the D.C.

–Inscribed in the 4th floor Cance bathroom"

Associated Press Top 20 – Men's Basketball

1 Massachusetts	6 Villanova	11 Virginia Tech	16 Arizona
2 Kentucky	7 Utah	12 North Carolina	17 UCLA
3 Kansas	8 Georgetown	13 Texas Tech	18 Syracuse
4 Connecticut	9 Wake Forest	14 Purdue	19 Iowa
5 Cincinnati	10 Penn St	15 Memphis	20 Louisville

Sports

Minutemen attend Garden party with Rams

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

When the No. 1 Massachusetts men's basketball team faced Fordham a week ago, the result was a much-expected blowout — an 80-50 Minuteman victory.

When the Minutemen match up against the Rams again tonight at the Madison Square Garden, the same result is expected.

But coming off their 78-74 overtime victory over Xavier on Sunday, in which the Minutemen were lucky to escape with the win, UMass must be careful.

Sure the Rams are coming into the game with just two wins (2-16 overall, 0-9 in the A-10) and UMass is the heavy favorite, but the Minutemen were heavy favorites against Xavier as well.

While UMass headed into yesterday's contest thinking it was going to come away with the easy victory, the Musketeers came in believing they could win, and almost came away with the biggest upset in college basketball this season.

"I don't think the kids gave enough respect to Xavier," Massachusetts coach John Calipari said. "Skip [Prosser] had them ready. They were fearless. They expected to win. That's a tribute to Skip and the job he's done."

Now Fordham will try to come away with the biggest upset of the year.

"I would hope that what Xavier did helped us," Fordham coach Nick Macarchuk said. "We were in awe the last time we played [UMass]."

The Rams must play a lot better than they did against the Minutemen on Jan. 30, when they shot just 32 percent and turned the ball over 17 times. Billy Lovett and John Henry (seven boards) led Fordham against UMass as they scored 12 points a piece.

Marcus Camby led UMass in his third game back after his fainting spell, scoring 24 points and blocking five shots while Edgar Padilla scored nine points and also dished out 10 assists. It was Padilla who rescued the Minutemen against Xavier as his trey with 15 seconds left sent the game into overtime, and then it was his steal in the extra period that sealed the win for UMass.

Padilla hadn't played particularly well against Xavier until his late heroics, while his backcourt mate, Carmelo

Turn to BASKETBALL, page 7

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

Marcus Camby and the Minutemen travel to Madison Square Garden to face the 2-16 Fordham Rams

Men's track captures 1st win at URI in 8 years

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

Half a second.

On the last leg of the last event of Massachusetts' most competitive meet of the season, Paul Blodorn kicked it into high gear and pulled ahead of Rhode Island's anchor to win the 4x800m relay by half a second, securing the Minutemen's two point victory over the Rams, UMass's first triumph in Kingston, RI in eight years.

Blodorn, captain Mark LeFebvre and freshman Tom Toye all qualified for the IC4A Championships with season best performances as the Minutemen took 25 places in the 17 events.

Junior Ron Tauro paced UMass, notching seven points in two events and taking the team lead scoring 47 points on the season, with one meet left before the Atlantic 10 Championship.

"[Ron Tauro] is unique in several ways," UMass coach Ken O'Brien said. "He happens to be an athlete who is good in three events. He makes us deep.

"We basically keep coming at you with three or four kids in every event. And, if you have any weaknesses, we'll expose them."

Tauro's time of 7.6 seconds in the hurdles qualified him for his second event in the New England Championships. He earned a berth in the high jump competition with a leap of 6-foot-7 inches.

"He's going from event to event and he barely has time to change his shoes, never mind collect his thoughts. But he doesn't complain. I think he relishes the challenge, and I think the younger kids respond to that," O'Brien said.

Kids like Toye, Neil Concepcion and Andre Roach, all three are freshmen, and have all scored more than 20 points in the winter season.

Toye has had the most profound impact on the squad, picking up the slack left by injured veterans Scott Price and Mike Tessicini. He has already established himself as one of the better young runners in New England.

The youngster from Scarborough, Maine has placed himself fourth on the school's all-time list in the 400m with a time of 49.3 seconds. That time was good enough for second in the meet as he fell a 10th of a second behind URI's Dave Federico, but he managed to qualify for the IC4A meet along with Blodorn in the mile and LeFebvre in the shot put.

Another freshman making his mark is pole-vaulter Alberto Vasquez.

The only pole-vaulter on O'Brien's club, Vasquez has already tallied the third-best vault in UMass history. The same jump, at the Rhode Island meet, gave him a spot in the New England Championships.

Jan Stevens, a native of Gardner, continues to pick up second and third place points in the shot put, while fellow frosh Carlos Peralta has been consistently good in the long jump. He scored a season-best leap earning him first place at this weekend's meet.

In total, 39 different athletes have

Turn to MEN'S TRACK, page 7

Game Preview

Carmelo Travieso

UMass

Tonight 8:30 pm Madison Square Garden, NY

21-0

2-16

David Mascia

UMass Probable Starters

F	Dana Dingle
F	Danta Bright
C	Marcus Camby
G	Carmelo Travieso
G	Edgar Padilla

On the Air

Radio: WHMP 99.3 FM
Mark Vandameer, Tony Barbee, Jack Leaman
WMUA 99.1 FM
Greg Corey
Dan Welch

Fordham Probable Starters

F	John Henry
F	Dustin Berrien
C	Darren Deschryver
G	Billy Lovett
G	David Mascia

Women's track tunes up in Syracuse

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's indoor track and field team traveled to New York on Sunday to compete in the Syracuse Invitational. The day was highlighted by several ECAC qualifying performances, as the UMass squad faced tough competition from top teams across New York and Canada.

The meet was used as a gauge for upcoming competitions, allowing the Minutewomen to focus on the quality of their runs. No team scores were tabulated, and no standings were kept. No meet champion was declared.

Anya Forrest made her mark on UMass track, breaking the her own UMass record with a time of 8.15 seconds in the 55m hurdles. She originally broke the record at the ECAC Championships last year.

Rosey Bryan followed Forrest in the hurdles, clocking a 8.31. She also took fifth in the long jump, with a mark of 17-feet-9 3/4-inches. Bryan finished off her day by posting a 37-feet-11 1/4-inch leap to take fourth in the triple jump.

The 55m dash saw a pair of Minutewomen sprinters make their way in to the top six. Forrest took fourth with a time of 7.48. Emma Gardiner clocked a 7.59 to finish sixth.

Yves Amazan and Shelanda Irish turned in times of 7.44 and 7.56, respectively, to take first and second in the 55m dash consolation finals.

Cheryl Lyons and Melissa Langevin were the UMass competitors in the 1000m. Lyons finished with a time of 3:08.88, and Langevin posted a 3:17.36.

Rebecca Donaghue placed fourth on the all-time school record list for the 3000m, running it for the first time in 9:54.47. The time qualified her for the ECACs.

Kristin Donaldson, Christy Martin and Jen Waeger turned in supporting performances in the 3000m. Donaldson posted a 10:20.4, Martin had a time of 10:32.7 and Waeger finished in 10:36.7.

Jen DelColle had a time of 5:42 in the mile.

In the 5000m, Michelle Cooper turned in a 1:20.98 and Angela Osei-Mensah had a time of 1:24.55 for the Minutewomen.

Nicole Roberts was the top UMass sprinter across the line in the 200m dash. Roberts crossed with a time of 25.83 seconds. Amazan's 26.47 and Melanie Bell's 27.43 closed out the Minutewomen's top three performances in that event. Gardiner closed the gap on the lead UMass runners, finishing with a time of 27.57.

In the long jump, Bell took sixth, behind Bryan, with a mark of 17-feet-3 1/4-inches.

Christy Martin and Shannon Mitchell took fourth and fifth places with their respective throws of 49-feet-11 1/4-inches and 48-feet-3 1/2-inches.

The Minutewomen continue to prepare for the championship stretch of their schedule, as they are scheduled to compete in the St. Valentine's Day Classic, hosted by Boston University.

UMass edges Rutgers, men's swimming perfect

By Jay Warner
Collegian Staff

With Mother Nature producing frigid temperatures and unpredictable snow storms throughout the nation, it was only a matter of time before coach Russ Yarworth and his Massachusetts swim and dive team would be affected.

Due to an unfortunately timed snow storm in the Washington D.C. area, the tri-meet between UMass, Rutgers and George Washington was reduced to UMass-Rutgers matchup. Despite a reduction in the number of teams, there certainly was not a reduction in excitement as Massachusetts pulled out a thrilling victory, 123-120.

"We were really disappointed because we wanted to swim against GW, but we made the best of it," Yarworth said. "Unfortunately they got snowed in pretty bad."

The meet started well for the Minutemen as they came out winning three of the first four events, and placed second and third in the events they failed to win. Freshman B.J. Brannan was the sparkplug early on as he came out and won the 1000-yard freestyle with an excellent time of 9:40.57. Although he completed the event in extraordinary time, it came down to the end before clinching the win as Rutgers' Matt Tevald wasn't far behind.

"That kid (Tevald) was coming on real strong and B.J. held him off the last 300 yards." Yarworth said. "Tevald made ground on him along the length and a turn would come and BJ would take the turn so well. Don't let anyone tell you that it is just swimming. You need the technique and really concentrate on the little things.

"B.J. is the kind of kid that is a very talented swimmer but he works so hard in the weight room that he doesn't swim that fast in the heavy training part of the season. Now that we're resting more, he's starting to feel better in the water and is really coming along."

Fellow freshman Geoff Gear also helped provide UMass with an early cushion by placing second in the 200-yard freestyle and winning the 200-yard fly with times of 1:45.06 and 1:55.71 respectively. Brannan later placed third in the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 4:45.94.

"I knew we had a talented freshman class and they are now doing what I initially knew they could do," Yarworth said.

Alongside his freshman teammates, sophomore Sean Anderson proved to be a large part of the Minuteman victory by capturing first place in the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard freestyle with times of 20.80 and 47.05 respectively.

Despite all of the success the Minutemen had early, Rutgers battled back late in the meet to provide Massachusetts with quite

Turn to MEN'S SWIM, page 7

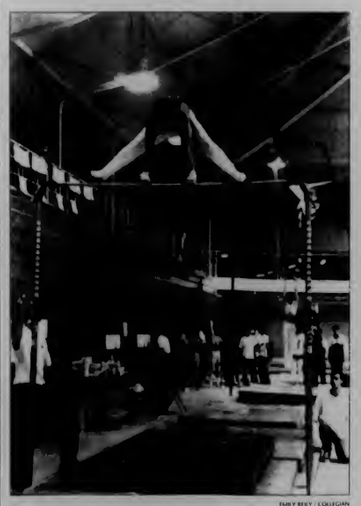
Men's gym hopes to stay No. 9 versus Owls



EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

The No. 9 men's gymnastics squad are in the midst of a banner year. The Minutemen next meet the Owls of Temple Feb. 10.

By Jason Rubin
Collegian Staff

When looking at the schedule for the Massachusetts men's gymnastics team, one match-up immediately catches your attention. On Feb. 10th UMass travels to Philadelphia to face the Temple Owls. Any meeting between these two Atlantic 10 foes, has the potential to be a battle to the end.

In recent years, Temple has owned the Minutemen. The last UMass victory over the Owls, was way back in the '80s. However, it seems that things are about to change. The team is excited, confident, and ready.

"Everybody is looking forward to this meet, we've wanted to beat Temple for a very long time," said junior Gabe Columbus. "The team is hungry, and I think that we are going to get out there and have a good showing."

Lately the team has looked as powerful as ever. "The guys are looking real good," UMass coach Roy Johnson said. "I don't think that we have ever brought as strong of a team down to Temple, as we are this time."

After beginning the season with an impressive showing at the UMass Open, the team began a grueling road trip. The trip started at the West Point Open, in upstate New York. After a solid fourth place finish, it was time to head to Colorado for the Rocky Mountain Open. A top 10 performance was a huge positive sign for early in the season. The successful journey ended with a dominating victory over Air Force.

On Jan. 26 the team was met at home by the Midshipmen of Navy. In a closely contested match-up, the Minutemen prevailed by less than two points. Freshman Steve Pryor led the way with an overall score of 53.65, dazzling the judges in numerous events.

The team continued its home schedule with a dual meet with M.I.T. and Vermont. The Minutemen clearly had their best performance of the season. They won each individual event on the way to an impressive 30 point overall victory.

Junior Chris Funk, had a tremendous day. He finished with a score of 53.25, and was absolutely spectacular on the rings. This comes as no surprise, considering that Funk is the No. 1 still ring gymnast in the country. The modest Funk downplayed this achievement.

"It feels pretty good. I've never been No. 1 in anything," Funk said. "However, I still need to brush up a little. I'm doing well, but I am still not hitting on everything."

It is now apparent that Massachusetts is for real. The team is showing consistency with its routines that had been lacking for quite a few seasons. Along with its undefeated record, comes the first top 10 national ranking in years.

Currently, the team is ranked nine, behind some of the best programs in the country.

"Right now we are definitely a top 12 team. We will have a better idea of where we stand after the Temple meet," Johnson said. "If we have a great meet, then I think that it will send a message to a lot of teams, fans, and officials up the East coast."

The chief strength of this UMass team is the overall depth. After a strong recruiting year there are many capable freshmen to complement the veteran leaders.

"Our freshman have been tremen-

Turn to MEN'S GYM, page 7

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 75 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Wednesday, February 7, 1996

Twenty-two and counting
Donta Bright and the Massachusetts Minutemen mugged the Fordham Rams last night in New York City (See Sports, Page 12).

Non-violent protest held for prisoner
One of many nation-wide rallies was held in Springfield last night to support Leonard Peltier, an imprisoned Native American activist (See story, page 5).

Sounds a little Phishy...
Billed as the "Next Phish," the band Moe. returns to the Iron Horse in Northampton (see Arts & Living, page 6).

– Extended Forecast
Temperatures finally climb out of the single digits later this weekend, and even above freezing. Unfortunately, the warmer weather will be accompanied by a high chance of rain.

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 30 LOW: 25	HIGH: 40 LOW: 25	HIGH: 45 LOW: 30

Springfield teenagers get chance at UM education

By Roseann Cohen
Collegian Staff

For many Springfield teenagers the road towards obtaining a college education may be blocked by several obstacles. But the Springfield/UMass Minority Achievement Program is working hard to provide students with the help they need to achieve their dreams.

Funding from the Nellie Mae Fund For Education and additional organizations enable University of Massachusetts' students and faculty to provide tutoring, mentoring, support services and various other activities for at-risk youth, in an effort to encourage teens to stay in school.

The pre-collegiate program, which began in Oct. 1993, aims to support the student as much as possible and to understand the variety of problems teens face daily, according to Deborah Pace, program director for the Springfield/UMass Minority Achievement Program (SUMMA).

According to Pace, these teenagers go to schools where there are over 30 students to a classroom, leaving little opportunity for individual attention. UMass students serve as mentors for the high schoolers, pushing them to recognize their potential and move past the barriers that exist, as well as providing individual attention for SUMMA students.

Pace emphasized the relevance of UMass students serving as mentors, "It's a reality check for the students. Most mentors grew up in the inner city neighborhoods and when they've talked about what they have had to overcome, the SUMMA students can really relate to that. They know that their mentors have walked in their shoes," she said.

One of the most promising features of the program is the contract the University signs with Springfield high school students which guarantees admission to UMass to any student who can fulfill the requirements for the University and complete the college preparatory exams. However, the contract is just a small feature of the program.

Among the various activities offered by SUMMA are career nights, campus tours and even a chance for SUMMA students to be become mentors to children at the local elementary schools. Several workshops on self-esteem, prevention of teen pregnancy, gang violence and motivation have also been offered.

Ricky Griffith, a ninth grader at Central Academy, one of Springfield's high schools, commented on his progress in the program. "I was getting mostly C's in all of my classes, and now I've been on the honor roll three times." Griffith became involved in the program when he was a seventh grader and received tutoring from the mentors.

Turn to TEENS, page 3

"Free Peltier!"

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

At a rally in Springfield last night, a protestor calls for activist Leonard Peltier to be released from jail. (See related story, page 5.)

Lawyers for accused gunman win procedural victory in court

By Jan Gienski
Associated Press

DEDHAM — A prospective juror in the case of an accused abortion clinic gunman took a seat in the judge's chambers yesterday and delivered her opinion with disgust.

"I find it unbelievable that he's sitting here. I think he's guilty," said the woman in her 30s, one of more than 100 people from which attorneys are attempting to fashion a jury for the trial of John C. Salvi III.

"I hate him," the woman said as she was dismissed.

In a day that was supposed to consist only of normally tedious jury selection, Salvi staged an outburst of his own.

"I, J.C. Salvi III, state I do not acknowledge guilt related to alleged incidence which I am accused of," said a handwritten statement on a yellow legal pad Salvi held for a photographer until his lawyer yanked it from his hands. "I have not pleaded guilty. Whoever committed the alleged acts might be insane; consequently, if I will be convicted then I plead insane."

Salvi has attempted several times to make statements in the courtroom, or pass messages to news reporters.

"His statements are not something we have control over," the attorney, Janice Bassil, said later.

Salvi is accused of walking into two abortion clinics on Dec. 30, 1994, pulling a rifle from a duffel bag and opening fire.

Killed were receptionists Shannon Lowney and Lee Ann Nichols, who was shot nine times while begging for her life.

Salvi was arrested in Virginia the next day, after police said they caught him shooting through the windows of an abortion clinic in Norfolk.

Norfolk Superior Court Judge Barbara Dortch-Okara has declared Salvi mentally competent, and Salvi has said all along that he wants to stand trial and wants the death penalty if convicted.

New class allows students to learn hands on

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Leadership continues to be taught and explored in the second semester of the education class, "Leadership in Changing Times."

The class, which had a successful debut in the fall according to both the students and professors, attempts to combine the teachings of participatory management with academic theories of leadership.

"We are very happy with the results of the course," said Margaret Arsenault, professor and assistant director of the Campus Activities Advising Center.

"The course was very exciting — we learn along with the students," said Katja Hahn d'Errico, director of the Center for Student Business and Arsenault's partner professor for the class.

Hahn d'Errico stresses the importance of learning for both the students and professors. "Learning is a constant process which is central to life," she said. "Exploring with others in the classroom adds depth to learning."

The course was very exciting — we learn along with the students
— Katja Hahn d'Errico, director of the Center for Student Business

In one semester, the class has expanded from 16 to 25 students.

Senior Ashavan Doyan participated in the class in the fall semester. "I found the course very rewarding and instructional," said Doyan. "The casual attitude employed between the instructors and the students allowed for more conducive learning conditions."

Junior Mary Lucier said, "The hands-on training and step- by-step procedures combined with useful readings enabled me to learn efficiently and thoroughly."

Arsenault said, "After taking the students' feedback into account we have adapted the course in order to make it as educational and useful as possible for the students."

"Leadership in Changing Times" will be taught again in the Fall of 1996. Arsenault and Hahn d'Errico both said tehy hope that they will be expanding to two sections of the course.

"The class helped me most by teaching me how to diplomatically handle group situations. I learned how to balance my personal politics with the others in my group [Campus Design and Copy]."

"Leadership in Changing Times" is the beginning of a process by the Campus Activities Office to expand the Leadership Program.

"We want to do more than just the leadership conferences and workshops," Arsenault said. "This class and others like it allow for the exploration of different components of leadership."

Hahn d'Errico said she feels that this class serves as a foundation for future campus leaders. She said she hopes to begin teaching another new course which concentrates more on dynamics and teamwork.

"It is very important for students who are generally placed into leadership roles without any experience as leaders to have a strong foundation and background in leadership," Doyan said. "This course offers true life skills which are far more important than many other subjects."

Lucier said, "Many students need to gain leadership skills. They hold office and end up doing detrimental things though their lack of knowledge."

Arsenault said. "After taking the students' feedback into account we have adapted the course in order to make it as educational and useful as possible for the students."

"Leadership in Changing Times" will be taught again in the Fall of 1996. Arsenault and Hahn d'Errico both said tehy hope that they will be expanding to two sections of the course.

GOP supporters of Dole criticize Forbes in Mass.

By Glen Johnson
Associated Press

BOSTON — For the second time in less than a week, Massachusetts Republicans have attacked Steve Forbes, saying he is inferior to Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole for their party's presidential nomination.

Treasurer Joe Malone, Dole's state campaign chairman, and Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci, who also is supporting Dole, laid aside their own political rivalry yesterday to criticize Forbes on an unlikely subject: welfare.

They said Forbes' opposition to time limits for welfare recipients, as well as a requirement that certain recipients work to continue receiving benefits, run contrary to Massachusetts policy and the public's mood.

"There's no question in my mind that the people of this state strongly support the kind of changes that we've been able to enact here," Cellucci said at a hastily arranged news conference at the Hampshire House restaurant.

Gretchen Morgenson, Forbes' press secretary, said the criticism was part of a concerted effort yesterday by Dole supporters across the country to discredit Forbes.

While she conceded that Forbes has questions about welfare time limits and work requirements, she said he supports a complete overhaul of the country's welfare system.

"I believe the system must be removed from Washington and be returned to the states and municipalities," Forbes said in a statement. "We must also have more involvement from private charities. I see the welfare reform bills from the House and Senate as simply an interim step in the evolution of welfare back to the local level."

Malone and Cellucci tempered their criticism of Forbes when asked about the issue for which he is better known, the flat tax. They said they were intrigued by the idea, but not necessarily Forbes' proposal for a 17-percent income tax rate with no deductions — including the one currently reserved for home mortgage interest.

"Any kind of tax reform, in my view, has got to benefit the middle class," Cellucci said. "The one Steve Forbes is talking about would certainly benefit him and wealthy people like him, but I want to make sure it benefits hard-working, middle-class people."

Forbes, a millionaire publisher who is a political neophyte, is now running even with Dole in some presidential polls. The news conference was the latest sign of jitters within the Dole camp about Forbes.

Although Dole is widely supported by Massachusetts Republicans, Malone sent state GOP activists a letter last Thursday urging them to not abandon Dole for Forbes.

"I believe electing Steve Forbes as our standard bearer would be a dream come true for Bill Clinton," the letter read in part. Malone and Cellucci's joint appearance also was unusual in that they are planning to run against each other for the 1998 gubernatorial nomination.

Right now the men are vying with each other for support within the state's 80-member Republican State Committee and its relatively small pool of campaign donors.

JULIO A. CORDERO / COLLEGIAN

Working nine to five
Nam Mokwânye, assistant director of craft shop, works over the weekend to get the shop ready for last Monday.

Government access online made more easily available

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

Information about federal government agencies has been made more accessible to users of the Internet by the University's Center for Intelligent Information Retrieval (CIIR).

The new ease of access is due to information retrieval software known as INQUERY, developed by W. Bruce Croft, Director of the CIIR. The retrieval engine is used to search all federal government agencies that have sites on the Web.

Popular Web sites that utilize INQUERY include the Library of Congress, the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, the U.S. Business Advisor, and the LOTUS Development Corporation Worldwide Customer Support.

INQUERY is a full text information retrieval engine able to access large quantities of data easily in seconds.

"Our research focused on how to take a query in English and match it with text. That's what INQUERY does," Croft said.

The software uses normal English questions to bring up related passages or publications from every federal government site on the World Wide Web from one location called "Welcome to the White House: An Interactive Citizens' Handbook."

"INQUERY is one of the fastest online searching facilities," said Administrative Director of CIIR Jean Ziemba.

"INQUERY makes it easier to get specific information more quickly" without jumping from location to location, she said.

Other online indices include Personal Librarian System, Varity, and Fulcrum. These are slower retrieval engines used to crawl the WWW.

INQUERY has been tailored for the program THOMAS, developed for the Library of Congress. The THOMAS system was created to access congressional bills and records of the 103 and 104th Congress "in one step online," Ziemba said.

THOMAS works similarly to the White House home page by having the user ask plain English questions to find out more about federal government bills, she added.

This site attracted nearly 95,000 queries in the first three months since it became available, according to Ziemba. CIIR worked in collaboration with the Library of Congress to create this system using the CIIR INQUERY retrieval engine.

In previous years, the INQUERY program was not available to search all federal government sites that contained information on foreign and domestic policy documents, press briefings, and transcripts of presidential briefings.

One of the government's goals is to provide more information to the general public in an easily accessible way, according to Ziemba.

Since its unveiling in 1994, "Welcome to the White House" has reached 5 million electronic visitors and is one of the most popular Web sites on the Internet, according to Ziemba.

The Library of Congress, another Web site that uses INQUERY, is the

Turn to ACCESS, page 3

Campus Police Log

Rape

Feb. 2

Detectives from the Community Disorders Unit are investigating a rape which occurred on Feb. 2 between 3 a.m. and 4:30 a.m. in a Southwest Residential Hall. The 20- year-old victim is a student. Police have classified the report as an acquaintance rape.

Domestic offense

Feb. 2

An individual reported that she was slapped by her housemate in North Village Apartments. An emergency restraining order was issued.

Warrant Service

Feb. 3

Reginald A. Remy, 18, of 22 High St., Brookline, Mass. was arrested on a warrant from Brighton District.

Larceny

Feb. 2

Security chairs were stolen from the lobby area of John Q. Adams Residence Hall.

An individual reported unauthorized charges to a credit card that he ordered and never received.

A compact disc player was stolen from a lab in Morrill Science Building.

An individual reported that a ring valued at $500 was stolen from Gorman Residence Hall.

Feb. 3

An individual reported a telephone stolen from her Coolidge Residence Hall room.

An individual in John Adams Residence Hall reported his wallet stolen.

Medical Emergency

Feb. 2

An individual in Van Meter Residential Hall was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual with abdominal pain was taken from James Residential Hall to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Feb. 3

An individual in Patterson Residential Hall with a possible broken leg was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Vandalism

Feb. 2

The owner of a damaged vehicle in Lot 67 was notified.

Feb. 3

Housing was notified about a broken window in the Washington Residential Hall.

Annoying Behavior

Feb. 2

There was a report of a male individual looking under women's shower stalls in Thatcher Residential Hall.

Feb. 3

Two individuals in Lot 50 were yelling obscenities. An individual reported that he was "penned" into his Brown Residential Hall and a stink bomb was thrown under his door.

Assist Citizen

Feb. 3

An individual was extracted from a stalled Prince Residence Hall elevator.

Fire Alarm

Feb. 3

A stove was left on, creating smoke in a Lincoln Apartment. Environment Health and Safety forced entry and remained on the scene until the owner arrived.

Animal Complaint

Feb. 3

A dog with Connecticut tags was found on Orchard Hill Dr. The owner retrieved the animal at the University of Massachusetts Police Department.

Suspicious Person / Activity

Feb. 3

An individual, found sleeping in a vehicle parked in the Southwest Circle, was placed into protective custody.

Assault & Battery

Feb. 3

Two individuals involved in a dispute in the South Side of Washington Residential Hall. Neither wanted to pursue charges, but one individual, Steve LaFleur, 21, of 21 Quintard Terr., Stamford, Conn. was found to be wanted on a warrant.

ATTENTION
COLLEGIAN* Photo Staff
There will be a meeting tonight at 7 PM in the Photo Dept.
Food!

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous

Wednesday, Feb. 7

Theater — There will be an introductory acting class with Michelle Sullivan in the Old Chapel Seminar Room from 6:30 p.m. – 8 p.m. The class is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For information call 545-0519.

Dance — There will be a dance workshop with Tracy Vernon as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The class will be in the Old Chapel Auditorium, from noon – 1 p.m. Call 545-0519 for information.

Theater — There will be a musical theater presentation with Dan Peterson in the Old Chapel Auditorium, from 7 p.m. – 8:30 p.m. This is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For information call 545-0519.

Meeting — The Italian Club will hold an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 301. All students are welcome. For more information call 546-4363.

Volunteer Fair — The VIVA Council is holding a volunteer fair from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., in the Student Union Ballroom. Forty service agencies will be recruiting volunteers. Call 545-3368 for more information.

Theater — The UMass Theater Guild will hold its first general meeting of the semester at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center. Anyone interested is invited to attend, there will be audition information available. For more information call 545-0415.

Meeting — The Student Health Advisory Board will hold its first meeting of the semester from 5:30 p.m. – 6:30 p.m. in University Health Services Rm 304. Everyone is welcome. Call 549-9940 for information.

Meeting — The Boltwood project will be holding recruitment nights Feb 5, 6, 7 from 6 p.m. – 8 p.m. The meetings on Feb. 6 and 7 will be held in Campus Center Rm 162. The Boltwood Project is a service organization working with Amherst and surrounding communities. For more information call Mark at 546-3301.

Thursday, Feb. 8

Lecture — Dr. Beverly Greene, a certified Clinical Psychologist and Professor of Psychology at St. John's University, will speak on the topic: African–American Lesbians: Mental Health and Psychotherapy Issues. The lecture is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The event will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. For information call 545-4824.

Meeting — There will be the first meeting tonight of the Animal Rights Coalition at 7 p.m. in Room 306 of the Student Union. Everyone is welcome, and meetings will continue throughout the semester. For more information call Nana at 546-0358.

Music — There will be an African Caribbean Drumming presentation as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The presentation will be led by Abdul Baki, and will be from 8 p.m. – 10 p.m. in FAC 157. For information call 545-0519.

Music — Peter Orphanos will lead a guitar class in Emerson 112 of the Southwest Residential Area from 5:30 p.m. – 7 p.m. The presentation will be part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. Call 545-0519 for information.

Friday, Feb. 9

Music — There will be a Chamber Music presentation with Catalina Arrubilo and Camillo Rojas. The presentation is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For more information call 545-0519.

Theater — The UMass Theater Guild will hold open auditions for the play "A Little Night Music," at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 162. Callbacks will be on Sunday, Feb. 11 at 10 a.m. For more information call Kristina 545- 0415.

Lecture — Sam McMahan will present a lecture entitled, "Introduction to Astrological Chart Reading" at Oasis on Main St. The lecture, which will explore astrological charts and astrology, will begin at 7 p.m. The presentation is free, but space is limited. Call 256–4995 for details.

Meeting — There will be a meeting of the Bill Weld for President National Draft Committee at 6 p.m. in the Mid- Conference Rm. of the Bangs Community Center. The Center is on Boltwood Walk, next to RAO's Coffee House. For more information call Martin at 546–6758.

Religious — There will be a meeting of the Alliance Christian Fellowship at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. The room number will be posted by the elevator downstairs. For more information call Mark or Elizabeth at 253–7206.

Notices

Job Applications — The GEO Personnel Committee is accepting applications for three part-time positions: Office Coordinator, Grievance Coordinator, and Contract Campaign Coordinator. All positions are for 20 hours per week at $12.30/hr for 16 weeks. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9. Contact Beth at 545–0705 or 665–3299 with any questions

Meetings — The Everywoman's Center has announced its group meetings for the spring semester. There will be a Communication and Intimacy Group on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m., a Re-entry Women's Group on Wednesdays at 7 p.m., a Women and Self Esteem Group for Undergrad Women on Mondays at 7 p.m. and a Women in Transition: Exploration Through Expressive Arts Group on Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. These groups may require registration and a screening interview. Call the Everywoman's Center at 545–0883 by Feb. 16 for more information.

Meeting — The Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a Rape Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and a Child Sexual Abuse Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:00 p.m. Both of these groups require screening interviews. Call 545–0800 by Feb. 7 for information.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 585–0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5 p.m. – 6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545– 4824.

Writing — "mOthertongue," a multi–lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587–9884.

Religious — Rides are being provided to any students who would like to attend worship services at the Alliance Church on Sunday mornings. For information contact Mark at 253– 0561.

Meeting — The African Student Association holds a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the SWAG office. Meeting is open to everyone.

Meeting — Nommo News and Drum Supplement holds general body meetings on Thursdays at 5 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2363 or 546–5562.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995–96 issue. Any Five-College student is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 406E Student Union, or call 545–2240.

Semi–Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi–formal on February 10, 1996 in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 549–0960.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253–9622.

Religious — Rides to Chapel: Christ Community Chapel of Amherst sponsors "Pick Me Up." Worship time 10 a.m. – 11:30 a.m. every Sunday. Bus stop points 9:45 a.m. at the GRC, Fine Arts, North Village, Southpoint, Prince House, Southwest parking lot and Amherst College at Converse Hall.

Dancing — There is International Folkdancing at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst every Friday, 8 p.m. – 10 p.m. Greek, Bulgarian, Turkish, American, former Yugoslavian, Armenian, Israeli, Hungarian, French... teaching at all levels, beginners welcome. For more information, call Eva and Gene, 549–6748 or Cindy and Dennis, 323–6330.

Health — Worried about HIV/AIDS? Call 1–800–750– 2016, The Family Planning Council's HIV Hotline counselors can tell you whether or not you are at risk for contacting HIV; how you can protect yourself from contracting the virus; where, when and how to get a free, anonymous HIV antibodies test at over 70 sites throughout the state.

Health — The Family Planning Council Tobacco Cessation Project offers free, confidential individual & group counseling/support to smokers trying to quit. Variety of methods including "The patch." Call Lynne at 1–800–696– 7752.

Grant deadlines — The UMass Arts Council single project/event grant applications deadlines for Spring 1996 are February 16 for events after March 6, March 15 for events after April 3, and April 19 for events after May 8 including Summer and Fall 1996 projects/events.

Skiing — Cross country skiing guides for the visually impaired are needed. Guide training is provided; you must have your own equipment and advanced skiing ability. Contact Chris at 584–0807.

Astronomy — The Amherst Astronomy Association will conduct free Planetarium Shows every Saturday in February at the Amherst College Bassett Planetarium. For more information contact Tom at 256–6234.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • VR. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

TODAY'S YOUR LAST CHANCE!
Your last chance to apply for the following paid positions available for the Spring 1996 semester:
Black Affairs Editor
Jewish Affairs Editor
Women's Issues Editor
Associate News Editor
Librarian
Assistant to the Managing Editor
Staff Artist
For a job description and an application, come down to the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center and ask to speak to either Marni E. Heffner, Managing Editor, or Matt Vautour, Editor-In-Chief or call 545–3500.
ALL APPLICATIONS ARE DUE TODAY AT 4 P.M.
The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROCTER AND GAMBLE
Procter and Gamble is the global leader in the consumer products industry. We sell our products in 140 countries, with annual sales over $33 billion. We offer paid internship positions in Sales in major marketing areas throughout the United States
ARE YOU A JUNIOR or SOPHOMORE and INTERESTED IN A PAID SUMMER INTERNSHIP?
PLEASE COME TO OUR INFORMATION SESSION:
WHEN? WED, FEB 7 at 7 PM
WHERE? CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 804-08
WE ARE LOOKING FOR [redacted] STUDENTS WITH :
• A STRONG MOTIVATION TO ACHIEVE
• OUTSTANDING RECORD OF LEADERSHIP
• STRONG ORAL & WRITTEN COMMUNICATION
• ABILITY TO ANALYZE FACTS AND MAKE CONCLUSIONS
• ABILITY TO INNOVATE
• EFFECTIVE IN TEAM SITUATIONS

The University of Massachusetts Campus Activities Presents:

Something Every Friday
a weekly program series of events
Coming this Friday
O.J. Ekemode and the Nigerian All-Stars
Campus Center Auditorium
February 9, 1996,
8:00pm
FREE
Followed by the Movie
"Copy Cat"
Starring Sigourney Weaver & Holly Hunter
time approx. 11pm
Refreshments Will Be Served
For Schedules: 545-3600
This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

UMass Division of Continuing Education
Your entryway into the University and the future
• Over 200 credit courses and noncredit workshops — in the evening!
• Professional development courses, seminars, workshops
• Specialized degree programs
• Courses for recertification points for teachers
Register through February 12.
Call for a free course catalog • (413) 545-0107
e-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
Division of Continuing Education • University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

FENCING TEAM?
I DIDN'T EVEN KNOW WE HAD A FENCING TEAM!
If this is you, come find out more at the Campus Center Concourse. Join the #1 CO-ED Team in the country. No experience necessary and no equipment to buy. ALL ARE WELCOME TO JOIN. Varsity positions available in all three weapons. Compete collegiately against schools like BU, BC, MIT, Brown, UNH and many more. Opportunities to COMPETE NATIONALLY as well. Graduate students also welcome.

■ Come cheer the Women's Team on at Totman Gym Sunday Feb. 11th from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.!!!!

Study reveals violent TV acts often go unpunished

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Crime pays — at least on television, according to a cable industry study released yesterday on TV violence. Most of the time, the bad guys aren't punished; nearly half the time, violent acts in TV programs show no harm to victims, and more often they portray no pain, according to the survey of cable and broadcast shows.

"The world of television is not only violent — it also consistently sanctions its violence," said the report on the $1.5 million study commissioned by the National Cable Television Association.

The study found a consistent pattern across all channel types and genres.

"This is troubling," the report said.

The survey, the largest of its kind, was based on a sample of 2,500 hours of programming on 23 channels — a mix of cable, broadcast and public television — from Oct. 8, 1994, to June 9, 1995. It was conducted by researchers at four universities. "One of the clearest findings of this study is that a very high proportion of violent scenes lack any form of punishment for the perpetrators," the report said.

The study does not rate specific programs, channels or stations for violent content.

The negative consequences of violence are usually not shown, the study also found. For example, 47 percent of all violent interactions show no harm to victims and 58 percent show no pain. In addition, the study found that 57 percent of TV programs surveyed contain violence; roughly one-third of those shows contain nine or more violent interactions.

What effect does this have on viewers?

The study says it can desensitize people to both real violence and victims of violence, can increase people's fears of becoming a victim, and as many other studies have suggested, can lead to more aggressive behavior.

The highest level of visual violence — 61 percent — can be found on shows aired during prime time, between 8 p.m. and 11 p.m., the study found.

The study also found that premium cable channels most frequently air shows with violence, while basic cable channels are close to or below industry averages.

The three major broadcast networks — ABC, CBS, NBC — air fewer programs with violent content than the industry average, while independent TV stations are moderately above the norm, the study said.

Public TV stations air the fewest shows with violence.

The study was done by the University of California, Santa Barbara; the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; the University of Texas, Austin; and the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Last September, the three networks along with the Fox network touted a University of California, Los Angeles, study that found "promising signs" in the way the networks portray violence. Both NCTA's and the networks' studies were prompted by threats from Congress to intervene if the TV industry failed to take steps to stem violence in their programs.

RAJO A. CORDERO / COLLEGIAN

Peering into Pandora's Box
Artist Julie Parsons rearranges her zoo dolls during the three-dimensional studies art show opening at UMass.

■ teens

continued from page 1

Griffith's aunt, Laurie Jackson, was very pleased with the program's influence on Ricky expressed her pride in her live–in nephew's accomplishments. "I'm very proud of him and I do believe that it's because of this program that his self–esteem has been boosted. He is very proud of himself."

Deborah Pace expressed her enthusiasm for the program and the program's goals. "The value of this program is that it can help youth know and reach their potential, and know that they are going to succeed in life."

A grant of $25,000 has recently been awarded to the program by the Nellie Mae Fund for Education. The director of the organization said she felt SUMMA was clearly a program worthy of funding.

"The Springfield/UMass Minority Achievement program epitomizes the Nellie Mae Fund for Education mission of reducing the high school drop out rate and motivating to pursue their dreams of getting a college education," said Sylvia Salas, director of the Nellie Mae Fund for Education. "Given the great need of Springfield students and their families we are anxious to see this program succeed fully," she said.

In addition to the Nellie Mae Fund for Education, funding for SUMMA comes from Fleet Investment Services, sole trustee of the L.G. Balfour Foundation, the Massachusetts Educational Opportunity Program and the Office of the Chancellor of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

■ access

continued from page 1

world's largest library. It contains a range of information from congressional records to Civil War photos. Pictures, text and movies are also included in the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum. Information about federal laws and regulations are included in the U.S. Business Advisor Web site.

The CIIR is composed of over 40 members from both the government and corporate realm. Some of the government members include the National Library of Medicine, U.S. Department of Commerce, U.S. Department of Energy, U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, U.S. Department of Transportation, and the Internal Revenue Service.

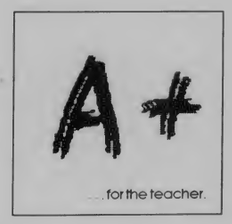
Corporate members include LOTUS Development Corporation, Digital Equipment Corporation, Bay State Health Systems, Harvard Pilgrim Health Plan, and LEXIS– NEXIS.

"Much of the success of the CIIR is based upon the collaboration we have had with our government and company members who have provided insights into what the public is looking for in a search and retrieval system," Ziemba said.

Ziemba explained that they expect only more interest and that their membership has basically exploded since the World Wide Web has gotten up and running. The WWW has gained popularity over the past two years.

The World Wide Web address for the CIIR is http://ciir.cs.umass.edu. Within the homepage, students can search using INQUERY.

NOMINATIONS ARE INVITED BY
THE COLLEGE OF FOOD AND NATURAL RESOURCES
FOR THE 1995-96 AWARDS



Outstanding Advisor
OutstandingTeacher
Nomination Forms Are Due March 1, 1996
(Forms available in 113 Stockbridge Hall or Departmental Offices)
Faculty in the following majors are eligible for nomination:
Animal Science • Apparel Marketing • Building Materials and Wood Technology • Entomology
Environmental Design • Environmental Sciences • Family and Consumer Sciences • Food Science
Forestry • Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration • Landscape Architecture • Microbiology
Natural Resource Studies • Plant and Soil Sciences • Plant Pathology
Resource Economics • Sport Management • Wildlife and Fisheries Conservation

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Hellner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Lisa M. Oliveri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Amy Paradyst News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reily Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist Turley Publications Printer/Publisher

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1903, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Greasing the psalms

C. Taylor Conner

Magic Johnson is back and all I have on my mind are smart-ass liberals who mock right-wing Christians.

It lay on the newsroom desk in all its self-righteous glory, a black TDK micro floppy disk, formatted and ready for action. You say to yourself, "Self, how could an innocent little piece of plastic possibly be self-righteous?"

The answer: "We know who you are and we know how you should live."

Taken seriously, the phrase is eerily McCarthyesque, the type of thing that makes you eat lots of red meat and use the word "pinko" incessantly. In its actual context, the phrase, which appeared on the disk, serves as a faux motto for the Christian Coalition, and a damn funny one at that.

Yet upon further review, even a left-of-center citizen like me can imagine the group must do a world of good for a great many people. How else would it exist?

But, I mean, come on. Coalition spin doctors — you have to admit that it would probably be easier to have Holiday Inn adopt Norman Bates as their poster boy than it would be to have America congeal around your Norman Rockwell utopia.

You might consider an image remake. It's all in the presentation.

I'm the man with the plan.

Oh, here's one straight from the holster. You get those three frogs from the beer commercial and change them into... toads. You've got your plug — BANG!

(A forest somewhere in the middle of nowhere)

Toad One: Je
Toad Two: Christ
Toad Three: Sus
Toad One: Je
Toad Two: Christ
Toad Three: Sus
Toad One: Je
Toad Two: Sus
Toad Three: Christ

(You get the picture.)

Or how about this one? You get a hip comic actor to promote your group in order to shed some of the heavy-handed image that might be turning away the future leaders of the Coalition: the twentysomethings. If Two If By Sea is any indication, I'm sure Denis Leary will be readily available. Check out this high-concept brainstorm.

(A bleak city junkyard, filmed in black and white)

Leary: Hey, you, chucklehead. You think you got some problems you zit-puckered alterna-turd? Let me paint a pretty little picture for you. You're strapped half-naked to a cross with nails through your palms. No food, no water, no shade, no shades, no butts and hey, I got five more words for you — NO CIN-DY CRAW-FORD. Hey, Mr. Blasphemy, I think I hear God knocking, and he's bringing his pissed-off savior son and I think they're coming in.

Now that you have the kids and the confused beer-drinkers (who often are one and the same) in your grasp, the only obstacle remaining is to assure our adult heathens that the Good Book is still there for them. This is the tough part, but sweat not, there is a solution. It's not pretty, but to draw the attention of the American public sometimes you have to tease them, to tantalize them with the dirty, nasty, filthy, oily, wet "s" word we all love.

Oh, baby, sensationalism sells. Here's a sample...

(A black screen)

Voice-over: You think you know what God's all about? We'll bet you don't. For instance did you know that He knows the name of your wife's lover, his address and the desk he sits at in your office? I'll bet you didn't.

How about the first time your 21-year-old son kissed a girl, how many minutes ago it just happened and the location of the junior high school she attends? Is that info you have? We think not.

Or even what you did on your way home from that late night business trip when you thought no one else could see inside your car. We can tell you how many people thought your stick shift was actually having problems, and how many were disgusted to see you drive an automatic.

How do we know? God only knows.

The Christian Coalition: We know who you are, we know how you should live and we know that your parents were never really married.

* * *

Now you Coalition people have some high-concept ideas. If you get to work immediately you'll have a happy white world within two weeks or your money back. Guaranteed.

Oh yeah, I almost forgot about Magic. I was going to write about how many people know who he is and how he should live.

Never mind. I guess.

C. Taylor Connor is a Collegian columnist.

Keeping the faith...

Standing at Kaddish for those who have no one, is what puts a human face on going to services. In some small way, what it says is that even if you die alone, you are not forgotten and your life is worth something — your memory lives on.

Marni E. Helfner

When people ask me what my religion is, I always reply with the same answer, "I grew up Jewish, but I'm an atheist and Judaism is my culture."

This often confuses the people who know that I occasionally go to temple and observe the Jewish holidays. My family also has a problem with it. My dad, an extremely religious man, who believes that he has conversations with God, does not understand where I am coming from.

I simply explained to him, "Dad, I can stop believing in God, but I can't stop eating latkes (potato pancakes)." This seemed to help him understand.

I make the best of attempts to go to temple on Friday nights, but most of the time I come home Friday afternoon and I am too tired to go anywhere. Even thinking about going out to temple makes me sleepy. Of course, when I do get the energy together to go to temple, I truly enjoy it.

My dad was raised as an Orthodox Jew, and my mother as a Reform Jew. I grew up with the expectation that I would go to temple and religious school, be a good Jew and be a part of the community. I became a Bat Mitzvah and confirmed, and took part in my temple youth group. At one point I believed that I wanted to be a rabbi. It is all these things that make me want to go to temple.

I grew up singing the same songs, reciting the same prayers, believing the same beliefs that were held by my people thousands of years ago, and are still the same today.

Going to temple is an opportunity for me to take time out and reflect back upon the past week. I get about two hours to regress slightly and sing the songs and melodies I did as a child. I go to take the time to be apart from the rest of my mile-a-minute life, and take a sort of detox from the craziness of everything else in the world. I go to temple because when I don't feel a part of anything, I know that all over the world, there are Jews observing the same rituals and observances that I am — I feel I am a part of some greater history.

But, one of the main reasons why I go to temple is to recite the mourner's Kaddish (the prayer for the dead). During each service, the rabbi announces the mourner's Kaddish and asks that those people who have recently lost a loved one, are remembering the death of a loved one, or would like to stand for someone who has no one to stand for them, to rise for the Kaddish.

One of the things my family instilled in me from a young age was that I always stand for the Kaddish. Of course I stand for the anniversaries of the deaths of my family members, but I also stand for those who have no one to stand for them.

Standing at Kaddish for those who have no one is what puts a human face on going to services. In some small way, what it says is that even if you die alone, you are not forgotten and your life is worth something — your memory lives on.

I retreat into myself at services, thinking about my life, the places I'm going and the places I've been. I become a million miles away from all my problems and focus on the songs and prayers — the Mi Chamocha, Sh'ma and the Avot among others.

It's a safe space, away from the parties and the alcohol usually associated with Friday nights, a chance to be introspective. It makes people think twice about how they see me when they offer to go out with me on Friday night and I say, "No, I'm going to temple tonight. I can do something after 9 o'clock, or tomorrow, but right now I'm going to temple."

This makes me content, and hopeful. Hopeful that when I'm gone, someone else will recite the Kaddish for me.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

HEY... WHAT'S GOING ON IN HERE?
UM... IT'S A MEETING FOR STEVE FORBES VOLUNTEERS.
OH, YEAH? NOT MUCH OF A TURN-OUT
I KNOW. I ALWAYS SEEM TO BE ATTRACTED TO LOST CAUSES.
WELL, WHAT'S THE POINT OF GETTING INVOLVED IN A CAMPAIGN ANYWAY, YOU KNOW?
TO MEET GIRLS.
TO GIVE SOMETHING BACK.
AS IF! I HAVEN'T GOTTEN ANYTHING YET!

Opinion/Editorial

REMEMBER BACK IN THE '50'S WE LOOKED FORWARD TO THE DAYS WHEN MACHINES WOULD BE DOING ALL THE WORK?
AND HERE THEY ARE!
I KNOW. NOW REMIND ME WHY WE THOUGHT WE'D STILL BE GETTING PAID.
TOLES
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND
HOW ELSE WOULD WE ALL BE ABLE TO BUY OUR OWN PERSONAL AIRPLANES?

Getting into the SCHwing of things

Wendy Darling

So you've finally completed the foreign language requirement. Think your language learning days are over? Think again, because I'm out to prove that there are some words out there that could prove very useful to you — at least for a laugh.

Take schurchen (schnar-ken). Funny as all heck! To get the meaning, picture this: You walk into your dorm room late at night and your roommate is schurching really loud. Schnarch, schnarch, schnarch. (This works even better when you get the pronunciation right.)

Yes, schurchen is German for snore, one of around three dozen bodily functions that start with sch in that language. Why all these words are bunched up like this, I really don't know, but I do know that they bear sharing, as does the entire sch-genre in general.

OK, first there's schnauben (schnow-ben), which is snort, then there's schnaufen (schnouf-en), puff or pant, and finally there's the almighty schneuzen (schnoi-zen), the action you use to get Schleim (yes, that's schlime) out of your nose.

These aren't the only great sch-verbs in German — just take the familiar schleppen, brought to English via Yiddish. Nobody can deny the usefulness of this lowly little word. Not only does it have several meanings (drag, tow, and/or lug), but it even sounds like of like the action it's describing. (Think of the sound your laundry sack makes as you schlep it down the hall.)

Another verb that does this is schlurfen (schoor-fen), which means slurp. Is it an accident that the sound of this word hearkens back to the sound of a thirsty dog taking a drink?

And how about schlapp? For a word that means limp, it does a pretty good job of sounding like a wet washcloth hitting the floor, doesn't it? Schlapp.

There's also a class of sch-words that have interesting relationships to one another. Schlachten (schlahk-ten) means to slaughter or kill. So what's a Schlachtenbummler (schlahk-ten-bum-ler)? A visiting soccer fan. (Figures, doesn't it?)

Meanwhile, a Schlachtfest is described in the dictionary as a "country feast to eat up meat from freshly slaughtered pigs." Schlachtopfer (schlaht-ope-fir) is human sacrifice.

For another example of the weird relationships to be found among some German words, turn to schwul and Schwulitat. The former is slang for gay or queer. The latter? Trouble. Great, now all we need to do is send this info on to some homophobes.

Going back to words that could actually be useful, I give you Schnickschnack (schnick schnahck), which translates as trivial, idle talk, kind of like yapping or gabbing. Or how about Schmösel —(schnoe-zel) — meaning, and I quote from my dictionary — snot-nosed little upstart, kind of like Tonya Harding or Stephen Forbes. How very convenient!

Had enough of this Schmaltz re the German language? That's too bad, because I was just getting into the schwing of things...

Wendy Darling is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Jones insulted all of us

In his opinion piece entitled "The great Weld hope," Martin F. Jones wrote: "Bob Dole is 72 years old. He's physically deformed (the leader of the free world should at least be able to shake hands properly)." I realize that Mr. Jones has taken a satirical approach in drafting his recent columns about the U.S. presidential candidates, but the lines I quoted are inappropriate under any circumstances. People should not be made the object of ridicule because of age or physical disability.

The mere fact of his being 72 years old does not disqualify Senator Dole from serving as President of the United States. He currently holds a very demanding and responsible position of Senate Majority Leader which he seems to perform with vim and vigor. As for not being able to shake someone's hand with his right hand, so what? The lack of a right hand did not prevent the late John Conway, Five College professor of Canadian history, from becoming an outstanding educator and scholar with a distinguished career at Harvard, York (Toronto) and UMass. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a paraplegic, but his disability did not prevent him from exercising the duties of President longer than anyone else and during very difficult times.

I think Mr. Jones owes not only Senator Dole but all of us an apology for his insensitive and prejudicial characterizations of the elderly and the disabled. By the way, I am not a political supporter of Senator Dole.

Jeffrey M. Tenenbaum
Reference Librarian
W.E.B. Du Bois Library

Meeting changed

To the editor:

The Select Board of the Town of Amherst has asked the Town Commercial Relations Committee to attempt to resolve a safety concern, for pedestrians and motorists, resulting from the large crowds that assemble outside Antonio's pizza restaurant (31 North Pleasant Street), usually between midnight and 2:00 a.m.

At its Jan. 2 meeting, the TCRC heard from a number of town officials and other concerned citizens, but because of school vacation, students were not heard from. We believe your input is appropriate and necessary, and would like to invite your suggestions for resolution, through your elected student government representatives.

To accommodate you, we have delayed our next regularly scheduled meeting to Tuesday, Feb. 13, 5:15 p.m., at the Bangs Community Center, and invite you to attend and to present your ideas. Since the TCRC has other agenda items to consider at this meeting, consideration of this issue must be limited to one hour (beginning at 5:15 p.m.).

Written recommendations and/or questions in advance of the meeting should be addressed to the undersigned c/o Student Affairs Special Services, UMass, or call 545-0000.

Robert N. Brooks,
Chair
Town Commercial Relations Committed

Thanks to HECC

To the Editor:

On Jan. 16, 1996, the Higher Education Coordinating Council voted to roll back 10 percent of the tuition at the Community Colleges, and five percent at the State Colleges in Massachusetts. HECC also recommended to the UMass board of trustees to roll back tuition by 5 percent. This is an effort to make Massachusetts public higher education affordable.

The students of UMass Amherst would like to commend HECC on their outstanding commitment to public higher education. We would also like to urge the Board of Trustees to keep its commitment to the Commonwealth and vote for a 5 percent rollback in tuition.

The cost of attending the University is unaffordable for many of the families it was built to serve. Now is the time to give back to the students and families who have been picking up the cost. It is time to give back to the Commonwealth a commitment to an affordable public higher education.

Christina Lopes
SGA President

Columnist Photos

Head shots for columnists will be taken in the Collegian office on Wednesday, Feb. 14th. Times will be announced. Any questions contact Bob Dunn at 545-1491 or Emily Reily at 545-1701.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Multicultural Affairs

Wednesday, Febuary 7, 1996

Note from the editor

The Multicultural Affairs Page, along with the other diversity pages, arose out of organized student protest. Since the establishment of these pages, many dynamic, and hard working individuals have had the arduous task of taking on the position of editor.

Last semester's editor for Multicultural Affairs, Hernan Rozemberg, did an amazing and outstanding job. I only hope to follow in his footsteps, and along the way, to add my own personal flair to this page.

One of the common misconceptions that people have when they read the diversity pages is that, Black Affairs is only for black audiences, Developing Nations is only for peoples of the third world, and Multicultural Affairs is only for students of color. These pages arose out of the aim to Inform all UMass students about issues affecting the students of color and the third world at this university.

I extend the humblest request for all interested students who would like to write, submit artwork, or help in anyway to the better this page, to contact me at the Collegian. We need your help to make this page uphold the spirit and the mission of the students who fought to bring it here.

Lisa Chiu

Protest calls for Peltier's release

By Jonthan Liberty
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD — Leonard Peltier, leader of the American Indian Movement (AIM), was convicted in 1975 of killing two FBI agents at the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota.

In 1984, a U.S. Court of Appeals ordered an evidentiary hearing because of alleged FBI misconduct that led to Peltier's conviction with the court stating their actions as "...a clear abuse of investigative procedure." According to records, federal agents coerced witnesses, committed perjury and fabricated evidence.

An FBI memo showed that a ballistics test conducted on the alleged murder weapon could not match the shell casing of the rifle owned by Peltier. The FBI withheld this information during the trial.

In respect to these facts and the continued imprisonment of Peltier, a non-violent protest was held last night at the Federal Building in Springfield.

"We are here to raise national and worldwide awareness of the Peltier case," stated Susan Montague of the Leonard Peltier Support Group of Southapton (LPSG)

"We are asking that the Peltier investigation be reopened. We want a new trial which will use the proper evidence."

Over 100 protesters gathered in support of Peltier in the midst of freezing temperatures of -5 Other protests took place in over 35 states.

Picket signs and sandwich boards read, "Clinton Free Leonard Peltier Now," and "Support the Native American Struggle! Free Leonard Peltier!"

"I am here for Peltier, for Native Americans, and not only Native Americans, but for all minorities," said Tony Zuniego, a resident of Springfield, "It is time for the people to take the government back. It is supposed to be a government for the people."

John Thompson, an attorney in Springfield, said that because of the injustices done to Peltier and many others, the court system needs the light of public scrutiny.

Peltier released a statement for all of his friends and supporters. Within the statement, he said, "It makes me proud and restores my faith just knowing that there exists in the world individuals who are willing to sacrifice to ensure that justice applies to all people."

"It has been extremely frustrating knowing every passing day that I am innocent and can prove it!"

Arise and the National People's Committee worked in collaboration to ensure that over 100 Native and non-Native persons would show up for the protest.

Montague also assisted in the collaboration of the event. For 15 years she has worked in educating the general population about Native American Issues and the Peltier case.

"I can't give up my hope if Leonard can't give up his. Leonard is fueled by our work."

A Buddhist women monk, Claire Carter, was also in attendance to support Peltier. "I have heard the facts for twenty years," she said, "The U.S. Government feels the need to imprison Peltier as a symbol of their control over the Native American people."

Springfield resident Tricia Joseph from Trinidad and others gathered for a protest against the imprisonment of Leonard Peltier yesterday night.

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

"If we respect the spirituality of the Native Americans, we can enhance the welfare of the entire country."

Nick Camerota of the National People's Campaign said, "Every step we take is a step that the opposition has to take back."

Camerota stressed the importance of their petition drive and increasing awareness to the success of the Peltier case.

"This is just the beginning. Our petition drive is increasing. We will now be able to contact more people for mass gatherings. We are creating a strong, durable coalition to unite all struggles."

With the assistance of University of Massachusetts' senior Chris Olson, a petition for Peltier should soon be available at People's Market.

Camerota also said, "You can call the White House Comment Line at 202-456-1111 on Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m."

"Tell them that you want Peltier to be granted clemency by President Clinton. Give them a piece of your mind."

Montague said that an upcoming campaign of civil disobedience is being planned to take place in Washington D.C in March.

A ceremonial drumming and chanting took place to support Peltier, to which a young man stated, "Now those are the drums of justice!"

Camerota asked Peltier's supporters for a moment of silence in order to end the protest. He asked that they remember the cause of Peltier and increase awareness of his case.

Peltier stated in his letter, "It is through my friends, family and supporters that I have been able to maintain myself through this long and terrible nightmare. Your prayers, letters and actions are the key to my endurance."

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

Manny Runs-Against, of Wounded Knee, S.D. bangs a drum and chants a Native American melody at the rally.

U.S. recolonizes the Middle East

Hussein Ibish

Five years ago, the hideous American assault on Iraq, the "Gulf War," announced to many nations of the Third World what the post-Cold War era had in store for them.

In particular, the Arab and Iranian peoples have watched subsequent American behavior in the region escalate, on all fronts, the recolonization to which they are being subjected.

No one in the region mistakes the implications of the massive United States military build up, which has inserted hundreds of warplanes, dozens of warships and tens of thousands of American troops in or near the obscene, despotic, family-run American puppet states of the Gulf.

These grotesque entities, including Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and the United Arab Emirates, were born of British and sustained by American colonialism, and exist solely for the West. They specialize in nepotism, corruption, incompetence, servile neo-colonial collaboration and the outrageous treatment of foreign workers.

Two key documents recently issued, "A National Security Strategy of Engagement and Enlargement" by the Clinton White House, and "United States Security Strategy for the Middle East" from the Pentagon, bluntly set forth the rationale for the huge military expansion in the Gulf at a time otherwise characterized by reductions and cuts.

Both documents confess that the major United States interest in the region remains, as it has always been, "the prize" — the oil deposits of the Arabian peninsula. The Pentagon explains the goal as "maintaining the unhindered flow of oil from the Gulf to world markets at stable prices," a phrase the White House repeats with the ominous alteration of "at reasonable prices." What we are dealing with here, of course, is the muscle behind one of the greatest rip-offs in history, a heist to end all heists.

The Fifth Fleet was recreated last year, stationed in Bahrain, and dedicated solely to the Gulf waters. Its centerpiece is an aircraft carrier, along with a large entourage of lesser warships, and one or two nuclear submarines. They carry over one hundred warplanes, over one hundred Tomahawk missiles, and about 15,000 sailors.

The Pentagon also has an additional 170 warplanes in the region, ostensibly to patrol southern Iraq, and some 9,000 troops in Saudi Arabia. Last year there were over 60 joint military exercises that allowed the United States to rotate an additional 50,000 or so troops through the region at any given time. So, we are talking about some 80,000 troops, 270 warplanes, 20 warships, hundreds of missiles, one aircraft carrier and one or two nuclear submarines, all for this small body of water and the states that surround it.

A concurrent campaign of equal vigor and scope has been carried out by brigades of "civilian" contractors to flood the region with weapons sales and training programs. This is not only to continue plundering Arab money, but these weapons are in effect being held in storage for the American troops for whom they are really intended. Beyond this, Kuwait, Qatar, and the U.A.E. have each signed agreements to store armor, artillery, and supplies for one American brigade.

Elsewhere in the Middle East, the advance of American colonialism continues in concert with the military build-up.

The two Gulf states which contain large populations, Iran and Iraq are both targeted for continued attacks through the policy of "dual containment." Dreamed up in part by our own "beloved" Mount Holyoke professor and National Security Advisor Anthony Lake, who is living up to the ruthless and treacherous example of his mentor in crime, Henry Kissinger, dual containment is the perfect example of how lust for someone else's oil turns quickly into lust for the blood of those who rightfully lay claim to it.

Iraq is being strangled with sanctions, which are estimated to have killed some 500,000 children thus far, has been sliced into three parts by Western fiat through the "no fly zones," and has been subjected to unheard of atrocities.

The United States has expanded its hostility against Iran, although that scarcely seemed possible, and imposed Cuba-like sanctions against it. Other states' dealings with Iran are sabotaged regularly, and the Clinton administration has sought, unsuccessfully, to turn Iran into an international pariah. Most recently, Congress approved 20 million dollars for covert operations to destabilize Iran.

Both Iran and Iraq face the continuous threat of American attack, and the build-up clearly aims at preparing for that.

Turkey has also been encouraged to repeatedly invade Iraq in its war against the Kurdish people, and serves colonialism as a useful American proxy in the northern Middle East.

Since the Gulf war, the United States has also encouraged its puppet regimes in large Arab states, such as Egypt and Algeria, to desperately hold onto power by conducting virtual civil wars against legitimate opposition movements, especially popular Islamic groups. In so doing the United States has stood firmly against democracy, defending and supporting extremely unpopular governments which rely on torture, secret military trials of civilians, mass executions, and the most extreme forms of despotism to retain power.

The aftermath of the Gulf war also spelled disaster for the Palestinian people, as its oppressors, particularly Israel, rose to ascendancy. The grand sell out of Palestinian national and human rights by Arafat and his corrupt clique of cronies has led to the legitimization of Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza and the creation of worthless Palestinian Bantustans in the style the old South Africa.

In fact, given the passing of South African apartheid, the role of Israel as the foremost center of racism and apartheid in the world was recently confirmed by revelations that the Israeli authorities as a matter of policy secretly destroy the donated blood of Black Ethiopian Jews rather than pass it on to White Israelis.

This ultra-racist state, typified by attitudes such as those it holds towards the blood of African people, has expanded its colonial influence in the Levant. Under American patronage, Israel has gained the capitulation of Jordan and its CIA-funded king, continues to occupy south Lebanon, and seeks a long term deal with Syria in the context of the Pax Americana. Above all, Israel seeks to emulate South Africa and dominate the economies of its Arab neighbors.

Overall, therefore, there can be no doubt that colonialism is enjoying a resurgence in the contemporary Middle East.

Rest assured, however, that millions will dedicate their lives to ensuring that this brief resurgence is forever remembered as American colonialism's dying gasp.

Hussein Ibish is Collegian columnist.

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst
W.E.B. Du Bois Library Dedication Celebration
Schedule of Events

Tuesday, Feb. 20 and Wednesday, Feb. 21

Teach-in — Student and Faculty Teach-in Activities on the Life and Times of W.E.B. Du Bois; Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center

Exhibit — "W.E.B. Du Bois: Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow." Special Collections, 25th Floor of the W.E.B. Du Bois Library 10-3 p.m.

Wednesday, Feb. 21

Concert — A Concert of Spirituals and Readings from W.E.B. Du Bois', The Souls of Black Folk, arranged by Professor Horace Boyer; Bowker Auditorium 7 p.m.

Thursday, Feb. 22

Lecture — Lecture by Professor David Levering Lewis, author of W.E.B. Du Bois: Biography of a Race, 1868-1909 , winner of the 1993 Pulitzer Prize-Memorial Hall Lounge 4:30 p.m. — reception to follow immediately

Friday, Feb. 23

Dedication — A Dedication Ceremony and Reception; Special Collections, 25th Floor of the W.E.B. Du Bois Library 9:30 a.m.

Convocation — A Convocation Celebrating the Life of W.E.B. Du Bois with the awarding of honorary degrees; Bowker Auditorium 11 a.m.

Greetings to my Friends and Supporters,

...February 6th [1976] marked the very first day of my incarceration. Twenty years later It is hard to believe that I am still here... Each morning I awaken with the hope that perhaps this will be the day. Each night as I lay in my cell I wonder how many more nights I will spend trapped behind these insufferable walls.

Many times I have been asked, 'How do you keep your faith alive?' People wonder how I can survive all this with my sanity intact. I tell them, 'With you.'

In the Spirit of Crazy Horse,

Leonard Peltier

Arts & Living

Next Phish to perform in NoHo

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

A couple years ago music fans everywhere were in desperate search for the next Nirvana. Bands like Stone Temple Pilots and Sponge tried to recapture the soul and image of their idols but fell far short.

Today more and more bands bill themselves as the next Phish. But even the most optimistic music fan must conclude that these bands have as much chance of knocking Phish from their golden throne as Silverchair has of being inducted into the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame.

Tonight, Moe, one of the many bands billed as "The Next Phish," will perform at the Iron Horse in Northampton.

Formed over three years ago, Moe's brief history is one of success after success. Their first release, the cassette-only "Fatboy," is now out of print after selling over 2,000 copies. Not bad considering most record stores don't even stock cassette-only releases and most sales were at concerts or through the band's mail order service.

Their new release, "Headseed" has done equally well. They have also opened for such notables as the Spin Doctors, Widespread Panic, the Samples and the Aquarium Rescue Unit. Although the band is often lumped into the same bag as Phish and the Grateful Dead, the band looks at their music as more multidimensional.

Last year guitarist Al Schnier said, "We have so many influences it is hard to pinpoint a style. There are elements of jazz, country, roots, world beat, fusion and funk in our music... Our CD collection is so extensive we have Frank Zappa, Fugazi and the Meat Puppets, for example — and a lot of that comes through. It really is all encompassing."

Could a band often compared to Zappa and the Dead really be influenced by Fugazi? It may come as a shock but these days anything is possible. Moe is a band that thrives on grass roots support as shown by their frequent stops at the Iron Horse in Northampton. Even SPIN ranked them as one of the best, "third generation jam bands." If 10 minute jams intrigue you then check out Moe tonight at the Iron Horse, you may witness "the next Phish."

Moe performs at the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton at 10 p.m. for an all ages show. Tickets are $5 and available at the door. Call the club at 584- 0610 for more details.

Cornwell's latest thriller shines bright

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

PATRICIA CORNWELL
CRUEL & UNUSUAL
SCRIBNER BOOKS

Dr. Kay Scarpetta is a woman for the '90s. Tough and feisty, wielding both a medical degree and law degree, she's the Chief Medical Examiner for the state of Virginia. She's also starring in Cruel & Unusual, a thriller by best-selling author Patricia Cornwell (The Body Farm).

When the body of a young boy is found near a dumpster, it immediately catches her attention. The combination of a methodical murder and unusual markings baffle Scarpetta and her staff. They are soon able to tie this murder with the murder of a popular anchorwoman named Robyn that took place a decade before.

It soon becomes clear that the murderer is no ordinary killer. His name is Temple Gault and unfortunately, he looks so ordinary and is so clever that he is difficult to find.

Not only does Scarpetta have Gault to deal with, she also has her defiant computer whiz niece, Lucy, staying with her. Lucy gets the chance to help when Scarpetta discovers that someone has been breaking into her computer.

Before long, one of her assistants has been murdered and Scarpetta herself is framed for the crime. While there's no doubt in Scarpetta's mind that this is the work of the clever Gault, she finds herself struggling to keep her dignity and job.

The best thing about this book is the unflinching details. In a particularly strong chapter, Scarpetta re-creates Robyn's murder. While it's mind boggling to learn what doctors and scientists can do now, it's also an intense scene, as Cornwell brings back the brutality of the murder.

Cornwell's terse writing and lack of flowery language make the suspense tight and gripping. The creation of the emotionless and methodical Gault as the serial killer we all fear is a burst of genius. For once, it's nice to have a mystery novel that doesn't wrap up nice and neat at the end. A

Blues guitarist to play at gallery

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

The Augusta Savage Gallery celebrates Black History Month tonight with a performance by blues guitarist Carolina Slim at 7 p.m.

Carolina Slim has played the blues for over 40 years. Born Elijah Staley 69 years ago in South Carolina, he presently lives in New York City where he can be found performing in the subways, under the sponsorship of the Manhattan Transit Authority's Music Under New York program. His numerous other credits include appearances in a recent Sprite commercial and a Madonna video.

Citing his influences as a mixture of jazz, blues, African and Caribbean music, Carolina is often compared to Muddy Waters and B.B. King. He prides himself on his innovative style and creativity of his musical approach. He likes to claim that his "guitar speaks for itself."

New York Magazine praised Carolina, saying the guitarist "carries himself with the dignity of a blues legend and when he lays down an agile rhythm on his old Hagstrom and passionately sings one of his low-down tunes of love and loss, you know you've experienced something like the truth."

Also appearing with Carolina will be his 18-year-old student, Jeremiah, who has been studying and playing with him for four years.

The event is free and open to the general public. The Augusta Savage Gallery is located in the New Africa House in the Central Residential Area. The gallery is wheelchair accessible with an entrance at the rear of the building. For more information, call 545-5177.

COURTESY NEW AFRICA HOUSE

Blues guitarist Carolina Slim

Singers hope to score big on holiday

By David Bauder
Associated Press

Love and all its various permutations — lost love, lust and longing — provide lyrical inspiration for most of popular music. So it seems strange that a music industry that lives and dies with hype only recently has discovered Valentine's Day, the one day of the year set aside for lovers.

"It's been a really tepid marketing tie-in," said Pete Howard, editor of the trade newsletter Ice, which monitors when new music is made and released. "It carries the same strength as St. Patrick's Day. It barely registers on the Richter scale."

This year may be different.

The second of the two "new" Beatles songs, "Real Love," is being released to radio stations around Valentine's Day, although it won't be available for purchase until several weeks later.

Sony Legacy is releasing five compilations of old love songs this month, trying to hit a wide range of tastes: country, soul, jazz and blues.

And two favorite singers among lovers of all ages, Barry White and Tony Bennett, plan special interactive events tied to Valentine's Day.

The music business tends to focus on one holiday alone — Christmas. Two, if you count Chanukah, Record companies compete to have their product among the thousands of compact discs gift-wrapped during December.

Some in the industry believe the Christmas rush is overdone, with so many new releases choking music stores that many worthy ones are ignored. Other holidays largely have gone unexplored. No one really knows if lovers can be enticed to open their wallets for sensuous songs around Valentine's Day, because it hasn't been tried to any great extent.

Turn to VALENTINE, page 7

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day

Graduating UMass-Amherst Seniors

Is there something you would like to say immediately before graduating? If so you are invited to submit a proposal for consideration as the Student Commencement Speaker

The Student Commencement Speaker

Who Is Elegible:

Graduating UMass-Amherst Senior.

What You Have To Do:

Submit not more than three word processed or typewritten pages, double spaced, or the equivalent of 3-5 minutes speaking time.

The Subject Matter Is Simple:

Text should Concern higher education, and be relevant to the University and your experience(s) here.

Submit Your Proposal To:

Paul R. Appleby, ADA Compliance Officer, AA/EO Office, 305 Whitmore. If you need additional information please call Paul R. Appleby @ 545-3464.

Deadline:
Wednesday, February 14, 1996, 4:30 p.m.

What Will Be The Selection Process:

A committee of students (majority), staff, and faculty will review the proposals. Authors' names will be deleted prior to the committee's review to ensure objectivity. Ratings will be assigned and selected authors will be invited to "audition" before the committee (in March), after which the finalist will be selected.

THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST
AMHERST, MA
253 3442
We Are Now On OCMP!
10 % DISCOUNT
TO STUDENTS
ALL YEAR
WITH UMASS ID.

"Hey there cowboy, how would ya like to come over to my ranch tonight. Just you me and your copy of the Daily Collegian."

The Daily Collegian
because you should always be prepared

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS always $10.
25 n. pleasant st. amherst 256 0733
145 main st. northampton 586 0155

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

MENTAL HEALTH GROUPS
SPRING '96
SELF EXPLORATION GROUP -- Short Term Process Therapy Groups
Group I – Thursday, 3:45-5 P.M. Begins in mid-February
Group II – Monday, 12:30-2 P.M. Begins in late March
WOMEN'S HEALTH GROUP -- Exploring the Mind-Body Connection
Monday, 3:30-5 P.M.
ADULT CHILDREN OF DYSFUNCTIONAL FAMILIES/NIÑOS ADULTOS DE FAMILIAS DISFUNCIONALES -- in Spanish -- Tuesday, 9-10:30 A.M.
INCREASING SELF-ESTEEM & BUILDING SELF CONFIDENCE
Tuesday, 3:45-5 P.M.
LETTING GO AND MOVING ON -- A Break-up Support Group
Tuesday, 6-7:30 P.M.
WOMEN'S GROUP FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN -- Tuesday, 12:45-2:15 P.M.
EXPLORING GAY AND LESBIAN RELATIONSHIPS
How To Get In, How To Stay In, How To Get Out -- Wednesday, 3:30-5 P.M.
LONG TERM THERAPY GROUP FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS, OLDER STUDENTS, AND UMASS STAFF -- Thursday, 3:30-5 P.M.
Groups begin in early to mid-February. All groups require a pre-group interview. Groups are open to students and to Keiser members whose site is UMS. For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337 or drop by 127 Hills North, M-F, 8-5.

Mega Sale.
Steve Madden Shoes & Boots.
ZINN
Downtown Amherst

TV movie depicts anorexia, bulimia

By Bob Thomas
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — An athletic girl makes an agreement with a friend to lose weight, no matter how — a seemingly innocent pact that leads to a life-threatening crisis.

"A Secret Between Friends," starring Lynda Carter and airing Monday on NBC, deals with the twin problems that afflict many teen-agers: anorexia and bulimia. They can also threaten the lives of adults, as witnessed by the death of singer Karen Carpenter.

This new movie in NBC's "Moment of Truth" series covers familiar ground from a different angle. Carter portrays a single mother who notices her daughter (Katie Wright) is becoming thinner, not unusual for an athlete in training. Then the girl's pact with her teammate (Marley Shelton) comes to light. Complicating the crisis is the return of the girl's father, Josh Taylor ("Beverly Hills 90210").

"I didn't feel this was just a melodramatic 'disease-of-the-week' kind of movie," said Carter, in Washington, D.C. "It was very much dealing with the family dynamic and what causes the disease itself."

The actress did some research with two psychologist friends who deal with anorexia, a personality disorder involving aversion to food, and bulimia, abnormal eating followed by vomiting.

"So I had a lot of insight into what causes the problems," she said. "I really felt comfortable in the role. It was one of those roles that comes along every now and then that you're just able to slip into like a second skin — immediately. It takes a lot of the anxiety away from approaching a role."

Since leaving her four-year stint as "Wonder Woman," Carter has appeared in a number of TV movies, including "Rita Hayworth: The Love Goddess."

"'A Secret Between Friends' is the first time I have played — how shall I put it? — a more mature role," she said. "I have a teen-age daughter. Having young children myself, it's certainly conceivable I could have a teen-age daughter. I really wanted to do something that is in keeping with what my age is, not glamorous.

"More importantly, I liked her. In general, I think I lean toward doing strong women, with vulnerability. At this point in my life, I wanted to do something that had some social significance and redeeming value."

Carter said she believes the basic cause of anorexia and bulimia is not vanity.

"It's a matter of self-image, self-esteem, self-worth," she said. "The girls are usually high-achieving students who are constantly wanting to be perfect at whatever they do.

"For my daughter in the movie, her insecurity stems largely from the divorce of the parents. I'm an attractive mom in the show, a really terrific person. The girl thinks, 'If my mom isn't good enough for my father, how could I ever be in his eyes?' She considers the divorce an abandonment of all of us."

Like Sean Connery with James Bond and Christopher Reeve with Superman, Lynda Carter will forever be associated with Wonder Woman, though it is 16 years since she last portrayed the death-defying Amazon.

"The public really loves that character. It's got a life of its own," she said. "They identify with her, or admire her. She struck a chord, I think, with the public. The show is back on the air now five days a week on the FX channel. It's probably bigger now than it ever was.

"I think that every actor who achieves some celebrity or success always has a role he or she is identified with. I read an interview with Dustin Hoffman who complained that after all his roles, people still say how much they enjoyed him in The Graduate. It's The Godfather for Al Pacino.

"I've done, gosh, how many movies and specials. I don't mind it. It is what it is and I can't change it."

Carter also gained more public attention through her marriage to high-powered Washington lawyer Robert Altman, with whom she has two children — Jamie, 8, and Jessica, 5.

Altman and veteran presidential adviser Clark Clifford were accused of scheming to defraud bank regulators so that a foreign bank, BCCI, could take over a Washington-based bank secretly.

Federal charges against them were dropped, but Altman still went on trial in New York Supreme Court.

After a jury acquitted him in 1993, his actress wife leapt into his arms seconds after the verdict.

"It was a tragic time," Carter recalled. "You watched somebody who had this absolutely sterling reputation go through something like that. I have so much admiration for what my husband is and the kind of strength he has."

"You have to come out of it a changed person," she said. "We have different priorities than we did before. You've heard it a thousand times, but it's your family and your friends who count — family being the most important thing.

CBS show about angels a hit

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Martha Williamson is the kind of writer whose work is so sensitive, so heartfelt, it's made even television executives weep.

But Williamson generally is provoking tears of joy, not sorrow, at CBS. Her series "Touched by an Angel" is one of the few successes at the third-place network in recent memory.

Williamson, a woman of faith as well as talent, is unsurprised that the adventures of busybody angel Monica (Roma Downey) in aid of wayward mortals are popular. Della Reese costars as Tess, Monica's supervisor.

After bouncing around in its debut season last year, "Touched by an Angel" found a Saturday home next to another family show, "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman," and has seen its ratings spiral.

Downey and Reese play "angels with an attitude, the Thelma and Louise of the celestial kingdom," who carry a tough love message from the Boss.

"God has sent me to tell you're on the wrong track, pal, and you better get your act together," said Williamson, giving the shorthand version. "And if you want him to help you, he's available."

Her work on "Touched by an Angel" started with Scriptural research which revealed angels to be a subject ripe for dramatization.

"Oh, they're not recycled dead people," she recalls discovering. "Oh, that's great. Great for storytelling. Because you can have them be 1,000 or 5,000 years old.

"They don't have wings. It's not a special effects show. We don't have people popping in and out, wiggling their noses. They're messengers, they bring comfort and healing and protection."

The fan mail, the ratings, the big name guest stars like Maya Angelou, all are good signs. So were the tears shed by a CBS bigwig while reviewing a script.

"If you're hitting the network executives in their guts every week, people who've seen everything, read everything you must be doing something right."

■ valentine

continued from page 6

"I don't ever recall anybody ever focusing on Valentine's Day as an opportunity and really going after it," said Adam Block, marketing director for Sony Legacy.

His label, which specializes in putting old music into new packages for compact discs, tried a Valentine's Day tie-in for the first time last year by releasing compilations of love songs by the O'Jays, Isley Brothers and Frank Sinatra.

The Isley Brothers package has sold 109,000 copies, according to Soundscan. That's a pretty healthy sales figure for repackaged oldies, and it encouraged Legacy to try again.

Legacy's new releases include a 20-song Billie Holiday compilation, including "All of Me" and "The Way You Look Tonight." The soul collection contains The Isley Brothers' "For the Love of You," Harold Melvin and the Blue Notes doing "Hope That We Can Be Together Soon" and "Best of My Love" by the Emotions.

The country collection includes weepers by George Jones and Willie Nelson. The blues compilations, "Messed Up in Love and Other Tales of Woe" appeals to listeners for whom Valentine's Day is a dirty word.

But not for Tony Bennett, who will be host to a two-hour live concert on the Arts & Entertainment network on Valentine's night.

The network will take telephone requests that night from fans who want to hear a particular song. Bennett also will take requests the day before when he's host of an online chat session on Prodigy.

Then there's the Lord of Love, the Rajah of Romance himself.

Barry White has made a living with pillow talk, so it's expected he will stay busy on the holiday of love.

"He receives a million requests for Valentine's Day," said Doug Richter, White's manager. Radio stations, in particular, are eager to hear White's deep bass voice.

Fans will have to settle for key strokes on a computer. White will be host of an on-line chat session on the Microsoft Network on Valentine's Day where perhaps he'll be coaxed — for the thousandth time — to give advice to lovers.

Although such artists as Jazzy Jackson Browne and the Gin Blossoms have new albums scheduled to come out the day before Valentine's Day, the schedule for record labels shows no major releases particularly timed to the holiday.

One exception is Warner Bros. which might be showing a perverse sense of humor. The company released today the soundtrack to the movie "Thin Line Between Love and Hate."

UMass' Best!

The Collegian Poll Rules:

1. Ballots must be dropped of at The Collegian office in the basement of the Campus Center or mailed to 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003
2. No Photocopied ballots.
3. One ballot per person
4. Ballots must be filled out with reasonable completeness. Ballots with less than half of the blanks filled will be disqualified.
5. Independent Ballot Referees are hired.
6. All Ballots due by Wednesday, February 28, 1996.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian's UMass' Best is intended to be a fair, good natured contest among the local businesses. We encourage all of our readers to experience all of our area's businesses.

Ballot

Name: _____
Address: _____
Phone #: _____
S.S. #: _____

I. UMass Grub
1. Best Pizza Place _____
2. Best Sub Shop _____
3. Best Place to Go on a Date _____
4. Best Place to Eat if Your Parents are Paying _____
5. Best Ice Cream Shop _____
6. Best Chinese Restaurant _____
7. Best Italian Food _____
8. Best Breakfast (Hangover Cure) _____
9. Best Bagel Shop _____
10. Best Vegetarian Place _____
11. Best Northampton Restaurant _____
12. Best Candy Store _____

II. UMass Drink
1. Best Liquor Store _____
2. Best Coffee Shop _____
3. Best Place to Start the Night Out _____
4. Best Place to Finish the Night Out _____
5. Best Shot _____
6. Best Beer _____
7. Best Drinking Game _____
8. Best Bartender (Note Which Bar?) _____
9. Best Northampton Bar _____

III. Shops & Services
1. Best Grocery Store _____
2. Best Florist _____
3. Best Clothing Store _____
4. Best Gas Station _____
5. Best Bike Shop _____
6. Best Bookstore _____
7. Best Hair Salon _____
8. Best Place to Work Out _____
9. Best Tanning Salon _____
10. Best Place to Buy Condoms _____
11. Best Northampton Nik Nak Shop _____

IV. Arts & Entertainment
1. Best Place to Hear Live Music _____
2. Best Local Band _____
3. Best Radio Station _____
4. Best Music Store _____
5. Best Place to Play Pool _____
6. Best Cheap Date _____
7. Best Video Store _____
8. Best Movie _____
9. Best TV Show _____

V. Unique UMass' Best
1. Best Thing About UMass _____
2. Best Apartment Complex _____
3. Best Class _____
4. Best Reason to Miss Class _____
5. Best Reason to Hand in a Paper Late _____
6. Best Professor _____
7. Best Place to Read The Collegian _____
8. Best Excuse for Not Graduating in 4 Years _____
9. Best Place to Study _____
10. Best College Newspaper _____

$5 Gift Certificates to Sweeties of Northampton for the first 50 completed ballots!

All completed surveys will be entered in a drawing to win one of four dinners for two at your favorite restaurant. Winners Drawn March 25, 1996

Sports

Tar Heel's slide extended as Maryland continues to rise

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Freshman Terrell Stokes made three free throws in the final 20.4 seconds yesterday night as Maryland handed No. 12 North Carolina its first home loss of the season, 84-78. Duane Simpkins, who scored 18 points, led a decisive 12-2 second-half run that gave the streaking Terrapins (12-7, 5-4 Atlantic Coast Conference) their sixth win in seven games. The win moved Maryland, which started 0-3 in the league, within 1 1/2 games of North Carolina (16-6, 7-3) and Wake Forest for the ACC lead.

The Tar Heels, who have the best home record in the ACC in the last decade, rallied from a 17-point deficit with 6:04 left to tie the score at 78.

But Stokes hit a pair of free throws with 20.4 seconds left after being fouled on purpose by Shammond Williams, who led North Carolina's comeback with a career-high 17 points.

Williams then turned the ball over on North Carolina's possession and Stokes hit another free throw with 13.2 seconds left.

Stokes missed his second free throw, but Keith Booth, who scored 12 points and had nine rebounds, got the offensive rebound and was fouled. He made one free throw and Simpkins added two more to seal the win.

Maryland, eighth in free-throw shooting in ACC games, made six of eight in the final 20.4 seconds.

Johnny Rhodes tied his own school record with nine steals. The senior also moved within 17 steals of the ACC career record. North Carolina shot 50 percent for the game, but committed 18 turnovers.

After trailing by 17, 18 and 19 points in their previous three games — two of which ended in dramatic comeback wins, the Tar Heels attacked early this time around.

North Carolina grabbed a 21-12 lead after holding Maryland to a basket over a span of 5:32, but the Terrapins countered with a 9-0 run to tie the score with about seven minutes left before intermission.

Maryland led by as many as six late in the period after some poor ballhandling by the Tar Heels. North Carolina turned the ball over on six of 10 possessions and the Terrapins led 37-31 before a foul shot by Antawn Jamison and a 3-pointer by Williams brought the Tar Heels within two at halftime.

No. 4 Connecticut 99, Providence 77

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Doron Sheffer scoped 22 points and Ray Allen added 21 as No. 4 Connecticut capitalized on Austin Croshere's early foul trouble en route to a 99-77 win over Providence on Tuesday night.

Kirk King added 20 points on 9-for-10 shooting for UConn (22-1, 12-0 Big East), which extended its win streak to 21 games and kept the Friars winless in six games at Gampel Pavilion.

Croshere, limited to four minutes and held scoreless before halftime, did his best to keep the Friars (12-8, 5-7) in the game, even after getting his fourth foul six minutes into the second half.

Croshere finished with 16 points, including matching his career best with four 3-pointers, before fouling out with 4:25 remaining and the Friars trailing 76-67.

Eric Hayward finished with 10 points for UConn, which was in the middle of a 15-0 run when Croshere got called for his third foul, and never let the Friars within six points after leading by 27-13 after the spurt.

No. 11 Virginia Tech 69, Duquesne 63

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Keefe Matthews and Damon Watlington scored 17 points apiece as No. 11 Virginia Tech blew a 17-point second-half lead before holding on to beat Duquesne 69-63 Tuesday night.

The Hokies (17-2, 9-1 Atlantic 10) won their 16th straight at Cassell Coliseum.

Mike James, who scored 28 points, brought Duquesne (8-11, 3-7) within 63-60 with 1:16 left after Virginia Tech's Ace Custis missed the front end of a one-and-one.

After Custis, the Hokies' leading scorer, missed a shot the next trip down the court, James missed a jumper and Nick Bosnic rebounded.

But Bosnic's shot underneath with 30 seconds left was blocked by Shawn Smith and Duquesne was forced to begin fouling after Virginia Tech got the ball.

Troy Manns and Watlington made all six of their free throws to seal the victory.

Virginia Tech was ahead 45-28 early in the second half when Duquesne went on a 14-0 run to get back in the game.

Tom Pipkins, the Dukes' leading scorer with 17 points per game, was scoreless until he hit a 3-pointer with 9:28 remaining to bring them within four points.

But Watlington then scored nine points and Matthews, a reserve center playing the best game of his career, had a dunk as the Hokies went ahead 49-58 with 5:38 remaining.

Virginia Tech led 39-24 at halftime after making 58 percent of their shots and holding Duquesne to 36 percent.

Hockey hits South

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — It was a sure sign that Mysticks Mania was careening out of control.

There they were — the Blues Brothers, for crying out loud — slinging-shooting foil-wrapped hot dogs across the arena at a minor league hockey game in the Heart of Dixie.

Were they on a mission from God? Not exactly.

"We're out of T-shirts," explained Jake, the one John Belushi played in the movie.

It was part of this new hockey experience, a foreign kind of pageantry that has swept through one Southern city after another in this outrageously successful experiment on ice.

The Mysticks, one of 13 Southern teams in the 21-team East Coast Hockey League, sell out many of their games in the 8,000-seat Mobile Civic Center. Even though the Mysticks are in last place in the South Division in their inaugural season, the Gulf Coast city is gripped with Mysticks fever.

"Every place I go, I tell them it's got the speed of NASCAR and the physicality of football," Mysticks coach Eddie Johnstone said. "They seem to pick up on that."

In Southern cities, where few have ever watched hockey and fewer have played it, organizers turn the games into an evening of entertainment.

At a recent game between Mobile and the Tallahassee Tiger Sharks, rock music blared over a public address system strong enough to fill a much bigger arena with sound.

There was Puck the Mystick Dragon leading the crowd in a rendition of "YMCA," the ever-popular tune by the Village People. To cater to the youngest fans, the PA announcer read childrens' birthday greetings during breaks in play.

The intermission between the second and third periods, though, was the ultimate expression of this strange Southern hockey brew. While the teams were in the locker rooms, a local radio DJ ushered star players from that weekend's Senior Bowl onto the ice. Bobby Engram of Penn State, Bobby Hoying of Ohio State, Matt Hawkins of Auburn and John Michels of Southern California each teamed up with a fan — shooting footballs into the nets with hockey sticks.

Al Stokes, chief of staff for Mobile Mayor Mike Dow, nearly lost it in the arena's hospitality suite.

"This," he announced, catching his breath, "has never been done before in the history of the world."

Stokes, sipping beers and enjoying the spectacle with his family, recalled what a wacky idea it was to bring a northern sport to a city that knows jazz, football and water sports, but not ice. "I don't think anybody ever imagined that this would kick off like this," Stokes said. "This damn thing is going crazy down here."

Stokes said he made a trip to Tallahassee last fall with some city council members and people from the mayor's staff. The goal was to see how hockey was going over in the Sunshine State, and to see if it could succeed in Alabama, where football and stock car racing are clear favorites.

"We were awed at the size of the crowd," said Stokes, who has also worked in city government in Chicago and noted that some Southern cuisine was available there. "If they can eat grits in Chicago, we can play hockey in Mobile."

ECHL teams are thriving in cities like Charlotte, Nashville and Birmingham. Jacksonville has two minor league teams.

The NHL already has two teams in Florida, and Atlanta and Nashville are courting franchises. The hockey boom is in full bloom.

Local hockey leagues are all the rage among Southern kids, with the best teams from Atlanta traveling to Nashville for tournaments. In Mobile, where the sport is still very new, hockey supply stores are cropping up all over town. There are advertisements for ice and roller hockey leagues. Even figure skating is gaining popularity. "Someone told me that at Kmart, Wal-Mart and Sam's Club, you can buy ice skates," Stokes said. "In Mobile!"

■ magic

continued from page 12

don't have any thoughts about it," Wilkens said. "It's not my decision, so why should I even think about it?"

He would only say he expected the selection committee to evaluate Johnson on the same terms as everyone else.

"That's why you keep two spots open, if someone gets hurt, or if you see that a player is playing great and you want to give him an opportunity," Wilkens said.

Malone is the only true power forward on the current 10-man Dream Team. That also happens to be the position Johnson — 27 pounds heavier than his prime — is now playing with the Lakers. "We have some flexibility with Olajuwan, O'Neal and Robinson," Babcock said. "But if you look at just that position, yeah, that would be a consideration."

Also, Johnson's radiant demeanor would be a perfect fit on a team that doesn't want a repeat of 1994 World Championships, when Dream Team II won the gold but was tainted by the boorish behavior of some players.

"The only other issue that comes into play in our directive from USA Basketball is to make sure we absolutely pay attention to the issue of character," Babcock said.

The Daily Collegian
We fill the void
in your existence.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967

COMING SOON...VALENTINE'S DAY!
Whether you...Want to be funny/play a joke • Want to make a good friend smile
Be a secret admirer • Want to say a little "I love you"

Reserve Your Valentine's Day Collegian Personal by FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9TH for the Collegian's Wednesday, February 14th Valentine's Day Issue.
Place as many as you like - No Limit per person.

For more information call the Collegian @ 545-3500 Drop off order forms @ Collegian in the Campus Center basement or mail to 113 Campus Center, Amherst, MA 01003 (by 2/6)

Client: Date: Taken By: Office Use Only
Date to run: February 14, 1996 Headline: Personals
S.S.# Total Words: X .10¢ rate =
Total Cost (w/specials) Authorized signature:

Specials
Free Red Spot Color w/purchase of a graphic
$2.50 Heart Graphic at Beginning & End ❐
$5 Heart Graphic Border ❐
$7 Heart Shadowed Behind Message ❐
Graphic #1 ♡ ❐
Graphic #2 ❣ ❐
Graphic #3 ❤ ❐
Graphic #4 ❦ ❐

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN/UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
VALENTINE'S DAY CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER
Cash ❐ Check # _____ VISA/MC# _____ Exp._____

ADVERTISING COPY
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10
Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used

UMass Federal Credit Union (located in Student Union)
Excellent Business Experience • Great Resume Builder
Volunteer Teller Positions Available
Teller Information Night: Wednesday, Feb. 5th, 5:00pm
All Are Welcome To Volunteer

JOSEPH CURRAN ASSOCIATES
IMMIGRATION LAW OFFICES
❐ H-1B Specialty Occupations
❐ Labor Certification/Special Handling
❐ 212(e) J-1 Waivers
❐ Outstanding Professor/Researcher
❐ Relative Petitions
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty
1163 Main Street - 2nd Floor, Springfield, MA 01103, 781-6370
13 Old South Street, Northampton, MA 01060, 584-3232
Specializing in IMMIGRATION LAW for over 10 years.

Judie's
Munchie Madness
Nachos Especial (for ...) $7.25 $3.63
Gorgonzola Buffalo Potat... $6.95 $3.48
Shrimp Tempura $6.25 $3.13
Basket of Sweet Potato Fries with honey mustard dip $4.99 $2.50
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

TIME OUT
Budweiser
Snowboard
Giveaway!!!
Ski Passes, Hats, T-Shirts and More
Wednesday Starting at 9 pm
37 N. Pleasant Street
Proper I.D. Required

■ beanpot

continued from page 12

and street corners. In all of these encounters, those representing the school which carries the fabled trophy aloft on the second Monday in February hold the bragging rights for the year.

The showcase itself outdraws any other college hockey event in this hockey-crazed city. Last year's NCAA championships in Providence, the East regionals in Worcester and the Hockey East tournament at the Garden were all met apathetically compared to Monday night's soldout Beanpot FleetCenter debut.

Tickets to the event are always a hot commodity; the Beanpot hasn't seen an empty seat since the equally legendary Blizzard of '78, which occurred on the night of the semifinal round.

With a capacity crowd in its seats Monday night, the palatial new FleetCenter joined the Garden and Boston (now Matthews) Arena as the third host of the tournament.

The lore of the Beanpot ran deep through the venerable Garden, and the big question Monday night was whether the same electricity that typified the Beanpot in years past would carry over and start a new legacy in the FleetCenter.

The building had met mixed reviews from both Bruins and Celtics fans, and whether the new facility (which knew nothing of Billy Cleary, Snooks Kelley or Fernie Flaman) could generate even comparable excitement was in question.

The FleetCenter is not the same old barn where thousands of stranded fans spent the night when Beantown was blanketed under two and a half feet of snow during the Blizzard of '78. It is not the same building where, in 1980, Northeastern jubilantly celebrated an overtime victory over BC to win its first Beanpot, in the tournament's 28th year.

However, after the crowd slowly trickled in from work and fighting rush hour traffic, the FleetCenter was packed with a raucous 17,565, silencing all doubts. The building and the Beanpot itself were hits. The magnitude of the event dwarfing the stage.

"It's always going to be the Beanpot," Northeastern senior co-captain Dan McGillis said. "The tradition just carries over [to the FleetCenter]. It's a great tournament and it's always going to be. The building doesn't change that."

"There wasn't much of a difference," Pandolfo said. "The crowd was in to it just like they were in the old Garden. I like [the FleetCenter], it's a nice place."

In fact, the only gripes about the Beanpot's new home were aired in jest by BU players who felt that the smaller ice surface at the Garden bolstered their physical style of play.

"It's a bigger ice surface, but we like it here too," Terrier forward Mike Grier quipped.

"With the tradition that BU had in the old Garden, I think that some of the ghosts would come over here and we'd be fortunate here too. It's disappointing that I never got to play in a Garden Beanpot, but it's great to be here." Ronan said.

Few in attendance would offer their condolences to the Terriers. Boston University has owned the Garden, reaching the championship game 29 times in the last 33 years and earning the nickname "Beanpot U." in the process. The Terriers, always favored to win, have won the tournament a record 17 times, 10 coming under current coach Jack Parker.

"There's a lot of pressure on us," Grier said. "We're the favorites going into this tournament pretty much every year. Some guys were a little bit nervous [before the game] but we know playing in the Beanpot brings out the best in us."

Things always seem to go the Terriers' way in the tournament. Monday night the puck made several unusual caroms off the boards, all in the BC defensive zone, resulting in BU scoring chances. With the score 2-1 BU in the third period, BC senior Don Chase's scoring bid at a mostly open net clanked off the post.

The first of many future Beanpot memorable moments at the FleetCenter was written with 6:52 to play in the semifinal between BC and BU, as the Terriers sealed the victory on a wacky deflection of a low slapshot by Ronan, playing in his first Beanpot game.

The puck went off of Eagle defenseman Peter Masters' stick and was redirected upstairs where it then bounced off of handcuffed goaltender Greg Taylor's blocker. It then bounced off his glove, rolled off the top of his helmet, down his back and then slowly tricked into the goal.

"It was a slapshot that hit off our defenseman's stick, bounced up and I just lost sight of it," Taylor recalls. "I felt it hit my glove, but I had no idea where it went. By the time I turned around it had already gone in.

"Sometimes when you get two teams that have been playing so well, and two teams that are really equal, the bounces will decide the game. They did in this case."

Such is the magic of the Beanpot. With players reaching unheard of adrenaline levels, no team can be counted out at any point of the game.

"I knew that this was the Beanpot and everyone was going to come out and play real well," BU forward Matt Wright, from Belmont said. "The Beanpot brings out the best in both teams."

With emotions running at such unprecedented levels, upsets are a common occurrence on the first two Mondays in February. Historically the Northeastern Huskies have been the team making the upsets happen. NU has won the tournament, which started in 1952, just four times, all coming between 1980 and 1988.

The Crimson had downed the Huskies earlier in the season at Matthews Arena, but NU beat Harvard when it counted, The 4-1 win put the Huskies in the championship game for just the first time since their 1988 title. No current coach or player was even associated with the Huskies at that time.

"When do they play [the final]?" coach Ben Smith asked reporters at the post-game press conference. "What is it, the nightcap? [What was I doing in] 1988? I think I was in Calgary then. I don't know."

A Beanpot win can make a dreadful season, and foil an otherwise perfect one. The 1994 Boston College Eagles were a slumping sub-.500 team under the direction of the soon-to-be-removed coach Steve Cedorchuk, but they won the Beanpot and are remembered highly at the Heights.

Entering the tournament with an 8-13-4 mark, the Huskies will be remembered in a similar light with a win over BU Monday night. This fact has not eluded the Husky seniors.

"I've been here for four years and the last few years have been tough," senior goaltender Mike Veisor said. "We haven't played well in the Beanpot. Now, it's pretty special to be able to look in the mirror and say that we won and we've got a shot at the title."

"From what I hear we haven't won in eight years," Northeastern sophomore forward Scott Campbell said. "But, we won tonight."

For the players, students and alumni who have a year's worth of bragging rights at stake, for the players who have worked hard towards their Beanpot championship goal, and for the teams who's seasons are at stake; on the first two Mondays in February in Beantown, which school wins is all that matters.

Leigh Torbin is a Collegian columnist.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY SPORTS INFORMATION

Boston University forward Matt Wright celebrates scoring the final goal in the Terriers' 5-1 win over Boston College in last year's Beanpot championship game.

Massachusetts 73, Fordham 47

At Madison Square Garden
MASSACHUSETTS (22-0)
Bright 6-12 0-1 12, Dingle 2-5 1-2 5, Camby 11-17 4-7 26, E.Padilla 4-7 0-0 9, Travieso 0-5 1-2 1, Weeks 4-4 0-0 8, Norville 2-4 0-0 5, Cottrell 0-0 0-0 0, Clarke 1-3 2-5 4, Nunez 0-2 2-4 2, G.Padilla 0-2 0-0 0, Burns 0-1 1-2 1, Maclay 0-0 0-0 0. Totals 30-62 11-23 73.
FORDHAM (2-17)
Berrien 1-3 2-3 4, Henry 2-6 2-5 6, Mack 1-6 1-2 3, Lovett 3-8 2-3 8, DiMascio 3-6 0-0 8, Deschryver 5-10 2-2 12, Mascia 1-4 0-0 2, Baxter 0-1 0-0 0, Carroll 0-1 4-6 4, Barrett 0-0 0-0 0, Browne 0-0 0-0 0, Kissane 0-0 0-2 0. Totals 16-45 13-23 47.
Halftime-Massachusetts 27, Fordham 26. 1-Point goals-Massachusetts 2-10 (Norville 1-1, E.Padilla 1-3, G.Padilla 0-1, Burns 0-1, Bright 0-2, Travieso 0-2), Fordham 2-6 (DiMascio 2-4, Berrien 0-1, Lovett 0-1). Fouled out-Mack. Rebounds-Massachusetts 41 (Dingle 8), Fordham 32 (Berrien 7). Assists-Massachusetts 12 (E.Padilla 4), Fordham 12 (Lovett 3). Total fouls-Massachusetts 21, Fordham 20. Technical-Fordham coach Macarchuk. A-9,695.

Player of the Game

Marcus Camby – 26 points, three rebounds, two blocks

■ hoop

continued from page 12

A Tyrone Weeks basket (eight points, seven boards) underneath with 5:31 left, increased UMass' lead to 23 and from them on the lead never dipped below that amount. A Camby (26 points, two blocks) slam with 4:32 left gave the Minutemen a 66-41 lead and put the finishing touch on the victory.

"When you're 2-17, there's no such thing as a moral victory," Fordham coach Nick Macarchuk said. "You either win or lose. There's no such thing as coming close or just working hard, we lost."

Deschryver finished with a team high 12 points while DiMacio and Billy Lovett finished with eight points a piece. Donta Bright finished with 12 points and three steals as Edgar Padilla had nine points, four assists, and a game high five steals.

Weeks turned in another solid performance off the bench, finishing with eight points, seven boards, and one block.

"Weeks is turning into a very good player," Macarchuk said. "He's becoming better and better as time goes on."

"I think Tyrone is playing great basketball right now," Calipari said.

■ guard

continued from page 12

made the backcourt fearless in situations where it needed to perform.

Last night after a lackluster, at best, first half, Padilla picked up the Minutemen with his defense making several steals and assists to help UMass pull away and cruise to a 73-47 victory. Padilla finished with nine points, but more importantly five steals and four assists while committing only one turnover.

In the Minutemen's pursuit of perfection, the latest scare was provided by Xavier on Sunday. After hitting only one lay-up all game, Padilla knocked down a pull-up three- pointer with 15 seconds remaining to send the game into overtime. In OT, his fearless attitude ended the game for the Minutemen.

Acknowledging Camby's presence in the middle, having the ability to block or alter shots, Padilla was allowed to overplay the ballhandler. He poked the ball away from behind and Clarke went in for an uncontested layup, providing the winning 78-74 margin.

■ hall

continued from page 12

all three coaches deserved induction. But looking at what each has done for, or to, the game, the Hall voters were wrong not to honor Lewis and Haskins.

These two set themselves apart from Tarkanian. Where Lewis and Haskins are among the legendary coaches, Tark is among the infamous. If Haskins and Lewis have elevated the game, than Tark has brought it down.

Induction into the Naismith Memorial is a tribute to the most deserving members of the basketball community. In a day and age when corruption runs rampant in sports, these two devoted and dedicated members of the coaching ranks should hear the applause they so richly deserve.

Casey Kane is a Collegian Staff member.

Collegian Graphics,
our job is done
when your day is just begining

U-SAVE AUTO & TRUCK RENTAL
North Amherst Motors
CARSTAR
78 Sunderland Rd.
North Amherst, MA
549-RENT
Rental Weekend Special
Noon Friday to Monday AM - Starting at $49.95
• Cars - Mini Vans
• Trucks
• Cargo Vans
• 15 Passenger Vans
• Low Daily/Weekly/Weekend Rates
• We Rent to Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older
• Direct Billing To Insurance Co.
(One Mile from UMass bus route)

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

AEROBICS
253-3539

Career Fair
February 14, 1996
OLDE, America's Full Service Discount Broker℠, is looking for motivated people to establish a career in the stock brokerage business.
OLDE offers:
4-12 month paid training program
Potential six-figure income
Excellent benefits
If you possess excellent communication skills, general market knowledge and the desire to excel, see us at the Career Fair on February 14, 1996.
If you are unable to attend the Career Fair call:
1 800 937-0606
or send resume to:
OLDE Discount Stockbrokers
National Recruiting
751 Griswold Street
Detroit, MI 48226
OLDE DISCOUNT STOCKBROKERS
Member NYSE and SIPC
An Equal Opportunity Employer

TRAVEL SMART! FROM NEW YORK
One Way / Roundtrip
LONDON $134 $268
PARIS $171 $341
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $240 $480
TOKYO $752
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420
800-272-9676
In NYC

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Families
Tuesday, February 21, 1996 • 6:30 - 8:00 p.m.
Murray Lincoln Campus Center, UMass
Room 904-08
I think my roommate has an eating disorder.
How can I be sure? What should I do?
I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help.
How can I convince her to see a professional?
Who should I suggest.. Where should she go?
I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia.
She says it's under control, but I don't think it is.
I'm really afraid... What can I do to help?
If you are concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this Informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.
For more information, please call University Health Services 549-2671, Clinic 4 - ext. 233 or 234

COME SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT...
SHAB
Gain Experience in Administrative Aspects of Health Care
Sponsor Health Promotion Events
Come join the Student Health Advisory Board
Informational meeting:
Wed. Feb. 7, 5:30 -6:30pm
University Health Services Rm. 304
For more info call Tamara at the Health Education Office 549-2671x181

WEDNESDAY IS RAFFLE NITE AT MIKE'S
Mike's Big One
MIKE'S WESTSIDE CAFE
22 oz. Cup of Lite $1.25
Prizes This Week . . .
• Mike's T-Shirts
• $100 in Mike's Mad Money
• Bud Beer Buckets
• 2 Tickets to the Bruins at the Fleet Center
COCKTAIL OF THE WEEK: SEA BREEZE

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Skiers and Snowboarders Join UMass #1 club The UMass Ski Club 436 Student Union 545-3437

ANNOUNCEMENTS

University Productions & Concerts - UPC Come see what concert productions is all about at our General Committee meeting tonight at 8:00 in room cc 804-08 Everyone is welcome Come get involved

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 VW BUS well maintained and from TX $7,000 Call Ben 256-1835.

EMPLOYMENT

WMUA News needs you! We are looking for anchors field reporters, and news casters for daily newscasts Many more positions are also available For more information come down to our offices in 105 Campus Center or call 545-2876 and ask for Alexandra

Ski + Snowboard - Campus reps needed Springbreak 96 intercollegiate ski weeks 5 day lift ticket condo lodging 5 nights parties + activities Mt Orford Canada (near Vermont) (Driving age 18) Trip only $219 Reps earn free trips cash new equip etc Call ski travel unlimited 1 800 999 2019

National Parks hiring - Positions are now available at National Parks Forests and Wildlife Preserves Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1 206 971 3620 Ext N50613

Undergrad Network Manager Manage the LSB Peer to Peer Network Help the student businesses maximize system productivity Computer Science background or experience a plus Applications accepted through February 14 409 Student Union 545-2167

Undergraduate Business Consultant work with Earthfoods Peoples Market and many others Great business computer and group experience Applications accepted until February 16 409 Student Union 545-2271

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000+ month world travel seasonal & full time positions No exp necessary For info call 1 206 971 3550 Ext C50612

Teach English in Asia Make up to $25-$45/hr teaching basic conversational English in Japan Taiwan China Thailand Indonesia & S Korea Many employers provide room & board & other benefits No teaching background or Asian languages required For more information call (206) 971 3570 Ext J50613

EMPLOYMENT

Alpha student jobs: Great $$$! Thousands of jobs available Male/Female Room/board/transport often provided No exper nec GDI 919 933 0188 Ext A1040

$ Cruise ships hiring! Students needed! $$$ + free travel (Caribbean, Europe Hawaii) Seasonal/permanent, no exper necessary GDI 919 929 4398 Ext C1040

Alaska employment - Fishing industry earn up to $3,000 - $6000+ per month Room and board! Transportation! Male/female No experience necessary! (206)971 3510 ext A6560012

$40,000/yr income potential Home typists PC users Toll free 1 800 898 9778 ext T 1732 listings

LOBBYING

Help UMASS Jam to lobby and earn credit too! SCERA is hiring one credit lobbyists for Spring state budget campaign Four trips to statehouse Training provided Apply with letter of intent to Dr Marc Kenen SCERA Director 424 Student Union by Thursday February 8th at 5:00 p.m Successful candidates will be notified on February 9th

Wanted Tour Guides New Students Program summer counselors and admissions reps Pick up applications on Campus Center concourse or at the Admissions Center Limit Feb 9

Jobs at GEO 3 interim positions available (20 hrs) office coord grievance coord contract campaign coord open $17 30/hr Stop by GEO SU 201 for more info Deadline Fri Feb 9 pending approval

Flight tuition and fees and earn credit too! SCERA is hiring campus organizers for Spring campaign! Three credits for ten hours per week Includes two nights per week Work primarily in dorms and classrooms Apply with letter of interest to Dr Marc Kenen 424 Student Union 545-0709 by Thursday February 8th @ 5:00pm Successful candidates will be notified on Feb 9

$25,000/yr income potential Reading books Toll 1 800 898 9778 ext R 1732 for details

Summer Positions: Mgmt positions in Boston and Hartford Great resume builder Possible internship Summer earnings $8000+ (realistic) Strong work ethic and great attitude a must! Call N E Collegiate Painters at 1 800 589 9939

Counselors Camp Wayne Sister/Brother Camp Pennsylvania 6/10 8/18/96 Have the most memorable summer of your life! Coaches, teachers and college students needed to teach at specialty areas Many other jobs available on campus interviews February 28th Interviews held in Student Union Ballroom 10 4pm For appl and more information call 1 800 279 3019

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals 253 9742

FOR SALE

Bed for Sale Twin mattress box spring & frame $70 OBO 5 Disk CD Changer $70 also Call Craig 253 2777

486/100MHZ Emg RAM 850HD needs IDE controller Printer monitor mouse keyboard $900 Call Amerita 549 3884

Furniture - Desk bookshelves, large dorm size fridge two antique bar stools All prices negotiable Call 2568862 for more information

I have used books for sale Physics 161 162 Math 131 132 Econ 190 autocad release 12 Jamesh People II 102 I also have a head tennis racket pd 250 will sell for $100 Call Jeff for prices 6 2733

19 inch color TV bought last year need cash $150 or BO 253 2156 George

19 inch color TV bought last year need cash $150 or BO 253 2156 George

1/3 CT White Diamond Solid For $1800 need $400 ASAP Steve 865 2738

Macintosh Color Classic II 8/80 Mouse Keyboard Software $695 call 256 0080

Space Guest 6 CD ROM $30 call Brian 6 1243

FOUND

Swiss Army Knife on Campus Center on 2/1/96 Call 549 6218

HOUSE FOR RENT

Cape Cod Group Summer Rentals Waterfront Houses Falmouth Area 508 477 8000

INSTRUCTION

Free Week February 4 11 Music Acting Dance lessons Performing arts division 73 Ranfrett Hall 545 0519

Learn to Scuba Dive 2 credits GPE G 09 800 282 0977 / 545 7338

LOST

Lost from DU Drive 126 black check organizer bag + brown leather tool bad contains important electronic equipment Floha 96 Oscilloscope + various tools reward offered Please call 413 253 1914

MISCELLANEOUS

Beautiful, friendly, 7 month cat needs loving home Please call ASAP 253 4627

PERSONALS

Rachel, I'm sorry for everything I did I want us to be back together If you can forgive me please meet me at the Blue Wall on Tuesday at noon Rose

PERSONALS

To the hot guy in my Psych 101 class I'd really like to get to know you better I'm the brunette on the third row If you're interested I have lunch in the Coffe Shop every day and would love some company The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega welcome everyone back for Spring Lots of luck!

ROOM FOR RENT

One Room on bus route for $200 plus 1/3 utilities Call us at 665 4758

Room Downtown Quiet, private Lease $300/mo inclusive 253 4236 9 pm 6 pm

ROOM FOR RENT

Female Housemate Wanted share a room $170/mth incl heat call Cando 549 6694

Vegetarian, non-smoking, semi-cooperative household seeks 25+ Car needed $250+ 584 6441

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students Contact us at 917 Campus Center 545 1995

Need Help writing a resume Let a professional do it for you Special student rate! Call Lori 253 1882

TRAVEL

Cancun Spring Break Best party prices from $249! America's premier travel company earn free trips and highest commissions! Call 800 798 1609 for info

Spring Break! Book Now! Spring Break '96 With only 1 week to live don't blow it!! Book Now! Florida & Padre $109! Bahamas $359! Jamaica/Cancun $399! Organize a group Travel free! Sunsplash Tours 1 800 426 7710

Hot! Hot! Hot! New metabolism break through Lose 8 10lbs Guaranteed results 1 800 600 7389

Scuba Dive Key Largo FL during Spring Break 2 credits GPE E 10 1 800 282 0977 545 7338

Spring Break!
Cancun $499
Daytona Ft $119
Panama City, FL $158
Best prices and hotels!
Call Herb 256 6110

Spend Spring Break with whom you know! Jamaica $549, steamboat $315, Killington #2091 UMass ski club 545 3437

Quebec Weekend!! Feb 16 19 Board, ski, and party with the UMass Ski Club 545 3437

Australia 4 credit course Contemporary Society Down Under For brochure call (413) 549 6741

TRAVEL

Looking for some quick, extra pocket money Collegian needs some people to be ballot rafaraas for a Collegian Poll Call 545 3500 for more information

Australia 4 credit course Contemporary Society Down Under For brochure call (413) 549 6741

Hitch the Skies Cambi/Mex only $189 A/T Europe $169/ low domestic rates Ambuch 1 800 326 2009

Organize a full busload Earn five free roundtrip tickets to your spring break destination We'll pick you up on campus send you straight to spring break At the end of the week we pick you up and send you back to school 1 800 600 1657 Ask for Liz

WANTED

Student basketball ticket wanted vs Temple Paying $25 538 3106

Student/Reg Temple ticket needed $30 Leave name/No 1 800 385 5612 x7103

Student/Reg Temple ticket needed $30 Leave name/No 1 800 385 5612 x7103

Are you sick of watching Congress wreck our environmental laws? Become a CLEAN WATER ACTION organizer & start working now to elect pro environment candidates in November Have fun work w/great people & get paid to save the planet! $6 $8/hr Flexible schedule 584 9830

If you really want your sweetheart to know you care about her, show her how big your heart can be, without having to show her how big your wallet is.

Try Collegian Valentine's Day Personals

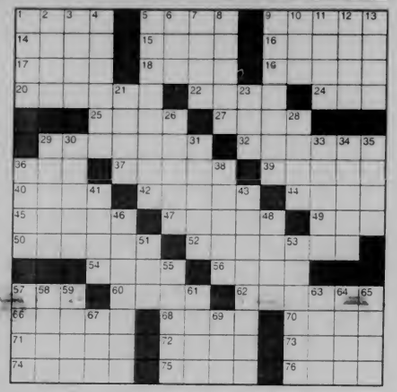
They're sweet...

I FOUND IT IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

THEY WORK FOR YOU

545-3500

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE



ACROSS

1. Mexican metal
5. Actor Edelman
9. Below
14. Contemporary of Douglas and Ike
15. Fat
16. Kite claw
17. Sprited
18. A Room with a ___
19. Go-between
20. "___ Who Had a Heart"
22. Make a phone call
24. Tricky curve
25. Bereft
27. Iniquity
29. Private screening
32. Oak droppings
36. "You ___ Love"
37. Middle ear part
39. Pens
40. Mattress size
42. Jinn
44. Alexander Graham Bell, by birth
45. Nonpareil
47. ___-Cop (Reynolds-Minnelli film) (2 words)
49. Entity
50. Gravity theorist
52. Duke's bride
54. One with a select guest list
56. Noah's son
57. Writer Deighton
60. Actor Evigan
62. Communicate
66. "Goodnight" girl of song
68. Kind of cloth
70. Taradiddler
71. Borrowed sums
72. Lana of "Superboy" comics
73. Garfield's friend
74. Ait
75. Fraternal brothers
76. Cole Porter's alma mater

DOWN

1. Novelist Emile
2. Poker player's words
3. Armed fleet
4. Jambalaya cuisine
5. Lingering about
6. Certain Ivy Leaguer
7. Journalist John
8. Pioneer Jim
9. Leaning letters
10. Browbeat
11. Attorney ___ Bailey
12. Nessen and Ely
13. Colony insects
21. Smoked salmon
23. Gardner of Hollywood
26. When pigs fly
28. Land parcels
29. Self-respect
30. Extend a subscription
31. ___ and dined
33. Grates potatoes
34. Store signs
35. Some planes
36. Related
38. Lucy's brother
41. Hoods' weapons
43. Playboy's "lure"
46. The ___ Yard (Reynolds film)
48. Attention getter
51. "___ gloom of night"
53. Utilize
55. Miss Scarlett, e.g.
57. ___ Marleen (1981 film)
58. Friend of Antony in Antony and Cleopatra
59. Harlem Globetrotter Curly
61. Gretzky's quest
63. Verdi work
64. Banister
65. Sycamore, e.g.
67. Compass pt.
69. Quill user's need

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — (This could be the best day of your week!) An upsurge of confidence is indicated. Do not let wealthy friends decide what is best for you financially. Gambling tips are unlikely to pay off.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — When considering a change, remember that being comfortable is very important to you. Lifestyle decisions should not be dictated by money alone. A friend's invitation could lead to romance.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — A misunderstanding at home could hamper progress at work. A compromise will clear the air. Keep your ambitions in proper perspective. Self-restraint is essential.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — The work scene will be more crowded than usual. Dress your best and seek the limelight. Put your artistic talents on display. A good evening for anything that gives you food for thought.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Your go-getter attitude moves you closer to financial security. Others acknowledge your accomplishments. A raise or promotion is possible. Pooling funds with a friend for fun and profit, proves highly rewarding.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — A bold approach will impress your co-workers. Tackle new tasks with confidence. Choosing your words carefully will prevent misunderstandings. Voicing your heartfelt concerns helps create good feelings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Friends may be well-intentioned but poorly informed. Do not rely on the information they provide. A curtailed social schedule keeps you on a steady course where work is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Becoming a member of a special team or group holds great promise. By joining forces with others, you gain companionship. Romance is a source of joy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Family ties are strengthened in meaningful ways on this red letter day. Influential people express admiration for your abilities. A promotion or new job offer is likely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — Lend a sympathetic ear to a troubled friend or co-worker. Trust your intuitive promptings in business. Turn away from eccentric ideas and serve humanity with humility. Family ties can be strengthened through tact and affection.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Dust yourself off after a rude awakening. Planning a new strategy will help you get back on track. A new romantic attachment should be happy. Give your loved ones your undivided attention this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Move forward with confidence. New business ventures enjoy highly favorable. The financial picture looks brighter. Creative inspiration comes from several different sources. A shopping trip will uncover some good bargains. Avoid going overboard.

The Daily Collegian

Every day a healthy dose of news, arts, sports and more from UMass and the Five Colleges. If it isn't in the collegian it didn't really matter anyway.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

WELL, HERE HE IS... THE YOUNG PRINCE, OFF TO COLLEGE, ABOUT TO SEE HIS GREAT DORM ROOM!
HE'LL HOLD FABULOUS PARTIES IN THE ROOM AND GROW INCREDIBLY POPULAR...
--BUT WAIT! THE KEY WON'T TURN! THE PRINCE CAN'T GET INTO HIS ROOM...
HE'LL HAVE TO CAMP IN THE HALL AND BECOME KNOWN AS THE CORRIDOR GEEK. COMPUTER SCIENCE MAJORS WILL STORM HIM-- YO, KID, THAT KEY TURNS CLOCKWISE.
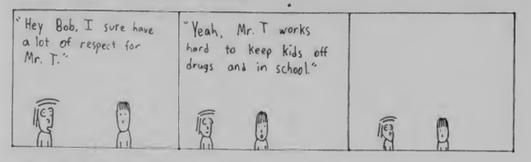
THE PRINCE IS SAVED! EMBARRASSED, BUT SAVED!

Jim's Journal By Jim

Today Tony gave me some tips on how to write resumes and cover letters.
"I know how to do all that crap," he said.
He said you have to use action words in your resume.
And he showed me exactly how you fold a cover letter.

Loser Crew Comics By Mike Krozy



Clue Man By Galen

Hey UMass, Clue Man is back and this semester, I have ... are missing!
My name is Ralph Henke. I have no money, no car, I'm not in a band, I've never been to a Farmhouse party, and I hate that show Friends. How am I be popular
You can Start by Dressing
Sorry. I get nervous around people in masks.
ever going to here?!?

Tool Box By Mike-Steve-Arne

Milkwood By Neil Golden

YOU KNOW, I READ IN NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC THAT RABBIT HAVE TWO KINDS OF... UM PELLETS.
ONE KIND OF, ERM... PELLET... IS RE-EATEN BY THE RABBITS BECAUSE IT STILL RETAINS SOME ORIGINAL NUTRIENTS.
SO?
TIC-TAC?

Dilbert By Scott Adams

WHY IS IT THAT THE PEOPLE WITH THE LEAST NEED FOR STORAGE SPACE HAVE THE BIGGEST OFFICES?
I KNOW! YOU'RE USING YOUR OFFICE AS KIND OF A LIVING MONUMENT TO INEFFICIENCY!
IS THIS BECAUSE I WOULDN'T LET YOU GET A FILE CABINET?
WHERE WOULD I PUT IT? MY CUBICLE IS FULL OF STACKS OF PROPRIETARY DOCUMENTS.

The Nuckle Buster By Dug

My friend Jeff Always locks the doors when he's driving.
"Car-jacking is a reality" he says.
Sometimes we laugh at him.
Sometimes we beat him up and take his CAR.

Hannah's World By Me

You Know something weird?
I'm friends with Leah, Nancy's roommate.
And my roommate Maureen is friends with Nancy!
Of course, now we're all friends. But isn't that weird?

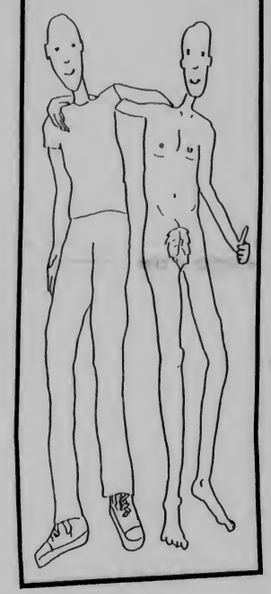
Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I've been trying for about a year to get a part time job. I filled out a ton of applications.

All last summer I went to bed with my pants on... I did that just in case they called me in the morning. I wanted to be ready.

But I think there was a flaw in my approach. I should've been fresh. Fresh is more important than ready.

I should've gone to bed naked. Fresh is more interesting..



Close to Home By John McPherson

Common parenting nightmares

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Jacob W. Michaels
Copy Editor.....Tara MK Connelly
Photo Technician.....Julio A. Cordero
Production Supervisor.....Marc Dionne
Production.....Brian Inocencio
Marianne Haner

Company Choose By Kevin Tracy

Gorbachev Frosty

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Dining Commons Menu

Menu unavailable. Please refer to this guide to help you decide where to eat.

1. First, go get some dice (6 sided, preferably).
2. Find one you like, and roll it.

If you roll:

- Go to Franklin D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Berkshire D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Hampshire D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Worcester D.C. for dinner.
- Get Pizza for dinner!
- Roll again.

Quote of the Day

"Brown [University] has no requirements, so you end up with a lot of smart, articulate people who are not qualified to do anything."

–Bill Flanagan, '77 Brown graduate

Sports

UMass spoils Fordham's Garden party

Fearless guard play has keyed UMass

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

NEW YORK — The Massachusetts men's basketball team should just throw its black uniforms away, because they have never been anything but bad luck.

The first time the Minutemen wore black was last season and they lost their No. 1 ranking in a 78–75 setback at George Washington (Feb. 4, 1995). The next time they donned black was in this season's first exhibition game against Dinamo of Russia, and in that contest which despite winning, UMass didn't play particularly well.

Last night, UMass wore black for just the third time in its matchup with Fordham. The Rams were just 2–16 and the Minutemen came in as 29 point favorites. No problem, right?

Wrong. After falling behind 21–8 early on, the Rams staged a remarkable comeback (17–0 run) temporarily taking the lead, before falling to the No. 1 ranked Minutemen 73–47 at Madison Square Garden.

It was the inspired play of Chris DiMascio that keyed the Rams' run. The 6–foot–6 sophomore grabbed two big steals and drilled two huge treys, the first pulling the Rams within four and the second giving Fordham its first lead 22–21 with 2:29 left in the half.

"You have to give Fordham credit, Nick [Macarchuk] had them ready to play," UMass coach John Calipari said. "They played physical and out–rebounded us in the first half."

Darren Deschryver was big in the run as well, scoring eight points including the first and last baskets of the Rams' incredible 17–0 run, that turned a 13–point deficit into a four point lead for the Rams. Fordham increased their lead 25–21 before UMass regrouped to take a one–point half time lead 27–26.

"That was one of the greatest feelings being up 25–21, but looking at our record, it doesn't feel as good," said Deschryver. "We were hustling, playing with so much enthusiasm out there, but in the second half, it wasn't there."

After a slow start in the second half, the Minutemen finally woke up putting the game out of reach with a 27–7 run after intermission. Marcus Camby keyed that run with nine points.

"In the second half, after coach Cal ripped us, we got it going," Camby said. "[From now on] everybody has to come to the games more focused, myself included."

DAYMON SMITH – COLLEGIAN STAFF

Donta Bright scored 12 points as the Minutemen demolished the Fordham Rams 73–47 at Madison Square Garden last night.

Turn to HOOP page 9

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

NEW YORK — In last year's NCAA Tournament game with Oklahoma State, the Massachusetts men's basketball team was without the services of guard Edgar Padilla. In that 68–64 loss, the ankle injury to the UMass point guard of the future, went a long way in keeping the Minutemen from the Final Four.

That injury to Padilla pushed fellow sophomore Carmello Travieso into the starting line–up, as he was the only other true guard on John Calipari's bench.

Travieso stepped up with 11 points, exactly his average this season. But it wasn't enough as UMass' season ended. The lack of depth in the position hurt last year's post–season run, and many felt it may be the Minutemen's downfall this season as well. It turned out to be a strength.

Even with freshman Charlton Clarke breaking a bone in his foot during the Kentucky game, it has been the play of the guards that gets as much attention as leading Player of the Year candidate Marcus Camby. It may be that the two entities make each other that much better.

The four games in which Camby was out of the line–up, the UMass backcourt was forced to collapse into the lane, allowing opposing clubs to shoot a higher percentage from the outside. The best three–point shooting performance against the Minutemen was Duquesne's 8–14 (.571 percent) shooting from downtown, in UMass' third game without its center.

Since Camby's return, Padilla and Travieso, along with a now healthy Clarke, have been able to worry about guarding their own men and extending the defense. Case in point, opponents are shooting 17 percent from behind the arc since the Hartford native's return from his collapse. That includes an 0–15 shooting performance by arch–rival Temple, who used the trey to beat the Minutemen in their previous trip to McGonigle Hall, when the Owls hit 64 percent of their long range bombs.

Defense isn't the only way the UMass guards can beat you. The Minutemen used clutch shooting by Travieso to knock off upset–minded Pittsburgh (27 points) and Duquesne (33 points). The confidence that the duo has developed has also

Turn to GUARDS, page 9

Beanpot mystique lives on after the Garden era

Justin Torbin on College Hockey

When you grow up playing hockey in the Boston area there are certain dates you circle on your calendar at the beginning of the year. Your birthday, various holidays and school vacations are marked, along with the first two Mondays in February.

These two Mondays are magical evenings. For two wondrous nights the Boston area college hockey community converges on Causeway Street to see the city's four Division I schools battle for the almighty Beanpot.

For hockey players at Boston College, Boston University, Harvard and Northeastern these are the biggest two nights of the season and a career. Bigger than any league game. Bigger than any league playoff game, and often even bigger than NCAA tournament games.

When Harvard won its first national championship in 1989 (a thrilling overtime win over Minnesota, in St. Paul no less) many fans were actually happier that the 1989 Crimson snapped an eight year Beanpot drought. That meaningless little NCAA Championship was just icing on the cake.

"I don't think you can compare the Beanpot with any regular season game," Harvard senior goaltender Tripp Tracy said. "There's just something special about it and it provides the players a great opportunity. It is unique and I don't think you can compare it justifiably with any other game."

For a player bred in Beantown that has walked up the dingy, beige colored ramps into the Garden to see the tournament, actually playing in the Beanpot can be overwhelming. Skating out onto the ice evokes incomprehensible feelings. Instantly creating eternal memories.

"I've been sick for the past couple of days, but when I got out on the ice I was just awestruck," BU freshman Dan Ronan from Woburn said. "My whole life I've sat in the stands and watched Beanpots. This is great. It's my first one and I've been waiting my whole life for this. I'm real excited. When I got out there I was so excited that I didn't think I was sick anymore."

"Every time, it's so exciting playing on the first two Mondays in February," Terrier captain Jay Pandolfo, of Burlington said. "It's been a great experience and I wish I didn't have to leave. I love it."

"It was a pretty incredible feeling," BC freshman Chris Masters of Lexington said of his experience. "I've played in front of big crowds, but nothing like this. You go out there and you're in awe the first couple of shifts. You're playing on emotion alone. Then you settle into it and you sit on the bench and look around and see just how big and how important this is to your team and your whole school. Everyone around campus asked how we were going to do."

The rivalries between the Beanpot schools are amplified to an incomparable level by the proximity and frequent contact between the institutions.

Starting at Northeastern's Matthews Arena on Massachusetts Ave. heading north, just taking a left on Commonwealth Ave. will bring you to the campuses of both BU and BC, while Harvard is just a stone's throw across the river. The trip should take 15 minutes barring major traffic delays.

The intensity of four–way rivalries in other hockey hotbeds can not compare as they lack a similar proximity. Michigan teams stage the Great Lakes Invitational, while the Colorado teams host the Denver Cup, but the schools involved in these tournaments are separated by miles of lonely interstate. Students from Michigan State seldom see students from Michigan Tech on an average day.

Students and alumni from Beanpot schools frequently mingle throughout the cramped city of Boston. They see each other in bars and clubs, on the Green line

Turn to BEANPOT, page 9

Polls have become a study in stupidity

Matt Vautour

The question is: Who do you trust? You're thinking about just which are the top 25 men's basketball teams and you're wondering where to look.

There are polls designed for this very purpose. Media polls, coaches' polls, fan polls, magazine polls, May polls, the North Pole, etc.

You quickly eliminate the Burger King poll, any top 25 from a magazine you've never heard of, and any list that includes Cal–Poly San Luis Obispo. You're left with the Associated Press Top 25 and the USA Today/CNN Coaches Poll.

Which one, you wonder, is the most accurate, the one that will really tell you which are the top 25 teams in the nation.

As you scan both of the most respected polls in the game, immediately there are question marks.

• Both Texas Tech (18–1) and Eastern Michigan (16–2) are listed in both polls. Looking at their records, this doesn't seem like quite a monstrosity, but who are all those wins against?

Well, the Red Raiders' victories have come against some of college hoops' foremost giants like Prairie View A&M, East Tennessee State, Rice, and perennial powerhouse Nicholls State.

Their only loss, coincidentally, came against the Eagles of Eastern Michigan.

EMU's list of victims is pretty similar, with wins over San Francisco State, Akron, Bowling Green and an overtime thriller against Toledo.

Does strength of schedule count for anything?

These teams are a joke. The UMass intramural all–stars could beat San Francisco State! They have nice records, but they haven't beaten anybody.

Even when EMU lost to Ohio U. this week it remained in both polls.

Eastern Michigan and Texas Tech are in the top 25 while schools like Indiana, Duke and Clemson fall by the wayside. Is there any doubt in any right–thinking person's mind that any of those schools would crush EMU and Tech by 50?

Time to find new voters.

While both polls agree on that duo, each top 25 has its own unique foolishness.

There are questions regarding the validity of the Coaches' Poll to begin with. Coaches have an obvious bias when they vote anyway. They vote for their friends, teams that they've beaten, and even teams they've lost to just to make their schedule look better.

Therefore from time to time there are regularly some pretty moronic occurrences on this list.

• Last week No. 22 Auburn fell to unranked Vanderbilt and Mississippi State, making them fall to... No. 22. Despite losing to a pair of nobodies, the Tigers didn't fall at all.

• The AP is just as dumb. Boston College fell from No. 21 to No. 22 after a loss to unranked Providence. Michigan however fell from No. 20 to No. 23 after losing to No. 17 Purdue.

Who majored in logic here? A loss to a ranked team is worse than a loss to an unranked team? Get serious. Thank heavens hoop has a tournament and this thing isn't settled in the polls like it is in football.

The answer to the opening question? You can't trust anyone.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

Voters snub coaches

Three of the most successful coaches in Division I men's college basketball history were nominated for induction into the Basketball Hall of Fame this past fall.

On Monday, not one of the legendary coaches received enough votes for induction. Don Haskins, Guy Lewis and Jerry Tarkanian are among the winningest coaches in the game, having devoted their lives to basketball. But the three will have to watch the inductions as members of the audience, having all failed to acquire the minimum votes needed.

Haskins has had a trying year. At 65, he is the third winningest active coach, and the eighth most successful coach overall. Haskins boasts a 675–308 record, which includes the 1966 NCAA Championship, for the 35 years he has been at UTEP.

This season Haskins suffered a heart–attack on Jan. 20, which was followed by triple by–pass surgery. As a result, his doctors have ordered him not to return to the sidelines this year. The team has struggled, losing eight straight, to bring its record to 10–10.

Haskins said the nomination was an honor, but one he would not like again.

Lewis coached at the University of Houston for 30 years, retiring in 1986 with 592 career wins. This total includes 15 NCAA Tournament berths, five trips to the Final Four, and two Championship games. In addition, he won two regular season Southwest Conference Championships and four conference post–season titles.

Lewis, who also felt honored by the nomintion, coached 15 All–Americans at Houston, including Clyde Drexler, Hakeem Olajuwon and Elvin Hayes.

Casey Kane

Tarkanian was the most embattled coach on this year's ballot. Not only is his name synonymous with the highest winning percentage in college hoop, it is also linked with corruption. At 65, Tark is again a member of the collegiate coaching ranks, having taken the reins at his alma mater, Fresno State, earlier this season.

In his 32nd year as a coach, Tarkanian has compiled an impressive stat sheet. He owns a 369–129 record, winning percentage of .832. He coached for seven seasons at two community colleges, then at Long Beach State, and for 19 years, at UNLV.

As the leader of the Runnin' Rebels, Tarkanian had a record of 509–105, nine consecutive trips to the NCAAs, four Final Fours and the 1990 NCAA Championship.

He also has two teams, at different schools, eventually wind up on probation due to NCAA rules violations.

Tarkanian said that he too was pleased to be nominated, but facts should speak for themselves.

Looking solely at records and stats,

Turn to HALL, page 9

Magic Johnson could be a Dream Teamer again

ATLANTA (AP) — For Pete Babcock, the issue of whether Magic Johnson should play at the Atlanta Olympics is simple.

"My personal feeling is we ought to select the two best players," said Babcock, general manager of the Atlanta Hawks. "If a player sat out 10 years, it wouldn't make a difference to me if he played well enough to earn a spot."

Babcock is part of the USA Basketball committee that will get together at the end of the NBA season to pick the final two members of the U.S. basketball team for the Atlanta Games.

Already, the third installment of the Dream Team includes Shaquille O'Neal, Hakeem Olajuwan, David Robinson, Scottie Pippen, Glenn Robinson, Karl Malone, Grant Hill, Anfernee Hardaway, John Stockton and Reggie Miller.

Johnson played on the original Dream Team that won the gold at Barcelona in 1992. Last week, he rejoined the Lakers after a 4 1/2–year retirement and immediately began lobbying for a spot on the Atlanta team, noting his international experience.

"I know I can get out there and do my thing," said the 36–year–old Johnson, who had 21 points, seven rebounds and six assists in a victory Sunday night over Utah.

Johnson retired from the NBA in 1991 after contracting the virus that causes AIDS. He played at Barcelona the following year even though some foreign players expressed concerns about banging elbows with someone who had contracted HIV.

Babcock doesn't think Johnson's physical condition would be an issue if he was selected this year.

"I would assume that's because people are a little better educated today than they were four years ago about how the Infection Is spread, what's viable and what's not viable in terms of the danger," Babcock said. "That includes Earvin's own health. More is known today about how strenuous activity affects his own health. Everything I've heard so far is positive along those lines in terms of him coming back to play."

The Dream Team will be coached by Lenny Wilkens of the Hawks, the winningest coach in NBA history. He steadfastly refused to take a stand on whether Johnson should be part of the U.S. squad. "I

Turn to MAGIC, page 8

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 76 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, February 8, 1996

Thomas leads UM against Temple
Senior forward Octavia Thomas will try to become UMass' all time leading rebounder in tonight's matchup against the Owls (See Sports, page 16).

Community fair held at UMass
Over 35 community service programs met yesterday in the Student Union Ballroom in search for student volunteers (see story page 3).

Love is in the air
It's countdown time to one of the most anticipated and dreaded holidays of the year — Valentine's Day (See Arts &Living, 5).

Extended Forecast
Temperatures will be rising slightly, but snow will rear its ugly head again. Expect light snow both today and on Friday morning. Precipitation may turn to rain in both cases.

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 35 LOW: 20	HIGH: 35 LOW: 20	HIGH: 30 LOW: 20

SGA senators, officers declare candidacy

Springfield man blames dentist for HIV infection

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association (SGA) Senate convened for the Spring semester Wednesday night with several senators and officers formally announcing their candidacy for the upcoming SGA presidential and student trusteeship elections.

Current President Christine Lopes said that she would run for Student Trustee, supporting Sen. Maurice Caston in his bid for President.

Secretary of Finance Sean Carter will oppose Lopes for Student Trustee in conjunction with Sen. Derrick Cheeseborough–Weaver, who is vying for the Presidency.

More candidates are expected to officially announce their candidacy soon. Elections are scheduled to be held before Spring Break in March.

Lopes also announced progress in several negotiations which she had been conducting with the University, specifically with Food Services about the proposal to make the 10–meal plan available to students on weekends.

The Senate passed a motion in the fall mandating that such a provision be made available to students. It was struck down by Chancellor David K. Scott.

However, passage of such a motion may become unnecessary, as Lopes said that Food Services is considering the institution of a "all campus debit card," which would allow students to simply deposit a certain amount of money on the card to be used first in the Dining Common's, and eventually throughout campus.

"It's like a bank account," Lopes said.

This would eliminate the 10, 14 and 19 meal–plan options which students currently must choose from. Food Services has plans for partial implementation of the new card by the fall 1996 semester.

"The system we have currently is very old and needs upgrading anyway," said Lopes. "Students need to get what they are paying for," she added, alluding to the fact that many do not use all the meals that they pay for by the end of the semester.

The details of the plan were not disclosed by Lopes at the meeting. However, she did say that there were still significant differences between her and Food Services.

Lopes is especially concerned that if the card becomes available at off–campus locations, students could run the risk of their meal plan being "privatized."

"When things go off–campus, students start to lose their power," said Lopes.

Speaker Dan Castellano, in his opening address to the Senate, said that if the SGA is to reach satisfactory resolutions to problems which affect the best interests of students, such as in the case with meal plan options, "we're going to need Senator's really stepping up and really advocating on behalf of the issues."

Castellano said that the level and intensity of activism within the Senate and throughout campus in general has been less than what is needed — a predicament which could seriously weaken student efforts in their negotiations with the University and the State in crucial issues such as tuition and fees.

"There is always the ability by the administration to push things off if there is no pressure," Castellano said. "Students haven't been getting up on these issues and saying, 'hey, this is wrong.'"

As a follow–up to Castellano's speech, Carter and the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) Student Coordinator Michael Hass presented their plan to restructure the Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF).

The SATF is the only fund of its kind controlled by the students through the SGA. It amounts to $1.7 million, which allocates money to Registered Student Organization's and other campus activities.

Of that $1.7 million, however, $550,000 is mandated by the University, without the consent of the SGA, for funding of various services such as the Pioneer Valley Transit Authority and the Five College Bus.

Carter and Hass argued that these services should be provided by the University because they are essential to its operation by transporting student to and from campus.

In addition, Carter and Hass protested the administrative "full costing" tax placed upon the SATF by the University.

"It's just the University skimming off our fees," said Hass. "We have no control over it," added Carter.

According to the Carter and Hass, the legality of this policy is questionable, and may result in a lawsuit.

In other matters, the Senate confirmed the appointments of Sen. Nayton Peyton (John Quincy Adams Residence Hall), Sen. Paul Ferro (John F. Kennedy Residence Hall) and Lisa C. Cook (Central at Large).

EMILY BERT – COLLEGIAN

The SGA met for the first time last night to announce members candidacy for the Spring semester.

By Jeff Donn
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — James Sharpe went to the dentist and says he left with the AIDS virus. Then, he went to a lawyer. But his case, which has now come to trial, will be hard to prove, according to experts in the legal and medical community.

"It is ... difficult to go back and know exactly what happened," said Michael Mone, a prominent medical malpractice lawyer in Boston. "You have the added difficulty of proving this is indeed where you got exposure. There are other ways to get AIDS."

James Sharpe, 49, of Northampton, who used to run a convenience store, went to the Springfield dentist, Anthony E. Breglio, in 1989 for the extraction of several teeth. Several weeks later, as Sharpe tells it, he developed flu–like symptoms.

His wife, Jeanne, says AIDS was about the last thing they suspected at the time. She says her husband was not in high–risk groups, like homosexuals or intravenous drug users. She says he had sex only with her during their 18–year marriage.

Then, in December 1989, a doctor noticed a bridge in Sharpe's mouth, asked about his dental work, and suggested an AIDS test. "I mean, we thought they were bonkers," his wife said in a recent interview. "We almost refused the test."

But the tests were positive: Sharpe had somehow contracted the HIV virus that causes AIDS. Now a sickly man who was forced to retire, Sharpe sued the dentist in 1993 and finally took his lawsuit to Hampshire Superior Court this week for trial.

He does not claim the dentist was infected. Instead, he suspects he was infected with another patient's virus through contaminated equipment. He wants medical costs, compensation for early retirement, and damages for suffering.

"Their defense is essentially he followed the procedures of average dentists — and that's probably right," said Sharpe's lawyer, Albert Zabin. "That's scary."

Neither the dentist nor his lawyer have agreed to news interviews. Breglio, who practices in a converted house on the edge of downtown, was licensed in 1977. No complaints have been filed against him with the state's dental licensing board.

The dentist's lawyer, in an effort to protect his client's privacy, successfully had the court papers sealed in 1993 and then a ban imposed on use of his picture and name. A public trial began Monday, though.

On Wednesday, Judge William Welch reversed himself and dropped all news restrictions when challenged by three newspapers. Testifying for Sharpe, Dr. Sanford F. Kuvin, of Palm Beach, Fla., said in court that the virus could have lodged inside the dentist's drill–holding handpiece.

He contended it could have survived the dentist's disinfecting treatment with a bleach–soaked towel.

However, doctors for the American Dental Association and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control said Wednesday there is only one documented case of HIV infection of patients at a dental office.

In that widely publicized Florida case, government scientists concluded that Kimberly Bergalis and five other patients had contracted the virus from Dr. David Acer, who was himself infected.

But, even in that case, no source of transmission was ever found. One government study concluded that the infection apparently was not carried through Acer's dental tools.

Moreover, skepticism has lingered over the truthfulness of all the patients involved, who later sued the dentist and gained multimillion payments before trial.

The CBS News show "60 Minutes" reported in June 1994 that the findings of an insurance investigator and private statements by the patients themselves pointed to additional sex partners and other likely sources of the infection.

Doctor cites pressure as leading health risk

By Liz Anderson
Collegian Correspondent

Dr. Christiane Northrup, an internationally prominent writer and lecturer on issues of women's health, spoke last night at Hampshire College to an audience of roughly 100 people.

The author of Women's Bodies, Women's Wisdom: Creating Emotional and Physical Health and Healing, and editor of a national women's health newsletter, "Health Wisdom for Women," Northrup has been a practicing obstetrician for 17 years. She is also the co–founder of Women to Women, an innovative healthcare center in Yarmouth, Maine.

> "Women become so involved in others' life that we forget about our own. We need to love our bodies and praise our health. The earth is the ultimate breast, the ultimate life giver, we have to take care of her, and we can begin by appreciating ourselves."
> — Christiane Northrup

Northrup focused her lecture, which was videotaped for national distribution by the Media Education Foundation, on the importance of uniting the body, mind and spirit in creating health.

"The mind is throughout the body. We need to listen to our own bodies," Northrup said as she described the deterioration of women's health due to the pressures of day to day life.

"Twenty–five percent of all women will have a major period of depression in their life time. Why? Something Is wrong in women's lives," she said, explaining the negative effects depression and alcoholism have on the immune system. Diseases such as coronary heart disease, colon cancer, constipation and diabetes are more prevalent for women living in the United States than for women living in third world nations.

Northrup blamed the chemicals used in meat processing and synthetically based foods as one of the roots of cancer among Americans.

"If the American diet changes up to 50 percent of all cancers will disappear," Northup said. "Before World War II food was made at home and organically grown. The amount of women who had cancer then was a great deal lower than it is today."

Northrup talked about the importance of moderate sunlight with a balance diet in boosting the efficiency of the immune system, as well as increasing mental health. She emphasized the connection between nurturing and health.

"Premature babies who are stroked and petted gain weight faster and become healthy children at a higher rate than premature babies who are only medically treated," Northrup said.

She explained that children are born with a source of positive energy that dwindles as they become adolescents due to unrealistic goals they are expected to achieve. She believes that young girls are taught to be skinny, beautiful, find a career, get married and have a family.

"Women are victims of the myth that they can do It all and if they don't then they are a failure," said University of Massachusetts junior Lisa Fillion, as she reflected on Dr. Northrup's lecture. "Finally professional women are speaking out against this myth."

"Women become so involved in others' life that we forget about our own. We need to love our bodies and praise our health," Dr. Northrup concluded. "The earth is the ultimate breast, the ultimate life giver, we have to take care of her, and we can begin by appreciating ourselves."

EMILY BERT – COLLEGIAN

Where Can I Find Waterworld?
Freshman Biology major Kerri Dempsey and Sophomore Jason Stiehl check out movie posters at the poster sale in the Cape Cod Lounge Wednesday afternoon. The sale will be continued today and tomorrow in the Student Union Ballroom

For Your Information

PIYs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Thursday, Feb. 8

Lecture — Dr. Beverly Greene, a certified Clinical Psychologist and Professor of Psychology at St. John's University, will speak on the topic: African–American Lesbians: Mental Health and Psycotherapy Issues. The lecture is part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. The event will begin at noon in Campus Center Room 803. For information call 545–4824.

Meeting — There will be the first meeting tonight of the Animal Rights Coalition at 7 p.m. in Room 306 of the Student Union. Everyone is welcome, and meetings will continue throughout the semester. For more information call Nana at 546–0358.

Music — There will be an African Caribbean Drumming presentation as part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. The presentation will be led by Abdul Baki, and will be from 8–10 p.m. in FAC 157. For information call 545– 0519.

Music — Peter Orphanos will lead a guitar class in Emerson 112 of the Southwest Residential Area from 5:30–7 p.m. The presentation will be part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. Call 545-0519 for information.

Music — Extremos presents, "5 Spot Lounge," at Club Metro in Northampton. There will be alternative music from Mother Holly and the Unband. The show starts at 9:30 p.m. For information call 582–9898.

Friday, Feb. 9

Music — There will be a Chamber Music presentation with Catalina Arruabia and Camillo Rojas. The presentation is part of the Performing Arts Division's Free Week. For more information call 545-0519.

Theater — The UMass Theater Guild will hold open auditions for the play "A Little Night Music," at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 162. Callbacks will be on Sunday, Feb. 11 at 10 a.m. For more information call Kristina at 545–0415.

Lecture — Sam McMahan will present a lecture entitled, "Introduction to Astrological Chart Reading" at Oasis on Main St. The lecture, which will explore astrological charts and astrology, will begin at 7 p.m. The presentation is free, but space is limited. Call 256–4995 for details.

Meeting — There will be a meeting of the Bill Weld for President National Draft Committee at 6 p.m. in the Mid– Conference Rm of the Bangs Community Center. The Center is on Boltwood Walk, next to RAO's Coffee House. For more information call Martin at 546–6758.

Religious — There will be a meeting of the Alliance Christian Fellowship at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. The room number will be posted by the elevator downstairs. For more information call Mark or Elizabeth at 253–7206.

Forum — There will be a community action forum entitled "Accessing Resources on Race and Racism this Spring: People, Programs, Pro–Action," from 3–5 p.m. in Campus Center Rm. 804/808. The forum will address issues of race and racism on campus. Call 546–5143 for information.

Saturday, Feb. 10

Theater — There will be an Acting Monologue Workshop with John Fiscella, from 3–5 p.m. There is no charge, and the workshop will be held in the 4th floor Upstairs Studios above Fitzwilly's in downtown Northampton. Call 545–0519 for information.

Theater — The UMass Theater Guild will hold open auditions for the play "A Little Night Music" at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in Campus Center Room 162. Callbacks will be on Sunday, Feb. 11 at 10 a.m. For more information call Kristina at 545–0415.

Workshop — There will be a stained glass workshop at the Student Union Craft Center from 12–4 p.m. The workshop, which will cost $6 plus a small material fee, will be run by Tessa Milofsky. For information call the Craft Center.

Sunday, Feb. 11

Meeting — There will be an Israeli Cafe at 7:30 p.m. at 388 N. Pleasant St. There will be food, music, and more. Everyone is welcome. For more information call 549–7806.

Meeting — The UMass Ski Club will hold its Quebec Information meeting at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 163. The meeting is open to anyone interested in going on the ski club's Canadian trip and those who have already signed up for the trip. Contact Arik at 545–3437 for more information.

Notices

Job Applications — The GEO Personnel Committee is accepting applications for three part–time positions: Office Coordinator, Grievance Coordinator, and Contract Campaign Coordinator. All positions are for 20 hours per week at $12.30/hr for 16 weeks. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9. Contact Beth at 545–0705 or 665–3299 with any questions.

Meetings — The Everywoman's Center has announced its group meetings for the spring semester. There will be a Communication and Intimacy Group on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m., a Re–entry Women's Group on Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m., a Women and Self Esteem Group for Undergrad Women on Mondays at 7:00 p.m. and a Women in Transition: Exploration Through Expressive Arts Group on Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. These groups may require registration and a screening interview. Call the Everywoman's Center at 545–0883 by Feb. 16 for more information.

Meeting — The Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a Rape Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and a Child Sexual Abuse Survivors Support Group on Thursdays at 7:00 p.m. Both of these groups require screening interviews. Call 545–0800 by Feb. 7 for information.

Drum & Dance — Grupo Sofrito, a part of the UMass Drum and Dance collective, meets Tuesday through Thursday. For more information call 585–0013.

GLB Grad Students — The Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization invites you to join us in the Graduate Student Lounge every Friday, 5–6 p.m. Contact the Stonewall Center for more information at 545–4824.

Writing — mOthertongue, a multi–lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587–9884.

Religious — Rides are being provided to any students who would like to attend worship services at the Alliance Church on Sunday mornings. For information contact Mark at 253– 0361.

Meeting — The African Student Association holds a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2363 or 546–5562.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995–96 issue. Any Five-College student is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 406E Student Union, or call 545–2240.

Semi–Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi–formal on February 10, 1996 in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 5-0960.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253–9622.

Religious — Rides to Chapel: Christ Community Chapel of Amherst sponsors "Pick Me Up." Worship time 10–11:30 a.m. every Sunday. Bus stop points 9:45 a.m. at the GRC, Fine Arts, North Village, Southpoint, Prince House, Southwest parking lot and Amherst College at Converse Hall.

Dancing — There is International Folkdancing at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst every Friday, 8–10 p.m. Greek, Bulgarian, Turkish, American, former Yugoslavian, Armenian, Israeli, Hungarian, French ... teaching at all levels, beginners welcome. For more information, call Eva and Gene, 549–6748 or Cindy and Dennis, 323–6330.

Writing — mOthertongue, a multi–lingual journal is seeking submissions. Original poetry, short prose in any language except English. Submit rough or polished English translation. Bring entries to third floor South College or call Janet at 587–9884.

Religious — Rides are being provided to any students who would like to attend worship services at the Alliance Church on Sunday mornings. For information contact Mark at 253– 0361.

Meeting — The African Student Association holds a general body meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. in the New Africa House Library. The meeting is open to all students and all faculty. For more information call 546–2363 or 546–5562.

Writing — The Spectrum Magazine is now seeking submissions for its 1995–96 issue. Any Five-College student is encouraged to submit art, photos, poetry or prose. Submissions should be brought to the Spectrum office at 406E Student Union, or call 545–2240.

Semi–Formal — The Southwest Area Government is throwing a semi–formal on February 10, 1996 in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are on sale now in the SWAG office, with Early Bird prices of $10 a person, $12 a couple. Prices will increase next semester. For more information call 5-0960.

Writing — The BIOSCI undergraduate science journal is seeking submissions for its 1996 publication. Any UMass student doing research in biological science is encouraged to submit. Guidelines are available in 348 Morrill Science Center, or call Karen at 253–9622.

Religious — Rides to Chapel: Christ Community Chapel of Amherst sponsors "Pick Me Up." Worship time 10–11:30 a.m. every Sunday. Bus stop points 9:45 a.m. at the GRC, Fine Arts, North Village, Southpoint, Prince House, Southwest parking lot and Amherst College at Converse Hall.

Dancing — There is International Folkdancing at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst every Friday, 8–10 p.m. Greek, Bulgarian, Turkish, American, former Yugoslavian, Armenian, Israeli, Hungarian, French ... teaching at all levels, beginners welcome. For more information, call Eva and Gene, 549–6748 or Cindy and Dennis, 323–6330.

Health — Worried about HIV/AIDS? Call 1–800–750– 2016, The Family Planning Council's HIV Hotline counselors can tell you whether or not you are at risk for contacting HIV; how you can protect yourself from contracting the virus; where, when and how to get a free, anonymous HIV antibodies test at over 70 sites throughout the state.

Health — The Family Planning Council Tobacco Cessation Project offers free, confidential individual & group counseling/support to smokers trying to quit. Variety of methods including "the patch." Call Lynne at 1–800–696– 7752.

Grant deadlines — The UMass Arts Council single project/event grant applications deadlines for Spring 1996 are February 16 for events after March 6, March 15 for events after April 3, and April 19 for events after May 8 including Summer and Fall 1996 projects/events.

Skiing — Cross country skiing guides for the visually impaired are needed. Guide training is provided; you must have your own equipment and advanced skiing ability. Contact Chris at 584–0807.

Astronomy — The Amherst Astronomy Association will conduct free Planetarium Shows every Saturday in February at the Amherst College Bassett Planetarium. For more information contact Tom at 256–6254.

Scholarship — Applications are now available for the UNCF–Merck Science Fellowships. Applications for the fellowships, which are primarily targeted at African American science students, can be obtained through the Registrar's Office. The deadline for applications is Feb. 26.

Health — The Breast Health Project, a program of the Family Planning Council of Western Mass., provides physical exams, breast and pelvic exams, Pap smears and referrals for mammograms and colposcopies at sites in Northampton and Amherst. For more information on these services call Ellen or Anne at 1–800–696–7752.

Spring Class — French 372: Advanced Conversation has been added to the class schedule for spring semester. The class will be taught Christian Garaud and will meet Tu–Th at 11:15.

Art — The UMass Arts Council will sponsor its first art exhibit of the semester Feb. 6–28. The exhibit, entitled "The New Dimension," will be shown in the Student Union Art Gallery and is free and open to the public. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information call 545–0792.

Tutoring — Tutoring services are available by appointment at the Learning Resources Center in the W.E.B. DuBois Library from Dec. 15–Feb. 12. For information contact Linda at 545–5334.

Campus Police Log

Assault and battery
Feb. 5
An individual reported an assault during a domestic dispute. The individual will seek a restraining order.

Warrant service
Feb. 6
Jaime J. Wilson, 19, of 50 Squire Village, Sunderland, was arrested on warrants for domestic assault and battery, larceny and threatening to commit a crime.

Accident
Feb. 5
There was a property damage accident on Massachusetts Ave.

Larceny
Feb. 5
The Index staff reported that camera equipment was stolen in 1995. At first it was thought the missing equipment had merely been borrowed.

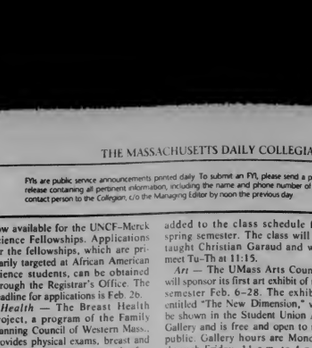
Medical emergency
Feb. 5
An individual in Boyden Gymnasium passed out. No transport was necessary.
An individual who was having a seizure in Johnson Residence Hall was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual who was having a reaction to a prescription drug was taken to Cooley Residence Hall.

Disturbance
Feb. 5
There was a fight in progress in Melville Residence Hall. The situation was resolved between the parties.
Feb. 6
There was an argument between two individuals in Washington Residence Hall.

Annoying behavior
Feb. 5
A staff person in Grayson Residence Hall reported a threatening message on her calendar.

Fire alarm
Feb. 5
Burnt food in the kitchen of Webster Residence Hall activated an alarm.

NATALIE MERCHANT
TIGERLILY TOUR



MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
TICKETS $20 & GOLD CIRCLE • AVAILABLE AT THE MULLINS CENTER BOX OFFICE AND ALL TICKETMASTER LOCATIONS INCLUDING MOVIES & MORE, TILEN'S, RECORD TOWN, VIDEO PARADISE, WOOD BROS. MUSIC, MUSIC FORUM AND NRM MUSIC. TO CHARGE-BY-PHONE CALL (413) 733-2500. FOR INFO CALL (413) 545-0505. No service charge at box office open M-F 9am-5pm, (413) 12pm-5pm. Tickets subject to applicable Ticketmaster service charges. Phone orders subject to additional percentage service charge. Event date and time subject to change.
PRODUCED BY DELSENER/SLATER ENTERPRISES

Civic minds given direction at fair

University students take time out to serve their community

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

Over 35 community service programs met in the Student Union Ballroom at the University of Massachusetts yesterday looking for volunteers. The event offered an open forum for students to find information about various opportunities to help.

"I need to get more involved this semester. I want to get out and do a lot of volunteering," said sophomore biology major Jennifer Wheelock.

Wheelock is using her volunteering experience for hands– on learning in child psychology. She said wants to help provide food, shelter and emotional support to adolescents through the Amherst Shelter.

Mark Leonas, the director of Belchertown Day School, attended the event for an increased visibility between students and the community. Students work with children from 15 months to 12 years of age, helping in the classroom and the preschool and after school programs in age appropriate groups.

"We are very flexible with the hours students want to volunteer," Leonas said. "A lot of UMass students live in the Belchertown area and have helped by giving back."

Some of the volunteers find that volunteering prepares them for post–graduate careers. The positive and negative aspects of a particular field are experienced when students implement learned knowledge first–hand.

"I'm a pre–med major looking for experience in a hospital setting," sophomore biology major Anita Sebastian said. "I've done volunteering before and I want to do it again."

The Everywoman's Center came to the fair looking for people to assist in their free services. Educating UMass students and the community about violence against women, 24–hour telephone hot–lines and the Women of Color Program are among the services offered by the Everywoman's Center, graduate linguistics student Rachel Thorburn said.

The Community Service Program and the Vitally Involved in Voluntary Action Council (VIVA) sponsored the event. VIVA, which is student–run, placed over 1,000 students in voluntary agencies last year, said Jay Bragg, a junior BDIC major in public relations. He said that the "Into Amherst Day" had 300 students help to clean up the town.

"There is a lot of strife between the university and Amherst sometimes," Bragg said. "However, there is a lot of common ground — the volunteering has improved the partnership between UMass and Amherst. The community service empowers individuals. Volunteers want to feel good and it is rewarding to see the results."

Experimental AIDS treatment a failure

By Richard Cole
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Baboon bone marrow implanted in an AIDS patient to boost his failing immune system has apparently failed to work, doctors said Wednesday.

But the AIDS patient, 38–year-old Jeff Getty, is doing "surprisingly well," perhaps due to chemotherapy, said Dr. Steven Deeks, who performed the transplant at San Francisco General Hospital on Dec. 14.

Getty, a former University of California policy analyst who turned into an AIDS activist when he discovered he had the disease, said from his Oakland home that he had always known the chances of success were not good.

"When I came into this, I rolled the dice," he said. "I didn't even know if I was going to live through thing. Now I'm looking forward to a long summer of sailing."

Bone marrow produces the body's immune system, and the baboon cells were transplanted into Getty because the animals do not become infected with AIDS for reasons biologists still don't understand.

Previous experiments with baboon bone marrow transplants had failed because the bodies of the human patients rejected the foreign cells.

The treatment Getty received was designed by Dr. Suzanne Ildstad at University of Pittsburgh Medical Center. She added special facilitator cells to baboon bone marrow stem cells in hopes it would help the cells engraft into Getty's system and begin producing disease-fighting baboon immune system cells.

But after two months, doctors have failed to find any clear signs of baboon cells, Deeks said.

"At this point in time the results are inconclusive, but suggest that if there are any cells present, there aren't very many of them," Deeks said.

Despite the apparent failure, Getty said he is feeling well.

"My immune system is doing wonderfully," he said. "My immune cell numbers are back to where they were in 1992, and I actually feel better than I did when I went into the hospital."

Getty said doctors believe the radiation and chemotherapy prior to the transplant may be responsible for a sharp decrease in the virus' presence in his body.

Deeks said Getty's surprising improvement may be as important as the experiment itself.

"There are some hints as to why Jeff is doing better, and this will open up new areas of research," he said, but refused to be more specific.

Getty and Deeks emphasized that the procedure was successful in the only area approved by the FDA - showing that the baboon bone marrow transplant into a human being was safe.

Critics had objected to the baboon-to-human transplant because of fears that a baboon disease could be unleashed on the population through the transplant process. Deeks said the transplant proved that so far, the fears are unfounded.

"There are no signs of any baboon viruses in Jeff, but we will continue to monitor him," Deeks said.

Deeks said he intends to repeat the transplant with knowledge gained from Getty's experience. The engraftment may have failed because Getty's immune system was not sufficiently suppressed before the transplant, he said.

"We erred on the conservative side, with very low doses of radiation and very low doses of chemotherapy," he said. "The chance of getting stem cell engraftment was very low."

By showing that the procedure was safe, doctors may be able to increase the pre-transplant dosages and better the foreign cells' chances of survival, Deeks said.

EMILY BEALY / COLLEGIAN

Gumptime!

Freshman SOM major Jeff Sypek, left, plays a friendly game of ping pong with Thomas Hnitecki, a freshman Engineering major in the Student Union yesterday afternoon.

CHANGE YOUR CLOCK
CHANGE YOUR BATTERY

Experiencing
DESIGN:
Concept • Drawing • Reality
Curated by Lynne Thompson and Henry Lu
February 8 through March 1, 1996
Hampden Gallery • University of Massachusetts • Amherst
Gallery Hours: Monday - Friday 3 - 7pm & Sunday 2 - 5pm
February 20 - MAYA LIN: A Strong Clear Vision, 1995 Academy Award Winner Best Documentary Portrait of the designer of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the Civil Rights Memorial and other major public art.
Two showings - 4:30 & 7:00pm Hampden Theatre, $2.50 students - $4.50 general public.
February 27 - The Process of Design Slide/Panel Discussion - Dean Cardasis, Robert Galloway, Arnold Friedmann, Kathleen Lugosch, Henry Lu Moderator 7:30pm, Hampden Theatre.
Free and open to the public. For more information call Martha Hauston 545-0680 or Lynne Thompson 549-2671
Experiencing Design is a project of the UMASS Department of Landscape Architecture & Regional Planning and Residential Arts, sponsored in part by the UMASS Arts Council, UMASS Cultural Enrichment Fund, Student Affairs Cultural Enrichment Fund, Cambridge Seven Associates, UMASS Art Department, UMASS American Society Civil Engineers Student Group.

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139
STUDENT SPECIAL
4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB
Rte. 116 So. Amherst
256-0080

Hunan Garden Restaurant
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
NEW BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 p.m. $5.99
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Lunch Buffet Mon.-Sat. 11-3 $3.99
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 BELCHERTOWN RD. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring, "Bud Dry Bottles" $9.99 cse
Golden Annies $7.49 12pk cans
ICE House & Red Dog $13.99 16 oz. bots
"The 6/PK. Bonanza "Continues
Oregan-Rasberry- Nut, Brown Ale, Honey Red & I.P.A.
Black Dog- Pale Ale, Ale & Honey Raspberry.
Catamount- Porter, Amber, Gold, X-Mas & Pale Ale.
Brooklyn- Lager & the Rich Brown Ale
Harpoon- All flavors including the "Spring Stout" !
Mix/Match "two" 6/Pks . . . $9.95
Concha y Toro Your choice $4.99 1.5 liter
$.S. Pierre Vodka $8.99 1.75 Liter
Jose Cuervo White $11.99 liter
All Beers Plus Deposit OPEN 9:00AM - 11:00PM VISA/MASTERCARD •Delivery Available•

TOC
Bar & Grill
11TH FLOOR • LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER
(413) 545-3217

Grand Opening
Check out our new
Pub Menu & Microbrews!
Half Price Appetizers
& Great Beer Specials
4:00pm to 6:00pm
Monday, Feb. 5th - Friday, Feb. 9th
Hours: Mon. - Sat. 4:00pm - 12:30am
Positive ID Required

Be A Resident Assistant!
Help Shape Your
Piece of the World!
For More Information, Please Call the Center for Diversity and Development at 545-0472.
Applications for 1996-1997 Resident Assistant Positions Now Being Accepted.
Applicants Must Attend an Information Session to Receive an Application:

February 12	7:00pm	JQA 12th floor lounge
		Club Hamlin
February 13	7:00pm	Cance TV Lounge
		Field Classroom
February 14	12:30pm	803 Campus Center
February 18	7:00pm	803 Campus Center
February 19	7:00pm	Coolidge 5th floor
		Baker Classroom
February 20	7:00pm	Brown Main Lounge
		James Main Lounge
February 21	12:30pm	803 Campus Center
February 25	7:00pm	803 Campus Center

Start The Semester Off Right with these Super Specials At Scott's
Thank You For Your Patronage
Quantity Discounts Always Available
Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN Mon.-Sat. 9a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692
Southern Comfort $8.49 750 ml
Natural Light 24 - 12oz. cans $8.79 +dep
Glen Ellen White Zin. & Chardonnay $3.99 750 ml
Gilbey's Gin 1.75 liter $11.99
Honey Brown 6 packs $3.99 +dep
Hornsby's Cider $4.99 6 pack
Red Dog & Ice House 12 pack bottle $6.99 +dep
Corona Extra 12 packs $8.39 +dep
Ruble Vodka 1.75 $8.99
* Get 7¢ for all your can & bottle returns when you use total return money toward purchase
Check Out Our Other Great In Store Specials
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
Now open Sundays 12-5 until 1996
Tele-Check for your personal check
Belters University Drive
SCOTTS Victory Market
Alumni Duplex

SAVE SOME DOSEY-DOUGH, Pardner!
What's Your Beef? (Chicken, maybe?)
EVERY THURSDAY at THE PUB in AMHERST
Whatcha' waitin' fer! Hopalong over to The Pub on East Pleasant Street 'cause there's a Wild West Fest every Thursday night. Round up your gang and save big! We'll take 25% OFF your bill on Burgers & Chicken Sandwiches...Yee Hah!

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief — Marni E. Heffner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager — James P. Conley Production Manager — Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager — Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Lisa M. Oliveri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Position Vacant Jewish Affairs Editor
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor
Amy Paradyst News Editor
Emily Reily Photography Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor

Position Vacant Women's Issues Editor
Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Magerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Turley Publications Printer/Publisher

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Love and hisses

It's about that time again. I can see it, spewed all over the place. I can hear it, the pathetic verses which induce vomit, being said to one another. I can taste it, because there are various candies dedicated to it.

Man, Valentine's Day is annoying.

Don't be surprised if you see the colors red, pink and white everywhere you go. Don't be startled if you hear something that resembles LL Cool J's "I Need Love" or one of those painful awfully-written Hallmark cards. Don't be alarmed if you somehow get your hands on a heart-shaped box of chocolates or those flavored candies that have the message on them.

Andrew Bryce

How freaking sickening.

Talk about a useless and preposterous holiday. As if someone should need one day of the year to express their feelings to their loved one. This holiday is for that idiot who is scared to death to tell his girlfriend he loves her. This is a holiday for one to prove to the other they care by just remembering to get them a card.

You know who this horrendous holiday is really for? Those damn businesses looking for idiots like us to dump the cash onto the counter. Gawdy balloons with tacky expressions written on them sell like crazy. Florists rake in the cash from the dozens upon dozens of roses while greeting card companies scribe their drivel for all to purchase.

This holiday is perfect timing for those money-hungry scrubs. Slotted right between Chrsitmas and Easter, it's too late to bring out the Christmas tree/light/ornament/stocking sale, and too early to bring the Easter egg/basket/candy sale.

And who's this St. Valentine dude? I know nothing about him, but he must have been a sap. You want to find more about him, read the Arts section in today's paper. I'm not, I don't care about who he is.

I tell you what — screw it all. Screw St. Valentine, screw getting candy, screw spending money on red, white and blue things. Valentine's Day will not be celebrated next week by this guy.

I mean, why would I want to celebrate it? The last time I did, I was journeying through the land of puberty (That was back around the time where the school had the Valentine's Day Lollipop Sale, and we all used to brag about how many we got. I received 15, but I won't make a big deal of it). I got my girlfriend a teddy bear, while she gave me a couple of Van Halen posters (I would have been rather flattered by the thought, yet the fact that she took them down from my other friend's wall and wrapped them up kinda' ruined it for me).

So why ruin the streak and take in the holiday? Call me the Iron Man, I'm going to stick it out. Valentine's Day, Schmalentine's Day. It's just going to be like any day to me. It's February 14th. It's a Wednesday. That's it.

I mean, am I the only one who feels this animosity towards this holiday? I'll ask a couple of people, and I betcha' they agree.

What do you think, buddy?

"If you don't have a girlfriend, you're made to feel like you suck," Cope said. "If you do have a girlfriend, you have to spend money. In the end, everyone feels like [starts with sh, rhymes with zit]."

Yeah, Cope. You tell 'em, pal.

I'll ask somebody else. How about you? Are you celebrating this ridiculous holiday?

"I think my hand already knows how special it is."

Whoa. That's more about him than I need to know right now. At any rate, Valentine's Day ... how should I say ... sucks. And I have those guys to back me up.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist who thinks Valentine's Day rots and is just frustrated because his girlfriend is in another country. Therefore will not be celebrating it with his loved one.

Let's talk about sex...

With the Holiday of Love soon upon us, a thought crosses my mind — what's the big deal about sex? Or, in other words, why can't we all have more of it?

From what I remember, sex is fun. It feels good, it makes you happy, it makes you want to smoke butts in bed and cuddle under the sheets naked afterwards and it makes you frustrated about condoms. It can last all night, or it can last five minutes, but the end product is usually the same — it is relaxing.

Imagine how much better we'd all feel if we all engaged in some kind of sexual activity every day, or every other day — hell, even once a week would be cool. I bet crime would go down. Overall stress among the general population would go down. Chances of heart disease and strokes would decrease.

Blood cholesterol levels would fall off the shelf. People would score better on tests, and would pay much more attention in classes. How many classes have you sat through where you haven't paid the slightest bit of attention to the professor because you couldn't stop thinking about sex? It's okay, you can be honest with yourself. It happens to the best of us. I've gone through an entire 50 minutes of class thinking about how good it would be to have sex in 72 different positions with the girl sitting across the room.

Evan Young

Now, just so all of the girls in my classes don't think I'm some psychotic sex-driven maniac, let me just say that I'm not constantly thinking about sex like some panting male dog when he smells a girly dog in heat. I'm not like that. I just think that sex is fun, so why not do it? Or, at least, why not think about it every so often? There is really nothing wrong, or twisted, about that. So please don't think that every time I look at you I'm sizing you up to take a spin in the sack.

Now, I'm sure that a lot of people out there would argue that sex is an experience that they like to hold dear and special, and that unless you have sex with someone you really care about, then it is meaningless.

Well that's nice and sweet and everything but sex on top of a washing machine in the Laundromat can be just as fun. It can be even better, perhaps, if it is with a completely random person who is also waiting for their wash to finish. Heck, maybe you might even get a phone number and a second date out of the deal. Sex in relationships is not the only kind that there is, and let's face it- — unless you are really imaginative, or really energetic, or Italian, after a while sex with the same person gets a little redundant. You have to start doing handstands and wearing anti-gravity boots just to avoid wanting to change the channel on the TV.

And just as relationship-sex is not the only brand of sex, sexual intercourse isn't the only fun thing when it comes to fooling around. Oral sex is good too. In fact, I would even go so far as to say that oral sex is great. Where else can you get anything that requires 0% work and has a 100% reward, other than if you are the recipient of a good dose of oral sex? Sometimes it can even be almost as fun to give than to receive. How many other ways is it okay to make girls scream? Beyond tickling, I can't think of any.

Sex is all around us. We are hit in the head with it during every commercial break. Whether it is by a girl on a Coors commercial ceremoniously slamming the silver-bullet tap into the keg on the side of a mountain or it is a bunch of anorexic Gen X kids scrolling by in black-and-white in an attempt to sell us cologne, sex is always up there in our faces. We cannot avoid it, and to deny the sexual drives within ourselves is to kill one of the more fun aspects of being human animals in this world.

So, as Valentine's Day rolls around, guys, think about sending a card to a cute girl in one of your classes. Girls, pick out a guy with a nice butt and ask him if he wants to grab a beer or something. Who knows where it might lead? We are at the primes of our sexual lives, and while we are here, we may as well not waste our time. And after all, sex is good.

Evan Young is a Collegian columnist.

Steve who?

Media coverage of the current presidential campaign is simply not adequate or informative. I only hope that people don't feel prepared to choose our country's president with the benefit of these tirades. If you plan on voting based on what you see on television, please don't, don't go to the polls — stay home and blow up your television.

Tara Ruelle

As apathetic as I'm supposed to be about the presidential campaign, I just can't seem to get away from it. I am inundated with blurbs of mud-slinging commercials on television and I'm blinded by newspaper articles asking me to care about some guy named Forbes — who could be Joe Blow for all I know. I suppose it's good, in one sense, we do need to care about who wants to run this country. The coverage though is starting to stink a little like the O.J. phenomenon and I'm getting a little ill.

First of all, the commercials or advertisements are not telling, they're ridiculous. Based on these one minute assessments of the candidates they're all evil in my eyes. At the very least they seem unlikely candidates for running a successful democracy. These snippets of insults only prove that whoever has the most dough to spend has the power to influence the American psyche. If you can make "Mr. Blank" look like a "Washington politician," you're suddenly ahead in the polls. I suppose on the up side I do always get a kick out of the "Bob Dole forgot" line flooding my screen.

Secondly, I just don't understand all the innate differences within each political party, particularly the Republicans. You see I mean pick on them because they're dominating my television viewing right now. Now according to the ads, this Republican's a moderate, he's a Washington politician, he's more conservative — that's funny I hadn't detected the glaring divisions. O.K. maybe I'm biased with that liberal bug.

The mudslinging and the comparisons are not what's important to me. The far reaching implications these individual's ideologies suggest are. What are their politics — hence the term politician? I don't care about someone wearing a red flannel shirt to suggest he's humble, I care about his real intentions. Personality flaws aside, where do these people stand on the issues that will impact me? Although "Generation X" is not supposed to care about these things, believe it or not a lot of us do.

We need to see much less token hand holding and baby smooching and much more straight forward dialogue from these candidates. For me to become at all intrigued with this race I need answers to questions, not accusations, or criticisms. It frustrates me that if we based our choice for president solely on the media coverage, we'd be deciding on the lesser of the evils — not that this necessarily doesn't happen whether we like it or not.

I guess I'm just really disappointed. I figured with all the access we now have to the instant dissemination of information we could educate rather than baffle. I don't suspect anyone comes away politically educated from these brain melting ads. I still know nothing about Lamar Alexander and I still think Phil Gramm is Satan. This media coverage definitely does not produce more informed voters — so what's the point?

Tara Ruelle is a Collegian columnist.

Opinion/Editorial

Remembering Rabin

While I was walking on campus at Tel Aviv University on Saturday evening November 4, word of mouth informed me that Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin had been shot. At this point there was a mad scramble to verify this rumor, and, if necessary, to find out more details about the Israeli leader's condition.

Henry J. Brier

I spent last semester across the Atlantic, as an exchange student in Israel. This past fall was a historically significant time to find oneself in the Middle East, as the region is famous, and notorious, for the widely publicized political and religious activity.

While planning to study abroad, I was well-aware that the Middle East is a hotbed for such activity. People expressed qualms about safety, or the lack thereof; however, this did not concern me.

Not even a week before I left the States for Israel, on Monday, July 24 of last year, a bus was blown up in Ramat Gan, a suburb east of Tel Aviv. A member of Hamas, an Islamic terrorist organization, was rumored to have called the Associated Press to claim responsibility for the blast that killed five.

I wanted to study in Israel because of my desire to have the primary experience of seeing the land for myself. Yet, never did I imagine that I would actually be there and, more precisely, in Tel Aviv during so significant a time which merited internationally intense media coverage.

Minutes after having heard Rabin was shot, while I was with friends who are fluent in Hebrew, we found out from Israeli radio that the Prime Minister had fallen victim to fundamentalist violence from within.

Less than three months previous to the assassination, I was in Tel Aviv when, on Monday, August 21, somewhat similar religious fundamentalism killed four students on a bus in Jerusalem carrying students to the Hebrew University. Likewise, Hamas also claimed responsibiiity.

Right after the assassination, I was immediately concerned about how vulnerable Israel had become, and I believed that one or two events would follow — either copycat crimes in which other national leaders would be killed, or the increase of terrorism, similar to those atrocities which occurred previous to the assassination, against Israel.

Israel was extremely susceptible at this time, and in proactive efforts to blunt any potential security threats, the Israel Defense Forces were placed on high alert and the border from the Gaza Strip in the south was immediately sealed. The Gaza Strip is where authorities believe much of the atrocities are planned.

President Bill Clinton, surrounded by an entourage, praised and remembered Rabin in a positive light on the White House lawn. After reassuring American support for Israel, Clinton finished eulogizing the late Israeli leader with two Hebrew words: "Shalom, chaver."

As soon as the next day, these words, which mean "goodbye, or peace, friend," appeared on t-shirts. Within a few days, it was viewed on thousands of cars and many billboards.

Before killing Rabin, the assassin, Yigal Amir, is believed to have received blessings from rabbis who were opposed to the Prime Minister's enacted policies towards peace amongst Israelis and Palestinians. Thus, Amir thought he was acting with "divine" legitimation.

Shortly after Clinton eulogized Rabin, I walked with friends ten minutes to the late Prime Minister's Tel Aviv apartment. By this time it was early on Sunday morning in Israel. Stoic faces and somber manners amongst the gathered masses at the candlelight vigil indicated to me that people were in shock.

The presence of world leaders paying their last respects to Rabin at his funeral on Monday upon Mount Herzl in Jerusalem was reassuring. Those who attended included Clinton; United Nations Secretary General Boutros-Boutros Ghali; German Chancellor and President Helmut Kohl and Roman Herzog, respectively; British Prime Minister John Major; and French President Jacques Chirac. The Arab delegations represented were Jordan, Qatar, Morocco, Egypt, Oman, and the Palestinian autonomy.

Yet, the question that begged an answer was where could these leader's predecessors be found when we really needed them during Nazi Germany's genocide in World War II? Their attendance at the funeral of an Israeli leader indicated how far Israel, and Jews, have come ever since Israel's independence.

Indicative of how strong and resilient the country is, Israeli society again became normalized with everyday activity within days. Shimon Peres, Rabin's second-in- command, filled the vacancy, and vowed to continue the legacy Rabin had commenced.

The assassination exacerbated the divide in Israel. Many want peace, and view the ongoing dialogue as the chance to cohabitate. Others, not necessarily only including the religious, view the Palestinian counterpart as being untrustworthy.

Nobel Peace Prize Laureate Yassir Arafat can be viewed as two-faced. He'll sign peace treaties, then turn around and call for a "jihad" against Israel, or praise terrorists. As a newly-elected leader, he is not preparing his people for peace.

In Israel, the late Prime Minister is esteemed for his loyalty to the Jewish State. The policies and the peace initiatives he commenced are not thoroughly loved. Yet similar political issues are present in every modern country.

Henry J. Brier is a Collegian Columnist.

Rocky Mountain low

Clare Cooper Marcus writes in her article, "Remembrance of Landscapes Past," that "All of us carry the memory seeds of childhood landscapes — those environments we encountered, smelled, dug in, climbed, and explored when our senses seemed most fantastiizingly alive. We explore the place in our mind's eye, almost feeling the texture of a tree trunk, almost smelling the musty odor of our grandmother's basement."

These poignant memories affect us in countless subtle ways, from the colors we choose for furnishings to the locations in which we choose to live. These memories assist us in creating environmental autobiographies by recognizing how certain habitats and landscapes have shaped both our personalities and our preferences.

Erin Barnes

My environmental history profoundly emerged from my home in Colorado. The very word conjures up images of mountain grandeur, untouched wilderness, grasslands and mesas, forests and lakes. Colorado is expansive, dramatic and elemental. Climbing high rocky places, descending deep canyons, wading through glacial lake waters or sitting by reflective alpine pools contribute to that special sense of place, that essence that says "Colorado."

During my recent visit home, I witnessed this great expanse of land significantly changing, as the old west struggles to meet the new. Rampant development has plagued every corner of the state. Douglas County, an area just minutes away from my childhood home, remains the fastest growing county in the United States. My parents' house, in what was once a suburb on the outskirts of Denver, now rests amid the metropolis that ascends from Pueblo to Ft. Collins. Lured by intrigue of the "Wild West," promises of vast open space, and of course, wonderful skiing, people from all over are rushing to "Tap the Rockies" and experience the Wild Frontier.

Unfortunately, these images that have brought forth increased growth and development have also led to the state's demise. For example, preserving western land and the ranch families that work it has led to increased confrontations between militant ranchers asserting property rights and hard-nosed environmentalists trying to force cattle off western lands. Beyond the lawsuits and political speeches, efforts are growing in the two camps to preserve both the landscape and a rural way of life. Environmentalists are realizing that the most likely alternative to ranching — residential and recreational development — may be worse for the land than the cattle are. Similarly, ranchers are realizing that what's best for the land is best for business. Both sides of the issue are further complicated by increased growth that has forced the population beyond Denver's borders and into the rural western slope.

The sacrifice of Colorado's revered land and wildlife is not a new phenomenon as historic development projects, such as the Rocky Mountain Arsenal, have mustered severe environmental consequences as well. In 1942, the United States Army acquired the land, just northeast of Denver, to make weapons. The Army manufactured chemical and incendiary weapons such as mustard and nerve gas, until the '60s and then leased the 17,000-acre piece of property to Shell Oil Company which in turn manufactured pesticides on the site.

Both the Army and Shell dumped thousands of tons of waste from their production efforts on arsenal property, burying it or disposing the liquid waste in massive open basins. These methods of disposal were widely accepted at the time as environmental protection was overshadowed by the benefits provided by the arsenal. The extent of contamination on the site was not realized until Shell stopped production in 1982, and the Army began clean-up operations.

Rocky Mountain Arsenal is now a heated battleground for environmentalists and the Army, which is trying to transform the toxic site into a wildlife sanctuary. Congress set aside the arsenal as a national wildlife refuge making it off limits to residential building. This meant a savings in billions of dollars since clean-up standards would be significantly lower. Environmentalists, for good reason, accuse the government of cutting corners and claim the area is a long way from being safe for humans or wildlife. Presently, visitors to the refuge receive tours by US Fish and Wildlife officers from inside government vans. Is this the "Essence of Colorado" envisioned by those who have made the move?

The changes that have taken place within the confines of the state have truly affected my environmental autobiography. As my visits back home become less frequent, and as I grow more accustomed to the Amherst way of life, I have learned that we can do with less and still survive. Many individuals in the business sector (and in my own family) view the growth as beneficial to the state's economy. Sadly, these development projects continue at the expense of Colorado's heritage. Environmental history in Colorado and beyond must be preserved rather than paved over. How many shopettes and housing developments will it take before we realize that the spice of the Wild West is being lost.

Erin Barnes is a Collegian columnist.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR AND COLUMNS

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e-mail account: letters@oit.umass.edu

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Bob Dunn.

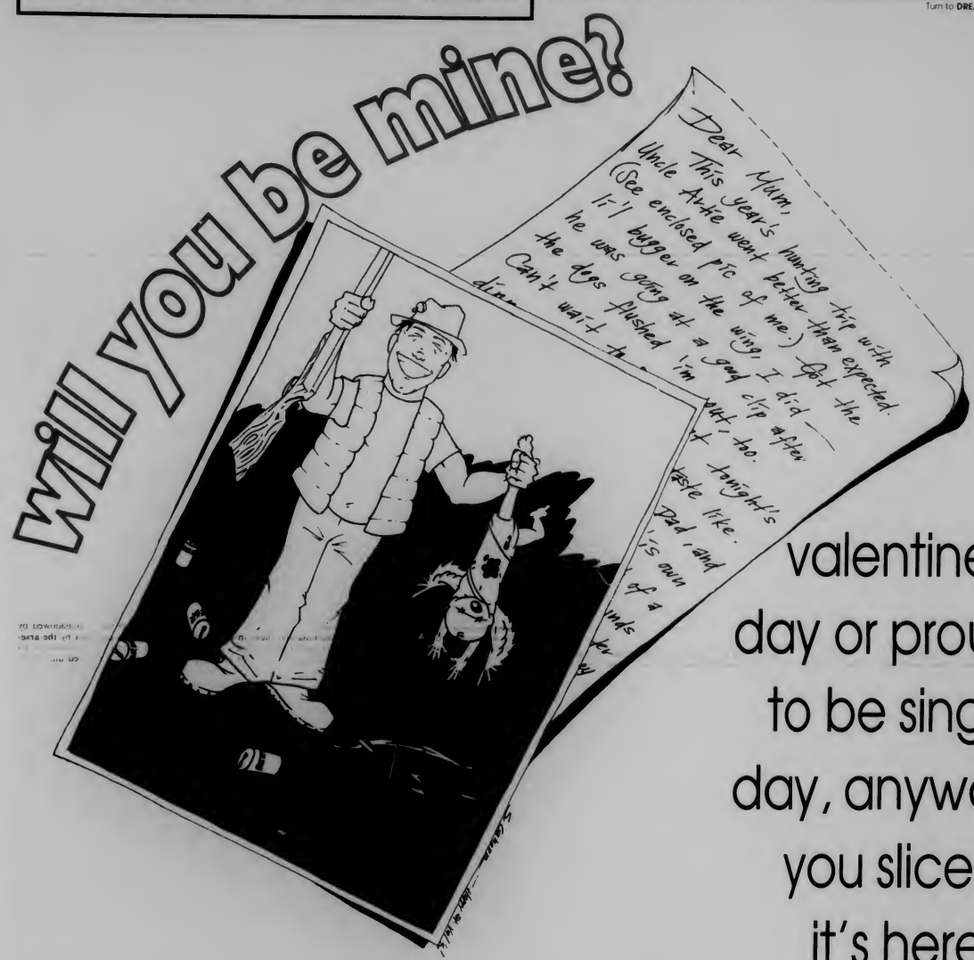
Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ARTS & LIVING

Thursday, February 8, 1996

Weekend Edition • Volume CV Issue 75



will you be mine?
Dear Mom,
This year's hunting trip with Uncle Artie went better than expected. (See enclosed pic of me.) I'll bugger on the way, I said — he was going at a good clip after the toes flashed 'I'm hungry' — too. I can't wait to taste like Dad — and valentine's day or proud to be single day, anyway you slice it, it's here...

Collegian staff picks celebrity valentines

For those that have no one and for those that wish they had no one, dream dates come in pretty handy. Here are some Collegian staff celebrity dream dates.

Tara MK Connelly
Arts & Living Editor

My dream date? James Bond (Pierce Brosnan) because he's dangerous, sexy, sophisticated, class and drives a stick with style. He'll pick me up in his BMW and we'll go kick some bad boy's butt. Martini and tux optional.

Mark McGrath
Ed/Op Associate

If there were a dream date that I would simply be unable to refuse, I'd say it would be with Sandra Bullock's character in While You Were Sleeping. She was just so unbelievably sweet and cute, it's a shame that characters like her only come around in the movies.

Laura Stock
Collegian Film Associate

The Valentine of my fantasies is the Desperado himself — Antonio Banderas. He could grab his guitar, pull me into his arms and whisper, "Let's play."

Matt Sinclair
Collegian Staff

My dream date would simply have to be Sigourney Weaver. The archetype of female sophistication, this goddess immeasurably surpasses the typical Hollywood bimbos, many of whom haven't even the IQ of your average

Turn to DREAM DATES, Page 10

Finding romance through film

Laura Stock

My most memorable Valentine's Day was four years ago, as I spent the day curled up in bed, not with my current flame, but rather a big heart-shaped box of Russell Stover candies, watching Gone With the Wind in all of its enchanting four-hour entirety.

Whether you have a significant other to spend with this February 14 or you are flying solo, chances are a sweet, sappy romance flick will make its way into your VCR. After all, the single most popular inspiration for any work of art is love, made manifest by the endless array of tearjerking melodramas and amorous movies.

My following suggestions by no means form a complete list of the most romantic movies of all time, but rather perennial favorites that tend to make the common movie lover's heart skip a beat, or the most cynical of sorts believe that true love just might exist.

When Harry Met Sally — Probably the greatest relationship movie of all time. Even though I could do without Billy Crystal most days, he and Meg Ryan have the most incredible chemistry as best friends who fall at trying not to fall in love. For anyone who has ever desired to make the transition from friends to lovers, just pull aside the object of your desire, and whisper into his or her ear, "Walter, there is too much pepper on my poppycosh."

Breakfast as Tiffany's — "Charming" can be the only word to describe this, the most exquisite romance film in history. Audrey Hepburn's captivating eyes light up the screen, even when they are teary. She and George Peppard make magic as a couple of lost souls who find love in their strange little apartment building. Holly Golightly amuses and delights with her affinity for peering in jewelry shop windows as she sips her morning coffee. Hepburn's rendition of "Moon River" still haunts us today.

Casablanca — Classics never die, as Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman prove in Casablanca, unquestionably most popular movie of all time. The timeless tale about a savvy nightclub owner (Bogart) reuniting with his lost love (Bergman) in WW2-torn Casablanca has had viewers reaching for their Kleenex for over 50 years. It also contains the most hotly debated ending in love movie history — as well as those famous last lines.

Say Anything & Some Kind of Wonderful — Ah, the '80s. Back when we were first discovering the joys of junior high dating. Hollywood was pumping out enough teenage romance movies to guide us. If these two movies don't make you reminisce, they will at least make you laugh at a once-pimply John Cusack wooing Ione Skye, and a fair- haired, pre-Pulp Fiction Eric Stoltz. The moral of these two stories is that the geeky guy can win the popular girl, as long as he has a big heart.

Before Sunrise — What can be more romantic then two strangers falling in love on train ride through Europe? Ethan Hawke and Julie Delpy spending one incredible night together strolling through scenic Vienna, learning about each other and themselves. This flick also has a heart-palpitating ending, complete with a perfect Richard Linklater-directed montage.

Turn to LAURA, page 6

Love's slow jams and sexy tunes

Mike Burke

Valentine's Day has never been high on my list of favorite holidays. Being single on a day for lovers isn't all that it is cracked up to be, but it wasn't always that bad.

In elementary school it was fun. All my classmates would send virtually everyone a card and I would compete with my friends as to who could get the most. Now I wish they changed the calendar so we would only celebrate Valentine's Day on a leap year.

My ultra-unsuccessful middle-school years can be summed up by my ever-present grace at middle school dances where I was found talking to my guy friends (those same girls who sent me Valentine's Day cards a few years earlier forgot I existed) about the Celtics' chances in the playoffs. Unfortunately during the slow songs my guy friends would go off and find a dancing partner while I was left pondering to myself whether Bird or Magic was better.

Those seven plus minutes of "Stairway To Heaven" can really punch s hole in a young man's heart. It was always the last dance of the night (except when the school hired a cool DJ that played Sinatra) and I was always alone in the corner watching the rest of my class have the time of their life. Today DJs probably spin Page & Plant tunes instead of Led Zeppelin — sorry, kids it is just not the same.

So for this Valentine's Day I tried to compile a list of love songs that I frankly never want to hear again and a few which will stand the test of time.

"(Everything I Do) I Do It For You," Bryan Adams.

Fortunately I had stopped attending school sponsored dances by the time this came out. I probably would have become sick if I had to see all the suave dudes tell their girlfriends, "this song is for you" a couple hours before they cheat on them. Robin Hood was a decent movie, but this song singlehandedly influenced me not to see the movie until it was on video. Bryan Adams, do it for me, and get out of the recording industry, please!

"Lady In Red," Chris de Burgh.

Another tune that ranks high on the cheese factor but I do have a soft spot for it. My forgetful memory recalls that I may have actually danced to this song once in middle school. Could be wrong though, since I only danced to about five songs in three years — if I was lucky.

"Angel," "Cryin" and "Crazy," Aerosmith.

What is it with five-letter word ballads from Boston's Bad Boys? For the last 20 years Aerosmith have been local kings of hard rock ballads, but they will never rewrite "Dream On" so please stop dreaming.

"Wonderful Tonight" and "Layla (acoustic version)" Eric Clapton.

When I was 13 the lyrics of "Wonderful Tonight" gave me guidance as to how to talk with the other gender. I really wanted to tell a girl, "Oh baby you were wonderful tonight" but I had enough trouble saying "hi" or "do you want to boogie"? As for "Layla" I feel bad for anyone who heard the new version before the original. It's almost like hearing the Counting Crows before Van Morrison.

"Love Bites," Def Leppard.

Two years ago a friend of mine made a mix tape for his girlfriend with this song as well as "Make Love Like A Man" and "(Everything I Do) I Do It For You." Amazingly they are still going out — it must have been this song. Next time I make a mix tape maybe I will put on "Love Bites" (I do have the tape somewhere) instead of a Sebadoh tune.

"Feel Like Makin' Love," Bad Company. "Free Bird," Lynard Skynard.

Anyone that is aching for a '70s revival, point them in the direction of these two tunes — hopefully they will reconsider. Mention Peter Frampton while you are at it.

"Together Forever," Rick Astley.

The New York Times Magazine recently named this the summer love song of 1988 — that must have been one bad summer. Too bad Astley hasn't been with us forever. We

Turn to LOVE SONGS, page 6

Layout & Design by: James P. Conley & Tara MK Connelly • Collegian Art By: Sean Cohoon

~ VALENTINE'S DAY ~

■ Laura

continued from page 5

For lovers of travel and innovative dialogue, check it out.

While You Were Sleeping — Sandra Bullock's mile-wide grin fills the screen, as she plays a subway toll-taker who gets mixed up in love. The man she has a secret everyday lust for falls into a coma and she convinces his family they are engaged. Romantic confusion occurs when she falls in love with his brother, played by Bill Pullman. Adorably cute, its worth the watch this Valentine's Day.

Singles & Reality Bites — For those of you still searching for love, either one of these Gen-X, boy meets girl, boy treats girl like crap, girl finds love with another boy films will do. The casts of these two similar films include the likes of Matt Dillon, Bridget Fonda, Ethan Hawke and Winona Ryder. A final word of advice — Singles has a superior soundtrack.

Laura Stock is an arts associate editor.

■ love songs

continued from page 5

sure miss you.

"Faithfully" and "Open Arms," Journey.

The '80s had three main problems. First, Reagan winning in 1980; second, Reagan winning in 1984; and lastly, the existence of Journey. To make matters worse Journey has released a greatest hits collection just to remind you how bad they were. Reagan is lucky — he can't even remember ever hearing these two songs. I wish I could say that.

"You're Having My Baby," Paul Anka.

I hope this song was written as a joke, but if it wasn't then it is guaranteed a cherished spot in the Worst Love Songs Of All Time Hall of Shame. Imagine singing this song to your pregnant lover? If you are in the mood for some ace karaoke my old roommate does a stunning version of this tune.

"Endless Love," Diana Ross and Lionel Richie.

According to The New York Times Magazine this has become the most requested "first song" at wedding receptions. I feel old today because I remember back when Lionel Richie was an all star singer with hits like "Say You, Say Me." Unfortunately the entire world has forgotten him except for one member of the Collegian staff — Andrew Bryce. Maybe Richie will perform at your wedding, Andrew. I don't think he has to many other gigs lined up!

Maybe next year I will continue this dreaded list, there are lots more love songs to go around. Just think, "Every Rose Has Its Thorn" by Poison; "I Will Always Love You" by Whitney Houston; or "Take My Breath Away" by Berlin. The list is endless.

There are some great love songs but they are hidden at the of bottom of the list since none of these tunes will be booming from my hi-fi system come next Wednesday.

Barry White is to love songs as Public Enemy is to rap, far and away the best. Just take one listen to "Can't Get Enough Of Your Love, Babe." Cheesy song title, maybe, but White's voice is just awesome. No wonder he made a guest appearance on "The Simpsons" — Marge just wishes Homer would sing like this to her at night.

Franki Valli's "Can't Take My Eyes Off You" is a staple on my local oldies station who live up to their motto of playing only songs you know by heart. Even though they play it almost every hour I always turn up the volume. A classic.

A couple years ago Sonic Youth covered the Carpenters' "(They Long To Be) Close To You" and I was mesmerized. The original is even more powerful and moving.

Finally there is 1966's "When A Man Loves A Woman" by Percy Sledge. The title say it all.

Maybe this will help you in preparing that always important soundtrack for your Valentine's Day. Mix tapes with Def Leppard and Bryan Adams work for some but I wouldn't suggest it. As for me I will be content with my Wedding Present and Lou Barlow records about lost love and loneliness. Happy Valentine's Day.

Mike Burke is a Collegian staff member.

The history of Valentine's Day

Taking a look the originators and stories of one day of love

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

Love is in the air as St. Valentine's Day rolls around. Here we have a whole day dedicated to lovers, named after some saint that no one's really heard about or cares.

It turns out that Saint Valentine was a very chaste man and a holy priest in Rome. He was known for his piety and his kindness. He was especially renowned for his work with epileptics. Stricken with epilepsy himself, Saint Valentine was familiar with the "falling sickness." He also assisted martyrs escape the persecution of Claudius II.

Valentine's work got him noticed by the Emperor, who arrested him and promptly bundled him off to the Prefect of Rome. It's not known quite what angered the Prefect, but the result was that Valentine was forced to renounce his faith. Later, he was sentenced to be beaten with clubs and was beheaded on February 14, 270 A.D.

There's obviously nothing romantic about Valentine and it's not quite clear where the association with lovers arose. One theory is that when the Romans invaded Britain, they brought with them the pagan Spring Festival of the Lupercalia which took place on the 15th of February. Later, when the Romans packed up and left, pagan rituals were thrown out and replaced with the holidays celebrating martyred Christian priests.

In certain parts of England, young men and women would assemble and draw names. The names they picked would be their "valentines." In Wales, young men often gave their sweethearts spoons to demonstrate their undying love. Eventually, valentines grew to be lacy declarations of fidelity and love.

Speaking of love, no Valentine's Day celebration can be complete without Cupid, the God of Love himself and his beautiful wife, Psyche.

Psyche was the third daughter of a Roman king. She was so beautiful that people stopped worshipping Venus, the Goddess of Love, and paid homage to Psyche instead. Venus was enraged at the thought of an earthly rival and put a curse on Psyche.

Years past and Psyche's elder sisters were married. No man dared to approach Psyche because her beauty was so overwhelming. Heart-broken and desperate, Psyche made a pilgrimage to an oracle who revealed to her Venus' curse. It turned out that Psyche's fate was to marry a hideous monster.

Psyche made the voyage to a mountain where she was to greet her mysterious husband. Abandoned by her family and scared half to death, Psyche finally met her husband late one night. He extracted a promise from her that she would not communicate with her family or look at him. Curiosity got the better of Psyche and one night she snuck a glance at her husband and discovered that he was Cupid, the most handsome man in the world and Venus' son. Because she broke her promise, Cupid disappeared. That's when Psyche realized that she was in love with Cupid (must have been one of those arrows) and set off to find him. Only there was a problem. Venus was still mad as hell.

Venus imprisoned Cupid and in order to set him free, Psyche was assigned four difficult tasks.

First she had to separate mixed grains into piles. This would be a difficult task indeed, if it hadn't been for the help of some friendly ants. Then Psyche had to shear the wool off some golden sheep. The sheep weren't that friendly, but with some advice from a green reed Psyche found a way to accomplish her job. Then Venus ordered Psyche to get some water from the top of a huge mountain.

Ready to concede defeat, Psyche plopped herself down at the foot of the mountain when Jupiter's eagle came to the rescue and fetched the water for her. Finally, Psyche was asked to descend into Hades and get Prosepina's beauty potion. She found the potion with the help of a magic tower and overcome by curiosity she opened the box and was knocked senseless.

All would be lost, except that Cupid managed free himself from his mother's prison and rescue his beloved. Psyche and Cupid married and lived happily ever after.

ARTS & LIVING
It's a cool section with cool topics and cool people, so get off your cool can and come write for us.

"EVERY DAY, A NEW COLLEGIAN TO READ. LIFE JUST CAN'T GET BETTER THAN THIS DAVE."
"IT SURE CAN'T MARC, IT'S ENCHILEMENT IN ITS PUREST FORM."

50,000 EYES WILL LOOK AT YOUR AD IF PLACED IN THE
COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
Now for your convenience at the Campus Center Concourse on Thursdays.
Ask for our specials.

Spectrum is... a ≧ college literary journal.
→ We accept art and prose and → photography and → poetry and personal essays. ↔ there's a deadline for all this and it's * february12* Submit please.
↔ student union 2nd floor - thanks

The University of Massachusetts Campus Activities Presents:
Something Every Friday
a weekly program series of events
Coming this Friday
O.J. Ekemode and the Nigerian All-Stars
Campus Center Auditorium
February 9, 1996, 8:00pm
FREE
Followed by the Movie
"Copy Cat"
Starring Sigourney Weaver & Holly Hunter
time approx. 11pm
Refreshments Will Be Served
For Schedules: 545-3600
This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
Busch & Busch Light $9.99 case Bottles
Bud 16 oz bottles $2.99 4-pack
Sam Adams $4.99/six (Lager, Ale, Stout, Pilsner)
Smutty Nose $4.99/six (Old Brown Dog, Pale Ale)
Goldschlager $8.99
Myers Rum $10.99
Jack Daniels $12.49
Gordons Vodka $6.49
Keg Special: 1/2 Keg $75.00
Pete's Wicked (Ale, Red, Honey Wheat)
Micro-Brewed Beer Kegs in Stock
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted

~ MOVIES ~

White Squall barely stays afloat

Jeff Bridges and crew keep White Squall afloat. COURTESY PHIL BRAY

By Justin D. Smith
Collegian Staff

WHITE SQUALL
Directed by Ridley Scott with Jeff Bridges, Scott Wolf
Playing at Hampshire Six

If you are like me then you probably never wonder, I what would happen if you crossed Dead Poets Society and The Poseidon Adventure. But if this has been a steady force of puzzlement than you need not worry any longer — enter White Squall.

White Squall is based on a true story about the adventures of 13 high school boys who spend their senior year at sea. It is more or less narrated and seen from the perspective of Chuck Gieg, played by teen-dream Scott Wolf from "Party Of Five."

Gieg and his classmates become men primarily due to the lessons they learn from their skipper, Christopher Sheldon (Jeff Bridges). Sheldon is a hardened man of the sea making him not particularly charismatic to the maturing youths. Yet they learn to understand him and come to appreciate his ways.

"Carpe Diem" from Dead Poets Society is traded for an "all are one" solidarity message. After some minor problems, the teens come to live by this motto. Their path to manhood has its obstacles that the crew had to endure, the worst such being the ever deadly "white squall," the most dangerous of maritime waves.

Wolf plays exactly like a Tom Cruise circa Risky Business. In fact, the resemblance is uncanny. Once he ascends from his "Party of Five" status, he may become more than just the non-threatening boy of the week. Bridges is good but he falls short with the inevitable comparison to Dead Poets' Robin Williams.

Despite the fluff and predictability, White Squall is entertaining. British director Ridley Scott makes this more than just a sappy, feel-good outing. Scott has long been an acclaimed filmmaker (sans his last film, 1492: The Conquest of Paradise) with such impressive credits ranging from Alien to Blade Runner to Thelma and Louise.

Scott keeps White Squall visually compelling due in large part to stunning cinematography. With great shots of the boat transcending the waves as well as captivating aerials of South Pacific vistas—the film is beautifully made.

White Squall does not rack up with the better of Ridley Scott's films, but by no means should it be considered a failure. The story, although familiar, remains interesting without pushing the sentimental and sappy plot too far.

C+

BLACK SHEEP
Directed by Penelope Spheeris with Chris Farley, David Spade
Playing at Hampshire Six

Unfortunately last year's Tommy Boy made a considerable amount of money. That could be the only reason for Black Sheep.

It seems that there are an excessive number of "Saturday Night Live" movies coming out these days. It makes sense considering the show is on an unsalvageable downfall. Adam Sandler in Happy Gilmore opens next week and now less than a year after Tommy Boy, Chris Farley and David Spade return in Black Sheep.

Black Sheep rehashes not only the characters but also the plot from Tommy Boy — Spade takes care of the juvenile– acting Farley. Directing this time out is Penelope Spheeris; who has directed amongst other films, another "SNL" spinoff — Wayne's World.

This time Farley plays Mike Donnelly, the younger brother of gubernatorial candidate, Al Donnelly. In order to help the campaign, Steve (Spade), volunteers to watch Mike and make sure he stays out of trouble as to not besmirch his brother's name.

Turn to MOVIES, page8

Scott Wolf steps up for role in film

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

Known for his role as Bailey Salinger on the FOX–TV show "Party of Five," Scott Wolf is one of Hollywood's hottest up–and–coming actors.

Often described as looking like a young Tom Cruise, 27– year–old Wolf is far more experienced in the ways of the world than his character, Bailey, and his latest movie proves this.

White Squall is a story of courage. On the way back from a trial voyage, a crew of young sailors from a prominent sailing academy run into a freak storm in the South Pacific — a white squall. Lives are lost and Wolf's character, Chuck Gieg, must step up and lead the survivors. Later they are called into court to testify in order to determine whether or not their skipper prepared them for such an emergency situation.

"I've probably been in a situation like that but on a much smaller scale," Wolf said. "And I think one of the great things about this film is sort of the idea of how important it is to be connected and accountable to the people around you and how the best of who we are as people comes out of that relationship."

COURTESY MERRICK MORTON
Scott Wolf stars in new movie White Squall.

Wolf believes that all people possess the ability to step up, like his character did, and learn from the lessons life deals out.

"It's kind of heartbreaking, but you get to see these sort of heroic acts and that [heroic] quality. Your being capable of being a hero is not a conscious and logical thing — it's instinctive.

"It's surprising what you're capable of and what these guys were capable of actually doing together. This story is a great depiction of that and what it came to mean to them and what it came to mean to them when they lost and had to find a way to go on with their lives," Wolf said.

A graduate from George Washington University, Wolf loves his job and believes that acting is a challenge because he constantly "has to peel away layers" to find the character inside him.

White Squall took Wolf to all corners of the earth. The movie was physically more involved than "Party of Five" because it had the cast on ships, volcanos and out at sea in the water. The filming was drawn out into a three and a half month process — seven days a week according to Wolf. The most challenging part of the film for him was a toss up between the storm scene (filmed in Malta in a framed water tank) and the courtroom scene.

"I think it would be a tie between the court room scene and the storm scene. The focus on the storm scene was physical and really, really hard," Wolf said.

The young actor is content with what he is doing and sure that "what I'm doing right now" is what he was meant to do. According to Wolf his next film is called Evening Star, a sequel to Terms of Endearment. It will co–star Jack Nicholson and Shirley MacLaine with Juliette Lewis and Miranda Richardson. Wolf will be playing the part of Lewis' character's boyfriend and the film is due out later this year.

Although he claims not top be a perfectionist, the rising star definitely admits to striving for professionalism.

"I'm not perfect and I don't want to be perfect... Acting is an art, not a science," Wolf said.

50,000 eyes will look at your ad if placed in the COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS.
Now for your convenience at the Campus Center Concourse on Thursdays.
Ask for our specials.

There are times when you wish you could do more than watch the world pass by in a haze of wonder and a cloud of what if's
COLLEGIAN NEWS
"Make it happen

NEVER A DRESS CODE
MIKARA'S
MUSIC ROOM & NIGHT CLUB
270 COOLEY ST SPRINGFIELD, MA (413) 796-7113
February 9
Accept & L.A. Guns 10pm
21+ Adv. Tix. $9 At Door $12
February 17
Southside Hohnny & The Asbury Jukes 9pm
21+ Adv. Tix. $10 At Door $15
March 2
The Mighty Mighty Bosstones
18+ Adv. Tix. $15
Tickets at Strawberries, Ticket master, Phone (BOO) THE TICK Info Line 796-7113

HOW DO YOU MAKE A BAR FLY?

with HALF-PRICE APPETIZERS & NACHOS
EVERY DAY at THE PUB in AMHERST from 3-5pm and 7-9pm only in the bar and lounge!
15 E. PLEASANT STREET • DOWNTOWN AMHERST

Mega Sale.
Steve Madden Shoes & Boots.

ZAHA
Downtown Amherst

Penny Street
Night Life
99 3 DANCE PARTY
The Area's Biggest Dance Party
BIM SKALA BIM
RETRO NIGHT
PHYSICAL GRAFFITI
CLUB NIGHT
DEBBIE DAVIES
PAW
THE RAMONES
GAY NIGHT
99 3 DANCE PARTY
NAPALM DEATH
RETRO NIGHT
ZOO STATION
CLUB NIGHT
WARREN ZEVON
COMING TO PEARL STREET
2/16 SHAHANCHY
2/19 PHISH
2/22 PHYSICS DADS
2/23 TEXAS FLOOD
2/24 ROOMFUL OF BLUES
2/26 SHIFT
2/29 SHARKS APART
SOUL CAFE
TALENT REVUE
3/1 WAR (Upstairs)
3/1 MAX DEEK (Downstairs)
3/4 FACE TO FACE
3/6 DAMON HALL
3/8 GRAVEDIGGER
3/9 7 MARY 3 (Upstairs)
3/9 THE UPPER CRUST (Downstairs)
3/12 LEFTWICH BLAKE PARRAZO
3/17 FRANK BLACK

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE
Friday, February 16
for events after March 6
Grants for:
Visual Art & Design
Literature, Theater, Performance Art
Film & Video
Music
Artistic components in multicultural programs
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS
Applications, guidance, & information:
The UMass Arts Council
101 Hasbrouck Hall
545-0202

GOT THE WINTER "BLAHS", COME IN TODAY & SAVE!!
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive
BEERS
CATAMOUNT BOCK ALL FLAVORS 6 PK. BOTTLES $4.49 + DEP
ICEHOUSE & RED DOG CASE OF 2-12PK. BOTTLES $12.99 + DEP
BUSCH REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS $11.79 + DEP 30 PACK
GUINNESS PUB DRAUGHT 4 PK. 16OZ CANS $4.79 + DEP
GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 2-12 PK. CANS $7.29 + DEP
HORNSBY'S CIDER AMBER & DARK-N-DRY 6 PK. BOTTLES SALE $4.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$1.00 FINAL COST $3.99
1/2 KEGS BUD, BUD LT., BUD ICE, MICHELOB, MICH. LT., LITE, RED DOG, ICEHOUSE, MICHELOB DARK $39.99 + DEP
WINES
ALMADEN 5 LT BAG IN A BOX CHABLIS, BURGUNDY, BLUSH, RHINE, GOLDEN, WHITE GRENACHE $7.49
BOLLA ALL FLAVORS 1.5 $7.99
MARTINI & ROSSI ASTI SPUMANTE 750 ML SALE $7.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $5.99
GLEN ELLEN WHITE ZINFANDEL 750 ML $3.49
LINDEMAN'S BIN 65 AUSTRALIAN CHARDONNAY 750 ML $5.49
MD 20/20 ALL FLAVORS 750 ML $1.99
LIQUORS
Kahlúa COFFEE LIQUEUR 750 ML $12.99
BACARDI RUM LIGHT & DARK 750 ML $7.49
POPOV VODKA 1.75L $9.99
OLD SMUGGLER SCOTCH WHISKEY 1.75L $13.49
SEAGRAM'S V.O. CANADIAN WHISKEY 1.75L $15.99
AMARETTO DI SARONNO 750 ML $14.49
We Accept All Caps and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 2/8/96 THRU WEDS. 2/14/96
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Internet web pages help people find true love

WORLD of ROMANCE
http://www.godek.com/links.html

Although this page is dedicated to promoting a book about romance, it is full of fun stuff for Valentine's Day. The page includes tips on how to be romantic, links to other romance pages and even a romance quiz.

The World of Romance has about 100 links to all sorts of pages related to romance and love from novels with Fabio on the cover to FTD Florists to Valentine's Day web pages. All the links are rated in a five-heart system too. The quiz is quite hard, unless you are at a library.

In my opinion this page is useless. The links to other pages is its only redeeming value. C

A Highridge Valentine
http://www.highridge.com/village/holiday/valentine

I am not sure what the point of this page is, but I suspect it is commercial.

The page is dedicated to Valentine's Day, but it is quite generic. It includes poetry about love, puzzles, and of course links to other pages.

However the page requires Netscape Navigator 2.0 to take advantage of the puzzles which seemed like the most interesting aspect of the site. Although I was certainly impressed by the glitz of the Java scripting, the page quickly lost my interest.

The spot claims to be a "select" location by Mike Wendland, but that means nothing to me because I have no idea who he is. I would not bookmark this one. C+

JOE'S AMAZING RELATIONSHIP PROBLEM SOLVER
http://studsys.mscu.mu.edu/~carpent1/probsolv/rlhprob0.html

Having a problem with your relationship? Maybe Joe has the answer.

Some how I doubt he does, but this is quite possibly one of the best sites on the Web. Unlike the other two sites, this one is not commercial.

Joe asks you a few basic questions such as: Does the problem-ridden relationship involve a girlfriend, boyfriend or neutered friend? Your answers are simply yes, no or maybe. A little hint: Do not answer no to the first one because the fun will be over before it even begins.

Joe is not a professional, he is simply a college student. Actually he is not even a psychology major, so do not take him too seriously.

I found myself falling out of my chair laughing at Joe's responses to my questions. This page is worthy of a bookmark. A

Matthew Wurtzel is a Collegian columnist.

■ movies

continued from page 7

What results can only be described as wacky. Mike rolls down hills, sets himself on fire, runs into things and gets dragged by more than one form of transit. Farley's physical comedy can only go so far and it went further than enough in Tommy Boy. Spade, who continues his career of being in strictly poor films, was never really funny to begin with.

Poor Gary Busey is not getting too many knocks on his door these days. That can be the only excuse for him acting in this film. As a belligerent ex-military officer that keeps running into Mike and Steve, his character is exceptionally unfunny.

The few funny points that do occur in the movie, I found myself laughing alone. I guess a Deliverance reference is a little too obscure for the typical Black Sheep audience. Or maybe I am being too cerebral for Black Sheep. D

ARTS & LIVING

It's a cool section.
With cool topics.
And cool people.
So get off your cool can.
And come write for us.

Celebrating 'Proud to be Single Day' with panache

Valentine's Day is coming up and depending on your status, you're either loving the holiday or hating it. The sticky sweetness of the Feb. 14 tradition would make even the strongest of stomachs turn. Of course, it's easier to take if you're joined at the hip to someone, but if you're single, it doesn't hurt to have some ideas on what to do while couples slow dance the night away.

There are two ways you can look at the holiday. You can accept the fact that people fall in love and are going to be gushy about it. Or you can mope about being single. The latter isn't usually much fun, so be a good sport, head off to the nearest drug store and invest in a package of Disney valentines. There's nothing quite like giving out little Ariels or Aladdins to your friends.

If buying cards is too commercial for you, there's always the option of making your own. It tends to be time- consuming, but at least your creative juices are flowing and it'll be easy to prove to everyone that you are making the best of the situation.

You can hang out with your single friends. For example, you can go out for dinner and celebrate "proud to be single" day. Maybe you're not proud, but it doesn't hurt to pretend that you are. After all, appearances are everything.

Valentine's Day is the perfect day to get all those pesky chores done. Doing your laundry, washing your hair and cleaning the mold out of your refrigerator are all convenient excuses. If you have the stereo on when you're vacuuming your little cubicle of a room, it'll be so loud you won't have to answer when your friends ask why you're at home alone.

There's always the "I don't care about this silly holiday" act. You can tell everyone you know a thousand times that you don't care and you're happy that you don't have to buy silk boxers with hearts on them or a dozen long stemmed roses for your significant other. But after a while, no one's going to buy your "I'm saving tons of money" attitude and you'll find yourself wishing that you did have someone you could buy silly gifts for.

After awhile, the nice guy routine gets old and you find yourself wanting to throttle all those couples staring dreamily into each other's eyes. It's annoying, especially since some of these people have been together about 30 seconds and are already madly in love.

If you are particularly bitter, you might want to find a nice bench somewhere in the middle of the Campus Center and heckle all the couples sitting snugly together. Make them so miserable that they will rue the day they ever found each other. Chances are though, you'll probably just make a fool of yourself. Skip this idea unless you have a death wish.

If you're politically motivated, send off a stream of letters to Washington D.C. Lobby the Republicans to ban Valentine's Day on account of it being an unnecessary federal expense. Just imagine how much money could be saved if calendar makers didn't have to print "Valentine's Day" on some 200 million odd calendars. That money could be used to be pay off the deficit.

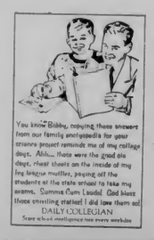
If the Republicans don't take notice of your efforts, you can always try the Democrats. Point out that some people are underprivileged when it comes to receiving valentines. Suggest that the Democrats set up a social program so everyone in the country who doesn't have a significant other gets a valentine on that special day.

Find a support group in the Yellow Pages. There's bound to be a Singles' Anonymous group and they'll be sure to welcome you into their fold. You'll probably do something fun, like laughing at all the couples going into restaurants with romantic lighting or a bonfire party. There's nothing more liberating than burning all remnants of an earlier relationship with some jerk who had the nerve to leave three days before Valentine's Day.

You can deride Valentine's Day to anyone who'll listen. Call it a tacky excuse for sales and you'll be all set. Of course, you could get in trouble if you take advantage of the sales, so hide all those receipts.

Valentine's Day is just one of those things you have to accept. If you don't think about it much, it's just another day and it's not any worse being single on Valentine's Day than any other day of the week. Well... maybe not, but at least you've tried.

Seema Gangatirkar is a Collegian staff member.



You know Bobby, copying those answers from our family encyclopedia for your science project reminds me of my college days. Ahh... those were the good ole days, cheat sheets on the inside of my long league mufflers, peeing off the students at the state school to take my exams. Summa Cum Laude. God bless those cheating starts! I did love them so!
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Scare school intelligence out every weekday

Top Ten Valentine's Day Gifts Sure To Get Bonus Points

10. A card. Hallmark is nice, but a homemade one, although reminiscent of junior high school, is endearing. However late cards get exempted. They've been pushing Valentine's Day cards since New Year's — there is no excuse.
9. Candy. Chocolates score big with women and men. More so with women because scientifically they tend to crave it more.
8. Stuffed animals. Women are suckers for warm fuzzy animals, especially those that don't have to be walked or fed. Guys like them too although they'll deny it.
7. Dinner. Dinner comes in two forms — one that is homemade and one that is eaten out. The homemade is cool only if you can cook. The eating out is cool when you burn the homemade.
6. Flowers. Any flowers will do unless the person is allergic to them. Guys like to get flowers too, they just don't like admitting it (see stuffed animals). Plus, unlike a potted plant they're supposed to die soon.
5. Jewelry. Usually this is tied in with the word "expensive." It doesn't have to be though — but a Cracker Jack prize and gumball machine goody just doesn't carry the same weight.
4. Marriage proposals. These are for the serious romantics who decide that Valentine's Day is the perfect time to pop the question and save hassles in the future. That way when your honey asks you, "Do you remember the day you proposed?" you have a quick answer and win big bonus points.
3. Romance. Vague yes, but important to a lot of people. Try saying, "Get me a beer" with love in your voice. Or remind them to "put down the goddamn toilet seat for the millionth time" — with a big smile.
2. Poem/songwriting. Sappy and yes, immature sounding, but again creativity is cool. However, if you can't sing you might want to get someone who knows how. Warning: this type of gift can usually be shown to other people. Prepare to be embarrassed — ah, the price of love!
1. Remembering. Yes, just remembering that the day is Valentine's Day is the best gift. It shows you care and you're on top of current events.

Top 10 Worst Things You Get Or Do On Valentine's Day

10. Venereal disease. It's the day of love — not National Contract a STD Day.
9. Blind Date. Can you imagine the pressures of having a blind date on Valentine's Day? I mean the enormous pressure to make it just right and romantic for a perfect stranger? No, thanks!
8. Office supplies and other practical gifts. Imagine your loved one at the office the next day and having this conversation:
"Oh, I got a dozen roses."
"I received a singing telegram."
"... I got a packet of no. 2 pencils and a stapler."
7. A pig's heart with a nail thru it. This is expressly for avid "Real World" fans who sympathized with Neil and also didn't get the joke his girlfriend tried to make but failed miserably at.
6. TV dinner. No, it doesn't qualify as homemade.
5. Dead animals. Not to be confused with stuffed animals (i.e. the things you win at a carnival.)
4. Dead flowers. Hint: Most fresh flowers are preserved in water.
3. Chocolates. Especially if the loved one is dieting. "I love you no matter what you weigh" is also not a proper response to "Do I look fat?"
2. Getting dumped or dumping. That should be the 11th commandment — "Thou shall not be a heartless bastard and dump thy significant other on Valentine's Day."
1. Forgetting it's Valentine's Day until your loved one hands you a card and a smile. Then, you have to do a Homer Simpson and buy a tattered box of 5-year-old chocolates from Moe the bartender for $50.

— Tara MK Connelly

ARAMARK
Managed Services. Managed Better.
Help us make
the Olympic Summer Games an unforgettable experience.
ARAMARK, the world's largest and most successful managed services company, is the Food Service Manager of the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games. In fact, ARAMARK has been involved with the Olympic Games since 1968.
This year's Olympic Summer Games will create over 5,000 opportunities for summer employment in Atlanta, Georgia. Opportunities that will allow you to contribute to a worldwide event of historic proportions. So consider the following:
• Paid summer employment
• Experience that looks great on your resume
• A once-in-a-lifetime experience
Please attend our on-campus information session and fill out an application package on Monday, February 12, University of Mass., Amherst, 7-8 pm in SBA 120. If you are unable to attend the presentation, please fax your resume to Marc Bruno, (404) 224-1028, or apply online at http://www.aramark.sintais.com.Equal Opportunity Employer.
Host Service Manager of the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games

UMass Division of Continuing Education
Your entryway into the University and the future
• Over 200 credit courses and noncredit workshops — in the evening!
• Professional development courses, seminars, workshops
• Specialized degree programs
• Courses for recertification points for teachers
Register through February 12.
Call for a free course catalog • (413) 545-0107
e-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
Division of Continuing Education • University of Massachusetts Amherst
providing access to adult, nontraditional education for 25 years

TOTAL FITNESS
WITHOUT WAITING IN LINE
BEST AEROBICS BEST MACHINES
$139 STUDENT SPECIAL 4 MONTHS
KEISER • NAUTILUS • CYBEX
STAIRMASTERS • LIFECYCLES
TREADMILLS • V.R. BIKE
LIFEROWER • GAUNTLET
GRAVITON
AMHERST ATHLETIC CLUB Rte. 116 So. Amherst 256-0080

4 SEASONS
RTE. 9 HADLEY 584-8174
Monday- Saturday 9:00am-11:00pm
Not Responsible for typos • Visa, Mastercard & Discover accepted
DISCOUNT LIQUORS
• BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

PETES WICKED 24-12 oz. Bott. $18.99 + dep.	CATAMOUNT 24-12 oz. Bott. $16.99 + dep.	BLACK DOG 24-12 oz. Bott. $17.99 + dep.	LABATTS 24-12 oz. Bott. $15.99 + dep.	MOLSON ICE/GOLD 24-12 oz. Bott. $15.99 + dep.
BUSCH & LT. 30 Pk. $11.99 + dep.	M.G.D. & M.G.D. LT. 24-12 oz. Bar Bott. $9.99 + dep.	BUD DRY 24-12 oz. Bar Bott. $9.99 + dep.	NATURAL LT. 24-12 oz. Cans $8.49 + dep.	HAMM'S 24-12 oz. Cans $7.29 + dep.
POPOV VODKA $9.99 1.75L	CAPT. MORGAN Spiced Rum $15.99 1.75L	T.G.I. FRIDAYS Frozen Drinks $10.99 1.75L	4 SEASONS Vodka $8.99 1.75 L	GOLDSCHALGER $14.99 .750 ml	FREE CUPS! & ICE!! With Every Keg* Must Have This Coupon * Each Coupon Good For 1 Keg Good Thru 2-14-96
GLENN ELLEN Chardonnay $3.99 750 ml	BALLATORE Spumante $4.49 750 ml	M.J. VALLEJO Chardonnay $4.99 750 ml	BOONES FARM All Flavors $1.99 750 ml	MD 20/20 All Flavors $1.99 750 ml

KEGS!!!
NATURAL LT. ..... 1/2 BBL $34.99 +Dep.
BUSCH ..... 1/2 BBL $38.99 +Dep.
BUD, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LT, ICE HOUSE, RED DOG, LITE, ROLLING ROCK, BUD ICE, M.G.D., LITE ICE, MICHELOB BOCK.
$41.99 +Dep.
ICEHOUSE KEG OF THE WEEK!!!
$39.99 +Dep.

~ REVIEWS ~

Spacehog big on style, not on talent

By Wayken Shaw
Collegian Staff

SPACEHOG
Pearl Street
Feb. 6

NORTHAMPTON — John Lennon once referred to glam as rock 'n' roll with lipstick on. Nowadays, it seems that funny haircuts and weirdo personas are enough to fit the bill. Spacehog proved just that much as they rolled through Pearl Street Tuesday night.

Forgetting that the essence of glam was (and still is) about androgyny (and more importantly, some edge of offense), Spacehog took their newfound glam status a little too seriously, but nonetheless put on a rocking show that got a positive response from the Pearl Street crowd.

Opening with "Crack City" by Tin Machine, the lads from Leeds, England took no time in subtlety paying homage to glam–pioneer David Bowie. From then on, the band would put on their best Heartbreakers impersonation through high energy originals like "Candy Man," "Zeros" and the MTV buzz song, "In The Meantime."

While Spacehog showed some of the cosmic sense of T. Rex and Mott the Hoople, the band had more resemblance to the post punk/new wave melding of alternative rock today. Tuesday's performance proved Spacehog to be a little more than hype but showed that a buzz can certainly go a long way.

Boston's own Tracey Bonham opened the show with a impressive set of alternative rock. With her interchanging between guitar and violin, Bonham and her band added some interest into the Kids in the Hall theme song and a decent cover of "50 Ft. Queenie" by PJ Harvey.

Book chronicles highs, lows of lesbian's life

By Julie G. Pfrommer
Collegian Correspondent

APRIL SINCLAIR
Ain't Gonna Be The Same Fool Twice
Hyperion Books

Ain't Gonna Be The Same Fool Twice is the stunning sequel to April Sinclair's best selling debut novel, Coffee Will Make You Black. It chronicles the story of Jean "Stevie" Stevenson as she struggles to survive as an African– American woman coming to terms with her homosexuality in '70s San Francisco.

Stevie finds herself in a world of free love and food co-ops, unemployment and women's consciousness–raising groups. Throughout her trials and tribulations Stevie struggles to find her role in a diverse community. She maintains her tough, no–nonsense candor and strong sense of self. Sinclair has created a strung, honest, believable character while confronting issues of importance to both lesbian and African–American women.

As she tentatively explores her lesbian identity, Stevie investigates the city of San Francisco. With the assistance of a G.L.B outreach group, she finds herself at a lesbian dance where she meets Traci. She soon becomes Traci's roommate, battling conflict from a fellow roommate Iawea who attacks Stevie for "entering her space," and Kate–, Traci's former lover who is away.

Stevie breaks her bond with Traci and strikes out on her own this time hooking up with Sterling, a conservative by day and a disco queen by night. She then faces yet another problem when she finds herself falling for Buster, Sterling's straight roommate. Sterling accuses Stevie of betraying herself and the G.L.B movement by sleeping with a man.

Ultimately, when Stevie's grandmother falls ill, she finds herself falling back on the strength and support of the women's community that embraced her when she first came to San Francisco. She realizes she is amongst women who are unconditionally there for each other, despite minor differences in taste and background. The lesbian community strongly supports Stevie, paralleling the familial support she received in Coffee Will Make You Black.

Sinclair has created an unforgettable character who serves as an inspiration, coming to terms with difficult aspects of her identity while refusing to compromise herself or hurt others. Issues such as coming out, politics and poverty are handled deftly and honestly by Sinclair. Her second novel should follow her first to the best–seller charts and plants her firmly among some of America's best G.L.B and African– American writers. Ain't Gonna Be The Same Fool Twice is a worthwhile read and is destined to become a classic.

"Hey there cowboy, how would ya like to come over to my ranch tonight. Just you me and your copy of the Daily Collegian."
The Daily Collegian
because you should always be prepared
50,000 EYES WILL LOOK AT YOUR AD IF PLACED IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
Now for your convenience at the Campus Center Concourse on Thursdays.
Ask for our specials.

Boston band on cutting edge

Success is all but in the bag for Beantown's funky Fatbag

By Aaron Brandes
Collegian Staff

Conventional boundaries do not limit this exciting new band of crazed musicians.

What piques your curiosity? Jazz? Fat Bag is right on point, with noticeable influences coming from the one and only John Coltrane. Funk? Fat Bag could not be more on the money — Sly Stone himself would tip his gold studded, funked out, suede hat to this new musical phenomenon. Ska? Soul? Blues? Anything else you can shake your money maker to — Fat Bag has it in its repertoire, but they go so far beyond these mere categories. They radiate the most intense vibes I have ever witnessed in a small club setting.

The magic stems from the members of the group which, get this: is comprised of three different saxophone players, a drummer and a separate percussionist who concentrates on the congas, a bass guitarist and an exciting lead guitarist. Sound like a band recipe you've heard before? I didn't think so, but I'm not done yet.

An intricate part of the blend comes with Jeff, the DJ, whose record–scratching and sampling blends perfectly with the live instruments throughout the entire show. This is what blows my mind and delicately places Fat Bag in a totally fresh and unheard category of music.

The explosive grooves, the old school jazz and soul melting with the new school rap and hip–hop that create the rare and fantastic Fat Bag sound are not the only great part of this band. Alexander, the group's creator, lead singer and one of the saxophone players, graduated from the Berkeley College of Music and then started his mission. He sought after and joined together some of the brightest young musicians in Boston.

Alexander explains that, "from its conception, Fat Bag has had a definite goal in mind." The goal is to break down all boundaries and stereotypes of music. This band is no accident — it is a precalculation. The environment Fat Bag elicits at there gigs is one of total positivity and togetherness between the audience and themselves. Hand in hand with the joy comes the intensity. With hip–hop influences starting at KRS–ONE and trickling down through A Tribe Called Quest, De La Soul, and most other real hip–hop, Fat Bag is saying something.

Fat Bag is dropping knowledge and this is where the intensity ignites. Dealing with racism, prejudice and many other of our society's disgusting trademarks, Alexander splashes his listeners with meaningful lyrics which pour out from each tune.

Less than a year ago, these guys were playing tiny parties in the Boston area. Suddenly their talent has prevailed and Fat Bag is the buzz around Beantown. They have recently sold out two major clubs and are headlining the famous Mama Kin on Friday, Feb 16.

Alexander, founder of Fatbag
COURTESY FATBAG.

Where the Present Meets the Future
RETURN TO SCHOOL ZONE HOURS
20 CONSULT MAPS

Test Drive a Career
Summer Co-op and Internship opportunities available NOW!
All majors - Undergraduate and Graduate Students
"Welcome to Field Experience Sessions"
Began February 5th and held Monday - Thursday
Call 545-2226 to sign up now!!!

Cruise the Career Highway
Planning to participate in On Campus Recruiting? NOW is the time to purchase 1ST Place! - Resume Referral Software Available at the Univcersity Career Center
"Employment Options: The Senior Connection" Workshops are held on Tuesdays & Fridays. For further Information Call 545-6261 or 545-6263

On the Road Ahead
February 14 - The Annual Campus-Wide Career Fair
February 14 (evening) - The ALANA Career Fair
February 15 - Co-op Job Fair

DAVID GEFFEN COMPANY
10% off all geffen titles

FENCING TEAM?
I DIDN'T EVEN KNOW WE HAD A FENCING TEAM!
If this is you, come find out more at the Campus Center Concourse. Join the #1 CO-ED Team in the country. No experience necessary and no equipment to buy. ALL ARE WELCOME TO JOIN. Varsity positions available in all three weapons. Compete collegiately against schools like BU, BC, MIT, Brown, UNH and many more. Opportunities to COMPETE NATIONALLY as well. Graduate students also welcome.

■ Come cheer the Women's Team on at Totman Gym Sunday Feb. 11th from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.!!!!

Dave Matthews comes to Amherst College this Sunday. COURTESY DAVE MATTHEWS BAND

Matthews to play acoustical set at AC

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

He is one of the most popular figures in the music industry and he's coming to Amherst College this Sunday night.

South African expatriate Dave Matthews and his self-titled band were launched into musical nirvana after their album Under The Table And Dreaming swept the charts with tracks like "Satellite," "Ants Marching" and "What Would You Say." Now a college music staple, Matthews has moved from small venues like Pearl Street to the stage at Great Woods.

Matthews, however will be getting back to his roots by joining Tim Reynolds, a guest guitarist on all Dave Matthews Band releases, for a night of acoustic crooning. Reynolds like Matthews, is no stranger to the music business. He began playing the bass at age 12 and eventually moved on to form TR3, an experimental band with diverse musical styles and tastes.

Reynolds met Matthews in a nightclub in Charlottesville, Va. Matthews, who was bartending at the club, asked the evening's performer (Reynolds) if he could sing the Bob Marley tune, "Exodus" and the rest as they say, is history. Fans of The Dave Matthews Band have Reynolds to thank because it was he that encouraged the soulful singer to form his band.

Reynolds joined Matthews on stage last summer at the '95 Farm Aid Concert. Matthews is currently in the studio finishing up the vocals for his third album. The two decided to do an acoustical tour in order for fans to see how well they play together.

Dave Matthews and Tim Reynolds will play Amherst College's LeFrak Gymnasium at 8 p.m. The show is sold out.

■ dream dates

continued from page 5

poodle (Why does Pamela Denise Lee spring to mind?)

Henry Brier
Collegian Columnist
My dream date is one of the hundreds at that Jerusalem disco tech. When I'll return I'm not sure. Until then, I'll settle for Andie MacDowell.

Justin C. Smith
Sports Associate
When Nicole Kidman played Dr. Chase Meridian in Batman Forever her character's blend of smarts and sensuality made her as captivating as anyone on screen. And if we were out on a date she could speak with her natural Australian accent which makes my heart melt.

Bob Dunn
Ed/Op Editor
I think mine would have to involve both Brigitte Neilson and Grace Jones with a vat of honey and several blunt pieces of crowd control gear.

Matt Wurtzel
Collegian Whipping Boy
I fell in love with Sandra Bullock when she was in The Net. Her character is a dream come true. I love a woman who is neurotic, but techno-savvy.

Lisa M. Oliveri
GLBT issues editor
There is nobody who has more charm or is sexier than Antonio Banderas. We could take a jet to Spain and spend many hours locked up in a secluded house somewhere like in the film Tie me up, Tie me down!, or something like that.

Candice Flemming
Sports Goddess
My dream date would actually be a double date, because I like to double my pleasure. First, I'll pick up Antonio Sabato Jr. and we'll head to the nearest Italian restaurant and share in some tasty cheese tortellinis. He'll speak only in Italian of course, because that's how he sounds best. Then we will head over to the United Center and meet up with Michael Jordan. While there, the three of us play a pick-up game of basketball, and of course, we all score — big.

Matt Audette
Collegian Jack of All Trades
Claire Danes. Sigh. Where were you when I was a pimply- faced, angst-ridden adolescent? I know you are only 16 or whatever, but I don't care. We could go see PG-13 movies and then go rollerskating … Sigh.

Matt Vautour
Editor in Chief
My dream date would be to "Walk this World" with rising rock star Heather Nova. I'd show her a good time until she sang me the words of her oh-so provocative hit song.

Chris Stamm
Sports Associate
